THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

“Stewards of the Light” is a particularly appropriate theme for the Annual Report of Willamette University, an institution with historic roots to The United Methodist Church. Underlying Willamette’s mission of enlightening the minds and hearts of its students is a deep religious heritage of stewardship and a strong commitment to bring light where there is darkness.

In his allegory of the cave, Plato suggested that most of humankind is like a chained prisoner dwelling in darkness and seeing only shadows on the cave wall created by a source of light outside the cave. The function of education, Plato asserted, is to lead human beings outside of the cave into the world of light.

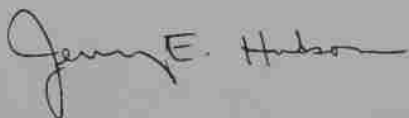

We at Willamette University see ourselves as stewards of the light, helping to lead students out of figurative caves of darkness. One of the institution’s patriarchs, the Rev. Gustavus Hines, put it this way when writing about Willamette’s predecessor, the Oregon Institute: “I regard the Oregon Institute ... as the morning star of this country. ... If it lives, it will be a luminary in the moral heavens of Oregon, to shed abroad the lights of science and knowledge, to dispel the surrounding darkness, long after its founders shall have ceased to live. If it dies, our sun is set, and it will be impossible to tell what will succeed.”

Hines’ vision continues to be lived out at Willamette University, where men and women receive an excellent education in the liberal arts and selected professional fields. The institution remains a beacon where students are encouraged to see their education as a lifelong process of discovery, delight and growth, the hallmark of a humane life.

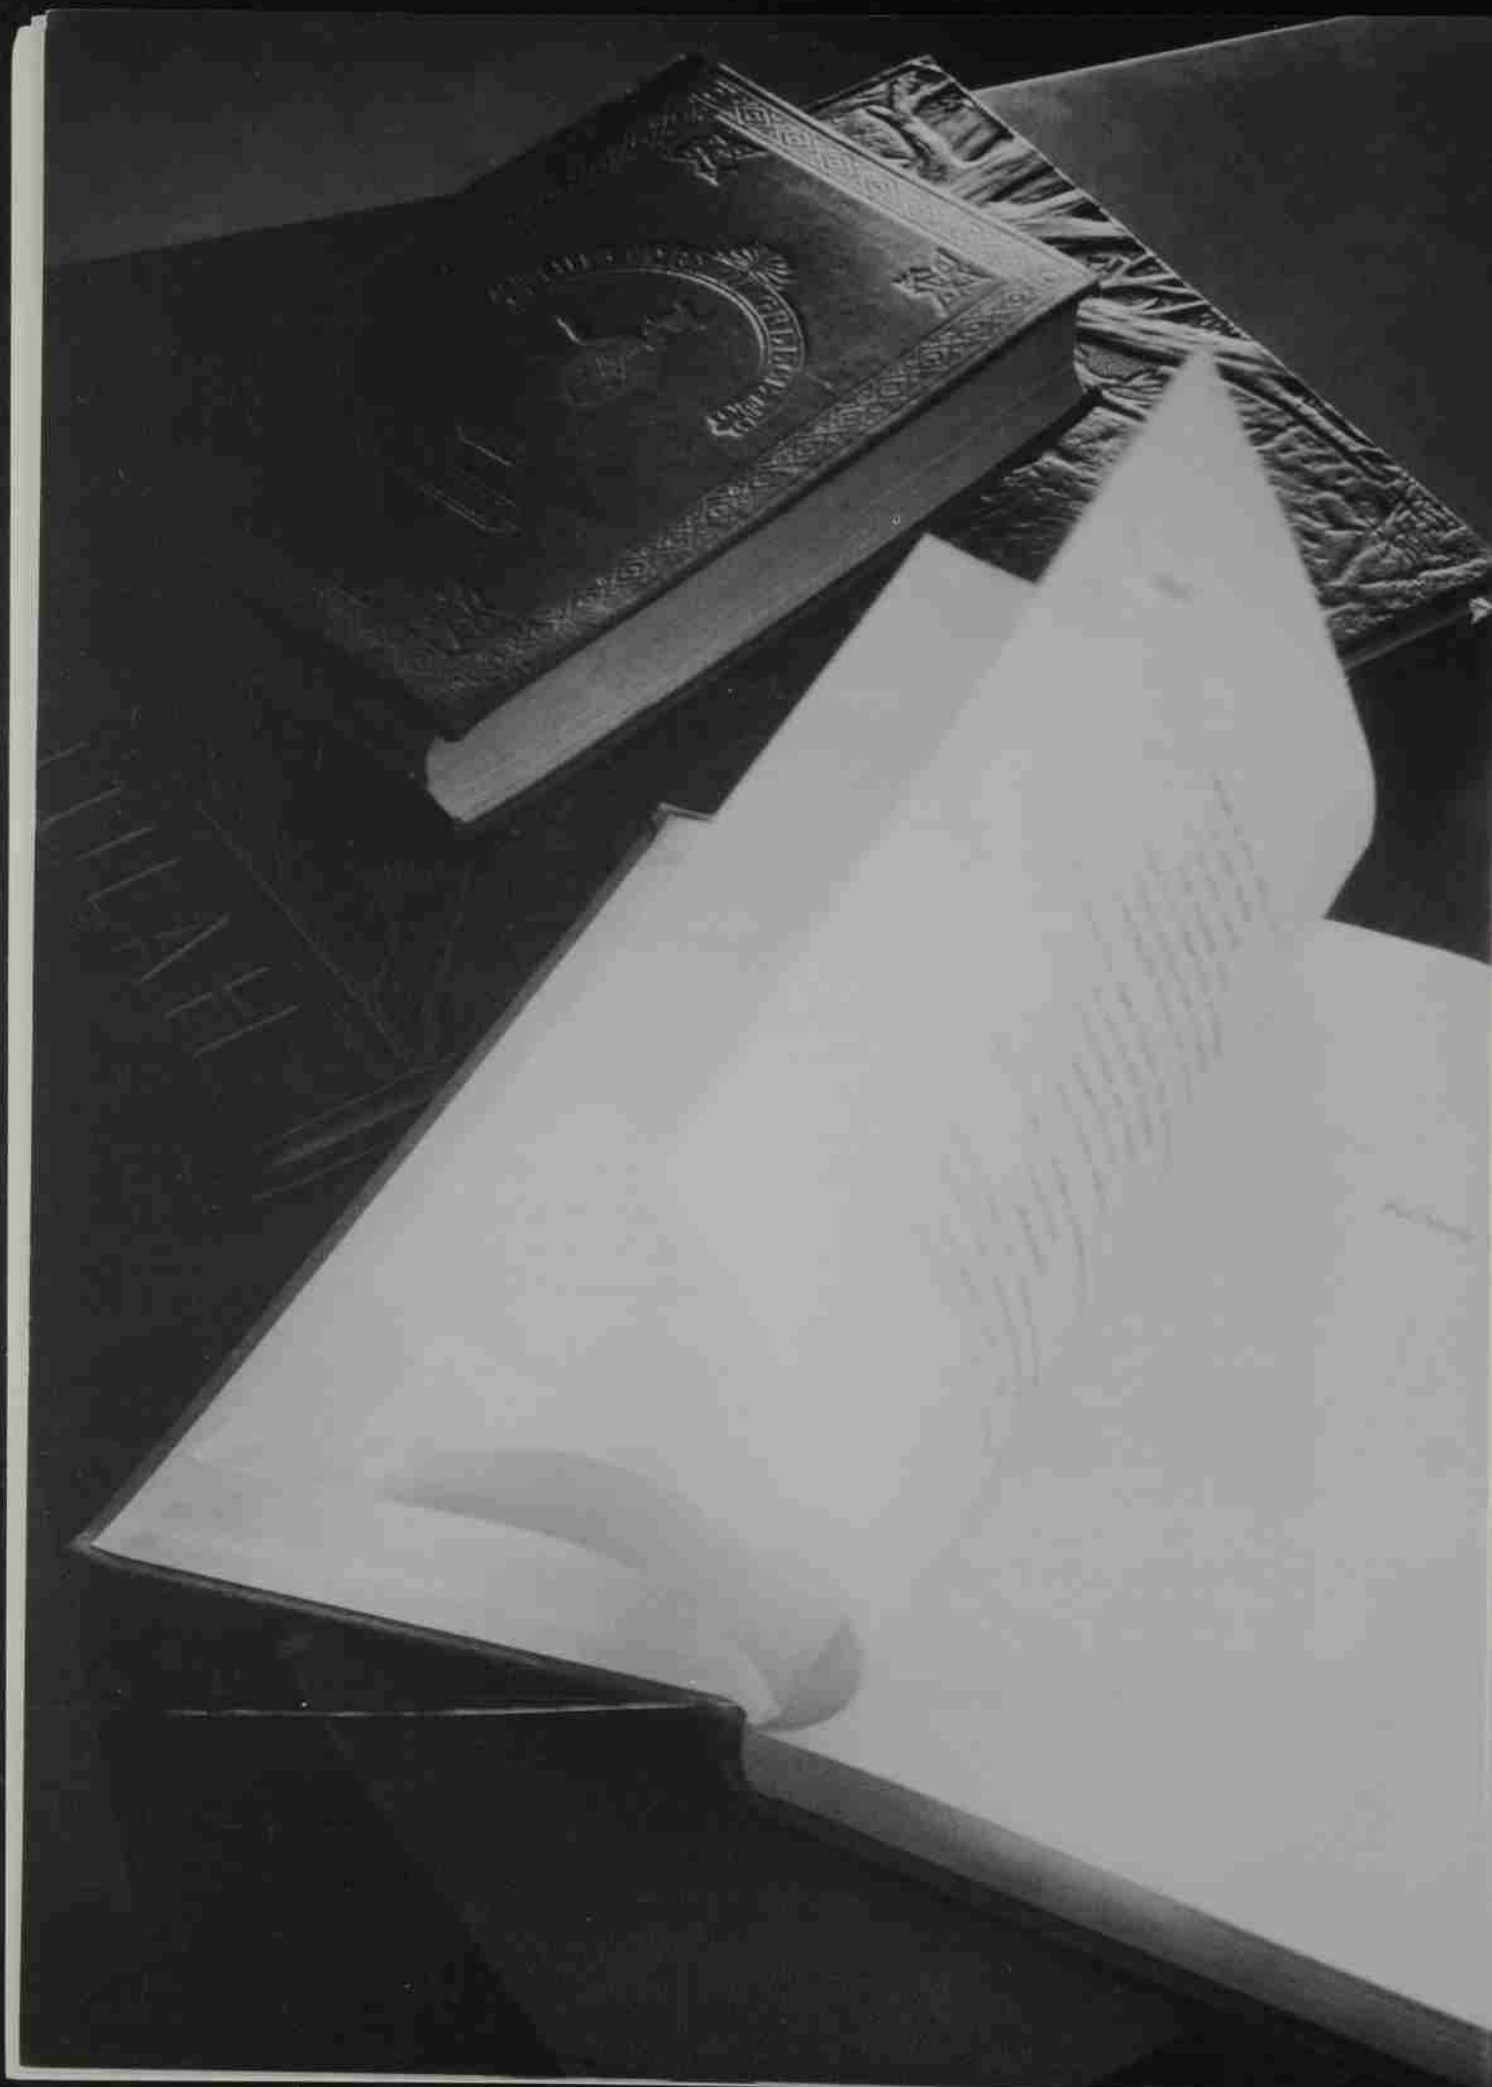

The highlights of 1994-95 and the recognition of donors in this Annual Report underscore and celebrate the progress Willamette is making in the process of preparing students for their roles as future leaders. No greater assessment could be given of the institution’s success in illuminating its students than to chronicle the achievements and service of Willamette graduates and their support for future generations who will seek an education here.

One of the University’s distinguished alumni is Mark O. Hatfield ’43, who has provided for this Annual Report a reminiscence about the people who influenced him during his time at Willamette. I encourage you to read Senator Hatfield’s reflections, and then consider the reasons why you value this University.

As you read the remainder of this Annual Report I hope your pride in Willamette intensifies and your commitment increases. Thank you for your partnership with the institution. With your ongoing support, we will continue to be effective “stewards of the light” for future generations of Willamette students.

UNITED STATES SENATOR MARK O. HATFIELD

Thinking back to my time at Willamette, it is difficult to scale down the many influences. When I enrolled in September of 1940, the country was still reeling from the Great Depression and this sense of hardship permeated the atmosphere on campus. The impact of the Depression was felt world-wide but private universities such as Willamette faced particularly lean times.

The result, though, made for a unique and special experience at the University. The economic instability of the times created an extremely strong sense of community at the school. We were relating to one another as young adults who were one step closer to venturing out into an uncertain world.

We created much of our own social life, unlike today when so much of students' social lives and entertainment revolves around what they can buy. Our clubs and sporting activities kept us well entertained.

The other experience that drew us together as a student body was compulsory chapel once a week. Though we did not appreciate it at the time — like students of today, staying awake was often our primary objective during sermons — time spent in chapel brought us together. We were collectively acknowledging our spiritual needs as well as the academic. The University was ensuring that, as a supplement to our studies, we were not neglecting the total person.

At Willamette, we were broadening our horizons, becoming more cosmopolitan, making friends with people from across town and from across the globe at the safe haven of the University. Having had no brothers and sisters, I was particularly grateful for these ties; they became my new family. The friendships have been lasting.

The university faculty became much more to us than instructors we saw for a few hours during the week. We modeled our lives after them. In 1940, Willamette had 750 students, so it was not too difficult to spend time individually with our professors. We saw them socially, they invited us to their homes for dinner and other occasions. All were superb, without exception.

I recall two professors with particular fondness: my political science professor, Robert Moulton Gatke, Ph.D., and my history professor, Ivan Lovell, Ph.D. Both had a lasting impact on my life.

Dr. Gatke was perhaps the strongest Republican influence on me, aside from one other former Salem resident, Herbert Hoover. Dr. Gatke was a staunch Republican and made no bones about espousing good Republican doctrine and Republican ideals. He was a tremendous admirer of Herbert Hoover and fueled the fire of interest I maintain to this day in this remarkable former president.

At the other end of the political spectrum was Dr. Lovell. I suppose one could almost have called him a Jacobean socialist. He had been born in England and entranced his classes with intriguing liberal ideas and his charming British accent.

Dr. Gatke and Dr. Lovell were very close friends. Every election year, they would delight the campus with an engaging debate on the issues and candidates from the two polarized perspectives

(our primitive "Crossfire"). Their exchange might not even be considered a debate in today's terms, it was so tame and civil. We would eagerly gather to watch the two of them fire their comments and questions back and forth to one another. Their remarks were sharp and clear but unfailingly civil and respectful. This was a lasting lesson to me that diversity need not be soured by antagonism; that exchanges can be courteous and informative.

Theirs was an example I have attempted to replicate in my public life and even in daily private exchanges. When I have disagreed or dissented, voted "no" when most were voting "aye," I have never ruptured relationships because of it. I have always believed that a peaceful result was attainable.

It was to the tremendous credit of Willamette that it never attempted to stifle these outspoken voices but rather to strongly encourage them. Recall that at the time, secondary school teachers were strongly discouraged from even discussing their political parties in the classroom. Stanford University forbade presidential candidates from appearing on campus.

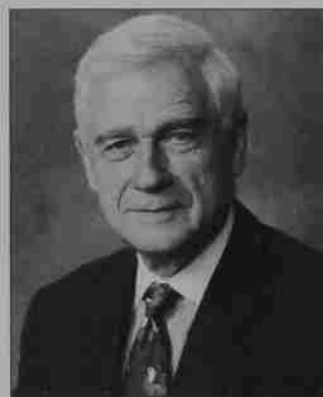

The tolerant tone at Willamette was fostered and perhaps exemplified by the man who first accepted me to the faculty at the University, President G. Herbert Smith. President Smith took on this young, inexperienced person and served as a mentor to me in administrative procedure and philosophy (and later served as best man in my wedding). He was probably the person with the greatest influence on my professional life.

President Smith corrected my errors relating to decisions I had made as dean of students, but gave me the leeway to be creative in my thinking as an administrator on campus. He did not demand conformity.

He was willing to permit me to have a dual career: enabling me to run for state office and to serve in the Oregon legislature while simultaneously serving as dean of students. Recall that while Stanford would not allow the liberal, Progressive Party candidate for vice president, Senator Glen Taylor, on their campus, G. Herbert Smith permitted Dr. Lovell to introduce Henry Wallace, the party's controversial and outspoken nominee for president, on the steps of Waller Hall in 1948. President Smith's contributions to Willamette were comprehensive: in developing the campus, in developing curriculum, in attracting superior instructors. I hope the University never loses its gratitude for his service.

I have had the privilege of seeing Willamette University from a multitude of perspectives, having been a student, a professor, dean of students, and later serving on the board of trustees. It has been a long-standing connection I have treasured.

What has endeared Willamette most to me has been its resolute defense of inspired thinking and boundless scholastic exploration. The curriculum blends disciplines, demonstrating to students the complementary relationships between all branches of academia. And, perhaps most importantly, students graduate appreciating the relevance of their studies to human life, human needs and human accomplishments — a true liberal arts education.

HIGHLIGHTS OF THE YEAR JUNE 1, 1994, TO MAY 31, 1995

SUMMER

The F. W. Olin Foundation granted $7.1 million for Willamette to build a new science center. This was the largest single gift ever received by Willamette and the largest given to date by the Olin Foundation. An official announcement event was held at the Oregon Museum of Science and Industry (OMSI) in Portland in August.

FALL SEMESTER

Atkinson Lecture Series: Nobel Prize winner Oscar Arias, former president of Costa Rica.

The school year opened with record enrollment of 2,519.

"Focus on Your Future — Tomorrow's Choices," a series of five lecture-discussions on elder issues, was co-sponsored by the College of Law.

Professors recognized for excellence:

ON-SABBATICAL LEAVE

Martin Behnke, music, one year, to create an original work for wind band and new vocal jazz compositions; to continue his exposé of CO₂ poisoning related to "tight" home construction by revising and finding a publisher for his book, The Angry Blue House, and by preparing an article based on the book; and to return to a regular practice regimen for jazz piano, including performance on and off campus.

Roberta Bigelow, physics, one year, to study X-ray diffraction and materials characterization at a national laboratory to develop her skills in materials science and to translate these skills to Willamette students in physics courses.

Gerard Bowers, English, one year, for intensive study of the Japanese language and culture, writing poetry and fiction, reading on "writing" in English, and preparing professional presentations on an intercultural comparative literature course; he developed two comparative literature courses in consultation with TIUA faculty.

Robert Dash, politics, one year, to investigate the Latino historical presence in Oregon and the Northwest territory, culminating in a published monograph and development of a new course on minority politics in the United States; to compile and edit a set of readings on the politics of the Third World; conduct field research in Oaxaca and other states in Mexico, related to transnationalization of culture among migrant populations.

Richard Hagedorn, law, spring 1995, to develop course materials, to co-author Brady on Bank Checks; to write a supplement to The Law Promissory Notes and a supplement to The Law of Debtors and Creditors; and to attend the annual meeting of the American Law Institute.

Michael Hand, Atkinson School, spring 1995, to work on a textbook about business and economic forecasting tentatively titled Forecasting: A Modern Approach with Applications in Management and Economics.

Christopher Harris, theatre, one year, to participate in art and sculpture workshops, resulting in new perspectives on teaching of design, and on scene design;
and to exhibit the results in a gallery show.

Scott Hawke, biology, fall 1994, to master the technical nuances of the biology department's new scanning electron microscope (SEM), and to translate his understanding of SEM operation into training sessions for faculty interested in using the technology for teaching and research.

Sally Markowitz, philosophy, fall 1994, to expand her paper, "Gender and the Aesthetic Point of View," into a book-length manuscript.

Frann Michel, English, fall 1994, to revise her doctoral dissertation analyzing the significance of the split between sex and gender in modernist writing, concentrating on recently published theories and adding a new chapter on Ernest Hemingway's The Garden of Eden.

Robert Misner, law, fall 1994, to participate in the American Bar Association
Central and Eastern European Law Initiative (CEELI) in Bulgaria; assisting the director of the law program at the New Bulgarian University to develop a business plan and an administrative structure for the new law school.

John Peel, music, spring 1995, to complete the orchestration of the Violin Concerto, a 30-minute composition for the violin and orchestra; and to continue a comparative analysis of Richard Wagner's orchestration of *Die
Gotterdammerung* with that composer's Parsifal, which may lead to a publishable manuscript.

Richard Stewart, music, one year, to develop a course in multicultural music;
and to research and conduct on-site visitations, and compile a bibliography, in colleges and universities in the United States.

Cathleen Whiting, economics, one year, to begin work on a book analyzing the "merger wave" of the Reagan presidential era, with a focus on the "Chicago Theory" economics used to support that development.

FINANCIAL HIGHLIGHTS

The 1994-95 fiscal year saw a continuation of Willamette's positive financial trends from the recent past. For the 17th consecutive year the University's budget concluded with a positive balance. The $742,000 operating surplus which represents approximately 1 1/2 percent of operating revenues will be used to help continue a high level of facilities maintenance.

Strong securities markets in the first half of 1995 helped the endowed funds achieve a 16 percent return for the year and to grow by $14,132,000 to a total market value of $118,195,000. The income generated by those pools of investments is an increasingly important resource, particularly for student financial aid.

The financial information which follows on the next two pages is extracted from the University's audited financial statements and is stated in terms of cost rather than market value. On this conservative basis the University's combined fund balances (a measure of net total wealth) grew during 1994-95 by $12,111,000 to a total of $154,321,000.

Through the generosity of thousands of donors, Willamette passed a significant milestone during the 1994-95 academic year. The Sesquicentennial Campaign exceeded its $50 million goal and provided over $62 million for the University's endowment, programs and facilities.

Already Willamette students are experiencing the benefits derived from the campaign as new facilities are completed, new library materials and learning technology become available, and distinguished teachers are brought to campus to fill newly endowed chairs. Over $10 million in new endowed scholarships help to make a Willamette education accessible to worthy and able students.

The success of the Sesquicentennial Campaign reflects the commitment of Willamette's alumni, trustees and friends. Since the completion of the campaign in December, they and others have come forward to provide assistance with the ongoing needs of the University.

The students, faculty and staff of the University welcome this opportunity to recognize those who have made gifts to Willamette in the period between June 1, 1994, and May 31, 1995.

ANNUAL GIFTS REPORT

Thank You

Willamette University is grateful to the donors who have made contributions during the 1994-95 fiscal year. Matching gifts from employers have been included when determining the appropriate giving society memberships. Titles have been omitted wherever possible to save space. If you are a donor, but your name does not appear in the 1994-95 President's Report, one of two things may have happened: 1) your gift may have been received after Willamette's fiscal year ended May 31, 1995; or 2) in the process of generating the annual report lists, your name was inadvertently excluded. Inquiries or requests for further information should be directed to: Marnie Noble, Director of Donor Relations and Special Events, Willamette University, 900 State Street, Salem, OR 97301 (503) 370-6340.

JASON LEE SOCIETY

The Jason Lee Society recognizes individuals who contributed $5,000 to $9,999 to Willamette during the fiscal year. The society is named for Jason Lee, the principal founder of the University. He left his entire estate to Willamette and his gift continues to touch the lives of students attending his beloved school more than 150 years later.

WALLER SOCIETY

The Waller Society honors individuals who contributed $1,000 to $4,999 to Willamette during the fiscal year. This society is named for Alvan E. Waller, who carried on the tradition of service and devotion begun by Jason Lee. It was Alvan Waller, as the university's agent, who bore the responsibility for developing the financial well-being of the University as it grew. He raised the funds for and supervised the construction of what is now known as Waller Hall, which was completed in 1867.

STEP SOCIETY

The Step Society commemorates the historic old step at Waller Hall, worn down over time by the feet of so many people. The society honors individuals who contributed $500 to $999 to Willamette during the fiscal year. Contributors to the Step Society provide vital support for the academic footing needed by new generations of students who cross Willamette's threshold.

Victor Parker '96 said he lacked direction his freshman year and that is why he decided to take a year off before completing college. "I needed to refocus. Now I know what I need to do," he said. "Without direction, you aren't motivated."

Parker is interested in business law and also in advertising. He said he likes business because of the challenges of making decisions which lead to success. "How people are persuaded is interesting to me," he said, "and also the areas of propaganda and mass media."

He chose Willamette for the same reason many choose this University: the small size and the chance to become involved. Parker played basketball his freshman and sophomore years, but then decided to stop and concentrate on his studies.

After graduation, Parker said he may again take time to refocus before making any major decisions about his future. He still feels that taking such time, perhaps in the Peace Corps, is important to finding a sense of direction.

Mary L. Collins Undergraduate Scholarship

Willamette University is proud of its ability to help students further their education with financial assistance. Scholarship aid is one way students receive that help, and many of the scholarships awarded at Willamette have been endowed in honor of people who value knowledge. Endowed scholarships create an enduring legacy of learning, passed on to a new generation in the name of those who hold education dear. The pages that follow introduce a few of the students who have benefited from the generosity of others who believe it is important to assure the continuation of this legacy.

1842 SOCIETY

The 1842 Society recognizes individuals who contributed $150 to $499 to Willamette during the fiscal year. The largest giving society, the 1842 Society commemorates the year of the University's founding and represents the base on which the future of Willamette will be built.

I was the small size of Willamette which appealed to Turlock, Calif., native Gabrielle Byrd '96. "I wanted to get involved right away, especially on the college newspaper," said Byrd, who majors in English with a math minor. She saw a small university like Willamette as the place to do that, and has, in fact, been able to take an active role on The Collegian, serving in 1994-95 as managing editor. Byrd plans to attend graduate school after graduation, possibly on the East Coast, and hopes to pursue a career in public relations or work on a magazine. She has always loved to write and while she was still in elementary school she began her training in journalism. In the eighth grade Byrd worked on the school newspaper and in high school she worked on the Turlock Journal, where she began by writing about sports. "I had good English teachers and journalism advisors," she said. "They were honest and tough and would rip your papers apart. That's what made me better. It's really helpful to have someone telling you to keep writing. Without that push I wouldn't have done what I did." One of the scholarships awarded to Byrd for her study at Willamette is the Katie Redmond Scholarship, named in honor of Katie Redmond, who died while a student at Willamette.

Amy Baty '96 said her dad always told her to major in something she enjoyed. It was because of this that she picked two of her favorite subjects for a dual major at Willamette — biology and French. "I like learning all the facts about how things work, what makes nature work," she said. "It's fascinating."

Baty, who comes from Missoula, Mont., said her parents were always encouraging and emphasized how important it was for women to study science. "The faculty at Willamette have been encouraging, too," she adds, "and renewed my excitement."

During the 1994-95 academic year, Baty was the recipient of the prestigious Barry M. Goldwater Scholarship. It is a national scholarship created to encourage outstanding students to pursue careers in mathematics, the natural sciences and engineering and to foster excellence in those fields.

R. A. BOOTH SOCIETY

The R. A. Booth Society was established in 1990. Members have affirmed that "not unto ourselves alone are we born" by establishing planned gifts which benefit the University. In the spirit of the society's namesake, these members will provide for future generations at Willamette University through bequests, life insurance policies, life income trusts and life estates.

If you have named Willamette University as a beneficiary in your will or a life insurance policy, but are not listed, please let us know. We would like to express our thanks. At their request, some members' names are not published here.

Even as a young child Brandy O'Bannon '98 was interested in history. She has brought this interest to Willamette where she majors in history and English, hoping some day to write historical nonfiction. This love of history is something O'Bannon, who is the recipient of a Mary Eyre scholarship, has in common with the woman in whose honor the scholarship is named. "Meeting Mary Eyre was the best part of receiving the scholarship," said O'Bannon, who was a reader for Eyre until Eyre moved last year from Salem to Halsey, Ore. "She is such a remarkable woman, and we have so much in common," said O'Bannon.

Interested in historic preservation, O'Bannon works at Deepwood, where Mary Eyre was active for many years. She would like to do more research and is considering going to England for her junior year. She once wanted to teach high school, but these days leans more towards writing or teaching at the college level.

Both the size of the college and the opportunity to take advantage of the study abroad programs influenced Patrick Bible '96 to attend Willamette University. Coming from Reno, Nev., he had heard only wonderful things about the Northwest. When the decision had to be made, Bible said he narrowed it down to a couple of very large schools and Willamette. "It all came down to whether I wanted to be a number or a person; I wanted a place where I knew I could make a difference."

Bible took full advantage of Willamette's programs to study abroad, spending his entire junior year in Germany. As with most students who study in another country, the time was an amazing education, a chance to travel and a time to grow personally. It was valuable time for Bible to learn to deal with things on his own and to contemplate his plans for the future. These plans would include double majoring in German and physics from Willamette and going to graduate school.

Jan Muranaka '96 left Hawaii to attend Willamette, hoping to expand her horizons. In the spring she will expand her horizons even further by spending two weeks in Japan. Muranaka has been selected by the Japanese consulate general's office for this expense-paid opportunity to visit Japan to experience that country's culture. "It's a chance to go and absorb the culture and see if I would like to spend some time there before graduate school," she said.

Muranaka came to Willamette with plans to enter law, but while attending the University she has developed an interest in public administration and public policy. She is working on a dual major in Japanese and politics. Muranaka's heritage is Japanese and she felt she knew a lot about the culture until she began to study the language. "I realized I had so much more to learn," she said. Through jobs with the ACLU and the legislature in Hawaii, she has also developed an interest in minority affairs and the legislative process.

After graduating next spring, she plans to attend graduate school, possibly in Pennsylvania, Chicago or Washington, D.C.

Tara Wilson '98 is getting involved quickly at Willamette University, but this is nothing new to the Sparks, Nev., native. In high school her activities included student body president, We the People, DARE counselor, numerous sports and other clubs. This enthusiasm helped Wilson to gain admission into Willamette University with honors and to win the Elmer and Grace Goudy Scholarship.

In her first year at Willamette, Wilson was an overall Freshman Glee manager and on the planning committee for Opening Days. She is an assistant vice president for Alpha Chi Omega and a resident assistant in Baxter Hall. She sees being an RA as "a chance to meet the freshmen and learn different facets of the campus. It gives me a chance to be involved with people on a more personal level." Getting involved and excited is important to her. She plans to major in chemistry and the pharmacy field may be next in line for her.

Twin juniors Katherine and Kristine Eli '97 are now powerhouses on the Willamette University soccer team, but that hasn't always been the case. Finding their scholarship at Linfield College had been cut their second year, the twins decided to transfer, and looked to Willamette. "I immediately fell in love with the campus," Kristine says. "What I thought was bad luck turned into great luck!" The sisters are both happy at Willamette now, saying "Willamette is such a wonderful school, we can't imagine not going here." They definitely keep busy with soccer and numerous sports such as water-skiing, cliff jumping, downhill mountain biking and any other "adventurous outdoor activity."

Both are leaning towards majoring in sociology, although they have very different plans for the future. Kristine is tentatively looking into the Air Force, hoping one day to attend flight school. Their father, an airline pilot, was somewhat of an inspiration for that idea. Katherine is looking towards the Peace Corps now, but both girls are keeping their options open.

Taking a year off between high school and college to work and travel was the best decision he ever made, claims Tor Bell '95. "It was an excellent experience," he said. "I felt more focused and finished with all the uncertainty. It was a time of personal growth for me and a time to visit family and get a sense of my heritage. It broadened my horizons and gave me a sense of other cultures."

Bell majored in rhetoric and media studies and economics at Willamette and plans to eventually teach in the field of communications. "I found the language art of rhetoric and media studies fascinating. It really captured my attention and my interest and I worked as a research assistant for two years for the department." But before going on to graduate school Bell plans to take several more years off to travel and do volunteer work, perhaps in Central or South America. "I also want to spend some time hiking and [rock] climbing."

From the time she was five years old, Michelle Corse '95 wanted to be a veterinarian. She spent time in high school working in veterinary clinics and came to Willamette to major in biology as preparation for veterinary school.

While at Willamette she took an ecology class as part of her major and from that point on her life began to change direction. Now, instead of going to veterinary school, she's heading to the University of Illinois where she will continue her studies in biology. She will serve as a teaching assistant while she works on her master's degree in biology, and hopes some day to earn her Ph.D. in biology as well.

Hiking, camping and animals have always been among her special interests, and she would like to make those interests part of a career in the National Forest Service or Bureau of Land Management. With the assistance of an undergraduate research grant, she accompanied Professor John Koprowski to Arizona to study the Chiricahua Fox Squirrel. While there she researched the diet and foraging behavior of the squirrels, especially the foraging differences between the male and the female squirrels. Her plans call for her to continue an emphasis at graduate school in foraging ecology.

I was experiences in the working world that brought David Fetherstonhaugh '95 back to college to major in psychology. "I had frustrating experiences in the work world," he said. "I saw managers working against themselves and against employee motivation. I wanted to know what makes employees perform as part of a team and how you create a pleasant environment."

At Willamette Fetherstonhaugh worked closely with psychology Professor Jim Friedrich and conducted research in how people make decisions and in how people value great loss of life. He co-authored one article with Friedrich which was chosen for publication and is working on another article. His work at the undergraduate level has earned him a National Science Foundation Fellowship to attend Stanford University and work with one of the researchers who was often his inspiration, Amos Tversky. At Stanford he hopes to continue his research in judgment and decision making. "I want to learn more about how people make the decisions they do; make people aware of the follies of human decision making. Most people are over-confident in intuition, over-estimating the probability of success."

In 1995, Fetherstonhaugh was chosen as an Academic All-Star by U.S.A. Today.

"Once you decide to be serious about vocal music it becomes a lifestyle," said Jennifer Davis '95, who is doing her graduate work at the Cleveland Institute of Music where she plans to earn her master's degree in vocal performance. "You have to watch how much you use your voice, stay away from smoke, stay healthy," said Davis, who hopes to someday sing with an opera company. "Opera combines theatre and music, plus it's a challenge technically and is physically demanding," she said. "It's a challenge to see how much you can perfect your technique."

Davis began singing with a solo in her second grade talent show. "I can't even imagine doing anything else," she said, "and if I did, it would have to be on the creative side." She attended Chemeketa Community College as a theatre major, but became interested in classical music at Willamette. Through it all, she said she had the support of her parents. "My parents are so much a part of my life and in this field the support of your parents is really important," she said. "You need that backup."

REQUESTED MATCHING GIFTS

Many individuals are eligible to have their gifts to Willamette matched by an employer or spouse's employer. The University deeply appreciates the additional support, which increases the impact of individual gifts, as well as counting toward a membership in the giving societies. The date on which a matching gift is granted may not coincide with Willamette University's fiscal year. This is a listing of donors who requested during 1994-95 that their gifts be matched; donors for whom matching funds were received during the fiscal year are denoted with a * elsewhere throughout the Annual Report.

Jeanette Schadler '95 has tremendous enthusiasm for her chosen major — mathematics. "I love it!" she says. "For the most part it's very logical. In English when you are writing a paper, it's not always how well you do, but how the individual who reads it likes it. Math is more objective."

Schadler said that she has always done well in math. "I like the theoretical better than the practical," she said, "and I enjoy exploring new ideas or proving old theories, expanding on what we know." She credits two of her early math teachers for much of that enthusiasm. "It was good to have positive role models who told me it was okay to enjoy math. If you have the right teacher, math really can be fun."

Schadler also plays French horn and was active in music at Willamette. "Music is very mathematical," she said. "It's all ratios and proportions."

Schadler is now attending Syracuse University in New York where she received a full tuition scholarship and a job as teaching assistant. She hopes to eventually get her Ph.D. and teach math.

Now that Sihwa Go '95 has graduated, she's looking toward graduate school and a future job in publishing. "I'd like to take a year off and look for work, then apply to graduate school," Go said. "I'd like to be a first reader and read manuscripts for future marketability." Although she has always loved reading, and English was an easy subject for her, Go's first choice of a career was medicine. "I wanted to be a pediatrician, but soon realized I didn't have the stomach for medicine," she said.

Go was born in Laos but has lived in Salem since she was 18 months old. She started college at the University of Oregon, but soon found it too large and impersonal. "I like having the closer relationships with professors that are possible at Willamette," she said, "and the smaller class sizes."

When asked who provided her with the most encouragement and inspiration, Go credited her family. "Education is very important to my parents," she said. "My parents are the people most responsible for getting me here."

Kimberly Irwin '95 graduated with a degree in art with a studio emphasis. For her senior project she did drawings and pastels, but she enjoys working in other media as well. "I took art my junior year in high school," she said, "and I was hooked."

She spent time this fall in Europe and is considering an internship in decorative painting. "This would involve things like stenciling and sponge painting," she said. "There may be a career there."

Irwin said she has always received a lot of support from her parents. "I wouldn't be here without them," she said. "I can run my ideas by them. They've given me a lot of independence and help in building my confidence."

I not for the assistance he received from the Irene G. Swindells Music Scholarship, Raymond Fordyce '95 said it would have been difficult, if not impossible, to attend Willamette. Fordyce came to Willamette after serving four years in the Marine Corps and working on the family farm near Pratum, Ore. He and his wife, Annette, have a son, Graham, who is one year old. "I wanted to be a teacher," said Fordyce, who is entering the M.A.T. program at Willamette. Fordyce wants to teach music when he finishes and has been active in the music program at Willamette, including playing the lead role in the musical The Pajama Game.

Music has always been an important part of Fordyce's life. He sang in the choir at McKay High School in Salem and performed in musicals there. Now he is active in his church choir. "Music offers intrinsic values that other subjects don't," he said, "discipline, group cooperation, for example. I want to teach responsibility, respect for yourself and for the people in charge, self-discipline and belief in work. Teaching is more than filling a young person's head with information, it's also character building."

Joshua Rudd is a senior with a double major in business economics and rhetoric and media studies. From the time Rudd left Medford to come to Salem he knew he wanted to major in business. "I later realized how important the rhetoric classes were," he said: "they really give you a better understanding of interpersonal communication."

Rudd is a member of Sigma Chi and has held several offices in the fraternity. The Ken Batchelder Scholarship which he received is given to a member of Sigma Chi. Last year he also played water polo and this year he is participating in the AT&T Collegiate Investment Challenge. His classes, a part-time job and an internship with Smith Barney are keeping him busy this year.

Although Rudd has no immediate plans for graduate school, he would like to eventually get an advanced degree. Right now he's hoping to work for an investment firm following graduation this spring.

CENTER
 RESOLUTION
 AFFILIATES

Center for Dispute Resolution (CDR) Affiliates are leaders in their fields and visionaries who support the work of conflict theorists. Affiliates keep the CDR program personnel informed about issues and new developments in dispute resolution practice and submit disputes as raw materials for academic discussion. Affiliates provide financial support to the CDR program and are included as principal guests at every CDR event. The founding year for the CDR Affiliates program was 1993-94.
