

"You Are Welcome," Says Peter Severson at Banquet

Salem Business Men Entertain Varsity Officials and Philanthropists With Spread and Words of Cheer --Donor of $100,000 Gift Makes Shortest Speech.

With the announcement on March 23 of a magnificent gift of $100,000 to Willamette University, one more name was added to the list of Willamette's immortals, that of Peter W. Severson, the donor, and his name will forever stand beside those of A. E. Eaton, R. A. Booth and James J. Hill, representing as they do the men whose substantial aid has started and insured success for the movement for a Greater Willamette.

Mr. Severson, like Mr. Booth and Mr. Eaton, is a man who has grown up with this state, having found his way here from the East in 1858. He settled in Portland and engaged in the trade of wagon and carriage making. By thrifty habits and careful investment, he attained, with the growth of the city, a position of independent prosperity.

Mrs. Severson died about fourteen years ago, and, having no children dependent upon him, Mr. Severson had determined upon using his fortune for philanthropic purposes. He had already decided that the Portland Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. should receive a portion of it, when he became interested in the campaign for Willamette University being waged in that city, with the magnificent result already noted.

The gift includes mortgage securities upon property at the corner of Fifth and Morrison streets, Portland, to the value of $200,000, divided as follows: Willamette, $100,000; Portland Y. M. C. A., $50,000; Y. W. C. A., $50,000. The gift is absolutely without condition, and is the largest the University has ever received, excepting only that of R. A. Booth for an

Effects of Athletics.

Oregon Agricultural College, Corvallis, Or., April 5.—The good and bad effects of athletics on the college career is the subject discussed by Edgar T. Pierce, president of the junior class at the Oregon Agricultural College, at the last meeting of the Zetaphian Literary Society. Mr. Pierce whose home is Harrisburg, aroused much discussion by his address, which was followed by a talk by Knight Pearce, '12, Portland, on "The Grueling Contest of Wrestling." A debate on the resumption of athletic relations between the Agricultural college and the state university proved another exciting feature of the meeting. H. L. Henkle '14 of Raymond, Wash., taking the negative side, while H. S. Walters '14, Cove, argued the affirmative.

Hon. A. E. Eaton Sounds Warning

Speaks to Students of University on Subject "Christian Education."

President Fletcher Homan, Dr. J. W. Hancher and Hon. A. E. Eaton of Union, Oregon, donor of the new college of liberal arts building, made quite impressive the first chapel exercise after the spring vacation. Each of the gentlemen named made talks. The announcement of the $100,000 gift of Mr. Severson of Portland was enthusiastically received. The principal talk of the service was that by Hon. A. E. Eaton, who spoke on "Christian Education."

The speech of the "Grand Old Man" of Willamette was heartily applauded by the students. Coming from the experience of a man whose life is an example of his belief, it was fraught with great and deep thought and made a splendid impression. The discourse follows:

Teddy Wins At Willamette-- Women Vote

Prohibition Scores Strongly With Chafin Tying Taft for Third Place.

Results of Vote.
	Men.	Women. Total.
Roosevelt	68	23 91
Wilson	22	5 27
Taft	31	4 35
Chafin	20	15 35
Lafollette	17	1 18
Bryan	8	5 13
Debs	7	1 8
Clark	1	1 2
Howard	16	5 21
C. T. Wilson	1	1 2
Total		251

Outdistancing all rivals by a wide margin Theodore Roosevelt was endorsed for President of the United States and faculty of Willamette in the city Websterian election.

A margin of 60 votes separates the famous ex-president from his nearest rivals, Taft and Chafin, who tied for second place, thus emphatically showing the trend of student sentiment.

A study of the results proves interesting. Roosevelt receives his big vote from the Liberal Arts students. Taft proves very unpopular, securing a mark fifth place. Prohibition scores strongly with two candidates, Chafin and Howard taking second and fourth places, respectively. Wilson is popular, making a strong third.

The Theologues show marked Prohibition tendencies, casting 75 per cent of their total ballot for candidates from that party. The Laws put Taft first, Roosevelt second, by one vote, and Lafollette close behind. Other candidates were only slightly supported. The Medics, as far as the vote was taken, put Taft ahead by a big margin.

Taken by sexes, the votes also show considerable divergence, altho Roosevelt maintains a strong lead in each division. The masculine element would have Taft as second choice with 31 votes, Wilson third with 22, Chafin fourth, Lafollette fifth, Clinton N. Howard sixth. The gentler sex, however, are strong for prohibition, giving Chafin second place, tying Wilson and Howard for third.

The vote was not as large as was desired, only about 250 casting their ballots.

The results of this election and of similar ones in other Northwest colleges shows that the student sentiment at least of this region is distinctly with Roosevelt. Ballots taken at Oregon, Washington, Whitman and California all give Roosevelt a big lead, with Taft and Wilson fighting for second place.

Twenty-one Register for Yellowstone Park Trip

Washington University, April 5.—Twenty-one prospective geologists have already registered for the summer school travel course to Yellowstone Park offered by the university geology department. The trip will take six weeks, four of which will be spent in the national park. In order that the party will not have to be dependent upon hotels, a complete camping outfit will be carried and everyone will lead an outdoor life when in the park.

Applications from all over the Northwest have been received, and thus far residents of North and South Dakota, Montana and Washington have registered. The party will be under the personal supervision of Professor Henry Landes, head of the department of geology.

Peter W. Severson, Who Endowed Willamette With $100,000 Fund

Mr. Severson is a Pioneer of Oregon, having lived in Portland since coming West in the year 1858.

Racketers Are Industrious Lot

Force of Men at Work Conditioning Tennis Courts-- Interest is Keen.

The Tennis Association met on Wednesday morning to plan for putting the courts in shape. A large squad of men volunteered their services for the coming afternoons, so that with their assistance Manager Jory expects to have three courts in playing condition by the end of this week.

The girls court at the end of Varsity Field was skinned before vacation, and has been used some for playing. A little scraping and rolling will put it in good condition. The other two courts which were built last year will require considerable work to put them in first-class condition, but they should soon be completed with the aid of a large squad of workers.

The interest in tennis is greater than it has been in the last few seasons, and a large number of students are planning to regale their leisure hours by hammering the spheroid about.

No definite action has been taken as to inter-collegiate matches. Experienced players are scarce in the school and it may be found impracticable to try conclusions with other colleges. There will, however, be local tournaments between various classes and departments.

Stanford Seeks High Cost of Living.

Tickets for the Junior prom at Stanford this year will cost five dollars. To insure against overcrowding, the number will be limited to 125. Following the old custom at the southern institution, it has been requested that there be neither flowers nor carriages.

Harry McCain Wins Contest for Willamette

A number of students attended the State Prohibition Oratorical Contest held at McMinnville, March 15, 1912. The State Convention, at which Wm. A. Schreiber was re-elected vice president of the State Prohibition Association, was held in the afternoon preceding the Oratorical Contest. Harry G. McCain won first place

Good Schedule To Be Arranged

Baseball Season is Promising --Diamond Crowded with Aspirants at Practice.

Baseball prospects seem to be very bright this year. Over twenty-five men have been turning out regularly, most of whom are new men. So with a nucleus of seven of last year's team, Willamette should make a good showing.

There seems to be three or four candidates for every position, so that rivalry is very keen.

Holman, Drake and McDaniel seem to have a little edge on the rest of the pitchers. In a little practice game, Tuesday evening, Holman and Drake both had the men hitting the air in their endeavors to hit the batters. Hewitt, a Freshman from Washington High School, Portland, is trying for first base, and seems to be a good student of the game. Steelhammer and Erskine are fighting it out for catcher's position. "Steele" has it slightly on Erskine, inasmuch as he has had a year's varsity experience.

The veterans McRae, Harrison and Oakes in the infield seem to have things their own way, while Homan, St. Pierre and Westly will have to work some to hold down their positions in the outfield, for Cole, Francis and Smith are showing up real nicely.

Willamette will have a good schedule, and the first game will be either Friday or Saturday.

"Moonlight" dances have been forbidden by the faculty of the University of Nebraska. The transformation of the alleged moonlight into complete darkness at the recent Freshman lawn party is said to be the direct cause of the action.

All Stars Will Shine-- Track Outlook Bright

Plenty of New Material This Year. But Rader and Cummings Will Be Missed--Training Has Begun in Earnest.

Present System Deplorable Says Athletic Expert

Coach Sweetland Would Remedy Referee Evil by Regularly Salaried Men.

Special by Dr. Sweetland.

A feature of the past season, and a remediable one, was the deplorable system of selecting officials prevailing throughout the Conference, whereby local men from nearby towns or men untrained in the intercollegiate game of basketball, humiliated the game and the patrons up on rules, by attempting to preside over its destinies.

The writer wants it understood that he does not question the honesty or sincerity of any man he has seen handle a game this year. He does, however, question their capability. With the exception of one game, the writer has not seen one foul called where there should have been six. This last applies just as strongly to my own team as any other. The officials the writer has seen work seem laboring too much under the delusion that you can't foul in intercollegiate basketball. If a player is not pushed more than a rod, or embraced over five minutes, or thrown over two rows of chairs, the offender generally gets away with it.

Manager Geary of the University of Oregon, one of the cleanest sportsmen found anywhere, sounded a note of warning that the Northwest Conference will do well to consider. Weeks ago Mr. Geary came out strongly, declaring that for next season regularly salaried, disinterested men must be procured to handle the games; not men picked up at the last minute, from the brush, but men capable in every way of doing what they are paid for, selected a long while in advance, and given such remuneration as to make their labors worthy of study and work.

English Department Won't Stand for Bum Orthography

Washington University, April 5.—Unless spelling in the Department of English improves, their'll be trouble! Such is the word gone forth in announcements recently to the freshmen students in rhetoric. Orthographic attempts at knotty Anglo-Saxon words have resulted in a mixture of Andrew Carnegie stuff and the worst that Samuel Johnson ever plotted.

"You students don't know how to spell," said one of the instructors recently to his class. "Some of you can write a description of a sunset that would make Turner wish he had been a word-artist instead of merely a color-splasher. But when you have a 'blew' sky and a 'radish' tint, you lose your effect."

"And I don't want to see any more of you writing about meadows or marshy planes or the charming songs of birds. And Milton, if any of you write about him, always preferred his name spelled with an 'l,' not an 'e.' These mistakes are common, but if you will observe a little, I know you'll improve."

"And if you don't, you'll receive some cons, believe me."

New World's Record Set in High Jump at Stanford

Stanford University, April 5.—In the dual track meet held at Palo Alto last Monday between Stanford University and Pomona College, G. L. Horne of Stanford established a world's intercollegiate record in the high jump by clearing the bar at 6 feet 4 3/4 in. The cardinal team carried off the meet by a score of 88 to 34. J. E. Woolley of Stanford also set a new college record when he threw the hammer a distance of 153 feet 3/4 inch.

Since the coming of warm weather track activities at Willamette have been given a decided impetus and if signs do not fail, the coming season will be one of the most successful in several years. Old stars are back in force and the new material looks exceedingly promising. The places left vacant by Rader and Cummings can hardly be filled this season, but other departments are stronger than ever before and somewhat make up for their absence. The only weak point discernible is in the sprints, and that will be fairly strong, if some of the new material develops as it should.

At present the track is in first class condition, and forms weird and otherwise can be seen upon it constantly. A few have begun steady training, and by the end of the week definite work along that line will be in full blast.

Among the old men who are turning out are Blackwell, Mills (captain), Rowland, Westly and Bardette. Of the new men, Drake and Doane are Oregon interscholastic champions the former in the discus, distance 100 1/2 feet, the latter in the pole vault, height 10 feet 6 inches. Drake also has a record of 135 feet in the twelve-pound hammer, and Doane has done some good work in the jumps.

Stearns, also a Freshman, shows good form for the mile, and McInturff, Junior Law, brings quite a reputation for the quarter and two-twenty.

Captain Mills is the only hurdler in sight so far, and Blackwell is practically alone in the shorter sprints. However, the season is young and more material in these lines will no doubt develop.

Five Years for Stanford LL.B.

Stanford, April 5.—According to a recent resolution passed by the Stanford faculty, the degree of bachelor of laws will hereafter be granted upon the completion of two years of general culture and three years of professional law study.

Another important change of ruling is also being considered by the law faculty. This is the requirement of an age of 23 instead of 21 years for entrance as a special law student.

Taft First at Dartmouth.

In a straw vote at Dartmouth last week, Taft was first with 181 votes, Roosevelt second with 171, Wilson third with 124, Harmon fourth with 24, Clark fifth with 17, and Lafollette sixth with 7 votes.

Geologist Finds Gold

Prof. Von Eschen Returns from Successful Mining Trip to Southern Oregon.

Professor Von Eschen improved the time during the spring vacation by making a little geological trip to Southern Oregon. He visited the mining properties on the south fork of the Umpqua river in what is known as "Texas Gulch." These mines which are still being worked, have thus far yielded over two million dollars worth of gold. The professor brought home a number of nuggets and samples of ore which he gathered in the vicinity.

Lecture at O. A. C.

Oregon Agricultural College, Corvallis, Or., April 5.—"Inheritance of Feeble-mindedness" was the subject of the address given by George F. Sykes of the zoology and entomology department at the Oregon Agricultural College, before the Biology Club at its last meeting. Prof. C. M. McKellips, at the head of the school of pharmacy, also gave an address on "Pharmacopoeia."

BASEBALL FANS.

Lives there a man with soul so dead who never to himself hath said, "this is mine own varsity baseball nine, and I'll boost for it every time, win or lose?"

Baseball season is upon us, and with it, that happy fellow, the radical baseball fan. It is hard for the thin-blooded individual, who spends his time sipping lemonade thru a straw at the nearest soda fountain, to understand how any sane man can take pleasure in sitting on a hard board under the blazing sun for three long successive hours, watching for Casey to make a home run.

The man who takes this view of "the sport that made America famous," has lost something during the transition period from boyhood to grownuphood—something very precious, and that is somehow akin to the elixir of life. There is a savage, primitive joy in crouching upon the sun-baked bleachers of an afternoon, while your collar melts down and your fighting spirit turns hand springs every time the home team gets a hit, that should appeal to young and old alike.

Let all good baseball bugs in Willamette rejoice, for we now have—thanks to Coach Sweetland—one of the finest allround athletic fields in the west, including an A1 diamond. Our team is showing up well at practice, and the outlook for a good season is most promising.

MR. SEVERSON'S GIFT.

The students of Willamette University appreciate Mr. Severson's splendid gift. They all say so, and the assurance is invariably accompanied by a happy smile and a sincerity of expression that leaves no room for doubt.

And well may they be pleased, for, as said by Vice President Todd in a recent speech, "Willamette's past is secure, her future assured." Mr. Severson is one of Oregon's honored pioneers who came to the Pacific Coast when this part of the country was young. His recent gifts to public uses is mute proof that he believes in bestowing upon society a goodly portion of the substance which industry, frugality, and foresight have brought him.

Dr. Eaton Sounds Warning

"Mr. President, Teachers and Students of Willamette University: It is with great pleasure and a deep sense of gratitude to Almighty God that I am once more permitted to speak to you briefly upon the all-important subject of a higher Christian Education, which I understand to be the watchword or slogan of this institution of learning.

"Could I speak to you with all the eloquence of a Whitfield, Webster or Clay, I would ask for no better subject nor in fact, could I think of or speak upon a greater or more glorious theme.

"First, I desire to express my sincere thanks to the president, teachers and officers of this institution for the kindness they have shown me and the respect with which they have treated me during the four or five years that I have served with them as one of the trustees, and were they all present today, I would say to them, 'Let us renew our obligation daily to press onward and upward in promoting and maintaining the great and glorious work of a higher Christian Education which is so much needed in our state and nation today and without which we must necessarily go down to wretchedness and decay.'

Talks to Students.

"Now to the students of this university upon whose bright and glowing faces I have the pleasure of gazing, I wish to say a few things in general by way of suggestion, advice and encouragement. I would suggest to you the propriety of building your life work upon a foundation that will endure, not only through time, but throughout the endless ages of eternity. Let me assure you that there exists between yourselves and your humble speaker a sentiment of genuine love and affection which no severe, adverse criticism can ever obliterate from my memory. This fact is demonstrated and proven to me by the kind friendly manner with which I am received and greeted by you on all occasions whether collectively as at the present time, or individually on the streets or elsewhere. Whenever a gentleman or lady grasps my hand and says I am or I was once a student of Willamette University, it brings to me a thrill of joy and satisfaction peculiarly similar to that caused by the long ago meeting of some one or more of my own dear father's large family.

Tells of Visit to Pen.

"Some three months have passed since I had the opportunity and privilege of visiting your city in company with some of the trustees of this institution and the great evangelist, Gypsy Smith, who lectured to the convicts of the penitentiary and then to the students of Willamette University. I shall never forget the impression produced on my mind by the contrast between the two congregations, as I sat upon the platform in the auditorium of the penitentiary, and beheld the sad, dejected and contorted countenances of that mass of human beings who were herded into that room like so many wild animals taken from their cages and guarded by the watchful care of human vigilance till they are returned to their various cells of confinement, there to eke out a miserable life of wretchedness and suffering as the result of sin and disobedience to the laws of God and of man; and I listened to the almost inspired voice of that great man of God who so gently but forcibly tried to lead their minds to Christ, the only Savior of mankind, and told them if they would put their lives into His care and surrender all to Him, He would change the wickedest sinner in a moment, to a perfect saint in glory.

Two Audiences Contrasted.

"Shortly after this experience, I was permitted to sit upon the platform of the First M. E. church and listen again to the words of exhortation and comfort from the lips of that greatest evangelist of the world, as he spoke to the happy throng of students of this university whose purpose and object in life presented so striking a contrast between them and the penitentiary congregation, and when the speaking concluded and I stood at the side door of that auditorium while the students filed out, and one after another gave me a cordial shake of the hand, Oh, what real comfort and genuine satisfaction filled my mind nad thrilled my heart as I realized the fact that we were all working together for the uplifting of our common, fallen humanity, as demonstrated, not only by the convicts of the state prison here in our beautiful city of Salem, but throughout the entire inhabited world.

Urges Fixed Purpose.

"Now, my dear young friends, while you are here presumably for the purpose of disciplining and preparing your minds for the greatest possible usefulness in life, let me ask, have you any fixed or definite purpose to pursue, or object to obtain? If not, then all of work and study will be in vain, for you are like the mariner with his vessel upon the mighty ocean's surging billows without chart or compass to guide it, with no particular destiny or port in view, which is blown and tossed about by the storm or winds and is at the mercy of every passing wave, soon to be dashed upon the rocks and shoals and irretrievably lost forever; therefore, my young friends, allow me to advise you, if you have not already done so, to commence building your life work and Christian character by, first seeking the Kingdom of God and His righteousness, then you will be better prepared to meet and successfully solve the great problems of human life, always remembering that the chief good and happiness of man consists in doing good to his fellow man and by trying to alleviate his suffering at all times and under all circumstances. It is not what a man takes from the world by trying to gratify his own selfish desire and by pressing or tramping others down that he may lift himself up, but rather what he adds to or brings into the world by his physical, intellectual, moral and Christian education which enables him to reach down and elevate his weaker brother to a higher plane or sphere of action and inspire him towards an able and grander life, thus adding daily to the building up of a complete, rounded-out Christian character which will bring him in touch with the spiritual and divine so that he can say, 'I know of a truth that when this earthly house of my tabernacle shall be dissolved, I have a building of God, a house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens.' Then will he hear the welcome plaudits, 'Well done, thou good and faithful servant; thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things; enter thou into the joy of thy Lord.' Therefore, let me advise you, my young friends, to set your standard of life high, place your ideals higher than that of any human being who has ever preceded you even as high as the spiritual and divine, so that your ideas will ever be reaching and aspiring upwards towards your great ideal; never being able to reach it in this world because your goal is beyond and above this earthly sphere and terminates only in the spiritual and divine life; thus your achievements may far excel those of any person who has preceded you, for who knows or can measure the possibilities of the human mind when allied to and associated with the spiritual and divine?

A War Against Liquor.

"My young friends, you are living in an age and generation of vast and mighty responsibilities as well as great and glorious possibilities; you have the greatest problems to solve that the world has ever known. Since the establishment of our government and the acknowledgment of its independence by the various nations and powers of the earth, it has passed through many trying crises, out of which it has always come triumphantly victorious; but my friends, we are today in the midst of a crisis, in comparison with which all former crises are as a drop of water to the ocean or a grain of sand to the seashore; we are face to face with the greatest battle that any nation or people has ever been called upon to solve; a battle which I hope and trust will not be fought out by sword and bayonet, by powder and lead, as was the terrible curse of human slavery in our fair land, but rather a battle which will be fought and won by the candid deliberation and firm decision of an intelligent, enlightened and educated people through the ballot box at the polls. I hardly need to tell you that I refer to the dreadful, terrible curse of intoxicating drinks which lies at the foundation and directly or indirectly causes the greatest portion of the suffering, misery and sin of our fallen humanity.

Applause of Men Not All.

"Now, in conclusion, I desire to speak briefly by way of encouragement. Whatever profession or pursuit you have chosen to follow, remember that all true greatness is founded on real, genuine goodness, which consists in little deeds or acts of kindness and words of encouragement spoken to your less fortunate brother in the spirit of true Christian faith and earnest endeavor to elevate his mind and inspire his thoughts to a higher plane or sphere of action and toward a nobler and grander life. While we appreciate and enjoy the respect and esteem of our fellow men when they speak of our worthy acts and noble achievements, yet if we would measure up to the full standard of our privileges and possibilities in this life, we must obtain and possess something of far greater and more lasting worth than the applause of our fellow men who can only accompany us to the brink of the mystic river. We want the full assurance that our faith is firmly ground on Him who has led us successfully through the rugged paths of this inconstant life and is able and willing to guide us safely across the mystic river to that bright spiritual world which is the consummation of our great divine ideal. This is not mere theory, but the actual words of our blessed Lord and Savior, who in that memorable night when, with His disciples in that wonderful counsel chamber, just before leaving this world, as they were grieving and sorrowing because of his anticipated departure. He spoke to them the pathetic, though cheering and inspiring words, 'Let not your hearts be troubled; you believe in God, believe also in me; in my Father's house are many mansions; if it were not so, I would have told you; I go to prepare a place for you and if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again and receive you unto myself that where I am, there ye may be also.'

Spirituality Comes First.

"What a beautiful thought! What a glorious promise to the Christian! And what is true of individuals is also true of the nation, for no country or nation ever rises higher in the scale of intelligence, morality and Christianity than do the people that comprise it. How important, then, it is that you, my young friends, who are students in this university, should so educate and discipline your minds that you may be hale to assist in saving this our great and mighty American nation from idolatry and self-destruction, in order that it may be an example to all surrounding nations and the providence of God, be the means of bringing all other nations to civic righteousness and to God. Then let me urge, let me entreat you to put forth all the energy of your better and higher nature to hasten the time when man shall be elevated to his original character; when illuminated reason and regulated liberty shall once more exhibit him in the image of his Maker; when all the inhabitants of the earth shall become free men and fellow citizens and patriotism itself be lost in universal philanthropy. Then shall volumes of incense incessantly roll from altars inscribed to liberty; then shall the innumerable variety of the human family unitedly worship in her sacred temple whose pillars shall rest on the remotest bounds of the earth and whose arch will be the vault of heaven. Now, my dear friends, it is not my purpose to try to discourage you in the least from putting forth every laudible effort and of using all the means within your power to secure the greatest physical, mental and moral education possible, but rather to impress your minds with the great fundamental truth that all of these are dependent upon and subordinate to Christian Education which is not only the foundation but also the climax of all true greatness, grandeur and glory, for in the language of Holy Writ, 'What shall it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul,' or lose himself, or 'What will a man give in exchange for his soul?' These are questions which call for your deepest thought and demand your most earnest consideration and which you are able to answer correctly from your life's experience, then when this earthly, this preparatory life, shall draw to a close, you will not need the assistance of the sculptor or an architect to perpetuate your memory; you will need no princely dome, no monumental pile; no stately pyramid whose towering height shall pierce the stormy clouds and rear its lofty head towards heaven to tell posterity of your fame, your deeds, your worthy deeds alone will render you immortal; when oblivion shall have swept away thrones, kingdoms, principalities and powers, and every vestige of human greatness and glory, shall mold into dust and the last period of time become extinct. Eternity! Eternity! itself will catch the glowing theme and dwell with increasing rapture on your name. That this may be the equal amount. The kindness of Mr. Severson has assured beyond a shadow of a doubt the success of the endowment campaign, and established for him a large place in the hearts of all friends of Willamette.

Salem Booster Club Banquets

One hundred and fifty of Salem's boosters gathered around the festive board at the Marion Hotel Friday evening to welcome to Salem President Homan and Vice President Todd, who have just completed a successful campaign in Portland for the endowment fund, which was commenced in Salem last summer. The campaign was renewed last week at the banquet, when a committee was appointed to select members for an executive committee that will have charge of Salem, Marion county and Polk county.

The Hon. Thomas McBride of the supreme court of the state, was the toast master. He extended on behalf of the citizens of Salem felicitations to the officers of the institution who are conducting the endowment campaign.

Peter W. Severson and Hon. A. E. Eaton were guests whose names when mentioned brought forth rounds of applause.

Rev. John W. Hancher, who is councillor to colleges, and has been assisting Dr. Homan and Dr. Todd for the past six weeks, was present.

The toasts for the evening were given by Dr. Fletcher Homan, Dr. E. H. Todd, Rev. J. W. Hancher, Mrs. Flemming of the Women's Club, Hon. A. E. Eaton and Peter W. Severson. Mr. Severson's toast was very short, but was received with a great burst of applause. He said: "I am not a speech maker. All I can say is that you are welcome. You are welcome."

Announcement was made, just before the close of the evening, of the gift of $5000 by Rev. Nelson Clarke, a superannuate of the Oregon Conference.

The Willamette quartet furnished several numbers, which were interspersed with the toasts.

When "Rusty" and P. first did meet, His heart it not only did beat— But it must be confessed That it sprang from his breast, And plunked in the mud at her feet.

HALL NEWS

What a Meeting and a Greeting When All Returned.

Next to the pleasure of leaving the Hall, comes the joy of returning. The closing hours of Thanksgiving, Christmas and spring vacations always produce atmospheric conditions hinting of sudden explosions. The silences of the last moments are weighty with possibilities.

The Question Is: "How is the Horse-radish Man?"

The 8:40 car Monday evening brot back Miss McMahon, Miss Wastell, Miss Graves, Miss Perkins, Miss Lent and Miss Lewis from Portland; Miss Bradley from Hood River, and Miss Lewton from Forest Grove. The returned wanderers were hailed with avalanches of rapture and, together with their suitcases, extra hats, umbrellas, coats and handbags, they were assisted home. At the top of the front stairs stood the little matron, with outstretched arms to receive the whole hat-burdened eight. But before the damp yet delightful collision could be effected, eight voices inquired cruelly: "How is the Horse-radish man?" Miss Chappell expired.

Waldette, a Confirmed Vegetarian.

Ada Mark returned from Hood River Sunday evening. Arita Jones got in Tuesday morning in time to rescue her plant from Waldette, who has become a confirmed vegetarian during vacation. Gertrude Reeves also arrived Tuesday morning, fairly dying for a chance to study once more. Hannah Roberts sailed joyfully in from Seattle after hours Monday evening. Armored Sutcliffe is dated to put in an appearance Tuesday evening and has telegraphed Miss Meyers to be at the station with an empty bonbon box with shoestring attached, in which to draw home the weary Miss Sutcliffe and her personal charms. Miss Jory and Miss Reynolds are back once more. The former is quite recovered from her illness, and the two will take up real Hall life, including everything from midnight spreads to carpet-admiration half-hours.

A True Way to Boost.

Arta Anderson spent her vacation with her adoring relatives in Corvallis. While there she devoted considerable attention to pumping her little cousins full of the sentiment that "Willamette's the school for mine, for mine."

During the week the hall was almost deserted. On Friday night, for instance, the whole "family" might have been seen at Lola Belle Cook's attired in a manner sacred to fudge.

Y. W. C. A. Rest Room a Place of Real Rest

As is the policy of all Y. W. C. A. administrations, the present officers and cabinet are endeavoring to make the Y. W. of as great and practical assistance to the girls of the University as is possible. A special effort is being put forth to make the rest room a place of real rest and enjoyment for all the girls.

To this end, the committee has planned to keep the room as cheerful and inviting as fresh air, sunshine, and flowers can make it. Especially practical will be the lounge provided with a coverlet for people afflicted with "that tired feeling" or the sudden headache brought on by too fervent desire for the blessings of higher education. In the cupboard by the wall, camphor, witch hazel and emergency remedies will also be found. Other similar arrangements are under consideration to make the rest room true to its name and purpose.

It is the earnest desire of the Y. W. C. A. that all girls of the University may feel free and welcome to visit the rest room at any and all times.

Philodossians.

Friday, March 15, the following officers were elected for the remainder of the year: President, Margaret Graham; vice president, Gertrude Reeves; secretary, Ada Mark; assistant secretary, Emma Loughbridge; treasurer, Clara Schnosse; censor, Ethel Lewton; sergeant at arms, Grace Edgington.

The vaudeville troupe under the direction of the Hall girls, entertained the society for the remainder of the afternoon, with an original playlet entitled, "Too Many Engagements." The cast was as follows: Bob, Helen Wastell; Rose, Ada Mark; Marie, Edith Lewis; restaurant manager, Grace Edgington; messenger boy, Emma Loughbridge; waiter, Ethel Lewton. It was thrilling from start to finish.

Red Rose Defeats Cap and Gown.

Smith College, April 5.—For three day the members of the Senior class at Smith College have been voting on the question of wearing caps and gowns or white dresses with a red rose at graduation. The vote, which was announced yesterday afternoon, was overwhelmingly in favor of the white dress. The campaign was conducted in a vigorous manner.

Kimball Notes.

The Kimball College Library is still growing. The latest addition is probably the most valuable single volume in the library, being a large historical atlas costing twenty dollars. It is of special value to the church history class, as it has maps showing the political divisions of Europe as they have changed from time to time during the last nineteen centuries.

As Mr. Jasper came into church history class last Friday morning, a yell greeted him. Hip, hip, hurrah! Hip, hip, hurrah! Hip, hip, hurrah!!! Theolog orator!

A recess was declared last Tuesday for the systematic theology class, as Dr. Kimball was called to Portland on business.

At the regular monthly meeting of the First Year Academy, Miss Roberts, the vice president, handed in her resignation and Miss Vesta Mulligan was elected to fill the vacancy.

It was decided to adopt the "violet" as the class flower and "Raise to a higher level" as the motto. Also the class voted to give the class quintet letters.

Zednick of Washington has written to Manager Geary calling off the Washington games on the campus. The faculty at the Seattle school decided that if the team took the California trip they could not make the Oregon tour. First it is a "B" average, then no games with Oregon and O. A. C.

Students are glad to learn that George Vandervert, who has just gone through an operation for appendicitis, is rapidly recovering. "Here's to you, George, and may you soon be back in school again."

Washingtonians Are Dangerous

Colleges and Universities Prepare to Make Another Hump for Honors.

With the season advancing, track prospects among the Northwest Conference colleges are beginning to assume a more definite position. Washington, by winning the P. N. A. indoor meet at Seattle two weeks ago, showed her team to be a strong contender for championship honors. The fact that the Seattle institution carried off the meet despite the fact that their star sprinter Courtney was disabled and Captain Evans was ineligible on account of deficiency in studies, shows that the Northwesterners are going to put in a strong bid for Northwest track honors.

At Pullman also the outlook seems to be bright. A number of veterans have returned and much new material has reported for practice. Among the new arrivals are Rock, with a record of 11 feet 4 inches in the pole vault; and Coe, another Freshman, with a 5 foot 10 1/2-inch mark in the high jump. The great relay team of last year is weakened by the loss of Lowry, but there seems to be plenty of new material to fill the gap. Cooke is showing up exceptionally well in the sprints, while in the longer distances Williams and Lewis will compete. The weak spot of the Pullman aggregation seems to be in the hurdles, Powell being the only man available so far.

At Idaho, with baseball of the schedule of spring events, a large squad has been turning out for track and although a number of the old stars are missing, Coach Vanderveer expects to turn out quite a formidable aggregation. In the weights the gem state institution is reported as being especially strong. With Benlough, Phillips, Harris, Gribble and Keefe, all premier weight jugglers, the university is hoping to turn out another "phenom" this year.

Whitman has also abandoned inter-collegiate baseball this spring, and is turning out in full force for track work. Although no particular stars have been reported from the Walla Walla institution as yet, it is understood that Coach Hahn has a large squad out, and has some very likely material. The Oregon Agricultural College, also, has a large working squad, and much is expected on the cinders at that school this season.

O. A. C. Gets Fancy Baseball Uniforms

Oregon Agricultural College, Corvallis, Or., April 5.—The arrival of twelve new french flannel uniforms for the O. A. C. baseball squad has raised the fever of the fans several degrees. All the students on the campus are seeking omens of good weather for Saturday so that the first official practice of the year may be held on the athletic field in response to Coach Stewart's call issued today.

Six of last year's squad will report at the initial workout. Three of these—Captain Reiben, Cooper and Phillips—are regulars from last year's team, and will form the nucleus for the Beavers of 1912. Further developments are eagerly awaited, as recent rumors have been floating about the campus to the effect that there are several new students—old baseball men—who will offer strong bids for places on the regular team.

You Can't Write on Your Cuff at Minnesota

University of Minnesota, April 5.—The following is a complete statement of the plan proposed for the introduction of the honor system at Minnesota. The idea is simply to make the question of cribbing wholly a student one. The student body will handle all instances of cheating. Thus, if an instance of cribbing arises in a class, in nine cases out of ten it ought to be sufficient that the honorable students speak to the offender, and reprimand him, or apply a more common method of dealing with those who break student rules. If this proves insufficient the student body deals with the flagrant case as seems necessary.

If it is desired to report the case to a representative body such as the students' council, it may be done; but it is not required under the honor system to report anyone, so long as the student body, in whatever way seems most just to all, discharges its obligation to take care of the cribbing question. This is the gist of the honor system.

If sentiment is favorable, it is the intention to adopt the system for the remainder of the year in senior and junior academic classes only, and if experience warrants, to extend it further next year.

The Yale News presents statistics showing that 58 per cent of American authors are college-bred men. Harvard leads with 83 authors. The smaller colleges of the country furnish 50 per cent of the list.

Badger Seniors Would Oust a Heluva Yell

Madison, Wis., April 5.—University of Wisconsin students of the senior class are at war about the college yell. As it now stands, the doggerel reads:

"We are hell, we are hell,
"We are hell, we are hell."
"Varsity, varsity, nineteen twelve."
Harold C. Eckhardt, the new class president, heads a faction that wants to change "hell" to some less lurid word. Stuart C. Blythe, son of Sam Blythe, the writer, is prominent in the other faction, which insists on the short and ugly expression.

N. W. Season "Splendid One," Says Coach

Forward and Guard from This State but Rest of Men Are from Seattle.

By Dr. G. J. Sweetland, Jr., Athletic Director Willamette University.

The Northwest College Conference basketball season just closed has been a splendid one. The teams have uniformly played high-grade basketball and the cities around the college circuit have been treated to skillful exhibitions of the game which should be doubly appreciated, coming as it does between the football season in the fall and the spring outdoor sports. Basketball is the only game in vogue among the colleges playable during the so-called winter months of our Pacific Northwest.

The Northwest College Basketball Conference during the past season consisted of teams from the State Universities of Idaho, at Moscow; Oregon, at Eugene; Washington, at Seattle; the Oregon Agricultural College, at Corvallis; the Washington State Agricultural College, at Pullman; Whitman College, at Walla Walla, while in the football conference last fall, failed to enter a team of basketball.

Profits Are Needed.
Viewed from the standpoint of finances and playing, the geographical position of the conference towns is not an ideal one by any means. The college towns are situated about the corners of a triangle, with one extremity down in the Willamette Valley, at Eugene, another at Moscow, Idaho; the third at Seattle, Wash., necessitating about 1100 miles of travel to complete the circuit.

In making these different towns and meeting their opponents, it is necessary for the financial success of a team's trip, to make expenses. In order to do this, many games must be played with the fewest possible players taken along by the visitors. As the result of these conditions, together with playing upon strange floors, sleeping and eating away from home, the visiting teams are placed at a marked disadvantage. This is emphasized the more strongly when one looks over the season's record and notes the fact that the home teams won every close important game.

The selection of an all-Northwest Conference team is, according to the writer, a very easy matter as far as a first team lineup is concerned. If a second string of men is to be accurately and justly chosen the difficulty experienced is very much greater.

All-Northwest Team Picked.
Here is the All-Northwest Conference basketball team:

Savage, center, University of Washington.
Staatz, captain, forward, University of Washington.

Jamison, forward, University of Oregon.

Mattson, guard, Oregon Agricultural College.

Keeler, guard, University of Washington.

Savage, the rangy Freshman center of the University of Washington team, is in a class by himself when it comes to all-around work. He is equally good in offensive and defensive work, fitting into team play very nicely, making him of the greatest value to his playing mates. In defensive work alone, Staatz of the Oregon Agricultural College, had a shade over Savage and caused the Seattle man a lot of trouble on the bat off, but is not as strong an all-around man.

Staatz of Washington is as good a forward as any team needs. His strength in guarding, accurate shooting of baskets, speed and clever dribbling leaves little lacking. Staatz also has the faculty of doing his playing with little effort, thereby reserving all possible energy and while never for a moment loafing, seems ever ready for an additional sport.

Staatz' ability as a leader and for clever generalship is unquestioned. These requisites along with his playing ability should give him the captaincy of the All-Northwest team.

Jameson of the University of Oregon, as a running mate for Staatz, would make a combination difficult to beat. Jameson is a hard worker, very fast and clever at shooting baskets, a player that a guard finds very difficult to keep from getting baskets with surprising regularity.

Keeler Exceptional Guard.

Keeler of the University of Washington is a guard of exceptional ability, some of the best blocking and dribbling of the season being done by him. It seems as if Keeler is everywhere on the floor at once and tho a good thrower himself, is perhaps a little too much inclined to play the ball to his team mates for a shot at a basket instead of taking it himself. This unusual and commendable fault helps out the team play.

Mattson of the Oregon Agricultural College is the strongest guard in the conference, always being with his opponent and covering him up. While Mattson is not a player of the "showy" order, he is of inestimable value to the team. Mattson is another one of these players who work for their team, having no desire of excelling as an individual player except as it assists in results of the game.

Walker, of the University of Oregon, was playing a great game at the close of the season. In the last two games with the University of Washington, Walker showed wonderful improvement over his earlier work and came in for a great deal of praise from both the students of the game and the University of Washington men.

May of the Oregon Agricultural College is another guard who deserves credit for his steady, consistent work. The writer believes May did more to win the last game against the University of Washington than any other man on his team.

Cooper is Mentioned.
Cooper of Oregon Agricultural College, Sims of the University of Oregon, Williams of Washington State Agricultural College and Loux of the University of Idaho are all worthy of special mention for the strong game played.

This all-Northwest College Conference team should, after working together and perfecting team play, be able to defeat or at least break even with any college basketball team in the United States. The idea held in some quarters that teams of the East are superior to those of the Northwest is an erroneous one.

The past season has been one of many surprises from a playing point of view. The men and the characteristic style of play dominating each leading team are of a good deal of interest to those following the game.

Before the season began I do not believe there was one basketball fan out of a dozen in the Northwest but that gave the University of Oregon, with its veteran material, the championship.

The Eugene institution's team had the strongest offensive working style of play of the three leaders. On the other hand, this same team showed no organized defensive system followed by the entire team. Their offensive strength offset this deficiency in a measure, but not rendering the team as powerful as it might have been.

The Oregon Agricultural College team was through and through a defensive team. Dr. Stewart, the Oregon Agricultural College coach, started out with a bunch of misfits, working out of them a wonderful team of defensive fighters, the best defensive team in the conference by a long ways and a good team offensively.

The University of Washington five was composed almost entirely of new men. Their play was one of the well-balanced kind, being a harmonizing of the style dominating at Oregon Agricultural College and University of Oregon. The Washington team was good offensively, good defensively, and while not as strong as Oregon Agricultural College on defense, or University of Oregon on offense, they averaged in both these lines more even. The Northwesterner's team was the best bunch of fighters and cleanest players seen by the writer this year.

AN ENJOYABLE CONDITION

How much more enjoyable it is to have made a profitable investment than merely to know you might have made it. The young men and women who have been trained in the Capital Business College are enjoying the profits of their training. The ones who merely keep thinking about getting the training will have to keep thinking about the profits from it—they won't have them. Next week will be a good time to enter.

Seattle Wins Final Game From W. U.

In the last game of the season Willamette went down to defeat at the hands of the fast five from Seattle. The game was fast and exciting, and was the cleanest exhibition of basketball seen on the Varsity floor this season.

The whole Willamette team played hard and well. Winslow was the leading point getter, with six points, and he was followed by Homan, who played the second half. Gibson was back in his old form and McIntire did the greater part of the floor work for his team.

A fine squad has been developed this year, and the several of the old stars graduate, there is a fine prospect for a strong team next year.

Senior Laws Score From Deaf Mutes

In a game of basketball between the Senior Laws and the Deaf Mutes, on Tuesday evening, the Laws took the long end of a score of 36 to 16. From all reports the game was fast and interesting, and that the score does not indicate the strength of the two teams as the Mutes were victorious on two other occasions.

Baseball has taken the place of Blackstone, Tiedeman, etc., since the arrival of ten nice blue uniforms, over at the Law College. A manager has been elected, and he now has six or seven games on his schedule, with prospects of several more. A trip up in Washington has been promised which has served as quite a bait for has-beens and would-bees. But with proper coaching a team can be composed of Laws that will make quite a creditable showing.

Washington U. Oregon Club Active.

The Oregon Club, composed of graduates of Oregon High Schools at the University of Washington, will make an active campaign in an attempt to get Oregon students to attend the University of Washington. The club is composed of sixty-one members, with Bernard Noble of Oregon City president.

Pennsylvania Wins the Swimming Title

One American record was broken and another was equaled at the fifth annual individual meet of the Intercollegiate Swimming Association which was held in the Pennsylvania tank at Philadelphia, on Saturday March 9. In the plunge for distance, Captain Willis of Pennsylvania, broke his own record of 76 feet 6 inches as, with a plunge of 80 feet, he came within two feet of the world's record and Schrock, of Pennsylvania, made the record time of 26 seconds flat in the first heat of the 50-yard swim.

The Pennsylvania swimmers scored highest with 24 points, while the University team was second with 20 points and Yale was third with 7 points.

Princeton led in the number of championships won, as three of them went to the Varsity swimmers. E. J.

D. Cross, 1914, who was the high scorer of the meet, secured the title in both the 220-yard swim and the 100-yard swim, which R. R. Lawrence 1912 won the fancy-diving contest. Pennsylvania won first place in both the other events with record performances.

Students Talk Politics.

Oregon Agricultural College, Corvallis, Or., April 5.—"Why Should Roosevelt be Our Candidate for President This Year?" is the subject on which R. C. Makinson '15, New Plymouth, Idaho, spoke before the Athenaeum Literary Society last night. Another topic which aroused much discussion was the Aldrich banking plan, on which W. G. Carson '13, Irrigon, spoke at some length. A "stump speech" was delivered by G. W. Smith '15, of Washougal, Wash., and P. M. Rinearson '14, Milwaukie, gave an amusing and interesting talk on "What are holes in the air?" Kenneth Grimm '13, Hubbard, spoke on "Society Pep," and the program closed with a "stunt" by J. L. Taylor '14, Oregon City, and J. C. Gibbs '13, Grace, Idaho.
