orientation camp

Busloads of over one hundred enthusiastic freshmen converged at Silver Creek Falls State Park for a three-day pre-orientation session. Faculty, upperclassmen and YMCA leaders were soon involved with the freshmen in work, play and serious thought. "It isn't so much what they learn in these discussions," said Chaplain Cal McConnell, "the important thing is that the new students are stimulated to think of college in intellectual terms." The second annual camp initiated many college careers with new friends. new thoughts and new concerns.

registration

Twice a year the process must be faced by Willamette students. Each time it brings back memories to those who have endured it before, and it brings unlimited confusion to those facing it for the first time. The lines appear everywhere that students seek signatures, pay fees and buy textbooks. With a record enrollment of 1441 this past year, the complicated process ran as tediously as expected.

devil and daniel webster

The combined efforts of the drama and music departments brought forth Douglas Moore's operatic production taken from the story by Stephen Vincent Benet. With song and speech, the cast portrayed the oratorical efforts of Webster to save Mr. Stone, a farmer and senator, who sold his soul to the Devil for a prosperous farm. The successful production was the first musical show to be offered at Willamette in the last several years.

parents weekend

More than six hundred parents were on campus to make this the most successful weekend ever held at Willamette. Friday evening was climaxed with the Varsity Varieties student talent show "Let Me Entertain You." Saturday activities were highlighted by the dedication of the Mark Hatfield Rose Garden, the afternoon football game with Pacific University, and the evening All Campus Sing. Faculty-parent discussion groups and a briefing on life at Willamette provided the visitors with an insight into student life. Overall, happiness was apparent.

football

Youth predominated Coach Ted Ogdahl's 1963 Bearcat team. Of the forty-three squad members surviving the final cut, only six could show upper class credentials. The remaining fourteen sophomores and twenty-three frosh on the squad found themselves playing the unusual role of rookie regulars. Nonetheless, the determined Bearcats performed admirably, if somewhat timidly, in compiling a 3-5 season record in the Northwest Conference. With only four lettermen graduating, the Bearcats can look forward to next season with a more experienced line and an equally fast backfield relative to this year's squad. Completing his twelfth year as head coach, Ogdahl summed up the past season: "Overall it was our worst season since '55 in terms of wins and losses . . . it was the voungest team we've ever had . . . we're looking forward to next year.'

homecoming

A spirited homecoming started off with a tone of tradition and rovalty. Initiated at dawn on Friday by the Leaf Rake, activities continued with the frosh bonfire, a barbecue in the gym, and various alumni gatherings. Oueen Kareen Zumwalt, with Princesses Joyce Caster and Arlene Heringer, hosted the weekend. Excitement generated by inter-class rivalry at the football game was tempered later by the annual dance at the Marion Hotel. For some, homecoming was participation and action; for others, it was reunion and reminiscence.

misalliance

In late fall the Willamette Players presented George Bernard Shaw's family comedy concerning middle class family misalliances, set in England during the summer of 1910. The play, student directed by Molly Staples, involves parent-child relationships and ably displays the technique Shaw makes with little effort to disguise the ideas that he presents in this high comedy of what makes a family run.

winter carnival

On a Monday morning late in February some sixty Willamette students returned to campus following an exciting weekend of sking in Bend, Oregon. Willamette seniorCorky Demler brought fame to herself and her school by being crowned Carnival Queen from a field of seventeen contestants representing schools throughout the Northwest. This annual carnival, sponsored by Portland State College, this year with over four thousand participants, is the largest intercollegiate ski event in the West.

basketball

Under Coach John Lewis the 1963-64 Bearcat basketballers compiled a 7-3 pre-season record. Northwest Conference competition proved a little tougher, however, as the Jasons were able only to muster double wins over Pacific and a single victory at the expense of Whitman. The remaining twelve conference games found the Bearcats on the short end of the scoreboard. High point players for Willamette were Spike Moore, Pete Slabaugh and Lyle Smith respectively. Smith, a junior, was also the leading rebounder on the squad. With only three lettermen graduating, next season should prove to be more successful for the Willamette cagers.

glee

One full week of singing and marching was climaxed with each class entering the gym Saturday night confident that they would carry away the fifty-sixth annual glee banner. This year's glee, with the theme "Serenade," was dedicated to Melvin H. Geist, the Music School Dean for twenty-five years. Glee manager Larry Hillhouse welcomed the spirited audience to witness Willamette's unique tradition of songfest rivalry. Professor Danlonged monologue in announcing that the sophomores were third, the juniors second and that the freshmen had captured the coveted prize. Thus the seniors would cross the Mill Stream for the second straight year.

aws carnival

Each year the Associated Women Students on campus present a fund-raising carnival. The various living groups set up booths in the Matthews Hall basement ranging anywhere from food to music. All proceeds from the event are given to the American Cancer Society for additional research of the disease. This year's carnival was climaxed with the selection of Joe McClure as Ugly Man.

wingless victory

Maxwell Anderson's tragedy of racial bigotry in New England of 1800 set the theme for the Willamette Players' first offering of the spring semester. This production provided an example of drama in poetry — a relatively little used form in contemporary the atre. Through a deep understanding of the human mind and spirit, Anderson transposed the ancient legend of Medea into a modern situation.

baseball

The 1964 Bearcat diamondmen compiled an 11-16 season record, including eight wins and seven losses in Northwest Conference action. Climaxing the season, four of the Willamette regulars were selected for the All-Conference team. They included outfielder Bill Phegley, shortstop Steve Peglow, second baseman Jeff Topping and pitcher Loren Whittaker. Next season's team promises to be more experienced as Coach John Lewis loses only three of this year's squad to graduation.

track

Coach Ted Ogdahl's trackmen completed the 1964 season with a 3-3 overall record and a fourth place conference finish. Senior Denny Charlton garnered first place in the discus at the conference meet. At the NAIA District II meet, junior Bob Burles set a new record in the 440 yard intermediate hurdles and qualified for the national NAIA meet and for the Olympic trials. Lack of depth kept the cindermen out of championship contention, a problem which Coach Ogdahl hopes to remedy next year.

golf

This year's golf team had another successful season. Led by Alan Hudspeth, Mike Alley, and Gary Childs, the divoters compiled an 11-4 season record, followed by a perfect 6-0 record in conference matches. At the conference championships, Linfield surprised everyone by upsetting the Bearcats for the team title, with Willamette finishing second.

tennis

The 1964 Willamette netmen tied with Lewis and Clark for second place in the Northwest conference behind co-champions Whitman and Pacific. In six conference matches the Bearcats won three and lost two, along with one rainout. Senior comps and orals prevented four veteran netmen from competing until May. According to Coach Lestle Sparks, had the season been a month longer things would have looked much different. "Overall, the boys did well considering the weather and circumstances."

may weekend The first weekend of May gave

Willamette students a chance to forget their studies and 130 high school seniors the opportunity to get a quick glimpse of the campus to which they will be coming next fall. Oueen Patti Hull officiated at the memorial tree planting cere mony for Richard Kerr in front of the library. The queen's coronation followed on the quadrangle with all its pageantry and tradition highlighted by the Heralders and the Maypole dance by the freshmen women. Early morning serenades to the living organizations ended the festivities, leaving upperclassmen to reflect on the memories of their college careers and the high school seniors to conjure up visions of their hectic college days still

midsummer night's dream

That "no play ever contained in one entity such a rare combination of raucous low comedy, lyrical high comedy and soaring fantasy" were the words of director Robert Putnam for the Willamette Players final production of the year. The large cast of twenty-seven performed this special 400 anniversary tribute to Shakespeare's birth over May Weekend to the largest audience of the season. Drawing its theme from popular Greek legend and poetry, the production incorporates a corps of classical dancers, original choreography, musical recordings and madrigal singers, specially designed and tailored costumes, and elaborate use of lighting for mood and scene change.

mock convention

After three months of preparation, Willamette's mock political convention became the major topic of discussion on campus the second weekend of May. Under the leadership and organization of Ed Cole. Chuck Flynn and Dave Foote, over three hundred students from nineteen Washington and Oregon colleges participated. Representative John Dellenback of Medford acted as permanent chairman with the concluding nominations of Pennsylvania's William Scranton and Oregon's Mark Hatfield as the mock presidential slate of candidates. Overall and with representation from Willamette of more than one hundred delegates, the convention served to demonstrate in action the workings of one of the most involved functions of American politics. By tradition, the mock conventions are always of the party out of power in Washington, this year the Republicans.

president's review

Late in May the Reserve Officers Training Corps presented their annual inspection and review at McCulloch Stadium. Here medals and certificates were presented to outstanding cadets in the Willamette program. In addition, the Angel Flight presented their competition award-winning drill sequence and were led by this year's Little Colonel, Ann Paulsen, who was chosen earlier in the semester by the Arnold Air Society at their Military Ball.

music

Auditions, rehearsals and group planning were the primary components which kept the music department busy during the first weeks of school.

Singing in chapel and presenting local concerts comprised the experiences of the sixty-one member University Choir. Again this year, the annual spring tour through Oregon, Idaho and Montana highlighted the group's schedule of events.

Acting as a vital spirit booster, the University Band has performed at football and basketball games. The band also entertained at Varsity Varieties, the President's Review and the Mock Political Convention.

The Willamette University Community Orchestra consists of fifty players of which half are students and the remainder are amateurs of Salem. The orchestra gave students an opportunity to enjoy three excellent concerts during the year, in addition to productions of The Devil and Daniel Webster, Yaughn Williams' "Serenade to Music" and a Christmas Vespers program.

distinguished artists

Through the work and effort of Willamette's two music fraternities, a great variety and multitude of talent in the performing arts filled the Fine Arts Auditorium at numerous times during the school vear. Ranging from the enduring themes of Bach by the Student Madrigal Choir of Germany to the established voice of Broadway actress Agnes Moorehead, and from the unflagging rhythm of the Jose Melina dancing troupe to the versatility of the Porgy and Bess Singers, the Distinguished Artists Series presented the perfected arts of many cultures to all who would listen and see.

convocations

Throughout the academic year at Willamette outstanding speakers and performers are brought on campus to talk and discuss with students and faculty the relation of their specialized fields as they pertain to those we are currently studying.

Luther Jerstad, University of Oregon instructor and one of four Americans to scale the world's largest peak, described to an intent audience of how "climbing to the summit of Mount Everest is like standing on the precipice between life and death."

Second speaker in the Atkinson lecture series was the Honorable Brooks Hays, special assistant to President Kennedy, who spoke on "fulfilling America's faith," and obtaining "a complete and generous education."

Dr. Alfred Stone, of the University Lutheran Church in Seattle, was Christian Resource Week speaker and informal seminar leader on the theme of the Bible's source, content and authority.

With his song rendition of "when you're smilin, the whole world smiles with you...", began comedian Jerry Gosley's entertaining Smile Show with numerous takeoffs on established British impressions by Americans.

With characteristic humility, William Stafford, northwest poet and professor at Lewis and Clark College, addressed students in convocation on the role of artist and at an evening session read from his published works.

Dr. Leonard Freedman, author, editor and lecturer, spoke out on the "case for the liberal arts."

Dr. Ralph Lapp, nuclear physics and first speaker in the ninth annual Atkinson lecture series, explained to students that "there is a limit to how far man can go physically into space, but there is no limit as to how far he can send his intelligence."

Lebanese counselor in North America, Hassan Saab, addressed students on the international outlook in the Near East.

Dr. Alan Watts, considered by many as the Western authority on Eastern philosophy and Zen, spoke to students informally at convocation, in classrooms, and at seminars and discussions around campus.

The Wayfarers, a popular folksinging quartet, although scheduled in conflict with the evening session of poet Stafford, managed to produce a lively program of music before a spirited and approving Fine Arts audience.

student senate

Willamette's student senate serves a dual purpose - the members receive an on-the-job education while the student body, hopefully, is well represented. This year's senate conducted student elections. authorized the mock convention. planned a temporary student center, and governed Willamette student life according to their delegated powers. Looking back over the past year, senate members could be satisfied with the progress of the task to which they have contributed and passed forward to their successors.

The Associated Women Students is a self-governing organization that promotes and develops leadership of campus women, by compiling women's standards and representing women students on the campus.

The Inter-fraternity Council, whose membership is comprised of the President and Rush Chairman from each of the fraternities, were primarily concerned with the instigation of deferred rush rules and coordinated the activities conduct among the groups.

The Panhellenic Council, with two representatives from each sorority on campus, met weekly with the Dean of Women to discuss mutual problems and encourage improved standards, scholarship, campus activities and inter-sorority functions.

This past year student publications continued to provide the university with coverage of the campus community. Under the editorship of Gerry Bill, the Collegian kept the students informed with news and comments of current campus events. The newspaper provided the training ground for persons interested in editorial writing and news compiling. The Wallulah staff with editor Mike Keuss spent their efforts in producing the annual coverage of campus life through the creation of a more photographic format into the yearbook.

organizations

People to People is part of a nationwide student oriented and operated program to bring peoples of the world together in friendship and understanding of each other's culture and way of life.

Members of the Student Education Association gather together for discussions concerning their interests in making teaching a career.

Physical Education Club members plan monthly activities which encourage leadership and understanding, and enrich their program of study through fellowship, recreation and education.

Members of Religious Life Council meet to discuss their role and task as the living organization chaplains.

The Lutheran Student Association met weekly at noon luncheons in the YWCA basement for discussion programs and speakers.

During the year, members of Newman Club attempt to supply a guiding informative atmosphere for the student by directing his activities in the religious, educational and social phases.

The Christian Science organization has been active throughout the year by both holding meetings and maintaining a library for students in Waller Hall.

Probing discussions and fellowship were the objectives that Canterbury concentrated on during the year.

As an interdenominational group the Methodist Student Movement has concentrated on promoting Christian fellowship through campus encounter groups, evening discussions and ecumenical conversations.

Members of the Young Men's Christian Association gather for dinner and fellowship, and to promote the solution of general student and campus needs.

The campus Young Women's Christian Association provides opportunities for every college woman to increase her awareness of the value of Christian living through participation in programs offered on the campus, in work projects and in study groups.

Members of the Young Republicans are actively involved in state politics and sent one of the strongest delegations to participate at the State College League Convention in Portland last April.

"In rainy days children sit at the window Wondering at the wetness of winter Colossal dark beauties fill their eyes . Shading their warm dreams from a mothered Shelter. The fivesides of these lazy days Lie in the deep of their minds The innocence of being inside. Symphonic calms mesmerize their thoughts The anguish of thinking unrealized In their smilt slumber

Ages change and soon the child Will lose his wonders and his mothers To depart these bedtime fantasias and Walk through the door Out into the steady rains

Child will you still wonder at the wetness Or do you already wear a raincoat To savey days elibbries are of the country.
