GEORGE McLEOD

SHORTLY after the Japanese had battered down the defenses of Nanking last Sunday, driving General Chiang Kai-Shek before them, they bombed an American gunboat, the U. S. S. Panay, sinking it in the Yangtze river, disabled two American tankers, and fired on British ships. At least one American seaman was killed.

The President and Secretary of State have sharply protested to the Emperor and to the Japanese government. Secretary Hull demanding an "Open Door in China." Anthony Eden, young foreign secretary, acted in kind for the British empire. The Japanese who had not lost a diplomatic battle since they bottled the Russian fleet up at Port Arthur in 1904, meekly apologized. As their regrets were being cabled to the Western World, the giant Mitsui munition plant, running feverish 24-hour shifts, continued to turn out millions of tons of shells, guns, and aircraft. . . . not to be used to defend Japanese subjects or to protect Japanese soil, but evidently to subjugate China.

There once was a day when the wounding of a British ambassador and the firing upon the Union Jack, when the deliberate sinking of vessels flying the Stars and Stripes would have meant war. When the Maine and the Lusitania went down McKinley and Wilson were powerless. America public opinion demanded war. No one laments that such a day has passed. Nations should not fly into war over international incidents.

Japan is already far across the Great Wall. Today they are carrying their cannons farther to the south and to the west. A helpless Chinese civilian population is being butchered in the pagan conquest. This, not the firing on the Panay, is the reprehensible thing. There is something wrong about it.

A few years ago I walked down the Bund at Shanghai, visited her josh houses and pagodas. I sailed up the Yangtze on a Norwegian freighter, and saw the Chinese farmers quietly tilling their fields. I stood on the heights of British Hongkong and looked across the bay into an amazingly beautiful Chinese mainland. While in the Orient I saw Chinese mothers, children, laborers, and students. They lived primitively for the most part, but they lived simply, happily, peacefully. Now so many of them—those folks I saw there, have been slaughtered. Their homes and their cities are gone. The wealth and culture accumulated by the unrequited toil of five thousand years are being destroyed. Why? Because as T. Z. Koo says, the Japanese emperor and his advisors will if that way.

Reminiscing Co-ed, Writing From "Somewhere In Ozarks" Feels That Willamette Owes Her Something

Somewhere in the Ozarks, December, 1937.

Dere Editors:

I've just been a sittin' out by the pig sty and sorta having sweet reollections and reminiscences about Willamette and my perfessor. I was jest looking at Snorty. I was prize winning hawg; he had a little streak of mud on his nose just like a muskrat, and his eyes were sorta pathetic, just like my perfessor's; and all of a sudden I was jest terribly lonesome for my perfessor and Willamette; so I jest thought I'd write a letter to you people's again.

Shorty will always be dear to me, and I will always cherish him bekus of the above-mentioned resemblance. I'll never be able to eat him in pork chops now—the only way I'll be able to get him down will be in ham.

Up here in the Ozarks, life is sure different than down there in the Willamette valley. Why except for me the only other person whose ever gone to school is Elmer's brother who had two heads and is pickled in a jar at Yale. Ah, such are the frailties of life.

Now since I've had a taste of the higher things of life, I've been trying to cultivate a love of beauty and culture in my life, but I'm afraid it's no use. I'm terribly misunderstood, really I am. When I tried to get Paw to eat his peas with a knife instead of a pitchfork, he said, "What do you think I am? A blank (the naughty word) sword swallower?" When I tried to get Maw to use gummysacks instead of horse blankets for dish towels, she said that she had always been a lady and wasn't going to bekum a hussy now.

But Elmer wuz the worst of

"The Eldest" Takes Award In Play Night

Chester Oppen, Directs Ten Dollar Prize Winner

"The Eldest," the play directed by Chester Oppen, won the first prize of $10 in Little Theater's Play Night held Tuesday evening in the chapel. Characters in the play were Elizabeth Irvine, Julia Foglesong, Geraldine Parker, Virginia Rude, Watson Dutton, Wilfred Hagedorn and Ed Cohen.

Second prize was awarded to Martha Herman for her direction of "The Vanishing Princess," with characterizations by Verna Vosper, Bob Farmer, Laurence Morley, and Arnold Hardman.

The winning play was chosen from the four dramatizations accepted in the elimination from also played on Monday evening to a restricted audience. Judges of both selections were Mrs. Otto K. Paulus, Mrs. Elsa Elsen, Mrs. Franklin Thompson, Mrs. W. T. Jenks, Dr. Henry Kohler and Mr. Forrest Mills.

"Post Office," directed by Barbara Jones and "Martha's Mourning," directed by Lorena Thompson, were the remaining plays considered in Tuesday's competition. The characters of the former play were Virginia Hubba, Dorothy Evans, Carol Reed, Gertrude Connell and Carroll Drew. Those acting in the latter play were Maravene Thompson, Rose Ann Gibson and Esther Vebra.

Many factors were considered in judging the one-act plays. Points considered were casting, characterization, group action, ingenuity of stage set, mode of rhythm and theme, pantomime, voice, and general impression.

Mrs. Oppen acted as mistress of ceremonies during the play presentations. Mary Elizabeth Kells gave the monologue, "Beyond," as a special feature of the program.

Phyllis Macy Named Head of Coffee House

Phyllis Macy was elected president and Dillon Jones secretary-treasurer of Coffee House at its first meeting this year, Monday evening, December 13, at Willamette Lodge. Various members read original themes and Professor Richards recited some of his poetry. Coffee House looks forward to an active program this year in the study of literature and the encouragement of creative writing.

Maybe I'm the Fool

After thought and concentration, Much review and compilation, I began to think perhaps I'd pass. So in confidence and grandeur Much ado and inward candor, I stood up and went into my class.

There the staid professor waited, And upon the board was stated All the questions for the final test, Pen in hand and paper ready, Full of pep and nerves quite steady, I was in a mood to do my best.

Looking round I caught the glances And the slow, but sure advances, Of a pal of mine just to my right. Though he had no new inventions I could tell that his intentions Were to get my paper in his sight.

With a swift decisive motion Smooth and liquid as the ocean He slid up to where I sat alone. There his glance was quite elusive But was also most inclusive As he used my knowledge for his own.

Then I stopped awhile and wondered If, perhaps I might have blundered, Letting him get by at my expense. So I moved to hide my paper, Thinking that would be much safer, Hoping that he would not take offense.

Nothing daunted by my action He slid out his book a fraction, Opened it and started in to write. Every chance he got thereafter, With a smirk and noiseless laughter He would copy till he got it right.

When the grades were duly posted, I could hear him as he boasted Of the "A" he finally rated in the test. Do you wonder that I'm sadder, And perhaps a little madder, At the "C" I found I got with all the rest?

Tell me, where is all the fairness, Honesty and truthful bareness That we hoped to find within our school? While I burn the oil at midnight Vagrant thoughts creep in like twilight—I've begun to think that I'm a fool.

—By A Freshman.

Student Opinion

Tabulated On Cheating

Hannah Kaufman—I agree with the Collegian editorial. Something must be done.

Louise Patterson—Pretty good editorial.

Marie Bendickson—There is cheating, but not as much as thought. Curve system is where the suffering comes in, because for every "A" made by cheating, some conscientious worker gets an "F".

Alene Fairclough—Cheating is more open this year. Freshmen have carried over the idea that since cheating was permissible in high school, the tradition can be continued in college.

Neil Shaffer—The condition has been developing for the last three years; it is a result of competition for grades.

Bob Brown—Neil is right.

John Densley—Have a think and a pass—do away with competition.

Walt Weaver—Do away with grade system.

Jiggs Burnett—Makes no difference to me—fill them anyway.

Ralph Ransom—Editorial correct in many respects, but rather radical. Blame must fall on the students rather than systems.

Anonymous—I'm sure glad none of the last edition was sent out to other schools.

Lillian Briggs—The only way we can stop cheating is by clamping down socially. The opinion of your fellow students means a lot if he takes into account the fact that you cheat, and then you for it, then you should bring you to your senses.

Connie Schneider—Kids stop it in high school, and stop it here. The one's who are writing about grade curves probably would think any way.

Anonymous—"I don't think cheating is right, and the professors are the only individuals that can stop it."

Bill McAdam—I think this cheating is due to a few conditions in the school system.

Anonymous—"Too much emphasis has been placed on quantity of students in Willamette instead of quality."

Anonymous—Ostracization by students directed toward those that cheat.

Delegates To Student Meet Leave Monday

National Assembly at Oxford Attracts 4 Local Representatives

Under the sponsorship of the Y. M. and Y. W. C. A., Olive Clemes, John Voss, Margaret Taylor, and Dan Moses will leave Salem next Monday to attend a National Student Assembly at Oxford, Ohio. The delegation will travel by train and plans to spend Christmas in Chicago with the family of Eugene Hubbard, a former Willamette student.

Foregoing holiday festivities, 2,000 students, professors, and other advisers will meet as the guests of Miami University and Western College, at Oxford, Ohio, in the National Assembly of Student Christian Associations.

Assembly plans began two years ago at a meeting of the National Intercollegiate Christian Council, in response to repeated and insistent requests from many parts of the country. From the beginning it was agreed that this should be, not a resolutions-making convention, but a gathering of responsible Christian campus leaders for sharing and planning. Men and women with extensive experience in dealing with crucial questions will be present as "resources." The assembly will not attempt to give the full answer to every problem, but it is hoped that inevitably delegates will gain a new understanding of the meaning and the responsibilities of being a Christian in our contemporary campus and world society.

The main purpose of the Assembly is to discover new and improved policies and programs for the Christian Association Movement, locally, regionally, and nationally. Worship, under the leadership of Bishop William Scavlett of Missouri, will open each day of the assembly.

Game With Santa Barbara Cancelled

Due to a ruling of the athletic board of the university, Spec Keene's Bearcat gridsters will play Santa Claus this Christmas instead of mixing with Santa Barbara State footballers. The contest slated for the California city on Christmas day has been cancelled.

No reason was given for the sudden cancellation of the tilt, but the administration in confirming the announcement, stated the schedule had fallen heavily on the team members scholastically and physically and the Christmas vacation would provide time for recuperation as well as permit a number of the players to work during the holidays.

The Santa Barbara tilt was to have been the first post-season engagement for the local football warriors and practice sessions had already been started in anticipation of it when the surprise announcement was made, Wednesday afternoon.

Songsters Will Sponsor Annual 'Songmen' Swing Jan. 7 at Elks Temple

The annual Songmen dance will be held on January 7 this year, it was announced late this week by J. Manning Nelson, president of the Gleemen.

Plans are under way to bring an orchestra from Portland to the Capital city for the event, and negotiations are being carried out for the use of the Elks' temple hall for the evening.

The entire student body will be hidden to the annual "Songmen Swing" and the songsters are making preparations for the largest gathering of the year.

NEW HOUSE IS PURCHASED FOR UNIVERSITY PRESIDENT

Announcement was made this week of the purchase of a house for the president of the university. The new building will probably be moved to the campus soon.

Peace On Earth? Good Will Toward Men?

By JEAN MITCHELL

Yes, indeed, there is something in the air . . . something so intermingled with the smell of Christmas greens, so interblended with the tinkling of Christmas bells and the faint wisp of a Christmas carol caught as we pass a neighborhood church, that we hardly know what to call it. There is in the air a new feeling of joy, of tolerance, of gladness. It is the one time of all the year when we try to lay aside all our prejudices and try to have a new view of the world.

One starlit night over the fields of Bethlehem, some two thousand years ago, there came into being something that gave to all the world an entirely new view of life. He, the Babe of Bethlehem, first taught of the brotherhood of mankind. He taught peace, humility, and forgiveness of sins.

Surely it is well for us, with the world again tottering beneath our feet to pause at this joyous season of the year, and consider His teaching. It would be well for each one of us as we gather around the tree with our loved ones, or as we join some carolers as they sing of "peace on earth, good will to men" to consider the true meaning of these words, and to make a silent vow within our hearts that those words will not be meaningless.

The Christmas season has an age-old message for all the world . . . if the world will only listen!

Couple Leaves For M. E. Meet In St. Louis

John McNeese, and Echo Johnson Enroute To Conference

Lap number one of the trip to St. Louis, Mo., for Echo Johnson and John McNeese, delegates from Willamette to the National Methodist Student Conference, dated for December 28 to 31, started at 2:00 o'clock Thursday, as the couple boarded the Southern Pacific train, bound for the State of Washington.

The Willamette pair plans to spend three days at the McNeese home at Twisp, Washington. From Washington the pair will go to Echo Johnson's home at Great Falls, Mont., for about five days where they will spend Christmas. After leaving Montana the pair will go to Denver, Colo., where they will meet the other delegates from Willamette University, Ralph Klen and Orvall Whitman. Then, in a foursome, the Willamette delegates will go on to St. Louis, Mo., for the convention.

For the first time since the split in the Methodist church, youth from all Methodism will meet. Three branches of the Methodist church will unite in this conference. The Methodist Episcopal Church North, The Methodist Episcopal Church South, and the Methodist Protestant Church.

Purpose of the convention is to devote itself to the basic concepts of religion and the relation of these to the organization and conduct of individual group life. Student problems will be discussed fully at the convention.

Such men as Doctor Ernest F. Tittle, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church, of Evanston, Ill.; Bishop Paul R. Kern, from the Methodist Episcopal Church, of the North Carolina area; and Bishop James C. Baker, founder of the Wesley Foundation, will be platform speakers for the conference.

Echo Johnson and John McNeese will have to pay about $50 apiece for their expenses and the rest of the cost of the trip has been met by the Vespers through the Caudied Apple Sale.

Ten Members of ASB Attend Meet

Ten members of the student body were entertained on Sunday afternoon at the home of Dean and Mrs. D. H. Schultz in the second Faculty Fireside gathering of the year. An informal afternoon was spent with refreshments in the late afternoon.

Those attending the affair were: Natalie Reed, Jean Bartlett, Margaret Teruaki, Dorothy Greenwood, Dorothy Wright, Charles Donaldson, Bill Parker, Dayton Robertson, Bill Thomas, and Tom Oye.

These annual functions, which are under the sponsorship of the Y. W. C. A., have been planned by various members of the Social committee. Last week's affair was arranged by Eleanor Perry.

Fusion of Oriental, Occidental Detected In Famous Chinese Lecturer and Scholar, Dr. Koo

Dr. T. Z. Koo, Chinese scholar and lecturer, visited the Willamette university campus last Friday. He spoke at chapel and gave an informal talk at Christo Cottage during the lunch hour. When approached for an interview, he stated that he had already given one. It is suspected that Dr. Koo did not wish to be interviewed—he wished to be regarded not as an individual, but as a world personality.

Dr. Koo represents a delightful fusion of the Oriental and the Occidental—a fusion which brings a calm peacefulness and clearness to a rampant materialistic Western World. His figure, his style, his speech, gives clear retrospection to world problems. Not a rank propagandist, not an idle dreamer, not a spiritual mystic, Dr. Koo brings into the conflict a philosophy of life. His is a philosophy of individuals, not of nations, China, the calm, the peaceful, and the polite is fighting a battle with the progressive, the avaricious, and the morose of Japan. But not dismayed by the appalling atrocities perpetrated upon his race, he looks no ill to the Japanese people. They are merely misguided, and as individuals they are still Christian.

At Christo Cottage, Dr. Koo is seen addressing a group of students. He stands on tiptoe, his slight figure bends forward. He is eager, restless for the truth; yet a calmness hovers over him. His subject matter is built up in his hands. It is plain, very plain. A finger in each hand is held erect, he is speaking and his precise English rings. "Force is neither good nor bad unless applied. There must be a mutual connection, a give a little and take a little philosophy among peoples before peace will be among nations." His two fingers curve together. There is a fusion. It is simple.

Outside it is raining. Automobiles dash headlong throughout the lunch hour. Dr. Koo is far removed from the simplicity, the serenity of his own country, but he brings something true, something intangible, to the Western World.

Together—We Will Stop It!

Cheating is on the way out at Willamette! So great has been the favorable reaction of the students and professors alike concerning last week's Collegian editorial, that action has already been taken to wipe cheating completely off the campus.

Battle lines have not been drawn up for a long fight, however. There is to be no battle. The greater part of the students are with us—on one condition—that the other fellow stops "cribbing" also. The professors are one hundred percent behind us and have already taken steps in various classes to stop cheating. No, there will be no struggle, though cheating cannot be completely stopped by simply issuing a decree to that effect. We must carry out our campaign gradually, thoughtfully—close in from all angles—and while stopping the present wave of cheating, lay foundations to prevent recurrence of the situation later.

Realizing the type of campaign that is necessary to stop cheating, recognizing the sentiment of the great number of students who offered their suggestions the past week, and emphasizing particularly the ideas of the professors, the Collegian offers here its constructive proposals to remedy the situation that has enveloped the campus.

First—to the faculty:

1.—Professors must patrol classes and patrol them well. The experiment has been tried during the past week and cheating was completely stopped. The idea seems childish to some of you, but the fact remains, cheating must be stopped RIGHT NOW AND PATROLLING DOES IT!

2.—Sets of two, three, and even four differing tests have been made by professors and given to the students whose seating was arranged according to the "stagger" method. Making the numerous tests necessitated some additional work for the professors, but giving fewer questions and more general type of queries eases that situation.

3.—Blue books should be used for all tests.

A faculty rule decrees that blue books shall be used in final examinations this semester. Why not start now? The faculty need not purchase the books. That is not done in other schools. Let the students purchase the books and hand them in to the professors in each class to be passed out for the exams, only after he has made a careful check to prevent the insertion of notes before the test.

4.—Be careful to keep all examination questions secret. Allow no one to handle the questions before a test. This will prevent exams from circulating upon the campus before they are given. Caution workers in the room where mimeographing is done to watch test papers carefully—this has been one source of pre-exam circulation of questions, the Honor Code Committee finds.

Professors, your cooperation is needed one hundred percent. Any of you who lag behind and are careless about the cheating in your classes are going to draw upon you the wrath of the great majority of the students on this campus who are pleading for you to stop all cheating. We expect your cooperation.

And now, to the students:

1.—We realize that patrolling the classes will seem a bit childish to you and will antagonize those who have not been cheating. However, allow your good judgment to tell you that the system is necessary, the only practical solution right now, and that it must be put into effect. To those of you who have been cheating, you are being treated like children because you have been acting like children. Remember, students, just as soon as it is deemed possible to put you on your honor again, that will be done. You must prove yourselves, first.

2.—You can cooperate in our campaign in this way also: When cheating is noticed in classes report the fact to the professor asking that he do something about it. No names need be mentioned; you are not asked to "sneak" on a classmate; just insist the professor be more alert, for, after all, you suffer when the condition is allowed.

Several other suggestions have been made. 1. The students blame grades, competition for "A" and "B" marks, for a great deal of the cheating and would advocate a pass and flunk system of grading. 2.—A great number of professors would give nothing but surprise tests, saying that would not allow a student to prepare his notes, to be used in tests, a week in advance. Students oppose the plan, insisting review is necessary to master any subject. 3.—Students would change the curriculum giving more leeway in choosing one's subjects. Requiring certain courses outside one's field and requiring courses such as Bible History is deemed wrong. The administration points out that one comes to college for a well-rounded education, not to concentrate on one lone subject, and that the curriculum is arranged to provide a rounded education. 4.—The faculty would limit freshman participation in extra-curricular activities, including athletics. Here, most of the students agree. One activity seems ample for a rookie if he is to get the proper training in the college method of study in his initial year. 5.—Students and faculty agree that entrance requirements should be raised considerably, thereby excluding from Willamette many students of the element that foster cheating. All of the above suggestions are debatable and will be taken up individually in the later issues of the Collegian.

So, professors, prepare to come back to school after vacation and put into effect every practical anti-cheating device possible. We, the students, are counting upon your action.

And, students, prepare to come back to school after vacation, devoid of any bad habits you might have had concerning the taking of exams. Offenders will be punished to the limit. It will not be worth taking the chance of being dropped from school to cheat in an examination.

Together, we will run this ghastly evil off the campus.

MAGIC OF THE PEN

Edited by JOSEPHINE GILSTRAP

EVOLUTION

My child-mind, fearful, questioning, sought Assurance that my self could cope With each of life's great mysteries.

"God help me to be kind and good,
"God make me strong for what I do . . ."

Then my reason tore away.
My blind belief—the future now seems
My responsibility—now I know
The secret lies within myself . . .
That "I am strong" for what I do.

SOLLOQUY

My tongue, word-seeking, cannot find
Expression for a sun-blazed sky,
For wind-swept fields beneath the rain
Fast-winged geese, their faint, wild cry . . .

My hands cannot with lightning shape
A thing of clay to breathe and be;
Nor make a canvas pulse and glow
Nor orchestrate a symphony.

My heart, emotion filled, has sought
Release—and found it only in
The magic of a melody—
And quietness when a song begins.

BRIDGE OF LIFE

A bridge there is built strong and wide,
A mark "X" which all Time doth wear
And on its moonlit path at night
We stand a single silhouette
To mark the strip of silver light
No road, no wall, nor blinded door
Can ever close us while there
Above arches distant, star-strewn sky
Beneath us, restless, wandering,
A winding stream swirls softly
by
Our bridge spans toward love—
and strife.
The pulsing beat of vague strife

Introducing . . .

DR. GATZKE

From Willamette he gained his history background and his Bachelor of Divinity degree. He is an ordained minister and an influential member of the Methodist church. He received his Ph. D. from American University, Pi Gamma Mu, Theta Alpha Phi, and faculty member of Willamette chapter of Theta Alpha Phi. Dr. Robert Moulton Gatzke stands amid a host of Greek letters and letters of educational achievement.

Dr. Gatzke is one of the most eminent authorities on Oregon History and is a contributor to the Oregon Historical Quarterly. The American Boy, American Home and Garden, and still others have received contributions from the observing, satirizing doctor. His articles arise from a broad and deep understanding, steeped in tradition and scholastic influence.

Gentle of speech—beneficent of mind, Dr. Gatzke presents a clear view of government and governmental problems of today. Occasionally the good Doctor allows a glint of sweet sarcasm to drop and smiles good-naturedly while the reverberations of the splash echo and re-echo throughout the classroom. His being a Republican and his slight misjudgment of the last election surely has nothing to do with it, but there are several on the campus that have gained the impression that he does not entirely agree with the present administration.

In connection with the foregoing paragraph, we might add that Dr. Gatzke's favorite quotation is from Shakespeare, "What fools these mortals be."

Although seldom very long away from his office—even in summer, Dr. Gatzke finds time to keep his garden and collection of specially developed flowers in a constant array of beauty. Rhododendrons, dahlias, and "mums" appear to be his delight and claim to flower fame.

The lectures presented by Dr. Robert M. Gatzke are illustrative of a masterful vocabulary of simple teaching ability, of an unusually complete knowledge of subject, and above all, of an absolute infallibility of authenticity. To you, Doctor, is the support of the school unquestionably given, and with it the assurance that respect and personal friendship abound in everyone on the campus.

OPPENIONS

By CHESTER OPPEN

The Christmas season now draws near.
I'm glad it comes but once a year,
And if I bought each friend a gift,
I'd have a precious little left.

Our hats are off to the play director who made Bob Farmer vanish in front of 150 people in the student play contest. Even if he was all folded up, Bob would not be anything to put in your pocket. The play is the thing, according to Wilfred Hagstrom, who put a free food with every appearance on the stage. After his last dinner, Bill pushed back from the table, stood up and said "That was mighty nice, see you (smiled) tonight, boys."

Beverly Vehrs had a serious difficulty with her make-up as "Pryce," the old hunchback. Every time she put on her face make-up it took just like those strange Aladdin's hunchbacks.

Bob Keuscher had a strange experience Wednesday, when at 4:10 o'clock he was asked to REM. He had a "jiff" which he had never read, and got on the air with such notable dramatics as Clarence Coleman, Gertrude Baker and Stella Taylor. Bob was greatly surprised when he found his own name written Henry Seltz.

HOLEPROOF HOSIERY

Amazing how many names on your gift list this will take care of—best! Holeproof Hosiery itself is so flattering . . . so clear and sheer and altogether lovely. And when it's set off by this rich gift box, it has that extravagant look that adds so much to the thrill of giving—and receiving.

Alpha Phis and Kappas Exchange Dinner Sunday

One of the highlights of the social calendar for the weekend just past was the Alpha Phi Alpha-Kappa Gamma Rho exchange dinner, held Sunday, December 12, at 1:00 o'clock. Miss Marjorie Jones and Bob Campbell acted as chairmen for the dinner.

Members of the Beta Chi sorority held their mid-winter formal at Castilian hall, where they danced to the music of Harry Wesley's orchestra. The hall was transformed into an Arctic night. Behind the orchestra flashed the "northern lights" and overhead silver stars shone in a blue crepe paper sky. Snow banks were arranged about the room and a northern scene was depicted on one with tiny reindeer and fir trees. Glistening icicles hung over all of the doorways.

The Beta Chi trio, composed of Miss Virginia Nohlgren, Miss Betty Savage, and Miss Betty Lou Lacy, sang several numbers. Mrs. C. A. McCarger, Professor and Mrs. Herbert Raine, and Dr. and Mrs. Chester Luther were chaperones for the dance.

Tuesday evening for dinner, members of Delta Phi entertained at their guests the Misses Mary Head, Irene Bliss and Jean Mitchell. House songs were sung during the dinner and afterwards the girls and their guests attended the one-act play finals in the chapel.

Last night members and pledges enjoyed their annual Christmas party at the chapter house with the exchange of gifts among members and the reception of gifts for the house from members and friends. Refreshments were served after the brief house meeting and following that a practice of the songs to be sung on the serenade was held. The serenade began at midnight and each living organization was serenaded. Everyone returned to the house afterwards for a warming cup of coffee and for division of the spoils.

Speedball honorable mention—Jerry Laurens, John Kelly, Bill Anton, Bob White, Leland Shinn, Durward Southard, Dan Moses, Bob Keuscher, Henry Frantz, and Charles Wait, Alpha Psi; Bill Wagner, Bill Parker, Herman Estes, Charles Donaldson, and George LaVatta, Sigma Tau; Ralph Gustafson, Francis Rierison, Verne Rierison, and Gilman Davis, Kappa Gamma Rho.

Five members of the champion Alpha Psi Delta passball team, five from the runner-up Kappa Gamma Rho aggregation, and one from the last place Sigma Tau entry compose the second annual Willamette Collegian intramural passball all-star team, selected in collaboration with the managers of the three fraternities.

In the speedball selection the championship Alpha Psi aggregation, though undefeated thus far in any intramural sport this year, placed only three men, while the Kappa's and the Sigs placed four men each.

A number of men were left off the passball selection because they did not participate in a large enough percentage of the league games played by their respective teams. These men included Larry Nunnenkamp and Harry Mohr of the Kappa's, and Bill Anton and John Kelly of the Alpha Psi's, all of whom were on last year's all-star team.

Speedball All-Star Selection
The speedball all-star team is composed of three of the champion Alpha Psi's, four from the runner-up Sigma Tau aggregation, and four from the third place Kappa team.

Again there were several outstanding players who were not considered because they did not play enough. These were Jerry Laurens, John Kelly, Bill Anton, Bob White, Leland Shinn, Durward Southard, and Bob Keuscher of the title-winning Alpha Psi's; and Bill Wagner, Bill Parker, and Herman Estes of the second place Sigma Tau outfit.

Don Brandon, Les Sparks, and Mike Balkovic of the P. E. staff were not considered because of their ineligibility in both the passball and speedball leagues, while the independents and Freshmen dropped out of the races shortly after the start.

Dwight Catherwood, Frank Hediger, and Bob Jones of Alpha Psi, and Bob Teeters and Bud Koehler of the Kappa's were selected on both the passball and speedball all-star teams.

White led the scoring parade with 9 points, making most of them in the last half when they counted most, and besides doing the lion's share of the point-making, with Beard and Weaver broke up play after play which the invaders sent down the floor.

Half-time score favored the Oilers by a count of 12 to 7.

Bearcats Upset Multnomah Club

Paced by "Whizzer" Bob White, who scored 12 points and played a bang-up floor game, Coach Howard Maple's Bearcats won its second consecutive victory over a major northwest hoop independent team when they upset Multnomah club of Portland, 35 to 29, on the local court last Saturday night.

Johnny Fuller, former University of Washington star, led the Winged-M team with 12 points as he hit the bucket for four field goals and a like number of free throws.

The Bearcats were ahead all the way, but a closing spurt sparked by Cliff Folen, ex-Oregon State hooper, threatened the lead of Maple's boys, as the gun ended the battle. Willamette led at the half, 14 to 9.

Union Oil Defeats Bearcat Hoopsters

Led by Bud Jones, ex-University of Oregon hoop luminary, the strong Union Oil of Portland basketball team reversed a previous Bearcat victory by defeating the local boys, 32 to 21, in a fast game played at Oregon City, last Tuesday night.

The Willamette boys started out fast and grabbed a good-sized lead, as they completely bewildered Union Oil with their accurate shooting; and with six minutes of the third quarter played, they held a 19 to 9 lead.

But the picture here changed completely, as the Oilers began to hit to hoop, and the Bearcats to shoot wildly. The Portlanders quickly shot into the lead, winning the game in the final quarter in ridiculously easy fashion.

Bill Beard with three field goals led Coach Howard Maple's boys, as they dropped their first hoop contest of the year.
