WALLULAH

In the East softly spread the colors of the sunrise, tinting the great white smoke mountain. Farther and farther it sent its message of another dawning. Out from the mountain rose the glad tidings which disseminated above the Columbian cascades, the place of Wallulah's resurrection.

Wallulah was the daughter of the mighty Multnomah and of Sea-Flower, a young and lovely woman of Asia, who was rescued from a ship, wrecked on the Columbian bar. Sea-Flower won the Indians' respect and softened their hearts. Multnomah made her his woman and the child, Wallulah, was born to them. Sea-Flower died soon and the great chief tenderly nurtured the strong and graceful girl, Wallulah. Like her mother, she was sad, appealing, and lovely. Even while she loved her father, she gazed across the waters, yearning for—something.

Finally she found it in the love of another than the treacherous war-chief to whom she was betrothed by tribal agreement. Because she was of Asiatic aristocracy, she shuddered at life as the "squaw" of fierce Snoqualmie. Her mother had taught her Indian girl to love the finer things; so when Cecil Gray came to tell the Red Men in the Land of the Setting Sun about the kindness and love of the Great Spirit, her heart received the man with the message and she loved.

Then dark clouds gathered. Cecil rejected his happiness for his Commander and Commission. He left Wallulah in the gloom of inevitable rains of insult, drudgery, and brutality and continued his work among those who sought his scalp. But the Great Spirit took his life from their savage grasp. Yet Wallulah did not suffer long. During those brief moments of happiness stolen from Multnomah's guards in the big, green Oregon forest, the two had been forever united. So when Snoqualmie would rudely snatch the blossom from its Eden, the river of water flowed over the withering petals, even while, to a few, at least, of the savage senses, it left sweet fragrance to prosper.

Into the raging cascades, created by the prophetic fall of the Bridge of the Gods, sank Wallulah, the daughter of Multnomah, chief of the Wallamets, from whom was lost forever the control of the powerful confederacy of the Wauna. For her the clouds became amber and golden when once more she joined her companion in the Happy Hunting Ground. And now through the trees across the campus comes to Willamette with each new dawn, in purple, silver, or amber and gold, that which bring with it the spirit of Wallulah.

CAMPUS FROM KIMBALL

Retrospect and Prospect

It is always a pleasure to witness worthy growth and development; it is sheer joy to have some part in that achievement. The present student body has witnessed and shared an unusual forward movement in the University. In the new Lausanne Hall we have a real dormitory; the chapel and library are adequate and in process of becoming still more beautiful and serviceable. There have been other less striking material improvements and the sum of them contributes much to the facilities of the institution. The addition of four professors to the faculty is a noteworthy advance which permits a broader curriculum and better instruction. The student body continues to increase each year about ten per cent, a wholesome and assimilable growth; and the quality is worthy of all praise. In athletics, forensics, music and other student activities there have been laudable achievements. The assurance of a much greater endowment soon to be realized is a present asset to the courage which one always needs.

What the future holds, no one can say; but the future largely grows out of the past and one has many reasons for expecting the University to keep pace with it, and even be in advance of the best institutions for higher learning. Its roots are deep in the soil of faith and labor; its spirit is one of expectation and determined endeavor. We look for the next few years to bring us a new gymnasium and other buildings; a productive endowment of two millions, a faculty of seventy-five and an enrollment approaching a thousand. In the midst of it all, Willamette will keep faith; religion will guide and inspire, giving to the students the distinctive quality which marks a man who is developed in all his nature, lacking nothing.

Tribute

To these men of high principle and unselfish devotion we wish to express our appreciation.

We acknowledge our obligation to them for the many privileges that have been ours during the past eventful year. We are indebted to them for the careful and intelligent guidance which has brought to us added facilities. Their gifts to the University have multiplied themselves in the lives of the students.

An Appreciation

In its essence Willamette is Christian. The big, stimulating something that grows from Christianity in action makes Willamette spirit. This spirit we cannot define, but we can tell from whence it issues. Although the student-body with its ideals makes an institution, somewhere must flow an undercurrent which draws particular students into a particular stream, and there must be an element within it which combines with the material drawn to make it different and to murmur to the world, "This is of Willamette." The faculty, changing somewhat with each of seventy-six years, yet constant in purpose, has thus made our Alma Mater. We cherish the memory of those who have served and in the strength of counsel and inspiration from those who are now here, we grow. In the hush of chapel hour, in the vitality of class periods, in the courtesy of conversation, and in life where words and deeds are one, we rejoice in the bigness of character which has brought these men and women to Willamette and which keeps them here to give what the world needs most—the wisdom whose source is the fear of God. So as students, we wish to express to the Faculty our appreciation for that great thing which they are giving to us, to Willamette, and to the world.

CLASSES

The Class of '24

The Seniors may be dignified, the Juniors may be, too;
The Sophomores may be peppy, but in old Willamette U,
Should you ask for my opinion, this is all I have to say,
I's glad that I'm a Freshman for I've three more years to stay.

That's the way the members of the class of '24 feel about Willamette, though perhaps we haven't shown it in the usual way. We are a quiet class, an original type. Though we have not made ourselves conspicuous in the way that other classes have, it must be remembered that a quiet fire burns the hottest, a hidden coal will some day blaze forth into a brilliant flame, an ugly duckling will grow into a swan.

We are glad that we are numbered '24, we are glad that we are a class in Willamette; and, as the days fly by, and it is almost time for us to be Freshmen no longer, but only good examples for a group of people called '25ers, we hope that our accomplishments and Willamette spirited deeds may be more frequent, that our successes may be greater, and that we may always be a class worthy of Willamette.

"Worthy of Willamette," 'tis a motto worth our while:
Let's be worthy in our pleasures, do our lessons with a smile,
Worthy in our daily living, worthy of our friends, and more,
Let's be worthy of Willamette as the class of '24.

SOPHOMORE

The Class of '23

The class of 1923 may most appropriately be called the iconoclast. Never has there been a class that has upset more traditions during the first half of its career than we. Many have tried, but when, we ask, has another class earned for itself the editorial in the Collegian such as we received last fall? Many a freshman class has objected to the custom of wearing their insignia of rank on the Sabbath day, but it remained for the Class of '23 to abolish the custom. Without stopping to give the details of this momentous occasion, let us proceed to tell some of the other things these Sophomores have done.

We might sing our own praises indefinitely, were we that kind. We might tell of our decisive victory in the bag rush this year, of the election of a Sophomore as football captain. (Here were two more traditions completely smashed.) But we must mention the fact that '23ers formed practically the backbone of the football eleven. And almost every member of the girls basketball team was a Sophomore. A Sophomore also won the interclass oratorical contest, and members of the same class were found on both the girls' and boys' debating teams. Nor must we neglect to mention that the class of '23 sang its way to victory in the Freshman Glee, thereby getting its numerals engraved on the silver clasp that adorns the pennant.

But seriously, we should like to take this opportunity to admit that perhaps we may have been a little "cocky" at times. But would you have us any different? Better be too up-an-coming, is our belief, than to err in the other direction. We realize that there is the possibility of overdoing this idea, and if we have done so, we regret it.

The Class of '22

The class of 1922 entered W. U. with their usual modest demeanor, midst the first organization of the Army Training Corps. After doing their duty in the bag rush and thus securing the right to embellish the grand stand with their numerals, these growing warriors and maidens became loyal supporters of the old school. They entered in all activities with true spirit and unselfishness.

At the opening of the second year, the school welcomed them back as happy Sophomores, now experienced in the art of college life and learning. Notwithstanding the fact that they lost in basketball, this alert class retaliated in Freshman Glee by winning first place with "Fight 'em Bearcats," thus again asserting their superior prowess. Spring days and picnics passed all too quickly, and these worthy classmates were confronted with the fact that they were Juniors, and with that came the responsibility of upperclassmen.

This year the class behind this book promptly laid aside the petty interclass differences common to the first two years, and worked for a greater and better Willamette. Seven varsity letters in football and four in basketball, with more to be added in baseball, is a notable achievement for a year of athletic activity, while in forensics the Junior representation is equally as heavy. Among the last accomplishments of the year must be listed a Junior Week-End that included one of the most successful of all Junior plays, and a daring departure from the beaten path, in the form of a Junior carnival.

And now "another shift of scene" and the class of '22 will enter upon the final chapter in its undergraduate experience.

BAILEY, LESLIE B. - - - Clatskanie
 "He was a scholar, a ripe and good one."

A venturesome sort of youth who dared to enter the field of connubial responsibility, but seems not to be weighted down with the cares of his position. He is a very good student. Otherwise we know nothing against him.

BARNES, RALPH W. - - - Salem
 "All the great men are dying off and I don't feel very well myself."

If there is anything going on about the campus that looks like work Ralph Waldo is always among those present. His boundless enthusiasm finds vent in many forms of college activity, and his persistency is a ruling quality, both on the football field and at Twenty-third street.

COOLEY, RUTH - - - - - Salem
 "The most delightful pleasures play without variety."

A steadfast friend of the class of twenty-two. We recognize Ruth by her smiling face and Buster Brown collars, although if Lelia doesn't happen to be there we may look twice to see if it is really Ruth.

BROWN, MILDRED K. - Granger, Wash.
 "Merry as the day is long."

"Pip" is predestined to command, and even now succeeds well as an amateur. She ranks exceptionally high in percentage of energy per cubic centimeter, and for this reason is always doing something, or somebody.

BOHLE, JAMES - - - - - Falls City
 "The important business of his life is love."

This young gentleman isn't quite as light-headed as he looks, although he will himself admit that he's a trifle "Dotty." His sunny disposition argues well for the "happy ever after" part of the last chapter.

BUSCH, RUTH Salem
 "Cheerfulness and good will make labor light."

A native of Cherry City, which probably accounts for her cheery disposition. A rare compound of frolic and fun. Her studies do not worry her. Why should they?

COULTER, JAY D., Amity
 "Happy am I, from care I am free,
 Why aren't they all contented like me?"

Jay has a goodly sort of wit and wisdom and a countenance with a built-in smile. No doubt these qualities are purposely included when it was decided to make him a barrister.

BLATCHFORD, LORLEI, Salem
 "She can sing the savageness out of a bear (cat)."

Forensic ability, intellectual preeminence, an exceptional voice, and a coquettish smile! Ye gods, what have we here? But those who know her will swear that the qualities are gracefully and graciously combined.

BUCKNER, DOROTHY, Salem
 "The world means something to the capable."

Dorothy is startlingly individual. She is original enough to reverse the usual type of femininity, having plenty to say, but few words. A breathless world awaits the commencement of her career.

CAMPBELL, GLEN W. Emmett, Idaho
 "Love is blind, and lovers cannot see the pretty follies that they themselves commit."

Glen has a speaking acquaintance with the librarian, with whom he qualifies as first assistant flunkie and plenipotentiary extraordinary. His college experience should yield great profundity of intellect. Wells are deep subjects.

DOUGHTON, ARDYS L. - - - Lebanon
 "Everyone has faults. Good nature is hers."

A modest, demure, young maiden who has not a care in the world, or elsewhere. A valuable set of qualities, for sunny dispositions are appreciated in a rainy climate. Ardys also makes an ideal proctor at the Hall. Reference, any underclassman.

CURTIS, RALPH C. - - - Camas, Wash.
 "Madam, I go with all convenient speed."

But deigns not to accelerate that speed for anybody. "Curt" left us during the first semester to show some people in Bend how to run a newspaper. We expected him back when he had taught them all he knew, but those two days were up five months ago.

FANNING, IRMA E. - - - - - Amity
 "I am one that had rather go with sir priest than with sir knight."

A happy little lassie who has a deep ambition for life. As "Auntie" in the Junior play she successfully carried through a part that was not altogether in harmony with her retiring nature.

GILBERT, ELSIE - - - - - Salem
 "She finds a joy in living."

Elsie's capabilities are exemplified in the way she has recently taken the Rein(s) in hand for a drive along life's pathway. Grades averaging more than one hundred per cent have not yet been sanctioned by the faculty, so she is forced to major in E's.

GILLETTE, CLARENCE J. - Woodburn
 "A valiant and most expert gentleman."

"Uneasy lies the head that wears a crown." There are kings and kings, but was there ever a sovereign like "Jeter?" He can boast a duel personality, he is subject to a siren princess, yet he rules his yelling subjects with an iron hand.

DAY, LESTER S. - - - Bremerton, Wash.

"In mine eyes she is the sweetest lady that I ever looked on."

"Les" accepts his responsibilities with such a grave air that one has to become intimately acquainted with him to realize how serious he isn't. He got serious with one of his intimate acquaintances, however, and is now a pillar to the Y. W. C. A.

GRAGG, FRANCES V. - - - Salem

"I cannot hide what I am; I must be sad when I have cause and smile at no man's jests,

And laugh when I am merry."

But Frances is usually merry and seldom has need for the first mood. She majors in Public Speaking, French, and anything that's exciting.

DONEY, HUGH A. - - - Salem

"If he is not in love with some woman there is no believing in old signs."

Hugh wields a wicked racket, as well as being able to kick up a considerable fuss over on Court street. Possesses much ability, but is very modest about applying it, and has a sense of humor that runs strongly toward practical joking.

DIMICK, RAMON E. - - - Aurora

"What would this world be if my girl would be not in it?"

Squint is just as irresistible as he is remarkable, and as athletic as he is cute. He has a wealth of interest and ability to put behind most any kind of a proposition, which probably explains his success with the Palmer method.

CORNER, MARIE - - - Salem

"The heart to conceive, the understanding to direct, or the hand to execute."

After Marie had tried out schools in the East an' everywhere she finally settled down at Willamette, where her maidenly presence has exerted an influence all out of proportion to her diminutive stature. She is one of the "sunniest" and most capable workers on the campus.

ISHAM, VIVIAN - - - Grants Pass
 "So shines a good deed in a naughty world."

Full of pep, ambitions and efficiency. Her energy and efficiency find outlet through her official managerial duties, while her ambitions include a conquest of the heathen, with perhaps sufficient time to capture one Christian.

KELSO, WALDO E. - - - Yakima, Wash.
 "Here's to your eyes and mine.
 Here's to my lips and thine.
 Our eyes have met,
 Our lips not yet.
 Here's hoping."

Waldo was waylaid, shot, and taken prisoner last winter by a wiley rookess, and now serves time singing under a Hall window and paying fines.

LINN, MARION C. - - - Silverton
 "The fair, he chaste, the unexpressive she."

An exceptionally modest lassie who came to us last year, from Montana, we believe. We doubt not that wonderful capabilities are hidden beneath her mountain solitude. She will giggle when with proper girls, 'tis said.

LEGG, MARGARET - - - Salem
 "He who has an art has everywhere a part."

This dark haired little maiden has rare artistic ability which she willingly uses for our benefit. A lady much in demand for stunts in which cleverness is needed.

McKITTRICK, BRYAN, Wenatchee, Wash.
 "I must become a borrower of the night for an hour or twain."

He has an athletic record that is almost as well known as his chuckle. "Mac" likes all the girls but doesn't care about specializing. He quotes poetry once in a while on moonlight nights.

LEDBETTER RUBY F. - - - La Grande
 "Man is a giddy thing, and this is my conclusion."

A generous warm-hearted girl who has more pep than her victims suspect. She often goes for tramps, but no one has seen her catch one as yet. A littly too jolly to be a history shark, but gets by better than the most of us.

HARRA, GARNET - - - - - Salem
 "His cogitative faculties immersed
 In cogibundity of cogitation."

"Gug" doesn't allow any basketball rules to interfere with his pleasure in the game, and although he has spoiled whole afternoons for his opponents, he is naturally inoffensive. He takes things easy and breaks only two or three co-ed rules at a time.

CLARKE, MILDRED - - - - - Salem
 "There's more true happiness in the folly of love than in all the wisdom of philosophy."

From our observations of the Junior-Senior banquet we have no hesitancy in predicting an efficient commissary department for a certain lucky young gentleman. Mildred doesn't like to be contradicted in class meeting. We don't know what kind of a prediction to make out of that.

COLLINS, GRACE E. - - - - - Portland
 "Her graceful wit brought happiness to all."

The wonder about Grace is how she can maintain a veil of modesty thick enough to hide such a complex personality. The most dependable and yet the most unpredictable of mortals. Has even been known to fare forth on the darkened highways a la biciclette.

MOODHE, NOBLE S. - - - - - Spokane, Wash.
 "Cheerful at morn he wakes from short repose,

Breathes the keen air and carols as he goes."

"Nibs" doesn't stutter exactly, he just has kind of a hard time starting his words out. But there is no hesitation in the way he starts a tennis ball, as several well-known colleges hereabouts can testify. He is taking advanced work under the Deane in the department of fussology.

McEuen, HARRY - Coeur d'Alene, Idaho
"The time is out of joint; Oh cursed spite!
That I was ever born to set it right."

"Mac" once served a term as recording angel. That's the way he learned all his history. He probably got his musical ability there too, being just next door to the celestial booth where they sold wings and harps to the newcomers. He has enough E's to pave State street from High to 12th.

Minton, MARJORIE - - - - Salem
"Life again knocked laughing at the door."

A merry, nimble, stirring spirit, not too slow and not too fast. In stunts she can display her inherent ability from "tripping the light fantastic" to impersonating Peck's Bad Boy. This ability was further exemplified in the Junior play.

McLain, HARVEY - - - - Scio
"If mathematics be the food of life, feed on."

Long of limb and broad of accent. Harvey has a deliberative way of approaching a thing, and a still more deliberative way of letting go of it after he gets it. He is probably one of the toughest propositions Dan Cupid ever came up against.

Drake, HAROLD P. - - - - Drain
"There is no wisdom like frankness."

Is always calm and collected, except when he is laughing. And whether he is calm or laughing he is always collecting, being an ad man for one of Salem's daily papers. He has lots to do but doesn't work very hard.

Ruby, LEISLA N. - - - - Portland
"Not that I love study less, but that I love him more."

Famous violinist from the Rose City, where, it is said, she takes an Earnest view of life—a very different viewpoint from the one she takes here. She is exceptionally fond of her classes, and never misses them if there is no place else to go.

LYMAN, HAROLD D. - - - Gresham

"Of manners gentle, of affections mild;
In looks a man, in ways a child."

Belongs to the "look before you leap" variety, but spends most of his time looking, except when he gets into a track suit. He is a bashful appearing young swain, but nevertheless he seems to be able to step as well as to jump.

CLUTTER, LELIA - - - Salem

"She is not blest by accident or guess,
True wisdom is her price of happiness."

One of Professor Peck's blossoming young prodigies. When not alone Lelia is with friend Ruth, and she spends very little time in solitude. One of the rare sort who believe that nothing should be said when there is nothing to say.

HUSTON, F. EDWARD - - - Canby

"Now by two-headed Janus,
Nature hath framed strange fellows in her time."

Wastes no breath in idle words, nor smiles for idle purposes. The gloomy cast of countenance he wears most of the time does not reflect a morbid state of mind. Possesses the hardest head in the doughnut league, and is a valuable man for class scraps.

NICKEL, JACOB A. - - - Dallas

"Well, if my wind were but long enough to say my prayers, I would repent."

"Jit" was born witty, and when he's around the rest of us have wit thrust upon us. Two qualities of a great orator are force and logic. "Jit" is half great—he has force. A very loyal and efficient Junior wherever the Herculean muscle is required.

McWILLIAMS, FLORA - - - Salem

"Deep sighted in intelligence."

A tranquil personality below which rests a fund of good will and neighborliness. We don't know what she contemplates in life, but there must be some deep purpose to keep her so closely applied to the torch of learning.

ROBISON, RUTH - - - - - Amity

"Tranquility is the first duty of a citizen."

Has a sort of high disdain for the chatter enjoyed by ordinary mortals. Her Amazonian proclivities find a fertile field in the girls' basketball team.

RICKLI, BENJ. E. - Spring Garden, Cal.

"The honest tale speeds best being plainly told."

A prince of a man in every sense of the word. With May Day festivities, Glee Club trips, and class duties he has built himself an edifice upon which he may mount into the lime light. Applause doesn't bother him.

ROBERTS, EVA - - - - - Cove

"Plays such fantastic tricks before high heaven,

As make the angels weep."

Has too many "previous engagements" to give widespread satisfaction. But this is an age of specialization, the sages say, who urge intensive cultivation of a particular bent. Has a generous sprinkling of "The Old Nick" in her make-up, with enough musical ability to offset it.

SHANAFELT, EMMA A. - - - - - Salem

"Forever and a Day."

Her musical and executive abilities and general all around winsomeness would be too great a burden for an ordinary youngster. She carries a great many responsibilities on her young shoulders and can do most anything. We wouldn't want her to do Les.

REHBOCK, RALPH H. - Sunnyside, Wash.

"If he were as wise as he looks,

He'd fill the whole world with readable books."

If success depended upon noise, Ralph wouldn't even get to the preliminaries. But if there is no steam for the whistle there must be more for the drivers. He is persistent enough to collect money from the most inveterate procrastinator.

STANFORD, MABLE - Cashmere, Wash.

"Patience is a necessary ingredient of genius."

Mable isn't often seen running about the halls in pursuit of knowledge, but she captures her share of it anyway. She can convince you that it is possible to be jolly and yet be dignified. An all around musician, too.

POLLOCK, DEAN - - Gooding, Idaho

"Though angels should write,
Still 'tis devils must print."

The Editor.

HAWLEY, EDITH N. - - Woodburn

"I have no other but a woman's reason."

Cheerful and conscientious. Won't turn down a job just because it is knotty. The harder they are the better she likes 'em. Going to college is serious business with her, although she can take time out to enjoy a joke occasionally.

RUGGLESS, LAURA E., Vancouver, Wash.

"I wish mine eyes would themselves shut up my thoughts."

Eyes that sparkle with mischief, mingled with friendliness, but we are sure there are some things they won't tell—to us. She studies Spanish—probably on account of the Dons she meets there.

RAREY, HARRY E. - Spokane, Wash.

"Ambition is no cure for love."

Harry posed for the poet who wrote, "They accomplish much who diligently toil." He's the kind of man who does things, nor does he stand long on the order of his doing. Thinks he's not susceptible, and he isn't, except in the spring and a few other seasons of the year. Wallulah manager.

TUCKER, LUCILLE I. - - - Salem

"A beam in the darkness.
Let it grow."

A member of the debating team that trounced several of the northwestern colleges, and heroine in the Junior play. Studies expression, but we like her natural one the best. Some one said she would make a good angel. No doubt she will try out for that position some day.

SHOTWELL, CECIL L., Los Angeles, Cal.

"What judgment shall I dread, doing no wrong?"

Altitude records were not being tried for when "Shotty" was built. What a cute baby he must have been! Made a hit once, but we don't think he'll do it again. Fanning out most of the time now, you know.

TAYLOR, RUTH H. - Sunnyside, Wash.

"Good nature and good sense must ever join."

Knows Latin well enough to have studied it ever since the Dead Sea took sick, but her liking for a dead language does not necessarily indicate anything with reference to her temperament. Lays aside her dignity outside the classroom.

MOCROFT, ETHEL I. - Forest Grove

"Company, villainous company, hath been the spoil of me."

A very retiring sort, but having attained her objective, she can afford to retire. Bears a physiognomy that is usually shrouded in demure thoughtfulness, but upon sufficient inducement will respond to other moods. Selected red as her favorite color.

SHERWOOD, PAUL J. - - - Salem

"A faithful and honorable man,
Disdaining every sordid act and mean."

Paul is a good man for most any kind of a task, from ushering an electric current out of its way to cook a May morning breakfast, to painting numerals on the grand stand. Always ready and always capable. Takes his exercise on the gridiron.

TYLER, GRACE M. - - - - Salem
 "To know her was to appreciate her."

A dark eyed friendly lass who can combine advice with cheer. A soul which dwells apart somewhat, but corners enough E's to make it worth while. Her knowledge comes of industry, and of learning well retained.

POWER, KENNETH - - - - Salem
 "Nothing doing for me.

Love and science cannot agree."

"Ken" wins no laurels as a fusser, but features in athletics and collegian management. His flow of words enables him to crack a good one occasionally. Likes feeds, spreads, lunches, banquets, handouts, and is very fond of meals.

WISE, RUTH - - - - Granger, Wash.
 "Wise, oh wondrous Wise."

If Ruth were depended upon to sing her own praises there would be no eulogies for her, although we know she rates them. We know further that she is a good sport, and that she has one of those troublesome things called an artistic temperament.

SACKETT, VERNOR M. - - - - Sheridan
 "The deed I intend is great, but what it is, I know not."

"Big Chub" is a good reliable personage, and has more talents than he cares to develop. He owns a whole flock of cameras that won't eat anything but embarrassing situations. Sings a deep "sonorous" bass, sells pictures, trades kodaks, and goes to school in his spare time.

WILSON, GLADYS L. - - - - Salem
 "Perhaps it may turn out a song.

Perhaps turn out a sermon."

Both musically and studiously inclined, and disposed to take either with a smile. Is also inclined to bestow a few smiles in other directions. Generally looking for some place to be of service.

SACKETT, SHELDON F. - - Sheridan
 "As slippery as an eel in love."

But seems to have taken a recent notion to quit slipping and stick a while. "Chub" is the fluent orator of the debating team and affluent assistant manager of the Collegian. He owns a set of dimples that make smiles worth while.

EARTHOLMEW GLADYS I. - - Salem
 "Thy modesty is a candle to thy merit."

Here's to one accomplished in the art of making friends, and better still, keeping them. Gentle of speech and mild of manner, public spirited and thoroughly capable. She is very conscientious, but not an objector.

SCHOLL, F. WILLIAM - - - Foster
 "Conquering difficulties by daring to attempt them."

Has a head full of facts, and will explain every one of them to you if you stick around long enough. He can get lots of enjoyment out of life if there happens to be a library about. The dead past is his specialty.

VINSON, ALMA RHORER - Portland
 "A perfect woman, nobly planned,
 To warm, to comfort, and command."

Boss of the family. The responsibilities of a home have not dampened her studious ardor, nor have they dimmed the smile of the maid of former days. Loyal to all that is Willamette.

WEBB, FLOYD T. - - - - Salem
 "Every man has his own style like his own nose."

This man's particular style is knowing a little something about most anything that happens to come up, and lacking no words to elucidate thereupon. Smiles on the world and expects the world to smile back.

WAPATO, PAUL G. - Wenatchee, Wash.

"A mighty man of valor."

"Wap" is the Heap Big Chief of the grid-iron and a basketball star of the first magnitude. He also has the declamatory instinct that distinguished his fathers in the pow-wow, which has enabled him to win many oratorical honors.

WARNER, LOIS D. - Wenatchee, Wash.

"None know thee but to love thee,
None named thee but to praise."

Lois has deprived us of the first two years of her college experience, but her winning personality is now as much a part of the Junior class as though it had always been there. Looks at life seriously but not soberly.

WARREN, ALBERT W. - - Nehalem

"'Tis Irish I be and proud of it."

Stayed away the first semester, believing that half a loaf was better than no vacation. Brought with him from Erin a variety of homespun wit that agrees with our idea of an Irishman. Has musical ability, but doesn't let it worry him much.

NINETEEN TWENTY-TWO WALL OF ART

NINETEEN TWENTY TWO OF WALKS GREAT

SENIOR

The Class of '21

Entering the campus and its ways in the manner usually employed by rooks, about eighty Freshmen, in the fall of 1917, organized themselves into the Class of '21, and dispatched in a masterly fashion their first task-at-hand by subduing a number of over-attentive Sophomores. Having fixed a purple-and-gold numeral upon the grand stand by-right-of-bag-rush, these ambitious youngsters proceeded to initiate the Freshman gift-walk habit. Thereafter they continued in the way they had begun, taking the interclass basketball series and furnishing a large share of the brains and brawn for all athletic events and all social projects.

That immense enthusiasm garnered in the Freshman year enabled these students as Sophomores to ride easily over the difficulties of an S. A. T. C. term and to reunite themselves under a spirit which for a second time carried away the honors in interclass basketball. It was that spring that these young Sophomores, wandering away from the fold at chapel time in order to practice their song, won not only the glee pennant, but the name "Blacksheep," and of both honors were equally proud.

The opening of the Junior year saw this class not losing, but gaining in strength, as the result of the return of a number of its own service men and the affiliation of some who had gone out from other classes. This Junior class did well. It put on a May Day without a Junior Prom; it staged a play; it flunked at Silver Creek Falls; it put out a Wallulah that paid for itself; it banqueted the Seniors; but amidst all these usual activities, it took time to win the interclass rivalry cup for the year 1919-20.

Last fall the members of this class took the name of Seniors. They have provided themselves with caps and gowns and with a nominal amount of dignity, all of which may be assumed in times of need. In the pages of this book will be found the concluding chapters of the undergraduate history of the Class of '21.

Kimball School of Theology

Kimball School of Theology, while situated on the campus of Willamette University, is not a department of the University, but is a distinct school, with its own separate Board of Trustees and Faculty. It is related officially not only to the Oregon Conference, but also to the Portland Area and to three Conferences of the Helena Area, the Idaho, Montana and North Montana.

The friendliest spirit prevails between the Kimball School and Willamette University. Students of either institution are offered a free exchange of courses. A goodly number of Willamette students are taking special courses in Religious Education, Biblical Interpretation and kindred subjects at Kimball, while many Kimball students are taking special courses at Willamette.

Kimball has been passing through the most trying year in its history. The sudden death of Dr. Talbott in October was not only a great shock to all the friends of the school, but it was a serious embarrassment to the administration of the institution. However, in the midst of deepest gloom there were marked evidences that a kindly Providence was directing the affairs of the school. Within a few weeks after the death of Dr. Talbott a new leader was secured in the person of Rev. E. C. Hickman, who had been up to the first of January, the pastor of Wilbur Church, in Portland. Dr. Hickman comes to his task with wide experience in the administrative affairs of the general church. Prior to his successful pastorate in Portland, he was director of publicity of the Educational Jubilee, under Dr. Hencher. During these campaigns some $35,000,000.00 were added to the resources of the Methodist educational institutions of the country. This experience qualifies the new President in a peculiar way to inaugurate and carry forward a successful financial program for the school. At the beginning of the Centenary movement, Dr. Hickman was made the director of Field Organization. In this capacity he traveled widely and had opportunity for studying Methodism first hand. He thus brings to the school wide experience and an intimate knowledge of Methodism both ecclesiastical and scholastic.

Shortly after the new president had taken up the reins at Kimball, there was another serious break in the administrative affairs of the school, caused by the sudden and untimely death of Dr. Sherwood. Again all hearts were deeply stirred, as Dr. Sherwood was not only a remarkable scholar and fine teacher, but a brother beloved.

At first it appeared impossible, in the midst of the school year, to secure a successor to this good man, but again there were marked evidences of Providential leading. A scholar fully prepared and equipped was ready for the task, Dr. J. D. McCormick, a graduate of Hamline University, having degrees of A.B., A.M., and D.D., from Hamline, and B.D. from Drew Theological Seminary, was at work in the school within a month after Dr. Sherwood's death. Dr. McCormick had been a successful pastor in Minnesota, and for the past seven years been president of Parker College, at Winnebago. His practical pastoral service, together with his unusual success in school administration, all undergirded by fine scholastic training and ability, fit him admirably for the present task.

Kimball School is indeed entering upon a new day. Prof. W. H. Hertzog has been retained as a full time member of the Faculty for the next year. He is a graduate of Baker University and of Drew Theological Seminary, having pursued special post-graduate work in Columbia University. Under his direction will be developed a strong program for the training of rural leaders. Not only in classroom work, but in supervision of field work, will he give inspiration and direction to all student pastors. The Board of Trustees have authorized the addition of still another member to the Faculty.

Dr. Hammond, who has given such effective service to the school for the past ten years, has been re-elected by the Trustees. He remains as the one connecting link between the old and the new.

Thus in one year the Faculty will be doubled in number and many new and attractive courses will be offered. Prospects are very bright for a largely increased attendance. The standard of entrance has been raised. Hereafter only High School or college graduates will be admitted to the regular courses. All hail the new day for Kimball School of Theology.

BEARCATS

Willamette Athletic Boosters' Club

Although Willamette's athletic achievements have always been a source of pride to the people of Salem, their interest in the Bearcats has increased markedly since Willamette's successful entrance into the Northwest Conference. As a result of this enthusiasm, there has arisen the Willamette Athletic Boosters' Club, an organization which promises much in fulfilling the athletic possibilities of the school.

"Every sport fan in Salem and vicinity a member," is the inspiring slogan which is before the sanguine membership committee of the new club.

The purpose of the organization is detailed in the initial announcement of Dr. H. H. Olinger, president, who says in part:

"The club was organized to support and promote athletics at Willamette University. Willamette as a non-conference college has made an enviable record even with but meagre support from the people of Salem; but now they have tackled something bigger and have got to have the whole-hearted support of the community.

"When Willamette entered the conference, she assumed, not only the responsibility of developing better teams, but also a financial responsibility many times as great as was formerly carried. The gate receipts here must be sufficient to cover these expenses and this will require the unanimous support of the athletic fans of the community.

To accommodate these teams and the spectators who want to see the contests, better athletic equipment, better playing fields and floors and better seating facilities are necessary. But the students lack the finances to meet these incidental, though necessary expenses, and it is here that the Willamette Athletic Boosters' Club will function."

Dr. Olinger concludes his explanation with this significant and prophetic remark, "The club means athletics of the highest grade for Salem."

The organization of this progressive club presages a new era in the athletic life of Old Willamette and is a tangible evidence of that development which is making for a greater Willamette, true to the lofty ideals of the past but vastly more efficient in realizing them. With the assistance of these enthusiastic boosters the speedy erection of the new gymnasium is assured.

The officers of the organization are: Dr. H. H. Olinger, president; George Griffith, vice-president; Harry Crain, secretary; Harry Wenderoth, treasurer.

The New Gymnasium

COACH MATHEWS

With the enthusiastic acceptance on the part of the Student Body of a fifty thousand dollar fund as the goal for the "New Gymnasium for Willamette" movement, the much needed addition to the campus was assured. It is to the initiative and the faith of Coach R. L. Mathews that the credit for the conception of this movement is due. That his faith in the students was justified, is demonstrated by their pledging nearly one hundred per cent strong to the extent of ten dollars or more apiece as the initial step in the drive.

Duplication of the student's pledges from the alumni has been assured from many sources and sufficient subscriptions from outside sources are expected to match the total sum raised in that way. If necessary, sufficient money can be borrowed to allow the construction to begin early next year. The committee working under Coach

Mathews on the drive consists of Rein Jackson, Kenneth Powers, Athill Irvine, Waldo Zeller and Fred Radspinner.

As tentatively planned, the structure will be modeled after that of the West Virginia Wesleyan University, and will contain all the features of a modern gymnasium, including pool facilities.

Not only will a new gymnasium greatly assist Willamette in athletics, but it will primarily enable an effective physical educational department to be carried on for the first time.

VERN BAIN
Athletic Manager

Inasmuch as the athletic department demands a great proportion of the student body funds, the Associated Student Body, through a recent revision in the constitution, made the athletic manager a member of the executive committee. This not only gives the department a proper representation in the government of the student body, but enables the committee more efficiently to work out its yearly budget.

RUSSEL RAREY Left Half

When it is said of a man that he has done his best, no higher compliment can be paid him, but when a man will do all he can and then do just that much more, he has earned the glory of being famous. Such a man is "Russ." As captain of the Varsity, he led them through a remarkably successful year, playing a great game and setting an example of good, clean football that any aspiring youth might do well to follow. At left half, he was in a position to direct the team's line of play and also to display his own ability, which he always did to good advantage. He was good for his yardage and on defense never failed in breaking up the opposition's effort to gain ground.

WALDO ZELLER Right Half

This young man from out of the North has shown the world how to play football. He is beyond a doubt the shiftiest fat man who has worn the moleskin in this section for a long time. It has for the past two seasons been a custom with the gridiron enemies of Willamette to have two men detailed to watch "Fat," one to say "Here he comes," and the other to say "there he goes." He came to the school unheard of and in two years under the tutelage of Coach Mathews has developed into a star. Every one is so used to seeing Willamette make her yardage when Zeller carries the ball, that his real worth is hardly fully appreciated. However, his team mates have shown their appreciation of his ability by electing him captain of next year's Varsity, which assures us of another successful season.

NINETEEN TWENTY TWO WALTHAM

PAUL WAPATO Full
 "Give it to 'Wap'" has been the cry from the stands when a few yards were needed. This huge aboriginee has been the mainstay of the Varsity for so long that it is going to be hard to get used to being without him. No man who has not been in the school and had his faith placed in "Wap," can ever know his value and what his presence in a contest means.

LOREN BASLER Center
 It has been said that a good singer is not a success as a football player. The question arises then, how did "Baz" ever get into the Glee Club? "Baz" is a three year letter man and has played at tackle and center, and can fill either equally well. From both these positions his charges through the line have taken the fight out of many an enemy.

RALPH BARNES End
 If real stubbornness counts, Ralph wins. Eighty-eight bulldogs in as many fights cannot produce a greater display of tenacity than Barnes does in one grid battle. He has never been known to give up and argues in just the way he plays. This trait, with his lengthy proportions and solid bulk goes toward wrecking the best of interference.

VERNE BAIN Center
 Bain is rather light in the center of the line, but makes up for all he lacks in weight by lightening-like speed and barrels of fight. Opposing linesmen have been known to forget the game entirely to stop and wonder how "Beany" got through them and broke up a play. He passes nicely on offense and fills his hole like a mountain on defense.

HARRY RAREEY - - - - - Tackle

Harry did not get into many games this season owing to injuries sustained in practice. In the few games in which we were fortunate enough to have his services, he loomed up like a cyclone. He has the misfortune of being a brother of the captain and therefore loses credit for a great many performances by being mistaken for Russ. He charges hard and hits 'em low.

BRUCE WHITE - - - - - Guard

"Old Man White" may be over-inclined to take his time, but he gets there just the same. No enemy back has ever been stopped behind the line that White did not have at least one hand on and generally it was he who started the stopping. We have yet to see the linesman who, with the aid of a rushing back, could dislodge White after he "holed in" on the line.

KEITH LYMAN - - - - - End

This sandy complexioned youth turned out for football for three years before he could make up his mind what position he wanted to play. He finally settled on end, and marvelous was the outcome thereof. He gained fame in the first game by breaking through Chemawa's line, taking one of their fumbles and running forty yards for a touchdown, which proved to be the winning score.

WILLARD LAWSON - - - - - Tackle

"Big Bill" the "Terrible Swede," has been an important factor in every game played in the past two seasons. As a tackle, he is practically unbeatable and no one but the men who have opposed him know exactly how much he lets out during a game. No dashing hero of anyone's backfield has ever made so much as a yard over "Bill's" bulky frame, and none have tried it without regret.

BERNARD RAMSEY - - - - - Guard
 Ramsey's greatest assets in a football game are his face and hands. His fighting face so resembles that of a bulldog, that he completely demoralizes the player opposite him. As the action starts, he makes good use of his hands, for he owns the meanest pair of punishment dealers known in these parts. Ramsey always makes a hole.

RAYMOND GANZANS - - - - - End
 This runt "Ganz," is an excellent example of what a small man can do in large company. He was told that he couldn't block and tackle, so he learned. He learned so well that he was soon showing others how it was done. Ganzans can play either quarter, half or end.

PAUL SHERWOOD - - - - - Half
 This Sherwood child has a wonderful faculty of taking the ball through the center of the line and never failing to make three or four yards. Give Paul a hole that he can put his head through and he will take the ball, the rest of the squad, the officials and half the rooting section with him.

JACOB NICKEL - - - - - Tackle
 "Jit" was so tender-hearted that it took a long time to convince him that his life calling was to play football. When he got in a game and was threatened with physical damage he turned carnivorous and how he did fight. In the fall of the year he sleeps and attends all functions in his football uniform and continually sings "This is the life."

ATHILL IRVINE - - - - - Quarter
 "Tuffy" has a record that is enviable. His common boast is that he was the Bearcats water boy when Jason Lee played quarterback, and it is generally presumed that this is the reason he is so good as a field general. He is a beautiful passer, a good, consistent kicker and can always be relied upon to do the right thing just a second before the right time.

KENNETH POWER - - - - - Half
 The "Bearcats Fighting Power" otherwise known as "Horse Power," was undoubtedly the cleanest and surest tackler on the team. "Ken" is an old war horse that can be depended upon to do his share at all times, under any conditions. Like all redheads, he is a fighter through and through and can be counted on for great things next year.

RONALD BIRD - - - - - Tackle
 In the few battles in which this aspiring rook participated, he showed very brilliantly, and with another season will undoubtedly develop into a star of the first water. Having acquired a mass of red hair in his youth, he gives promise of lots of "the ole fight," and with his weight and tender years increased, he will be away out there.

GEORGE OLIVER - - - - - Guard
 George, being a Frosh, is one of our future hopes. He has shown up very well under the tutelage of Coach Mathews and great things are anticipated. He aspires to be a preacher and if he shows as much interest in that vocation as he has in the pigskin, we predict a mean future for "the Old Nick." George plays any position on the line.

1920 Football Review

The 1920 football season was the most successful one that Willamette has enjoyed for several years. Playing against teams that generally outweighed her, several pounds to the man, Willamette made more yardage in every game than did her opponents. Coupled with an offense that never failed to gain yardage consistently, was a defense that would have been a credit to any football eleven.

The opening game of the season was with the Alumni on October 9. The Alumni, composed of old-time stars, among them "Pruney" Francis, Archibald and Small, succumbed to a score of 13 to 0. This was the worst drubbing the Old Timers have taken for several years.

The following week, the team humbled the Chemawa Indians in one of the fastest and hardest fought games of the season. Willamette scored the first touchdown of the game in the third quarter after a rapid succession of line plunges. A few minutes later, a 40-yard run upon a recovery of a fumble, netted another touchdown. About a minute before the game ended, Chemawa completed a 40-yard pass for its only score.

Minus the service of Rarey, Wapato and Lawson, the team journeyed to Portland on October 23 and met the Multnomah eleven. Notwithstanding the poor officiating, it was a good exhibition of football; neither team, however, being able to score.

On November 6, Coach Mathews took his men to Forest Grove where they administered the worst drubbing that Pacific has ever received at the hands of a Willamette eleven. The Bearcats staged their most sustained offense of the year, scoring 30 first downs. Pacific was saved from a shutout by a 90-yard run upon a recovery of a fumble.

The College of Puget Sound game at Tacoma on November 13 was an easy victory for the Bearcats. The consistent offense of the team was too much for the Tacoma eleven, as the 24 to 0 score indicates.

NINETEEN TWENTY TWO WALLULAH

On Thanksgiving Day, Willamette lost to Whitman by a single touchdown. After the opening period during which the Bearcats showed themselves unadjusted to conference football, Willamette not only outfought but outplayed the Missionaries, but lack of weight kept them from scoring. The field was a sea of mud, which proved greatly to the advantage of the Missionaries, who outweighed the Bearcats more than ten pounds to the man.

With only four men lost by graduation, next year's prospects are unusually bright. An extensive schedule has been arranged, which includes games with Multnomah, Whitman, Oregon Agricultural College, and the University of Oregon.

Football scores, 1920:

Willamette	13	Alumni	0
Willamette	14	Chemawa	6
Willamette	0	Multnomah	0
Willamette	23	Pacific University	7
Willamette	24	College of Puget Sound.....	0

RUSSEL RAREY Guard

The final gun of the Oregon game ended "Russ's" basketball career at Willamette, with a record that any player would be proud to call his own. For two seasons Russ has held down the position of back guard for the Cardinal and Gold. Shooting long baskets from the center of the floor when the game is close is his hobby, and one that certainly adds to the thrills that spectators derive from the game.

PAUL WAPATO Forward

Bohler gave "Wap" honorable mention on his mythical all-northwest five. This is the second year that Bohler has recognized "Wap's" ability as a basketball player. Besides his ability to score, "Wap" assists in making many other shots by his accurate passing. He has finished his basketball career and has been awarded a "W" blanket for his four years of service on the team.

REIN JACKSON Center

"Jack" is another Bearcat who received honorable mention for Bohler's mythical quintet. Although not qualifying for the pivot position in Bohler's estimation, Jack shot more baskets than H. Latham, Bohler's choice, in the four games of the Oregon series. The honor of scoring the most baskets from the field goes to "Jack," with a total of 48. He has played his last game for Willamette and was also awarded the coveted "W" blanket.

RAMON DIMICK Guard

"Squint" has all the qualifications that make an all around guard. He can shoot, pass, and dribble with the best of them, but his outstanding ability is his skill in taking the ball from a player dribbling down the floor. "Squint" is the only one on the squad that has played every minute in all the games. He will undoubtedly be the mainstay of the Bearcat defense next season.

BRYAN MCKITTRICK Forward
 "Mac" can play either forward or guard with ease, and his ability to shoot long or short ones from any position makes him especially valuable. Besides his skill in shooting from the floor. "Mac" can convert fouls with the best of them. Injuries kept him out of a large percentage of this season's contests. This was "Mac's" fourth season and the coveted "W" blanket has been awarded him for his services.

CLARENCE GILLETTE Forward
 This is "Jete's" second season on the Varsity, but one that will make him long remembered in the hearts of Willamette sports lovers. "Jete" held the honor of being high point man this season and also being the fastest and premier floor man of the squad. Converting fouls is another one of his hobbies. Next year other conference forwards will have to step to keep him off the "mythical five."

HUGH DONEY Forward
 Hugh's playing during the past year marks him as one of the best bets for next year's Varsity. His three years' experience on the "scrubs," coupled with his speed and ability to shoot from any angle on the floor should keep the best of guards busy next year.

EARL SHAFER Forward
 "Earl," being a Freshman, was not expected to win a place on the team, but his playing this year marks him as a "comer" for next year's quintet. Besides being a good floor man, Earl can shoot both from the floor and from the foul line.

The Basketball Season of 1920-1921

With six letter men, veterans of several seasons, back in harness, a most successful season, unequalled in the annals of basketball history in Willamette University, was freely predicted for the defenders of the Cardinal and Gold. Although the Bearcats failed to achieve the supreme honors, to-wit—the Northwest Conference championship, yet withal, they won the indisputable distinction of being worthy foes.

Coach R. L. Mathews opened the season with a veteran machine composed of the following men: Jackson, center; Wapato, McKittrick and Gillette, forwards; Dimick and Rarey, guards. Out of this sextet of sterling performers, Jackson, Wapato, McKittrick and Rarey had seen three years' service under the tutelage of Coach Mathews, while Gillette and Dimick were veterans of one season.

On January 14th, the Bearcats were pitted against O. A. C. in the opening game of the Conference season, which the Cardinal and Gold defenders won by the score of 27 to 26, and repeated the victory four days later at Corvallis, when the Beavers fell, 36 to 19. The Beavers were helpless before the weird and accurate passing of the Bearcats, who not only played with a deadly precision, but garnered field goals from all angles of the court.

On January 21st and 22d, by airtight defensive tactics, the University or Oregon five was able to win a double victory of 27 to 22 and 21 to 16 over the Bearcat machine. Both games were keenly contested—real battles between two strong teams, with the passing of Coach Mathews' men claiming the feature of the two-game series. On February 5th, the Multnomah winged-M quintet was an easy victim for the Bearcats, losing by the one-sided score of 38 to 14.

The Willamette five left Salem on February 11th on a ten-day tour, playing Multnomah that evening in Portland, winning with a score of 26 to 20, after a stubborn opposition by the clubmen.

The University of Idaho quintet defeated Willamette on February 14th, at Moscow, 20 to 17.

Two heart-breaking games were dropped by the Bearcats to the Whitman five by the scores of 13 to 11 and 17 to 11. The Bearcats excelled in general floor-work, completely out-passing the Whitman team, but suffered defeat due to lack of precision in converting free-throws. Superior basket shooting and apparent uncanniness gained from collegiate experience, returned the Walla Walla "Y" team victors on February 17th, in the third game at Walla Walla, by the score of 40 to 21.

Gonzaga University, of Spokane, dropped two games to the Bearcats by 30 to 29 and 24 to 16, in the last two games of the tour.

After a two-day rest from the tedious tour, the Bearcats met University of Idaho, in a return game, losing the game by the scant margin of 19 to 18. Apparently the Bearcats had not fully recovered from the effects of the trip, for, although their checking was up to par, many chances were wasted. Idaho proved to be a team, clever in the art of passing, elusively advancing the ball until a goal was imminent, and incidentally was the only team to shade the Bearcats at their own game. If revenge is sweet, Whitman proved to be the delectable morsel for the Bearcats when they dropped two games on February 24th and 25th to the Methodists by 25 to 16 and 21 to 13. The Bearcats played with a vim and dash in this series that made victory a certainty, forcing the Whitmanites to gather tallies by long distance shooting and free throws. Due to close checking, Willamette's goal was never in danger.

NINETEEN TWENTY TWO WALLUATI

The classic games of the season proved to be the contests with University of Oregon, at Eugene, on March 4th and 5th, which the Bearcats dropped by the scores of 25 to 21 and 26 to 25. Both games were bitter struggles, replete with good plays, superb basket shooting, close checking, and both teams traveling at top speed, causing the outcome of the game to be held in suspense until the final shot from the timer's gun. The games between these two teams was a fitting close for the Conference season.

Considering the fact that this was Willamette's second season in the Northwest Conference, the season may well be adjudged a success, as the Bearcats won the praise of the fraternity composing the Conference circuit, and everywhere were greeted as a formidable team. The Bearcats suffered their defeats by narrow margins, five points being the greatest measure that separated her from victories. On several occasions she sipped the bitter dregs by margins of a lone tally. Inability to convert free throws contributed largely to the reverses of the team.

State Interscholastic Basketball Tournament

Twelve of the leading high school teams in Oregon were invited this spring to participate in the annual State interscholastic basketball tournament, conducted by Willamette University. After three days of strenuous and thrilling play, Franklin High School, Portland interscholastic champions, succeeded in vanquishing the other contenders and taking the State title for 1921. The final game, played the evening of March 12, brought together the Portland quintet and Salem, last year's titleholders; the latter, although staging a great exhibition of basketball, were unable to withstand the clever Franklin offense, losing the title by a 26-19 score.

The other schools represented in the tournament, each boasting the best team in its section of the State, were: Astoria, McMinnville, Bend, Woodburn, Marshfield, Heppner, Eugene, Ashland, Baker and Mollala.

Following the championship game, R. L. Mathews, Willamette coach, who was general manager of the tournament, selected the official all-state quintet: King and Hobson, Franklin, forwards; Brosterhaus, Bend, center; Ashby, Salem, and Ridings, Mollala, guards. The second team for 1921 is composed of McGinnis, Marshfield, and Staley, Salem, forwards; Gosser, Salem, center; Fielder Jones, Franklin, and Max Jones, Salem, guards.

Willamette University has conducted the state tournament for the last two years, and the 1921 results were even more satisfactory than those of last spring. Notwithstanding the huge financial risk, the three days' tourney was successful in every way.

BRYAN MCKITTRICK

First Base

For the third year "Mac" has held down the keystone sack and played errorless ball. His work was a foundation for the fastest college infield in the Northwest. The valiant ex-captain fields his own position faultlessly and converts many a bad throw into a putout.

ATHILL IRVINE

Third Base

"Tuffy" is without doubt the star of the club. He seems to be made for the left corner of the infield and the ability he shows in fielding bunts and baseline drives puts him in a class by himself. In his position of lead-off man, he always keeps the pitchers worried and draws lots of passes as well as hitting safely for a good average.

LAWRENCE DAVIES

Second Base

"Senor" is an infielder who works like lightning, and who has operated around second base for three years. The nickname "Bum-bounce" doesn't indicate a tendency to alibi, but merely means that the "young fellow" takes the game seriously.

CAPTAIN PAUL BROWN

Catcher

A reliable, non-spectacular backstop. He not only allowed a minimum of passed balls under the delivery of our none too accurate slab staff, but put the fear of his arm into the hearts of all would-be base stealers, and directed the defensive work of the team like a professional.

RAMON DIMICK - - - - - Outfield

The Bearcats' only "southpaw" is a most clever fielder as well as a dangerous hitter. His ability to crack 'em out in a pinch is uncanny and his hits are always hard and difficult to handle. Injuries kept him out during the latter part of the season and his loss was sorely felt by the club.

HAROLD DIMICK - - - - - Pitcher

"Big Dim" finished his third year on the team with an enviable record as an all around ball player. He has occupied every position on the field at some time while playing for Willamette, which says much for his spirit of willingness and self-sacrifice. He is also a dangerous slugger.

LYLE PAGE - - - - - Short Stop

This calm jurist was the most dangerous man with the willow on the squad. He acquired an average of one safe hit in each game, and most of them were for extra bases. In addition he handled his position cleverly, covering a large territory and often bringing the crowd to its feet with a remarkable exhibition of fielding.

KENNETH POWER - - - - - Outfield

"Ken" looks good in any position on the team, but his speed and fielding of high ones anchored him in the right garden. He has a hook slide that is the envy of his team mates, making him dangerous on the bases. Batting from the port side, he always hits unless the man on the mound sees fit to pass him, which is often the case.

NINETEEN TWENTY-TWO WALL ULATI

LELAND AUSTIN - - - - - Left Field

Although not the hardest hitter in the conference, "Percy" was a mighty valuable man on the club. He ran bases well and the way he covered his territory in left field kept the score on an even basis and saved the day many times.

LOREN BASLER - - - - - Utility

"Baz" is modest about his baseball prowess, thinking himself better suited to a rougher if not less difficult game. Nevertheless, he was a valuable man in the outfield or behind the bat. He often played the role of pinch-hitter.

HENRY SPIESS - - - - - Pitcher

Development of a sore arm in the early part of the season kept "Heinie" off the slab the greater part of the season. However, he worked fine whenever his arm permitted and proved of great service to the team.

FRED RADSPINNER - - - - - Outfield

This son of Indiana showed up well for his first year in college baseball. He is fairly fast and fields well. In another year he will no doubt produce the goods necessary to land a regular berth. Being the only Frosh on the team, he qualified as an excellent bat-boy.

1920 Baseball Review

With seven veterans to form the team's nucleus, the baseball season looked exceptionally bright at the start. Aided by some promising new material, Coach Mathews gathered together a squad which offered excellent prospects for a championship team. However, experienced pitchers were sadly lacking. With an early and continued presence of Jupiter Pluvius in the first part of the season, regular practice was impossible and the opening of the season was delayed until the middle of April.

The season opened with a defeat at the hands of the Oregon Agricultural College nine, by a score of 10 to 1. Keene held the Bearcats to two hits, while the Aggies hit the ball freely, driving two pitchers from the box. The following day the teams journeyed to Corvallis, and again the Aggies were victorious, winning 7 to 0. The team was helpless before the pitching of Hughes, who allowed but three hits.

The next team to be met was Stanford, who stopped off long enough at Salem to win two games. The first contest was marked by free hitting and erratic playing on the part of both teams, but Stanford's ability to make its hits count, won for them the honors. Bases on balls was the cause of the second defeat, as none of the Bearcats' pitchers seemed able to locate the plate, and 15 passes were given.

The game with Pacific on April 30 was a free-for-all slugging fest with Willamette as the worst offender. Bunching their hits, the Bearcats won by the score of 13 to 4.

On the 29th of April, the team met the Chemawa Indians at the Indian School. The game was nip and tuck from start to finish and it was not until the Indians staged a sensational ninth inning rally, that the Bearcats were finally defeated by the score of 4 to 3.

As a Junior Week-End attraction, Willamette encountered the Multnomah Athletic Club nine. This apparently was an off day, for the team went poorly, playing an erratic game and making all sorts of blunders and bobbles. Jackson and McKittrick were both driven from the box and the Portland team won handily.

Journeying to Forest Grove for its next game, the team defeated Pacific University 6 to 1. Dimick was invincible and held Pacific to two hits. Backed by excellent support and hard hitting, the game was never in doubt.

The season ended with a return game with Multnomah at Portland, the Athletic Club winning 4-3. It was a splendid exhibition of baseball and was a credit to the team in spite of the loss.

NINETEEN TWENTY-TWO WALLULATI

NOBLE MOODHE

"Nibs" is the most finished racquet artist who has worn the "W" for years. Speedier players have been known, but never a more steady one. He has the exact range on every spot in the court. Moodhe uses his head every minute, and woe be unto the player who tries to put any sensational stuff past him.

HUGH DONEY

When it comes to speed, Hugh is all there. His serve comes over like a shot. All great artists have their off days, and Oregon was just lucky enough to meet Willamette in tennis when Doney was not going so well as usual. But even at that, his opponents had to play some real tennis in order to beat him.

MARY FINDLEY

For five years Mary has represented Willamette in women's tennis, and during those five years she has never once tasted defeat. Mary is a modest girl, but we are not modest about her. We do not hesitate to say that there has never been another woman collegiate tennis player in the Northwest with a record like hers.

Tennis

Tennis is not considered a very exciting sport by most fans, but the most thrill-hardened of rooters would have had to hold his breath occasionally during the matches last Spring. Moodhe had never encountered a college player who could give him a run for his money until he came up against Brown in the Willamette-Oregon tournament at Salem. A week before "Nibs" had beaten Prescott, a University of Oregon professor, who was rumored to be even better than Brown. Moodhe ran up quite a lead on Brown at the start, having 5-2 and point-set before his opponent was fairly started. Brown pulled himself out of this hole, however, and then the real excitement began. The goddess of fortune flew back and forth for an hour or more. "Nibs" finally took the set, but not until he had several times come within a hair's breadth of losing it. But the next two sets, and with them the match, went to Brown. Brown had point-match seven consecutive times before he at last made the grade.

Doney was also beaten in this tournament, his opponent being Westerman, but Mary Findley took a fall out of the Lemon-Yellow when she defeated Marjorie Kay in women's singles. The men's doubles and the mixed doubles both went to Oregon.

The tournament at Eugene a week later went much the same way. Moodhe again gave Brown a hard rub, but was unable to defeat him. Doney went down to defeat before Smith, Miss Findley defeated Miss Slotboom, and Moodhe and Doney were beaten by Smith and Westerman. In the mixed doubles, however, the Willamette aggregation staged a comeback, winning two straight sets.

The scores of the tournaments played were as follows:

AT EUGENE

Moodhe defeated Prescott	8-6, 7-5
Laremore defeated Doney	6-4, 6-0
Moodhe and Doney defeated Laremore and Warner.....	6-2, 6-3

AT SALEM

Brown defeated Moodhe	9-11, 6-3, 8-6
Westerman defeated Doney	6-4, 6-1
Miss Findley defeated Miss Kay	7-5, 3-6, 6-3
Westerman and Smith defeated Moodhe and Doney.....	6-2, 6-1
Smith and Miss Kay defeated Moodhe and Miss Findley.....	7-5, 1-6, 6-4

AT EUGENE

Brown defeated Moodhe	6-3, 7-5
Smith defeated Doney	6-3, 6-2
Miss Findley defeated Miss Slotboom	6-3, 6-8, 10-8
Smith and Westerman defeated Moodhe and Doney.....	6-0, 5-7, 6-2

The Freshman basketball squad did not play many games, but nevertheless must be recognized as a strong team, if only because of their winning the class championship. In the game against Company "M," the initial contest of the season, the Rooks almost ran themselves to death. The first game with O. S. R. N. team was similar. Salem High took the first win away from the first-year men and Tillamook High threw them a scare by submitting to a one-point defeat. In the interclass series the Rooks won the championship by defeating the Juniors in the final game. The scores for the 1920-1921 season were as follows:

W. U. Freshmen.....	51	Company "M"	6

The Doughnut League

As a means of developing the hidden basketball talent the Doughnut League is organized by the interclass rivalry committee. The league in the last year consisted of ten teams. These teams each playing every other squad, delivered for the amusement and mystification of the onlookers, a total of ninety games. A quintet composed of Bain, W. Lawson, Ellis, W. Zeller, and little Rodney Alden, with Axi Dent as bench warmer and custodian of the towel, won the championship, and with it the free fussing expedition which is tendered by two of Salem's great-hearted business men.

As to the brand of basketball displayed, the least said about this the better for all concerned. However, some of the various phases of the game as interpreted by these nightly gladiatorial combats are worthy of mention and explanation. It is always a mystery to a newcomer why the word "dough" is added to the title. Some of us who have weathered two seasons of the league's existence have doped it out that this word is inserted because dough is soft, and anyone who has a soft spot somewhere in his hat-rack is eligible to participate in the league's activities.

The principle of these contests is to let the football season merge gradually into track and baseball. Points are given to those fortunate enough to play the entire season and escape without a scratch. No one has been able to accomplish this feat to date. Some men may claim that they have come through sound in body but they never mention the fact that their consciences are sore for the dirty swats they have delivered to a worthy opponent at some time when the conflict waxed hot and there was a mix-up or a mad scramble for the much-coveted leather globule.

Some of the players have developed wonderfully along certain lines. Ken Power was known to have taking ways and has many times in his past slickered his playmates out of marbles and chalk, but his experience in manipulating one Junior team so that it became two and even staged a game with itself, has made him feel that Ponsi was a piker. Then, too, some of the Frosh learned so much about the manly art of self-defense that since the league season ended they will no longer run and jump into the millrace, but must be thrown in.

The league was a huge success, and more of the students should turn out to witness the games. No admission has been charged yet, nor is it likely that there will be, but there is a possibility that one may be called upon occasionally to donate for flowers.

Interclass Rivalry

In the fall of 1920, Interclass Rivalry was begun with the cross country run. The course was set for two miles and on Thanksgiving Day, before the football battle with Whitman College, the race took place. Gillette, a Junior, took first place, but was unable to win the meet for his class. The Seniors captured the prize.

In the first week of March, after the close of the Varsity basketball schedule and those participating in the "Doughnut League" had done with their clawing and scraping, the inter-class series took form. After the end of the series of six games the Juniors and Freshmen were tied for first place while the Seniors and Sophomores were tied for the cellar position. Another game was staged between the Junior and Freshman teams, which proved to be the most exciting of them all. In the last few minutes of play the Frosh aggregation caught up with their older brothers and plunked a few extra baskets which proved them to be the winner of the basketball series. Following is the personnel of the class teams:

Senior—Davies and Fisher, forwards; Basler, center; Bennett and Socolofsky, guards; Lyman, spare.

Junior—Irvine and Harra, forwards; Doney, center; Barnes and Power, guards; Pollock and S. Sackett, spares.

Sophomore—Ellis and Ganzans, forwards; W. Lawson, center; Notson and Richards, guards; Robbins and Gillette, spares.

Freshmen—Shafer and Jones, forwards; Logan, center; Caughlan and Oliver, guards; Warren and Callow, spares.

The interclass track meet was held the last of April, and in this, the Seniors amassed a lead of 16 points over their nearest competitors. A score of 51, including four first places, was accredited to the winners. The Sophomores gained second place. Rein Jackson, senior performer, was the high scorer of the meet, capturing a total of 19 points; taking first in the 220-yard dash and the 440-yard dash, and second in the 100-yard dash, the high jump and the shot put. Irvine, Ganzans, Lawson and Logan all won at least two first places during the day, the latter taking a majority of points for the Freshmen.

The interclass contests in tennis are to be played later this spring. The Juniors have a good chance to win these matches.

The final score of each class is shown by the following record:

	Seniors	Juniors	Sophomores	Freshmen
Cross Country	5	0	1	3

Girls' Basketball

Through a need foreseen by many girls of the University, a Women's Athletic Association was formed in the fall of 1920, for the promotion of sports among the women of Willamette. This organization is responsible for the girls' basketball team which represented Willamette this year.

It has been many years since a co-ed team has represented Willamette in any athletic contest, save tennis. So it is expected that the games played this year are a fore-runner of an interesting season next year. The prospects for next year are good, as all of the players are expecting to return, and a strong team should represent Willamette.

A challenge from Oregon Agricultural College was accepted and the game was played on the Willamette gymnasium floor on February 19, while a week later Newberg High School traveled to Salem. The first contest was an easy victory for the Oregon Agriculture College team. Completely outplaying the Willamette girls by their excellent passing and superior team work, they won by a large margin. In the second game the high school girls were easily defeated by the Willamette sextet. The girls displayed a greatly improved game over that of the previous week and earned a well deserved victory. The feature of this game was the phenomenal foul shooting of Alice Sykes, who converted twelve out of fifteen throws.

Rallies

As a king is not a king without his sceptre, so is an athletic activity incomplete without noise—Thus we find it at Willamette. Under the leadership of Yell King Gillette, several very successful rallies were staged during the past season. Two of these stand out as among the best ever held at W. U.

The first big rally took place the evening of the Freshman bonfire—the night before the annual M. A. A. C.-Willamette football game. The bonfire of this year was the best in the history of the school. Much credit must be accorded to Earl Shafer, who, with his willing band of "rook" assistants, accumulated a pile of boxes and timber that, when kindled with twenty gallons of fuel oil, blazed up in a flare of light such as Sweetland Field had never before witnessed.

An added attraction of the evening, and one greatly appreciated by the Student Body, was the initial presentation of the Varsity Band, which, under the direction of bandmaster Edwin Payne, favored the assembly with several lively numbers. Professor Franklin gave a short talk on "Athletic Training," and Yell King Clare Gillette and Crown Prince Verne Ferguson led in Varsity yells and songs. Upperclassmen and those of experience about the campus pronounced the rally as the best ever held here.

The second big rally, the culminating event of the year, appeared in the form of a huge parade, advertising the Willamette-Whitman Thanksgiving gridiron classic. Led by the Varsity Band, the parade passed down State street and through the business district of the town, terminating at the old "stamping grounds," the corner of State and Liberty, where yells were yelled and songs were sung.

Among the main features of the parade was a Jersey cow, on which was the sign, "This is no bull. We will beat Whitman." The football men, riding in cars, preceded the boys, who were uniquely attired in pajamas. The girls, dressed in gay costumes and carrying Japanese lanterns, formed a very effective rear guard.

EARL SHAFER
Manager

The numeral of the class of '23 will be the first to adorn the silver clasp of the new permanent glee pennant, with its cardinal background, gold lettering and big Willamette seal, as a result of the Sophomores being awarded first place in the annual song contest. The words and music of their song "Willamette Fight," were composed by Miss Bruce Putnam. This marks the third successive year in which a Sophomore class has been victorious. The Seniors carried second honors in "Bend the Knee," words by Maurice Lawson, music by Loren Basler; while the Freshmen scored third place with "Cheer Willamette, Cheer," words and music by Audred Bunch and Byron Arnold respectively. For the Juniors the words were written by Emma Shanafelt and Lester Day, while the music was composed by Eva Roberts. The song leaders of their respective classes were Edwin Socolofsky, Benjamin Rickli, Vern Ferguson and Avery Hicks.

This unique custom, initiated by the class of 1912, in their Freshman year, has proved of wonderful value to our school life, and has come to be one of the great events of the college year. The management is in the hands of the Freshman Class, who have thus an opportunity to prove their ability in the musical world, as well as to show their originality in decorating the armory. In order that there might be a variety of songs, the student body at the beginning of each school year decides upon the type to be submitted. This year's was to be a rally song. As the words and music must both be original within the classes, a splendid opportunity is presented for the exercise of individual talent and ability. Every member is expected to take part in the rendition of their respective song and this is the one occasion of the year when the townspeople are privileged to see the entire student body of Willamette at their best. It is on this occasion that the Seniors make their initial appearance in caps and gowns, thus lending dignity to the occasion. With the addition of four songs annually, Willamette is fortunate in having a valuable collection of songs which are becoming more and more interwoven into the life of the campus.

The songs are judged on the following points: Music, words, rendition and adaptability.

Willamette Fight

We are here to fight for Willamette,
And the Bearcats with courage so bold,
While our hearts are exalted with praises
Let us hail to the Cardinal and Gold
Fight, fight, fight!
Rally for our dear old Willamette,
Raise the score to fame,
Bring forth to us the victory;
We're here to win the game.

With the grit and the pep of the Bearcats,
Our fervor shall carry the day,
And the fight of our warriors shall send them
In triumph away from the fray,
Fight, fight, fight!
At them Bearcats, victory's awaiting
For fighters that never say die.
Stand firm your ground for W. U.
And shout the victor's song.

RALPH THOMAS
Forensic Manager

Much of the success in forensics this year is due to our able forensic manager, Tommy. "Tommy's undivided interest has been given to the spoken art and he surely has splendid results to his credit. From clever announcements in chapel to advertise the debates, to tactfully sending the defeated team home in good spirits, the forensic manager was equally efficient. He has managed with the utmost skill and diplomacy the trying details of arrangements between W. U. and the various schools.

Forensics have loomed large in the University this year, and we are glad to give credit to whom credit is due.

PAUL G. WAPATO
Oratory

Oratory in Willamette excites much interest just prior to the local try-outs, the winner of these try-outs receiving the Keye's prize as a reward for his labors and also the privilege of entering the State oratorical contest and defending the colors of Willamette U. Paul G. Wapato again won first place in the local tryouts, having captured the same honors the year previous. Myrtle Mason ran Mr. Wapato a close race, losing by only a small fraction of a point. Roy Skeen also showed up well in the try-outs. The theme of Mr. Wapato's oration was "The Monkey Wrench in Democracy," and Myrtle Mason's, "The Road to Peace is Now an Open Highway." Roy Skeen presented the subject, "United Efforts in the Battle of Life." These three rated the highest in the contest

The State oratorical contest was held in Eugene under the auspices of the Eugene Bible University. The contest took place in the Christian Church at that place on March 18, 1921. Mr. Wapato again used his trusty monkey wrench, but failed to rate higher than fifth place. Those who heard him say that he acquitted himself and the old school well. Mr. Wapato is to be commended.

The three highest places at the contest were:

- 1—Ralph Hoerber, University of Oregon, "The New Despotism."
- 2—W. B. Black, Oregon Agriculture College, "Tottering Civilization."
- 3—John Carter, Eugene Bible University, "Our Realized Hope."

Men's Debate

Sackett

Notson

SHELDON SACKETT

Sheldon Sackett, by his striking conversational style of forensic presentation secured, by a fraction of a point, the place of Willamette's first debater, by winning highest honors in the try-out. Sackett not only has an effective delivery, but was endowed with an unusually keen insight into the depths of the questions which served as word battle grounds during the season.

ROBERT NOTSON

Robert Notson, a first year man, has won for himself a permanent berth in the forensic activities of the University by his accreditable debate record of the past season. Notson is a speaker with spirit and power dominating his every move. He has evidenced unusual ability in digesting and arriving at the heart of the questions at issue.

Bennett

Ramsey

FRANK BENNETT

Frank Bennett, the senior member of Willamette's premier debating machine, will be greatly missed in forensic circles during the coming season. Bennett's powerful force of oratorical appeal linked with an exceptionally deft handling of the English language has not only penetrated the arguments of many an opponent, but has won the cold heart of many a judicious man and incidentally carried off a victory.

BERNARD RAMSEY

Every forensic aggregation, of necessity, needs a legal genius to bring it to success. Such has been the career of Bernard Ramsey during the 1921 debating season. With a comprehensive and incisive knowledge of legality and international law, Ramsey has been able to add strength to some almost impossible cases. In a tight pinch Ramsey is always ready with a sticker for the men of the opposition.

MORNINGSIDE-WILLAMETTE DEBATE

Morningside College, Sioux City, Iowa

Willamette experienced defeat by a 2 to 1 decision in her first intersectional debate clash with Morningside College, of Sioux City, Iowa, on March 30th. The question, "Resolved, That Immigration Should be Further Restricted by Additional Literacy Tests," was handled with such unusual skill that the decision was acknowledged to be exceedingly close by both judges and opponents. In fact, little difference in effectiveness was noted between the two teams except in material organization, in which the Willamette debaters shadowed their opponents, and rebuttal, in which the Morningside team excelled.

The Morningside debaters, Hickman, Stauffer, and Long, supported the affirmative by attacking the illiterate peoples as being undesirable because they do not become citizens, add to our unemployed classes, and prove a social and political menace in our large cities. The chief strength of the Morningside case lay in clever presentation rather than sound logic.

Willamette's debate trio, Sackett, Bennett, and Ramsey, presented three well defined issues for the negative: First, that the literacy test is wrong in principle. Secondly, that there is no casual relationship between literacy and desirability; and thirdly, that selection should be made by a psychological test to determine mental capacity. Bennett gave a very strong rebuttal and constructive argument, while Sackett and Ramsey accredited themselves ably both in their main and rebuttal speeches.

WHITMAN-WILLAMETTE DEBATE

The final appearance for the season for the Varsity debate teams was the dual with Whitman College on the question, "Resolved, That all Immigration from Southern Europe Should be Prohibited." Whitman had already won a double victory over the strong University of Washington squad on the same question, and had three months for preparation for the contest. Willamette's representatives, on the other hand, were forced to shift questions at the very end of the season, and with less than three weeks for research and organization, were obviously placed under a severe handicap.

Bennett and Ramsey, upholding the affirmative of the question, invaded the territory of the enemy sans their trusted rabbit's foot and as a consequence suffered a 3-0 defeat at the hands of Whitman's negative team. But undismayed by the fate of the affirmative team, Sackett and Notson, on the home floor, submerged their opponents under such a mass of evidence that the judges returned a unanimous verdict in their favor.

The judges at the Salem contest were Dean J. R. Straub, of the University of Oregon, Frank Hilton of Portland, and Justice Lawrence Harris of the Oregon Supreme Court.

INTERCLASS FORENSICS

The 1920-21 forensic season included a complete schedule of interclass rivalry events. The debate question was "Resolved, That the Japanese should be granted the privileges of citizenship upon the same basis as the Europeans." Preliminary try-outs were held early in December and the debates took place in January. In the first contest Lucille Tucker and Vivian Isham, representing the Juniors, were defeated by Fred McGrew and Paul Wapato for the Seniors, while Ruby Rosenkranz and Roy Skeen, speaking for the Sophomores, obtained the decision over Edna Jennison and Robert Notson of the Freshman class. In the final contest the Seniors, upholding the affirmative side of the case, won a two to one decision over the Sophomores, and thereby became the possessors of the Elmo S. White trophy cup.

Oratory, too, counted a large part toward the interclass rivalry cup. The contest was held in April and rivaled the Varsity contest in quality and type of orations. The contestants were as follows:

Seniors	Myrtle Mason
	"Disarmament"
Juniors	William Byers
	"Peace and Maintenance of American Ideals"
Sophomores	Roy Skeen
	"United Efforts in the Battle of Life"
Freshmen	Albert Geyer
	"The Growth of the International Ideal"

Roy Skeen of the Sophomores won first place, while William Byers and Myrtle Mason came close at second and third in the order named.

From the interclass contests were chosen three debaters and three orators to take part in Varsity forensics. Thus our preliminary work afforded good platform training to new Varsity representatives, giving them useful experience and creating an interest in real Varsity contests.

LORLEI BLATCHFORD

Lorlei Blatchford, leader of the affirmative team, has played her role in the forensic act with undaunted and poised skill. A pleasant and forceful delivery spiced by a clever and keen intellect has marked Miss Blatchford as an unusual word artist. No opponent in the forensic field has outshone this Willamette star.

LUCILLE TUCKER

Appearing for the first time this season upon the forensic platform, Miss Tucker has by her convincing manner of debate presentation baffled every opponent who has faced her in verbal combat. She steps upon the platform with fire in her eye, yet she maintains a coolness about her delivery that marks her as a consistent and effective debater.

MYRTLE MASON

Appearing in her last debate contests for the Cardinal and Gold, Myrtle Mason with brilliant arguments and poised presentation aided in scoring three unanimous victories this season. And thus Myrtle has upheld the honor of "Old Willamette" during the three years that she has been a member of the debate team, always completely outdoing her opponents in clever debating and in polished delivery. We crown Miss Mason as the premier woman college debater on the Pacific Coast.

RUBY ROSENKRANZ

Ruby Rosenkranz, with direct and rapid fire word bombs has retired from her first season in the forensic fray with no defeats tallied against her. Ruby with telling and impressive words metes out to her opponents startling and stupendous arguments which they are unable to refute. A forceful delivery, supported by a quick mind, are the endowments which have worked for Ruby's success.

Bar-W Club

MEMBERS

Oratory—Paul Wapato.

Debate—Frank Bennett, Ina Moore, Bernard Ramsey, Lorlei Blatchford, Myrtle Mason, Sheldon Sackett, Howard George, Helen Hoover.

Those who will receive the Bar-W at the fall award day are: Robert Notson, Lucille Tucker, Ruby Rosenkranz.

To win a Bar-W one must represent the University in intercollegiate oratory or debate. This award merits the same recognition that is accorded the athletic awards, for it also signifies hours of endeavor in the service of the school.

With all but two of the members of the Bar-W Club returning next fall, an unusual year in forensics is anticipated.

"A Rose O' Plymouth Town," presented as a part of the Junior Week-End program, scored a decided success with the large audience of students, visitors and townspeople who witnessed the performance. The action carries us back to the Puritan days of Plymouth Town, where tense dramatic situations combine with humor to form a story of intimate human interest.

The play is laid in the household of Captain Miles Standish, where Rose de la Noye, a young French colonist, rules with quick tongue and bewitching smile. Rose befriends Garrett Foster, a young scamp from a neighboring town, caught stealing corn, and gains for him a parole in the colony. On the other hand she has promised to lead John Margeson a merry dance because he trampled upon the heart of her young friend, Miriam Chillingsley, and thus at the end of two months, Rose is horrified to find that by her flirtations and her promise to kiss "the better man," she has stirred up a duel between Foster and Margeson. For his part in the fracas, Foster is banished from Plymouth. Later in the winter Rose receives from him a letter, telling her that as he hears she is to marry Margeson, he expects to sail for England soon. Rose is angry at this and allows herself to plight troth with John Margeson out of spite. A few minutes later Garrett Foster appears to warn the colonists that the Indians are on the warpath. Although weak and worn out by his hardships, Foster, wearing a coat of Margeson's, slips out to guard a breach in the stockade. Margeson accepts the glory for this, which act of deceit, gives Rose the right, upon discovery, to withdraw her promise, and give her hand to Foster, "the better man."

The Willamette Collegian

The Willamette Collegian is a seven-column, folio, newspaper, published weekly by the Associated Student Body. It is the official student organ, and carries all news of interest to the college community. The year just past has been a most successful one in both the editorial and business departments, and reflects very great credit on editor and manager alike. In neatness of appearance and make-up, as well as in content, the Collegian ranks among the foremost college journals of the Northwest.

We Beg Your Pardon—

If the 1922 Wallulah has not come up to your expectations. We have done the best we could on a first attempt, but feel sure that we could do much better if we had a second chance at it. Our dear teacher, Experience, has exacted heavy penalties at times, for we have often gone far to accomplish little.

We have endeavored to present Willamette life in both its more serious and lighter aspects. No doubt the heavy parts will be too light for some of our readers, and the lighter ones will weigh too much for others. We ask them, therefore, to remember that the average student is a composite individual who likes things pretty well mixed.

We wish especially to thank the following persons for their assistance: Gladys Bartholomew, Mildred Brown, and Fred Radspinner. We are also indebted to John Lawson for his exceptionally clever cartoon work, and were it not for the physical hazard involved for two young men on the staff by mentioning their names, we would like to thank them for their consistent and ingenious labors on the snap pages.

The Willamette Handbook for 1920

EDNA GILBERT, '21
Editor

HUBERT WILKIN, '21
HARRY RAREY, '22
Managers

The Willamette Handbook is published annually by the Y. M.-Y. W. C. A. Prepared during the summer, it is always ready for distribution during the first few days of school, and is designed to make the Freshmen acquainted with Willamette customs and campus lore. What to do and when to do it, as well as the principal "don'ts" are presented and explained. The book also contains the more popular rally songs and yells, which the Freshmen are expected to learn within a reasonable time. Information concerning all campus organizations and publications, the University calendar, a review of all branches of athletics, regulations governing interclass contests, and green cap regulations, are other items of great benefit to the new student. Features which make the book of constant practical use are pages for memoranda and addresses, a class schedule, and miscellaneous information of various sorts.

The handbook is neatly bound and of a convenient size.

ORGANIZATIONS

PAUL S. FLEGEL
President

The Associated Student Body

Never before was a more active interest exhibited by all in the popular government of student affairs of Willamette University, than has been shown by the Associated Student Body during the year 1920-21. The new interest taken by the students is exemplified by their abolishing the Greater Willamette Club, a booster organization, and taking upon the shoulders of the Associated Student Body all the functions of that organization, namely, advertising the school, securing students, and promoting Willamette spirit.

The small enrollment in the University, amounting this year to something over four hundred and fifty students, renders the present system of government a particularly feasible and successful one, since all attend and participate in the meetings of the organization.

Women's Willamette Club

It is the aim of the Women's Willamette Club to foster the spirit of democracy on the campus, and to ever uphold and perpetuate Willamette standards and traditions. Among its activities are appropriate exercises held on Memorial Day in memory of Jason Lee, when the graves of the pioneer and his wife in Jason Lee Cemetery are fittingly decorated. The Co-ed Carnival is a spring event which not only provides an evening of rare cleverness and jollity, but affords to all women of the University a splendid opportunity for enriching their friendships with each other and with the faculty ladies.

The president for the year was Mary Notson.

Washingtonian Society

Every member of the Washingtonian Society is a loyal Willamette booster. The main purposes of the society are to serve as a medium through which all students from Washington may become better acquainted, and to act as an advertising medium in the home State. It has proved a great factor in fostering the desired school spirit at Willamette University. The annual Washingtonian Banquet, held on February 22nd, each year, was the usual enjoyable occasion this year. This is one of the outstanding events of Willamette's social calendar, and commemorates a significant day in American history.

Student Volunteer Band

The Student Volunteer Band is part of a world-wide fellowship of the students who purpose to take up some branch of overseas work. The Band holds weekly meetings for devotional study and discussion of common problems, and occasionally invites all who are interested in the work to an open meeting, at which the challenge of life-service, especially emphasizing the foreign work, is presented.

The Student Volunteer Bands of Oregon met on the Willamette campus April 26th, to form a State union. Marie Corner, leader of the local Band for the past year, was chosen president of this union. The interest in missions has been increased by the study classes and by several visits from well informed and inspiring leaders of the Student Volunteer Movement and representatives of the various church boards. The Band now has twenty-eight members, and is looking forward to further gains during the coming year.

Isham Norene Wilken Barnes Garrett Corner Fisher Shepard Hatton

Missionary Committee

The Missionary Committee is an organization composed of nine members elected from the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A., and the Student Volunteer Band.

The purpose of the Committee is to further interest in Missions in the Student Body as a whole. One way in which this has been accomplished was through the mission classes offered to all the students of the University, for which one hour was allowed each Tuesday morning by the faculty.

Another duty of the organization is to manage financial campaigns for mission work. Last year the sum of five hundred dollars was raised, four hundred of which was sent to Royal Bisbee in India, who used the funds to build a Willamette Chapel.

This year six hundred dollars was subscribed by students and faculty. Half of this went to Aetna Emmel, a W. U. girl in India, one hundred dollars to Association work, and the remainder to the World's Student Relief Fund.

Men's Glee Club

The Willamette Glee Club had a brilliant season in 1920-21. After having spent the fall in preparation, the boys opened the season January 13th with a concert at Stayton. On January 27th they left for a tour of the Northwest, extending until February 17th. In this tour they sang nineteen concerts, reaching Pendleton and Milton, Oregon; Yakima, Spokane, Cheney, Wenatchee, Bremerton, Tacoma, and Vancouver, Washington, and finally Portland, Oregon. The club traveled a total distance of 1,400 miles. After a brief rest, concerts were given in Albany and Woodburn. The annual concert in Salem brought the season to a close, and demonstrated to all that the fine words of praise which reached us from the towns where the club appeared were fully merited.

Women's Glee Club

The one concert staged by the Women's Glee Club during the year was unanimously proclaimed to have been well worth the great amount of time spent in its preparation. This concert was given before a packed house, in Waller Chapel, on the evening of April 19th. The program was an artistic production from first to last, and the large assemblage followed its varied numbers with great interest and appreciation. Talent and training were very evident, while great originality and cleverness in rendition and scenic effects were secured in "Pigmies' Chorus," "Old Time Melodies," by the quartet, and in "Glow Worm," the closing number on the program. We feel sure the club could successfully conduct a much more extensive concert season.

INSTRUMENTATION

Clarinets—Anderson, Nottage, Hisey, Gilchrist; Flute—Satchwell; Cornets—Payne, Chandler, Hendrickson, Warren, Burch; Horns—Brock, Peck; Saxophone—McClintock; Baritone—Aegerter; Trombones—Allen, Berry; Basses—Hicks, Pollock; Drums—Fisher (Bass), Bullock (Snare); Drum Major—Ginn.

Acknowledgment is also due the following men—Paulson (Cornet), Rice (Horn), and Scott (Saxophone).

For the first time in many years Willamette has been very fortunate in having a real band of no small merit. Diligent work on the part of the leader and officers, and co-operation on the part of all the members have brought together and organized the best musical talent of the school into a band of some twenty-five pieces. With steady work and hard practice it has become a valuable organ of the school in supporting rallies and furnishing music for all athletic contests in which Willamette teams have participated. This latter factor is important after throats have become tired with yelling and singing has grown wearisome. It is generally felt that the band has completed a successful season, and with many of the musicians expecting to return next year, the prospects are good for even a larger band at the opening of the fall term.

Discoveries Made at "The Rose o' Plymouth Town"

That the Puritans were well accomplished in the gentle art of prevarication.
 That wrist-watches are not a new invention. Perhaps an hour-glass was not exciting enough for Aunt Resolute.
 That there are other ways to approach 'em. "Mayhap thou wouldst not loath to step forth a pace or two?"
 That Jeter didn't care nearly as much as we thought he would.

Side Lights On the Carnival

Big Chub, with his all-devouring camera and unannounced flash gun, slickered up on a couple in the Devil's Cavern at the Junior Carnival, and the resulting photo was a great discovery. We couldn't see his face, but hers was a happy countenance withal, and wreathed in smiles.

And thereby hangs a narrative. Why the cavern was so popular with some folks remained an unsolved mystery until the much-discussed photograph was brought forth. Our observations on the night of the carnival are tabulated below.

Kelso (Sr.), went through five times.
 Kelso (Jr.), 7.
 King Tink, 1—(Must have had a stormy session.)
 Beany, 3—(He went to the circus first.)
 Young Chub, 3—(Bashful.)
 Barnes, 1—(He just stayed in and took charge.)
 Dave Lawson, 1.
 Big Bill—(Started but lost his nerve.)
 Ramsey, 1—(Went early and never did come out.)
 Ganz, 1—(He's used to it.)
 Fat, 0—(Had to work, but was there in spirit.)
 Hike Ohling, 1—(Got so excited he forgot to put his feet down at the bottom of the chute.)

Some Summer Day

Some summer day, in this year of our Lord, 1921, when text books, and thoughts of text books, are far away, you'll cross the trail of the Ellison-White Chautauquas. It may be on the prairies of Alberta or in the Canadian Rockies, or in the far north Peace River country. It may be along the Clearwater in Idaho, or down in the orange lands of the South, or over on the windswept plains of Wyoming.

Wherever and whenever it is—stop! Spend a few hours under one of the big brown tents. You'll find wholesome entertainment there, good music and perhaps a lecture that will inspire and help you.

Willamette University

College of Law

Tribute of the Supreme Court of the State of Oregon to the Law Department of Willamette University

Extracts from a letter written by the Supreme Court of Oregon, to the President of the University:

"In our examination of applicants for admission to practice Law in Oregon, we have always found the graduates of the Willamette Law School as full and well prepared as the graduates from any of the Law Schools, including the leading colleges of the United States; and graduates of the Willamette Law School have repeatedly taken first honors in such examinations. We have also observed that many of the Alumni of the Willamette Law School have taken high rank in the practice of their profession, and are among the prominent and useful citizens of the Pacific Northwest, thus reflecting credit not only on the Law School, but on Willamette University, which they regard as their alma mater."

The College of Law has several special advantages. It is located in the capital city where the Supreme Court is almost constantly in session. The Law Department has exceptional facilities in its nearness to the State Library, containing more than thirty thousand volumes, to which the law students have free access.

This School is fully accredited by the State and Federal authorities for the payment of benefits to those entitled to them under the returned soldiers, sailors and marines educational aid and vocational training acts.

The home of the Law School is on the college campus. Law students are members of the Student Body of the University and have the opportunity of engaging in the various student enterprises and activities, and do in fact take a prominent place in the student affairs.

REQUIREMENTS FOR ADMISSION

Applicants for admission to the Freshman year must be at least eighteen years of age and must furnish certificates of good moral character. Graduates of high schools maintaining a standard four-year course of study, or educational institutions whose course is equivalent to such high school course, are admitted without examination, other applicants are required to pass satisfactory examination in the essential subjects of a four years' high school course; in special instances, persons whose educational qualifications are deficient may have the opportunity of making the necessary grades in the College of Liberal Arts or the Academy during the time they are taking the Law Course.

The course covers three years, graduates receiving the degree of LL.B.

FEES

Tuition, $60.00 per year. Student Body fee, $10.00 per year.

STAGGERING STATISTICS

If Ralph Barnes' tardiness were due to sickness his doctor bill would amount to $2,386.47.

The co-eds of Lausane use enough shampoo to supply the standing army of Paraguay.

The Kappa Gamma Rho house owns one more Sloop than the Swiss navy.

If Russ Rarey would go directly home from chapel every day for a month the energy thus saved would be sufficient to lift Eaton Hall one foot.

If the footsteps expended by this young gentleman between 12 noon and 12:30 P. M. were placed end to end they would extend from Waller Hall to the Sigma Tau House via 460 North 13th.

If woolen cloth were 15c a car load the money accruing from glee club fines would buy a wrestling jacket for a bumblebee.

If Tuffy were given $1.00 for every time he attends chapel, by the end of the year he would have at least 50 cents.

If 15% of the Freshman class progressed as rapidly over a measured track as they do in Freshman Bible by next Christmas the distance covered would be approximately equal to the hypotenuse of a gnat's handkerchief.

If the difference in height between Maxine and Marjory were computed in dollars it would buy two dozen belaying pins for a seagoing hack.

Pres. Doney, being fond of hunting, was out with his gun and dog one day,
when he met Loren Basler, whom he re-proved for having skipped chapel.

"You should attend chapel and read your Bible," said Doctor Doney.

"I do read my Bible," was the answer,
"and I don't find any mention of apostles going a shooting."

"No," replied the Doctor, "the shooting was bad in Palestine, so they went fishing instead."
