Two Week Dead Period Allotted January, May

Wheat Outlines Convo Program For Class Order

Dead month has been reduced to the two weeks preceding final examinations in both January and May by the activities board, with an added recommendation to the faculty that the second week be declared "academically dead" with respect to tests, papers and additional reading assignments.

"The revision was made to equalize the socially dead period for both semesters in order that students can adequately prepare for exams," Ruben Menashe, activities board chairman, said. "It will also tend to make fall semester less congested," he added.

Dead month during January had been in effect the past two years and student criticisms brought the revision. Students felt the period unnecessarily long and inconsistent in being observed in January only.

The added stipulation of an "academic" dead week preceding finals will be presented to Dean Gregg and in turn to the faculty for approval. Menashe explained that the recommendation was aimed at last minute assignments which could have been made earlier.

During the designated dead weeks, no social or extra-curricular activities may be held. Dances, class parties, ASWU events, retreats, faculty sponsored events for ASWU, intramurals (the last week before finals), campus programs, parties, meetings, movies and speakers are included.

The two-week plan will go into effect this May, with the "academic" dead week to be decided by the faculty.

Quartet Brings Hope To Balance Budget

Ticket sales began this week for the last concert of the 1953-54 Willamette Distinguished Artist Series, the First Piano Quartet, with concert manager Stu Shaw's expressing "fairly optimistic" concern for the financial outcome of the series.

Shaw pointed out that although no advertising has been done yet, sales already amount to over $100 for the concert which is ten days away, on March 15, at 8:15 p.m. Ticket sales for the remaining days should, with the help of the series "sinking fund" of $500, put the series out of any financial danger.

Only 1600 seats must be sold for the concert in order to meet the crisis. In the event of a sell-out the series would clear over $600.

Student tickets are now on sale in the student body office and in the various living organizations for $1.80. Reserved seats on sale at Stevens and Sons Jewelers are offered for $2.40 and $3.00.

The First Piano Quartet, for many years heard regularly weekly on a coast-to-coast hook-up over the National Broadcasting company's facilities, is the first musical unit of its kind in the world.

The four artists who compose the group are Adam Garner, Glauco D'Attili, Frank Mittler and Edward Edson.

Alma Mater Change Proposed to Council

Student council took steps toward the consideration of a new Willamette alma mater and eliminated two May Weekend traditions Wednesday.

Council endorsed alma mater committeemen Ken Cooper and Tom Larson to contact alumnae officers and trustees to determine alumnae reaction toward replacing the "Old Historic Temple."

Cooper reported that "Willamette, Alma Mater," last year's winning Glee song, had been chosen from all past Glee entries by a cappella choir director Don Gleckler as a possible alternative.

May Weekend manager Tom Schrock's recommendation that the Queen's breakfast and May Pole dance be eliminated from the weekend events was approved. The possibility of a registration fee for May Weekend guests will be considered later.

The grease pole climb and tug-of-war were referred to living organizations and the two classes involved, the freshmen and sophomores, with the results to be reported to student council next week.

Closing hours after the Queen's ball were set at 1 a.m., subject to approval by the dean of women.

Fund $10,125 Short; Faculty, Trustee Changes Announced

Announcement after Thursday's board of trustees meeting that construction on three campus buildings could begin as soon as funds became available brought renewed efforts this week to raise the $10,125 requisite to letting bids.

President G. Herbert Smith left early in the week for California, presumably to contact friends of the University concerning the building program and the Challenge Fund which stood at $314,875 on Monday.

As soon as the $325,000 mark is reached, equal contingent money from two anonymous sources will become available, making the $650,000 the board set as a minimum for letting bids.

Sock Hop Tonight

A post-game sock hop will be held in the gymnasium this evening following the Lewis and Clark basketball game and sponsored by the Arnold Air Society, ROTC honorary. Students are invited to attend, stag or drag.

Freshmen swing into glee "axe-tion" as their president, Kent Hoteling, meets junior and senior class presidents Chuck Seagraves and Larry Pritchett in a pre-Glee challenge. Hoteling will extend the formal challenge for Glee, scheduled March 20, in convocation Tuesday.

High School Speakers to Meet For Annual Willamette Event

Willamette will host between 200 and 300 high school students next weekend for the annual high school forensic tournament sponsored by the University. These students will represent approximately thirty schools in areas of the state ranging from Portland and Astoria south to Coos Bay and Ashland.

The Willamette forensic squad is conducting the tournament. Student director is H. Paul Johnson, administrative assistant in speech this year.

He will be aided by Fenton Hughes, Marian Rutledge, Gay Kent, Lewis Hampton, George Bleile, Donald Laws, Karl Freerkson, Ray Owens, Larry Hall, Preston Butcher, Don Drake and Marian Putman.

Any Willamette student who has had speech courses in high school or a basic course in this or any other university is urged to volunteer for judging the debate and individual events which will take place Friday afternoon and evening and Saturday morning.

Willamette students are asked to contact H. Paul Johnson or Dr. Howard W. Runkel in the speech office, 201 Waller hall, this coming week in order that judging assignments may be made.

T'nT at Ten

Freshman Glee challenges will be issued during convocation Tuesday in the gymnasium. Class presidents will speak for their respective classes, and Glee manager Bill Wheat will be master of ceremonies.

Dr. Howard Runkel, Willamette speech professor, will address Thursday chapel.

Freshman class president Kent Hoteling will issue the challenge from the class of '57 for the 43rd Freshman Glee in convocation Tuesday.

Program for the challenge assembly was outlined by the Glee executive committee Tuesday, according to Glee Manager Bill Wheat.

Seniors To March In

Wheat stated that freshmen, sophomores and juniors will already be seated when the seniors march in. After taking their places the seniors will open the program with a parody which will be answered by the junior, sophomore, and freshmen classes.

Glee manager Wheat will make a short commentary on Freshman Glee, followed by the challenge from Hoteling. Each of the other class presidents will make acceptance speeches. The seniors will then sing last year's glee song, and the juniors and sophomores will follow with their alma mater entries.

Wheat To Dismiss Classes

After the seniors have marched from the gym, Wheat will dismiss the rest of the assembly.

The executive committee also approved the publication of a glee supplement similar to the one distributed last year. Classes will contribute $25 to cover the cost, and copies will be given without charge to students. Extra copies of the pictorial will be available for five cents each.

Jim Scott is chairman for the supplement, assisted by Sue Pratt, Volney Sigmund, Winnie Waltz, and Lewis Beatty.

Dr. Daniel Schulze has again been named to announce the winning classes in Glee banner presentation the night of March 20. He replaced Professor Herman Clark last year.

Fill-Dirt Deposited At Construction Site

Truck loads of dirt are now being dumped on Sweetland field in anticipation of construction of the three proposed buildings, Dr. Robert Fenix explained this week.

Excavation going on near the campus offered an excellent opportunity to obtain fill-dirt that could be used in future building plans, he said. At present the dirt is being stored on the field near the gym. Trucks have been dumping the dirt since Monday.

Construction of the Bishop Health Service and the Fine Arts building on the sloping surface will require filling in the ground level around the foundations.

The board of trustees last week approved the building plans on the stipulation that the necessary $325,000 in financial backing be obtained by April 1. Pres. G. Herbert Smith is now in California to stimulate interest in the Challenge Fund.

Where There's a Will, There IS a Way

The University board of trustees certainly were justified in giving the green light last week to the first stages of the building program. The help and cooperation by a score of sources that have made this first step possible is too obvious to merit mention here.

What is important, and this is a thing that people will long remember, is that the Willamette team scored only a little short of one hundred per cent (or four-point if you like) on this project.

It was, after all, just about a year ago that the WU board started the Challenge fund. Two people, who desire to remain anonymous, immediately jumped on the Bearcat bandwagon. Actually, they gave it a push because its been the assurance of their half-million dollar contingent pot of gold that has made the program feasible at all.

But further still, it was Joe and Mary College, their professors and their alumni friends who made this dream a reality.

One has only to look around at other private colleges these days to realize what a great thing has happened here this year. Pacific university has started a soliciting program to replace its tumble down cracker box gymnasium. But, the program is designed to run for ten years! Lewis and Clark is doing some building but plans to maintain a great deal of its "temporary" structures for years. Linfield adds paint to its GI surplus edifications.

So, the significant thing about the Willamette experiment is that it happened fast. There was no beating around the bush.

And, by the way, talking about doing things now, there is still $10,000 more or less to be anteed up before the work can begin. And don't forget that just over the horizon there's a student union building. Let's not wait for our grandchildren to tell us about it. —B. M.

Second to None

Willamette doesn't take a back seat to anyone in maintaining a consistent enrollment. Opinions that the University suffers an unusually high mortality rate are disproved by figures compiled by the State Board of Higher Education.

First of all, Willamette has the highest enrollment of any private university in Oregon. Willamette's fall enrollment of 1087 led Portland university's 1084, Lewis and Clark's 990, Reed's 628, Pacific's 550 and Linfield's 413.

Secondly, comparative figures over the past four years show Willamette to have maintained a more stable enrollment than any other university. In fact, Reed and Willamette are the only ones to show a gain: Reed with an increase of seven, Willamette by a jump of 18. Of the others, both state schools dropped over a thousand below their 1950-51 figures. Lewis and Clark lost 270; Linfield, 193; Pacific, 246; and Portland university, 482.

Finally, Dr. Smith points out that the number of seniors graduated each year is approximately 50 per cent of the enrollment figure of the class as freshmen, which is above the national average.

The picture is certainly not a negative one.

Campus Redwoods Clue Archeologists

By Carla McKeen

Trees are lovely things to write poems about, to climb up if one feels so inclined, and to tack posters on, not to mention beginning sentences which prepositions end with. But the trees on our campus hold more interest than the casual glancer might presuppose.

In 1942, Willamette celebrated the centennial year of its existence. In so doing, the president of the university, Dr. Carl S. Knopf, thought it fitting to leave some sort of monument for all posterity to view in recognition of our 100th anniversary. That president, a Californian, immediately decided to donate five Giant Sequoia trees, (redwoods, to the less botanically inclined) because they symbolized antiquity, grandeur, and strength.

Someday, centuries from now, an enterprising archeologist will discover the circle of mammoth trees. If he is industrious enough, he will realize that this is an unnatural habitat for Redwoods and will plow up the area for a clue to their purpose for existence there. His reward will be a cement tablet on which is inscribed, in the quaint old style of 1942 America, a brief history and explanation for the occasion prompting the creation of the "Temple of the Centuries."

For in the center of the group of trees in front of Collins hall lies buried a tribute to Willamette's first 100 years, written by Dr. Helen Pearce, commemorating its past history for future generations.

New Scribe Goes Over the Transom

By Duane Alvord

Here, for you to read, is a little bit of nothing to keep you up on the low-down about the higher-ups in this, our chosen institution of higher education.

The ROTC's newly-installed class adjutant system got off to a booming start in one sophomore class recently. Each week a different student is appointed to take roll, bring the class to attention, report to the instructor, and dismiss the class at the end of the hour.

Cadet's Boner

A certain cadet began his military task by calling the roll, reading the orders for the day, and bringing the class to attention. He then pivoted, brought his hand up to salute the instructor, and in anticipated military style reported "Sir—Opps-a-daisy." Even the instructor couldn't keep a straight face as the rest of the class howled.

Connoisseurs of fine foods served in the 'Cat Cavern will note that pie was sold for just a dime one afternoon last week. The reason for the nickel saving was that due to the warm weather students were buying ice cream rather than pie. To get rid of it by closing time, it was cut in price that afternoon.

Cheating the 'Cat?

For those of us who enjoy a both mid-morning and a mid-afternoon snack I have a plan. If we would all buy ice cream in the morning the manager of the 'Cat would be forced to reduce the pie to a dime in the afternoon. Then we could contribute the 25c weekly savings to the Challenge fund. Remember, it's the little things that count.

Houseboys at a sorority house on North 15th street have been threatening to answer the phone while the girls are at dinner with "Good evening, Christine Jorgenson speaking."

More From the Rats

Some animals don't need vocal greetings to announce themselves. On warm afternoons the rats in Eaton's basement are a good example of this. Even those in the farthest corner of the third floor have noticed their presence. Maybe putting them just a level below the administrative office wasn't such a good idea.

One suggestion from a freshman is that they be let loose so that they can study students running through the halls.

No Robbery This

One might notice the broken window in the book store and wonder if another robbery had occurred. This time, however, it was just the work of the university painting crew which is applying a coat of gray paint to the north end of the store.

The November robbery of the bookstore which resulted in a loss of over $160 is still unsolved.

Usually when a Willamette student gets his name and picture in all the state papers and a national magazine he hits the Collegian too. Here's one that slipped past.

Willie the Barber

Maybe it was because he couldn't be recognized under a beard and a skimmer. The boy in question is Willie Kleen, freshman from Forest Grove, who participated in a local quartet in the town's famous Barbershop Quartet contest this year.

Willie's picture appeared not only in both Portland papers, but in the national Buick magazine as well.

Willamette students aren't the only college students who pull boners. Students of beginning psychology at San Diego State College were asked recently to write down what they considered to be their "most valuable asset." Two answered "intelligence"—and both mispelled it.

Could this be the consequence of a state education?

Finals, Forget 'Em, Too

On the first day of second semester classes at the University of Nebraska, a tardy professor walked into a room where 100 students had gathered for a political science class. He walked briskly to the blackboard, erased what had been written there and announced, "If there's anyone not here for Political Science 4, now's the time to leave."

The students protested. This was Political Science 1, they said. Then it dawned on the bewildered professor, who grinned, apologized, said "I must be in the wrong room" and left.

A minute or so later the right professor came in.

Again, Willamette has its share of absent-minded professors. Students of a certain art professor won't forget the night they crammed for a final exam on the last day of final week this semester only to find that the professor had forgotten about the test and failed to show the next day.

Basketball Blues

Willamette's basketball team isn't enjoying its longest winning streak right now, but students are assured a "blaze of glory" ending at tonight's game if they show up and yell.

Team members came back from College of Idaho convinced that student support helped the Coyote's rally from the depth of the league cellar. They are convinced, too, that student spirit is lacking here at Willamette.

Letters . . .

(Editor's note: The following open letter to student body president Jim Hitchman was prompted by a letter he recently wrote to town students.)

Dear Jim:

This is a letter in reply to yours of February 19 which was addressed "to all town students." In that two-page mimeographed composition you referred to us as "townies" who "like to be independent and free from interests and participation" in activities of Willamette.

Mr. Jim, I am one of the many proletarians who find it necessary to earn some of my expenses while attending school. Naturally, it would be illogical from a financial standpoint for one of us to join a fraternity or sorority with the extra expenses. Also, some of us live with our parents—which is not always a handicap—and are related to city organizations. So we are, in the formal sense "independent." However, we do consider ourselves Willamette students. We are not willing for you to try to separate us from Willamette by even implying our lack of participation in Willamette student affairs. We suggest that you, who are a fraternity man, look carefully and honestly at the facts.

I live at the state blind school—with seven others. Among us "independents" these activities are represented: YWCA, Oxford, Unesco, Inter-faith Council, a cappella choir, two honoraries, a legal fraternity, church groups, MEDs, Collegian, and the social activities board—besides a 3. plus GPA.

You suggested that we should be concerned about our religion and participate in some church group. Wesley, the largest denominational group—and probably most active—has found that its stalwarts and "old faithfuls" are predominately non-Greek. A conflict of basic loyalties often occurs.

Thanks for the letter anyway—though it must have been quite expensive to send out so many copies! We'll try real hard, Jim. But be careful that you don't divide the Willamette family into "active" Greeks and "inactive" independents."

Willis Ludlow.

Schrock Begins May Weekend Plans

Costs, Breakfast Hit By Four Sororities

Panhellenic voted to recommend that the May Weekend committee discontinue the Queen's breakfast, continue the barbecue and seek University assistance for May Weekend expenses for sorority guests in a special Monday meeting with May Weekend manager Tom Schrock.

The four campus sororities based their decision on the high cost of entertaining May Weekend guests. The Queen's breakfast was eliminated as an unnecessary expense and the request for partial reimbursement from the University was based on University assistance already granted the fraternities.

The council also recommended that the May Weekend play be given without cost to students and guests, or only a small charge be made if necessary.

The sorority guest lists will be cut this year because of over-crowded conditions and extra expense. Each house gave information concerning the number of guests for the weekend last year, how many came to Willamette and how many pledged.

No varsity weekend rush guests will be invited to the sororities this year, after action taken earlier by Panhellenic.

The council voted unanimously in favor of the measure which had previously been discussed in the sororities. It was felt that due to expense and shortness of time the plan would not be feasible.

Junior Tom Schrock, recently appointed manager of May Weekend, announced committee appointments and arrangements this week for the event which beckons high school seniors from the area. Dates are April 31 to May 2.

New Manager Lists 12 Committee Heads

Appointments for May Weekend committees were announced this week by Tom Schrock, manager.

Augusta Krause, Marie DeHarport and Loyal Howard were named as members of the policy committee. Rich Butler will be in charge of the Queen's Ball, and the parade will be planned by Tom Carr.

Arrangements for all campus sing will be made by Bill Pickett and Loyal Howard will be in charge of publicity.

Joanne Terhark will head the entertainment committee; Frank Jassman, tug-o-war and greased pole contest; Chuck Peter, physical arrangements; George Chambers, clean-up; and Nancy Holcomb, general program.

Debate Squad Goes to Linfield For Tournament of Champions

A delegation of 12 Willamette students are representing the University in the annual Linfield College Intercollegiate Tournament of Champions this weekend.

The tournament, now in its 24th year, is the largest event of its kind in the United States and attracts between 300 and 400 students from 40 colleges and universities throughout the western third of the nation.

Willamette participants in the debates on the national question, "Resolved: That the United States Should Adopt a Policy of Free Trade," are H. Paul Johnson and Fenton Hughes; Lewis Hampton and George Bleile; and Donald Laws and Preston Butcher. Don Drake and Ray Owen are each entered in the one-man debate division.

All the delegates are taking part in one or more individual events, extempore speaking, impromptu speaking and interpretative reading.

Three students whose primary interest is in drama are entered in the acting and interpretative reading events. They are Elizabeth Winship, Clarine Woolery and Barbara Ruhle.

Professors Robert M. Putman and Howard W. Runkel have accompanied the group to McMinnville. Both will act as judges of a variety of events not involving Willamette contestants.

High School Branch Promoted by FTA

Carol Emerson, president of Future Teachers of America, reports the organization's co-operation in the program of laying the groundwork in nearby high schools for new phases of educational programs.

Their project includes the five aims, introduced at the Future Teachers of Oregon convention at Marylhurst College last year by Dick Mase, president of FTO: 1, better attendance; 2, stronger programs; 3, better professional information; 4, broader educational preparation; and 5, teacher recruitment.

This year's convention will be held April 10 at Mt. Angel. Progress reports from all Oregon chapters of the FTO will be submitted.

Make Those Glee Bets Now; Blue Monday Looms March 22

By Martin Wolf

Blue Monday will be a glee'ful time for one-half of the students. They will have won their Glee bets.

But for the other half, or the forsaken fifty per cent, Blue Monday is going to be one miserable 24 hours.

For the benefit of those who are not learned in the ways and means of Blue Monday, here is the scoop. The idea is to find some member of another class, proposition him or her into some outlandish wager, and then wait for the verdict March 20.

As of now, not many unusual bets have been made. Why this predicament? Speaking for the senior class, Carolyn Crane offers this explanation:

"The class with the wild imagination for making Glee bets graduated last year, and the other classes are afraid to bet with this year's seniors."

Whether this prejudiced statement is true or not, it must be said that this year's bets will have to be pretty weird to outdo those of previous years.

For instance, in 1949, one loser dressed as the Greek philosopher Diogenes, strolled through the Senate and House of Representatives across the street, and carried a sign bearing the words, "I'm looking for an honest man."

A suggestion from this corner. Use the same theme but have the loser dressed as a Puerto Rican carrying a gun and shouting "Independence."

Pepcat Organization Placed on Probation

With the recommendation that they more strictly adhere to their statement of purpose, the Pepcats, Willamette women's pep organization, was placed on probationary status by the activities board.

Action came during the annual review of constitutions and statements of purpose by the board, and the probationary period for the pep organization will continue until the end of next year's football season.

Louisa Lamb, Pepcat president, reported that an organized rooting section of the group was considered unnecessary during basketball season in a vote by the organization. Members were expected to attend all games, but were not required to wear uniforms or sit in a specific reserved section.

Several campus organizations whose constitutions were approved were requested to bank through the student body.

Seniors Take Note

Seniors are reminded of immediate concerns: class meeting today, graduation announcements and petition for degrees.

The senior class meeting at 12:30 today in Waller hall will discuss Glee matters and beach trip plans, reports president Larry Pritchett.

Announcements may be ordered in the book store until March 15. Petitions for degrees are available in the registrar's office, and they should be completed as soon as possible.

Faculty Trio to Appear On Next Campus Chatter

The Willamette University String trio, pianist Ralph Dobbs, violinist Dr. Willis Gates, and cellist Celia Koch, will present a half hour music broadcast on "Campus Chatter" over KOCO, Thursday night at 10.

The program will include Schubert's "Andante Trio opus 99," Beethoven's "Finale Trio opus 70," and a setting by Rowley of Irish folk music.

Campus Gifts, Aid to Secretary Replace Goods Lost in Blaze

By Bernie Morris
Collegian News Editor

Mrs. Olive Wages, secretary to the personnel deans, is a happy person this week. The glow of appreciation evident in her smile, Mrs. Wages, whose family lost virtually all of its personal possessions in a fire two weeks ago, told of generous assistance from a score of sources.

"We just don't know how or who to thank for all this," she exclaimed to Deans Regina Ewalt and Mark Hatfield. "You can't realize what an experience this is until it actually happens to you."

Climax to the shower of gifts last week, according to Mrs. Wages, was the presentation of checks from the faculty and staff and the students of the University. She said that everyday anonymous gifts of household articles and clothing had appeared at the switchboard in the business office.

One of the most delightful gifts, Mrs. Wages reported, was a box of what she called "thoughtful things" from the Associated Women Students. "There were tooth brushes and a lot of other things that you never give a second thought to, but which are just absolute necessities."

The Wages, who have rented a new house at 1085 Ruge street in West Salem, managed to save some dishes and furniture, the family car, washing machine, refrigerator and beds. The house, leased by the family of four, was covered by insurance but the Wages' personal effects were not protected.

It doesn't seem to have mattered, though. Mrs. Wages reports that the gifts have just about covered important losses in the fire, which began in the flu of a sawdust-burning central heating plant.

Bearcats Host Pioneers; Title Bid Gone

Colvard, Lone 'Cat Senior, In Finale Set for Tonight

The Willamette Bearcats' final chance for fame comes tonight as they host the Lewis and Clark Pioneer tonight in the final tilt of the Northwest conference.

Willamette will probably be the underdog and could join Linfield in the giant-killing

Northwest Conference Standings
	W	L	Pct.	PF	PA
Pacific	9	5	.600	971	941
Whitman	9	6	.600	1138	1135
Lewis & Clark	8	6	.571	1089	1045
Col. of Idaho	7	8	.467	1189	1150
Willamette	6	8	.429	990	1025
Linfield	5	10	.333	1060	1141

ranks by upsetting the Pioneers' chance to gain a three-way tie for first. At present Pacific and Whitman are perched on top in the conference.

Whitman climbed up there by twice defeating the upset specialists, the Linfield Wildcats, whose defeat of the Bearcats may well have been the turning point of Willamette's sudden decline.

Pulling an upset on the Pala-time hill crew will be difficult to do as their morale will be high for this game. A win will mean one-third of the conference championship which they took by themselves last season.

The well-balanced starting five for Lewis and Clark consists of frosh center Loren Michelsen, forwards Ken Servas and Milt Schroeder and guards Duane Brady and Gary Jackson.

This will be the last game for Servas and Schroeder. Servas is the outstanding member of the squad and a strong contender for all-conference team honors. At present his 20.6-point average has put him in second place in conference scoring behind College of Idaho's R. C. Owens. Servas, in his four years of playing, has established many school records, the most outstanding being a new four-year scoring record for Lewis and Clark.

If starts are any indication, Michelsen will eclipse Servas' deeds. So far the tall freshman has averaged 12.5 points per game which beats Servas' first year record.

Willamette's only loss because of graduation will be Bill Colvard, capable Bearcat forward. Colvard finally came into his own against Whitman, hitting 28 points. Lewis and Clark might find a bit of unexpected trouble if Colvard can get rolling again tonight.

Just who will start tonight will be known only at game time. Coach John Lewis will pull all strings tonight to give the Bearcats the power to upset Lewis and Clark.

Intramural Volleyball Meet Action Set for Two Days, to Begin Monday

With still another basketball game to go before the completion of this year's intramural basketball playoff, the intramural double elimination volleyball tournament is set to start.

Volleyball action for the tourney will begin next Monday night and will be finished the following night after the completion of ten games, eight the first night and two Tuesday night. The two top teams of each league are entered in the tournament.

Coach John Lewis' Willamette Bearcats will be the defending Northwest conference champions.

the "B" league was necessary to decide upon the two "B" league entries as the Sigs, SAE's and the Wits were tied for first after the completion of the regular season.

The Sigs won the right to enter the tournament by defeating the SAE's Tuesday night by scores of 6-15, 15-8 and 17-15. The SAE's then played the Wits yesterday noon and won the other berth in the tournament.

In the opening round Monday, the Law School draws a bye and will play the winner of the SAE A-Baxter C game. The Sig B's also receive a first round bye and will play the winner of the Beta C-SAE B game.

The tournament will continue Monday night until only three teams remain. One team will be unbeaten while the other two will each have two defeats. The latter two meet Tuesday night at 6:30 and the winner plays the other team left in the tournament for the intramural volleyball championship at 7:15.

College of Idaho Kills Last Hopes For Loop Crown

The Willamette Bearcats lost all chances for the Northwest conference basketball title and dropped into fifth place in the standings as they dropped a two-game series to College of Idaho by scores of 85-57 and 104-71 last weekend in Caldwell.

The Bearcats started out their eastern trip by losing to Whitman 96-95 in a double overtime Wednesday, February 24. This still left the Bearcats with a mathematical chance for the title, but the Coyotes ruined any hope as they defeated Willamette for the first time in 15 games. It was the first time in six years that College of Idaho managed to defeat a Bearcat squad on their home floor in Caldwell.

Friday night's game saw only five men doing the scoring for College of Idaho. One starter failed to score, one reserve made three points and the remaining four regulars hit in the twenties. Ray Mullins and R. C. Owens had 21 apiece while Jim Carroll and Bob Kundrat were just a point behind.

In Saturday's game 12 men scored for the Coyotes with Owens leading all scorers with 33 points.

The story of both games was poor Bearcat shooting, a superior Coyote aim and the host quint's dominance on the backboards. The highest scorer for Willamette was Tom Gooding who scored 15 points Saturday night. Pete Reed led the Willamette scoring Friday night with 12 points.

Both nights the Bearcats jumped off to a quick lead only to have it taken away for keeps. The only times the Bearcats outscored the College of Idaho squad were in the final periods and then only by three and four points.

The two wins gave the Coyotes a two-to-one edge for the season. Willamette won the first game 100-79 earlier on the Bearcat court.

Willamette Drill Team To Enter ROTC Meet

The Mitchell Marchers, Willamette's ROTC drill team, are scheduled to enter in the Northwest AFOTC league drill competition Thursday, April 1, in Corvallis.

The meet will have Oregon State, University of Oregon and defending titlist, University of Portland, entered besides Willamette. The winner earns the right to meet the winner of the Washington-Idaho-Montana competition for the northwest drill championship. University of Portland also holds this title.

If the weather is bad, the meet will be held in Gill coliseum, otherwise the competition will be held on the Oregon State football field. Last year's meet was held in McArthur court on the University of Oregon campus.

The 'Cat's Tracks

Big Walla Walla Effort Was 'Cat Waterloo

By Bernie Morris

TURNING POINT in Bearcat basketball fortunes undoubtedly came last week at Walla Walla. After their loss to Linfield the weekend before, the Jasons just had to produce against Whitman. And produce they did but all to no avail.

BILL COLVARD

"best individual performance" inexperience. At that 'Cat reservists turned in fine performances with the chips down.

AFFECT OF the demoralizing Whit victory was to take all the psychological wind out of Willamette sails. College of Idaho was what Lewis called a "real ball club" Saturday night but without undervaluing Coyote play, he feels "it was more us than them" on Friday.

BILL COLVARD, whose 28 points and fine rebounding efforts at Walla Walla was described as "our best individual performance of the year" by his coach, says the Coyotes have a real demoralizer, too. Colvard, the 'Cats' only senior, has nothing but plaudits for R. C. Owens, the loop leader in about everything. "It really upsets a guy," says Colvard, "to have a rebound that should be yours just snatched out of there." That's, apparently, an Owens specialty, by the way.

Owens, with his sensational skill on what is otherwise a mediocre club, forces concentration on himself. But Friday, Sam Vokes' club had 20-point-plus performances by four members. Coyotes Owens, Kundrat, Carrow and Mullens all cracked over 20 and a substitute contributed the remaining three points C of I mustered in the game.

RESULT, THEN, of that eastern trip has been to relieve pressure that might have been very real tonight for the Willamettes against Lewis and Clark. The Jasons are in a great position, with loop steam heat turned down on them just as it is turned up on still-contending L-C, to wreck the Pioneer wagon. The 'Cats could end a relatively mediocre season on a high note and well they might.

THE WORST the 'Cats can do is miss a share of fourth spot with C of I and drop to fifth place. At best, they can scorch a L-C bid for a share of the title.

Pressure is a characteristic of this conference. Clearcut titles are rarer than five-cent coffee. And further than that even if you win a title around here the team at the opposite end of the loop ladder has probably chased you all over the court at one time or another. Linfield, the floormat this year, beat all three title possibilities (Whitman and Pacific, of course, are already in). In fact, the only one of three matches between any two clubs in which one got a clean sweep was Pacific's squashing of Willamette. And that hasn't happened in a long time.

IN FACT, PACIFIC hasn't been a basketball power for a long time. This year's share of the title is the best the Badgers have done since 1934 when they got a clearcut crown. Willamette and Whitman have each had six clear titles in that time in addition to four ties for the Bearcats and two shared ownerships by the Missionaries.

AND YOU CAN hardly take anything away from the 1954 Badgers. They had some fine players this year. Norm Hubert, who didn't show so well in the Pacific game here, shot a phenomenal on-the-floor .537 from his guard position for 25 games. He averaged 21.8 points per game and hit .763 at the foul line. Besides, the ex-Portland State performer was a great playmaker.

Danny French, who was the best individual performer here, had .463 in floor shots and Clint Agee, the only important Badger cog due for replacement next season, shot .419 and set a new conference scoring mark in a single game (41 points). So, all in all, the Badgers loom big again next year.

SO DOES EVERYBODY else, though. Willamette loses only Colvard, Lewis and Clark's big problem will be to fill the 12-Es of Ken Servas but otherwise will be mostly intact. Linfield had, apparently, the best freshman squad among conference schools and will have new blood to fill any gaps that might occur. Captain Dick Carrow will be the only big C of I loss. Whitman will probably be more shorthanded than any other club but the Missionaries are such a deep club that return of even half of the present squad will give Coach Bob Burgess another contender.

SAE Teams to Play for Basketball Toga; A's Stun 'B', Sig Squads in Comeback

The SAE A's and the SAE B's will meet next Tuesday night at eight o'clock to decide this year's intramural basketball champion.

The two SAE teams along with the Sig "C" team entered the post-season playoffs a week ago. The Sigs defeated the SAE "A" team 44-42 in a double overtime. The SAE B's then defeated the Sigs 41-32 to enter the finals.

The Sigs and the SAE A's then met to decide on the other team to enter the finals. The SAE's led all the way to defeat the Sigs 46-42 last Monday in the second game between the same two teams during the playoffs.

The following night the two SAE teams played each other. A win by the "B" team might be the end and the championship, but the SAE A's came through with a 39-30 win.

In the 39-30 win the SAE A's led all the way as they jumped to a 7-4 lead and added eight more points to take a 15-4 first quarter lead. With the aid of Kent Myers' 15 points in the first half, the winners pushed the score to 24-12 at halftime.

The third quarter was about even, but the SAE "B" team made a strong bid in the final period cutting the lead to 37-30 with two minutes to score. But from there the SAE A's stalled out to gain the win. Myers was high for the game with 23 points and Verne Zeuke led the SAE "B" team with 15.

In the game against the Sigs, the SAE's did the same thing that they did the following night—jumped to a quick lead and stayed ahead the rest of the way. After having an 8-3 lead, the SAE's led at the first period stop 12-9. The SAE's added a big spurt at the start of the second quarter and raised the score to 20-12. After leading at halftime 22-17, the SAE's moved to a 35-26 third quarter lead. In the final period the Sigs began to press and with the aid of two of Ron Butler's 14 points made the score 43-42 in favor of the SAE's with a minute to go. Kent Myers who also had 14 points for the night added a field goal and a free throw to give the SAE's the 46-42 victory which started their comeback in the intramural basketball playoffs.

Betas to Defend Crown In 'Mural Track Meet

This year's intramural track meet will be held Saturday afternoon, March 27, at McCulloch stadium starting at 2:30.

The winner of the meet will be awarded the intramural track trophy now held by the Betas. The track meet does not count towards the intramural sports trophy given to the organization which has the most points at the end of the school year.

Willamette Bearkittens Face Pioneer Frosh Tonight; Lose to Tongue Point

With one more game left to raise their present standing of 10-6 for the season, the Willamette Bearkittens play the Lewis and Clark freshmen tonight at 6:10 on the home court.

Last Friday the Bearkittens took an overnight trip to Astoria and lost a 76-67 contest to the Tongue Point Naval base team.

The Willamette Frosh outscored their opponents in the first and final periods, but the sharp-shooting ailers made good use of dismal second and third quarters turned in by Willamette to win and even the two-game series for the season. Bill Turlay and Kent Hotaling led Willamette scorers with 13 points and Mickey Conway was close behind with 12.

In tonight's finale, Coach Jerry Frei will probably start Hotaling and Clarence Popper at the guards, Conway at center and Turlay and either Dave Johnson or Don Miller at the forwards.

Reserves who will be seeing their last action on the frosh team are Bob Withers, Gary Burd, Dave Barrows and Lowell Baird. Baird sprained his ankle in the game against Tongue Point and will probably see limited action, if any, according to Coach Frei.

Betas Maintain Lead; SAE's Rise in Points

The SAE's cut the Beta's lead in the race for this year's intramural sports trophy to four points.

The SAE's, who trailed the Betas 38½ to 64½, at the end of regular basketball play, tallied 15 points in the basketball playoffs and 37½ points in regular volleyball play. The Betas failed to earn any points in the playoffs as they did not qualify a team. But in the regular season of volleyball the Betas earned 33 points to keep their first place standing.

The intramural volleyball tournament involving all three leagues begins next Monday night and the results may change or strengthen the positions of the teams. Only the SAE's have two teams entered. The leading Betas placed their "C" league team in the tournament.

The only change in standings after the completion of the volleyball and basketball playoffs was the SAE's climb into second place over the Phi Delt. Betas 121½ SAE's 171 Phi Delt 91½ Sigs 87 Baxter 54 Wits 49½ Law School 40½

Lausanne hall's candidate is Tom Carr, former sophomore class president, from Burlingame, California. His major field is sociology, and he is a member of Sigma Chi, participating in football and politics.

Dale Gustafson is a sophomore member of Beta Theta Pi and sergeant-at-arms of the a cappella choir. His main interests are political science and basketball. Alpha Chi Omega chose Dale as their favorite for the title.

Kent Holmes has been selected as first choice for Joe College by members of Delta Gamma. Kent is a Beta Theta Pi member, and is majoring in political science. His main extra curricular activities have included president of the junior class, assistant concert manager and chairman of student solicitations for the Challenge Fund.

Mirick Thought Typical 'Joe'

Keith Mirick was suggested as Joe College by the members of Chi Omega. He is a Phi Delta Theta member from Medford, and is majoring in public school music. Last year he was sophomore director of Glee and also their vice-president. He is also a member of Sigma Alpha Chi and manager of the Willamette band.

From the Pi Beta Phi house comes the nomination of John Kent, who is a Phi Delta Theta from San Carlos, Calif. During his past three years at Willamette, he has participated in the "W" club, of which he is president, FE club, football, and sergeant-at-arms of the junior class.

Guest of Soviet Visits Skyscraper University

This is the third in a series of six articles by Dean Schoelkopf, editor of the University of Minnesota Daily and one of seven American college editors just returned from a three-week tour of the Soviet Union.

By Dean Schoelkopf
Editor, Minnesota Daily
Moscow University is the shiny new showpiece of the Soviet educational system.

The 32-story skyscraper, situated on Lenin hill just outside the city, was opened last fall. It was built at a time when apartments and other new buildings were needed badly.

Facilities at the university are generally good. Laboratories are streamlined and well-equipped.

American Journals Evident
Classrooms and lecture halls seemed adequate. The library had individual study desks—and a good supply of American technical journals.

Attached to the classroom section of the building are two 18-story wings, which provide dormitory space for 6,000 students. We visited some of the rooms and found them comparable to American college dormitory rooms.

Moscow University has the same enrollment as the University of Minnesota—a bout 18,000 students. At Moscow 52 per cent of the students are women, while at Minnesota about 30 per cent of the students are coeds.

There are 12 faculties or departments at Moscow University—mostly in the sciences. At Minnesota there are 31 departments in the liberal arts college alone.

All courses at Moscow run for five years, with an additional three years required for the first graduate degree. The Soviet student, though, begins college with only ten years of previous schooling, compared to 12 years in the United States.

Entrance Standards

Entrance to colleges and universities is based on standards similar to those at American schools—previous grades and competitive examinations. Once admitted to college, almost all Russian students go on complete scholarships.

Students told us they get monthly stipends ranging from 300 to 700 rubles ($75 to $175). This covers the cost of their tuition, which is about 400 rubles a year, plus room, board, books and gives them some spending money.

There is a 25 per cent bonus available to students who maintain good and excellent marks, roughly equivalent to an A or B average. Upperclassmen get bigger scholarships than underclassmen.

Russian students were curious about the American system of scholarships and often asked if it is possible for children of American farmers and workers to go to college. Frequently we were asked about our own class background.

In return for their scholarships, Soviet college graduates must serve for three years at whatever job the government assigns them. When we asked students whether they had any choice of jobs, they said yes, but that no two people ever compete for the same job.

Student Military Deferments

Russian students are deferred from military service while they are in school, and apparently even after they graduate. They told us the government considers them more valuable as scientists than as soldiers. There is some military training in the colleges, similar to our Reserve Officers' Training corps (ROTC). We were told graduates of this program get commissions but are not called to active duty.

We visited three other colleges besides Moscow—Stalin University, Azerbaijan Industrial College at Baku, and the Odessa Institute of Technology.

At each of these places we found the same heavy emphasis on science and engineering courses. "Here we stress practical work," the president of Stalin University told us. "Students are training for particular jobs. Every summer they go to all parts of the Soviet Union for laboratory and field work."

About the only people who major in areas like the social sciences and humanities are those who expect to become teachers.

High School Curriculum

This emphasis on research goes back into the high schools, too. The Russians call them middle schools. A student in his tenth year of middle school—equivalent to our high school senior—takes almost all science courses.

A Kiev middle school principle told us the compulsory course consists of algebra, geometry, trigonometry, chemistry, physics, psychology, astronomy, logic, a choice of foreign language, physical culture, history, Russian and Ukrainian. It was this same principal who told us although education is compulsory for ten years in the larger cities, it is not free for the last three years. Tuition in Kiev was 24 rubles ($50) a year, and there were no scholarships for students in these grades.

We asked about illiteracy in Russia and were told, "There is no illiteracy." Then we were asked about illiteracy in the United States, especially in the South.

The major problem for the Soviet educator seemed the same wherever we went—not enough space for a growing student population. That is, everywhere but Moscow university. Everybody there was more than happy with their shiny new school.

Council Members Named for Spring

Spring semester representatives to the Student Council have been named by campus living organizations and town students.

Representing Baxter Hall is Paul Johnson; Beta Theta Pi, Tom Larson; Phi Delta Theta, Bob Batchelder; Sigma Chi, Dennis Muir; Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Loyal Howard.

Lausanne Hall named Nancy Kerbs as its representative; Alpha Chi Omega, Marian Rutledge; Chi Omega, Frances Miller; Bishop Manor, Charlotte Stark; Delta Gamma, Augusta Krause; Pi Beta Phi, Julie Mellor; Law school, Jim Bergmann; and WITS, Rosemary Bower and Paul Baker.

'Endeavor' Contributions Requested by Co-Editors

Barbara Jackson and Judi Wood, co-editors of the Endeavor, urge all students to submit original poetry, short stories, essays, and language pieces for consideration in this year's issue of the campus publication.

All contributions are welcomed, said the editors, and should be received in the student body office by March 20.

The Endeavor is an annual publication sponsored by Willamette's Unesco and is composed entirely of student works.

Miss Winship Draws Praise as Electra

By Fred Cummings

After seeing the first act of "Electra" on the Waller stage last week, the audience was left almost speechless except for an occasional exclamation, accented with a deep sigh. The extreme heaviness of the wordy play is completely different from the modern staccato-movement drama. It could never be called delightful; rather, overpowering.

Delicate Balance Necessary

With such a heaviness, such

Unlicensed Agents Invade Fraternities

Willamette fraternities and sororities were invaded by two agents from the Vulcan magazine service Saturday, who had not secured permission from the dean's office for their solicitations.

Whether the actual subscriptions were legitimate has not been determined. After an episode at one of the fraternities the living organizations were called and warned that the salesmen did not have proper credentials. One of the sorority houses called the police, but by the time they arrived and investigated the duo had apparently left town.

Included in the subscription were six or seven magazines, to be sent for the cost of mailing them. Newsweek and their company supposedly backed the idea, and the subscription was to last for three years. In the case of sororities, the cost would be $42, and for fraternities, $46.

Students are again reminded that before solicitors may enter living organizations they must be approved by the dean's office.

Oregon Talent Presents 'Show Business' Theme

University of Oregon's "Show Business" exchange assembly program brought scenes from Broadway, a dance interpretation of "Dragnet," and a magician who bagged a rabbit in a paper sack to Willamette's convocation audience Tuesday.

Other acts in the hour long talent show were a tap routine to "It's Wonderful," and vocal renditions of "I Can't Believe That You're in Love With Me," "Stranger in Paradise," and "Birth of the Blues." Skits included "John's Wife Marcia" and "Deadwood Danny's Platter Program."

Commented one Willamette student, "The most amazing part about it—they didn't have a can can line." The Willamette audience endorsed the Oregon group at the show's conclusion.

T'nT at Ten Excuses

Students are again reminded by Dean Mark Hatfield to renew old chapel excuses for the new semester if necessary. Excuses are valid for one semester only. Forms are available in the dean's office.

an intense drama, such overpowering force already in the situation and dialogue, the balance between character and plot, between individual and individual, between situation and individual becomes extremely delicate. There is such great strength in the drama itself—any tendency toward overacting or overdramatization reduces it to melodrama.

In such a situation it becomes necessary to have intense contrast—blacks and whites. An art object has strength as its components vary enough to create interest. The playing of Miss Winship's strength of voice and character against Mrs. Laue's strength was too much of one thing—there was no interest variety.

Black and White Contrast
But a perfect balance (one of the few exceptions, and I believe this is due to many of the cast's seeing Miss Winship's interpretation as the only interpretation of Greek drama) was brought between Miss Winship and Miss Woolery. Here we had black and white.

As the drama rose to a climax, the actors anticipated the intenseness by overacting where there should have been no intenseness except as character demanded it. Something was missing to contrast with the heaviness of words, action and character. Each individual became vehement, and instead of retaining his individuality, copied Miss Winship.

Two Women Commended

The two individuals in the play that really seemed to grasp their parts were Miss Winship and Mrs. Laue. Mrs. Laue, as Clytemnestra, continually held a governor on her role that kept it from being overdone.

Miss Winship's was the strong part in the play. Her ceaseless lament at the death of her father was a mournful bird crying at its cage. The intenseness which she contributed to her part was amazing in one so inexperienced. Sometimes she could have employed more blacks and whites, but she kept us on that nervous edge of intense drama and the abyss of melodrama that held an exciting pitch.

Electra was one of the few individuals with whom we could really be empathetic. At times we found ourselves bitterly shouting through her at Clytemnestra, pleading with Chrysothemus and wailing for Orestes. This was especially true in the urn speech.

Expressive Rhythms

The beautiful rhythms of Miss Winship's speeches revibrated in her marvelously expressive body. The rhythms of the Greek drama are extremely adaptable to dance expression, and it seemed that Miss Winship consciously or unconsciously grasped this.

Perhaps the most impressive aspect of "Electra" was the chorus. The textures of its different combinations continually interspersed in Electra's lament were the element that kept the play alive. The freshness of the chorus played against the heaviness of some of the other parts was probably the most delightful and striking aspect of the play.

Mention should also go to Marge Dawson for the lovely costumes and to the designers of the striking stage set.

Girod, Manor Share Music Recital Today

Amy Girod, pianist, and D'Anne Manor, soprano, will share this afternoon's recital, at 3 in the Music hall.

Miss Manor will begin the program by singing songs from Shakespeare, which include, "With Thee The Unsheltered Moor I'd Tread," "Heigh Ho For a Husband," "Allurements" by Handel; and "She Never Told Her Love," by Handel.

Miss Girod will play "Sonata in F Major, Op. 10, No. 2" by Beethoven, with Miss Manor returning to sing "Voici Le Printemps" and "Eho! Aho!" both by Britten; and "Aria C'est Des Contrebassiers," from Carmen by Bizet.

Rigaudon and Forland, from "Le Tombeau Couperin" by Ravel; and "The Juggler" by Toch will be next on the program, played by Miss Girod.

Miss Manor will conclude the recital with "E'den as a Flower" by Bridge; "A Hundred Little Loves" by Klemm; and "Thy Sweet Singing" by Olmstead.

The public is invited to attend.

Function of Music in Worship Discussed by Faculty Forum

Concluding that congregational singing can be improved and that church music should always be dignified and sincere, Wednesday night's Faculty Forum panel discussed the expression of worship through music.

Panel members Prof. Josef Schnelker, Don M. Glecker and Dr. Norman A. Huffman considered the important qualities of an effective hymn, with Dean Melvin H. Geist serving as moderator.

They felt that hymns should be objective rather than subjective, should correspond to held beliefs, be sincere, understood and simple. The subjects should be of vital religious concern, "not always ending with going to heaven."

The function of music in worship was seen to create the mood of worship experience and to aid in worship by directing the focus of attention to the altar and front of the church.

Considering how singing could be made more effective in protestant churches, the importance of familiarity of the hymn to the congregation was stressed. The problem of too many bystanders during group singing was suggested to be a result of unfamiliarity with the hymns and a feeling of not being able to sing well enough. Any emphasis on semi-professionalism in singing was seen as a deterring factor.

The need to change the emphasis from concert to worship music, with hymns that are not obstructive, was discussed. The effectiveness of a hymn is produced through association, panel members said.
