PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE: THE EXPEDITION

September 4, 1986 was one of the most memorable days I have had as President of Willamette University. There have been many days in my six years at Willamette when I have experienced great pride in the University, but few compare to the historic day when we dedicated our new Mark O. Hatfield Library.

September 4 was a celebration not only of the opening of a new University library, but also of the completion of a major effort by this institution throughout the 1985-1986 year to advance the frontiers of learning for our students. In this regard, September 4 was a celebration of what began at Willamette University more than 144 years ago.

Christian pioneers who had come to settle the Oregon Country met on February 1, 1842, and established a "collegiate institution" which was intended to "become a university." The institution was known as the Oregon Institute for ten years. Then, recognizing the need to advance the frontiers of learning, the Council of the Territorial Legislature of Oregon passed a bill on January 12, 1853, that gave life to Willamette University, the pioneer university of the West. The text of the bill, in part, reads as follows:

An Act To Establish the Wallamet University

Whereas the happiness and prosperity of every community (under the direction and government of divine Providence) depend in an eminent degree on the right education of the youth who must succeed the aged in the important offices of society, and the principles of virtue and elements of liberal knowledge fostered and imparted in the higher institutions of learning tend to develop a people in those qualifications more essential to their present welfare and future advancement . . . Be it enacted by the Legislative Assembly of the Territory of Oregon that there shall be established in the Town of Salem in the county of Marion, a university to be called the Wallamet University . . .

Willamette University is indeed a pioneer university that was borne out of the vision and the courage of pioneers in the Oregon Country. Willamette's new University library, with its automated catalog system and its archives (that serves as the depository of papers from throughout Mark Hatfield's career), is a reminder that this institution continues to be a pioneer university. And our mission remains the same as that of our predecessors 144 years ago – to expand the minds and the horizons of our students by introducing them to frontiers of learning that are new for them.

This annual report is an attempt to give an overview of the 1985-1986 year at Willamette University. In sharing this overview with you, I believe you will come in contact with the variety of ways in which Willamette University students can become explorers of ideas and information along their expedition of learning.

To show how our students are pioneers exploring the frontiers of learning is only part of the story, though. The rest of the story involves charted expeditions, people who lead these expeditions, institutional resources to support expeditions and people who finance expeditions.

We live in a time when most people do not think in terms of frontiers that remain to be conquered. Many are fascinated with extra-terrestrial adventures "to boldly go where no man has gone before," but few recognize the never-ending frontier of learning that awaits the explorer of the mind. My thanks to the trustees, faculty, administrators, staff members, alumni and friends who make this exploration possible for Willamette's students.

James E. Hudson

STUDENTS: THE EXPLORERS

Willamette University's mission today is the same as 144 years ago – to expand the minds and the horizons of our students by introducing them to frontiers of learning that are new for them. Our students are modern day explorers in search of new adventures, enriching experiences, survival skills, knowledge, truth and wisdom.

Willamette enrolled 1,940 student explorers in the Fall of 1985, the highest enrollment level in the University's history! While the number of students who took part in the graduate expeditions of law and of management was comparable to past years, the number of students who signed up for the undergraduate expedition of the liberal arts showed a healthy increase.

There were 1,409 student explorers who enrolled in the College of Liberal Arts for Fall, 1985. And for the second year in a row, the quantity and quality of the freshmen explorers added measurably to the quantity and quality of the entire undergraduate college.

There were 418 entering freshmen in 1985. Fifty-two percent of the entering class graduated in the top 10 percent of their high school class, with 30 freshmen being high school valedictorians and 10 being salutatorians. There were 24 National Merit Finalists in the class, compared to 17 in 1984 and three in 1983. And the average SAT score of entering freshmen was 1120, 50 points higher than in 1984 and 130 points higher than in 1983.

The University's student explorers in 1985 came well equipped to conquer new academic frontiers in the College of Liberal Arts, the College of Law and the Atkinson Graduate School of Management. And many of these students achieved honors in the midst of their personal expeditons. Among these were:

STUDENT HONORS

Eric Anderson: 1986 K/P Companies Scholarship.

Martha Bennett: Fourth Place Award at National Lincoln-Douglas Debate Tournament.

Ted Chester and David Daniel: Second place, regional client counseling competition.

Brian Cole: Completed for the Salem City Club, "A Comparative Study of Economic Development Activities in Salem, Albany, Corvallis and Eugene"; selected for summer internship with the Oregon Economic Development Department.

Paul Cummings: American Chemical Society/Portland Section Scholarship.

Innocent Enemuo, Debbie Lenox, Julie Stream, Mike Leiter, Nick Michael and Kenn Sakamoto conducted the research for a Salem-Keizer Business Retention Survey directed by Portland General Electric and sponsored by the Salem Chamber of Commerce, the Salem Economic Development Corporation and the cities of Salem and Keizer.

Thomas Eubanks: Summer Undergraduate Research Program in solid state chemistry, Brown University.

Risa Hall: Appointed student member of the American Bar Association Dispute Resolution Committee.

Ruben Herrera: Traveled to the Philippines on a two-week fact-finding mission for the Ecumenical Council on Human Rights.

Timothy Meehan: Graduate assistantship in chemistry, University of Hawaii.

Sandra Pennington: Full scholarship and graduate assistantship, Baylor College of Medicine Ph.D. Program in Biochemistry.

Karyn Phillips: Represented the state of Oregon at the 113th Annual National Contest of the Interstate Oratorical Association.

Rose Thiehse: Graduate instructorship in chemistry, Purdue University.

Richard Torquato: Fellowship in psychology, University of North Carolina.

Michael Villanueva: Graduate fellowship in psychology, Baylor University.

Jeremy Vogler: Fellowship in advanced Japanese language, Tokyo International University.

Katharine Wolf: Selected for the U.S. government's Presidential Management Internship Program and appointed resource analyst for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

The University awarded 444 degrees during the 1985-86 year to student explorers who successfully completed their academic expeditions at Willamette: 261 bachelor's degrees, 55 Master of Management degrees and 128 Doctor of Jurisprudence degrees. The 436 graduates of the Class of 1986 represented by these figures now join 14,000 others who are Willamette alumni.

In addition to the degrees listed above, Willamette proudly presented two honorary degrees to deserving alumni of the University. Thomas A. Bartlett (Class of 1951) received a Doctor of Laws degree and Fred H. Paulus (Law Class of 1926) received a Doctor of Public Service degree. These graduates have had exemplary careers in the fields of higher education and public finance, respectively, and serve as models for the Class of 1986 of Willamette graduates who have used their education for the good of society. It is with great anticipation that Willamette awaits news of the ways in which its most recent graduate explorers will enrich our society on their new expeditions, exploring frontiers that await them in graduate school, in jobs or elsewhere.

PROGRAMS: THE FRONTIER

Through its curricular, co-curricular and extracurricular programs, Willamette University provided the intellectual terrain for expeditions of learning in 1985-86.

As College of Liberal Arts students set out to explore the world of ideas and information, they found solid footing – and a framework for future learning – in Willamette's General Education Program. Implemented in 1981, the Program proved itself to be more than a requirement that students pursue studies outside their own majors; it proved to be a valuable tool for student explorers charting courses within and across disciplinary boundaries.

Using the General Education Program guideposts, students explored the Fine Arts, Humanities, Literature, Natural Sciences and Social Sciences, acquiring knowledge central to several disciplines and the background and analytical abilities necessary to launch further inquiry.

Having traversed various disciplines, upper level students forged ahead to areas less charted and affording greater opportunity for creative exploration. Using a vehicle underwritten by funding from the National Endowment for the Humanities – the vehicle of integrative, team-taught, interdisciplinary seminars – students grappled with issues fundamental to life and learning in the 20th Century.

In one such sequence, students and faculty devoted a year to exploring "The Nature of Inquiry." Another year-long sequence examined "Tradition" in three interdisciplinary seminars – "Language and the American Tradition," "The Idea of Progress" and "Visions of an Ideal World" – team-taught by professors of speech, religion, economics, environmental science, history and English.

Participants in Willamette's pioneering interdisciplinary programs found themselves on the very frontier of humanities inquiry. For students and faculty alike, the process of discovery proved exhilarating. One faculty participant echoed the enthusiasm of others when he called the program "the most interesting educational experiment" of his career.

Innovative, dynamic, risky – in the sense that faculty members abandoned traditional professorial roles to become partners in the exploration of ideas – the College of Liberal Arts' team-taught, interdisciplinary program was but one of the significant ways in which Willamette augmented its general educational offerings in 1985-86. Other educational expeditions were conducted throughout the year by students and faculty at all three colleges.

■ The College of Liberal Arts continued to extend the frontiers of its internship program, finding virtually unlimited potential for students desiring hands-on experience in their career fields. Because of Willamette's proximity to, and rapport with, the State Capitol, Salem area businesses and government agencies, the University was able to offer professional opportunities to students of political science, psychology, economics and other disciplines.

■ Turning to the East, Willamette expanded the international dimension of education in 1985-86. New relationships unfolded with universities in the People's Republic of China and in South Korea. And a pioneering relationship, between Willamette University and Tokyo International University, entered its 21st year amid anniversary celebrations on both sides of the Pacific.

Academic exchange was formally initiated with Xiamen University as three Chinese scholars arrived for a year of research and teaching at Willamette, and as two separate expeditions made their way from Willamette to Xiamen. Economics Professor Tom Hibbard took an 18-member student/faculty group to Xiamen, thereby cementing the tie between the sister universities. Under a program jointly sponsored by Willamette and Xiamen, Atkinson Assistant Dean Forrest Rodgers took a group of American business people to China to explore U.S. trade and investment opportunities.

■ As new friendships developed on the eastern front, significant new dimensions were added to old friendships. Willamette and Tokyo International University established the Joint Institutional Research Program and, in so doing, broadened the horizons of future explorers of international issues and ideas.

■ The Atkinson School, under the leadership of a new dean, Dr. David L. Puryear, stepped out boldly in 1985-86, assuming an educational leadership role in the areas of regional economic planning, statewide economic development and international trade development. The school sponsored such significant regional events as: the Oregon Futures Conference; the International Trade Institute; and the annual Conference on Entrepreneurship.

■ The College of Law continued to blaze new educational territory through its trend-setting Center for Dispute Resolution. New clinical programs – such as the "Neighbor-to-Neighbor" program, offering dispute resolution services at the neighborhood level, and the Criminal Dispute Resolution Clinic which resolves disputes between indigent clients and public agencies – offered students substantive practical experiences in a rapidly growing area of legal practice.

Inside the classroom and out, the University encouraged students to broaden their perspectives and to explore their world. Throughout the year, distinguished speakers and performers came to campus to express ideas through their art, their music, their scholarship, and their business insights. Guests of Willamette included such nationally and internationally recognized figures as jazz saxophonist Pete Christlieb, cellist David Finckel, pianist Richard Goode, Indian flutist G.S. Sachdev, recording artists Liz Storey and Michael Hedges, orchestra conductor James DePreist, former U.S. Secretary of the Interior Stewart Udall, former U.S. Environmental Protection Agency Administrator Anne Burford, business executives Billy C. Christensen of IBM World Trade Corp. and Alex Mandl of CSX Corp., scholars Michael Squires and Donal Halloran, Harvard Law School Professor Frank Sander and University of Wisconsin President Katharine Lyall.

Through films, lectures, exhibits and performances, students gained exposure to the expeditions of learning undertaken by others. Through such intercultural programs as the September exhibit of Chicano-Latino artists and the January China Symposium and performance of the Peking Acrobats, students reached beyond cultural barriers and touched a realm of thought and feeling outside their own experience.

Willamette students not only learned from the triumphs of others, but also learned from the myriad opportunities to explore the limits of their own abilities. Forensics students honed their skills by attending and competing in meets and conferences throughout the West. Music students performed a wide variety of musical literature, as members of various musical ensembles, in numerous locations. Both the Willamette University Band and the Willamette University Choir played to capacity audiences – in Salem, on Northwest tours, and as invited guests of the Oregon Music Educators.

Theatre students won critical praise for their performances in a season of plays ranging from Aristophanes' classic, "The Birds," to the Broadway hit, "The Fantasticks." And as 1985-86 drew to a close, the theatre department announced it would produce three plays as part of a new Willamette Summer Theatre program in Gold Beach, Oregon.

Additional opportunities for self-expression and exploration were provided Willamette students through athletic and intramural programs, student government, and clubs and organizations. Student groups planned a number of successful events throughout the year, including the Martin Luther King Dinner, the International Student Organization's Extravaganza, the Conference on Entrepreneurship and, of course, Freshman Glee.

Nearly one-fourth of Willamette's undergraduate student body participated in intercollegiate athletics in 1985-86. Six of the University's 17 varsity teams placed either first or second in the conference or district. Two members of the coaching staff, football coach Joe Broeker and baseball coach Bill Trenbeath, earned Coach of the Year honors in their districts. Twenty-four student athletes were selected for all-conference teams, 35 gained NAIA All-District II honors, 16 were named All-Americans and three placed on the Academic All-America roll.

FACULTY: LEADERS OF EXPEDITIONS

Willamette University's academic expeditions would not be possible without the leadership provided by its faculty. They are key to the exploration of ideas and information by Willamette's students because they see things that others do not see.

These specially equipped expedition leaders are the instruments through which Willamette's students are provided with what the great educator Alfred North Whitehead called "the habitual vision of greatness." It is through the faculty that our students are exposed to great characters, great ideas, and great accomplishments.

Faculty members obviously serve as leaders for student expeditions inside the classroom. But they often serve as expedition leaders outside the classroom as well. One such example is the Faculty in Residence Program, where faculty members make presentations within the residence halls. During 1985-86, this program provided faculty presentations on topics ranging from "Apartheid" to "Spiritualism and the Liberal Arts" to "AIDS and Its Ramifications in a Free Society" to "Oregon and Its Future."

Two faculty members who were exemplary expedition leaders both inside and outside the classroom during the 1985-86 academic year have been named Burlington Northern Foundation Faculty Achievement Award recipients. The two, who have received checks for $1,500, are Professor Frances Chapple from the College of Liberal Arts and Professor Michael Hand from the Atkinson Graduate School of Management.

Recipient Frances Chapple, Professor of Chemistry, is regarded by colleagues as a master teacher and dynamic lecturer, whose enthusiasm for her subject matter is infectious. One colleague has praised her as being able to "build bridges across disciplines with ease and sophistication." Dr. Chapple devotes considerable time and energy to individual students and to special study sessions outside class. She will soon have an article published in The Journal of Chemical Education.

Recipient Michael Hand, Professor of Applied Statistics and Information Systems, is highly regarded for his ability to make his subject fun and interesting. Known for his sense of humor, Dr. Hand is consistently evaluated by students as doing an exceptional job of teaching. And his colleagues summarize that advanced students are challenged at the same time that those with no background in the field are effectively led through the rigorous steps of learning.

These and other faculty members are compiling honors while serving as expedition leaders for our students. The following is a list of some of these honors.

FACULTY ACTIVITIES, HONORS, PUBLICATIONS

Stephen Archer: Received the Founder's Award of the Willamette Student Entrepreneurship Association; served as reviewer for Financial Analysts Journal; served on Task Force on Research and Graduate Program Standards, Northwest Association of Schools and Colleges; delivered frequent lectures to community groups; authored "Cost of Capital and State Regulation of Electric Utility Rates," for Public Policy Studies, Vol. 5.

Suresht Bald: Received Oregon Committee for the Humanities summer research fellowship; received Willamette National Endowment for the Humanities fellowship; published "From Satyartha Prakash to Manushi: An Overview of the 'Women's Movement' in India," in Social and Economic Development in India: A Reassessment, Sage Publications, 1986.

Amy Barlowe: Selected for fellowship to Bach Aria Festival, Stony Brook, N.Y.; served as concertmaster and soloist, Willamette Community Orchestra.

Martin Behnke: Received Oregon Arts Commission Individual Artist Fellowship Award to finance completion of "An Original Dance Suite," a major composition for band; had another original work, "Introduction and Trilogy for Winds and Percussion," selected for performance at the Western International Band Clinic; awarded contract with Columbia Pictures Publications for publishing vocal jazz arrangements.

Christina Brink: Published "Temperature Dependent Acid Dissociation Constants for some C-Aryl Hydroxamic Acids: The Influence of the C and N Substituents on Hydroxamate Anion Solvation in Aqueous Solution," in Journal of Organic Chemistry, 1985, with L.L. Fish and A.L. Crumbliss.

G. Marc Choate: Served as treasurer, Salem Hospital Board of Trustees; served as expert witness on fixed health care costs, for State Health Planning and Development Agency; delivered paper at 1986 Catholic Health Assembly, San Diego; served on Board of Editors, Health Progress, Journal of Catholic Health Care Association; published "The Financial Status of Catholic Hospitals: 1982-1983" in Health Progress, Jan.-Feb., 1986.

Catherine Collins: Presented professional paper, "Media Coverage of the Rajneeshees: A Dramatistic Analysis," before Northwest Communication Association; presented paper titled, "Public Relations as Strategic Redefinition: National Posturing in Grenada and the Falkland Islands," to International Communication Association; conducted negotiations seminar, with Randy Lowry, for Northwest Student Personnel Association, and communication skills and conflict management seminars for Salem Hospital.

Patrick Connor: Delivered paper, "Strategies for Managing Organizational Innovation," at Academy of Management annual meeting, San Diego; appointed to editorial board of IEEE Transactions on Engineering Management; served on editorial boards of Journal of Management and Academy of Management Review; served as regional consultant for State Farm Insurance Companies; authored Management, 5th ed., Houghton Mifflin Co., 1985, with Theo Haimann and William G. Scott (also published in Spanish, as Dirección y Gerencia).

Peter Eilers: Appointed by the governor to Oregon's Natural Heritage Advisory Council.

Joanne Engel: Appointed to statewide panel advising the Joint Legislative Committee on Education on major educational trends, issues, and methods of improving the quality of education offered at all levels throughout the state of Oregon.

Ludwig Fischer: Edited Exil: Wirkung and Wertung, Camden House, 1985; published "Peter Henisch" and "Albert Paris Gütersloh" in Major Figures in Contemporary Austrian Literature; conducted research on teaching methods in foreign languages.

Jon Frew: Published "Leadership Approaches to Achieve Maximum Therapeutic Potential in Support Groups" in The Journal for Specialists in Group Work, May, 1986; published "The Functions and Patterns of Occurrence of Individual Contact Styles During the Development Phases of the Gestalt Group" in The Gestalt Journal, Spring, 1986.

Bruce Gates: Conducted seminars for the National Rural Electric Co-op Associations on "Managing Demand Through Rates" in Tennessee, South Carolina and Indiana; published 1,2,3 FORECAST!, software and manual for Lotus 1-2-3, in three versions.

Richard Hagedorn: Published Debtor-Creditor Law Manual, Warren, Gorham and Lamont Publishing Co., with co-authors Crandall and Smith.

Michael Hand: Prepared, with funding from a curriculum internationalization grant from Pacific Lutheran University, an international component for Business and Economic Forecasting curriculum; received Melvin Blomquist Lecture of the Year Award; lectured before the Administrative Management Association; conducted faculty research colloquium and computer science seminars; served as expert witness for state of Oregon before a U.S. Department of Agriculture Appeals Board; served as consultant to Oregon Adult and Family Services, Oregon Workers'

Compensation, Oregon State Supreme Court, and Capital Title Company.

James Hanson: Served as consultant to Cascade Employers Association, Executive Information Network, Eoff Electric Co., Mission Mill Village and others; addressed Salem Downtown Association, AD-2 Association, Statesman-Journal Executive Group and KSLM/KSKD Marketing Group.

Bob Hawkinson: Received Oregon Committee for the Humanities Summer Research Grant to write "Oregon Before Reform," the first stage of a larger study of late 19th century politics in Oregon; presented paper on "Patterns of Contributions to Oregon Legislative Candidates, 1976-1984" at meetings of the Western Political Science Association.

Stephen Hey: Named coordinator of the Joint Institutional Research Program initiated in 1986 by Willamette University and Tokyo International University; co-edited a special issue of the Social Science Journal and co-authored, with Gary Kiger, "Research on Chronic Disease and Disability: An Overview," an article published in the same issue.

Norman Hudak: Authored, with Anne H. Sholes, "Reduction of Cyclohexanone with Sodium Borohydride in Aqueous Alkaline Solution - A Beginning Organic Chemistry Experiment," in the Journal of Chemical Education, 1986.

Roger Hull: Published "The Traditional Vision of Rudolf Eickemeyer, Jr.," in History of Photography, Jan.-Mar., 1986; appointed to professional screening committee which will select art for new science buildings at the University of Oregon.

William Iron: Elected to the executive board of the Oregon Theatre Arts Association; served as director and producer of Willamette's first summer theatre season in Gold Beach, Oregon.

Gilbert LaFreniere: Completed three museum-quality geology exhibits titled, "Physical Properties of Minerals," "Plate Tectonics," and "Geochemistry."

Susan Leeson: Received National Endowment for the Humanities grant for law professors to study "Origins of American Constitutionalism," at Bowdoin College, Maine, in summer of 1986; invited to participate in summer colloquium, "The Political Thought of James Madison."

Earl Littrell: Named to the board of directors of the National Association of Accountants; served as president of MaPS Credit Union and MaPS Service Agency, and as president of Northwest Human Services; served as consultant to The Institute of Certified Management Accountants, and the Oregon Public Utilities Commissioner; authored "Shadows and Mirrors," a monthly column, as contributing editor of Management Accounting.

Wallace Long: Performed as featured soloist with Linfield Festival Singers in a tour of West Germany and Austria.

Steven Maser: Served as founder and program director of the International Trade Institute for state government officials; served as member of the State Advisory Council on Occupational Safety and Health, Northwest Human Services, and MIT Educational Council; named visiting scholar at Yale Law School, 1985-86; authored "Demographic Factors Affecting Constitutional Decisions: The Case of Municipal Charters" in Public Choice, 1985; served as reviewer for the American Journal of Political Science, and American Political Science Review.

Lane McGaughy: Contributed an article on "New Testament Greek" to the Harper's Bible Dictionary, Harper & Row, 1985; authored The Parables of Jesus, a study guide for the Oregon Idaho Annual Conference Camping Program of the United Methodist Church, Spring, 1986.

Ted Shay: Published Rajneeshpuram and the Abuse of Power, Scout Creek Press.

Chris Simoni and Michael Wise: Retained by the Oregon Commission on the Judicial Branch to study the value of court-annexed arbitration as a means to reduce litigation delay.

Carlton Snow: Elected to the board of trustees of Fuller Theological Seminary; elected to the board of directors for the Society of Professionals in Dispute Resolution.

Myra Staum: Presented research papers at the National Association for Music Therapy and Music Educators National Conference; published articles in two journals, Contributions to Music Education and Upbeat San Antonio, and in the book titled Applications of Research in Music Behavior; invited to present papers, "Music Notation to Improve the Speech Prosody of Hearing Impaired Children" and "Effects of Age and Nationality on Auditory/Visual Sequential Memory of British and American Children," before two research commissions of the International Society for Music Education.

Maurice Stewart: Published "Cornu's Spiral and the Microcomputer," American Journal of Physics, March, 1986.

Don Swanson: Elected to the executive board of the Interstate Oratorical Association; served on the editorial boards of two forensics publications, The CEDA Yearbook and The Forensic; presented paper, "Union Carbide: Crisis Response to the Issue of Social Responsibility," at the International Communication Association Convention.

Marta Velez: Selected "Professor of the Year" for 1985 by the Oregon chapter of the American Association of Teachers of Spanish and Portuguese; recognized for 10 continuous years of service as Salem area coordinator for the National Spanish Examination.

Charles Wallace: Presented a paper, "Susanna Wesley, 18th Century Professor of Practical Divinity," to the Pacific Northwest regional meeting of the American Academy of Religion.

Willamette University is fortunate to have such a fine, active and vital faculty. At the same time, the University is obligated to keep the faculty fine, active and vital. It attempts to do so by providing a variety of professional development opportunities for its expedition leaders.

During 1985-86, 20 faculty members received Atkinson Fund Faculty Development Awards from the University for specific projects. Additionally, the following faculty members were granted sabbaticals during the academic year.

1985-86 SABBATICALS

Adele Birnbaum: Full-year sabbatical to study the relationship of literature and the visual arts in Japanese culture.

Bill Braden: Fall sabbatical to study in France.

Jerry Canning: Fall sabbatical to explore the interface of philosophy and religion through meetings with prominent theologians.

G. Marc Choate: Spring sabbatical to update knowledge of corporate financial theory.

Christine Gentzkow: Spring sabbatical to travel and conduct research.

David Goodney: Spring sabbatical to conduct research on pesticide residues.

Norman Hudak: Fall sabbatical to write a laboratory manual.

Dallas Isom: Fall sabbatical to produce teaching materials and to observe procedures in English Inns of Court.

Steven Maser: Full-year sabbatical to pursue studies in law and economics which support his teaching of Legal and Ethical Decisions in Management.

Julio Viamonte: Spring sabbatical to prepare texts for publication.

WILLAMETTE'S PIONEERING NEW LIBRARY

Any successful expedition requires good equipment. Willamette University has many fine facilities that serve as "good equipment" for the academic expeditions embarked on by its students.

But the University's new Mark O. Hatfield Library, built during the 1985-86 year, is a particularly good piece of equipment to facilitate the exploration of new frontiers. The new University library is not only a prime place where students explore ideas and information, but it is also a pioneer in its own right among academic libraries on the west coast.

The Hatfield Library is among the first academic libraries on the west coast to automate its card catalog and circulation systems. With a generous grant of equipment from the Hewlett-Packard Company, library users look up materials via a computer terminal instead of using the traditional approach of searching through drawers containing hundreds of file cards. As a result, access to the collection is improved as users find that a faster and more comprehensive search of the collection is possible. The automated card catalog also will be linked in the future to computer terminals in all academic buildings and residence halls on campus, giving students access to information about the library's collection 24 hours a day.

The Hatfield Library will also uniquely aid academic explorers through the archives that occupies a portion of the library's second floor. The archives is the depository of papers and memorabilia from throughout the career of Mark Hatfield, providing an invaluable research center and educational resource. Senator Hatfield's papers, memorabilia and books significantly enhance the University's general library collection. Library endowment has been raised to support professional staff in assisting users of the archives, and to catalog and maintain the Hatfield collection. Library endowment also will support scholarly lectures, workshops and conferences on public policy, as well as other educational activities. The Hatfield Room is a special multipurpose room designed to accommodate these activities.

FINANCING THE EXPEDITION

How were Willamette University's expeditions in 1985-86 financed? What resources were available to support these expeditions? And who provided these resources?

Willamette University began the 1985-86 fiscal year with an operating budget that exceeded $18 million. And for the ninth consecutive year, it ended its fiscal year with a small surplus.

Over two-thirds of the operating budget's revenue came from tuition and fees, with another 18 percent coming from auxiliary services (room and board, bookstore, etc.). The remainder came from endowment income, gifts and grants.

Over $1.18 million in income from endowed funds went to support the operating budget during the 1985-86 fiscal year. And by year's end, the market value of Willamette's endowment had increased to $65 million.

Gift and grant income to Willamette in 1985-86 totalled nearly $8.5 million, a record amount for the University. Private gifts accounted for $6.6 million of this total.

Much of the $6.6 million in private gifts was applied toward the successful completion of fundraising for the $7.4 million Mark O. Hatfield Library and, thereby, for the $22.6 million Campaign for Willamette. And $582,000 reflects annual fund income that was applied directly to the operating budget; over 3,300 (or 24 percent) of Willamette's alumni contributed to an annual fund in 1985-86.

A complete report on gifts to the University in 1985-86 is included in this annual report. I encourage you to browse through the gifts report to gain an appreciation for the people, corporations, foundations and trusts that have made, and are making, academic expeditions at Willamette possible. My deep appreciation and thanks to you who helped finance Willamette's expeditions - to you who made possible the $7.4 million Mark O. Hatfield Library, to you who made possible $4.5 million in student financial aid from the University, and to the rest of you who, in different ways, enabled our students to explore ideas and information on various frontiers of learning.

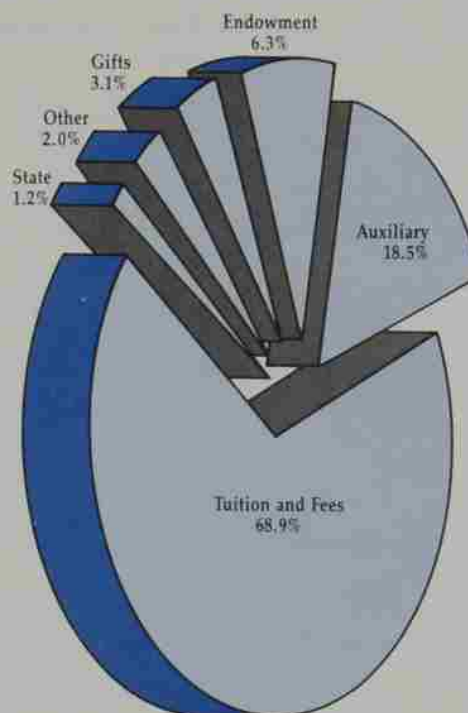

Significant gifts from the following corporations and foundations opened new frontiers for Willamette University in 1985-86:

1985-1986 ANNUAL GIFTS REPORT

GIFTS FROM THE HEART

Fellow Alums –

Way to go!

With your generous help, the alumni fund made steady improvement in the past year and reached a new high in percentage of alumni giving to their alma mater. Congratulations!

What is most important now – and will be for many years to come – is a larger base of alumni support. Yes, alumni can feel good about their role in making the Hatfield Library a reality, but the Alumni Annual Fund remains the basic priority.

I can only believe that alumni giving comes from the heart, and returns some of the gifts we all gained as students. The greatest of those was the gift of a liberal arts education. And the gift returns.

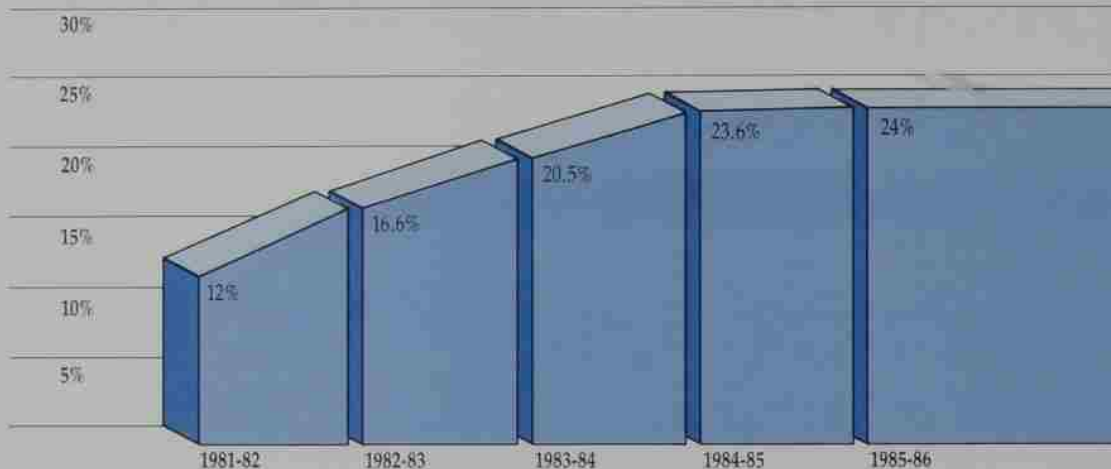

The alumni deserve all the credit for a job well done. Keep up the good work!

And, thanks.
