They Made News For W. U. in 1937

Chief Justice Henry J. Bean and the six associate justices of the Oregon Supreme Court decided about 250 cases coming to them on appeals from lower courts during 1937.

These seven judges, constituting the highest judicial body in Oregon, holding open court on the third floor of the marble Supreme Court building, across State street from the Willamette campus, calmly and impartially considered cases argued before them by the leading members of the bar in the Northwest. Then, unswayed by passion or prejudice, with a quiet dignity, they wrote their decisions, applying to the facts presented to them the written law of this state as it has been declared by the people and by the Oregon legislature.

Litigants spent thousands of dollars to have their cases reviewed. Staggering sums were involved. Life and death itself sometimes hung in the balance as felons convicted in circuit courts made last ditch stands against confinement in the penitentiary or desperately battled against death in Oregon's new gas chamber.

Who are the seven men who under the Constitution of the State of Oregon are ably exercising these vast powers? Each of them stands for election once every six years.

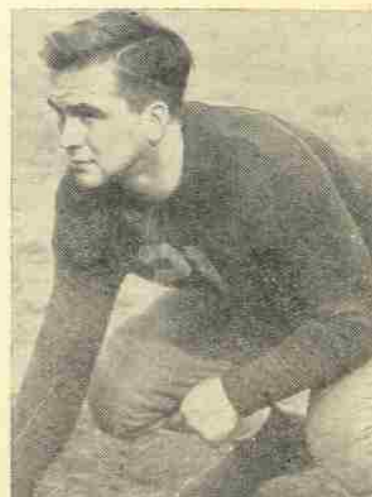

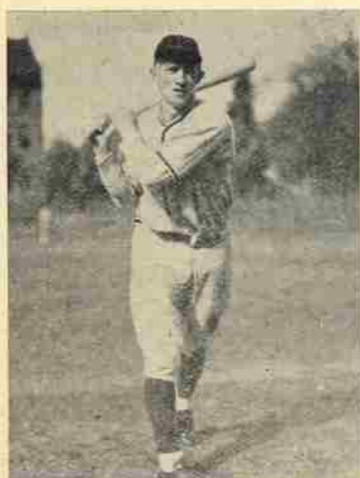

The youngest is Justice George Rossman, who is 52. The oldest, Chief Justice Henry J. Bean, 84. The average age of the distinguished group is 63 years.

Chief Justice Bean is also the oldest in point of service having been on the Oregon bench for 27 years. Justice John L. Rand, a member of the court for 17 years, is second in seniority. The newest member of the court is Justice Hal S. Lusk, who was appointed late last year by Governor Martin to fill the unexpired term of the late Justice Howard Campbell.

Only one, Justice Harry Belt, is a westerner by birth. He is a native of Salem. Justices John Rand and Henry Bean grew up in New England. Justices John Bailey, Percy Kelly, and George Rossman came from the middle-west. Justice Lusk was born in Washington, D. C.

The entire bench is college trained; three of them attended western schools, four studying in the east. Justice Rand studied at Dartmouth and Whitman; Justice Belt at Oregon Normal, Justice Kelly at Albany college, Justice Bailey at Harvard, Justice Rossman at Chicago university, Justice Lusk at Georgetown university, and Justice Bean at North Yarmouth academy, Maine.

School Sees Many Changes In Year

An extensive campus building program, outstanding accomplishments in both forensics and dramatics, outfitting of the school band in new uniforms, the breaking of all enrollment records for the school, continued success in all lines of athletics, new achievement in music, and the presence upon the campus of a number of distinguished and world-famous personalities, feature the 12-month period just passed and collectively made up one of the busiest, most progressive years written in the 95-year-old record of Willamette university.

First line on the page undoubtedly should go to the new $100,000 library awarded to the school by the board of trustees on March 6, after continued agitation for its construction by Dr. Bruce R. Baxter, president of the university, the present library staff, and students. Dr. Baxter had the honor of turning the first soil for the building and a few days later the Associated Student Body petitioned the board of trustees asking that the new edifice be called the "Bruce R. Baxter Library Building," in recognition of the latter's work in getting the building for the campus.

Actual construction began during the summer with April 1, this year, set as the goal for completion of the structure, the advent of the new year saw the construction progressing on schedule with the building expected to be put in use during spring vacation and probably dedicated during the May Week-end festivities.

Y Groups Discuss Campus Problems And World Affairs

Margaret Taylor and Olive Clomes, representing the Y. W. C. A., and Dan Moses and John Voss, representing the Y. M. C. A., attended the national assembly of the Y. M.-Y. W. at Oxford, Ohio, December 27-January 1.

At the conference the delegates heard such famed speakers as Henry van Dusen, Dr. T. Z. Koo, John Bennett, Howard Thurman, and many others of equal prominence speak on the vital international problems of today, problems found on the individual campuses, and how these problems may be worked out. A complete report of the trip and meeting will be given at the Vespers program Sunday evening.

New Stickers Go On Sale Next Wednesday

Willamette's first new sticker will go on sale Wednesday, with members of the Y. W. C. A., sponsors of the printing of the sticker, in charge of the sales. The new decorations for windshields, windows, and notebooks are a design of the new Bearcat drawn for the water wagon, by Errol W. Proctor, Portland artist, in gold, upon a cardinal "W" background. The design was made by Ralph Woodall, and the stickers are being printed by Larry Guderian. They will sell for three for 10 cents.

M. E. Conference Begins New Move

A new national movement among Methodist students of the United States was forecast by an action of the first National Methodist Student conference, held in St. Louis, December 28-31, 1937. Student delegates from the three branches of the Methodist church in the country participated in the meet and will join the movement. The movement is expected to bring a unification of the three Methodist denominations.

The St. Louis conference heard representative Methodist leaders and adopted reports of seven sectional committees. These reports applied the modern understanding of the Christian gospel to the problems of church and campus life.

Echo Johnson and John McNeese, Willamette delegates to the conference returned to the campus last week. They made the return trip via Omaha, Neb., Salt Lake City, Los Angeles and San Francisco.

DR. LAUGHLIN ATTENDS SOCIOLOGY CONFERENCE

Dr. S. B. Laughlin, head of the sociology department at Willamette university, attended a gathering of western sociology professors and students at Pomona college during the holidays. Principal questions discussed were social security and social welfare. While there, Dr. Laughlin extended an invitation to the group to meet at Willamette in 1942, when the university will celebrate its one hundredth anniversary.

Library Dedication Plans Underway; Due April 15

Work is rapidly progressing on the new Willamette library, and the completion date is expected to be between April 1 and 15. Plans have been begun for a dedication program, and also for a "moving day." The latter idea has been carried out on the campuses by students who supervise the moving of the books to the new library. The law library is soon to be moved to its new site across from the Supreme Court building, and will be ready for use about March 1.

BILL LAUGHLIN AWARDED TRIP TO ALEUTIAN ISLES

William Laughlin, a freshman at Willamette, has had the honor of being chosen one of a group of young men who will take a trip to the Aleutian Islands in May. The purpose of the expedition concerns the movement of ancient men from Asia to America. The young men will assist in excavations during the day and attend lectures in the evenings. Dr. Alex Hrdlick, curator of national museum in Washington, D. C., is in charge of the government-sponsored project on physical anthropology.

Evelyn Welsh Heads International Club

The International club held their bi-monthly meeting January 5th at Chresto Cottage. The main business of the evening was the adoption of a constitution and the election of officers for the remainder of the year. The following officers were elected: First councillor, Evelyn Welsh; second councillor, Marie Bendixen; third councillor, Beth Hall; fourth councillor, John McNeese; fifth councillor, Orval Whitman.

Willamette Girls Argue With U.S.C.; Two In State Meet

Isobel Goldeen and Jean Frame, two University of California varsity debaters, earned Helen May Bent and Doris Darnielle of Willamette in a non-decision debate Thursday of last week, January 6, at Chresto Cottage.

University of California took the negative, while Willamette had the affirmative stand on the Pi Kappa Delta labor question.

Thirty-five persons heard the speakers, among whom were Dr. Baxter and Dean Erickson.

Aldus Smith and Barbara Young will compete for honors in the state extemporaneous speaking contest to be held on the 20th of this month.

The two were chosen as representatives from a list of contestants in a tryout last week.

Treble Clef and Songmen Combine For KEX Concert

Treble Clef club, the women's glee club on the campus, joined with the Willamette Songmen in the presentation of last Sunday afternoon's radio broadcast over station KEX from 3:30 to 4 o'clock. Professor Cameron Marshall directed the group of 80 mixed voices while Ina Bennett and Mary Virginia Nohlgren were the accompanists. Dr. Baxter spoke briefly during the intermission. This program was another in the series of Sunday afternoon broadcasts presented bi-monthly over station KEX from historic Wailer hall. The next broadcast

Accidents Claim Lives of 2 Grads

Death struck twice with lightning swiftness in the same place during the past two weeks when two Willamette graduates of the class of 1937 were fatally killed in accidents.

Ross Gladden, editor of the Collegian last year, died in a Portland hospital last Friday of injuries sustained when an automobile struck him as he stopped by the roadside to examine his car lights while enroute to his home in White Salmon, Wn., January 5.

Ralph McCollough, also a grad of last year's class, and a promising young attorney in Portland, was electrocuted or drowned in his home on December 27. Mrs. McCollough, formerly Gwen Galaher, '37, discovered her husband's body in several feet of water after having heard his cries for help. Young McCollough had gone to the basement to shut off an electric pump and had evidently come in contact with a live wire.

Gladden was working for the Oregonian at the time of his death. He had been a recent employe of the Oregon Statesman, in Salem, and had been married only since August 15. While at Willamette he was a member of the Songmen, the Blue Key, and president of the Sigma Tau fraternity.

SPARKS MADE PRESIDENT OF ORE. P. E. ASSOCIATION

Lestle Sparks, graduate manager of Willamette university, was named president of the Oregon Health, Physical Education and Recreation association at the annual two-day meeting held in Portland during the holidays. Sparks has served as president-elect during the past year.

—never to be replaced—casting shadows over the others that will remain during a lifetime. Death is cruel, but it is only when it strikes so close to home and so frequently that we realize its savage brutality.

GONE

Ralph McCollough and Ross Gladden are gone. Ralph was a brilliant, pleasant young fellow with tremendous possibilities in his field. More cannot be said of him here for he was not very well known to the writer. With Ross the situation was different. During the entire last year an association was built up with the former editor of the Collegian that was firm, everlasting. Many were the hours spent with Ross; in fact, the paper last year was published almost as a partnership between one or two members of the editorial staff and the editor. No one ever was or ever will be more pleasant to work with. He was sincere, thoughtful, cooperative, genial, and extremely diligent. He put everything he had into his work and expected others to do the same, though no reproaches were forthcoming when someone did shirk at his post and the work fell upon the editor's shoulders. Ross Gladden was the type of editor and the type of man that one looked up to, strove to imitate. It has been the aim of this year's editor to follow just as closely as possible in his footsteps in managing the paper. If the task can be performed anywhere near as well as he did the job, the year will be considered a success. The multitude of people who knew Ross Gladden will ever feel they have lost something from their lives in his passing.

LETTERS—QUESTIONNAIRE

Since the publication of a recent editorial on cheating on the campus, the editor has been besieged with letters from various members of the student body. The epistles do not deal with cheating exclusively, but rather branch out into several other fields pertaining to the subject—lower entrance requirements at the university in the past few years, the athletic question, Willamette's "going big time," and others. Lack of space due to the numbers of the letters and their length prevents publication this issue. Several will be printed in the issue of the Collegian next week, however.

Due to the fact that these other questions have come up in the past two weeks and the Collegian, as well as the administration, desires to know the reaction of the students on the subjects, a printed questionnaire will be distributed next week to every student on the campus. Students are asked to answer conscientiously and specifically. Such cooperation will make the problems of solution to the questions raised much easier.

Introducing . . .

PROF. E. C. RICHARDS

Professor Ernest C. Richards, A. M., professor of Rhetoric, has been with Willamette since 1916. He held the position of Secretary of Education until 1920, at which time he took over the duties of professor of the familiar foreign language—English.

Matriculating from Morningside college with Ph. B. and A. M. degrees, Professor Richards continued with graduate work at Boston university and University of California. In his stay at Willamette, he has had the opportunity to watch the growth from a rather small school to a school of giant capabilities and potentialities. It is, he has seen, and will be men of his calibre and broadmindedness that facilitate and promote such growth.

Unique generalship and great human understanding, nicely mingled with an aesthetic feeling for beauty and the unusual, mark the tone of Professor Richards and all of his classes. His unhurried accuracy and decided analytical ability guarantee every student quick improvement in his own style of speaking and writing English. Many are there that will unhesitatingly aver that all they know about writing they have learned from Professor Richards. A deserved and authentic tribute is thereby extended to you, sir; humble, to be sure, but deep-felt.

A complete understanding of Professor Richards may be had by any conscientious student with simple observation in his class. His ability to paint the beautiful from the simple, every-day occurrence illustrates, among other things, a complete and well-observed philosophy of life.

Soft-speaking, genial, resourceful, ever willing to help and cooperate, interesting and interested in his work, Professor Ernest C. Richards stands, through personality and character, an ideal, a model of an educated man.

Closeups of the Staff

This week's closeup brings before the spotlight the proof-reader of the Collegian, Melvin Holt, a Junior, majoring in Business Administration. Although he does not write for the paper, "Mel" has the job of reading and correcting the items that are written by others.

Mel was born near Scio, Ore., July 8, 1918, and lived on the same farm until he finished high school. He attended two country grade schools and was graduated from Scio high in 1935. COLLEGIATE QUOTES

Results show that if the congressional elections were held today, the Republicans would gain approximately 46 seats in the house of representatives as compared to 1936. This would give the G. O. STUDENT QUESTIONNAIRE

(Editor's Note: This is the second of a series of questionnaires aimed to show a cross-sectional view of student opinion on certain topics on the campus. Last issue the questionnaire was aimed at the Collegian itself; this week it concerns student-body spirit at the basketball games.)

Question: What do you think of the spirit at Willamette basketball games, and what do you think should be done to remedy the situation?

Barbara Crookham: We do not have the spirit we had four years ago, and it is because the pep staff is not co-ordinated.

Dwight Catherwood: The spirit at our games is rotten. We should have more of the student body out there.

Helene Trulsen: Spirit at games is terrible, but better in chapel. Maybe we should have more special chapel.

Chuck Neville: Lack of spirit is caused by too many individual interests. This could be corrected by the organized action of the groups of individuals.

Frances Feldbahn: Spirit is terrible. Special chapels, or, at least, announcements of games would help.

Larry Nunnenkamp: There is more interest than last year, yet not enough people go to the games.

Irma Oehler: Spirit is better than last year. The blame for poor spirit lies with the students, not the yell leader.

Talbot Bennett: Spirit not any too good, but it is rather early to tell. George is working hard and at least they won't be all "yelled-out" for the conference games.

Barbara Kertz: Spirit could be improved. More pep assemblies would help. Get the song queens and yell leaders out there.

Ralph Nohkren: The spirit is poor, but I think concentration on a few major games during the season, with all forces, will accomplish more than an effort to secure student enthusiasm for each game of a heavy home schedule.

Baxters Spend Xmas In B. C.

Dr. and Mrs. Baxter spent Christmas of 1937 in a genuine old-fashioned English manner at the Empire hotel in Victoria, B. C. After driving to Seattle, they took a boat to Victoria and on Friday reached the Empire hotel, which is famed for its observance of Christmas. Early Saturday morning, carolers dressed in old-fashioned costume started singing in the corridors and continued all day, with a special program at tea time.

Fifteen hundred people had dinner there Christmas night, many of whom had traveled far to get a taste of England. A long ceremony accompanied the lighting of the Yule log, in which a master of ceremonies, a chef, a jester, and the carolers participated. Then a great bear's head was brought in and carried among the tables so that all could see it.

In spite of the rough water on the return the next morning, the Baxters found their trip most interesting and enjoyable.

Miss Mildred Walker was a guest of Miss Charlotte Eyre last week end. Miss Walker graduated from Willamette last spring and is now teaching at Harrisburg.

Miss Jessie Alice Wood drove to Pasadena, Calif., for the Christmas holidays. Accompanying her were Bill McAdam and Dolly Dingle. They left on December 17 and returned to Salem on January 2.

On Christmas day, at high noon, at the home of the bride's parents, this marriage was made known to the public. The announcement was made in the form of a beautiful wedding ceremony, performed by Father E. S. Hartman of St. Mark's Episcopal church, who had married them previously.

The rooms were attractively decorated with Christmas greens and the ceremony took place before the lighted Christmas tree. Preceding the ceremony, Mrs. Royal Bebb sang the beautiful hymn, "Oh, Perfect Love." Then followed the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, played by Mrs. Lem Feink. The bride, who was given away by her father, was lovely in a dress of transparent blue velvet and carried a dainty bouquet of pink rosebuds and lilies of the valley.

Miss Suzanne Barkley caught the bride's bouquet.

Following the ceremony, refreshments were served, after which the bride sang "Spirit Flower," accompanied by Mrs. Royal Bebb.

NECROLOGY
Ralph Hubert McCullough, 25, of Portland, was either electrocuted or drowned in the flooded basement of his home at 15504 SE Martin street, shortly before 5:00 a. m., December 26, when he went into the basement to remove the pump, which was submerged in 40 inches of water.

His wife heard him scream and shout to her to cut off the electric light switch. She cut off the switch immediately, but her husband was under water when she went into the basement. He evidently had come in contact with a live wire. The deputy coroner was unable to determine whether he was electrocuted or whether he died from drowning after the shock had rendered him unconscious, and knoeked him off his feet. Deputy Sheriff Rexford and two Pepee Inmen, who had difficulty in reaching the McCullough home on account of the high water on SE Foster road, applied artificial respiration.

McCullough's death came just a few hours before he and his wife, formerly Gwen Gallagher, 1936 May Queen at Willamette, were to entertain friends at a party. High light was to be announcement by the couple of their marriage on September 24. Mrs. McCullough is a teacher in the high school at Willamina.

Mr. McCullough received his A. B. degree from Willamette in 1933 and his LL. B. in 1936. He was associated with the law firm of George L. Hauch, Francis I. Smith and C. M. Idleman, with offices in the Yoon building, Portland.

On the campus, Mr. McCullough was outstanding in debate, oratory, extemporaneous speaking, and dramatics. He was a member of Kappa Gamma Rho, Forensic Council, Tau Kappa Alpha, of which he was president, Beta Beta Beta, the track team, "W" club, band, Pi Gamma Mu, Men's Glee club, and Theta Alpha Phi, of which he was president.

Recently Mr. McCullough was elected president of the Portland Willamette Alumni and was to have presided at the Holiday meeting of the association in Portland, December 28. He was instrumental in arranging for the Sunday broadcasts which are being given by the Philharmonic Glee clubs of Willamette university.

Dr. S. C. Stone, who was a Salem physician and druggist for many years, died at the age of 90 years, December 23. Born April 15, 1847, near Charleston, Ill., Stephen Chaucey Stone, in 1863, when he was 16 years old, drove an ox team with covered wagon from Illinois to California. Two years later he came to Oregon with the same team. He taught school in both Washington and Oregon. September 20, 1872, he married Mary Jane Shaw, who survives him.

Dr. Stone was graduated from Willamette university medical school in 1875. He took graduate work in the east, and began his practice of medicine at Brownsville. He located at Howell Prairie, Milton, and Portland, then came to Salem in 1896.

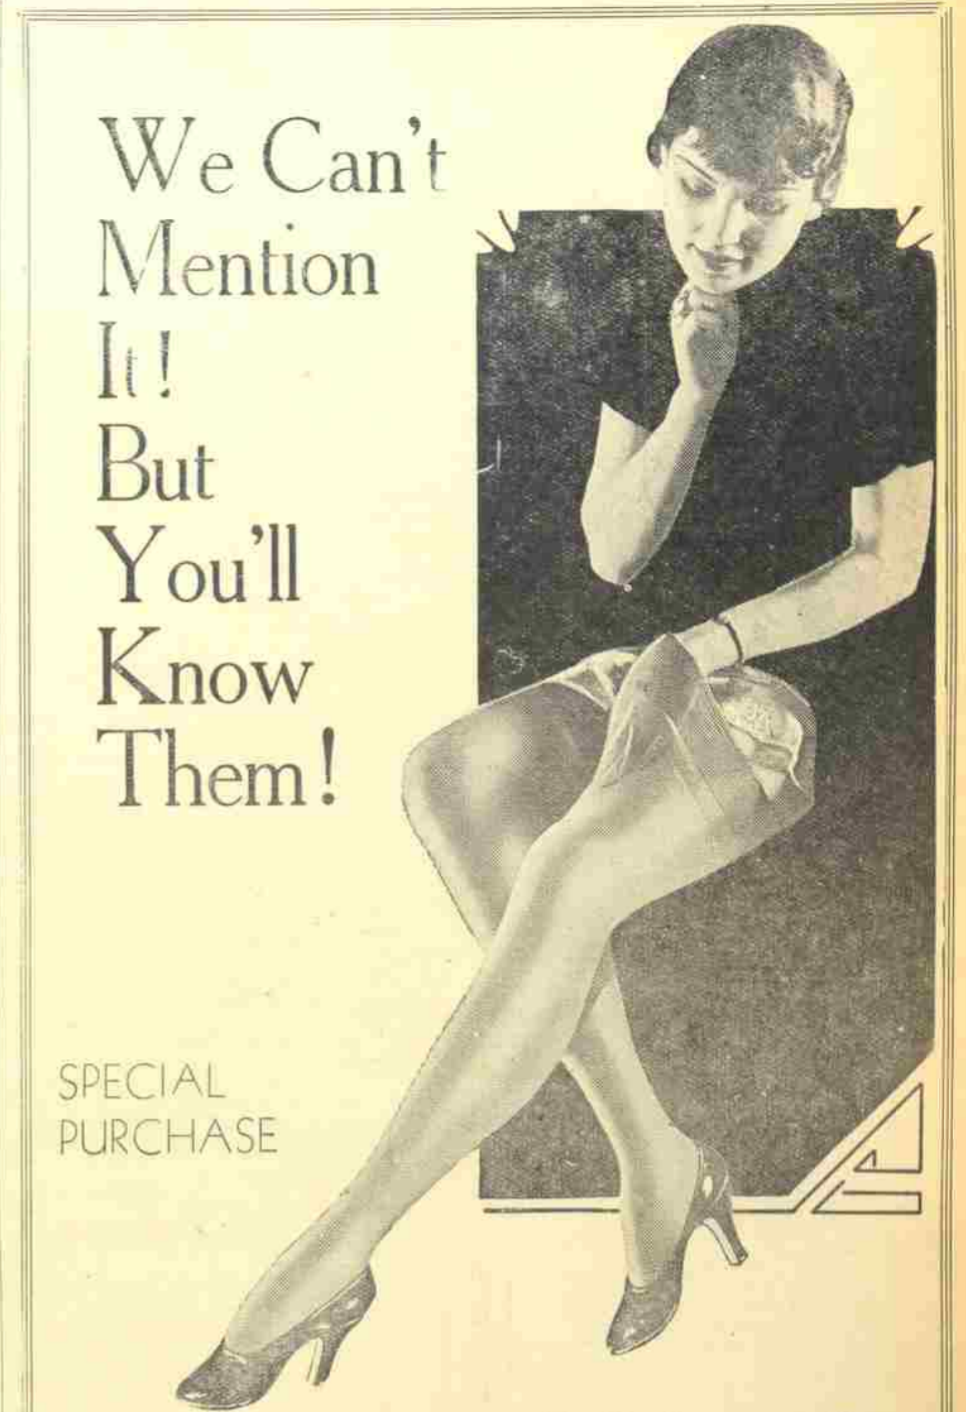

Beside his widow, Dr. Stone is survived by a daughter, Mrs. O. J. Hull of Salem; three grandchildren; one great-grandchild; two brothers, E. H. Stone and J. N. Stone; three sisters, Mrs. Samantha Gerking, Mrs. Arminda Titsworth, and Mrs. Cordelia Maloney. Stephen A. Stone, of Salem, is a nephew.

Opportunity usually knocks only once; but, in the case of the girls' intramural basketball team, there's going to be a double chance.

The first game starts this Saturday, when Alpha Phi's will play the Independents at 9:00 o'clock.

The schedule for later games will be posted on the bulletin board, according to Margaret Macy, who is in charge of the events.

Any loud noises that have been heard every evening from the lower region of the gym are only the soft and gentle voices of enthusiastic volleyball players.

INTRAMURAL SPORTS

INTRAMURAL BASKETBALL Standings (Friday Morning)

Table with 5 columns: Team, W, L, T, P, PF. Includes Alpha Psi, P. E., Stubbies, Fishchokers, Law School, Sigma Tau, Independents, Twisps, Freshmen, Kappa.

It is just as I predicted. The intramural basketball program has begun. Tech (oh, I must be slipping).

The P. E., Alpha Psi, and Stubbies are all standing on the top rung of the ladder with two games each. In a very short time this "standing room only" condition must be altered. It will be interesting to watch results. It is rumored that the Sigma Tau's and Fish Chokers wish to do a bit of idol tumbing. Time will tell.

House of David? The Alpha Psi's are under a dark cloud of suspicion. Are they or are they not hiring a man from the House of David team. His name for your information is Leland Shinn (or). Anyone knowing the past history of this gentleman please communicate with me.

Twisp? Oh, those are the boys from a small town in Washington which answers to that name. Quite by accident they find themselves here in strong enough numbers to form a team to uphold the honor of their native village. These five

W. U. Hoopsters To Meet Pacific Here Tomorrow

After getting off to an excellent start with a victory over Albany, the Northwest conference defending champion Bearcats will meet the strong Pacific university hoopers on the local court tomorrow night at 8:00 in quest of their second consecutive championship.

The Bearcats, with four of the five men who won last year's title, returning to the defense of it, enter the game favorites to defeat the underdog Badgers from Forest Grove.

Seim Leads Pacific Pacific, paced by sophomore, John Seim, will enter the fray with hopes of making the evening a nightmare for the title defenders, and local supporters of the Bearcats will be afforded their first view of the Maplemen in the 1938 season against conference opposition on the local court.

Coach "Spec" Keene's gridmen were out-fitted downed by their nine rivals, 96 to 90, but piled up 17 touchdowns to score 114 points to 77 for rivals.

Dropping decisions only to Oregon State, San Jose State and Fresno State, the Bearcats managed to hold their own in all other departments with the exception of aerial gains.

Bearcats Compile Statistics Rivals completed 62 of 163 passes for gains of 727 yards, as compared to 551 yards for Willamette, compiled on 57 successful tosses in 114 attempts.

The Bearcats, adding 1516 yards from scrimmage to their passing total, wound up with the impressive mark of better than 2 1/2 yards gain in each of their nine tilts.

Rivals, meanwhile, had 1,291 yards from scrimmage through what was undoubtedly the weakest Willamette team in four years. Last year Willamette had 2,672 yards to 1,286 for opponents. In exactly the same number of games.

21 Passes Intercepted Other totals favored Keene's gridmen, who gained 301 yards in intercepting 21 rival tosses, more than doubling opponents' marks in that department.

Rivals were also ahead in punting, kick-offs, returning punts, returning kickoffs, converting points after touchdowns and recovering fumbles.

Chief ground-gaining honors went to the "touchdown twins"—Dick Weisberger and Billy Beard—for the second straight year.

Beard, Weisberger Stars Weisberger, 210-pound Little All-American fullback, carried the pigskin 146 times, averaging 3.79 yards per plunge; punted 16 times, averaging 29.5 yards per kick; completed 12 of 22 passes for 189 yards; averaged 49.43 yards on 23 kick-offs; returned one kick-off 25 yards; ran 12 yards with one intercepted pass, and moved
