W. CLUB IS BUSY

Stands for Clean Athletics
—Responsible for Much Improvement

Simpsonian Tells How it is Done
There—Eastern Colleges Not the Only Ones to Be Alive to the Best.

The following is a clipping taken from "The Simpsonian," the student publication of Simpson College of Indianola, Iowa. The 'S Club' referred to is the proposed formation of a club whose members are only the wearers of the official athletic letter.

"In the abstract, this is the thing that the 'S Club' proposes to accomplish. By means of this organization, all of the athletes of the school will be drawn together. It will be possible for athletic questions to be discussed and studied by people versed in such things to an extent that makes their ideas valuable. By making clean athletics the ideal of the club, a great deal can be done toward cultivating that admirable spirit of fairness that is inherent in every true sportsman. By thus distinguishing the athletes, more honor will be justly accorded the athletic monogram, and it will be all the more earnestly striven for. The only requirement for eligibility in the club will be that the candidate shall have won one of the official athletic monograms of the school. Hence merit and true worth are the only things necessary for membership in the organization. This will secure for the club a dramatic spirit without which the efforts, however commendable, would be without avail.

"By adding as a minor phase of the organization an infrequent social function the men who have battled for the honor of the school will be brought into closer relations with each other, which cannot but bring desirable results for the athletic life of the college.

"The letter club proposition is not an untried scheme. The athletes of the strongest schools for the state have organized themselves, and have done much in the lines indicated. At Iowa City the 'I Club' plays an important part in the athletic administration of the State University. At Drake the 'D Club' has become one of the most honored institutions in the school.

"The 'M Club' of the University of Missouri is of such strength that it occupies a building supported from its own funds."

Although the colleges mentioned in the "Simpsonian" are naturally eastern and middle west schools, still the "club" idea is not confined to eastern and middle west states. Last fall, while enjoying a feast of good things at one of Dr. Sweetland's banquets tendered to officially lettered men of Willamette, a similar organization as that proposed in the "Simpsonian" was formed. This club, known as the "W Club," has been one of the most powerful factors in shaping the athletic policies of the student body. Only those who are intimately acquainted with the facts know what things have been accomplished by the club. Very probably there are few in the school who realize that Willamette's beautiful athletic field, and Campus Improvement League are direct outgrowths of the "W Club."

The chief thing, however, undertaken by the club has been to raise the standard of athletics in general, to make the wearing of the athletic monogram an honor accorded to only those who have justly earned it.

The ideal of the club is "clean athletics," and to develop an honor in athletics which alone can make the games worthy of college men.

The impetus given the club at Dr. Sweetland's banquet last fall has started some big things going in Willamette student life, and the club has only

ALUMNA WILL TALK AT Y.W.C.A

Miss Alma Hales to Be Down from Portland to Speak to All the Girls Next Thursday.

Miss Alma Hales of the Portland Y. W. C. A. is to speak to the girls at the regular meeting of the local Y. W. C. A. on Thursday afternoon. Miss Hales is a graduate of Willamette, in the class of 1907. While here she was at one time president of the Y. W. C. A. and was prominent in student body life. She has many friends here. She will speak concerning the summer conference to be held at the Breakers late in June. The meeting will be at Lausanne Hall, and after Miss Hales' talk there will be a short social hour. All girls are cordially invited to be present. Come, hear Miss Hales and spend a few minutes in social chat.

THE ROGUE RIVER RAPIDS.

Errol Gilkey.

Rushing, roaring, surging, the waters seethe and boil around the huge pillars of rock. They hurl their whole being against the obstructions, then fall back baffled, but more are continually coming to carry on the warfare, which has been waged for ages. No words can picture the grandeur of that battle—truly a battle royal.

For centuries those stalwart rocks have resisted the onslaught of the angry waters, have hurled them back in the form of spray, but even now the attack is just as savage, just as furious as when the Assyrian and Egyptian dynasties rose and fell in ancient lands. And so will this battle continue to rage until the rocks have fallen or the waters failed.

What fantastic shapes the foamy billows take! Ever changing, ever moving on. Here one rises as a miniature snow-capped peak, there is one which resembles a fairy castle with the turrets and battlements glistening in the sun—but they are gone, and other shapes are formed.

To one who has never before seen the grandeur of nature's miracles, such sights cause a feeling of awe. To see the raging floods, the huge masses of rock and to hear the deafening roars echoed and re-echoed by the mighty walls of the canyon, gives one a feeling of the insignificance of man. Let him hurl himself into the boiling waters—he becomes the plaything of the elements.

Tumbling from the vaulted walls of the canyon with a sheer drop of several hundred feet, a silver stream seeks to join its sparkling waters with the raging billows of the rapids below, but long before it reaches the depths, it ceases to be a well defined stream and is transformed into tiny drops and crystals. These being caught by the strong breeze, which is ever rushing up the canyon, are tossed aside and thus are continually watering a fairy garden spot where the luxuriant vegetation rivals that of any tropical clime.

PAT'S TROUSERS.

An Irishman had a pair of trousers made by a local tailor, who according to fashion made them rather tight. Pat didn't care for them so tight, and returned with them a day or two after. Says he:

"You have made them trousers far too tight, be jabers, they're tighter than me skin."

"Oh, come now," said the tailor, "that can't be surely. How can they be tighter than your skin?"

"Well," says Pat, "I can sit down in me skin, but I can't sit down in them trousers."

started in its pursuit of the "best things" in college athletics.

OREGON LAW VS. WILLAMETTE LAW

Annual Debate Scheduled for Friday, the 28th,
in W.U. Chapel

Wilson, O'Connor and Nott is Local Trio—Will Speak on Negative of Single Tax System Question.

The annual debate between the Colleges of Law of the University of Oregon and the Willamette University will be held on Friday evening, the 28th of this month. The subject upon which the forensic battle will be waged is the single tax system of Henry George and his followers with reference to its adaptability in our own state.

This choice of subject is exceptionally well timed in view of the present agitation of this plan of taxation and its discussion will be a matter of interest to every student. Willamette will uphold the negative.

George Wilson, Frank O'Connor and Earl Nott will be Willamette's standard bearers. Able and eloquent debaters, their minds fresh from the rounded and sonorous sentences of old Blackstone, they look like winners.

Friday evening in the Chapel. Every body keep this date open.

O. A. C. VS. W. U. THIS AFTERNOON

May Be One-Sided Game—Students,
Come Out and Support Team!

The baseball team will play the second game of the season here next Friday with O. A. C. That this game will be somewhat one sided there appears to be but little doubt, for O. A. C., who was the Northwest champion last year and has nearly all its old team back this year, is very strong and has opened their spring schedule by beating Whitman College by a large score. The Willamette men have been handicapped greatly by a very late start in practice, but still they have been working hard and no one doubts but that they will fight hard. Beyond a doubt they deserve the most hearty support that the Willamette student body can give them next Friday, and those bleachers should be alive with yelling.

YOU OWE IT TO THE SCHOOL—BE THERE!

CO-EDS, TAKE NOTICE!

"Absolutely the biggest offer of the age. It is none other than man. Man the purchaser of candies, the impresario of kisses, the dispenser of delights, the purveyor of romantic thrills; he who conducteth to the dance and inviteth to the show.

In time of college prepare for matrimony, else wherefore matriculate. Look, dear co-eds into the future. As time goes on men like diamonds become more precious."

AS TO BUSINESS.

"Business is pretty slow here just now," confessed the Squam Corners merchant.

"I judged so," replied the baking-powder drummer, "when I observed that they had laid off one of the hands on the town clock."

FEB. 22 PRANK HEARD OF AGAIN

Editorial Comment from London Paper Says Washington Was Not the Only "Father of His Country."

The frolic indulged in by Willamette students on Washington's birthday has received far more widespread notice than was ever dreamed of by Willamette students. It has been the subject for large editorial notices which, as the following cuttings will show, has not been confined to the United States but has even crossed the waters to London.

The Springfield Republican, (Springfield, Mass.) which ranks as one of the very leading newspapers of the country has the following comment to make:

"Because the faculty declined to make Washington's birthday a holiday at Willamette University in Salem, Oregon, most of the students mutined. At morning prayers the bulk of them marched around the chapel and out to the athletic field. From there a committee of three was delegated by the mutinous students to bring out their fellows who had refused to follow the majority. This committee was directed to present the following resolutions to the faculty:

"Whereas, the student body has seen fit to take a holiday, be it resolved, that the faculty take a holiday also in honor of the Father of Our Country."

"The students spent their time largely during the day in working on the athletic field, and in the evening the girls were hostesses at a spread to over 200 of the students. It will be interesting to learn by way of later newspapers from Oregon how the authorities of that institution dealt with so impudent a rebellion. President Homan was absent, and next day the professor in charge recognized the gravity of the performance and told the students 'it would not be condoned or overlooked.'"

The other article is from the Westminster Gazette, a literary and news review, published in London, England. The editorial, which is in a lighter mood than the other, shows that our cousins across the water cannot completely root out the grudge which they hold against our honored Washington:

"The students of Willamette University, a Methodist Episcopal institution situated at Salem, in the State of Oregon, who have waxed wroth into a rebellion because they were not given a holiday on Washington's birthday, would probably be shocked to hear that the term, 'The Father of his Country,' which they proudly associate with the first president of the United States, had been assigned before him to very different rulers. It was given, for example, to such a merry monarch as our own Charles II, as well as to such a decidedly grim one as Peter the Great, upon whom, indeed, it was specially conferred by the Russian senate before Washington was born; and these have not been the only 'despots' in effete Europe to bear a title of honor now thought in the land of the free to belong alone to the immortal George. The Willamettes may, however, be soothed by the reflection that neither King Charles nor the Czar Peter had their birthdays clamorously desired as a holiday by students sufficiently light-hearted to use as their college 'yell' so sweetly touching a cry as 'Wa-Hoo! Wa-Hoo! Rip! Zip! Bazo! I yell, I yell for W. U., Wa-Hoo, Wa-Hoo!' and, perhaps, a little of this would have gone a long way even with Washington."

Although the affair which brought forth these articles is now past history,

Four College Classes Will Present
Original Willamette Songs—Freshmen to Give Prize Pennant—Judged on Music, Words and Rendition.

The really big event of the season is to be pulled off next Tuesday evening when the different college classes strive for the Freshman glee pennant. It's enough to say that the trophy is far more elaborate this year than ever before and it will well pay any class for their labor in originating a winning song. A splendid program is assured by the efforts which have been placed into the musical productions. From inside information we understand that some of the classes in particular have very classy songs. An interesting program is being arranged in connection with the class songs so a very pleasant occasion is assured. The class presidents will draw for places on the program and will choose the judges very soon.

Following are the rules governing the Freshman glee as outlined by the Freshman class:

1. The four affiliated college classes shall participate.
2. Special students may unite with the class with which they are most closely connected.
3. Composition.—Must be a college song, both words and music original with the members of the class.
4. Not less than eight members of each class shall participate in the rendition of the song.
5. Each class shall be entitled to render its selection undisturbed.
6. There shall be five judges elected as follows: Each of the three upper classes shall submit three names and from these nine nominees the Freshman class shall select five.
7. Judges will grade on these three points: words, music and rendition.
8. The winning class shall receive a pennant from the Freshman.

COLLEGE POLITICS.

From the Washington Daily.

Ever since their inception, college politics has been more or less of an objectionable nature. Vote pledging and interfraternity log-rolling have been among the minor evils which have existed, while the slanders and innuendoes which have at times been circulated in regard to candidates for preferment in college affairs have been nothing short of criminal libel.

A cleaner sentiment against such practices has gradually arisen, and at the A. S. U. C. election of a year ago found its expression in the resolution passed at that time, which officially discontinued such actions. Experience since then has proven that an acceptance of that resolution in a strict sense would raise an absolutely insurmountable barrier to the intelligent selections of men to fill our official positions. This barrier being the impossibility of placing before the voters in a manner intelligible to them the various candidates to be voted upon.

they still make interesting reading in giving us a view of ourselves "as others see us."

The custom of the celebration of May Day is probably Roman in origin. It was first a feast day in honor of the goddess, who in the spring was supposed to be responsible for the return of vegetation, the renewal of life and happiness in the world, and the promise of an abundant harvest later on.

Most of the activities which characterize the day at the present time come from "Merry Old England," where it was a holiday for all classes of people. They went out to the woods and fields and "brought in the May" with garlands and branches of flowers and greens, and spent the day in festivities, among them the May pole dance. Later it came to be a day of celebration for chimney-sweeps, especially.

In this country it is primarily a college festival. The pageants given each year by Bryn Mawr are famous. In them are presented Robin Hood and his merry men, the Morris Dancers and many other traditional characters.

The manner of observing the day is peculiar to each college. The custom at Willamette started five years ago. Five Queens of May have been crowned here, and five times the Willamette May Pole has been wound with its gay streamers. The cleaning up of the campus by the boys and a mid-day lunch served by the girls to the entire student body are part of the celebration from year to year.

Spring has come again and everything seems to be putting on new life and vigor, everything, that is, with the possible exception of the Collegian reporters. Even old Mother Nature, becoming aware of the havoc which she had created in the Collegian office, was much disturbed and decided to repair the damage by giving as a taste of invigorating winter weather. The remedy proved unsatisfactory, however, at least the editor was not swamped with copy last week.

Spring may come and spring may go, but the Collegian must go on forever. Moral: Reporters, support the Collegian.

"Tis as much impossible,
Unless we sweep 'em from the door
with cannons,
To scatter 'em, as 'tis to make 'em sleep
On May Day morning."

WEBSTERIANS MEET.

Debate, "Solution of Liquor Problem by Abolishment of Private Profit."

On Wednesday evening April 12, the Websterians gathered for their weekly "gambols" in forensic practice.

The program was opened by anecdotes from Mr. Jory, Mr. Matthews, Wm. Schreiber, Martin Schreiber and Mr. Barton. Then followed a biographical sketch of the illustrious Austin F. Fiegel, by Charles B. Harrison, which was certainly a good sample of the work of Mr. Harrison's active brain. After a few other numbers the debate, "Resolved that the abolishment of private profit is the solution to the liquor problem," was led by Mr. Hollingworth with Mr. Paul Homan's

OLD EYESORE HAS GONE DOWN

Woodshed Fell With Mighty Crash—Used Boards in New Fence.

Every student at Willamette who has any desire to see the campus beautified breathed a prayer of thanksgiving one day last week when they saw the boards begin to come off the ancient sides of the old wood-house which has long occupied a prominent position just inside the athletic field at the rear of the old Liberal Arts building. The old shed has been in a dilapidated condition far beyond the memory of present students and probably the early history of the building could be obtained only by consulting the shade of our honored founder, Jason Lee. Sufficient to say, the old eyesore was visible from both State and Ferry streets, and was the most conspicuous part of the landscape viewed from the grand stand on Willamette field. But let us forget the anguish her gaunt frame has caused us and remember only the good she done by being transformed into a part of the athletic field fence.

Here's to our erstwhile honored wood-house! May she never return.

THEY BOTH KNEW.

The fool said one day in the king's presence, "I am the king!" And the king laughed, for he knew that his fool was wrong.

A week later the king was angry because of an error he had committed and exclaimed, "I am a fool!" And the fool laughed, for he knew that his king was right.

assistance and in spite of the fact that they had only ten minutes for preparation, they presented a good argument. But the negative side led by Mr. Day, with Mr. Barton's assistance proved to the judges conclusively that "the abolishment of private profit" is not the solution.

At the short business session Mr. Kenneth Hawley's application for membership was accepted and Mr. Paul Homan was appointed to procure a "write up" for the annual.

HOW TO BE A MAN-GRABBER.

As Given at the Adelante Meeting.

This turned out to be the object of a learned discourse as presented to the Adelante members at the last meeting. The above topic was most amusingly woven into "A Scientific Treatise on How Spring Affects Human Nature." Those who missed hearing it have indeed reason for regrets as the information was very practical. Then the "Golden Nuggets from College Days," by Laura Strong was a sample of the 1313 Junior Annual. Imagine our surprise when the College Calendar cited a certain "February 22," the like of which some of us had experienced already.

The poetic mind of Alma Huskin had interpreted "What the Mill Race Said to the Grand Stand," and what do you suppose it was? Well, it was a very pathetic romance about two lovers, which ended by the boy getting mud, which he had accidentally got on his face, all over the girls visage, but of course they were happy.

Then Mrs. Reeves read another enjoyable portion of David Harum. All this pleasant literary feast was introduced by a piano solo by Lorena Beknap. Though she is a new member she has already proved to us that she is a very valuable one.

Miss Alma Huskin was then unanimously elected as our May queen candidate, and we invite all our friends to participate with us in her election.

PAT'S SKYSCRAPER.

A Yankee, "doing the sights" of Dublin, was being driven round on one of the famous jaunting-cars, and after scanning most of the buildings with a critical eye, turned to the driver and said, "Why, man you ain't got no buildings of any size here. In America we have them 40 and 50 stories high!" "Bedad," said Pat, "I'll be bound you haven't seen the new building in Cork, where the top storey is on hinges." "On hinges!" ejaculated the Yankee, with a surprised air. "Whatever is that for?" "Why," said Pat, chuckling inwardly, "so that they can let it down for the moon to pass!"

Blanchard in Psyche—"According to this definition, scratching ones head would be language."
Henth—"Sure its language. It is a sign."

We weep and smile, to see the old wood-shed destroyed.

HOW ABOUT EASTER CARDS?

BIG PLANS FOR MAY

H. G. McCain Elected Manager—
Campus Will Be Cleaned Up.

At a meeting of the student body H. G. McCain was elected manager of May Day affairs. While the contest for the election of king and queen of the May is in the hands of the four literary societies, the day is a student body affair and all other arrangements are under its supervision.

While definite plans for the work and festivities to be carried on by the students on May Day have not been formulated, the manager assures us that no time will be lost and things will be carried off in a spirited manner.

In addition to the usual ceremonies of the crowning of the king and queen and winding the May Pole, "Campus Day" will be observed very much as planned last fall. A track meet will be held. No challenge for a tug of war across the mill race has as yet been issued.

EASTER MEETING.

Popular Professor Speaks at Y.W.C.A.

Though disappointed again in not having the speaker advertised, the Y. W. C. A. secured a very efficient and satisfactory substitute in the person of Professor Matthews, at their meeting last Thursday afternoon. "Easter Thoughts" would be an appropriate subject to give his talk. The girls met in the Y. W. C. A. rest room on the third floor of Eaton Hall.

Westley, at the O. S. P. game—"I'll bet that is a group of Hall girls coming to see the game." Alas! To the great amusement of the other players, the crowd turned toward their home, one half a mile north of the pen.

Howard Zimmerman and L. Leon Lay of the University of Oregon defeated University of Washington in "word war" on the question, "Resolved, that the United States should adopt a system of ship subsidies." The decision, 2 to 1.

Y. M. C. A. EASTER SERVICES.

The committee for religious meetings had carefully planned a service which should be in line with the thought of the day. After several songs, prayers and a vocal solo by Mr. De Long, Dr. Shaw of Salem was introduced as speaker of the afternoon.

His address was partly along scientific lines and in it was traced the development of the physical being and the close relationship which exists between a healthy body and the higher spiritual attainments.

Dr. Shaw presented many facts which deal directly with the life of the nation and while a thorough optimist he emphasized the fact that the American people are falling far short in carrying out Christ's famous command, "All things therefore whatsoever ye would that men should do unto you, even do ye also unto them."

He mentioned some of the grave problems which confront America. If this nation would properly house and take care of her poor, the spread of disease would be largely prevented and thus Christ's maxim be proven true that as one helps others he shall receive.

Mr. H. W. W. Clarke, who is chairman of the religious meetings committee for the ensuing year has shown his ability to arrange for meetings which are worthy to be put in the weekly schedule of the busy college man.

HIS TRUNK.

Landlady—I'll have to request you to pay in advance, Mr. Smith.

Smith—Why, isn't my trunk good for a week's board?

Landlady—No. It looks like an old-fashioned emotional trunk.

Landlady—Yes, one that is easily moved!

Life is mostly froth and bubble,

FENCE DONE AROUND FIELD

Track Athletics Working Up—New Stadium Comes in Handy.

At last the fence around the athletic field is finished—that is, the boards are all on, though as yet they are unsightly for want of a coat of paint. The last touches are now being put on the grounds and by Friday should be in shape to receive our athletic visitors. The bleachers on two sides of the baseball diamond are nearly completed and will accommodate the spectators in the best possible positions to view the fine points of the game. The plan is to have these bleachers so constructed that they may be taken down when desired, and will no doubt be stationed next fall along the football field so as to give seats to the large crowds who have been unable to secure seats in the grandstand.

Although bad weather has prevented the baseball and track men from doing much work upon the field, the practice has been carried on in the new covered stadium.

Coach Sweetland is far from satisfied with the work of the track men thus far, and is of the opinion that some really hard and consistent work must be indulged in before anything like a creditable showing can be made.

Rader, Blackwell and Mills have been training steadily and will undoubtedly be in shape to handle their parts when the time comes to demonstrate, but three or four men cannot make a team. There are a dozen men in the school who usually decorate the sidelines of the baseball diamond, viewing the practice, who should be in a suit out on the track.

PHILOSOPHIAN SOCIETY.

Paper read on "The New Woman."

On April fourteenth occurred the regular weekly meeting of the Philodorian Literary Society, which was held in its halls. The roll call and reading and approval of the minutes of the previous meeting were followed by the program.

The first number on the program was an instrumental solo by Mary Pigler after which Lola Belle Cook read an original story. Jennie Edginton and Pearl Bradley sang and were heartily applauded.

Stella Graham read a paper on "The New Woman." This was written in an original and interesting style. Particularly amusing was the author's clever description of the harem skirt and her suggestions as to how it might be successfully introduced into the costume of Willamette's May queen. The last part of the program consisted of extemporaneous speeches by the following: Theo Bennett on "The need of Society Work in College;" Pearl Bradley on "The Value of Friendships;" Grace Edginton on "The Franchise for Women;" Mildred Bartholomew on "Debating and Its Value in Girls Societies."

After this the business of the society was considered. The report of the program committee was read and adopted and several other matters of importance were acted upon. The censor gave another interesting report after which the society adjourned.

HIS LAST EMPLOYER.

Lady—Can't you find work?

Tramp—Yessum; but everyone wants a reference from my last employer.

Lady—Can't you get one?

Tramp—No, mum. Yer see, he's been dead twenty-eight years.—Punch.
