

WILLAMETTE SUMMER COLLEGIAN

Vol. 1 - No. 4

Salem, Oregon

July 10, 1942

FIRST SESSION CLOSES WITH New Classes Begin Monday

REGISTRATION OPENS TODAY

Classes for the new session will begin at 7:30 Monday morning, after registration today and tomorrow in the recorder's office.

Several changes have been made in the courses as listed in the catalog, with the following being offered in all probability: anthropology, organic chemistry, play production, oral reading, newspaper interpretation, algebra, geometry, music, physical science, principles of physical therapy, recent foreign relations, problems of post-war reconstruction, records of Jesus, principles of sociology, intermediate Spanish, and Spanish novel.

These courses have been requested and will be offered if five or more people enroll for them: high school methods, French drama, radio speech, and a literature course, probably Shakespeare or a course on the neo-classic period.

According to Prof. Herman Clark, director of the summer sessions, both students and professors are looking forward to the next five weeks with a great deal of interest and enthusiasm. At least 50 enrollees are expected for the new session he said yesterday.

WU Receives Knopf Geology Collection

The geology department became the recipient this week of a collection of geological articles that were collected by Dr. Knopf. The gift was given to Prof. Herman Clark by Mrs. Knopf to be placed in the university museum.

The collection includes pieces of petrified wood, one of which is from the petrified forest in Arizona, sand blasted pieces from the desert, mineral specimens, rocks, and ores which include mercury, lead, copper, iron, and gold.

Prof. Clark explained that the collection is characteristic of the personality of Dr. Knopf, for while it is not large, every piece is worthwhile and has real value. He expressed his appreciation to Mrs. Knopf and added that the collection will be on display in about two weeks in the museum in Waller Hall.

Dean Luther Returns from East

Dean Chester Luther was in his office yesterday, having returned Monday from his trip east. Dr. Luther went as far as Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, traveling a total of 5700 miles.

FINALS TODAY 19 PROFESSORS TEACH 29 COURSES

Final examinations today mark the close of the first 1942 summer session, and registration the beginning of the second.

Opening June 7, the first session started with an enrollment of 60 students which increased to a final total of 90 by the third week. Five students dropped immediately following Dr. Knopf's death, and two others did not complete the session.

Nineteen faculty members taught, giving a total of 29 courses, not including private lessons in voice and piano.

Prof. Herman Clark said yesterday that the administration is proud of the accomplishments and interest in the first session and that it is looking forward to a second session equally successful.

HELEN JONES JOINS PLAY CAST

Latest news concerning the play "Eight Men" includes the announcement that Helen Newland Jones has joined the cast as Judith and as co-director.

The first rehearsal has been scheduled for Monday evening. Plans to have soldiers who are stationed in Salem to play the minor parts are under way, and if they mature will eliminate double casting.

Bouquets And Best Wishes

This issue of the Willamette Summer Collegian is the last issue of the first session.

The paper has been edited by the class in school journalism. The class has been limited in several respects. In the first place, we were to begin with almost ignorant of techniques in editing a paper of this kind, and numerous problems had to be ironed out via experience. Putting out a publication, has, however, been valuable experience for us and reportedly has been of help to the student body and the administration.

The staff is grateful for the generous contribution of time and effort expended by Prof. Ringalda in instruction and guidance. We also thank the administration for the cooperation in giving desired information and constructive criticism.

The Summer Collegian will continue throughout the next session and as a parting word--we wish you success in your examinations and hope to see you on the campus again during the coming five weeks.

If You Have Mike Fever---

Dr. Rahe has expressed interest in presenting a course in radio speaking for the second session.

With increasing opportunities for practical experience in radio speaking this instruction would be of benefit to everyone.

The department of speech has elaborate recording equipment to be used by the students enabling them to analyze their mistakes.

Instruction in speech composition, voice cultivation, pronunciation and speech correction will be among the many aspects of the course.

Twice Is Twice Too Often

The consternation of the Yocums in the recent demolition of their home is hardly comparable to the disappointment of the play production class.

For the second time, in two weeks someone has deliberately stolen into the properties room and mutilated the flats that are to be used in the play "High Tor."

A reprimand to the student body is, of course, not necessary. To imagine that a college student would be so utterly and inexpressibly stupid is almost beyond the realm of imagination.

Breaking into a building with intent of damage to property constitutes a criminal offense. If the marauders are apprehended they will receive two punishments--one from the men of the class itself, Divine Justice,--the other from the police department. The former, assuredly, will be immediate and forceful. The police department, in an offense of this kind, would certainly not delay retribution either.

Name It And You Can Hear It

Music still has charms today at a time when many other amusements are prohibited by effects of the war. This campus offers an attractive musical opportunity in its Carnegie library in the music building.

Judging from the little use it is given, it would seem that few people are aware that this school possesses such a large collection of music of types to please every ear, together with comfortable facilities and an excellent recorder that faithfully reproduces the artists' interpretation--and that the use of the library is theirs, free, for the asking.

DR. GATKE'S "CHRONICLES" TO COME OFF PRESS SOON

An important contribution to Northwest history is Dr. Gatke's "Chronicles of Willamette." During the fall the manuscript will be published by Portland's Binford and Mort. Preface to the book was written by Bishop Bruce Baxter.

Within the next few weeks, "Chronicles of Willamette" will be published throughout the nation. Constance Fowler, nationally known artist, has contributed a drawing of Waller Hall for advertising purposes.

The book, sub-titled "History of the Pioneer University," is a century-coverage book published in Willamette's Century year. Starting from 1834 beginnings of the Oregon Mission, Dr. Gatke brought his material up to June of the present year.

Having spent 20 years in compiling his material, Dr. Gatke has produced a valuable contribution.

"Chronicles of Willamette" will find a large reading public in Oregon as elsewhere.

NEW LIBRARIAN SEES HUMOROUS SIDE OF HER WORK AT WILLAMETTE

When asked her opinion of Salem and Willamette, Elizabeth Kennedy, W.U.'s new assistant librarian from Duluth, Minnesota, smiled and said, "It is rather hard to judge, for you see, I just came in time to see your commencement, and the summer ses-

Tribute To A Leader
Erect, with noble mien,
With valiant head unbowed
By weight of years or care
He stands--
The potent leader still,
In every heart a friend
Beloved
And ever pointing on anew
To goals of great accomplishment
That leave a world far better than
He found.

SALEM GEOLOGICAL SOCIETY PRESENTS HISTORICAL ERRATIC TO UNIVERSITY

The Salem Geological Society has presented to Willamette University a valley granite erratic which will be officially presented at one of the geological meetings on the tentative date of July 16.

The stone has a romantic background and a definite historical significance. The erratic was washed down into the Willamette Valley at the close of the last ice age. At that time ice covered the North American continent down as far as central Washington. Ice bergs containing chunks of granite rock were carried down to the Willamette valley from northern Washington.

During the melting process, waters flowed between the Rocky mountains and the coast range, and scoured out the Grand Coulee and the Columbia gorge. At that time Salem was under at least 100 feet of water, and the flood extended as far south as Eugene.

The Salem Geological Society under the presidency of Horace J. Smith, is presenting the erratic in token of their appreciation for the backing of the University and for the privilege of using the museum and the science laboratories for their headquarters.

This particular erratic was given by Mr. Franklin who found the specimen.

However, she is impressed with the friendliness of the students and the Salem people.

To step into a place vacated by some one well liked is always hard and sometimes proves embarrassing, she observed.

She told this anecdote concerning her early difficulties at Willamette: the first three hours in a new library job in her home town, a woman came up to the desk and asked for Miss Kennedy's predecessor. The woman was informed of the change but was encouraged to ask for assistance; whereupon she rather bluntly declared, "Oh, well, you don't know anything about the library so I won't bother you."

Friendliness, a very pleasant personality, and capability characterize Elizabeth Kennedy who told her interviewer that she hopes to move into an apartment with some congenial person. Then she said, "I don't know about the cooking part, but I can bake a good cake!"

GEOLOGISTS MAKE LOCAL FIELD TRIP

According to "geological neophytes" who went on a field trip one evening this week there is a surprising amount of local material available for study in this field.

Digging in the hills along the Oregon electric railroad, the party found about 10 varieties of fossil sea shells which are over 20 million years old, Professor Herman Clark, geology instructor, said. The group was high enough so that they could study the contour of the earth and notice the course of the Willamette River.

The members of the party included Lenore Myers, Tom Allport, Grace Cramer, Corliss Clark, and Prof. Clark.

WU ACTOR ASKS RETURN OF GLASSES

During the recent wave of vandalism in the Little Theater, a pair of glasses belonging to Maynard Eye-stone disappeared from that room. He will appreciate greatly information leading to their recovery. Anyone who should happen to find them is asked to return them to Mr. Savage's office.

Curry To Direct Camp Athletics

Miss Gayle Curry, head of women's physical education at WU, revealed yesterday that she plans to direct physical education at a Girl Reserves summer camp starting July 12.

NEBRASKAN PLACED AT ASHLAND HIGH

Mary Gean Hendricks, who came from Nebraska to get her Oregon teaching credentials at Willamette's summer sessions, accepted a contract this week to teach at Ashland.

Miss Hendricks, who got both her bachelor's and master's degrees at the University of Nebraska, has taught for the last six years at Wahoo, Neb.

BILL LAUGHLIN TO TEACH IN WU SESSION BEFORE LEAVING FOR AFGHAN COLLEGE

If Bill Laughlin isn't in Afghanistan, he will be teaching anthropology and sociology at Willamette's second summer session.

Bill, who graduated from WU in 1941, received a teaching fellowship for this year at Haverford College in Pennsylvania and received his master's degree there this spring.

Recently he has been offered a position as teacher and supervisor in an Afghanistan university, where he hopes to continue

FIRST AID COURSE STARTS MONDAY

Although only 13 students have signed up for the first aid course, the Red Cross has authorized Lester Sparks of the Men's physical education department to start the course next week.

All who have signed up and others interested are to meet at the gymnasium Monday evening at 7:30, when further arrangements will be made.

Persons completing the standard 20 hours' work will receive certificates.

MARGE WATERS GETS ASSISTANTSHIP

Marjory Waters, senior scholar in speech last year, announced her acceptance this week of a graduate assistantship at Oregon. She will teach a freshmen section in speech and work for a masters in education.

Traveling accommodations by plane have been arranged by the Afghanistan government, and Bill is waiting only until he has made an adjustment with the local draft board.

In the meanwhile he will start teaching in the summer school, and will be replaced by his father, Prof. S. B. Laughlin, if he is able to leave before the end of the second session.
