NEWSWRITING CLASS HEARS CRITICISMS

"Proofreading, although only one of many things which make or mar a publication, is probably the greatest single basis for popular criticism of a newspaper," said Sheldon F. Sackett, one of the publishers of the New Oregon Statesman, in an address to the news writing class Thursday.

Mr. Sackett, at the request of William Smullin, Collegian editor, criticized the Collegian. His chief adverse criticisms were directed not at the paper as a whole, but at definite articles and small errors. He deplored the custom of using jokes as fillers, but congratulated the staff upon the general make-up of the paper. He also discussed the making of news "newsy" and the psychology of pyramiding advertisements.

Mr. Sackett edited the Collegian when he was in Willamette University. He is now vice-president of the alumni organization.

WHITMAN GAME IS TO BE PLAYED THANKSGIVING

Contest Will Start at 1:30 P. M. Students Sit in Grandstand Crowd Indefinite

Final plans have been set for the game with Whitman on Thanksgiving Day, according to Leslie Sparks, Graduate Manager. The game will be called at 1:30 sharp, so that the students staying for the game will be able to reach home in the early evening.

The students will occupy the east end of the grandstand, as they did in the C. P. S. game. Unless the weather clears the bleachers will not be put up, so the grandstand will probably be crowded. In view of this, the students should be in their places by 1:20 at least. There is nothing that points to a large attendance, that will be decided largely by the weather, but a Whitman-Willamette game always does draw a large crowd.

MEMBERSHIP CLAUSE ACCEPTED BY WOMEN

At a meeting after chapel held discussing the plans for the Kits, the women of the university voted to accept the membership clause of the constitution, which provides for equal representation of all the women's organizations.

The Kits will be composed of twenty girls, twelve sophomores and eight freshmen, the new members to be chosen by the club. They will be selected according to their interest and participation in college activities, their dependability, their sense of honor and their sense of democracy.

The purpose of this organization is to stimulate enthusiasm and interest in all college activities, to be of service to the college wherever and whenever necessary, and to uphold tradition.

PROGRAM GIVEN IN Y. BY BEETHOVENS

Friday evening the Beethoven society gave a most successful program in the lobby of the Y. M. C. A. The large audience was extremely appreciative. The program included the following numbers.

PAN-PACIFICERS STUDY RELATIONS

DR. COLEMAN IS LEADER

Six Students Represent W. U. In Portland. Four Issues Were Presented

The Northwest Student Council sponsored a Pacific Relations Conference at Reed College campus November 23, 24, and 25.

The significance of the Pan-Pacific Conference is that it is entirely a student enterprise. This first meeting was held by way of experimentation as it was the first one to be held in the Northwestern states.

The subject matter, which involved the study of international relations of the Pacific countries in social and inter-racial relationships between the occidentals and orientals, was treated as inquiry. There was little generalization, but more of a prying into matters.

Aim of Conference

The aim of the conference was to establish a better understanding between occidentals and orientals.

The leaders of the conference (Turn to page 3, Please.)

MEN ACQUIRE CLUB ROOM IN CHRESTO

Cottage Equipped with Chess, Checkers, Magazines and Fire in Fireplace

A men's club-room with chess, checkers, magazines, and open fire, comfortable chairs, a piano, and tables is the use to which Chresto Cottage will be put henceforth. The cottage which was formerly under the joint control of the Chrestomathean Literary Society and the Y. M. C. A., has been taken over by the Y. M. C. A., since the literary society disbanded. Although sponsored by the Y. M. C. A., the house will be open to all Willamette men.

A fire will be built in the fireplace during the first period and Chresto will be open all day and until after 9:30 each night. It will probably be open on Sunday afternoons as well.

Harold Shellhart, president of the campus Y. M. C. A., says that although magazines, open fire, and chess and checkers have been supplied there will probably be further needs which will be filled as they are seen.

THANKSGIVING JOLLY- UP TO BE SATURDAY

No one need be homesick or blue because they stay in town over Thanksgiving vacation for on Saturday night the annual Jolly-up will be held at the Dreamland skating rink.

The committee in charge under the direction of Jean White, vice-president of the student body, are Florence Emmons and Evelyn High.

As the Jolly-up is under the direction of the A. S. W. U. there will be no admission charged, and at the close of the exercises refreshments will be served.

FRESHMEN VICTORS IN ARGUMENT WITH SOPHS

McMinnee Upholds Negative While Hayes Beall Handles Opposite. Judges Divided

The first of the series of inter-class debates was held between the Freshmen and Sophomores at the Chapel hour Tuesday, November 27. The subject for debate was Resolved, That the traditional policy of Freshman discipline, as evidenced by the wearing of green lids, should be abandoned. Hayes Beall, representing the Freshmen, upheld and won the affirmative. Warren McMinnee, for the Sophomores, argued upon the negative.

In a spirited discussion, the opponents presented their points. The affirmative contended that the present policy of discipline is destructive of school spirit, is undemocratic, setting the Fresh apart from various privileges, and is often unhealthful. As a remedy, the affirmative offered the plan that the Freshmen take upon themselves their own discipline, based upon class honor and personal loyalty.

The negative agreed with the plan thus offered, but considered such a measure to admit of no reason for dispensing with the green lid. It stated that the lid is beneficial not only to the faculty and student body, but to the Freshmen themselves, for whom it serves as a means of introduction to the community at large.

Dean Erickson introduced the speakers. The judges were Dean Hewitt, Dr. Hall, and Professor Richards. They based their decision upon the presentation of the subject, rather than upon the merits of the system.

FRESHMAN EDITOR ANNOUNCES STAFF

The annual Freshman edition of the Collegian will be published the Thursday following Thanksgiving. The editor, Eloise White, called a meeting of the staff Monday and already has many plans under way.

Any member of the Freshman class may assist with the paper by reporting to the editor. Previous experience is unnecessary, since the purpose of having a Freshman edition is to furnish an opportunity for the development of new talent.

Miss White has announced her staff as follows:

Associate editors: Mary Ka-toury, Isabel Childs.

Copy editor: Helen Breithaupt.

Society editors: Beryl Hale, Bertha Babcock.

Sport editors: Stearns Cushing, Robert Hills.

Copy reader: Margaret Eddy.

Last year Ella Howard edited the Freshman sheet entitled "Le Journal Des Enfants."

FACULTY MEMBERS MEET INFORMALLY AT LUNCH

Every Friday noon, any member of the Willamette university faculty who so desires may spend a social hour at the Spa attending the faculty members' luncheon. Formal business is taboo, the purpose of gathering being recreational.

The second group was of Northern France where pictures of Paris were shown as well as the country and occupations.

The third group was of Southern France, showing all the lovely things to be found there.

If possible more pictures will be shown in the future by Mr. Sidney Jones, who operated the machine.

Ourselves and The Next Generation

America is not yet enough civilized to scent the proposal that we must resort to sterilization to prevent the feeble minded and those tainted by chronic diseases from filling our insitutions with their offspring.

Such is the jist of a statement made by one of the leading dailies in the state in commenting upon a proposal made by Governor Hammill of Iowa for the sterilization of the unfit.

We are the ones who are going to determine the nature of coming generations. In our power and upon our knowledge is going to rest the problem of the propogation of a clean race.

We brag of what Christianity has done for the protection of life yet would it not be a lot more christian to allow these creatures, the results of the transmission of traits of depravity, criminality, mental incompetency, and bodily distortion to be put away quietly? We breed out the tainted strains in other animals approaching the standard of the full blood, yet when such a practice is mentioned with regard to human society we immediately become prudish, refusing the very consideration of such a subject. We study the effects of socially tainted upon society, the feeble-minded, realize how to prevent these effects, yet disregard our learning, and refuse to face the facts.

In the Oregon penitentiary are individuals clearly pervert who should never be the parents of children, nor should helplessness and innocence be exposed to their ambush. But the decision of sterilization rests not with the official or medical authority but with them.

Under such conditions how can the propogation of the feeble-minded and socially tainted be stopped? It is perfectly evident that these individuals will not give their consent to sterilization and the constant abatement of the menace which they represent to society.

We like to consider ourselves as students to be broadminded. In our hands rests the future of the next generation. Are we going to be like our fathers and continue to allow these conditions to exist, acting as a group of prudish clams, or are we going to use our knowledge as an intelligent human being should?

Mankind Seeks to Justify His Actions

Though times change and events are fast becoming history the Associated Press in its ever being on the trail for news brings to us one of the most noticeable of human traits.

Almost ten years have elapsed since the great World War ended and today we find a news correspondent seeking to get the former Kaiser Wilhelm's ideas of the world catastrophe. The late German ruler says that the spectacle of war guilt haunts him. It would seem that to his mind come pictures of a part which he played not well. Perhaps he is seeking to justify himself in the eyes of posterity, to have men think a little more kindly of him.—Such is the way of all humans.

Even the domineering Napoleon in his memoirs sought to extenuate himself in the eyes of the world. Both of these men were in a sense a product of as well as makers of the military force, whose strength proved their undoing.

The Kaiser may have been responsible to a greater degree than any other man for the World War, or again he may not, but be that as it may, the fact remains that we must ever seek to justify and explain our actions.

A Wandering Wondering Comment

"And he kept his ladder resting on the ground."

How many of us do not allow the immediate to foreshadow the ultimate? Our campus life is so dominated by what occurs from day to day that we do not take time to even think of what is to follow. We get our feet off their foundation and with our head in the clouds sail serenely on until we are suddenly awakened with a decided jar.

The bypaths continually hold more allurements than does the main highway. Little roads leading away tend to break the balance which should be held, and to wrap our lives.

A "good time" dominates the ether of our existence. Nor is this phrase applicable to merely one but applies equally to all. We continue to use it as a salve to our consciences and a byword to those surrounding us. Necking is but a foreshadowing of the finer things of life and indulging in it we excuse ourselves with the good time phrase. But will this sort of a good time really satisfy us? We cannot ignore that we owe something to our later existence.

Is not a lot of this good time stuff an allowing of the ladder to get off the ground?

We want to live but we are not pessimist enough to believe that such is a part of living.

The campus Y. M. C. A. under the leadership of Harold Shellhart has taken a much needed step in the establishment of a social club room for the men on the campus. A lounging room has long been needed, and it is to be hoped that those using Chresto will accord themselves with the intended atmosphere, that of a gentlemen's club.

Thanksgiving time brings us our first vacation period of the college year, and with it for many of us, comes the first chance which we have had to personally sell Willamette to the home folks.

Along the Way

Our idea of conceit is the man who is so proud of his own lips that he records their use after every occasion.

May the Wayfarers kindly suggest to the midnight nit-wits who have occasion to broadcast in much the same promiscuous manner as barnyard fowls that they choose their language with a trifle more care when approaching certain halls.

Why go to Paris when you can attend Fraternity Open House and see all the art and pseudo-art you'll want for one night?

Speaking of Open House, didn't you have a terrible time the morning after, with a red and a green taste as well as a brown one. At any rate the men believe in variety in both color and taste.

The college humor magazines should have had a representative visit each house Saturday night. Our representative (?) publications could have gleaned a lot of ideas, risque and otherwise, we are certain.

Don't get all hot and bothered now about the cop-tickets and ditches found at a recent Willamette party. Undoubtedly they were caused by spirits; but not by spirits of the usual variety. Just ask the spirits of Jason Lee and "Papa" Waller if they didn't receive visits that night. No other kind of spirits would be used at a Willamette function. We expect to be well rewarded for saying that.

We should like to ask the Rev. Dr., who accused the poets of using the expression, "the whole kit and caboodle," where he found that out. Our friend Gabby Garulous says that if poets talk that way, he is going to start reading Spicy Stories and such like.

We are grateful to the fates we weren't sleeping with the yell king when he tackled a bedpost the other night. Had we accepted his invitation to bunk with we might also be wearing a patch.

Here's a good one for you shivering fraternity men to try: It seems that the Kappas leave their wood out in the rain until it is well soaked with aqua natura, or at least until a mess of mist comes along and threatens to freeze them, and then, would you believe it? these enterprising collegiates burn the wet wood—presto change, steam heat. Pretty slick, eh what?

"Stroke your chins, and swear by your beards that 'we are knaves."

"By our beards, if we had them, thou art."

The largest and best college annuals of the United States have been secured. From this array of college publications the class hopes to get ideas that will fit life at W. U. Gillette's idea is to give every member of the class an opportunity to give something of material value to the book. To do this the customary

The students of the University of Texas became so exuberant over a recent snowfall that the windows were broken in nearly every building on the campus.

The Thanksgiving jolly-up which was held in the gym Thanksgiving night was a most successful affair. One of the most unique and enjoyable features of the entertainment was an impromptu play of four acts. The Virginia Reel was enjoyed until a late hour when all departed thanking the committee for a good time.

A MOTHER'S TRIBUTE

(Lela Bell Saunders)

Old books are fascinating, even when drab inwardly and outwardly, for in them one finds the view point of the past. Almost impossible for us to understand is an attitude that would direct a child's ideal to heaven via an early grave. Nowadays heaven itself is rather vague in our minds, and child mortality seems so unnecessary.

Malvina Forman Smith (are girls ever named Malvina now?) died at the early age of 17 years, 1 month and 16 days, a paragon of prenatal piety. Her short life was made the subject of "A Mother's Tribute to a Beloved Daughter" (published 1842). You will find it in our library in the section devoted to biography, under the S's.

This pink of perfection, this child whose short life history causes us to lift the eyebrow of superior amusement, while at the same time it faintly repels us, was brought up from her earliest days to consider the terrors of death, especially an ungodly death. Hell with its attendant

Lausanne Hall Extends Invitation to Students and Faculty Group

There will be a large number of Willamette students remaining at the houses, the hall, or with friends in Salem during the Thanksgiving vacation.

About five girls are remaining at the Delta Phi house and about twenty at Lausanne hall. Meals will be served at both places during vacation. However there will be no Thanksgiving dinner served at any of the sororities.

The management of Lausanne has issued an invitation to any member of the faculty or student body who wishes to join the girls at their holiday dinner.

No meals will be served during vacation at the Alpha Phi Alpha or Beta Chi houses. Those girls who are remaining in town will be at the house for only part of the time during the week-end.

About a dozen men will remain at each fraternity house, and as far as is now planned, the Sigma Tau house will be the only one serving meals.

fears was very real to her. When Malvina was six years old, she received her first letter from her grandmother, containing an exhortation to prepare for death, for life is fleeting and uncertain. "You are now, my dear Malvina, six years of age. Some have become hopelessly as pious as young as you." Death was forever held before her eyes. With her eyes continually fixed upon that object small wonder that it inevitably drew her to itself.

Malvina was the pride of her parents' hearts, though they had other children. In her childish letters, so stiff with decorum, she prattles of prayermeeting, of death-bed conversations, of baptism, of missionary society—"I am now taking music lessons, and I play 'From Greenland's Icy Mountains,' and 'Auld Lang Syne' among other things."

She passed to her little brothers that which she had received—"Eternal burnings to those who do not love God! Many little children younger than you are die every day."

Her mind was formed under her parents' care. Poetry she loved—yes. But with the morbid sensibility of Moors, and the perverted morality of Byron she had no communion. Under her mother's watchful eye, after her religious principles were fixed, she read some of Scott's best works; but of the nonsense commonly known by the name of novels and romances, she knew as little as of Greek or Hebrew.

Her death-bed was a model of its kind. Her end was as had been her life, in the odor of sanctity. All this was less than a hundred years ago, but somehow one of Shakespeare's Perditas or Miranda's seems nearer our own times than does this solemn and saintly little maid.

WOMEN'S ORGANIZATION HOLDS JOINT MEETING

Last Thursday evening Miss Henrietta Thompson met with the World Fellowship Committee and the Y. W. C. A. Cabinet for a short but vital discussion of the Y. W. work on the campus here in its relationship to the World Student Christian Federation. Miss Thompson's background of cosmopolitan interests and contacts made her spoken appreciation of the reality of the type of work being done at Willamette a source of real inspiration and encouragement to the workers. Interesting comment was made upon the meeting in the very near future of the International Student Service cabinet at Mysore, India. Three of the delegates are from the U. S. and will be privileged to meet such prominent persons as Gandhi and Tagore. This is another of the world students' advances toward international community of interest. This group was served tea and Japanese rice cakes.

were: Dr. Norman Coleman of Reed College; Dr. Roy Akagi, Japanese; Professor Griffin of the University of Washington; Miss Henrietta Thomson, national Y. W. C. A. secretary; Professor Noble of Reed College; and Raymond Culver, Y. M. C. A. division secretary.

Four Issues Presented

In considering international relations four main issues were presented: (1) There is no superiority or inferiority among races; (2) Each nation has the right or should have the right to control its racial population within its own borders; (3) It is unfair and unwise that there should be general discrimination between races; and (4) Racial inter-marriage is now, and for a long time will be, unwise in most cases.

Dr. Akagi gave two lectures on General Problems of the Pacific. The dominant features of the first lecture were: problems of China; food supply and population; race relationship; and peace. The second lecture dealt entirely with the food supply and population. This lecture applied to all countries but as the Japanese are attacking the conditions along this line first Dr. Akagi made the keynote of the subject specifically Japanese.

Professor Noble lectured on Recent Trends toward Peace in the Pacific Countries. He stressed particularly one idea that while groups, as the Pan-Pacific group, do realize that peace is an international problem, foreign offices and state departments recognize it only as a problem for their own nation.

Table Discussion Held

Following each lecture a round table discussion was held. Dr. Griffin led these and there were three problems discussed: social and inter-racial problems as a college student faces them; food supply and population as a problem of international concern; and trends toward peace.

Plans for next year were studied for the repetition of a similar conference as the students and leaders felt this first meeting was very successful. Aiston Bristol of the University of Oregon was named as the chairman of the committee. The committee is formed by a representative student from each campus in the Seabeck division.

There were forty-five registered at the conference, half of which was occidental and the remaining oriental. The races represented were: Chinese, Japanese, Korean, Russian, Philippino, Syrian, East Indian, and American.

The students had their meals together in the dining room in Commons of Reed College.

The students who attended from Willamette University were: Elsie Tucker, Harold Shellhart, Ivan White, Teruyi Otsuki, Dorothy Hutchason, and Chai Wan Lee.

DRAMATIC FRATERNITY WILL PRESENT COMEDY

Some time next January or February the University Women's club will sponsor a play. They will present the Theta Alpha Phi players in a comedy, probably one of Bernard Shaw's.

The student body of Willamette University will be invited to try out for the different parts. They will also be invited to attend the play when it is presented. New dramatic talent is expected to be discovered.

Mrs. Ohling graduated from Willamette with the class of 1926 and is a member of the Beta Chi sorority. It was while doing graduate work at Wellesley that she wrote "Jon."

WEATHER PROMISES AID TO BEARCATS

Missionaries Unused to Wet Field, Giving Willamette Home Advantage

With nothing to lose and comparatively little to win, the Whitman Missionaries will meet the Willamette Bearcats in what will be his final encounter of the Northwest Conference teams.

The Whitman team has already clinched the championship by winning their three games and losing none, while all the other teams of the conference have at least two losses to detract from their percentage. A win over Willamette will give Whitman a return of four straight conference wins, while a defeat on the other hand would give them the record of three won and one defeat.

The Whitman team is big and powerful. To date they have displayed offensive which in itself is one of the team's best defensive points. They have been scored against by College of Idaho, and by Puget Sound yet in both cases they have always maintained a lead which never left the game in doubt.

Against Willamette the Missionaries will probably resort to a passing game, with an occasional drive through or around the line. The Whitman line, which is both big and strong is capable of making holes whenever a few yards are needed, while its ends are deadly pass receivers.

The only dope to favor the Willamette squad is the fact that the game will be played on the home field and the Bearcats will be doing their utmost to bring home their first victory over an eleven representing Whitman college.

KELLOGG NEEDN'T WORRY ABOUT BREAKFAST FOOD

OREGON STATE COLLEGE—Corvallis, Nov. 27 (PIP)—At least one chap on Oregon State campus will never worry about where his next dish of corn flakes is coming from.

After attending the college for over a year, Karl L. Kellogg, sophomore here, let it leak out that he is the grandson of the famous W. K. Kellogg, the originator of the corn flake, and whose signature appears in red on every package containing the Kellogg product.

Young Kellogg told the story of the origination of the corn flake to a reporter for the Daily Barometer, crediting great-grandmother Kellogg with the first serving of the famous food. The young chap has worked in his grandfather's great plant at some time each year since 1914. His father, Dr. K. H. Kellogg, was associated with the eldest Kellogg in the development of the corn flake and is now connected with the huge institution in Battle Creek, Mich.

STUDENT PREXY FINDS SELF IN PREDICAMENT

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Nov. 23—(PIP)—On Wednesday morning, at the site of the destroyed bonfire—"Burned by persons unknown, but strongly suspected"—and with the University of California's Big C on the Berkeley hills painted red, Stanford held its annual "good-will" assembly with California Wednesday morning. Each year, during the week before these two universities meet on the gridiron, assemblies are held, in which the student body president of one speaks at the rival institution. It was rather embarrassing for the California student body president, for, while no direct accusations were made, the premature burning of their bonfire did not put the Stanford students in exactly a "good-will" frame of mind.

Men Playing Last Year For W. U.

MUMFORD

VARSITY HOOPSTER PROSPECTS BRIGHT

Basketball prospects at Willamette have never been brighter than they are this season. With last year's team intact, and with some good material coming up from last year's Rook team and the present Freshmen class, Coach Keene will be able to build a team which may make basketball history for Willamette. Since the men on the team have played together in the same combination for at least a year, their team play and coordination should be good at the beginning of the season, so that they can devote more of their time to practicing plays and marksmanship. Although some of the varsity have been practicing the past two weeks practice will not start in full swing until after Thanksgiving.

Much of the Bearcat's scoring is dependent on the canny ability of Ed Cardinal, all conference center and high-point man, to dent the hemp from any angle. Cardinal has been out for football, and, being in good physical condition, can get a flying start this season. Although Dwight Adams did not turn out for varsity last year for the first few weeks, he made up for lost time by being one of the highest scorers in the conference. Dwight will be in the game from the beginning this season, and will give lanky Ed Cardinal a merry chase for high-point honors. Kenny Litchfield, three-year letterman, is playing his last year for the Cardinal and Gold. Kenny's steady defense and scoring eye has helped the team to many a victory. With the added encouragement he will get from the bleachers this year, he will probably play the best ball of his four years. Harold

Hank and "Skinner" Flesher have teamed together to keep the opposition from scoring for so long that it seems natural that we consider them together. Both play a hard, driving game, and are not very generous with chances for the enemy to score baskets. While they are as good a pair of defensive guards in the conference, they may be depended on to score needed baskets. Leadbetter, veteran letterman, alternates with both Hank and Flesher at guard, so our defense beneath the enemy basket can function if one of guards is removed by personal fouls. When a point is needed, Leadbetter can shoot a basket like a veteran forward. Jack Minto alternated with Cardinal last year at center, and played a good game. Then, in mid-semester, Reginald "Freak" Depoe will be eligible for the varsity. His all-around ability and fighting spirit will certainly be appreciated by the team. Freak Depoe puts them in from everywhere!

The men from last year's Rook team will form a good string of reserves to draw from in case of injury.

FROSH BASKETEERS ARE ROUNDING INTO SHAPE

The Frosh basketball team has been practicing for three weeks under Coach Sparks.

The past week has been spent in selecting men for the inter-class games. The most promising men are Seales, Marr, Mootry, DePoe, Edwards, Jenkins and Hartley.

After the inter-class games are played the squad will be chosen and the Rooks will again begin the grind of mastering the fundamentals of the game.

The present weakness of the squad is the lack of team work, and the presence of too much individualism.

Favorites triumphed, although not in as decisive style as expected, in conference games Saturday. C. P. S. plunged through the line to score two touchdowns, and kick both points against Pacific's rejuvenated band in the Tacoma stadium.

Linfield played their best ball of the year to hold College of Idaho 12 to 0 on Multnomah field.

Thanksgiving finds but one game remaining, the Whitman-Willamette classic on the local grid. Whitman has the championship in hand but a Bearcat victory would give W. U. second place and cause much joy in Salem.

PAPER CAUSES TROUBLE BETWEEN FROSH, SOPHS

COLLEGE OF PUGET SOUND, Tacoma, Nov. 26—(NIP)—War between the Freshman and sophomore classes has broken out anew at the College of Puget Sound as the result of the humorist on The Trail, the college paper, making a pun about the manner in which the Sophs were enforcing the green hat rule.

LOGGERS DEFEAT P U WITH TWO TALLIES

A Pacific football team with confidence restored by its surprising conquest of Willamette the previous week, journeyed to Tacoma with hopes of a victory but found Gillison Purvis and company too powerful and returned on the short end of the score 14 to 0.

C. P. S. used a powerful running attack mixed with an occasional pass to subdue the Oregonians. By winning the Loggers gained a tie for second place and pushed the Forest Grove squad into fifth rank.

LINFIELD OUTPLAYS COYOTES FOR HALF

Linfield College lost a hard fought game to College of Idaho in the Multnomah stadium at Portland, last Saturday.

Although the Coyotes were doped to win by at least 40 points, they were lucky to win by a 12 to 0 score.

The punting of Lambert, fullback for the Wildcats, was the large factor in staving off the one-sided defeat.

O'Connor, the redheaded halfback, and Kim, a Korean from Honolulu, made many beautiful runs during the last half. Brown and Dilley scored touchdowns for Idaho.

The entire first half was played deep in the Coyote's territory, but the Wildcats lacked the scoring punch to put the ball over.

The second half was a complete reverse of the first.

Linfield closed its season with this game, and in doing so brings to a halt one of its most disastrous seasons. The Wildcats have failed to score even one point in any contest this fall.

This victory put College of Idaho in tie for second place with C. P. S.

The one notable difference in the Willamette squad, which indicates an upward trend in athletics at Willamette is the fact that until the last week of practice the squad was not deserted by the discouraged ones. Coast Association Condemns Use of Rotogravure Sec- tion in Dailies

BERKELEY, Nov. 24, 1928.—(PIP)—The National College Press association has placed its stamp of approval upon the recent action of the Pacific Intercollegiate Press association condemning the Campus Pictorial, rotogravure supplement being distributed with college dailies.

Announcement of the N.C.P.A. action was received at headquarters of the P. I. P. here yesterday. Following a meeting at Purdue the national organization announced that it had adopted a resolution opposing the rotogravure venture, started by B. F. Provand, formerly of College Humor magazine.

The Pacific Intercollegiate Press association was the first organization to take such a step, prohibiting its thirteen members from subscribing to the supplement by an action taken at a convention here.

The rotogravure supplement was held to jeopardize the best interests of college newspapers by drawing from their columns national advertising.

The rotogravure is a supplementary sheet containing photographs and cuts of the college life soliciting advertising from national publishers as a private enterprise at firms classed in the college advertising field, and sold to the various colleges at a nominal cost to be distributed as a part of the regular issue of the paper.

PRESIDENT DONEY HAS BEEN ASKED FOR TALKS

Dr. Carl Gregg Doney has been requested by the editor of the Abington press to send for publication about thirty or forty of his chapel addresses. Many of these addresses have been taken in shorthand during the chapel exercises. They will appear in a book which will be entitled, "Half Way to Noon."

Dr. Doney also received a copy of the new edition of his book, "God Answers Prayer," which was first printed about three years ago.

AD CLUB IS OFFERING PRIZES TO HOMES

The Salem Ad Club is offering a series of prizes to the best decorated home for the Christmas season. Mr. Byall, illumination engineer of the Portland Electric Power company, spoke. The club is planning on dividing the city into four sections and a prize will be given to the best in these divisions.

The basis of the award will be cleverness and attractiveness of the decorations. Any home may compete and there is no limit on the type of electrical designs used, but the expense is to be limited.

A grand prize will be offered for the best of the prize winners. The sororities and fraternities may compete for this prize, since they are classed as homes.

Last year the same idea was carried out in Portland and was a big success; owners of beautiful homes competed in the contest.

Mrs. Doney Has Birthday
The friends and relatives of Mrs. Carl Gregg Doney joined in congratulating her upon her birthday anniversary last Saturday, November 24.

Scoofers Have Nothing But Past Order Possesses Stabilizing Pin Has Not Reached National Status

Cheerio for the Scoofers

The six undaunted Scoofers—Ralph and Bill and Sam and Ray, Colie and Fritz—the Scoofers. The Scoofer club is an organization for young men peculiar to Willamette University—non-national as yet.

Of its history there is nothing but a past and pasts are more comforting as pasts, therefore passing pasts as pasts, we shall allow the history of the Scoofer club to remain a past.

But the present. Four out of five have it, and the other one sells it. That's the motto. Shall we have them arraigned for bootlegger, dental propaganda or high grade applesauce?

The club is purely social in nature, but as yet we have failed to see a representative of the group in the hoo-hoo of the elite world.

Proceed with boku meditation, martially, gentlemen—Gene Tunney married an heiress and now—now he's qualified. Just think, once he was only a marine.

Now the emblem is a mask as black as most black is, and the idea is that they work under cover. The guard pin is a dagger—denoting bad, bad brigands that nothing is spared in gaining their point. A proposition of gaining a point with a point.

And who is the president? Well, that is where the black-mask idea enters. Just try and disclose the name of the holder of such an office.

Students Reflects On Date
During Breakfast

The collegian sauntered into the drugstore and hoisted himself on to a stool. He wanted a cup of coffee.

A frown corrugated his brow . . . hangover . . . day-after-the-night-before appearance. He plunged his spoon into the coffee and began to row vigorously . . . turbulent waves . . . a miniature typhoon in the coffee cup . . . darn the date last night . . . she always made him feel that way . . . why did he date her anyway . . . it would have been all right if they hadn't met Tom afterwards . . . always making a fuss over another man.

He glanced up and caught a reflection of his face in the mirror. He smiled at it consolingly. He stirred his coffee gently now, tracing soothing circles with his spoon . . . oh, well . . . there had been a few good spots in the wretched evening . . . her telling him how different he was from most men . . . a line, of course . . . but she acted as though she meant it . . . and she did rate high on the campus.

He gulped the coffee down and shrugged himself more comfortably into his coat. The frown was gone . . . his mouth had taken on a cynical quirk . . . women are like street-cars . . . there'll be another one along in a minute.

The foreman was bawling Pat out. "There's Jim," he said, "carrying two ladders at a time, and you are only taking one." "Sure," Pat replied. "Jim's too lazy to go back twice."

College Styles! You may sneer at them all you please, but they distinguish the man in college who is learning not only his academic subjects but the value of personality and appearance as aids toward success.

Do you know the CORRECT college styles for the Pacific Coast, the Middle West—the East?

They are readily available to you. We have just received the new University Style Survey of the Chicago Apparel Gazette, the most authoritative style reporter in the country. This report is always on our front counter. Drop in and look it over at your leisure.

Dressing correctly and tastefully does not mean dressing expensively. It costs no more to buy a shirt in the correct color, style, and pattern than "just another shirt" which is bought and shoved into your wardrobe without enthusiasm or real satisfaction.

Get more pleasure from the clothes you wear!

WIGGAM LECTURES TO O. S. C. STUDENTS

OREGON STATE COLLEGE, Corvallis, Nov. 27.—(PIP)—Albert Edward Wiggam, nationally famous author-scientist and lecturer spoke before the largest assembly of the year here on "What Civilization is Doing to Us," contending that heredity is the greatest factor that distinguishes one man from another. It is his firm belief that some men are born better than others, and that environment plays only a small part.

In reference to college students, Dr. Wiggam stated that college men and women were realizing more and more that marriage selection is the prime thing that makes for racial glory or decline. The old fashioned process of falling in love will be considered more seriously in the future.

Dr. Wiggam will debate the question of heredity vs. environment with Clarence Darrow, internationally famous attorney, taking the side of heredity.
