

STATE TOURNEY IS AGAIN HELD AT WILLAMETTE

Committee Appointed for Each District—Less Grief From Controversies Will Result

TEN TEAMS TO COMPETE

State Board of Control Highly Pleased With Results of Last Year's Tournament

The Oregon State High School Athletic Board has accepted the offer of Willamette University to hold on her campus the 1925 state high school basketball tournament.

The board in recent conference considered the question of district organization and have handled the subject in such a way as to lessen the grief of previous years.

Further they have absolute authority to settle all controversies pertaining to their district.

The state board also ruled that eight players may enter into competition, whereas formerly only seven were allowed.

These changes by the association are regarded as a big step for the better. Willamette University is also planning to make decided improvements over last year, although they have been commended on 1924's great success.

It is very probable that a Portland team will be allowed to compete. The reason being that Portland is now admitted to the state league as they now conform in every way with the regulation of that group.

The state athletic association has praised by letter the capable way Willamette handled the games last year, congratulating being offered our "perseverance and patience in seeing everything through to a glorious conclusion."

MOST OF CLASS DEBATERS CHOSEN

Sophomore Team as Yet Unknown—Little Interest Evidenced

With the first debate less than two weeks away, the senior, junior, and freshman teams have been chosen, but the sophomores are still lacking.

Dan Taylor and Elsie Hop Lee won the senior plans without opposition. After some difficulty the juniors emerged with Ross Anderson and Dick Briggs.

The question is the same as for Japanese should be admitted to the United States on the same basis as immigrants from those nations having a quota.

In the first two debates the juniors and freshman uphold the affirmative against the seniors and sophomores respectively.

Roughness and horseplay in fraternity initiations was put under ban by the national organization of the Alpha Tau Omega fraternity at its biennial congress recently held in Philadelphia.

CO-ED GLEE TO TOUR OREGON; WASHINGTON

Club to Sing at State Training School and Falls City; 20 Girls to Make Trip

The latest reports of the Willamette Ladies' Glee Club insure a full and agreeable season for that organization. Plans for the tour are almost complete, every prospect being so favorable that those in charge do not hesitate to predict one of the best trips the club has ever undertaken.

Before the big trip, the girls will give a number of week-end concerts, the preliminary one being given at the Boys' Training School the first week in February. The next concert will be at Falls City.

During spring vacation and the week following the long tour will take place. So prompt have been the response from all the towns along the route to tentative proposals that at present the schedule is complete with only two open dates.

The route as previously stated lies through eastern Oregon, and north into South and Central Washington. The itinerary reads as follows: Gresham, Portland, Sunnyside church, Stanfield, Walla Walla, Kennewick, Grand View, Yakima, Pelton and Goldendale with other towns held as probable contracts.

GLEE CLUB SINGS FOR GIRLS' SCHOOL

The first concert of the year for which the Men's Glee Club have been preparing for some time, was given Monday evening at the Girls' Industrial School.

The program included the following numbers:

- 1. Roadways.....John Densmore Glee Club
2. Solo.....Don Heath
3. Sweet Canaan.....Wc. Reddick Glee Club
4. The Old Road.....Duna Men's Quartette
5. Stunt.....George Moorhead, Daryl and Rawson Chapin
6. Solo.....Lloyd Thompson
7. Shadow March.....D. Protheroe Glee Club
8. Jonah.....Men's Quartette
9. Stunt.....Milton Gralapp and Don Heath
10. Solo.....Joe Nea
11. Goin' Home.....Anton Dvorak Glee Club
12. A Bunch of Jolly Soudent's.....Men's Quartette
13. I Love W. U.....Glee Club

All wells recently discovered on the campus of the University of Texas will yield that school over $250,000 a year in royalties. The money will go into the university's permanent endowment fund, and the interest will be used for the construction of new buildings.

PROGRESS OF 1926 WALLULAH EXCELS RECORD

Pictures and Copy Work Are Approaching Completion; Material Excellent

The Wallulah is at last beginning to realize the dreams and aspirations of the staff. The cuts of pictures are being rushed through Hicks-Chatton Engraving Co., and will probably soon be finished. Copy work is also taking on permanent form under Koke-Tiffany, the Eugene printers.

The 1925 book is under a new arrangement in that it contains a section entitled "Activities," making a total of seven sections: Administration, Classes, College Life, Athletics, Satire and Activities. The blue and silver cover is a No. 4 Malloy cover and is one class better than former ones which have been of the No. 3 type.

Wallulah art work, is being done mostly by underclassmen and juniors.

BARNSTORMING TRIP

Willamette Administers Defeat to Multnomah Club

During the Christmas holidays, Coach Rathbun took nine of the varsity hoop squad down the Columbia river on a practice tour. In view of experience gained, the trip was satisfactory. Much of the team's greenness was supplanted by confidence and greater knowledge of the science of the game.

On Dec. 31, the Long-Bell five of Longview, Wash., showed the Bearcats a few new tricks of the game while taking the long end of a 33 to 25 score.

The next two evenings the Columbia Club of Astoria entertained Rathbun and his men. The boys played two fine games but made many costly mistakes and failed to take advantages that were offered, with the result that they lost both games, 19 to 17 and 23 to 14.

With the lessons of the previous evenings well in mind the Bearcats evaded into the Multnomah Club of Portland, Jan. 3, and brought the trip to a happy climax with a 32 to 27 win. The Winged M are a classy quintet of the calibre of the best college teams, and to defeat them was no easy task.

The men who made the trip were: Fasnacht, Robertson, Hartley, Steincipher, Post, Poling, and Desart. Fasnacht was the outstanding star on the team.

BILL WOULD BRING CONVENTIONS BACK

Mills Excites "Legislature" With Proposal to Restore Party Assemblies

A. L. Mills, president of the First National bank of Portland, has created quite a furor in Oregon politics by his proposal to bring back party conventions to this state as supplements of the direct primary system. This proposal has been embodied in a bill which is to be presented to the present legislature.

The bill as adopted provides for county, district and state conventions to be held in July of the general election years. The county conventions are to be held in the county seats on the second Tuesday in July and the state conventions in Salem on the second Friday following the county gatherings.

All candidates receiving 40 per cent or more of the votes at the primaries are to be immune from the jurisdiction of the conventions, while candidates receiving less than 40 per cent become convention candidates at their own request.

While by some people this bill may be taken as an attack on the primary system, Mr. Mills says that he has no desire to harm or hamper the direct primary law, but only wants "party responsibility and representative government brought back to Oregon." He further declares that his measure would supplement the existing primary system and that it is not, as some have interpreted it to be, the opening wedge for the re-introduction into Oregon of the old party convention system of nominating candidates.

Willamette Defeats Pacific By Decisive Score

The Willamette Bearcats defeated Pacific College of Newberg by the decisive score of 37-16 in a one sided but fast game in the local gym in the third game of the season. The game belonged to Willamette from the first minute of play for although the visitors played a hard fast game they were unable to penetrate the Willamette five man defense.

Coach Rathbun took advantage of the one sided score to test practically his entire squad. Three separate teams played for Willamette and each team more than held its own with the visitors.

John Steincopner was high point man of the game with a total of 16 points to his credit. Brown was the outstanding star for Pacific with but four points for his team.

The starting line ups were as follows: Emmel (1).....F.....Leinard (2) Mast (4).....F.....Armstrong Poling (4).....C.....Brown (4) Stolchese.....G.....Cook Erickson.....G.....Jones

ERICKSON CHOSEN FROM FACULTY TO BE A. S. B. TREAS.

Constitutional Revision Leaves Briggs as Second Vice-President

With the acceptance of the new amendments to the Student Body Constitution, Richard Briggs, formerly A. S. B. Treasurer, has been automatically released of his duties and a faculty member, selected to take his place. This is in compliance with Article IX, section I of the Constitution, which reads:

"The Treasurer may be any person not an undergraduate," and goes on to provide that:

"He shall be appointed by the Executive Committee, and his appointment approved by the President of the University."

At the last meeting of the Executive Committee the matter was presented, and Prof. Erickson selected for the office. Mr. Briggs becomes, under the Constitutional provision, Section 1, 3, 4, the Second Vice-president, and with lightened duties.

FROSH BASKETBALL SQUAD GOES STRONG

The Willamette Frosh basketball squad has played six games already this season, all away from home. Out of this schedule they emerged with three won and three lost.

In good condition after a month of practice the Bear-kittens started with a win over the Chemawa Indian school, 23 to 11. The tribe's strong finish was the spectacular interest of the game. Freshman Coach Sparks used nine or ten men in all six games, using two teams in this first game.

During the Christmas holidays, the squad lost a hard fought tussle to the Multnomah intermediates, 27 to 23, in which the effects of pumpkin pie and turkey were very conspicuous. Against Salem Hi the Bearkittens again sweated off much of the effects of the Christmas dinner, but the high school pulled through with a narrow margin. The Frosh were dead on their feet and couldn't hit the backboard except by force of habit.

Back in training again with several hard workouts to limber them up, Washington Hi of Portland was taken down the line in a fast, close game, 22-21.

Woodburn was next, Jan. 8, the Tuesday after vacation. Many costly bad habits and mistakes which the Frosh had picked up in high school seemed to have come back to them. Woodburn was beaten by the first team in the first canto, but poor guarding and the inexperienced second team lost the game 25 to 25.

After these two successive workouts, the Oregon City High five was taken into camp on Friday night 25 to 14. For the first time in the season the team really played together, though the seconds didn't do so well. The score at the half was 18-5, while it ended 25 to 14.

The trip exposed the team's faults and on Saturday morning the squad worked to overcome these from 10:00 till after 1:00.

This week the Bearkittens meet Chemawa here Tuesday, Jefferson Hi at Portland on Wednesday afternoon, and Lincoln Hi here Friday night. As yet no varsity material has shown up, because of poor handling of the ball.

SR. ROBES TO APPEAR

Caps and Gowns and Rings Add to Distinctiveness of Seniors

Henceforth the seniors will wear their caps and gowns one day each week. The committee, composed of Treval Powers, Laura Best and Milton Gralapp, has ordered them and they are expected very soon. The class decided that to wear them all day would be too inconvenient, that it would be far better to wear them to chapel only. The day specified will be Friday of each week.

The members of the class are more becomingly distinctive in addition to the caps and gowns. Many of the senior rings have appeared and the class agrees unanimously that they are very beautiful ornaments.

ANCIENT MUSEUM OF WILLAMETTE'S FINALLY FOUND

Inquisitive Student Discovers Old Collection of University's Quaint Relics

Willamette has a museum. After many moons of searching I have finally found it, and it is a remarkable collection of curios, antiques, botanical, and zoological specimens.

After I asked several seniors about the museum, but did not get any information on the subject, I finally appealed to Mrs. Peck for assistance. She told me to get the key to the room in the office, and that she would go with me if I wanted a guide.

When we opened the door the first thing I saw was a pigeon which was hanging from the ceiling. Just below the pigeon hung the delapidated remains of a grey squirrel which evidently never had had enough stuffing to make him look natural.

There are several cases of good specimens—especially the two which Professor Peck brought from Central America. One contains birds and the other contains animals—including the armadillo, howling monkey, crocodile and several other interesting specimens. The only fault I found with the case containing birds was that I had to crawl along between two tables and behind another case before I could see the birds.

Piled up in one corner near the door is a stack of valuable old books and pictures which increase in value every year because of their age and historical significance. Framed and hanging above these books is an unusually fine collection of arrowheads.

In a cabinet nearby is a beaver and a sign saying: "Oregon is the beaver state, and here is the beaver."

Everything is piled up as compactly as possible because the room is too small to display anything creditably, and the bit and miss collection present a funny sight. At one glance I saw a hornet's nest, a bayonet, a piano that came around the Horn, a baking pot and Indian relics of all sizes and descriptions.

If Willamette could find a room large enough to hold the museum, or would buy cases and display the collection in the halls, the relics and specimens would be worth a great deal to the students and would prove of interest to visitors and tourists in the city.

Yes, Willamette has a museum, but it is badly in need of new living quarters.

Kansas State Agricultural College has established a radio college which will broadcast 40 college extension courses during the next eight months.

W. U. DEBATES O. A. C., U. OF O. IN TRIANGULAR

Clower Succeeds Strayer as Manager of Women's Debate

Work on women's debate has begun in earnest as evidenced by the interest and concentrated efforts of those on the squad. The team has spent much time in research work, and actual practice in trial debates. At present the team is working industriously in preparation for the first triangular debate, scheduled to take place on February 19 between University of Oregon, Oregon Agricultural College, and Willamette University. The question to be used in the triangular debate is: Resolved, that the Selective Immigration Act of 1924 should be amended to admit the Japanese on the same basis as Europeans.

Tryouts for positions on the women's debating team of Willamette were held shortly before the Christmas holidays. Of the ten women taking part in the tryouts the following were selected: Elaine Clower, Nadie Strayer (both of whom were members of last year's varsity squad), Caroline Tallman, Volena Jenks, Hazel Newhouse, and Elizabeth Fairchild.

Owing to the recent marriage of Nadie Strayer and of her withdrawal from school, the number of the squad has been cut down to five. Elaine Clower has been chosen to fill the position of manager of women's debate, which was formerly held by Mrs. Harding.

Positions on the teams, negative and affirmative, have not as yet been decided, but Professor Rahakopf, who is coaching women's debate, announces that some definite decision will be made very soon.

ASILOMAR DRAWS 500

Leading Lecturers Speak To College Delegates

Plans Discussed and Held Tentative to Place College Men Closer to Business

Five hundred college men, drawn from Mexico, Hawaii, British Columbia and western U. S., and representing 22 nationalities, met at the Y. M. C. A. Conference at Asilomar, California, from Dec. 27, 1924 to Jan. 5, 1925.

Willamette sent 16 delegates to the convention: Thomas Roe, Louis Oberon, Shingora Marumota, Howard Mort, Paul Buckley, Merle Bonney, Wayne Crow, Paul Johnston, Henry Cross, Cedric Chang, Percy Hammond, Nori Yamashita, Otho Love, Antonio Rowan, Jack Vinson, and Dwight Findley. Outstanding speakers during the convention were Bishop McConnell, Bishop of the Methodist church of Pittsburgh, Pa., Sherwood Eddy of New York, Harrison "Sunny" Elliott of New York and Kagawa of Kobe, Japan, who all spoke on subjects relative to religion, Christianity, peace, life, and campus life. Sherwood Eddy, perhaps the most prominent speaker, led a two-hour discussion period of the entire convention during which a committee that had been preparing for months, reported on the racial, economic and campus conditions and the opportunities for Christian work on the Pacific coast. A number of resolutions were formed, one of which was an attempt to draw closer the relations of college men to the city business men by holding a few memberships in the Kiwanis or Rotary clubs open to college men. Another interesting fact was found when a vote on peace or war was taken, and 89 delegates declared themselves to be absolute pacifists. That the convention was a success was evident when Sherwood Eddy said: "This convention is one of the liveliest and best conventions for student thought and discussion that I have ever attended."

Macbeth Lures Willamette; Gallery Rush Almost Fatal

If all Turks use Turkish towels, if all Moslems use Mazole if all Cubans smoke Cubans, if all English wear Prince Alberts, then sometime in one's existence either by compulsion or in a moment of weakness, one decides to rush the gallery. Many have been the men who have fought and died that they might save 50 cents or a dollar and who have seen his name in glowing headlines. A newspaper man might find unbound material in a person who decides to see a performance from the heights of heaven and beats of—oh, well—anybody that has been there knows.

Mr. Grand in his attempt to amuse Salem audiences brought Fritz Lieber and subsequently "Macbeth" to town. Now it seems that one should, in order to be of the "elite," be able to converse glibly on something classical. Therefore as a body Willamette journeyed to the local amphitheater to witness what has been termed bloodshed, supposedly on the stage. Disillusionment is the hardest of medicines and we all got plenty of it. All the blood that was shed dropped right out in front, while we were waiting. "No, lady, the gallery seats are not reserved." The whole process is one of the survival of the fittest. We start by being forced to hold a card that takes us and to endure two hours of standing that would make any status envious.

After we got into the gallery there were only one or two hours to be dispensed with and the performance began. Practical jokes are in their highest heavens here for any form

STAFF IS REPRESENTATIVE

Work Is Already Under Way; Staff Hard at Work Planning and Organizing Material

The Willamette Executive Committee at its last meeting appointed a committee of students to supervise the project of editing an Alumni magazine. Those appointed are: Juanita Henry, chairman; Mary Gilbert, Clarence Phillips, Victor Carlson, Cornelius Hareson, Sadie Jo Read, George Atkinson, Wayne Crow, John Helzel, and William McAllister.

The plan of the committee is to publish a pamphlet or magazine that will interest High School students in Willamette University, and also give news of particular interest to alumni, and keep outsiders interested in the activities at Willamette.

The publicity committee is composed of McAllister, Carlson, and Sadie Jo Read. Production costs will be handled by Clarence Phillips. George Atkinson will report on sources of finance for the publication. Bateson and Helzel are to inform the committee concerning similar publications of other colleges. Mary Gilbert and Wayne Crow will supervise the makeup of the paper.

The various groups plan to make a good alumni paper to be put out in the very near future.

BEARCATS UNABLE TO STOP OREGON

In a game marked by loose guarding on both sides, but in which Oregon's scoring combination proved surprisingly effective, Willamette lost her first conference basketball game 63-33, at Eugene, Saturday night.

The game was fast and rough, with the Bearcats showing flashes of brilliant play, but showing strongly on the whole, the effects of a series of injuries sustained the week before.

Okerberg, formerly of Salem Hi was the outstanding man not only for Oregon but the whole game.

THE PEACE OF THE HAREM

In Turkey, they say, the wives of the harem talk of Peace, of Immortality, of Supreme Justice, and of Truth. These wives of the harem, indeed, come to handle philosophic phrases so proficiently that their husband delights to converse with them.

But the strange part of the story is this: the wives who talk of Peace, and of Justice never apply the abstract to themselves.

To talk of Truth or Justice and never see wherein the title fits—or fails to fit—the situation seems silly.

But we, of Willamette, do that very thing quite frequently. In a week we forget the Christmas we spent, and settle down to a mental campus heaven. Are we justified in such a peace? Might not at least those of us who are upperclassmen awake and gaze at the things that are actually taking place on this campus?

FIRE AND BRIMSTONE!

Hell, in the sense of brimstone that gives rise to sulfur dioxide fumes, seems to be going out of fashion. Its terror appears to have departed with the arrival of the scientific assurance that sulfur fumes are more likely to annoy than to prove fatal. Even chemical warfare made little use of the traditional brimstone.

But the fact that this older form of hell is losing in popularity brings dismay to the established members of the community. Men are alarmed because the young men appear to be forgetting that every tearing-down implies a building-up.

When men declare that we, the youth, miss Bolshevism by but one step we are angry. Angry, because men see no more to our plan than revolt, or unbalanced wildness.

That is, we are angry, until we recall how hard it is to follow a quiet philosophy that speaks of honor rather than of hell.

Honor is a quiet—nay, unassuming—thing. Honor is the realization that just as the "talent of the painter is formed—or deformed—under the very influence of the work he produces," so are our personalities molded by our moments.

Honor is a respect for our selves that is real enough to check radicalism as surely as the older hell could have checked it.

WHAT SHALL YOUR WORK BE?

"Are you going to teach again next year?" we ask an alumnus recently. He was well known here as a leader on the gym floor. "Why—next year," he replied, "if I can afford it, I shall go east to study engineering."

Does that sound odd to you? It did to us. And yet, no doubt, during the years while we thought of that man as a basketball player, he was thinking of himself as an engineer.

If we cared to ask that direct question of every student here, we would no doubt hear startling replies. It is probable that our seemingly homo-genius student body contains future doctors, lawyers, engineers, merchants, and kindergarten teachers.

Probably they exist among us but we do not see them. Even when specifically told that John will be a doctor and Sally a nurse, we do not always see it in them. Perhaps we do not because we know only the obvious interests of John or of Sally.

Why do we devote so little time or interest to the work we hope to do that this work seems utterly foreign to the studies and activities we engaged in? Why?

Can it be that we are side-stepping a bit more than necessary?

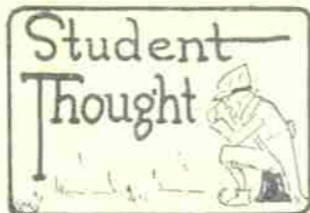

THE DAYS ARE LONGER IN MY HILL COUNTRY

The first streak of dawn comes early to those age-wise trees
That make their home the summit of high hills;
And slowly shafts of light shoot down the steep
And find at last the silentness that stills
The very heart of the great valley, green with leaves
And the cool loveliness of alder trees.
And to those alders by the valley stream first comes the dusk,
And even as the dawn came down,

so night ascends
And leaves its fingerprints upon the ends
Of boughs, and comes at last unto the sky,
The days are longer in my hill country—
I love its dusk and dawn; it is to me
The whole fulfillment of a thousand dreams—
Tall firs—gray alders—streams—

The chemistry department of the University of Texas spends $30,000 annually in the maintenance of its laboratories. Between $8000 and $10,000 in apparatus is lost and destroyed every year.

For the first time in 27 years the University of Georgia won a football game from Vanderbilt university. To celebrate the victory the students rang a bell until it broke.

fighting spirit that carried Willamette to victories in all activities, athletics included. As Freshmen we are non-partisan judges, unprejudiced for or against this school. Do we see a fighting, bull-dog spirit? We most emphatically do not.

At the end-off of the team to the University of Washington game there were but a few students who came to the station. The affair was repeated at the departure of the team for Whitman. In the games at home the spirit of fight was noticeably lacking. Before the game those who would have a great deal of enthusiasm, the upper classmen, seemed to assume the attitude that we would lose the game regardless of how hard the team fought. During the game these same people assumed an attitude of indifference and certainly added little of their own to the support of the boys on the team. After the defeat—for what else could come of such a spirit—the student body of the school was invariably composed of a bunch of crumby I-told-you-so's.

The Beauty of Willamette's Campus

Is the condition of the campus of this school one which merits an institution of higher learning? Is the campus of Willamette one to be proud of, to be boasted of? Certainly it should be. But is a campus that turns the color of autumn leaves long before autumn arrives merit an educational institution? Can we boast of our campus when the shrubbery cannot be distinguished from the weeds? Can we be proud of a school whose ash-pile and rubbish heap adorns the side lawn of the chapel building?

Two years ago the students of this school laid a pipe line so that the lawn could have water during the summer months. In this past vacation the lawn of this school resembled a field experiment station of O. A. C. in which various types of very tall and very dry grains were being grown. Yet, there was no excuse for this condition. The lawn of the state grounds was green and fresh, because water was used on it. On this campus it was a rare sight to see so much as one sprinkler casting over the landscape the showers of water which, by the way, the city furnishes free.

Last year there was presented this school a good-sized lot of shrubbery. It was planted in the front of Eaton Hall and today, if viewed closely, may be distinguished from the weeds. How much time would it take our janitor or one of his assistants to keep these in condition?

To a stranger in Salem, the west side of Waller Hall might appear to be the city dump grounds. They certainly do appear so to many of us who know better, although at times we are led to doubt the real existence of one that can compete with our own in size.

The deadfalls on either side of the walk between Lausanne Hall and the music conservatory may be a thing of beauty to some but to us are a most contemptible sight and causes us to wonder whether the man who dug them broke his shovel as soon as the excavation was completed. If this dreadful thing did happen, may we suggest to the janitor that only yesterday we saw some extra-heavy one-handed shovels on sale at one of the local hardware stores.

We could go on and mention many other charming spots and beautifiers on our campus, but before we do may it be asked again whether or not these already mentioned merit the campus of an institution of higher learning?

When the alumni of Willamette told us of the old school and urged us to attend it they spoke of an old

Was there at one time a real Willamette spirit, or has the expression always been, as at present, a misnomer? Certainly many of us who have recently entered cannot see so much as a trace of the spirit for which Willamette is said to be famous.

With football buried until the 1925 season, and basketball revived for another year University authorities have already started work on the 1924-25 season's high school basketball tournament.

Letters have been sent out from the A.S.U.W. office to every high school coach in the state asking them to participate in the competition for the state championship. Favorable replies from most schools are expected.

Last year 260 schools, including every accredited high school in the state took part in the competition. Two years ago 117 schools participated.

If last year's tournament, the state association divided the state into 16 districts, and the champions of the districts competed in the finals. This plan will probably be used again this season.

The tournament will be held on March 12-13-14. The manager has not yet been appointed.—U. of W. Daily.

Piercing the Great Divide

West of Denver is the Continental Divide; hemmed in behind it is an undeveloped district twice as large as Maryland. That fertile area the new Moffat Tunnel will open up.

General Electric mine locomotives are carrying out the rock, and G-E motors are driving air compressors and pumping water from underground rivers.

The conquests of electricity on land and sea, in the air and underground, are making practical the impossibilities of yesterday. It remains only for men of ability to find new things to do tomorrow. Thus does Opportunity of 1925 beckon college men and women toward greater things as yet undreamed, and to a better world to live in.

If you are interested in learning more about what electricity is doing, write for Reprint No. AR-391 containing a complete set of these advertisements.

Cedric Chang Entertains With Chinese Banquet

On Friday evening at the home of Mrs. Carrier, 1965 Court Street, Cedric Chang was host to the Cosmopolitan club with a Chinese banquet. The food was prepared and served in true Chinese fashion. Those present were: Merle Bonney, Benito Mayo, Henry Oberon, Louis Oberon, Ted Emmel, Ross Anderson, Dwight Findley, Mr. Kroecker, Paul Roeder, Norri Yamashita, Hugh Bell, Lloyd Wheelwright, James Walsh, Simeon Flores, Panclano Tusanio, and Cedric Chang, the host.

Alumni Banquet At Portland Y. W.

Dr. and Mrs. Von Eschen, and Dr. Franklin represented W. U. at the informal Alumni Banquet held on Dec. 31 at the Y. W. C. A. dining room in Portland. Dean Alden and Dr. Laughlin attended during the last hour. Mr. and Mrs. Lyman were there. They were married during the holidays and both are alumni of Willamette. Mrs. Lyman was Evelyn De Moss during campus days. Leland Sackett, '15 was also present. This informal banquet was a real "get together" of our alumni who were attending the State Teacher's Association. The old college spirit prevailed and they employed the pleasant hour in recalling mutual memories and in bringing friendships up to date.

Aldens at Home To Seniors

Dean and Mrs. George H. Alden entertained the senior class with a jolly dinner party on Friday evening at their home on North Church street. After a most delicious meal had been served cafeteria style, the group played a number of ingenious games, one of which proved to be very enlightening, by giving much needed advice to various members of the class, and another which disclosed an amazing fact—that Stanley Theodore Emmel was the most polished flatterer in the class. Miss Maude Covington, city librarian, and a class committee assisted Mrs. Alden.

Winifred St. Clair Breaks the News

At a prettily appointed luncheon given by Grace Collins at the home of her parents on Westover road, Winifred St. Clair announced her engagement to Raymond Rogers. The guests were all intimate friends of the bride-elect, who is a graduate of Willamette university, and a member of both the Philodossian Literary society and Beta Chi sorority.

Phils Have Joint

The Christmas spirit pervaded at the weekly Philodossian meeting last Friday afternoon. The program consisted of Christmas Chimes, Helen Rickelson; Christmas Tradition, Le-thea Miller; The First Christmas Tree, Ethel Marks. The closing number was a group of Christmas carols sung by Lucia Card and Ruth Hellock, while the room was in candle light. After the program a buffet supper was served to the members of the society. Early in the evening the Philodossians joined the Philodossians for the annual Christmas party. Various games and an impromptu program entertained the guests until the arrival of Santa Claus with gifts after which ice cream and cake were served. Prof. and Mrs. Williston were guests of honor for the evening.

CHAPEL GLEANINGS
A. H. Kingsbury, traveler and explorer, gave an illustrated lecture in the chapel Tuesday evening, January 13. Mr. Kingsbury told of dangers undergone in travel throughout the Amazon valley which is inhabited by head hunters and cannibals. Mr. Kingsbury was preceded by Mr. Sheriff who spoke in chapel January 7. Sheriff had with him a blow gun used by the natives who easily can shoot a running squirrel at a hundred yards. Interesting also was his story of the tribesmen who so coveted a knife carried by one of Kingsbury's party that the natives offered five wives for it.

Adelante Families Meet

The occasion to which all Adelante members anxiously look forward is the annual reunion of Adelante families held just before the Christmas holidays. This year according to tradition the society was divided into families, and these families met Friday afternoon in the society halls to enjoy the party planned for them. Each group brought its own dinner and served it in a manner befitting its social position. The Von Stuck-Ups were waited upon by a butler and a maid, while the Smelly family got along as best they could. Maggie Jiggs presided very charmingly over the table where the guests of honor were Dinty Moore, Baron DeKay, etc. A short program was presented by members of the Turnip-seed, the Stone and the Smelly families, and others of equal importance.

Anyone having a conflict should report to Dean Alden at once.

The Chinese authorities are very anxious not to have any international complications when this war is over. All foreigners are therefore receiving special protection just now. That is why mission compounds are such havens of refuge. Aside from that, the rank and file have learned that the missionaries are friendly and glad to help.

This latest Chinese war is just another symptom of the terrific new life that is throbbing in all parts of China. It is a new era coming to birth. These are great days to be in this land and to see the ideals and powers of a new civilization quivering into life. It is superb to be a part of this magnificent renaissance.

JENNELLE VANDEVORT TO RETURN, SATURDAY, FROM NEW YORK

Jennelle Vandevort, who has been attending a Y. W. C. A. conference in New York City, will arrive in Salem on the 1:22 train Saturday.

The conference was in session from December 28th to January 2.

Miss Vandevort is returning by the southern route and expects to visit Los Angeles a couple of days before starting north.

Miss Vandevort has risen high in Y. W. circles, being the president of the Northwest Executive Council and also of the college Y. W.

MACBETH LURES

of humor goes, since there is no other form of amusement.

Now I want you to understand that I'm not shocked easily but it did give me a shock when I saw Mr. Wrenn in the top most seat dressed in an outfit that would make a Fiji blush. But I sympathized with his effort. I would have done so to but the fact that all my girl's sorority sisters were lined up on the seat behind me.

An ensemble chorus of the gallery listens like this:

"Hey! Fletch, pass back my shoe."
"Say, mister, that's my hat you're sitting on."
"And if you want to make it especially appetizing I always add a little—"

"Keith Rhodes, if you pull my hair again I'll tell—"
"And then what do you suppose—he asks for a kiss—imagine him kissing me!"
"All right, Jack Vincent, start a song. Yeh, that's a good one. Let's sing it."
"(Close harmony). "Fireman, Save My Child."
"If you guys don't pipe down up there I'll go down and get the sergeant-at-arms."

Speaking of appreciation, one surely has to have it to endure the gallery long enough to see a performance. Why, I remember one time when Conny Bateson was fussing—
"What's this? Space up? Well, pardon me, see you again."

SKYSCRAPING AT $10,000,000 PER SCRAPE

Above the smoke and cinders of Pittsburg will rise the tallest university in the world. According to a report by John G. Bowman, Chancellor of the University of Pittsburg, the proposed "Cathedral of Learning" will do its skyscraping from the vantage point of 52 stories, which celestial privilege will cost the trustees, and alumni about $10,000,000. The new home of the University of Pittsburg, planned to accommodate 12,000, will be Gothic in style and built of white Kentucky limestone. It will tower 680 feet, and will be equipped with 16 high-speed elevators. It is reported that professors have all signed a pledge not to drop students from classrooms.—New Student.

Alpha Psi Delta Wins Interfraternity Basketball

The final standings of the different fraternities at the close of the recent basketball series is as follows:

Fraternity	Won	Last	Per.
Alpha Psi Delta	4	0	1.000
Sigma Tau	2	1	.750
Epsilon Delta Mu	2	2	.500
Kappa Gamma Rho	1	2	.250
Phi Kappa Pi	0	4	.000

The interest shown in this series makes inter-frat track and baseball likely for the early spring.

TWO MILLION VISIT NORTH-WEST NATIONAL FORESTS

There were 2,181,522 visitors in 1924 to the 22 national forests of Oregon and Washington, according to reports just received at the district forester's office in Portland. The national forests, thus again, prove to be the great popular playgrounds of the Pacific Northwest.

There are now 20 forest schools in the United States giving full courses in forestry leading to a degree, among which are the forest schools at the Oregon Agricultural College, the University of Washington, and Washington Agricultural College, Pullman, Wash. In addition, there are 35 colleges and universities which give short courses in forestry and seven which give short ranger courses in forestry, or a total of 65 institutions in the United States giving instruction in forestry.

The forestry school of the University of Montana has received one of the finest sets of forest measuring instruments in the United States. These instruments consist of a device for measuring the height of trees, the diameter of trees, and the volume of them. They were gathered together for the school by Dr. C. A. Scheuck, one of the leading German foresters. The instruments came from various parts of Europe, but the majority of them came from Germany.

Measures Heart Beat
Among the most recent electro-medical discoveries is a means of diagnosing heart ills, which is called electric cardiography. By means of electrical connections to the patient the heart is forced to contract and its various reactions are recorded on a very delicate film, which, when translated, shows the exact nature of the illness.

System Is Used By Christian Council

The first definite attempt to relieve the congestion and duplication of Christian work on the campus was made by the Christian Council when it decided in Dec. 72 that only a limited number of gospel and deputation teams should go out on service this year and that each team should prepare a month in advance. The leader of each team is to be chosen from the standpoint of superior work in Christian service. Herebefore, the teams have been composed of the same workers who have gone out to all the towns, usually without much preparation. By the new ruling, the personnel of the teams is constantly changing, thus securing the best of service.

Work hard and achieve fame—take it easy and achieve happiness.

More than 1800 miles of roads and nearly 5000 miles of trails were constructed within or adjacent to the 147 National Forests during the fiscal year ending June 30 1924, according to the chief Forester's annual report, copies of which have been received by District Forester C. M. Granger, in Portland. In addition, maintenance work was performed on 7423 miles of roads and 32,105 miles of trails.

EACH HOME MAY SOON HAVE ITS OWN ICE PLANT

Domestic refrigeration by means of electricity is certain to become almost universal. The report of the refrigeration committee of the National Electric Light Association calls attention to the rapid growth now noticeable in small electric refrigerating equipment. It states that quantity production and consequent lower-priced machines are to be expected in the near future, so that the householder in the near future will soon be maintaining electric refrigerating machines for approximately the same amount now spent for ice.
