Globe of the World

By JACK BELLINGER

TODAY WE SHALL let the globe sail merrily "round and round" and take a few brisk walks through some American college campuses.

It seems a good thing to do at a time when everyone has been busy with Frosh Glee, and college life seems paramount in importance compared to world affairs. As for serenading, every college has its own traditions in that regard, but the idea of the serenade itself is something which all have in common. And as for college songs, whether they be the serenades, as Willamette is primarily interested in right now, or the more formal pledge songs, or pop music, they all carry with them memories of the finest things that college has to offer and are remembered by old grads long after classroom lectures and day-to-day events are forgotten.

Many Willamette University alumni have entered graduate schools in eastern colleges, and it is a few of these schools that we shall briefly describe. Remember that Willamette alumni who have attended some of these schools and Willamette faculty members who have degrees from some of them and other universities can give more extensive and better information regarding any that you might be particularly interested in. There is space here to describe but a few, and that briefly. We shall attempt merely to walk through the grounds of eastern campuses; later western colleges may be considered.

NORTHWESTERN UNIVERSITY: A few days and nights spent as a guest in a fraternity on the Northwestern campus in Evanston, Ill., leave remembrances of neatly-planned quadrangles, with fraternities and dormitories all of the same type of architecture, containing similar types of furniture. There is consequently a democratic feeling between fraternity and non-fraternity students. The shores of Lake Michigan give the campus a unique type of beauty, an ideal setting for serenading. A walk along the lake on a moonlight night—fancy what might happen.

Northwestern University students have the distinct advantage of having Dr. Ernest Fremont Title as pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church that almost borders on the campus. Listening to him preach on Sunday, riding in to Chicago with him on the express elevated on Monday, we knew that here was a man whose vision was broader than that of most, whose understanding of human affairs was so enlightened that to be able to hear him speak often must be a great privilege.

UNIVERSITY OF CHICAGO: The elevated carried us from Evanston past the Loop and around to the University of Chicago, headed by that eminent, youthful scholar, Dr. Robert Maynard Hutchins. Of particular interest was the University chapel, designed to show simplicity and vigor combined with extraordinary massiveness. The Laura Spelman Rockefeller carillon is installed in the tower of the chapel. It has 72 bells, ranging from 10 1/4 pounds to 18 tons in weight. One of the finest buildings on the campus and one whose purpose is based upon principles closely aligned to those represented by the chapel in the International House, home of foreign students.

GEORGETOWN UNIVERSITY: Washington, D. C., with all of its government buildings and historical background and with the advantage of having the Library of Congress, is an ideal location for a university. Willamette students considering the foreign service would do well to consider Georgetown, which has an ideal setting for study, situated at a sufficient distance from the center of the city to be quiet, yet near enough that important libraries, art galleries and scientific institutions may be reached easily.

COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY: Following the green and red lights of the subway, we finally find our way to Columbia university, where several Willamette univer-

B OUTFITS ARE STRONG

Gym To Be Cleaned Soon After Freshman Glee; Advance Sales Good

Only two weeks remain until Willamette's campus will be teeming with hopefuls from prep basketball circles from all over the state, all certain of the fact that their team will be the one to carry off the big gold and ebony trophy symbolic of supremacy.

March 18 is the opening day of the tournament, and already many of the sixteen districts have their champions selected, or have it narrowed down to a couple of teams. Benson and Franklin will represent the Portland schools, their victories over Commerce and Lincoln Tuesday night having definitely settled the question.

Ashland and Corvallis have clinched their tournament tickets, having ended up on top of the regular season games, while Salem, the host team, has a yearly pass to the contest without a struggle. The Kikings are rated as one of the strongest prep aggregations in the state this year, having topped the omnipotent Fishermen from Astoria, and many other first class teams.

District 6 which includes Marion, Polk, Tillamook and Yamhill counties will have its tournament this week-end at Linfield, while most other districts will be busily engaged in fighting it out for trips to the Capital City.

The four B districts will settle their disputes this week, with Bell Fountain and Mills City favored in the two western districts. Unapine and either Merrill or Central Point are the favorites to make the trip from the eastern part of Oregon. These four teams are all placed in one bracket so that they not only settle the state B championship by the time they get to the semi-finals, but place one team in the bracket of the final four.

Les Sparks, graduate manager, who has charge of the ticket sale, announced yesterday that reservations were coming in in large numbers, and expects a sell out before the tournament begins. Students may purchase a ticket good for the entire tournament for $2.00.

Ty Gillespie, Collegian manager, will have charge of the programs this year. They contain pictures of all teams and the pre-tournament records they have made.

Collegian Scribe is Puzzled Over True Willamette Type of Student

Plain people, unaided by celestial powers, without super-human insight, have observed on the campus what is frequently known as the "Willamette type" over which gushing girls gently rave.

No one has attempted to describe this precious type; but everyone knows that it wears well cut clothes and has faultless manners and morals. It does everything the crowd does, thinks everything the crowd thinks, and only utters those thoughts which are palatable to the crowd.

The intellectual activities which go on within its fashionable felt hat are about as progressive as the wanderings of a snail. It gives forth and acquires ideas with all the precision of a parrot. Though exposed to the very best and noblest that has been thought and written in the world, its thought life goes on unilluminated by the intrusion of a single original idea. It never has heretical thoughts because it never thinks. Its vocabulary consists of what

Vespers Working Out New Plans

The Campus Vespers are now working out a new plan as to what the organization of the league will be next year. To some degree the work will be divided differently among the various officers.

This year, contrary to custom, the election of next year's officers will be held before spring vacation. The results of the nominating committee will be announced very soon.

The last meeting of the Vespers was led by Miss Kuulei Emoto.

FRESNO DEBATORS GUESTS OF W. U.

Resting from the Linfield Debate Conference before they returned to California, Fresno State Debate teams visited the Willamette campus on February 24-25. Mr. "Dan" Magraw, Fresno coach and alumnus of Willamette, spoke before chapel. Mr. Magraw has an excellent squad of debaters as was shown by the splendid record this school made at Linfield.

On Tuesday morning the Fresno negative team met the Willamette affirmative in an audience debate. The Californians were Mr. Thress and Mr. Garabine; the Oregonians were the outstanding Willamette debaters, Mr. Randall Kester and Mr. Laurence Morley. Before the debate an audience of fifteen cast their votes as to whom they desired to win. By the score of 14-1 Fresno State was the favorite of the crowd. As the debate progressed, it was soon obvious that Willamette was winning the field with brilliant delivery. In fact at the close of the competition, the same audience cast their votes for Willamette in a score of nine to six.

On Tuesday afternoon, the Fresno women debaters defeated Willamette's representatives before qualified judges. The decision was 2-1 in favor of Fresno. Willamette was represented by Marjorie Thorne and Marnetta Jones. The question for debate was: Resolved: That Congress should be permitted by a two-thirds majority vote to override decisions of the Supreme Court declaring acts of Congress unconstitutional.

Registration Drops Second Semester

Registrations dropped from 652 the first semester to 617 the second semester according to an announcement received from the registrar's office early this week. This is a total decrease of 35 students for the second semester.

Registration Drops Second Semester

one college editor has said, "a handful of vorbiages, a dozen or so nouns, and an armful of high explosives." Intellectually it is splendidly null.

At basketball games and football contests the "Willamette type" is careful not to display an over abundance of enthusiasm. It chants the yells with just the proper amount of fervency and zeal, and receives the pleadings of the "Yell Kings" for more pep, with a supercilious smile. As though receiving a daily German assignment, it bears the final basketball score without expressing its reactions to the contest. It is the acme of passive resistance.

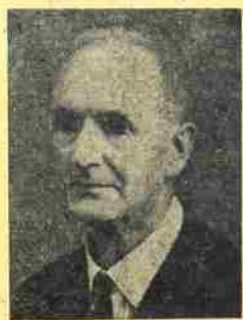

It is as faithful to conforming to the dismutive things of life, as a Muhammadan is in saying his prayers five times a day with his face toward Mecca. If the "brothers" of its fraternity are secretly judging their next period's assignment in the first period class, it slavishly emulates their class.

MATTHEWS TO NAME WINNER OF FROSH GLEE

By Ross Gladden

Dr. James T. Matthews, now in his forty-third year of active service on the Willamette faculty, will announce the freshman glee judges' decision this year for either the twenty-first or twenty-second time since 1912. He was not certain, during a recent interview, whether he undertook this duty in 1912 or in 1913.

"I must locate time, in relation to freshman glee, by a remark made to me by a certain young lady, in 1915," Dr. Matthews said. "One should always have a landmark to assist him in locating time."

Dr. Matthews had already held the audience in suspense during two or three glees previous to the remark of the "certain young lady" in 1915. He did not remember exactly, he said.

The dean of the music school held the position of official announcer before Dr. Matthews' incumbency.

"I have always felt that it was his place to do it," observed the mathematics department head.

"Have you always announced the judges' decisions since you began the job in 1912 or 1913?"

"No. First there was the dean of the music school. Then, after I had done it for a few years, Dr. Doney performed the task one year."

Many glees took place in the Armory, Dr. Matthews said. It was here that the "young lady" made the memorable remark. Some were staged in the chapel, and perhaps one or two in the First Methodist church. Again the oldest member of the faculty, from the standpoint of service, was not sure.

"It was only in recent years that the management has been forced to resort to the passing out of tickets," Dr. Matthews remarked. Before that time the general public was invited.

Campus Improved By N.Y.A. Workers

The local N. Y. A. organization, a branch of the national agency inaugurated here last year for the purpose of furnishing financial aid for college students, is responsible, among other things, for many noticeable campus improvements.

One group of the students working under this plan, are under the direction of Mr. Beach, supervisor of campus grounds and buildings. This group has been employed for the past week erecting a series of wooden posts along the drive in front of the gym for the purpose of preventing motorists from leaving the road and disfiguring the campus with tire ruts.

Other crews are trimming shrubbery and improving the looks of the campus generally.

The majority of students receiving N. Y. A. funds are employed off the campus. Many of these are filling positions as instructors or doing clerical work about town. The blind school and the Y. M. C. A. each employ students through this plan.

W. U. ORATORS IN DEBATE MEET

In a competition of 77 teams at the Linfield Debate Conference, Willamette's debaters hesitated not a minute until they reached the finals. Prof. Herbert E. Rahe was proud to observe several outstanding accomplishments. Two of Willamette's men team entered the semi-finals; one of these was given the unprecedented honor of being ranked as first of all teams by their opponents. A woman's team was one of the three which came flying through the preliminaries undefeated. This team tied for fourth place in the final analysis. Howard Campbell, freshman debater, succeeded in placing well in the semi-finals of extemporaneous. Miss Marnetta Jones, recent winner of the Keyes oratorical contest, won third place in the women's oratorical division with her selection, entitled "Intolerance."

Such results, claimed Prof. Rahe, show definitely that Willamette can at least give winners a good run for their money if nothing more.

This year at Linfield 54 men's debate teams represented schools from all parts of the Pacific coast. Twenty-five teams composed of young ladies represented many thousands of co-eds in various schools. Of all these Willamette was represented by seven debate teams. Prof. Rahe also entered three extemporaneous and one oratorical contest in the men's divisions. In women's oratory he entered two co-eds, one of whom won third place.

Two systems of judging were used at Linfield for the first time. The usual combination of three coaches was employed as in previous years. The new method was that of "contestant rating." Each debater at the end of six preliminary rounds rated the teams which he met. If any was eliminated in the preliminary rounds but still was voted to be outstanding by their opponents, this team was entered in the finals with one loss. Thus, if such a team lost one debate in the finals, they were eliminated completely. Willamette's crack team of Randall Kester and Laurence Morley received the highest rating of any team in the contest from their opponents. For that reason this team was entered in the finals.

Fresno State women's team won first place in the finals. Linfield won in the men's division with O. S. C. taking second place.

Willamette University's basketball team, who finally ended up in third place in northwest ratings, entered the A. A. U. tournament in Eugene this week-end.

Most of the private colleges of Oregon have entered, including Mt. Angel, Oregon Normal, Southern Oregon Normal, Portland University, Linfield and Pacific, and the tournament should produce some high class basketball.

The winner will be eligible to play the state's championship independent team, probably Union Oil of Portland, whom the Bearcats vanquished earlier this season. The winner of that contest will be sent to the tournament in Denver with all expenses paid, and the possibility of going far enough to be picked as a representative of the United States to the Olympic games in Berlin next summer.

Keene will probably start Weaver and Erickson at guards, Anton at center, and Gantineau and Beard at forward posts.

WHOISMAN?

Of all the singers in the land, he is the very cleverest!
He rides a bicycle and simply refuses to take anyone for a ride.
Wears a grey sweater and hat which is very becoming with his red hair.
He spends most of his time in the music hall consulting Prof. Rahe's opinion of sailor songs.
Several times he has sung for crowds this year.

STAGE SET FOR GLEE TONIGHT: SERENADE THEME FOR GROUP

Prof. Matthews Will Uphold Age-old Presentation Plan; Howard Campbell, Frosh Class Pres. to Greet Guests; Seniors Will Be First on Stage

Once again the students of Willamette University have prepared a Freshman Glee for your entertainment. Tonight, at 7:30 Glee will get under way for the 28th time. Ray Drakley, Glee manager, will be in charge of the entertainment. The entire Serenade idea has been carried out by members of the Freshman class.

The hard and furious practice of the past two weeks will be over tonight when the four classes present their song and formation to the committee of judges.

Howard Campbell, president of the Freshman class, will welcome the guests.

The contest will then be opened with the senior song, members of the graduating class of 1936 making their initial appearance in their caps and gowns.

Miss Hortense Taylor, '36 will be the featured violin soloist.

Following the rendition of the songs and the numbers by the men's quartette, the judges will convene to make their decisions, while the Songmen entertain the anxious audience. Prof. Matthews, according to custom, will announce the winning song in a speech designed to madden the calmest listener in the audience. With an encore rendition of their song, the successful class will acknowledge the presentation of the banner.

Class parties will be held immediately afterward to celebrate the affair.

Naval Res. Corps Announces Course

Notice was made to the registrar here last week through the U. S. Naval Air Station at Seattle for elimination flight training from the Thirteenth Naval District for the training season beginning May 15, 1936.

Fifty candidates will be named from this district and those who are interested can obtain additional information through the Naval Reserve Circular Letter No. 4-26, which outlines the requirements to be met by applicants, or through the Seattle station's circular, "Information Concerning Naval Reserve Aviation Training" dated Feb. 10, 1936.

Application forms can be obtained at Dean Erickson's office.

Kubelik To Be Here March 13

An eloquent and inspiring reminder of a golden age of music, which existed before the outbreak of the world war, is the concert in the Willamette university gymnasium March 13 of Jan Kubelik, world-famed violinist, who is now making his first coast-to-coast concert tour of the United States in more than 14 years. Kubelik, contrary to a statement which has been given considerable publicity in this country during the past decade, never retired from the concert platform, even for a single season.

The subsequent career of the Bohemian violinist has been ascribed the most brilliant of any player since Paganini, whose successor Kubelik is generally said to be.

Glee Bets May Be Paid On Campus; Never Wear Old Clothes to Class!

"You can stand on the sun-dial all day if you wish, but don't wear a bathing suit to my class!"

Have you heard the age-old adage about the "cow in chapel?"

Already we've heard rumors that Steve Anderson will appear Monday clad in a McCallister. Isn't that worth the betting?

What would Glee be without the great sacrifices that accompany it? Probably another musical (?) review.

Be such as it may, the moan of the losers will echo for tonight!

Mrs. Nicholson was born in Illinois and came to Oregon with her parents when a small child, residing in the Willamette Valley until grown. She took teacher's training at Willamette University and taught school several years in the Willamette valley and in Wheeler county. She was married in 1915 to Delbert Payton Nicholson, who survives her with four children: Marjorie Blanche, Delbert P., Virginia Faye, and Isabel Ruth; surviving also are her father, Cornelius McElroy of Tanager; five sisters, Mrs. Mabel Farwell of Shedd, Mrs. Bertha Caldwell of Albany, Mrs. Elsie Russell of Owasco, Mich., Mrs. Florence Crosswhite of Bend, and Mrs. Caroline Cornelious of Coquille; one brother, Percy B. ### FRESHMAN GLEE

After Freshman Glee, which is scheduled for Saturday, March 7, there will be an alumni "get-together" in the "Carrier Room" of the new Sunday school temple of the First Methodist church. Everyone is invited to come and bring friends. A committee composed of Mildred Bartholomew, chairman, Mrs. A. A. Schramm, Lella Johnson, Mrs. G. C. Bellinger, and Mrs. Asa Fisher will arrange for the affair.

PERSONALS

Miss Frances Laws, '33, who was seriously injured in an auto accident February 17, is progressing slowly; though not even her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lester L. Laws, have been allowed to see her as yet, the physician indicated that her recovery is hopeful. She incurred a fractured skull, and lost considerable blood as a result of a severed artery in her arm. She is in a semi-conscious condition most of the time. The doctor stated, however, that she would escape paralysis.

Miss Laws was injured near Jennings Lodge. The second car involved was that of Walter Norton of Milwaukee, who escaped with less serious injuries. Investigators said it appeared that the Laws' car, which was demolished, slipped from a road shoulder at a highway construction project and went out of control.

Her mother, Mrs. L. L. Laws, and her grandmother, Mrs. Eugene Harrison, were less seriously injured, as was Mrs. W. B. Robinson, also of Salem. All have been released from the hospital.

Miss Laws has for the past two years been a secretary for the Pacific Power and Light Co. in Portland.

Miss Laws will have to remain in the hospital at Oregon City for a long time yet.

Robert C. Notson, '24, has been promoted to city editor of the Morning Oregonian. He first was political writer for the paper, then became assistant city editor.

TULANE UNIVERSITY: There is only enough space left to mention one college in the South, and for that purpose we have chosen Tulane. In a state where academic freedom has been suppressed by men in political control of the state's government, Tulane, situated in the picturesque old French city of New Orleans, where a picture painted with tradition and history may be seen wherever one turns, may have been able to stand for the ideals that have ever been the framework upon which American education has rested.

What is perhaps the strangest phenomena about this "Willamette type," is that it is perfectly satisfied with itself. It is as content to maintain its intellectual mediocrity, as a cow is to graze in a pasture of cracked grass. Its range of vision terminates at the college gate, beyond which it sees nothing but empty darkness. To attempt to jar it loose from its mental moorings to which it has blindly clung with all the tenacity of the Yale Bulldog, would be, of course, sheer brutality.
