

AGGIES BARELY WIN IN CLOSE CONTEST FRIDAY

Fastest Game of Season in Varsity Gym Goes 14 to 16.

PLAYING OF VARSITY BIG SURPRISE

Strong Defense Put Up on Both Sides—Hepp Makes Remarkable Long Shot.

The Willamette supporters received a very pleasant shock last Friday evening when the Willamette-O. A. C. basketball contest revealed the fact that the varsity basketball tossers compared very favorably with the quintet from the Aggie school.

Dr. Sweetland had given out the opinion that Willamette was in for a decided drubbing, and the Willamette supporters, remembering the much advertised fact that Willamette's team was supposed to be the weakest it had been for years, went to the game to cheer for a team doomed to defeat.

But the boys sprang a surprise and after making the first 4 points they proceeded to maintain the upper hand till well toward the end of the game.

At the end of the first half the score was 6 to 4 in favor of the defenders of the Cardinal and Gold. This lead was maintained until the last five minutes of play, when O. A. C. took the lead on free throws and two points awarded for excess fouls on Young. Fouls were called frequently throughout the contest, 12 on O. A. C. and 20 on Willamette. Each side secured half the free throws awarded them.

Louis Hepp, one of Willamette's fighting guards, twice brought down the house by tossing the sphere through the ring from well back of the center of the floor. His first basket, made early in the game, was by all odds the most remarkable ever seen on the varsity floor, being made from O. A. C.'s foul line, a distance of fully 60 feet from the goal. The ball soared high above the streamers of lights and slipped squarely through the basket.

The game was marked by extremely close guarding on the part of both teams. Neither team showed particular offensive strength, but were equally effective on defense. Each team massed its men on the opponents' half of the floor, making close range basket shooting impossible. This is evident in the fact that only six field baskets were scored, two by O. A. C., and four by Willamette.

The closeness of the score making victory practically dependent on foul shooting. Referee McRae's eagle eye for Willamette's slight misdemeanors and Homan's lack of his usual sureness on free throws, were deciding factors in the outcome.

The work of the Willamette quintet, individually and collectively, it is needless to say, far outdid anything that was expected of them, even by those most closely connected with the team. The meagerness of the schedule has given little chance for development and in the previous games the showing made has been mediocre in the extreme. But against the Aggies, every man forgot his past record and proceeded to get down to business. The fact that neither O. A. C. forward secured a basket is witness to the skin-tight guarding of Hepp and Young. Pfaff for the first time this season displayed real ability at the game. Tallman and Homan got little opportunity in the scoring line, but were aggressive in follow-

CLASSES, EXCEPT FRESHMEN, LOAF ON "GLEE" PREPARATION

Date for Event Has Been Set for March 14—The Prize is a Beauty.

The annual Freshman Glee takes place on Friday, March 14, according to plans made by the Freshman class. The Frosh, confident, as usual, of success, are awaiting the great day. Many songs have been submitted and music "to match" is being composed. Apollo is working overtime in their behalf. Rumor has it that the pennant prize will rival in design the one made two years ago by the class.

The Sophomores are trying to appear indifferent, but their silence indicates that they have not begun to practice as yet. They are expecting, however, to win a better place than they were given last year.

Nothing definitely is known concerning the preparations made by Juniors and Seniors. They have a habit of eluding all questioners. From what the "cub" has been able to ascertain, however, nothing has been done "up to yet." It is said that they are waiting for a more convenient day when they will make up for their delay by their brilliance. In about one more week is due the last mad scramble, when all classes are trying to get songs in shape for decent presentation.

COMMITTEE SELECTS PLAY

"Importance of Being in Earnest," Comedy by Oscar Wilde, Is the Choice of Juniors.

If anyone sees a smile running around loose grab it and hold on to it; it's escaped from one of the Junior play committee, who read the lines that the young hopefuls will presume to put off on the public on May 1. Needless to say, the play is one of the mirth provoking variety and any "enamel face" would have a hard time in seeing the lines acted without coming to grief.

"The Importance of Being Earnest," by Oscar Wilde, is a comedy of the truly risible kind. It is funny without being rough. It has a laugh in every line with a breezy flow of keen satire throughout. There are nine characters in the cast, five men and four ladies. The play is English in setting and character. Predicaments are here, there and everywhere. A laugh chaser is always present so that the last smile will not fade and the face get cold before the next roar is produced.

The committee that was the authority in selecting this highly anti-fat remedy wished to have their names appear in print and they will insure the best recommendation that could be possibly offered. Manager Murray Murray Wheat's name comes first. He is manager of the Junior play and has produced the recommendations that says that he will make good. He is the boy with the curly hair. Ralph Moores, a law; Emma Loughridge, L. A., an authority on how to have a good time; Miller, Medic, and Paul Homan, L. A., are the committee. They demand due credit for having unearthed and brought to light the best production for home talent ever presented in Salem, a splendid piece by a writer whose work is considered classic.

Music Pupils in Recital.

A number of students of Miss Joy Turner were presented in a piano and violin recital last Wednesday afternoon in the studio of the conservatory of music. The following persons took part: Pearl Ostermann, Getta Jennings, Eleanor Tait, Hazel Smith, Annie Ryan, Dee Cadz, Marie Wells, Pearl Polker, Marguerite Deering, David Moses, Grace Fugate, Lucile McCully, Merline Digerness.

DEBATE TEAM ASPIRANTS LOOSEN THEIR TONGUES

The Judges' Work Highly Appreciated by Debaters and Audience.

TEAMS MEET IDAHO ON APRIL FOURTH

Large Crowd Present—Smith, MacCaddam, Ohling and Axley Win Out.

The debate tryout last Friday evening was one of the most successful forensic preliminaries held at Willamette in several years. There was a large number of aspirants for the honors that attend members of the various teams that represent Willamette.

The debate was carried off promptly and the efficiency of the judges and their accommodating spirit in listening to the many speeches of the evening was highly appreciated by the students. The judges of the evening were Roy Shields, I. H. Van Winkle and Prof. Cooley.

The teams that will represent Willamette this year will be the best that she has put out in several years. Her energies have been so dissipated in other lines that debate has been of slight importance. The men chosen will be given their positions on the teams some time this week. The fortunate men in the contest are Seth Axley, Paul Smith, Chas. Ohling and Glenn MacCaddam. They were closely seconded by nearly every other contestant. The tryout was very close and feeling ran high for the favorites each man had his faction that was "pulling" for him. The basketball game that evening detracted somewhat from the crowd, but during the most of the tryout there were over a hundred students and friends in the audience.

The alternates for the two teams are Bain and Chas. Hall. They closely seconded the "elect few," and may receive honors should a calamity happen to any of the others.

The interest in debating this year has been far above the average. Some twenty-five students handed in their names early for the tryout, but only eleven appeared on the final call.

The teams this year are composed of three Sophomores and one Freshman, while the Idaho teams will have three Freshmen and one Senior. Only one of their men has represented the state university before. The debate will be held on the evening of April 4. One team will debate in Moscow and one will remain at home. Student Body leaders are planning on a big rally and jubilee that evening, with a big reception after the debate in honor of the home and visiting teams.

Philodorians.

With the speed and ease that would have put the Multnomah steam roller to shame, the Philodorians unanimously chose Burr Tatro to lead them for the next quarter. The other officers elected were: Carlos Ralnes, vice-president; Fred McMillan, secretary; Mr. Belts, assistant secretary; Harvey Toby, treasurer; J. R. Bain, censor; Joe Gerhart, reporter; Carl Jefferson, counselor at law.

Affiliated Junior Classes Meet.

The Junior affiliated class met on last Thursday afternoon, and in a few minutes accomplished things that will make history. The Junior play for the year was selected and the manager ordered to proceed with his part of the work. The Glee committee will write the winning Glee song immediately.

INEZ GOLTRA, FRESHMAN PRESIDENT 2ND SEMESTER

With Second Sight and a Well Poised Equilibrium, Frosh Fill Their Class Offices Again.

At the Freshman election Thursday, Miss Inez Goltra was elected to fill the office of president for the ensuing semester. Miss Goltra, one of the most popular and prominent young ladies of the class, is well fitted for the position. The other officers elected are: vice-president, Fred McMillan; secretary, Miss Ermine Harding; treasurer, Howard Jewett; class reporter, George Odgers; sergeant-at-arms, Sam Russell, the retiring president.

GLEE CLUB PREPARES FOR SPRING VACATION TRIP

The Glee Club, in anticipation of the spring vacation trip, is getting its program into definite shape.

The popular comedy-sketch from "The Mascot," which was played last year, will again be staged as arranged by Dean Mendenhall. As the "Chimes of Normandy" will take the place of the Glee Club concert in Salem this year, there will be no duplication of this sketch anywhere it is put on.

A quartet has also been formed and has been preparing to render selections on the program.

AWARDS TO BE PRESENTED

March 7, at Chapel, Set as Time—Last Year's Awards Included in List of 27.

Friday morning, after chapel, has been set as the time for presenting the athletic awards for the past year. On account of the failure to order the sweaters in time for presentation last spring, the awards presented at this time will include those for last year's basketball, baseball and track teams in addition to those for the football season past. At the same time, the pins for the members of the debating teams will be presented.

The persons who have been declared eligible for awards by the various award committees are: debate—Glen Wells, Merton R. De Long, Harry Savage, Ivan McDaniel, Paul Smith; football—sweater awards: Robin Day, Ralph Stearns, George Watson, Raymond Rowland,—certificate awards: Raymond McRae, Ivan Bellinger, Harley Blackwell, Charles Erskine, Eric Bolt, Paul Homan; baseball—sweater awards: Raymond Drake, Grover Gates,—certificate awards: James Oakes, Paul Homan, Charles Erskine, Charles Harrison; track—sweater award: Willard McInturf; basketball—sweater award: Dan Gibson,—certificate award: Ross McIntire, Alfred Schramm, Paul Homan.

The sweaters are given to those who are receiving their award for the first time, the certificates to those who have previously received sweaters. By classes, the awards go to 1912 graduates, six; to Seniors, five; to Juniors, nine; to Sophomores, five; to specials and preps, two.

FACULTY NOT RESPONSIBLE FOR CALLING OFF OF DEBATE

Statements sometimes get into print that are true in the main but a little off color as to details. This was apparently so in a little story in last week's Collegian, concerning the cancelling of the Academy debate with the Estacada High School. The debate was not called off by order of the faculty, as stated, and as given to a Collegian reporter. But R. F. Harper, Academy debate manager, by the advice of those in the University office, thought best to call off the debate scheduled.

GREAT BANQUET MARKS THIRTIETH ANNIVERSARY

Old and Recent Philodorsians and Philodorians Mingle in Fellowship.

JUBILEE SINGERS MAKE IMMENSE HIT

Splendid Food, Strong Toasts and General Good Fellowship Mark the Notable Gathering.

The Hotel Marion was the scene of a singularly notable gathering last Saturday evening when over a hundred and fifty loyal Philodorsians and Philodorians met to celebrate the thirtieth anniversary of the organization of the societies. The alumni had responded royally to the invitation sent out by the present members, and gray haired men and women of middle age and past greeted each other joyfully by their first names, while charter members mingled with the latest initiates.

The guests were received in the upper hall by Miss Mildred Bartholomew, president of the Philodorsians, George Vanderwert, retiring president of the Philodorians, Dr. and Mrs. Patterson, Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Goltra, Miss Gertrude Reeves and Ray Smith, and the room presented an attractive and animated scene until seven-thirty, when after an hour spent in the greeting of old acquaintances and the meeting of new, the line of march was called and the company descended to the dining room. There, on long tables, decorated with daffodils and smilax interspersed with bowls of pale pink carnations, each guest found his name written on dainty water-colored place cards in the shape of a society pin, bearing the dates 1883-1913. Equally attractive folders held the menu and program of toasts, enlivened by cleverly selected quotations.

It was a goodly company that was seated at the banquet table, from Dr. Homan at the head of the central section to Dr. Eppley at the left wing and Dr. Patterson at the right. That there was no lack of congeniality was evident from the flow of conversation which continued from the sardines on toast to the last of the seven courses, interrupted only by occasional pauses for the encooring of some favorite air by the orchestra.

When the last coffee-cup had been removed, Toastmaster De Long arose amid a burst of applause and addressed the company as "Fellow Philodorians and sister Philodorsians, royalists and loyalists, and the most royal and most loyal of those who have ever attended our university." Prefacing the speeches of the evening with a few witty remarks and personal anecdotes, he introduced a charter member of the Philodorsians, Mrs. J. O. Goltra, '85, who told of the organization of the societies from the "saints," who remained after the ancient Hesperian, Alpha, Concordia and Athenaeum societies severed their connections with the university. Youth in those days was much as it is now, she said, and the taxpayers of Ferry street were sore pressed to keep the sidewalks repaired when the present mayor of Salem and the lady who is now his wife strolled that way.

Mayor Steeves, '91, himself, was then called upon to explain "Who saddled that cow?" as well as give the history of the Collegian, of which was first editor. Chief Justice Allshire of Idaho was one of his associate editors.

A MATTER OF NEGLECT.

It seems a case of inexcusable neglect that Willamette's historic old structure should have stood these forty-nine years without a name of any kind. Were it only for the formality, the dignity of giving it a name, a fitting custom would demand that this be done. In the act, however, a point of constant confusion would be eliminated. What new student or outside friend of the University has not been bewildered by indiscriminate references to the "chapel," the "old building," the "old Liberal Arts building," the "men's dorm" and what not? In times past, the need of a name was not so keenly felt. Until comparatively recent years, the ancient structure stood as the sole occupant of the campus, really "King of all it surveyed," within that confine. It was the material part of "the University." All that has changed in these later years. The building is one of many and requires a name for a mere matter of convenience if for nothing else.

Agitation to this end was started by the Collegian last year with less effect than we hope this second calling up of the need to have. We cannot hope to improve upon the suggestion made at that time that the building be given the name "Waller Hall." All those who are conversant with the early history of Willamette will see the admirable fitness of the name. It was A. H. Waller, who, as financial agent of the University, personally raised the funds for and supervised the erection of the Greek Cross structure, which was constructed from brick manufactured on the spot almost entirely by student labor. Among those few now living who knew him and his work, his name is never dissociated from loving sacrifice. In the early days of Willamette's struggle for existence, it was Waller who by persistent and dauntless effort, tided it over many a calamity. The "History of the Pacific Northwest" (1889) says of him: "Perhaps the work in which Mr. Waller wrought most successfully was as agent for the Willamette University. This school was peculiarly the child of his affections. He helped to lay its foundations as the Oregon Institute; and for many years he put his time and toil and money into it with the generosity of a father's hand. In gathering means for it, he traveled all over Oregon repeatedly and sought among high and low the little or much to help forward this cherished interest." This is the man who gave his best years and all of a considerable fortune for the building which still stands on our campus. We have it on the authority of Judge J. C. Moreland, perhaps the best posted man in the state on early Oregon history, that it was Waller, and Waller, and Waller alone, who made the erection of the building possible. What could be more fitting than that the name of this grand old pioneer be forever linked to this, his monument?

We can understand how the trustees, in the rush of business at their rare meetings, have overlooked this matter. We cannot understand how, if it were called to their attention, they could ignore it. The Student Body should take it upon itself to see that the attention of the trustees is called to it at their meeting in June. A memorial from the Student Body to the trustees will doubtless do the business. And meanwhile, don't forget to give publicity to the fact that after the coming Commencement, it must be "Waller Hall."

AN ABSORBING LINE OF RESEARCH.

When our attention is turned to subjects which send us to a study of Willamette's early history, we find ourselves in a field of romance so rich, so enticing, so absorbing, that it is exceedingly difficult to keep from straying far afield from any object which we had in mind. The story of the early Methodist pioneers reads with an interest, a thrill, an inspiration, which little in fiction can surpass. The Collegian hopes, a little later, to present a few sketches along this line by men most competent to prepare them. Not the least valuable content of the 1914 Wallulah will be its historical sketch of Willamette University. Anything of this sort, however, can be only suggestive or introductory. You must get into the old records to get the thrills. The University library, the state library, and other sources, can furnish material for the spare moments of those whose tastes lead them into such fields. We warn those so inclined that such a use of spare moments will place them in rare danger of an irresistible temptation to increase their moments to hours and their hours to days in the same fruitful line of research.

THIRTY YEARS.

It was really a notable event which occurred last Saturday evening when the members, past and present, of Willamette's veteran literary societies mingled in good fellowship and paid tribute to those societies as factors in shaping successful lives. Thirty years may not seem such a long period, but in this Pacific Northwest, thirty years is a very considerable period, one in which vast steps of progress and development have been made. It was good to see at that gathering, men who have played an active part in that development, and to know that there were a great many more who belonged in that company, whose stamp is upon the Northwest. And it was little less inspiring to realize that men and women there were those whose stamp the Northwest would bear in the thirty, the forty, and fifty years to come. Truly, the Philodorian and Philodorianians have had a splendid existence, have a record to be justly proud of, and look toward a future never brighter.

A STATEMENT BY THE NEW MANAGER.

The manager of The Collegian will strive to make The Collegian a paying proposition for the balance of the year. To do this he must have strictly a business administration. To bring about this end, it is necessary that ALL of the students give their whole-hearted support to the management, in two ways: First, it is hardly worth while to publish The Collegian for the Student Body (and this means you) when only about one-fourth of your number are paid-up subscribers. Furthermore, it is not conducive to the best of business policies to hand out Collegians to non-subscribers. Consequently—if you are a non-subscriber—you don't get any more free Collegians. The best way out of the difficulty is for you to dig up four bits and subscribe. Second: We can't publish the paper without advertisers and advertisers will not advertise when they can see no results or advantages to be gained by so doing. If you will trade with our advertisers, they will soon see the results and advantages. It is just as easy and usually cheaper to trade with our advertisers, anyway. If you members of the Student Body will support the management in these two ways, as well as you ought to, it will soon be possible to either increase the size of The Collegian or the number of issues.

GALE SEAMAN SPENDS DAY AT WILLAMETTE

Popular Y. M. C. A. Man Confers With Leaders of Local Association.

Gale Seaman, the popular Pacific Coast Student Y. M. C. A. secretary, was on the campus Monday. He spoke briefly at chapel, calling special attention to the demands made upon the college graduate by society. Society has a right to demand certain things in return for special advantages enjoyed by the college man or woman. Among the just demands on the college graduate are: strong bodies, ideals of unselfishness, and qualities of leadership.

During the remainder of the day, Seaman was in conference with a number of the leaders in the Y. M. C. A. work. He met the cabinet at five o'clock and went over the work of the year with them. He also outlined the work which could be profitably done this spring and started the ball rolling for a good delegation to Columbia Beach. His schedule took him out on the electric at 6:30, bound for Eugene.

Notes From Lausanne

Mr. J. B. C. Oakes was Miss Bradley's guest at dinner Sunday.

Miss Edith Lewis of Portland spent the week-end at Lausanne. Miss Lewis came to Salem to attend the Philodorian-Philodorian banquet.

Miss Ruth Tasker entertained her friend, Miss Isabel Munn of Portland, at a spread Friday evening. The guests came attired in kimonos. They were Misses Lillian Manny, Mildred Oppenlander, Bartholomew, Pennington, Winters, Johns, Smith, Ryan, Young, Lewis, Ruby, Klopff, Perkins and Owen.

All of Saturday and a part of Sunday a gloom seemed to hang over the occupants of Lausanne Hall. The stillness was appalling. It was as though some dear one had departed never to return. But she came back Miss Lucile McCully had spent the week-end in Portland. Her return was heralded not by bells but by tin cans, of which she now has quite a collection.

ing the ball and working it down the floor. Tallman, especially, showed marked improvement. Shisler, who was slated to play one of the forward positions, was kept out by a bad knee. The O. A. C. lineup was intact, except for Burdick, who was kept out by an injured ankle. They showed cleverness in passing and guarding, but when it came to the matter of caging the ball, showed considerable disability. "Doc" Stewart, their coach, and the whole squad were surprised and somewhat humiliated by the turn which the game took, as they were not primed for a stiff contest.

In both games between the two schools last year, Willamette was overwhelmed, though the year previous she was twice victorious by 25-15 and 22-18 scores. The date for the return game has not been fixed.

PAUL IRVINE ELECTED EDITOR

Axley, Associate—Both Men With Experience—Election Comes After Raines Withdraws.

The close contest between Axley, Raines and Paul Irvine for editorship of the 1915 Wallulah came to a close last Thursday, when, after Mr. Raines' withdrawal, Paul Irvine, of Salem, received the majority of the votes cast. Axley, of Salem, was chosen as associate editor.

Mr. Irvine is a graduate of the Presque Isle, Maine, High School, where he acted in the capacity of associate editor of the paper and later was business manager of the same. In literary lines Mr. Irvine has clearly shown his capability, as has also Mr. Axley.

When interviewed, neither of the newly elected officers could give any definite statement of the policy for next year's Wallulah.

DEAN MENDENHALL PUTS "MIGHTY CHORUS" TO WORK

Singers Enthusiastic Over Beauty of "Chimes of Normandy" Music.

"The swelling of a mighty chorus," greets the ear of the passerby on the campus most every afternoon now. For rehearsals for the "Chimes of Normandy" are the daily program of nearly every songster on the campus. Consistent practicing has been going on for some time, and now the rehearsals of the entire chorus are in order.

This excellent light opera, which is to be staged early in April, is one of the best ever heard in Salem, and is the most elaborate production ever given by the College of Music.

The chorus will comprise at least seventy-five voices including fifteen character parts. In this chorus appear both the Ladies' Club and the Glee Club. All the singers are enthusiastic over the beauty of the opera's harmony. This, together with the fact that Dean Mendenhall is directing, already assures the success of the production. The cast has not been announced.

"The Chimes" is to be staged under the auspices of the University Y. M. C. A., and all business is being handled by Bruce McDaniel's.

2nd Years Hold Election.

At a short business meeting of the second year Academy class in Miss Krenning's room on Thursday of last week, the following officers were elected for the ensuing semester: president, F. Frances Harper; vice-president, Arthur A. Hoffman; secretary, Russell Day; treasurer, Miss May Mickey; reporter, F. H. Bagley; sergeant-at-arms, Miss Getta Jennings. Mr. Harper was the first president of the class.

The members of the class are predicting a live time this semester.

AMENDMENTS POSTPONED—WILL COME UP FRIDAY

The three amendment to the constitution of the Student Body, which were to have been presented last Friday, were held over and will come up this Friday.

One is with regard to the bonding of the manager of The Collegian; one is to rearrange the selection of the Debate Council; and one provides for taking tennis under the supervision of the Student Body.

These amendments require the intelligent consideration of every student. They mean the perfecting of the Student Body organization.

Y. M. C. A. NOMINATION COMMITTEE APPOINTED

The administration of the present Y. M. C. A. officers and cabinet members is rapidly drawing to a close. In accordance with the customs of the organization, a nominating committee consisting of Dr. Patterson, William Schreiber, Herman Clark, Arthur Marsh and Tinkham Gilbert has been appointed by the present president, Carl J. Hollingsworth.

The names presented by this committee will probably be posted this week and the election held some time next week.

Adelphians and Criterions Meet.

An interesting program was given by the Adelphians in the Y. W. rest room Friday afternoon, the 21st. Roll call was answered with quotations from George Washington. The second chapter of the story, "Edna May," was read by Vesta Mulligan. Helen Goltra played a mandolin solo. An interesting paper on the "Boyhood of George Washington" was read by Ethelyn Armstrong. The last number was a piano solo by Birdene McKinney.

The Adelphians will not meet the coming Friday on account of the joint meeting with the Criterions on Wednesday evening.

Thurlow Smith, a Freshman at the Willamette University College of Medicine, stole a march on his friends Sunday when he took Mrs. Margaret H. Young to Dallas and was married. The bride was a popular employee in the state house. The groom will continue his course in medicine. A "gang" of the fellows stirred things up a little Monday evening, just to show him their friendly feeling.

DIAMOND ARTISTS GO TO FURE YESTERDAY

Score of Candidates Out—All Good Weather to be Utilized From Now On.

The first call for baseball candidates, though not given much publicity, brought out perhaps a score of players, none of whom were noticed to be "phenoms." The old men out were Captain Homan, Ross, Lund, Booth, Gates, Drake, Hewitt and Eyre. Not many of the new men knew of the practice and of those who were on hand not much could be judged, except that in general they are exceedingly "rough diamonds," if "diamonds" at all.

The work consisted merely of catching flies, with a little warming up for the slab candidates. The west end of the field was used as the dust is not yet blowing on the diamond. The rain which started up again last evening will probably stop everything today except perhaps a light workout in the stadium. Every good day from now on will be utilized and if possible a number of practice games will be pulled off before the spring vacation.

The most entertaining and hilarious number of the evening followed, when Dr. Steeves, Dr. Eppley and Mr. Fred Legg, three members of a former Philodorian quartet of the time when Dr. Eppley affirms he was built on the plan of a bean-pole, sang "Steal Away" and responded to the enthusiastic encore with "We're a Band of Brothers," sung with a gusto worthy of college boys of twenty.

Mrs. Ivan Bellingher, '14, was questioned in regard to the alarm clock in the chapel drum, of which she plead innocent, naively declaring: "I wasn't in the drum, and my husband never put anything in chapel smaller than a cow." A cleverly versified toast to "The Boys," was her contribution to the evening's entertainment. Mr. Maurice Bullock followed with a toast to "The Ladies," observing that "the Philodorians have a long way to go before they catch up with the Philodorsians."

After a piano solo by Miss Mary Pigler, Joseph Stearns, '12, impressed upon his hearers the value of the college societies. "Those of us who have gone out and taken our place in active life," he urged, "are more able to judge of the things that have been of value to us in the past. I think that all of those here will agree with me that among the memories of the past, that of the literary societies holds first place. No education is half complete without experience in such organizations."

Miss Mildred Bartholomew, '15, then read greetings from absent members, first among which was a gracious note from the secretary to President Taft. Two more selections by the "Willamette Jubilee Singers" were enjoyed, if possible, more than the first, and as a fitting climax to the evening came the inspiring speech by President Homan on "Inherited Glory." "Some are born great; some achieve greatness, and some have greatness thrust upon them," he quoted. "The greatness of the Philodorians and Philodorsians is inherited greatness," he said, in substance, "and to be worthy of the inheritance we must be equal to the tasks that are thrust upon us. You have behind you traditions of usefulness, traditions of glory. You have something to stand for; you have standards to maintain; you have glory to look back upon, and I bespeak for these literary societies in the coming years still that glory that comes from men and women of right ideals."

"I have felt that the future of Willamette University was safe," he said, in conclusion, "as long as it draws to its doors the kind of men and women who are gathered here tonight. I give you greetings and bear to you the glad tidings that you are connected with not only the oldest institution west of the Missouri river, but, I verily believe tonight, the greatest institution of learning which will be founded in the Northwest."

The following were present from out of town: Edith Lewis, Isabelle Munn, R. H. Leabo, Lydia Brooks Leabo, Clark Belknap, Mrs. Clark Belknap, J. O. Stearns, Jr., Miss Julia McCormack, Marie Rockwell, Althea Lee, Olive Nisley, George T. Wilson, Mrs. G. T. Wilson, all of Portland; Lillie Sugg, Vancouver, Washington; Sylvia Jones, Gervais; W. E. Burke, Sherwood; Merrill Ohling, Albany; Mrs. E. E. Blanchard, Grants Pass; Edith Kuney, Corvallis; A. M. Reeves and Ralph Reeves, Lebanon.

Basketball Over.

Regular basketball practice was discontinued yesterday, as no more games were in sight. It was impossible to secure a return game with O. A. C. in less than two weeks, so it was thought better to give way to baseball. The gym, however, will be open for the use of those who desire to practice.

Following is the present standing of the basketball teams in the Northwest College Conference:

	Won	Lost	Pct
W. S. C.	9	1	.900
U. of W.	9	4	.692
O. A. C.	5	5	.500
U. of O.	3	5	.375
U. of I.	2	13	.133

Philodorians in Germany.

Friday afternoon the Philodorians enjoyed a very interesting talk by Professor Walsh on "The Castles Along the Rhine." After a description of the situation and style of each castle, he related one of the many legends that are told to travelers by the inhabitants. By these old legends one is able to get a splendid idea of the beliefs and customs of the early German people. The remainder of the program carried out the theme. Stella Graham sang a solo in German, and the topic of conversation was: "What I Would Like to See in Germany," led by Miss Lucile Kuntz and Miss Owen.

Carlos Raines, '15, has been very ill for several days past. The doctor says it is a bad case of grip, although the illness is very severe for that ailment. He was taken to the hospital yesterday morning.
