

PORTRAIT OF DR. EATON UNVEILED

AN IMPRESSIVE CEREMONY MARKS PROGRESSIVE STEP.

Magnificent Picture the Nucleus for a Gallery of Founders and Benefactors of W. U.

An event of unusual interest and marking an epoch in the development of Willamette University was the unveiling of the magnificent portrait of Dr. A. E. Eaton yesterday morning at the chapel hour.

A large throng of students and friends of the University filled the main corridor of Eaton Hall long before the time for the ceremony arrived. Especially to be noticed were a number of members of the board of trustees and ministers of the city. At ten o'clock the service began with the regular chapel exercises, President Homan presiding.

The exercises preliminary to the unveiling consisted of a number of short speeches from men representing the University, the city of Salem, and the state of Oregon. Vice-president Todd related how Mr. Eaton had been prevailed upon to sit for the portrait. In behalf of the Salem business men, Mr. Joe Albert brought greetings and read an intensely interesting historical sketch of the early development of Willamette University, dwelling especially upon the close affiliation of the Methodist church and Oregon History, and upon the glorious heritage which belongs to this school. Judge Moreland, who probably knows more about Willamette and early Oregon history than any other man, said that he had great difficulty in restraining himself from speaking on this subject so close to his heart. He confined his remarks to bringing a greeting from Governor West. Dr. Homan spoke of his pride in representing this historic institution and of the ambition of many friends of the college that the portrait of Dr. Eaton may be only the beginning of a gallery to include the faces of all of Willamette's founders and large benefactors. Immediately following this address, the curtain was dropped from the picture and, after a moment's silence, enthusiastic applause greeted the familiar features looking down with that mingled expression of sternness and kindness which characterize the features of Willamette's "Grand Old Man."

The picture, which is a life size portrait of Dr. Eaton in sitting posture, is really a masterpiece of art, and represents an expenditure of fifteen hundred dollars, exclusive of a three hundred dollar frame. But in the hearts of Willamette faculty, students and friends, it is without price. The portrait is the work of Mr. Webster of Evanston, Ill., a painter of national repute. Especial gratitude is due to Dr. Gillman, of the Idaho Conference, and Dr. Todd, through whose urging Mr. Eaton consented to sit for the picture. These men, by their persuasion, and Mr. Eaton, by yielding, have started a collection which will one day be the pride of the University.

A son was born on September 12 to Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Walker of Lakeport, Oregon. This will be of interest to the Willamette friends of Mrs. Walker, formerly Helen Mae Smith. The boy will travel by the name of Isaac Fletcher Walker.

R. L. Frasher, of last year's Freshman class, was on the campus last week greeting friends. He will spend the year at his home in Fresno, and expects to return to Willamette next fall.

WILLAMETTE GRADS TAKE WORK IN EAST

With the departure of J. B. C. Oakes of last year's graduating class for Harvard and J. W. Crawford, '11, for Yale, this fall, the University will be ably represented in America's two foremost colleges.

Mr. Oakes, who was very prominent in all undergraduate activities, especially in the Glee Club, Y. M. C. A., and on the baseball diamond, will take special graduate work in sociology and political science at Harvard, being his major at Willamette.

Mr. Crawford goes back to Yale for law. He graduated from the Willamette College of Law and will gain his LL. D. from Yale with one year's resident work. While in school Mr. Crawford was editor of the Collegian, president of the Student Body, and for the past year has been in the Attorney-General's office.

LARGE BEQUEST COMES TO W. U.

E. E. Upmeyer of Harrisburg Remembers Willamette Generously.

By the bequest of Mr. E. E. Upmeyer of Harrisburg, Willamette University is to come into possession of real estate valued at approximately $50,000, according to advice received by the University last week when the will was probated. The property consists of 2,000 acres of land situated in Linn County in the vicinity of Harrisburg.

According to the terms of the will, the property will not be immediately forthcoming, but will remain to the credit of Mrs. Upmeyer until her death, unless she should desire to transfer it to the University at an earlier time.

Mr. and Mrs. Upmeyer have been strong friends and supporters of Willamette for a number of years. Mrs. Upmeyer, a number of years ago and prior to her marriage, was matron of Lausanne Hall and it was through her that Mr. Upmeyer became interested in the school.

The bequest is the direct result of a conference between President Homan and Mr. Upmeyer several months ago, when Mr. Upmeyer decided to make the gift and upon terms practically the same as those in his will.

This gift gives a most substantial boost to the campaign for increased resources for the University and sets a splendid example to wealthy Methodists throughout the state for the disposal of their property.

FACULTY ENLARGED.

Willamette Secures Services of Well-Prepared Experienced Teachers.

The new members of our faculty have entered into their work with all energies aglow. They are determined to give the students the full benefit of all their time.

Miss Pennington, dean of women, will have the supervision of the Freshmen and the Sophomore English classes. She is a graduate of Northwestern University and comes to us very highly recommended.

Miss E. Krenning will wield the scepter over the English literature classes and is determined to put up a stiff course. The work will cover a great deal of ground but Prof. Krenning is extremely well fitted to handle it. She received her A. M. from Columbia and has completed the work for advanced standing.

Mr. Cooley, professor of European history and psychology, is a graduate of Harvard. He has also received his Ph. D. from Clark University and was intimately associated with Prof. Hall, the great psychologist. From the start, Mr. Cooley has been a favorite with the student body and will surely be an added stimulus to the faculty.

ASSOCIATIONS HOLD JOLLY-UPS

Y. M. AND Y. W. GIVE NEW STUDENTS RECEPTION.

It was Friday that the mysterious little invitations to the Y. W. C. A. welcoming party at Chestnut Farm were distributed among the girls of the school. To the new girls, and especially to those who had been seeing the world through indigo spectacles during the past week, the prospect of a social affair so early in the year seemed delightful and even the name "Chestnut Farm" was pleasantly suggestive.

Of course the girls came, drawn by a mixture of friendliness and mutual curiosity, and the greetings and merrymaking that went on on the lawns and wide porches of the Fields home were such that no one could possibly feel new or strange. From the moment the dusty and expectant troupe were welcomed at the gate by Mrs. Ivan Bollinger until the last, when the generous piles of apples and nuts had disappeared and the repertoire of Willamette songs had been exhausted, there was not a dull minute, and at sunset threescore girls filed out on their homeward way declaring that they simply couldn't have had a better time.

Y. M. C. A. MIX

From the first thud of brown hot-handers to the flash-light and final rush, the Y. M. C. A. stag mix last Saturday evening was just as informal and enthusiastic as the annual "stag" always is. The principal entertainment of the evening consisted of a series of rather strenuous games, including hot-hand, three-deep, sack race, three-legged race, elephant race, and progressive club race. In a number of events, classes were pitted, while others were free-for-all.

When the games began to drag, a large circle was formed, and each fellow in turn arose and gave his name, class, and home. At this time, B. Lee Paget, trustee of the University and candidate for United States Senator on the Prohibition ticket, who had dropped in during the evening, gave the fellows a rousing talk. Prof. Cooley, who had just arrived in the city, was introduced and was given a rousing reception.

The circle formed into a bread line and each man in the course of his meanderings picked up a cup of coffee, a hot coney-island, and all the apples he could manage.

The evening was closed by brief speeches from men representing the various school activities. Carl Hollingsworth, president of the Y. M. C. A., greeted the new students in behalf of that organization; Paul Homan spoke for the Collegian; Robert Minton for the literary societies, and Dr. Sweetland for athletics. President Homan was the concluding speaker, dwelling especially upon the aims and ideals of Willamette.

Bruce McDaniel was in charge of the mix, being assisted in the culinary end by Doane Manning, Irvine and Paget, and in the entertainment by Hollingsworth and Paul Homan.

Florence Metcalf, '13, has gone with her parents to Berkeley and will attend the University of California this year. Word received from her says that all her credits were transferred and two extra ones given for the quality of her work. She will be classified as a senior.

PROMINENT JURIST OF WASHINGTON DIES

Ralph Dunbar, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Washington, died at Olympia, Sept. 19. Tho' not an Alumnus, Judge Dunbar attended Willamette for a number of years, receiving all his early schooling here. He has been a prominent figure in Washington politics for many years. He was a member of the Constitutional Convention, when the state of Washington was organized and was chosen to the Supreme Court at the first election in 1889. His service has been continuous since that time. A wife and three children survive him. Judge Dunbar has been one of three old Willamette students on the Supreme Bench in Washington.

STUDENTS FLOCK TO WILLAMETTE

Registration is Heavy in the College of Liberal Arts.—Freshmen boys are in the Majority.

Registration with its many surprises has passed for the students of Old Willamette. The cardinal and old gold float over a greatly increased student body this year. The summer's work of the two Christian associations in conjunction with the office speaks well in the showing of new college students.

A review of the registration blanks gives one the view of the coming years when Willamette will have a Freshman class numbered in the hundreds.

All the upper classes are well filled for this time of year. There are several additions coming from colleges of the Central West and Oregon, including from colleges of the Central West and Oregon.

The Freshman class, though expected to be of large size, has passed all expectations. The growth of the Freshman class of the past two years has been phenomenal. Last year the class grew one hundred per cent, and this incoming class shows an increase of fifteen per cent over last year.

The chapel room seating is equally full upon both sides of the house, though the Fairer section still carries a small majority.

The campus, though seemingly alive, will have a still more festive air when the Medical and Law Colleges open on the eighth of October. Large increases are anticipated in both departments.

VACANCIES OCCUR IN STUDENT OFFICES

President and Secretary of Student Body Fail to Return.

The failure of Harry McCain and Grace Edgington to return to school has left the student body without either president or secretary. It will have to get along as best it can, however, until after the election of the new members of the executive committee. It was thought at first that the vice-president would take up the duties of the president, in which case the toga would have fallen upon Jesse Young, but recourse to the constitution revealed that both vacancies must be filled by the executive committee.

The vacancies will be hard to fill as Mr. McCain was undoubtedly the ablest man and Miss Edgington one of the most talented women in the University. McCain was elected without opposition last spring, and at present there seems to be no definite idea who his successor should be. According to custom, the position of student body amanuensis will no doubt go to the co-eds.

The executive committee is to be elected this week, perhaps today, although this had not been decided when the Collegian reporter inquired.

GRIDIRON SEASON OPENS DARKLY

EARLY PROSPECTS POOR BUT NEW MATERIAL IS GOOD.

Schedule Opens With Big Annual Game---Old-Timers to Have Formidable Lineup.

Willamette's football prospects for the coming season, while not exactly bright, are far from gloomy, and if that ancient enemy, Minor Accidents, can be steered clear of, a successful year is assured. Enough old men are back to insure a good solid nucleus around which to form a team, and while new material for all the vacant positions is not in sight at present, it must be remembered that Law and Medicine have not opened yet.

The loss of Booth, Cummins, McCain, Westley, Ralph Homan and Watson will be felt keenly and it is doubtful if any of these men can be replaced entirely.

At the present writing, nothing much can be said about the prowess of the new men already at work, as there has been no scrimmage practice, but young and Small show promise of developing into first squad material. Several members of last season's second team show a marked improvement and unless all signs fail they will have opportunity this year of proving their worth.

Willamette has a hard season before her this year and will need all the material she can get. Games have been arranged for with Oregon, Montana, Whitworth, Puget Sound, Vancouver Barracks, Columbus Club and Chemawa, and it will take more these games or at least put up an old Willamette fight for them. There are over thirty men out every afternoon now and that alone presages a team with enough good men to spare, so that the injury of any one man will not materially cripple the team. More men are expected soon and while no names can be given, the manager and Coach Sweetland say there are some good ones among them.

The first game of the season will be played next Saturday with the Alumni and this will be one of the hardest games of the season. The exact lineup of the old-timers cannot be discovered but all may be sure that it will be as strong as the proverbial horseradish. Willamette's lineup on that occasion is also shrouded in mystery, for no one can tell what a week's scrimmage practice will bring forth.

On the following Saturday the University of Oregon will be met at Eugene and the outcome of this game will determine Willamette's place in Northwest football.

But whatever happens to the cardinal and old gold, we still have Dr. Sweetland and that alone insures the strongest possible team from the material available and besides that, a fighting team that will never give up till the last whistle blows.

Y. M. C. A.

Sunday afternoon when the referee's whistle blew, the Y. M. C. A. squad found itself made up of a goodly number of old men and much strengthened by new ones. Every man seemed to feel at home and played well his part.

The meeting was in the nature of an echo from the summer's work, and old and new together told briefly of their vacations and of the stand they proposed to make at Willamette.

Editor PAUL T. HOMAN
Manager C. ROBERT MINTON

THE COLLEGIAN DECLARES ITS POLICY.

Without going into any extended "declaration of principles," the Collegian will follow a longstanding and very proper custom by briefly stating the policy which, to the best of its ability, it will follow:

In its capacity as a newspaper, it aims to publish all the legitimate news of the University in a pleasing and conservative manner, thus mirroring the life of the school. In addition, news from the colleges of the Northwest and articles of special or timely interest will find their way into the paper.

More than ever before, the Collegian should serve as a forum for student opinion on all questions of local importance. This is a department which, at Willamette as elsewhere, has not thrived for lack of interest. We are not inviting a flood of sermons and "calls to duty," but rather pertinent criticisms of abuses and suggestions for improvements in the life of the University.

The editorial column must serve more than a single purpose, but in all its phases we purpose to make the keynote frankness and sincerity. Attention will be focused where attention is needed, and criticism and praise will be impartial. In the more important sphere of intercollegiate relations, the attitude of the student body must, in general, determine that of the paper, though exception may be taken to this. And if the editorial column should succeed in reducing to print some of those unformed and almost intangible thoughts and emotions which determine the atmosphere of a college, it will have more than served its purpose.

In short, the Collegian will attempt to mirror both the life and the thought of Willamette students, to criticize constructively, and to boost for Willamette at all times, not in the narrow and crude way which sets up one's own institution as a criterion by which all others must be judged, but with the intense realization that we have here a school with unsurpassed traditions, high ideals and a place to fill in the development of the great Northwest. It is in this difficult task that the editor asks your active cooperation and support.

AN OPPORTUNITY.

A few of the tried and true members of former Collegian staffs are again in the harness, along with a number of new recruits. The organization at present, however, is far from enjoying a condition of the highest efficiency. Membership on the staff must be, in a sense, competitive, and for that reason changes will be necessary from time to time. In his initial choice of reporters, the editor will doubtless overlook some, especially among the Freshmen, who have ability to make good in this line of work. Any persons desiring an opportunity to try their hand at reporting are requested to see the editor, and assignments will be given as far as possible, though without assurance of publishing the first story.

The roster of the staff will be published in the next issue and changes will be noted as made.

CHANGES IN COLLEGIAN.

With this issue, the day of issuing and the size of the Collegian are changed. As a large proportion of University functions come at the week-end, the advantage of Wednesday over Friday both for reports and announcements is obvious.

Without the least intent of slurring last year's Collegian, which was by all odds the best ever published, we consider the smaller size more appropriate for a college paper. The intention is not to lessen the news service but to dispense as far as possible with "filler" and secure point and brevity in the articles published. In the last analysis, it is the content and not the mere form of the paper which determines its ranking and so we ask of those who are prone to criticize the change that they at least give us an opportunity to "produce the goods" before consigning us to the unhappy company of the "never-wases" or "might-have-beens."

Manager Minton is looking for a good assistant or two to help with the circulation and advertising. Any one who is willing to work is invited to apply. The positions offer good opportunity for advancement.

CHRISTIAN ASSOC'NS AT HOME TO NEW STUDENTS

The first all-University function of the year will be the Y. M. Y. W. C. A. joint reception to new students to be held Friday evening, Oct. 5. This annual event is one of the most anticipated events of the year, as it affords an opportunity for old students to meet the new, and the new to meet each other. Meanwhile, everyone is trying to maintain an attitude of distant indifference toward those attractive members of the opposite sex, whose acquaintance has not been made. It is safe to say that the lure will be strong enough to bring out a very large percentage of the men, and of course it is up to the girls not to disappoint them.

The exact nature of the evening's entertainment is not being divulged by those in charge but it is understood that the affair will be semi-formal. A receiving host, a short musical program, and various get-acquainted schemes are known to form a part of the program.

The reception will be held in the main corridor of the first floor of Eaton Hall, and will begin at eight o'clock. Lola Cook Bellinger of the Y. W. C. A. and Bruce McDaniel of the Y. M. C. A. have charge of the plans for the evening and they do not intend that the "joint" shall lose any of the good reputation it has enjoyed in the past.

Y. W. C. A. NOTES.

Every girl who attended the party at Chestnut Farm, whether or not she has ever before been associated with "Y. W." work, cannot help being in-

Arrangements have been made for meetings of special interest by well-informed leaders from the community at large and by students. Those of us who remember the "Professional Series" given last spring will know that good meetings for the coming year are assured.

It has become necessary to have the rest room on the first floor in the art room occupied by Miss Wagner last year, and the change will be made in the near future.

The first meeting of the Y. W. C. A. will be held Thursday at 3:30. The president, Miss Jessie Young, will speak on "The Geometry of College Life," and it is desired that every girl be present. Especially do we invite the girls who are here for the first time.

Let those who are not yet Y. W. girls remember to help the Association by subscribing to the Collegian through the Y. W. C. A.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES.

The Y. M. C. A. cordially invites the attention of every man of the University to its various activities and especially to the religious meetings held every Sunday at 3:00 p. m. in the Websterian Hall.

The following is the first series of lectures to be given this college year, the aim of the series being to give to the men a broader vision and higher conception of the various phases of the Scriptures and to encourage Bible study:

Oct. 6—The Sociology of the Bible.
Oct. 13—The Philosophy of the Bible.

Oct. 20—The History of the Bible.
Oct. 27—The Bible as a Book of Law.

Nov. 3—The Hebrew Religion Compared with Other Religions.

Nov. 10—The Modern Trend of the Religions of the World.

It is the aim of the association to secure capable and interesting speakers from the ranks of business and professional men from the city and out of town points. We will assure every man time profitable spent by taking in every number of the above series.

The sale of season tickets covering all students body events is being promoted by Graduate Manager Geary of the University of Oregon. The scheme is backed by most of the prominent students, but some opposition has arisen among the co-eds, notable the editor of the Oregon Monthly. They seem unwilling to do away with the old custom by which the escort pays. The plan is ultiminterested in an organization which affords as good fellowship and splendid times as that of Saturday afternoon. There is a charm about Chestnut Farm which makes it ideal for the initial party for new girls, and the good times which have been enjoyed through the kindness of Mr. and Mrs. Fields will be long remembered. About eighty girls spent the afternoon in playing lawn games and listening to musical numbers. The refreshments were luscious apples, nuts and candy.

Plans for the year's work have already been made by the Cabinet. The work of the Extension Committee both at the High School and at Chemarua will begin soon. The Bible and Missionary Committees have arranged for splendid courses. The Bible course offers work with Dr. Avison and with Mrs. Sherwood. CAMPUS IMPROVED.

Grounds Beautiful and Buildings Overhauled During Summer.

It was certainly a joy to the old students to see the improved appearance of the campus upon returning from their vacation. It has really begun to take on the appearance of a bona fide sure-enough lawn, and never again will the professor of botany proclaim to a skeptical and unbelieving crowd that a blade of grass has been found upon the campus. In fact the latest count ran well into the millions.

Almost unexcelled in advantages of nature and environment, the campus has in the past been woefully neglected. Its improvement dates from three years ago when considerable work was done, but never has there been anything like a respectable lawn or adequate care until this year. The great change in appearance since last spring is due almost entirely to Dr. Sweetland, whose tireless energy and zeal have kept him behind a scythe or a lawnmower during the whole summer.

Another pleasant surprise came upon entering the once dingy halls of the chapel building. The tinting of the walls and painting of floors, steps and woodwork have worked wonders with that historic old structure. The chapel room is much brightened by the lighter walls and woodwork.

A number of other welcome improvements have been made about buildings and grounds. The athletic field has been enlarged by the moving out of the north fence and the south fence has been extended around the southeast corner of the campus, shutting out the altogether unlovely view of the cannery to a large extent. In the medical building two new rooms have been finished and will be fitted up as a dispensary. Improvements at Lausanne Hall, which are noted elsewhere, will serve to make it considerably more habitable until a new dormitory is built, which there is every reason to hope will be in the next year.

BAND ORGANIZED.

Willamette has many student activities of which to be proud, such as the Glee Club, the debating societies, the Collegian, and athletics. In these she excels. But one branch has been neglected, and even now we find the Varsity Band in an infant state.

Now a band is just as important to the school as it is to the army. In both places it serves the same purpose.

The regimental band is the united voice of the regiment. It speaks the joy or sorrow of the regiment. It sounds the peans of praise for the heroes, it pours out the fanfare of victory, it rouses in men their sense of patriotism, it inspires them to triumph, it impels them as one man to dare and to achieve. Is there not a place for it in our college?

Prospects are now good for the band, which only started last year to become a permanent organization. Among the new recruits there are two experienced solo cornetists, an excellent clarinetist, a tuba shark, and a mellow-phone. A band of eighteen or twenty pieces is expected.

Willamette men who have cheered their various teams through defeat and victory surely will take hold and boost their band until that organization excels as do our other student activities.

GRIDIRON NOTES.

Dudley Clarke, the well known Oregon fullback, has been secured to coach the Pacific University football team. Clarke has quite a reputation in football circles and should turn out a creditable team from the Forest Grove school.

Punting and running a few preliminary signals has been the chief work of the squad so far. In the former, Francis, Bolt, and Rowland have been doing the most consistent kicking, Francis especially showing great improvement.

Peggy Paget is again installed as assistant football manager and is back at his old stand dealing out rigs.

Francis is back gambolling around as usual, "Prunes" says he is in fine condition and not much run down by his summer's work.

Erskine pulled in the last of last week, bringing with him a husky that should make things hum in several branches of athletics.

McRae is interne at the Salem Hospital this year.

Watson, who demonstrated his ability as tackle in the O. A. C. game last season, is in town and may register. He is a fighter and would strengthen the team materially.

Blackwell is back from the wilds of Alaska, where he hunted and fished and supported a large colony of mosquitos.

Drake, the star 'varsity twirler, is out in full regalia.

PROHIS PLAN WORK.

McCain took second national prize at Atlantic City, N. J., on July 15th, and the Music Hall rang with the applause of ten thousand people. They were hearing some of the best orators produced by the colleges of the whole United States. And we are proud that Old Willamette was well represented there, Harry G. McCain winning second prize as national orator.

It is extremely creditable to our College Prohibition League that they have made such a fine record. It adds new stimulus to the work to be taken up this year.

We want every man who is interested in his social and political obligations to take a look at the purpose and aim of this organization.

A study class is conducted in which are considered and discussed all the phases of the temperance question, economic standpoint.

It must be admitted that in the next fifteen years this great economic question must be decided by the nation which it confronts.

Every year local, intercollegiate, and interstate contests in oratory are held by this league. Through these contests much good oratory is developed, and especially are the contestants made to realize the magnitude and importance of the question they are helping to solve.

We had a good league last year. We want a bigger, stronger one this year. You will have a chance to join. Think it over.

There will be a meeting of the League at 3:30 p. m. today, in Prof. Walsh's room. Old members and new ones, be there.

Gilkey worked in the state library and Carl Hollingsworth was director of a public grounds in Portland, as was also J. B. Oakes.

"Big Mac" McDaniel sold "Our National Government" in eastern Oregon and is now engaged at Hot Lake. He did not return to school this fall. "Little Mac" was a genuine lumberjack and embryo botanist.

"Big and Little" Irvine were carpenters and farmers respectively. Doane spent the summer in the harvest fields of eastern Oregon. Robt. Minton spent the summer doing horticultural work. Paget worked in Portland.

McCaddam spent his few weeks in Idaho, while "Bill" Schrieber, after going on the G. N. G. hike, returned to him home at McMinnville.

Here we have represented farmers, clerks, booksellers, aluminum agents, carpenters, tourists, Y. M. C. A. men, lumberjacks, reporters, school teachers, botanists, soldiers, insurance agents, cooks, lawyers, hunters, fishermen, and many other occupations.

Bolt worked all summer at Marshfield, while Joe Whitby, George Curry and Marble Green graced La Grande, Ore., with their presence. Whitby has been suffering from typhoid fever since the middle of August and is slowly recovering. He will not return to Willamette this year on that account.

FAIR GOD HAS BUSY SUMMER

Former Football Star and Prominent Students and Alumni are Victims.

Willamette stock took a very marked rise in the matrimonial market during the past summer. Reports which have reached the Collegian are not far amiss. "Grads" and "undergrads" seem to have been speculating in the market, or tempting the fair god, or however you wish to express it, with the same reckless abandon.

John Hatz, '12, put one over on his friends by committing the dread deed the week following Commencement. The bride is a Portland girl. They are planning to sail for Africa as missionaries in the near future.

Closely following, Ivan Bellinger, Medic '13, and Lola Belle Cook, '14, plighted their troth and took to the woods for their honeymoon. Both will return to the University.

Another addition to the ranks of the benedicts is Floyd Boyington, ex-'15, whose bride was Mae Gremmels of Salem. Friends of "Bill" Foss, prey '14, say that he has found a Hood River girl who suits him and will not return to school.

From Pomona, California, comes the news that Ward Fisher, Medic ex-'13, and Ethel May, ex-'13, were recently married at the home of the bride's parents, formerly of Salem.

Luke Rader, ex-'13, of football fame, is another of the company who have exchanged the joys of single blessedness for married bliss. The girl who has undertaken the job of making Luke walk to the mark is from Portland. At present they are located in San Francisco.

Quite a flurry occurred in the matrimonial market September 18th, when Guy Woods, '11, and Annie Pigler, '10, were married at the home of the bride in this city. They will make their home in Portland, where Woods is employed in the Y. M. C. A.

The most recent of the happy occasions was that of last Wednesday morning, when two prominent alumni, Dr. Grover Bellinger, '10, and Miss Hattie Beckley, '11, were married. Dr. Bellinger is employed at the State Insane Hospital, where he will take up his duties after a short honeymoon.

Dame Rumor has it that the list will be enlarged in the near future and notice of the additions will be given in the Collegian as far as we hear of them.

HANDBOOK ATTRACTIVE.

The Y. M. C. A. handbook, which was issued last week, is a neat and useful little volume. A large amount of information especially illuminating to the new students is crowded between its covers. Among the features are writings of the principal college organizations and activities, a list of college yells and songs, college traditions, and memoranda. The volume is leather bound with the Willamette seal on the front. Ruth Young, as editor, and Robert Minton, as manager, are the ones to whom credit is due for its excellence.

MCCAIN RANKS HIGH.

Willamette Representative Takes Second in Prohibition Contest.

To miss by only one point the first honors in the great national prohibition oratorical contest, held at Atlantic City last July, was the fortune of Harry McCain, who represented Willamette University. First honors went to Frank Wideman of Florida, the silver tongued orator of the South, but the contest was very close between the two, and the winner won by the closest margin possible.

The contest was held during the National Convention of the Prohibition Party at Atlantic City, N. J., on July 9, 1912, before an audience of 10,000 people. Representatives from Oregon, California, Iowa, Nebraska, Michigan and Florida, who had won from over 700 other contestants in 41 contests throughout the United States, fought for supremacy in one of the most exciting forensic battles ever held before the national convention. The great audience which packed the immense music hall, half a mile out in the ocean, cheered each orator to the echo.

McCain, one of the strongest all around men at the University, had won first place in the state Prohibition oratorical contest, and first again in the interstate in the contest between Oregon, California, Washington and Idaho. He was a strong football man and was president elect of the student body for this year. However, Mr. McCain has gone back to Northwestern University to complete his liberal arts, he already being a graduate of Kimball College.

CRITERION.

We wish to call the attention of all new academy students to the merits of our literary society. The purpose of the Society is to develop the readiness of speech and thought in public, but at the same time the social side is not neglected.

The past year was very successful in both literary and social affairs. Every week programs consisting of debates, extemporaneous speeches, papers on current issues and other interesting topics were rendered. Intermingled with these were many excellent musical numbers and other things of value.

Membership is at a premium and all wishing to join should hand in their applications at an early date.

The Y. M. C. A. has been conducting a free book exchange in the Collegian office for the mutual benefit of those having and those desiring second-hand books. Trade has not been very brisk, however, on account of changes in a number of texts used, and because of the unwillingness of most of the students to part with their old friends.

LAUSANNE ALIVE.

Dean of Women Entertains Girls on Thursday Evening.

Monday morning life began in reality at Lausanne Hall. After the meeting of the old girls all attention was turned to making life pleasant for the new neighbors. At first Miss Pennington was at her wits' end to provide quarters for all the girls, but everything has been straightened out and once more the Hall is the same old Hall.

For several weeks the Hall has been undergoing a thorough process of renovation. Besides the addition of three rooms on the fourth floor, the rooms have been re-papered, wood-work painted, and new stoves and furniture added. The parlors have been made more "homey" and will be further improved by the installation of a new piano.

Miss Pennington's invitation to a reception for the new girls started the eternal "What shall I wear" question. This, however, had been completely settled by eight o'clock in the evening, when the parlors were full, with Mr. Featherduster and family, the policeman's goat, and other mysterious characters, producing a continuous flow of fun. After other games, all were treated to delicious lemonade and wafers. Musical talent was found in plenty, but the numbers most enjoyed were the piano solos by Miss Pennington. Every girl present pronounced Miss Pennington a royal hostess as well as a good mother.

"The more the merrier," so with almost twice the number of girls in the Hall than last year, a splendid happy year is anticipated.

At the first convention of the Oregon Agricultural College students President Keir gave some excellent advice to the incoming students as to their conduct in their college work and amusements. He explained that the use of tobacco in any form on the campus is strictly forbidden and further that "the man to whom intoxicants are in any least degree necessary is not wanted—that the use of intoxicating liquors is prohibited."
