Dedication

THE 1953 WALLULAH is dedicated to Truman Collins and George Atkinson, co-chairmen of Willamette's National Development Committee, who, by their gifts to the University, typify the men whose faith and service have helped Willamette establish itself as a moral and intellectual leader among our nation's universities. Since its founding more than a century ago, Willamette repeatedly has been rewarded by benefactors who realize that there are few contributions to society more important than the support of Christian education. With the help of men like Mr. Collins and Mr. Atkinson, Willamette's future is secure.

Introduction

Whether he realizes it or not, few things are more important to the college student than time. His college life is short-lived; yet in these few months he prepares for his life's career and builds a background and an understanding upon which he may appreciate life more fully. College is also a time of fun, an activity every bit as important in its way as the daily struggle with the books. With these thoughts in mind, the staff has selected TIME as the theme for the 1953 WALLULAH. We hope this book may be viewed with the realization that it is more than a chronicle of past academic and social events. It is a book, too, of the future, for what is past is prologue to the future greatness of Willamette University.

Administration

G. Herbert Smith, President

Serving as the chief executive for the eleventh year, Dr. G. Herbert Smith has proven himself a capable administrator of the University and an understanding friend of the students. With each passing year, his wise leadership and persistent drive have aided in bringing the University to the distinguished place it now holds in the world of higher education.

Regina Ewalt Dean of Women

In her position as Dean of Women, Mrs. Ewalt advises the women students on their various social and academic problems. It is she who often must give the final approval or rejection to the innumerable proposals brought before her by the women of the University.

Mark O. Hatfield Dean of Students

For the past three years, Dean Hatfield has been an outstanding figure in the community as well as on the Willamette campus. His wise insight into the problems which face the University students has made him a helpful friend and counselor for all who come in contact with him.

Robert W. Fenix Financial Vice-President

Dr. Fenix has the tedious task of keeping up with the rising cost of living in his position as the Financial Vice-President. His weighty job of attending to the financial affairs of the University consistently requires long hours of meticulous work which is essential for the security of the school.

LeRoy Connelly, Chief Accountant A newcomer to the Willamette administrative staff is Mr. LeRoy Connelly, who has assumed the many responsibilities connected with the management of all the University's financial records.

Page 12

The Business Office Much of the routine work involved in running the University takes place here in the Willamette business office.

Charles A. Paeth, Director of Admissions

Prospective students' first contact with Willamette is usually made through Charles A. Paeth, Director of Admissions, who spends much of his time corresponding and meeting with high school seniors.

Harold B. Jory, Registrar

During the registration of classes, Willamette students see much of Mr. Jory, whose job as Registrar is to see that all students are properly enrolled. Throughout the year he and his staff tend to the compilation and filing of every student's scholastic records.

Registrar's Office Throughout the year, Mr. Jory's staff in the Registrar's Office keeps all the students' records up to date and in order.

Admissions Office Mary Louise Lee, a recent graduate of Willamette, assists Mr. Paeth in his job as Director of Admissions.

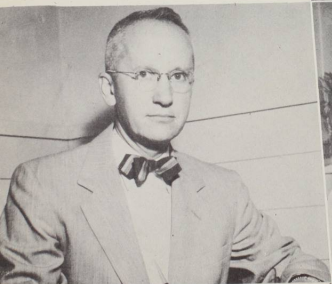

Lorena Jack, Director of Dormitories

Attending to the responsible task of planning the menus for all meals in the residence halls is Miss Jack. Besides keeping the students well fed, she directs the janitorial and kitchen personnel for the halls.

Florence Fawk serves efficiently as assistant and secretary to Miss Jack.

Ralph E. Purvine, M.D., University Physician Dr. Purvine can be seen often in the University Infirmary, to which he makes frequent trips. He administers medical and personal aid to the ailments of the students, who find him always their ready friend.

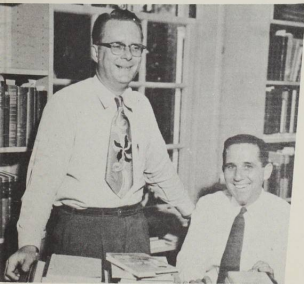

Eula Achor, Resident Nurse; Henrietta Althoff, University Nurse Mrs. Althoff and Mrs. Achor are the ones to whom the students turn in times of illness. The two take care of the students' needs, whether it be to prescribe a few pills or a prolonged rest in the infirmary.

Nancy Stuart, Director of Information

The office of information, which distributes publicity for the University, is under the capable direction of Nancy Stuart. With her staff, Miss Stuart informs the newcomers about Willamette and publishes the "Willamette Alumnus" to give past students the latest news of their Alma Mater's activities.

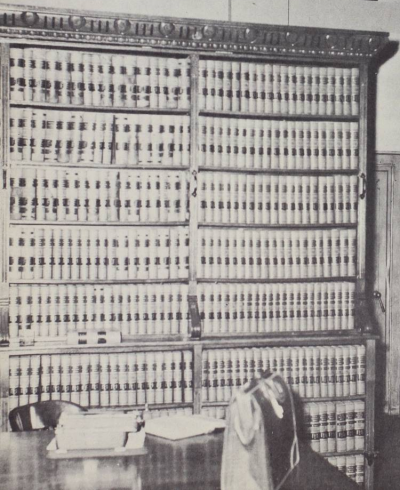

Mrs. Esther Ryan, Secretary to President Smith;
Mrs. Olive Wages, Secretary to the Deans.

Ainsley A. Whitman, Librarian Samuel E. Keeton, Assistant Librarian

Serving as constant help in the library to both students and faculty are Mr. Whitman and Mr. Keeton. They are always on hand to render assistance to students who are puzzled by the library's cataloging system or who are in search of specialized material.

Law

Dean Seward P. Reese

College of Law

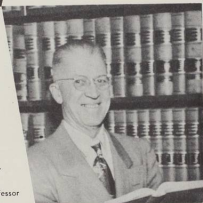

For seventy years Willamette University's School of Law has educated men in preparation for a legal career. Boasting a well-trained faculty, the school ranks high among the law schools in the West. The students are so indoctrinated with legal procedures, both practical and theoretical, that they leave the school as competent and high-minded upholders of justice.

Jim Anicker, Student Council Representative.

Keith Evans, President of the Student Body.

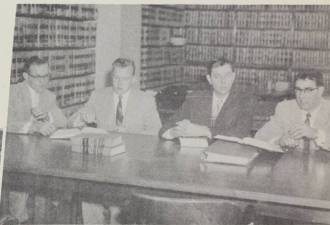

David Wheeler, Vice-President.

The Legal Handbook, put out quarterly by Willamette's Law School, was under the able direction of Leslie Hampton, Business Manager; Tony Brosterhaus, Assistant Editor; John Paulus, Faculty Editor; and Jim Maletis, Editor.

William Miller discusses a problem with one of the clients of the Legal Aid Clinic, a service which benefits the community and gives invaluable experience to the law students.

The actual practice of law is experienced by students Gordon Teter, Lorin Ricker, and Dick Brownstein, who are in a session of practice court.

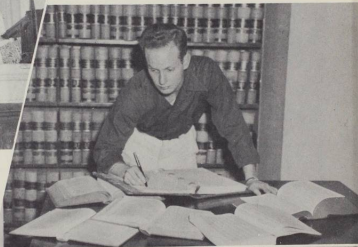

Law students take time out from their pressing schedules to enjoy a quiet evening of dancing at their fall dinner dance.

Roger Rook, Dave Card, and Jim Maletis "expressively" portray a scene from the "Lighthouse Keeper's Daughter".

C. B. Nevin takes advantage of the Law School's library to do detailed research on a legal problem.

No day at the law school is complete without the relaxing cup of coffee at the corner drug store.

Music

Dean Melvin H. Geist, head of the Music School, has successfully completed another outstanding year as the guiding force behind Willamette's Music Department.

College of Music

As a member of the National Association of Schools of Music, the Willamette University College of Music holds an honorable place among the western colleges of its kind. With Dean Melvin Geist as its director and inspiration, the school offers extensive training in both instrumental and vocal music. Well known throughout the Northwest are the fine orchestra, band, and A Cappella Choir which the school sponsors on annual tours.

Liberal Arts

Dr. Robert D. Gregg, Dean of College of Liberal Arts

Liberal Arts

The College of Liberal Arts has been established to provide a place where students may come to receive instruction and encouragement in the basic arts and sciences. The vast stores of past knowledge are open to the students who seek to find the answers of today's problems by studying those of the past.

Education

The Education Department is working for the future of our country as it prepares young men and women to teach the American youth of tomorrow. In order to gain practical experience in teaching, students in the department spend time working in the local public schools in accordance with the practice teaching program.

Art

The influence of the Art Department is felt throughout the school as helpful art students lend a hand to the student body for dance decorations, Homecoming signs, and campaign posters. Special student exhibits are held in the art building to display the paintings of talented students. Non-art majors, too, have their place in this department, for many of them take courses merely to improve their skill or to satisfy their artistic urges.

History

The history department opens to students the opportunity to study the periods in the growth of national societies and their respective cultures. Equipped with this knowledge of past events, college youth can delve with better understanding into the problems facing our troubled world today and leave college as more valuable national and world citizens.

Language

The language department presents students more than a mere technical study of the various languages. By studying the historical development and the geography of foreign countries, as well as learning verb conjugations and noun genders, language students gain a broader view of foreign people and their customs. A kinder feeling for one's fellow men is the concept nurtured in the language classrooms.

Physical Education

Teaching students to develop a sportsmanlike attitude is one of the main aims of the Physical Education Department. To achieve this goal, all students are required to take two years of physical education for graduation in liberal arts. The department also sponsors a well-planned intra-mural sports program among the living organizations.

Economics

The Economics Department has in its curriculum courses which provide a basic knowledge of our financial system. These courses are valuable both to students majoring in economics and those interested in related fields. Future business men and women find great value in this department through its emphasis on the economic problems of our day and on the general organization of the business world.

Thomas W. Churchill, Instructor

Dona Mears, Senior Scholar

Political Science

No subject in our troubled world today deserves more consideration or study than that of political science. As the world grows smaller through faster transportation, and as nations engage in the struggle for power, the need for international co-operation and understanding increases. Only when the citizens of the various nations comprehend the respective political organizations throughout the world can such co-operation be possible.

English

Each Willamette student, regardless of his major, is required to take designated English courses which will help him to succeed in any field of his interest. In addition to the basic courses which teach correct English usage in speech and writing, literature courses are offered to enrich the student's appreciation of the world's great literary heritage. Detailed studies of masterpieces, spanning the great Greek dramas to the present-day American novels open to the students new literary vistas.

Philosophy

Students in the philosophy department through studying the great philosophers of past and present, learn to clarify their own doctrines of belief. The student philosophers are encouraged to delve into the fundamental truths of life in order to establish concepts of their own.

Religion

Each student in the liberal arts school must fulfill certain religious requirements for graduation. The courses are designed to increase the student's knowledge of Christianity and other world religions and lead him to a firm basis on which to build his own faith.

Home Economics

Courses in the Home Economics Department give a fine background in the arts of the home for every girl, regardless of whether she is a major in the field or not. The department offers a variety of interesting subjects such as the course in weaving in which the students are taught how to weave their own skirts.

Dr. Howard W. Runkel, Associate Professor

Speech and Drama

Students taking courses in the Speech and Drama Departments find ample opportunity for self-expression through the means of the radio workshop, play productions, and the activities of the debate team. Majors in the departments delve as well into the background and historical development of the theatre.

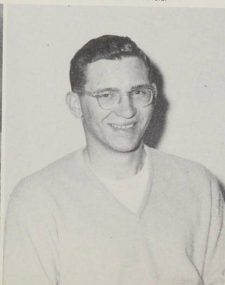

Page 39

Margaret Conklin, Senior Scholar

Dean Graunke, Instructor

Thomas Scheidel, Senior Scholar

Psychology

Following the trend of interest in the country toward psychology, Willamette students are discovering that courses in this department aid in their preparation for work in any field. Through attendance at informative classes and the opportunity to observe the work of local mental institutions, psychology students endeavor to examine the human mind as it functions in our complex environment.

Dr. John A. Myers, Jr., Associate Professor

Regina L. Ewalt, Associate Professor

Dr. Charles H. Derthick, Associate Professor

Sociology

The relatively new science of sociology is rapidly drawing more and more students into its scope. Majors in the subject find many opportunities for diversified and interesting jobs open to them in their chosen field. At the same time, students taking courses in the department greatly broaden their understanding of the technological, political, religious, and social aspects of our modern culture.

Biology

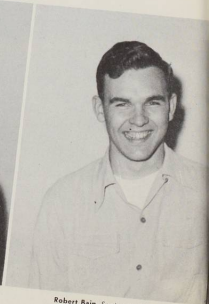

Since biology is the "science of life" in all its phases, courses in this department are designed to study the functions of living organisms with an emphasis on the human aspects. From the general courses, which offer a broad background, to the more specific courses of advanced study, the students grow in their appreciation for and understanding of living matter.

Chemistry

A study of matter with an emphasis on its chemical aspects is the general subject dealt with in the chemistry department. To supplement the classroom lectures, laboratories are held each week to acquaint students with the major chemical processes.

Physics

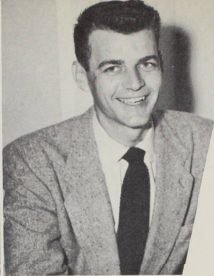

The physical properties of matter are learned through courses in this department from lectures, books, and practical laboratory experiments. Courses are designed to increase the students' understanding of their environment and the laws governing it.

Earl L. Brown, Professor

Dr. Robert Purbrick, Associate Professor

Dr. Chester F. Luther, Professor
Robert Reid, Instructor

Mathematics

Principles, theories, and laws of mathematics are taught in this department so that students may relate their general working knowledge of the subject to other fields. Mathematics is taught with the intention of relating it to problems in our modern world.

Journalism

The basic English principles learned in the English composition classes are utilized in a practical way in the journalism courses. Students learn the techniques involved in publications and then make use of their knowledge by publishing the "Willamette Collegian," the "Wallulah," the "Fusser's Guide," and the "Student Handbook."

Dr. Murco Ringnald, Professor

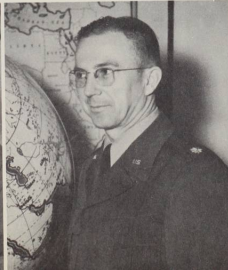

Air Science

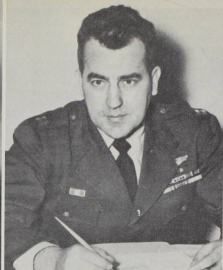

In keeping with our national program of defense, the AROTC unit on the Willamette campus was established in the fall of 1951. All physically fit men enrolled in the University are required to take it as a lower division requirement. The program offers a two-year course in air science and tactics with advanced training available in flight operations, administration, and logistics.

A.S.W.U.

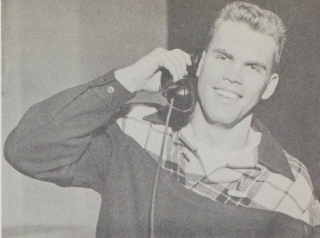

Well known about Willamette in previous years for his outstanding activities, Rollin Cocking, Student Body President, led the students through another successful year. His friendly grin and capacity for hard work have made him worthy of his important position on campus.

Associated Students of Willamette University

A.S.W.U. officers are the faithful servants of the student body. Through them the opinions and suggestions of the students are expressed and all school activities carried on. These officers form the nucleus around which student organizations and activities are coordinated.

Into the hands of Jim Hitchman, First Vice-President, fell the headache and worry of scheduling and co-ordinating all social activities on campus. Besides fulfilling this position with remarkable aptness, Jim has been one of the mainstays of the Willamette University track team, on which he is the holder of the shot-put record.

In his capacity as Second Vice-President, Bob Stone saw that the all-school elections were carried on in good order and he introduced new measures which insured the participation of more students in these elections. In addition to his responsibilities as an ASWU officer, Bob, as a freshman at the Law School, has to keep up with endless hours of school work.

Keeping detailed accounts of all the council and social activities board meetings is just one of the many duties that Mary Ellen Snyder fulfills in her office as Secretary of the Student Body. In addition to her busy whirl of meetings, Mary Ellen finds time to deal with the ASWU correspondence and to keep their files in order.

Dr. George B. Martin, besides heading the education department, serves the student body in another capacity: the ASWU Financial Advisor. He holds the purse strings of the student organizations on campus and advises the ASWU officers on financial matters.

The man who was responsible for the ASWU funds is Dick Mercer, Treasurer of the Associated Students. Besides carrying out the duties of his office, Dick served as president of Mu Epsilon Delta, the pre-med club on campus.

As Member-at-Large, Tom Scheidel played a major part in seeing that matters concerning the ASWU were carried out smoothly. Tom is also known by most Willamette students as an outstanding member of the debate team.

Student Council

Forming the nucleus of student government at Willamette is the Student Council. This law-making group is composed of the A.S.W.U. officers and a representative from each living organization on campus plus Dr. Martin, the A.S.W.U. advisor. The council formulates the policies for the student body in general and deals with matters brought up by the representatives, who voice student opinion.

Social Activities Board

The Social Activities Board, led by the first vice-president of the student body, holds regular meetings to schedule and coordinate all social events for the school. They deal with problems arising from these events and must see to it that the activities are held as planned. A group of student representatives in conjunction with several faculty members serve as regular participants at the weekly board meetings.

The Seniors and Juniors joined forces this year for their annual class party, which was an informal dance held at the Knights of Columbus Hall.

Bill Wittenberg, Fall Semester Senior Class President.

Bob Miller, Spring Semester Class President.

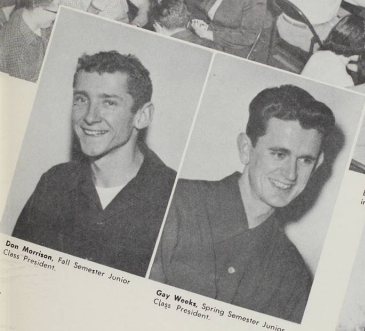

Senior Class

With Bill Wittenberg and Bob Miller at the helm, the Senior Class had smooth sailing this year, their last as members of the Willamette family. Their fall activities culminated in the annual Christmas pajama dance which they sponsored for the student body. When the grueling hours of study for Comps and Orals was over, the Class of '53 relaxed with a week end at the beach on the annual Senior beach trip in May.

Both the fall and spring semester officers for the Class of '53 gather outside Eaton Hall for an informal "portrait". They are: George Buland in front; row 1: Marilyn Merz, Joyce Foster, Jean Kyle, Mary Lou Ratcliff, Barbara Baker; row 2: Ann Klindworth, Jim Wood, Tomm Pickles, and residing in the tree is John Amblor.

Members of the Junior and Senior Classes found card playing to be a very engrossing pastime at their combined class party, held in February.

Don Morrison, Fall Semester Junior Class President.

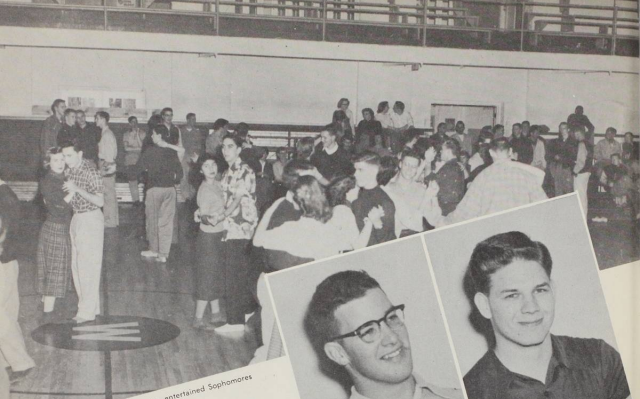

Gay Weeks, Spring Semester Junior Class President.

Junior Class

The Junior Class, under the leadership of Don Morrison, developed a feeling of unity early in the fall after the election of Carolyn Crane as the Junior Homecoming Hostess. Shortly after the turn of semesters, at which time the reins of leadership were turned over to Gay Weeks, the Class of '54 combined with the Senior Class to present a Junior-Senior Party, held on Friday, February 13. Their year of class activities ended with a trip to the beach in the spring to observe the tradition of preparing a meal for the Seniors on their beach trip.

Sophomore President.

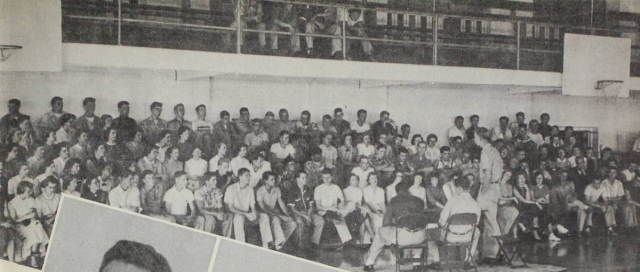

Bob Alfred, Spring Semester

Sophomore Class

With Hal Hargreaves and Bob Alfred at the post of prexy, the Class of '55 developed an enthusiastic class spirit which reached its height during the days of practice for Freshman Glee. The class activities got pff to a fine start with a Freshman-Sophomore mixer in the gym after a basketball game. Following in the footsteps of the other classes, the Sophomores took their beach trip in the spring before leaving their classmates for the summer holiday.

Early in September, the Class of '56 assembled in the gym for their first all-class meeting, which was led by Rollin Cocking, student body president.

Gino Pieretti, Fall '56 President of the Freshman Class.

Freshman Class

The members of the Class of '56 got acquainted with one another in their new college environment early in the fall and elected Gino Pieretti as their president to guide their activities during the first semester. Co-operating with the Sophomores, they helped to stage the Freshman-Sophomore mixer. With the change of semesters and the election of Dave Weeks as president, the Freshmen's thoughts most naturally turned to Freshman Glee. This youngest class ably demonstrated its fine spirit and enthusiasm as it managed the details of the annual song event. To climax the year, the class went on its beach trip in May.

Convocations

Each Tuesday morning at ten o'clock, Willamette students abandon their mid-morning coffee break for convocation in the gym. Here students have an opportunity to hear noted speakers, both faculty and guest, or to enjoy talent from Willamette or other neighboring colleges. The exchange assemblies and other special programs, such as the annual band and choir concert, and Kangaroo Kourt, are especially anticipated.

At a Tuesday chapel late in March, Amaryllis Lilles, chapel manager, and Burke Samuelson listen to Mr. Snow Allen, who discussed conditions in the nation's prisons.

Willamette's Tuesday Convocation Committee: Burke Samuelson, Amaryllis Lilles, Sharon Perry and Larry Pritchett.

Stan Nelson, Publications Manager.

Publications

The publication board, consisting of a board manager, the Collegian editor, the Wallulah editor, two faculty members, ASWU president and business manager, and two student body representatives, coordinates and manages the various campus publications. Responsibilities of the board include supervising financial activities, selecting various editors, and offering suggestions on policy changes.

Attending a regular meeting of the Publications Board are Jane Notson, Dr. Martin, Don Scarborough, Stan Nelson, Jim Freeman, Jody Hirtzel, Rollin Cocking and Dr. Gatke.

Fusser's Guide

The Fusser's Guide is the necessary little book which students consult before phoning a list of students to remind them of a meeting. This campus publication contains between its covers an alphabetical list of names, addresses and telephone numbers of students and faculty, including a list of organization presidents.

Fusser's Guide staff members Jean Brown, Elizabeth Loving, Dorothy Warrens, JoAnn Howard, Maryjane Stewart, Gordon Wylie and Mary McLaughlan look over the finished product of their hard work.

Editing this year's copy of the Fusser's Guide were Marilyn Merz and Gloria Kainu.

On hand to snap photos of every school function and activity throughout the year was Willamette's Darkroom Manager, Bill McKinney.

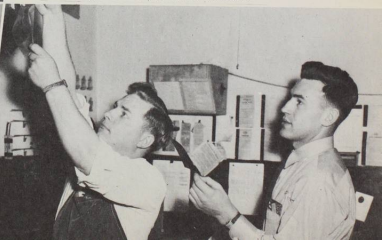

Darkroom

The darkroom of the Wallulah is a scene of frantic activity as publication deadlines draw near. Because pictures play such an important role in the production of the yearbook, the Wallulah photographers find their work never finished.

Page 63

Jim Darby and Pat Sundstrom spent endless hours fulfilling their duties as darkroom assistants.

Bill Mosier and Buz Ording are in the process of drying negatives for some of the many pictures which appear in the '53 Wallulah.

Don Scarborough, familiarly known as "Big Ed", gathers in the latest scoop as the Wednesday night deadline draws near.

Collegian

The Collegian, the University's weekly publication, keeps the student body well informed on the latest campus activities, polls, and opinions. The efficient staff under editor Don Scarborough has diligently worked to meet the pressing Wednesday night deadlines and to produce at the same time a publication of immediate interest. Despite a rushed schedule, the staff has endeavored to maintain the high standards the Collegian has previously set for itself.

The Collegian Society Editor, Ann Klindworth, lets Chuck Ruud, Campus Editor, in on a highly confidential story which will appear in the next edition.

Erwin Weber, Sports Editor, reviews copy with Marge Leonard, Copy Editor.

Every Wednesday night in Waller basement finds the whole Collegian staff with its faculty advisor, Prof Ringnalds, in the midst of assembling the weekly edition of the school paper.

Wallulah

Publishing a yearbook that will be enjoyed by its readers is a job which the staff begins the first week of the fall semester and continues until late in the spring. The responsibility for producing this year's book was carried by a hard-working staff kept busy with planning pages, writing copy, taking pictures, and by ever-pressing deadlines, which aimed toward the ultimate goal of "yearbook out by graduation."

On the shoulders of Jane Notson, Editor, has rested the weighty responsibility of managing all phases of the yearbook and of turning out a finished product worthy of her endless hours of work.

Associate Editor, Sally Bridgeman, took care of much of the routine work involved in putting out a yearbook.

Carolyn Crane, art and layout editor, had the trying job of struggling between artisticness and practicality when laying out the many pages which compose this year's Wallulah.

Careful records of campus athletic activities were kept by Don Empey, Sports Editor, who drew up all the detailed information for the sports section.

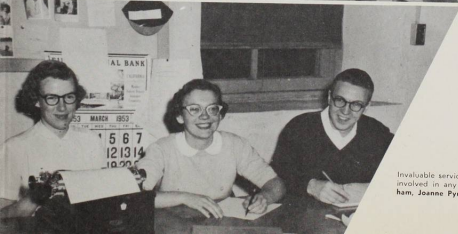

Jean Helgerson, Copy Editor, with the help of her staff, was responsible for a vast majority of the written material which appears in the 1953 yearbook.

Of vital importance for any yearbook is financial backing, which was in part attained by the efficient work of this year's add staff: Don Berney, Don Klindworth, Walt Dauber, Dick Dewey, and Bob Packwood, Business Manager.

Ann Blatchford, Index Editor, is hard at work compiling a complete index of all students and faculty who appear in the Wallulah.

Invaluable service in the vast quantities of routine work involved in any publication was given by Frances Graham, Joanne Pym, and Ron Swanson.

The Willamette University Orchestra, under the able direction of Dr. Willis Gates, poses for a formal portrait, preceding a concert.

Members of Willamette's Orchestra spend many hours rehearsing under the baton of Dr. Gates in the music annex.

Wilma Aller, business manager, and Harriet Aller, president, served as executives for members of the Orchestra during the 1952-53 season.

Willamette University Orchestra

Under the direction of Dr. Willis Gates, the Willamette University Orchestra has completed another full season of performances. In addition to their annual presentation of "The Messiah," the orchestra added a new project to their busy schedule this year. The group toured with the choir and accompanied the choral group for one of its selections.

Many long hours of preparation preceded the band tour which took place in early February.

Herb Brower, business manager; Marie DeHarport, secretary; Stan Vanderwal, treasurer, and Bill Covert, president, served as the guiding administrators for Willamette's Band during 1952-53.

Willamette University Band

The Willamette University Band, conducted by Maurice Brennen, is one of the most prominent organizations on the Willamette campus. In addition to marching at football game half-time ceremonies and presenting concerts for the University and for Salem citizens, the group gave several outside performances including a successful spring concert tour.

Page 69

Maurice Brennen poses with the Willamette University Band in a formal shot taken before their concert at a Tuesday chapel.

Bob Anderson, Choir President for 1952-53, makes an important announcement during one of the regular choir rehearsals.

Music at Thursday chapel is provided by Willamette's A Cappella Choir.

Choir

One of the best known organizations on Willamette's campus is the A Cappella Choir, directed by Dean Melvin Geist of the Music School. In addition to its many special concerts, this excellent body of carefully selected singers performs weekly for Thursday chapels. Perhaps the greatest service the choir renders to the school is through its representatives at the off-campus concerts and during the annual choir tour. After many extra hours spent in rehearsal of an extensive program, the choir toured this year to Vancouver, B.C., presenting recitals in such cities as Everett and Seattle, Washington.

"All aboard!" is the cry for all choir members as a few of the men finish mounting the large sign of identification on the side of the bus.

The day of the Willamette choir's departure on its annual spring tour found its members on the Music Hall steps awaiting the buses.

Highlighting the 1953 choir tour was a visit to Vancouver, B.C., which included a ferry boat excursion.

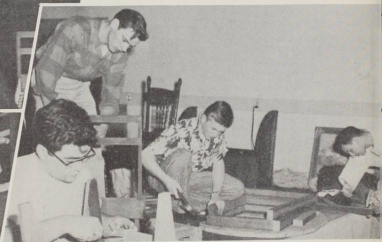

Jean Thomas, Jim Chittick and Lollie Coffey observe, as Liza, Teddy Ruth Gordon, makes her debut in the social world.

"Pygmalion"

One of George Bernard Shaw's outstanding plays was presented to the school in March as the Drama Department performed "Pygmalion," a three-act comedy. This provocative drama, from the pen of the satirical Irishman, though difficult to interpret and perform, was well handled by an adept cast.

Liza, Teddy Gordon, and Mr. Higgins, John Bone, engage in a tussle during the climax of the drama.

The creation of the unusual set involved many hours of labor on the part of the stage crew: George Evans, Ward Armstrong, Wayne DaMetz, and Dick Rohrer.

Drama

Probably one of the most productive organizations on campus is the Willamette University Players, which has produced for the student body and townspeople another season of top entertainment. Although the most concentrated attention was given to the major productions, "The Happy Time," "Glass Menagerie," "Pygmalion," and "Good News," minor presentations of interest were put on from time to time. Undoubtedly the most extensive among this year's dramatic endeavors was the musical extravaganza, "Good News," which appeared as May Weekend entertainment.

Getting the cast backstage for the beginning of any play in Waller Hall is quite a unique procedure since all must enter by way of a ladder leading to the wings.

Frail Laura Wingfield, sympathetically portrayed by Clarine Woolery, watches with despair as her mother, Marge Leonard, incessantly lectures her brother, Garold Meinke.

The gentleman caller, George Evans, who figures predominantly in the psychological drama, talks seriously with Tom, Garold Meinke.

The Glass Menagerie

Early in February, "The Glass Menagerie," the powerful, emotional drama by Tennessee Williams, was presented in Waller chapel by the Willamette University Players. The outstanding cast of four, Clarine Woolery, Marge Leonard, Garold Meinke, and George Evans, held the audience with its vivid, moving interpretation of Williams' human portraits.

The sudden illness, brought on by his gay escapades, has hit Gramps, Jack Phipps, and is here received with mixed emotions by Kent Lawrence, Garold Meinke, Bill Freeman, Vaughn Blankenship, and Judi Wood.

Romance between the gay-blade of the family, Kent Lawrence, and a pretty ex-chorus girl, Jean Kimberling, reaches a climax with a stolen kiss over the table.

The Happy Time

"The Happy Time," Willamette's first major dramatic production of the year, evolved around the glands, a garter collection, and a water cooler filled with wine. The fast-moving comedy of a French-Canadian family offered the audience an evening of thorough enjoyment.

Forensics

An extra-curricular activity which has brought much notice and recognition to Willamette is its debate team. Members of the team, including outstanding speakers from every class, have captured top honors in many of the speech competitions held regionally and nationally. The University was especially fortunate in again receiving a bid for the Senior Debate Team to compete in the West Point Tournament.

Tom Scheidel, Forensic Manager

The cast for a typical Radio Workshop broadcast anticipates the starting signal from the technician.

Radio Workshop

With its program of Radio Workshop, the Speech and Drama Department offers interested students an excellent opportunity for training in the radio field. Here, members of the class gain first-hand experience in planning, presenting, and broadcasting programs in the weekly and Studio A broadcasts.

During the progress of a rehearsal for a Studio A broadcast are: Bonnie Baker, Bev Lytle, Lyn Wence, Bob Scearce, Ruth Joseph, Lollie Coffey, Tom Bright, Lois Zahler.

Delsia Larson, Manager of the Willamette University Bookstore.

Bookstore

The busiest place on campus during the first few days of a new school semester is the bookstore, where students flock to purchase their new supplies. In addition to the textbooks, the store has a wide selection of school equipment, banners, stationery, and toy animals.

Bearcat Cavern

Coffee time is tops on the schedule of any college student and no exception are Willamette students, who make a regular practice of spending at least one leisurely moment per day in the Bearcat Cavern, where they can purchase anything from coffee to sandwiches, pie, and rich sundaes. The 'Cat serves equally well as a noon-time restaurant, a rendez-vous for coffee dates, and a welcome diversion from the tedious daily grind.

Ella May Durkee, Manager of the Cat Cavern.

Many a Willamette student spends his study breaks and his moments of leisure time in the Bearcat Cavern where he stops for idle talk and the ever-welcome cup of coffee.

Alpha Lambda Delta

Alpha Lambda Delta, the national scholastic honorary for Freshman women, is open to Freshman women who receive a grade point average of 3.5 or above. The group encourages high scholastic achievement, and it works in co-operation with the other women's organizations on campus as a division of the Associated Women Students.

Phi Eta Sigma

The Freshman men's scholastic honorary, Phi Eta Sigma, requires a 3.5 grade point average as eligibility for membership. Phi Eta Sigma joins with Alpha Lambda Delta in the spring to hold the annual banquet in honor of the new initiates of the two organizations.

Beta Alpha Gamma

Scholarship and activity participation are the basis in tapping women for Beta Alpha Gamma, the Sophomore women's honorary. This organization is one of the most active of its kind on campus. Besides checking Tuesday chapel slips and ushering at school performances, these Sophomore women are willing to perform a service to the school whenever a need arises.

Cap and Gown

Cap and Gown, Senior women's honorary, has made great progress this year toward reaching its goal, which is membership in national Mortar Board. Outstanding women in scholarship and activity participation are tapped each spring during their Junior year to be active the following year. The organization assists the school in many phases of college life. As part of its program of service to the school, Cap and Gown instituted a counselling program for Freshman women at Lausanne Hall.

Cardinal Key

The twelve students and six faculty members of Cardinal Key, an upperclass honorary for men, render service to the school through the suggestions they offer concerning campus activities. Chosen on the basis of leadership, scholarship and activity participation, the members meet monthly to discuss current problems facing the student body. On the force of their recommendations, Tuesday convocations have been reorganized. The group has attacked as well the difficulties connected with dead week, quietness in the library, and a better counselling program.

Theta Alpha Phi

Outstanding students in the field of drama are tapped to Theta Alpha Phi, the drama honorary on campus. As part of their activities this year, the group presented "The Happy Journey" for the Thanksgiving chapel play. Assisting the drama department's play productions, members of the honorary sold programs and coffee at intermission for various dramatic performances.

W.U.P.'s

The drama group, Willamette University Players, maintains a busy schedule of activities as its members perform the countless tasks connected with play productions. Besides acting in the school's outstanding dramatic presentations, W.U.P.'s members arrange ticket sales, organize publicity, paint sets, and create scenery. Willamette students owe much to this active organization for the great part it plays in putting on the outstanding productions they are privileged to enjoy.

YWCA

One of the first campus organizations with which entering Freshmen women become familiar is the YWCA, which entertains the new students through its Big-Little Sister program in the fall. Willamette's YWCA, under the leadership of Shirley Hutchinson, president during the past year, has set up various commissions which satisfy the particular interests of each member. YWCA sponsored affairs included such events as International Weekend, the Christmas program, and the May Weekend Breakfast.

Shirley Hutchinson, YWCA president, second from left in the first row, gathers with the cabinet out in front of Waller Hall.

YWCA opened its fall program with the successful Big-Little Sister party, which was held in the Methodist Church during orientation week.

UNESCO

An ever-expanding organization on the Willamette campus is UNESCO, which is dedicated to the better understanding of people of all races, creeds, and nationalities through a study of their characteristic cultures. In addition to their regular bi-monthly noon meetings and cabinet meetings, the group sponsored a series of foreign films, published the "Endeavor," and held a UNESCO "advance" in the spring.

Barbara Manley, UNESCO president, third from the left, joins her cabinet for one of the regular noon meetings.

Outstanding among UNESCO's activities is its presentation of foreign films for the enjoyment of students and town people.

A.W.S.

In its second year as a campus organization, AWS has made great strides toward achieving its purpose of better representation of women students. Through its co-ordinating committee, consisting of the presidents of all women's organizations, AWS has achieved closer co-operation among the various groups it represents. By the joint effort of these groups, the AWS sponsored a dance, "13th Night," on Friday, the thirteenth of March. An outstanding girl is selected each month by the organization and presented with the "Coed of the Month" cup.

Shortly after the announcement of the results of the annual Joe College-Betty Coed contest, the two lucky winners, Jeanne Holmes and Dave Finlay, pose happily for the camera.

Governing the policies of AWS for the fall semester were Liz Shields, Mary Campbell, Ruth Joseph, Bev Kleist, Janet DeWeese, Joyce Foster, Jane Gray, Diana Hobart, Jill Gellerman and President Nancy Lumijarvi.

An annual fall money-making project of AWS is its auction, which not only increases the treasury, but also provides many laughs for the onlookers.

Pepcats

Promoting school spirit on the campus and at such events as football and basketball games is the purpose of Pepcats, an organization open in membership for Freshmen and Sophomore women. Its members support the team at all athletic events and work in co-operation with the other women's organizations on AWS projects. During May Week-end, Pepcats assist the YWCA by serving at the annual Queen's Breakfast.

Lettermen

The activities of the "W" Club begin early in the fall when its members hold the annual Kangaroo Kourt in a Tuesday chapel. The highlight of their activities, however, comes in the spring with their presentation of the Varsity Ball and the selection of a Varsity Queen. The Lettermen are also called upon during the year to usher and sell refreshments at athletic functions.

Young Republicans

The agenda for the Young Republicans included their participation in two state-wide conventions, as well as in a conclave of the Oregon Collegiate League of Young Republicans at the beach in the spring during which time the state board of control spoke to the assemblage. Dave Belch, a member of the Willamette group, was elected State Treasurer of the League. Evening meetings of the organization featured such notable state leaders as Walter Norblad, Harry Dorman, Dave O'Hara, and Robert Elfstrom.

Arnold Air Society

Advanced students in the AROTC Unit have formed the Lindberg chapter of the national organization known as the Arnold Air Society. This selective society chooses its members from the outstanding men of the advanced unit. Although still in its infancy on the campus, the group hopes to eventually become stronger so that it can sponsor events such as the Military Ball, held for the first time at Willamette this year.

Mu Phi Epsilon

Outstanding women music students are eligible for membership into Mu Phi Epsilon, women's professional music honorary. This selective group of musicians had a successful year as it sponsored recitals and gave receptions for concert performers. The highlight of their activities was the presentation of a Valentine Dance to secure funds to build a lounge in the Music Hall.

F.T.A.

Willamette's large group of education majors have the fine opportunity of belonging to Future Teachers of America. Canterbury

Episcopal students at Willamette have organized themselves into a closely knit, compact group for all those of their faith. The organization has a dual purpose in that it serves as a social as well as a religious outlet. Westminster

Westminster Fellowship offers an opportunity to Presbyterian students on the campus for social and religious fellowship. Like other similar groups at Willamette, Westminster holds regular Sunday evening meetings which are looked forward to by the members of the organization as a chance to meet and discuss religious as well as campus affairs. Two successful retreats to the coast highlighted the social life of the fellowship.

Newman Club

Students of the Roman Catholic faith are united by their membership in the Willamette chapter of the national Newman Club Federation. The group held evening meetings at which they received religious guidance or occasionally heard topics presented for discussion by guest speakers. In the spring, these serious-minded students journeyed to Mt. Angel Seminary to spend a day of quiet meditation and inspiration.

Wesley

Wesley Fellowship began a successful year of activities with "Wesley Welcome" which was the annual get-acquainted meeting in the fall. To further their scope of activities, which include fellowship, fun, worship, and work, the group held a retreat at Silver Creek Falls during the first few weeks of school, and a "Ski Spree" between semesters. Other social activities included a "Chili Feed" following a football game in the fall, and the annual World Friendship Banquet, which is one of the highlights of the year.

The officers of Wesley Fellowship for 1952-53 meet with President Paul Jewell at one of the regular cabinet meetings.

Members of Wesley attend one of the regular Sunday evening worship services, which this time features an interview with various foreign students on campus.

Highlighting a successful year of activities was the annual World Friendship banquet held at the First Christian Church.

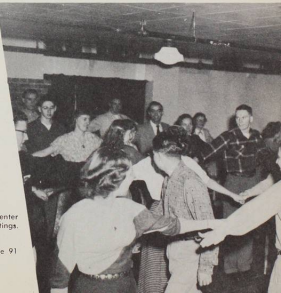

This year Wesley did more than its share in promoting service projects by adopting a needy family at Thanksgiving, carolling during the Christmas season, and sponsoring the Korean clothing drive in which all the living organizations participated. The weekly Sunday evening meetings featured a number of foreign speakers and other inspirational programs. These meetings, as well as all other activities, were planned and organized by a well-functioning cabinet. Wesleyans have had an opportunity for Bible study, too, on Sunday mornings when Dr. Thomas Bennett of the philosophy department teaches an informative and enlightening Sunday school class.

Wesleyans take time out to relax and eat before starting their weekly Sunday evening worship service.

Early fall found the members of Wesley retreating to the quiet atmosphere of Silver Creek Falls for a week-end of fun and inspiration.

A large group of Wesleyans enthusiastically enter into gametime during one of the Sunday meetings.

WITS began its season of activities with the presentation of its semi-formal fall dance.

W.I.T.S.

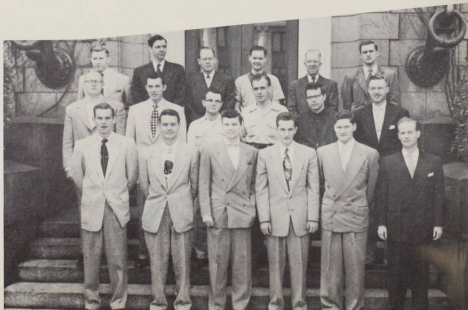

Willamette Independent Town Students are consistently assuming greater importance on the campus as a result of better organization. Together with the independent groups on campus, they were host in February to delegates from six Northwest colleges and universities for the second annual convention of the Pacific Coast Regional Independent Students Association. Filling out the schedule of regular meetings, WITS held a square dance at Chresto Cottage in the spring.

Stan Nelson, president of WITS, conducts one of the evening meetings.

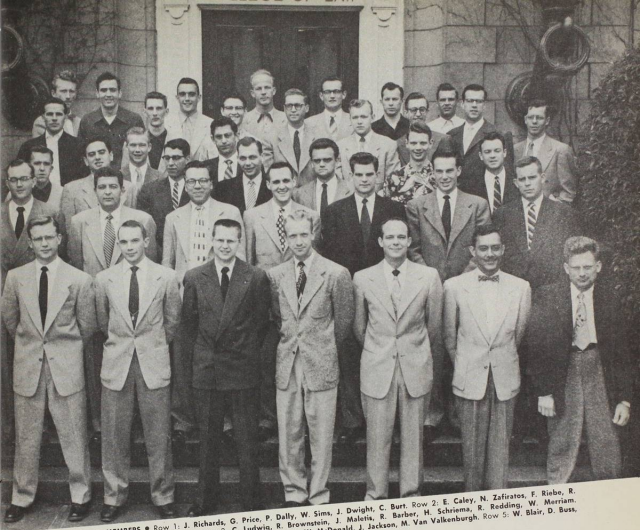

Delta Theta Phi

The Willamette chapter of Delta Theta Phi, national legal fraternity, held an active year in the law school. This organization has a social as well as an academic interest. Whereas it promotes high scholarship by honoring outstanding law students, it also holds several dances on campus during the year.

First row: G. Geurts, P. Gies, J. Herndon, L. Ricker, T. Huffman, C. B. Nevin. Second row: D. Wheeler, R. Garver, J. French, M. Weiser, A. Franzke, C. Reeves. Third row: R. Earlandson, J. Paulus, K. Evans, J. Anicker, R. Lockenour, R. Rook.

Row 5: W. Blair, D. Buss, F. Bocci, M. McClanahan, S. Fritts, L. Hampton, K. Puckett, G. Seidler.

Phi Delta Phi

The purpose of Phi Delta Phi, national legal fraternity, is to offer law students the chance to review law school courses. This selective honorary is only open for membership to men of the top one-sixth of the class. Initiation for the new members is held each year at the beginning of the second semester.

Social Life

Freshman Orientation

For the incoming Freshmen, the week before classes formally begin is one of orientation designed to acquaint the new students with Willamette's traditions, history, and regulations. Lectures are delivered specifically to inform the Frosh what to expect concerning their future on the campus. Mixers, parties, formal banquets, lectures, and tests kept the class of '56 in constant activity during their first week here. At the end of this indoctrination period, these students stepped into the roles they would play in campus life and were ready to make their marks upon the annals of Willamette history.

Willamette independent students hold their banquet at Lausanne Hall during Orientation Week.

Rush Week

Rushing makes Freshman Week a thrilling time for Willamette students. Rushees are kept in a continuous whirl with teas, luncheons, open houses, and banquets to attend, while members of the Greek organizations are kept busy planning these social affairs. In this way, the newcomers meet many new friends and discover the happiness of fraternity and sorority living.

Rushees chat informally with the Betas during one of the fall rush functions.

Kangaroo Court

Unwary Freshmen who have offended upper classmen meet their just rewards at the annual session of Kangaroo Court. Stern members of Willamette's Lettermen Club, who are in search of "justice", serve as judges, attorneys, and jurors, and the penitent Frosh reluctantly carry out the sentences imposed upon them to the great amusement of the spectators.

Before an audience of eager lettermen, two embarrassed Freshman coeds dutifully perform their punishment.

Lovely Sheryl Stookey was the A.R.O.T.C. unit's choice for their Little Colonel of 1952.

Military Ball

One of the outstanding events in the early fall whirl of social activities was Willamette's first Military Ball. Held at the Crystal Gardens on September 26, the formal affair was the presentation of the men in the campus A.R.O.T.C. unit. Highlight of the evening was the entrance of the Little Colonel and her Captains down a pathway formed by the A.R.O.T.C. color guard. As the two little captains looked on, Sheryl Stookey, the Little Colonel, was awarded a pair of silver wings by her escort, Dick Drake.

Pettit Pat Harris was presented at the Military Ball as one of the Little Captains.

Pettit Amy Girod served on the Little Colonel's court as the Second Little Captain.

The lovely Little Colonel and her two Little Captains pose with their bouquets of roses which they received during the ceremonies.

Varsity Varieties

In conjunction with the Annual Campus Chest Drive, Varsity Varieties, a student-produced talent show, provided an entertainment highlight for Willamette students and the people of Salem. A variety of talent was displayed in the fast-moving, colorful show. The acts presented a well-balanced mixture of singing and dancing with enough humor combined to add spice and flavor to the show. Not only was it enjoyed by both audience and participants, but it added a sizeable sum of money to the Campus Chest Drive fund.

Romantic atmosphere was provided by Marilyn Hunter and Tom Larson as they sang songs by Jerome Kern.

Hula dancers, Annette Lottis and Lyn Wence, accompanied by an Hawaiian trio, took the audience on a brief, imaginary trip to the tropical isles.

Carl Simpson served as an efficient manager of the Parents' Day Program.

Saturday morning found the parents busy registering that they might participate in the many events of the weekend.

Parents' Day Weekend

The second annual Parents' Day Program of October 10, 11 and 12 enabled the Moms and Dads of Willamette students to tour the campus and become acquainted with the various departments of the college. Opening the weekend was the performance of Varsity Varieties on Friday evening. Saturday's registration, orientation, box lunch, open house, and football game with the College of Idaho kept parents, students, and the faculty in a constant whirl of activity. The weekend closed as parents and their sons and daughters attended a Sunday morning service in the church of their choice.

Parents were well entertained by a performance of the hilarious melodrama, Curse You, Jack Dalton, in which Kay Perrin and John Bone played leading parts.

The Men of Baxter entertain their parents at a dinner, served before the evening football game.

The Phi Deltas and the Alpha Chis enjoy an informal evening of cards and idle gossip at their fireside.

Firesides

Breaking up the routine of studying during the week were the firesides which were scheduled in the fall semester. These informal affairs were held between the men's and women's living organizations with each women's group having one fireside with each men's group. Traditional events at Willamette, these firesides afford the Freshmen an excellent opportunity of getting acquainted with each other, besides giving the other classes a chance for renewing old acquaintances. In addition to the customary firesides of exchange dinners, entertainment, and dancing, picnics were held in the early fall, while one fireside combined work and play by devoting an hour of the time to collecting old clothes for the Korean relief.

The Sigma Chis appear to be quite versatile as they present a skit for the entertainment of the Lausanne girls.

Politics become alive to Willamette students through contact with the governmental activities which take place at the Oregon Capitol. The high point of the pre-election campaign for Willamette students was the visit by General Eisenhower, who greets the crowd at the station with Governor McKay, now the General's Secretary of Interior.

Elections

The Willamette campus typified the general sentiment on the American scene with its rising waves of excitement concerning the national elections. Each student staunchly defended his candidate as voting time drew near. The Republican supporters were especially filled with political zeal when their presidential and vice-presidential candidates came through Salem during the last few weeks of the pre-election campaign. These increased feelings of excitement were climaxed in the mock student election which proved to be an accurate preview for the regular November 4th elections.

Demonstrating their interest in the national election through a mock election, students Tom Scheidel and Jim Wood, representatives of Students for Stevenson, prepare to vote as Don Berney and Bob Packwood, president of Young Republicans, cast their ballots for Ike.

Homecoming

After many long hours of preparation by the students under the capable direction of Ellis Von Eschen, Homecoming Manager, Willamette University students were ready to put forth their finest welcome for their alums during Homecoming Weekend, November 7 and 8. Starting off the weekend with spirit was the Freshman leaf rake at five a.m. Friday morning, which was followed by a breakfast of cocoa and doughnuts at Lausanne Hall for all the early risers.

The judges for the annual sign contest appraise the Alpha Chi's interpretation of the homecoming slogan "Bear Down on the Wildcats."

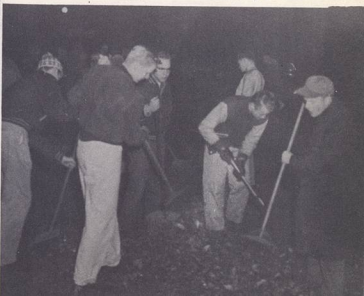

Prize-winning sign in the women's division of the sign contest was the entry for Lausanne Hall.

Homecoming Hostess Carolyn Crane, assisted by Freshman Gary Gortmaker, throws the torch to light the bonfire at the football rally.

A new touch was added to the festivities this year with the introduction of a torchlight novelty parade to replace the noise parade held in previous years. The parade terminated as usual at Bush's Pasture where the football rally was held in the light of the bonfire, built so laboriously by the Freshman class.

The Rally Squad leads the students in a few rousing cheers during the festivities at Bush's Pasture.

Saturday saw the fulfillment of many activities for the alums. Following the traditional alumni luncheon at the Marion Hotel, all loyal football fans flocked to McCulloch Stadium to witness the decisive victory of the mighty Bearcats, who defeated Linfield 35 to 14. After the game, the various living organizations on campus held receptions for their respective alums.

The events of Homecoming Weekend were climaxed for alums and students alike at the semi-formal dance, held Saturday night in the gym.

Happily displaying their trophies are Joyce Schmitz, who received the Homecoming Sign Award on behalf of Lausanne Hall, Benny Holt, who was awarded the title of "Ugly Man"; and Jim Ellis, who holds the Homecoming Sign Award for Sigma Alpha Epsilon.

Topping off the whirl of activities was the semi-formal Homecoming Dance held in the gym Saturday evening. Carrying out the theme of "Autumn Fantasy" most effectively were the decorations of silver trees and leaves which set the atmosphere for the gala affair. Highlight of the dance was the presentation of the sign contest awards to Lausanne Hall and Sigma Alpha Epsilon, and the announcement that Benny Holt was the recipient of the "Ugly Man" contest award.

Sweetheart of Sigma Chi

The evening of November 21 was a memorable night in the life of beautiful Joyce Karn, who was selected on that day as the sixth Sweetheart of Sigma Chi for the Willamette chapter. During the preceding weeks the students had watched the contest with mounting interest until there were only three charming finalists left, from whom the Sweetheart was chosen. Her name was revealed to an excited crowd amid the blue and silver background of the annual "Sweetheart Ball".

Maxine Brown, poised, dark-eyed Freshman co-ed, served as one of the two princesses on the 1952 Sweetheart Court.

Blond, vivacious Jill Gellerman was one of the three lucky girls chosen for the Sweetheart Court.

Concert Series

Sponsored by the Associated Students of Willamette University, the concert series, in its third year of existence, concluded its most successful season. Under the management of Phil Ringle, some of the top artists in their field were presented in the personalities of Jan Peerce, Anna Maria and her Spanish Ballet, Joseph Szigetti, and Marian Anderson. As an extra feature, the Franklin-Slavenska Ballet in their interpretation of "Streetcar Named Desire" and "Madame Fifi" closed the season of fine concert performances.

Messiah

One of the outstanding events highlighting the Christmas season in Salem was the tenth annual presentation of Handel's Messiah by the Salem Oratorio Society and the Willamette students. The brilliant performance was under the experienced direction of Dean Melvin Geist. The great choral work was enriched by the fine accompaniment of the Salem-Willamette Symphony which was rehearsed and trained by Dr. Willis Gates.

The combined town and university chorus put in many long hours at the Monday night practices which preceded the performance of the Messiah.

Christmas

The week before Christmas vacation is a time for fun and friendship on the Willamette campus. Each living organization holds a tree-trimming party for its members and their dates. The night before vacation the living groups pair up to bring carols and cheer to some of the institutions around Salem as well as to the faculty heads. To top off this busy round of activities, the Senior class sponsors an all-school pajama dance in the gym following the carolling.

Pajama tops and jeans were the dress for the Senior Sock-Hop, held in the gym during the week of Christmas festivities.

Members of Alpha Chi Omega and Sigma Chi joined for the traditional Christmas serenade, which preceded the Sock-Hop.

The Alpha Chi's and the Sig's pile aboard their truck after a stop for carolling.

Freshman Glee

The annual school event which symbolizes most vividly the spirit and tradition of Willamette is the interclass song contest, Freshman Glee, held for the forty-fifth time this year. As usual, the week before this long-awaited occasion found the students virtually deserting their school books in favor of devoting their undivided attention to the rehearsals of their respective classes' original Glee song and formation. By the week's end, each of the four classes on campus had strongly unified itself through the high-spirited rivalry which accompanies any Glee, and they turned with confidence toward the events of Saturday night. Enthusiasm ran high that night in the gym, as the Juniors, Sophomores, Freshmen and Seniors successively entered with hopes of gaining the coveted first-place banner.

Part of the Junior men, clad in white dinner jackets, lead their class into the gym to the strains of " '54 will win the Glee."

The Sophomore women enthusiastically perfect their song in preparation for the big event.

The Junior Class, singing its winning song "Willamette, Alma Mater," captured the Glee banner for the third consecutive year.

The Sophomores, smartly forming the bell of Waller Hall, gained second place with their presentation.

Learning the tricks of marching and moving into their formation proved to be a trying task for the Freshmen, who had yet to experience their first Glee.

The Seniors, marching to "Pomp and Circumstance," enter to participate in their last Glee before they graduate.

Before a gym filled with parents, alumni and friends, each group prepared to perform on the risers, which were backed by a modernistic mural of Waller Hall. The program opened with four rounds of parodies, which built up the intensity of feelings and created a fitting atmosphere for the main event: the presentation of the four original Alma Maters. With anticipation and excitement, each class, beginning with the Seniors, marched into its formation, offered its Alma Mater, and returned to await the judges' decision. The program continued with diverse entertainment which was designed to occupy the long interim during which the judges contemplated the fate of all the classes. Finally the big moment arrived as Dr. Daniel Schulze stepped forward to announce the winner: the class who would hold the banner for the forty-fifth annual Freshman Glee.

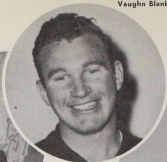

200 members of the Freshman Class formed a striking replica of a Grecian lamp, but their enthusiastic efforts brought them only third place.

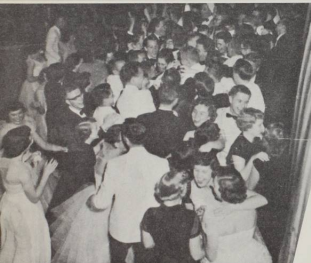

Glee was damp again this year for the Seniors, who were doomed to the mill stream despite their fine rendition of their Alma Mater.

The Freshman honor guard for the Glee Banner of 1953 wait with anticipation as Dr. Schulze launches his lengthy announcement of the results.

Upper classmen and faculty who served on the 1953 Glee Executive Committee were Jim Bergmann, Hal Silke, Barbara Baker, and Dr. Martin.

Members of the Junior Class, after being named the winners, release their over-exuberant excitement as they rush onto the risers to claim their banner.

A clarinet concert in the bird bath outside of Waller Hall was Page Bailey's humble offering early Blue Monday morning.

Blue Monday

The Monday after Glee is one of embarrassment and humiliation as the many losers pay off their Glee bets. On this day, visitors to the campus might see everything from students cooking their breakfast in front of Eaton to someone rolled up in a sleeping bag in class. For the third straight year, the luckless Seniors had to present the chapel after Freshman Glee, and plunge into the waters of the old mill stream.

Varsity Ball

Late in April, amid the whirl of spring dances and social affairs, the Letterman's Club of Willamette presented its annual Varsity Ball, which was held in the campus gymnasium. The cardinal event of the festive occasion was the anticipated announcement of this year's choice for Varsity Queen, lovely Maxine Brown, who, with her four princesses, appeared during intermission ceremonies to receive her crown of white carnations from the Queen of 1952, pert Sally Jo Grimm.

May Weekend

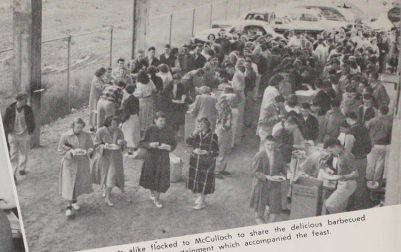

May Weekend festivities opened on the Willamette campus at noon on Friday with the Freshman-Sophomore contest in the tug-o-war and the greased-pole climb. Following these class struggles of strength and prowess, Willamette students and their high school guests made their way to the downtown area, where they witnessed the annual parade, featuring the royal court, bands, and cars from the living organizations. Contrary to tradition, the parade ended at McCulloch Stadium this year, where a band concert was provided by the Springfield high school band, and guests had an opportunity to see Willamette's beautiful, modern stadium. Here, too, as late afternoon approached, the barbecue was held, with students and guests enjoying Pop Crary's delicious food and the fine entertainment planned for them.

Five beauties from the Chi Omega House give their brightest smiles during the traditional May Weekend parade.

Friday evening at McCulloch Stadium was the scene of the annual barbecue which Queen Dona seems only too anxious to enjoy.

Students and guests alike flocked to McCulloch to share the delicious barbecued sandwiches and to enjoy the entertainment which accompanied the feast.

"Good News" stars, Malcolm Campbell and Lollie Coffey, surrounded by the entire cast, swing into the "Varsity Drag" which created a spirited finale to an entertaining show.

"Good News"

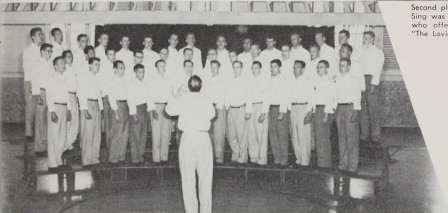

One of the finest, best-liked, and most distinctive events of the busy May Weekend activities was the presentation of "Good News" on Thursday and Friday nights. This fast-moving musical extravaganza was a combination of delightful dancing, singing, and acting, all highlighted by the fine accompaniment of the pit orchestra. The performers interpreted their parts with vitality and brought to the stage a colorful glimpse of life at "old Tait College."

"Good News," centered around college life, offered many a laugh as it portrayed such crises as the trials and tribulations of the football team.

After weeks of diligent and concentrated practice, the living groups on campus presented their traditional song contest, the All-School Sing, on Saturday morning. The audience of friends, guests, parents, and other students had an air of anticipation and excitement as the groups filed into the gym to present their two songs, consisting of a semi-classical number and a house song. These well-trained singers, under the direction of the student song leaders, showed the results of their long hours of practice as they put forth their best efforts for the audience and judges. The long-awaited announcement of the winners was made in the afternoon at the coronation by Queen Dona I.

The Sigma Chi's, under the adept leadership of Herb Brower, earned first place in the men's division of All-School Sing through their fine rendition of "Brothers Sing On" and "All Through the Night."

Second place in the men's division of All-School Sing was captured by the men of Beta Theta Pi, who offered "In the Still of the Night" and "The Loving Cup Song."

Delta Gamma, under the able direction of Harriet Aller, claimed first place honors in the women's division when they sang "My DG Love" and "Long Ago and Far Away."

Page 123

The women of Pi Beta Phi took second place after singing "To You My Arrow" and "The Song Is You."

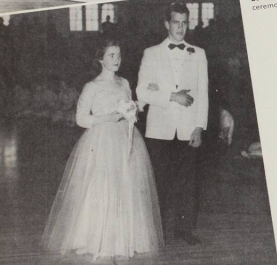

Queen Dona Mears I enters the gym on the arm of her escort, Bob Platenberg, for the traditional May Weekend coronation ceremonies.

Betty Jean Mullin, May Queen for 1952, places a wreath of white carnations upon the dark curls of lovely Queen Dona I, who is surrounded by her admiring attendants.

Princess Jane Foshee, escorted by Frank Kehrl, enters sedately to participate in the coronation ceremonies.

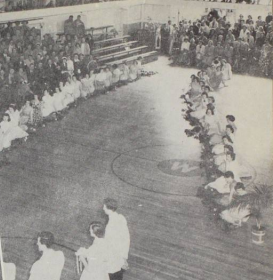

Vivacious Princess Marie Corner, with her escort, Jim Hitchman, makes her way toward the platform to view the coronation proceedings.

Because of cloudy skies and cool winds, the coronation of lovely Dona I as Queen of May was held in the affair. Besides the crowning of Queen Dona and the presentation of her court and attendants, the coronation was highlighted by the daisy chain formed by the Sophomore women, the May Pole Dance performed by the Junior women, and a repeat singing of the winners' songs following the presentation of the song trophies. To conclude this part of the weekend festivities, the newly crowned Queen completed her royal duties outside by planting a magnolia tree which will later be set with the trees from succeeding years which form the Queens' Grove.

A traditional event of the May Weekend coronation ceremonies is the Maypole dance, executed by the women of the Junior class.

The Sophomore women, clad in gay cottons, formed the customary daisy chain, which bedecked the path of the Queen as she entered.

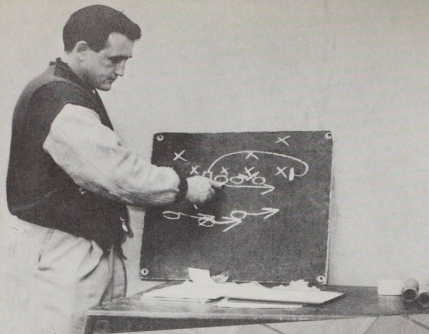

Jim Bergmann, May Weekend manager, gives a few words of greeting to the audience before the beginning of the coronation proceedings.

Climax of the May Weekend festivities was the beautiful formal Queen's Ball, held on Saturday night. Couples danced to the music of Frank Elliott and his band in an atmosphere of a royal coronation. Medieval shields, a throne, and a castle-like Waller Hall formed the decorations which set the scene for the affair. Following the dance, couples enjoyed open houses at the living organizations. Activities culminated on Sunday morning with the Queen's breakfast and a church service at the First Presbyterian Church.

A fitting and romantic climax for the events of Saturday was the Queen's Ball, a formal affair held in Willamette's gymnasium.

Sunday morning of May Weekend found the royal court gathered in the Lausanne dining room to enjoy the Queen's breakfast, put on by the Peccats and YWCA.

Football

Two points—that's about all that separated the 1952 Willamette Football Team from a conference championship. Two single-point losses in the first two league games of the season to co-champions College of Idaho and Pacific finished the Bearcats in third place of the Northwest Conference race. Coach Ted Ogdahl, in his first year at the helm of a college football team, steered the Cats to a record of five wins, two losses, and two ties. Seven Jasons were selected for the conference all-star teams, and additional honors came to Bob Platenberg, who was also named to the Little All Coast team. Ogdahl was assisted in his coaching chores by Jerry Frei, line coach, and Don Hosford, who handled the Junior Varsity.

Hawaii

The highlight of Willamette 1952 football season was, of course, the team's journey to the Hawaiian Islands and their clash with the Rainbows. Besides gaining a 7-7 tie in the Aloha Bowl, the Bearcats enjoyed eleven days of sight-seeing, relaxation, and receptions by enthusiastic Willamette alums, some of whom had not seen their alma mater play since December 7, 1941. A large crowd of students and friends weathered a stormy day to greet the team on its return to the Salem Airport. The boys agreed that the trip was an experience of a life-time.

Basketball

Coach John Lewis' cagers missed winning the Northwest Conference crown for the first time in five years. The inexperienced Bearcats were game all the way with the championship not being determined until the final contest. Willamette finished in a tie with Pacific for second place after losing the season's finale to the circuit winner, Lewis and Clark. All-Conference Dick Mase was the team's top scorer, netting a grand total of 368 points. Dick Hoy, who scored 342 counters, was honored with being named to the Conference second team along with sparkplug guard Lefty Shield. With the loss of only two Seniors, Dick Mase and Bob Shepard, and the fact that five Freshmen were on the varsity squad, the outlook for the future seems to be bright.

Dave Gray, Sophomore, worked hard at guard.

Lefty Shield received second team All-Conference guard honors.

Willamette Relays

Some 1500 athletes from colleges and high schools throughout the Northwest flooded McCulloch Stadium for the third annual running of the famed Willamette Relays. The four and one-half hour event ran like clock-work under the watchful eye of Ted Ogdahl. Although University of Oregon, Oregon State and University of Washington dominated the college class performances, the Willamette cindermen did well. Jim Hitchman took the shot put event, and Stan Neperud turned in the upset of the day with a first in the javelin.

Track

For the third consecutive year the Willamette track team turned out to be one of the strongest in the school's history. The 'Cat cindersmen swept through six dual meets without a setback to maintain their undefeated record for three years and are, at Wallulah press time, favored to cop the conference crown for the third straight year. Two school records fell during early season meets. Layton Gilson set a new discus mark, while Freshman Dean Benson proved to be the best high hurdler Willamette has ever seen.

Golf

Despite losing their top swinger, Bill Wittenberg, the Willamette University golf team had a fine season under their new coach, Jerry Frei. Lettermen Dick Church, Kent Myers, Ellis Von Eschen and Ken Baines, with newcomers Jim Gilliland and Jack Baker, formed the Bearcat squad after Wittenberg had dislocated his left shoulder in an intramural softball game. Coach Frei's linksters should have another good year ahead of them, as the injured Wittenberg was the only Senior on the squad.

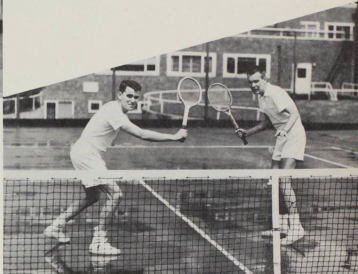

Ken Baines lines up a shot as Dick Church and Ellis Von Eschen await their turn.

Tennis

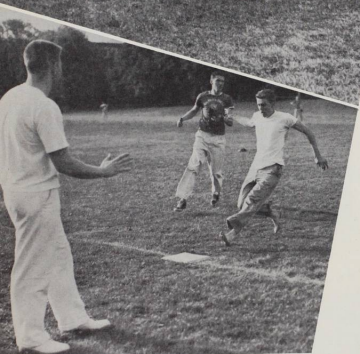

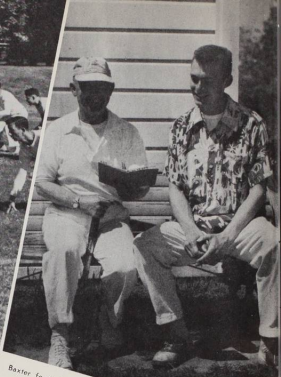

The Willamette tennis team under the coaching of Les Sparks turned in another outstanding season and will be the ones to beat next year. Chuck Carter, number one man on this year's outfit, will be back again next season. The Butler twins, Rich and Ron, Jim Morgali, George Watts, and Ian McIver will also be on hand. The only letterman from this year's squad lost by graduation will be John Ambler. At Wallulah press time the 'Cat netters had yet to taste defeat in three years of conference play.

Intramurals

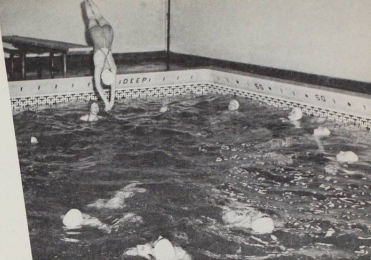

Willamette's strong intramural program witnessed another fine year. Under the administration of Les Sparks, ably assisted by Dick Mase and the 'Mural Council, a host of students were given an opportunity to participate in the various activities. At the time of Wallulah publication the Wits are in the lead for the Intramural Plaque, awarded each year to the organization with the highest total points accumulated during the year.

Ralph Richardson holds up at third as Dick Boynton moves in during a Sigma Chi - Phi Delta contest.

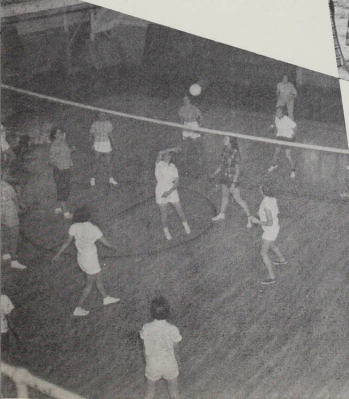

Swimming is included in the well-rounded girls' athletic program.

Women's Sports

Both intramural and intercollegiate sports highlighted Willamette women's physical education program. The coeds enjoyed well-rounded activities which emphasized fundamentals as well as competition in such sports as volley ball, archery, tennis, swimming, and softball. Gail Currey and Phyllis Goakey were faculty leaders for the program.

Bishop

The eleven girls residing in Bishop House across the park live together in a friendly and intimate atmosphere. Although they eat their meals in the cafeteria at Lausanne, they yet maintain a close association in their quaint old house. This year they joined with the girls of Lausanne for firesides and carolling with the fraternities, but they held their own fireside for Religious Emphasis Week. True, the girls form too small a group to have many activities by themselves, but they join enthusiastically in campus activities. They displayed their high spirits in the spring when they presented a dance named "Le Club St. Germain Des Pres." This was a costume dance which had its decorations centered around the life in a French cafe.

"The Loveliest Night of the Year," Lausanne Hall's spring dance, offered a welcome occasion to spend a relaxing evening of dancing for the dorm girls and their dates.

The Lausanne and Bishop girls treat their dates to romantic dancing in the aquatic atmosphere of "Whirlpool".

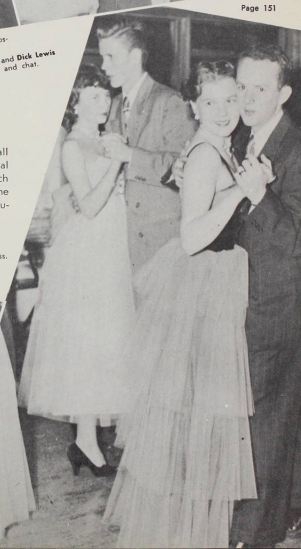

Skip Faucette, Pat Gentle, Kay Kramer, and Dick Lewis take time out from dancing to relax and chat.

Interdorm Formal

Caught in the spell of the "Whirlpool", the women of Lausanne Hall and Bishop Manor and their escorts danced at the Interdorm Formal amidst the fishermen's nets, row boats, and pastel murals which adorned the Izaak Walton Hall on October 17. Music provided by the Arnie Manke Orchestra enhanced the enjoyable dancing of the students in the undersea atmosphere.

D'Anne Manor and Ron Nicoll seem to agree that the evening is a success.

The band of Arnie Manke provided the music for the annual Interdorm Formal on October 17.

Afternoon often finds a cozy group of Lausanne girls gathered in the lounge, where they discuss the latest campus gossip.

Lausanne Hall

Lausanne Hall holds a special place in the memories of Willamette women, for most of them have made this their home during their Freshman year. During this time, they make inseparable friendships which they keep through all their college days whether they live in a Greek living organization or whether they continue to live at Lausanne as independent women. The girls worked especially hard this year on the Homecoming sign and their efforts were well rewarded, for they won first place in the contest. Following this big event, the fall formal, "Whirlpool," was held at Izaak Walton Hall. The hall was decorated as a veritable whirlpool of fish and nets. The girls in Lausanne Hall followed the example of the other living organizations as they held their firesides and Christmas carolling with the men's groups. They ran their social agenda differently this year, and held a spring dance also. Named "The Loveliest Night of the Year," the dance ushered in the spring theme with cotton dresses and a summery atmosphere.

With another day of school activities behind them, the Alpha Chis sit down to a leisurely evening meal.

Alpha Chi Omega

In their new home for the second year, the Alpha Chis had a full round of social and academic activities. Their fall social calendar was highlighted by the fall formal dance, "Pink Champagne." This successful dance, featuring decorations done in pink, emphasized a light and starry atmosphere. Another outstanding fall affair was the tea honoring their new housemother. Besides joining with a fraternity for the annual Christmas carolling during the Christmas season, the Alpha Chis found time to hold a party for a group of blind school children. Their industrious studying paid off this fall as they won back the trophy for scholarship. Following spring vacation, the Alpha Chis were found busy with school functions and studying for final exams. Before exams started, however, they held their spring house dance, "Cotton Ball," which brought to a close the year's activities.

Chi Omega

The Chi Omegas got their fall social wheel rolling early by presenting the fall house dance, "Beaux Arts Ball." The members and their dates thoroughly enjoyed the costume dance which drew its theme from the movie "An American in Paris." The Christmas season was a busy one for the Chi O's. Before the holidays, they joined with the Phi Deltas to carol for people less fortunate than themselves. In March they continued with social activities by presenting a tea for their parents and alums. The traditional Eleusinia banquets were held twice a year and the spring one, held in Portland, was especially anticipated by the Chi Omegas. Before summer vacation interrupted school affairs, the Chi O's held their annual spring formal in late May.

As far as the DG's are concerned, nothing is so refreshing after a hard day at school as a quick game of softball before dinner.

Delta Gamma

After a summer of many varied activities, the DG's turned their attention to thoughts of Willemette and their Delta Gamma home. Their fall formal house dance, "Fantasma," started off their year's social whirl with a mysterious and eerie mood. The Halloween serenade to Baxter and the fraternities was a highlight of the fall's activities. The Christmas season brought with it the usual round of carolling as well as a Christmas tree decorating party and the Senior Christmas party. For their national project of sight conservation, the DG's entertained children at the blind school on Saturday mornings and trained a group of the children in baton twirling. In May, they worked hard to make a success their province conference, which was held at their chapter. The year was brought to a fitting climax with their spring house dance two weeks before summer vacation.

A group of Pi Phi's retire to the solarium for relaxation and a lively card game.

Pi Beta Phi

Last fall, Rush Week in the newly redecorated house of the Pi Phi's brought them a large class of wonderful pledges. After the first few weeks of school, they honored their new housemother with a tea. Following this, their house dance, "Odd Ball," which had an emphasis on the modernistic, was staged. This costume ball was hailed as a very successful occasion and one that will be remembered with happy memories for a long while by the Pi Phis and their dates. In November, the Willamette chapter of Pi Beta Phi was honored with a visit from their province president. For their Christmas carolling, they joined in singing with the SAE's. The Pi Phi's opened up the round of spring house dances with their formal "Paradise in Ploids." May Weekend was an especially big weekend for this house as their lovely Dona Mears was voted to rule as Queen of the May festivities.

Helen Callaghan and Tom Larson, Coralie Doughton and Rollie Bliss proved that anything goes at the "Pi Phi Odd-Ball", held on Halloween.

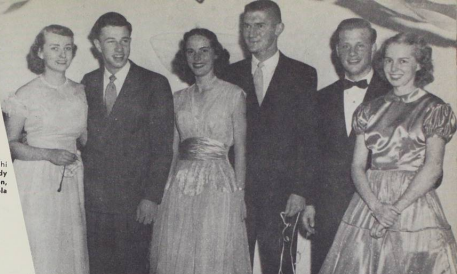

The D G's "Fantasma" provided a mystical atmosphere for dancing at their fall formal.

Panhellenic Council

The purpose of the Panhellenic Council is to coordinate activities of the four sororities and promote better understanding between them. The council is concerned with such problems as methods of rushing and the quota system for sororities. Through this group plans were made for the all-sorority participation in the lily sale for crippled children.

Inter-Fraternity Council

Members of the Inter-Fraternity Council represent each of the four fraternities as they meet to discuss problems arising between the fraternities and in their relation to the faculty. To this council goes much of the credit for maintaining the well-run fraternity system on the Willamette campus.

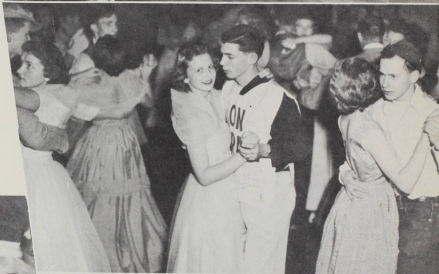

Members of the Inter-Fraternity Council are Mark Hatfield, advisor; Laurie Peterson, Ken Cooper, Tom Schrock, Bob Packwood, Dick Mercer, Milton McDowell, Tom Edwards and Neal Wineman.

An outstanding event of the fall season is the traditional Sigma Chi Sweetheart Dance, which this year honored lovely Sweetheart Joyce Karn and her court.

Duane Alvord and Helen Long take time out at the "Baxter Big Top Hop" to pose before the Tunnel of Love.

Baxter Hall held their annual formal in the fall this year and a suitable setting was provided by Charlie Nee's band.

In the sophisticated atmosphere of "Penthouse Serenade," the men of Baxter royally entertain their dates.

Donna Knox, Don Hobson, Bill LaFollette, and Margie Allen stop by the refreshment bar for a moment of leisure during the Baxter fall dance.

Baxter Hall

The Independent Men of Baxter Hall occupy the center section of the modern housing unit for the men's living organization. Here they spent an active year full of social affairs, intramural sports, and study. Their fall dance, "Penthouse Serenade," was a highly successful formal event. Continuing with their activities, they serenaded for Christmas with the Delta Gammas. The men of Baxter Hall are constantly on the lookout for ways in which to improve their surroundings. This year they were fortunate to purchase a television set which is heartily enjoyed by the men. After spring vacation, they began work on their spring dance, which was called "Baxter Big Top Hop." True to its theme, it was an informal dance with a circus motif. Before final exams engulfed their time and energy, the men spent a day at the coast on their beach trip.

A standard pastime for any college man is eating, as is clearly exemplified by these four Betas, Layton Gilson, Dick Drake, Bob Alfred, and Dale Gustafson, who gather around their house's ice cream machine.

Beta Theta Pi

The Betas continued to maintain a good balance between a full year of studying and an active social calendar this year. Their social calendar opened with their fall house dance, "Beta Coal Town," an unusual dance which featured the men in coal miner's clothes and their dates in formals. As proof of their academic interest, the house took first place in scholarship for the fall semester. They were also honored when their sixteen-man chorus took first place at their district conclave in February. In addition, the Betas had pledge projects through which each weekend a group of the pledges forsook their house duties to work for handicapped people. "Tropical Tradewinds" was the name of the spring dinner dance at which the couples fell into the mood of a summer cruise to the tropics. An alumni banquet was held in April with members, high school guests, and alums attending. Their year was brought to a successful close with a day's trip to the coast.

The men of Beta Theta Pi honor one of their sweethearts with a surprise midnight serenade before Lausanne Hall.

Music and relaxation are the order of the day for this study-weary group of Phi Deltas, Bill Hagmeyer, Lefty Shields, Pete Reed, Bryon Sittser, Jerry McCallister, Laurie Peterson, and Neal Wineman.

Phi Delta Theta

The Phi Deltas started of their year of social activities with their fall house dance, Pig Alle, which followed a French theme. This costume dance featured lavish decorations, and a Phi Delta mug was given to each girl as a remembrance of the dance. At Homecoming the Phi Deltas placed second in the sign contest. Before the members disbanded for the long-anticipated Christmas vacation, they held a party for a group of underprivileged children, and also had their Christmas carolling with the Chi Omegas. As a highlight of the spring social calendar, they held their formal house dance, "Springtime." For one last fling before finals, Phi Deltas and their dates had a trip to the beach.

Sigma Alpha Epsilon

The SAE's started off their activity-packed year with the traditional firesides, serenades, and the ever-present studies. In October they honored their new housemother with a tea. This event was followed closely by Homecoming, at which time they took first place in the sign contest. Their fall formal dance, "Winter Wonderland," ushered in the Christmas season gaily as the decorations transformed their fraternity wing into a fairyland of ice and snow. When Christmas approached, the SAE's held their annual Christmas party when each member bought a toy which the chapter turned over to the fire department to distribute among needy children. Their project for the year was the adoption of a European orphan whom they supported with food and clothing. The SAE's held their spring formal, "Violet Dreamland," in April, and followed this Saturday night of dancing with a beach trip to the coast on the following Sunday.

Sigma Chi

Attention was focused from all the campus on the Sigma Chis in the fall as they held their annual Sweetheart of Sigma Chi contest. The contest finally culminated in the annual presentation of the "Sweetheart Ball" which featured the naming of their 1952 Sweetheart. The Willamette chapter of Sigma Chi was honored at their province conference by winning one trophy for being the outstanding chapter in the province and another for winning the songfest. The Sigs, however, did not neglect their service projects in the excitement, for they adopted a German orphan under the foster parent plan. Spring brought with it a packed schedule of social events. One of these was the Mother-Son Dinner held at the chapter house and attended by a large group of the Sigs and their mothers. The spring semester ended at a rapid pace with a spring barn dance and the annual beach trip.

A group of Sigma Chi men settle themselves in the basement to view the latest television show.
