THE NEW LAUSANNE HALL

The Greater Willamette

THE past of Willamette is a history of fine achievements, but her future promises a development far surpassing the record of that past. Willamette University is at the turning of the ways and if she proves herself ready for the enlarged opportunities offered, the way leads upward. A few of the most enthusiastic and far-sighted promoters of Willamette interests first caught the vision of the only partially developed possibilities of the school, and of the needs, which when filled, would largely help her to fulfill these possibilities.

For several years a new and modern dormitory for the women of the school has been planned and the necessary finances have been slowly accumulating—slowly, on account of the various war drives and the recent Centenary campaign of the Church. When the funds on hand warranted a beginning of work on the new Hall, a holiday was declared that the men might wreck the old structure. The work of destruction was enthusiastically accomplished and the foundation of the new building begun without delay. The new Lausanne, capable of accommodating a hundred and twenty-five women, is of a type unexcelled on the Pacific Coast.

RAZING OLD LAUSANNE

When Waller Hall, the "Old Historic Temple" of Willamette, was badly damaged by fire during the past winter, it was decided to combine the campaigns for financing the remodeling of that much-needed building and the completion of Lausanne. The laymen of Oregon have undertaken the campaign and are making splendid progress toward the hundred thousand-dollar goal. Not only is the constituency of the Methodist Church contributing generously to the Greater Willamette drive, but other friends who realize the influence exerted by a school of the Willamette type and who believe postively in her future, are materially aiding in the campaign.

Waller Hall, when completed, will appear in external features almost as when first erected years ago. The interior, however, will be quite different. The chapel will be very much enlarged, and a well-equipped library will occupy the second floor. The latter will be a very valuable improvement on the present library facilities.

WALLER HALL AFTER THE FIRE

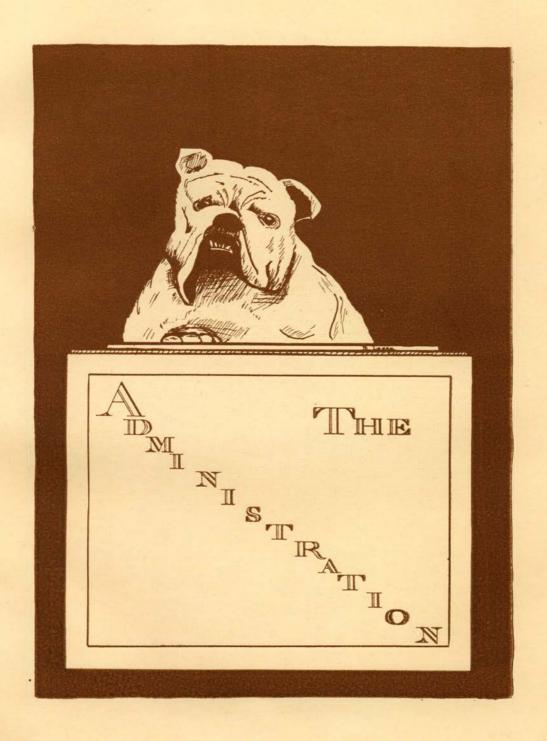

With the success of the present campaign comes the immediate certainty of a greatly increased endowment for the University. This will mean the erection of a large auditorium, a men's dormitory, and a new gymnasium within a very few years. The attractive, well-situated campus will then be better equipped in every way for accommodating the increasing numbers of students.

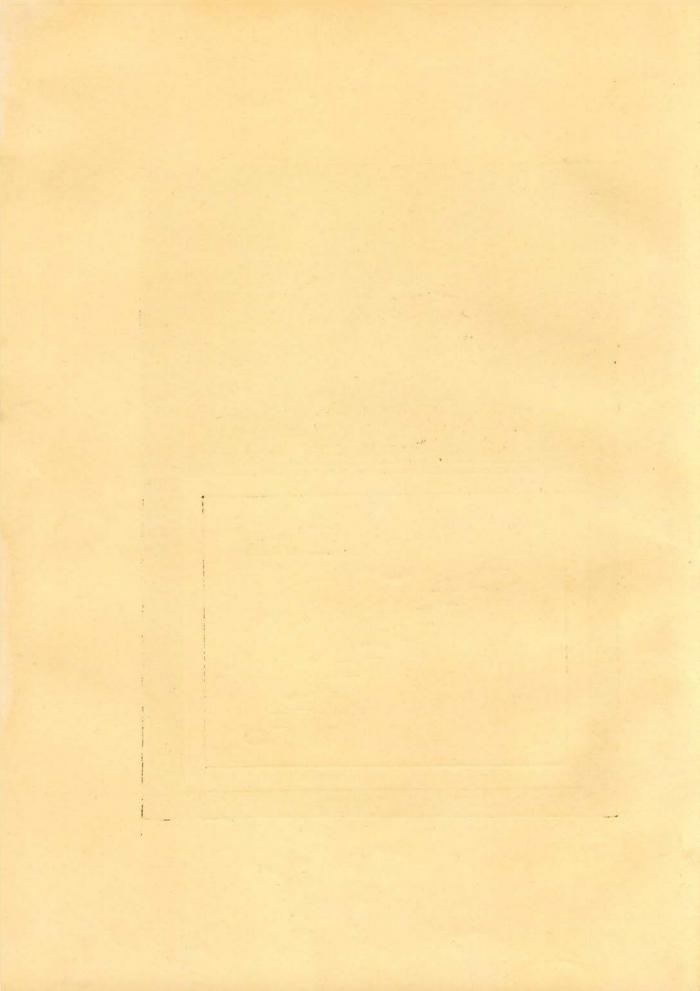

The Student Body of the University has always shown its loyalty by supporting all projects for campus improvement. Three years ago this body was organized as "The Greater Willamette Club," for the purpose of advertising the school, and incidentally, to do such specific bits of improvement as lay in its power. A much-used walk on the campus is a concrete evidence of the effectiveness of the "Greater Willamette Club." To show their endorsement of the present campaign the students have pledged approximately twenty-five hundred dollars toward the fund, and are giving their time in forwarding the work.

With her past distinguished by high ideals exemplified in the lives of her many sons and daughters; her present in the keeping of her able and devoted leaders; and her future assured by the daring faith of Oregon Methodism, Willamette University promises not only to mantain her present excellent standing, but to become a leading factor in the higher education of the Pacific Northwest.

CARL GREGG DONEY, Ph.D., LL.D. President of Willamette University

Eighteen

(19 77 21)

The College of Liberal Arts

GEORGE H. ALDEN, Ph.D.
Carlton College; Harvard University. Sometime Fellow in History, University of Chicago; Sometime Fellow in History, University of Wisconsin.

DEAN OF THE COLLEGE OF LIBERAL ARTS

Serving not only as a cultural agent, but supplementing the vocational schools and making them more substantially a part of the University, the College of Liberal Arts has a two-fold purpose. It is really the core within the periphery of Willamette life. The intrinsic value of the College lies, however, in its contribution to intellectual and moral development, existing conditions being conducive to the inculcation of personal ideals and the love of knowledge. Not by contracted specialization but by the limitation of attention upon every task assumed during the adjusting process, made possible through a liberal education, are great leaders produced. Willamette has accepted the challenge and has placed the emphasis where it ought to be—upon the "Fine Art of Living."

Under the direction of Dr. Alden since 1914, the Gollege of Liberal Arts has assumed a position worthy to determine the standard of the literary college.

DEPARTMENT OF MATHEMATICS

JAMES T. MATTHEWS, A. M.
Willamette University
Professor of Mathematics 1893—

Professor Matthews belongs to Willamette and every student belongs to Professor Matthews. Surely there is no one more interested in our welfare than he. Although always busy, he never refuses to consider any want or perform any service asked of him. Mathematics is no trick at all when assisted by those delightful little "John and Susan" stories.

DEPARTMENT OF ANCIENT LANGUAGES

WILLIAM E. KIRK, A. M.

University of Nebraska; Columbia University. Professor of English Literature 1907-1911. Professor of Ancient Languages 1906-1907; 1911-1913; 1915—

The classic languages are gaining recognition not merely as a requirement to be fulfilled for securing a diploma, but as an asset for a life work, whether in law, science, or the ministry. Professor Kirk has directed the Latin and Greek department for a number of years, and under his guidance it has become an influential part of the Liberal Arts course.

Twenty

DEPARTMENT OF CHEMISTRY

FLORIAN VON ESCHEN, Ph. M. Simpson College; University of Illinois; University of Chicago; Washington University. Professor of Chemistry 1908—

Because of the large enrollment for the pre-medical courses this year, the duties in the chemistry department have been especially heavy. Under Professor Von Eschen's wise leadership, however, the work has proved extraordinarily successful. His own unfailing vigor and his kindly encouragement to the students have made their faith firm and their motto "excelsior."

DEPARTMENT OF BIOLOGICAL SCIENCES

MORTON E. PECK, A. M.

Cornell University; Research work in Central America, three years. Professor in Biology 1908—

JESSIE GRANT PECK

Ellsworth College; Research work in Central America, two years. Assistant in Biology 1910—

Biology is not only a very useful subject but as taught by Profesor Peck, a very interesting one. And the Willamette valley is an excellent place for the pursuance of the course. Professor Peck is ably prepared to head this department because of his knowledge of the subject and also because of his personality. The department has been strengthened wonderfully since his coming to Willamete,

Twenty-one

DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION

CHARLES L. SHERMAN, Ph. D., Pd. D.
Upper Iowa University; New York University;
Sometime Fellow in New York School of Pedagogy.
Professor of Education and Philosophy 1914—

A man whose strong personality has been felt among the students and all who come in contact with him. Willamette hopes to keep Professor Sherman because of his loyalty, his helpfulness and vast powers as an educator. His classes are large and popular and all who enter them receive something of benefit from this man of the hour.

DEPARTMENT OF MODERN LANGUAGES

GUSTAV EBSEN, A. M.

Ellensburg College; University of Berlin; University of Paris; University of Madrid.

Professor of Modern Languages 1915—

Every student who knows this popular professor is ready to maintain the utmost loyalty to him because he is a friend to all; a favorite chaperone. A complete master of his subjects, a sympathetic understanding for the student, his services to Willamette has been of inestimable value. Interest in the modern languages has trebled during the period of the war.

Twenty-two

DEPARTMENT OF PHYSICAL EDUCATION

ROBERT L. MATTHEWS

University of Washington; University of Notre Dame.

Director of Physical Education 1915.

Under the direction of Coach Mathews, athletics at Willamette have reached a high plane, and the university's teams have earned the respect of every Northwest institution. The dedication of this Wallulah to our athletic director is the method we have chosen to show our appreciation for his valuable services to the university.

DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC SPEAKING

DELLA CROWDER-MILLER

Dixon College; Valparaiso University; Indiana University; School of Expression, Boston. Professor of Public Speaking 1917-1920.

ORVILLE CROWDER-MILLER Boston School of Expression. Professor of Public Speaking, 1920—

Not only to produce public speakers but to insure normal development for the individual, is the purpose of this department, which has developed into one of the most popular in the university during the past three years. The records of the varsity debaters and orators are ample evidence of the capable work of Professor Della Crowder-Miller, who has headed the department since 1917. Forced by ill health to resign the position in mid-year, her work has been continued in an efficient manner by her son, Professor Orville Crowder-Miller.

Twenty-three

DEPARTMENT OF PHYSICS

HERSCHEL E. HEWITT, A. B. Grand Island College; University of Chicago. Professor of Physics 1918—

Several new courses have been added to the department of physics since Professor Hewitt took charge in 1918. Not only have the laboratories been improved, but a number of electrical appliances and other equipment have been mended as a result of his practical service. The institution values a man like Professor Hewitt, who is always ready.

DEPARTMENT OF ENGLISH

FRANCES M. RICHARDS, M. A.
Ohio Wesleyan University; University of Michigan.
Dean of Women 1918—
Assistant Professor of English 1918—

Since October 1918, when Dean Richards assumed her duties as Dean of Women and instructor in English composition, she has contributed largely to the impetus of Willamette's rising standards and to the purity of Willamette spirit. She has happily fused Western vigor and freedom with the cultural excellence of the East and thus brought to Willamette women a new light through which to appreciate the higher things.

Twenty-four

DEPARTMENT OF SOCIAL SCIENCES

FRANK G. FRANKLIN, B. L., Ph. D.

Cornell University; University of Chicago; Teaching Fellowship at University of Nebraska; University of Madison.

Professor of Social Sciences 1918-

During the present condition of world affairs no courses can prove of greater value than economics and sociology. At the head of this department is a man whose few years at Willamette have been marked by his conscientious example; a deep thinker, alert to every situation and progressive.

DEPARTMENT OF HOME ECONOMICS

LIDA M. FAKE, B. S.

Milwaukee Downer College. Professor of Home Economics 1919—

ALICE T. DODD

Three years' research work in Egypt, India, Palestine, Greece, and Italy.

Instructor in Home Life and Art History 1915-

Although the department of home economics is in the first year of its existence, yet, under the direction of Miss Fake it has developed far past the embryonic stage and gives promise of being one of the most popular courses next year. The only thing to be feared is the old adage that a good cook is a co-conspirator with cupid, but it is hoped that Willamette will not lose her dainty little professor too soon.

Twenty-five

(19 7 20)

DEPARTMENT OF ENGLISH LITERATURE

JOSEPH LOGAN RENTFRO, A. M.
McKendree College; Boston University; Harvard University.
Professor of English Literature 1919—

Because of the atmosphere of idealism at Willamette the men who accept responsibilities within her halls are those of strong Christian character and influence. Such a man is Professor Rentfro. He has won the confidence of the student-body as well as of the faculty, and it is hoped that the English department will become even stronger in the promotion of intellectual and cultural ideals through literary appreciation.

ERNEST C. RICHARDS, A. M. Morningside College; Boston University. Secretary of University 1916—

In pursuance of the policy that "it pays to advertise," Willamette sends one of her strongest professors to represent her afield. Besides being instrumental in bringing many new students to the university, Professor Richards has been devoting himself to the promotion of the $100,000 building campaign now in progress. He has recently published the "Who's Who in Willamette," a much-needed record of the University alumni.

The College of Law

I. H. VAN WINKLE, A.B., LL.B. Willamette University Dean of College of Law 1913—

Willamette Law School living in the memories of its Alma Mater, is an institution standing foremost in the West. Many are they who, having helped shape the life of Oregon, lay their power, their success, in homage at its feet. Yet there are those who love only the memories of days past and let go slipping by the opportunities of the present day. Willamette, situated in the seat of our Commonwealth, which offers freely its resources, in libraries and courts, in the comradeship of those who have attained legal fame, has an atmosphere as unequalled as it is necessary for those who wish to gain such fame. This atmosphere has been upheld and enriched by the magnetic personality of Dean Van Winkle who, dring his service as head of the law school has given of his abundant knowledge in aiding many students toward their goal for a greater life of service.

The School of Music

JOHN RODERICK SITES, MUS. DOC. Royal Conservatory of Music, Leipsig; University of Leipsig.

Director of the School of Music 1918-

Recognizing the educational value of music as a real asset to the individual, the university has succeeded in its efforts to make the School of Music of outstanding importance on the campus. The present enrollment, which has never been surpassed in numbers, totals ninety-five students, including Liberal Arts students and those registered in music alone.

Rapid progress has been made by the School of Music under the direction of Dr. Sites, who has been director of the department for the past two years. Coming to Willamette with an enviable reputation as a singer, director, and instructor, he has brought the school to a higher standard than it has ever reached before. The increase in registration has necessitated the addition of four instructors, Miss Alice Holman, Miss Ruth Johns, Miss Lucile Ross and Professor T. S. Roberts.

Besides the work of the men's and ladies' glee clubs, several departmental recitals have been presented during the year, and the production of "The Yokohama Maid", a Japanese comic operetta, was one of the most brilliant affairs of the junior weekend

MARY ALICE HOLMAN
New England Conservatory of Music
Instructor in Piano, Music History and Theory 1919.

Miss Holman, a graduate of the New England Conservatory of Music, came to Willamette last fall after completing three successful years of teaching elsewhere. She has won a place in the hearts of all her students, and her work here in the past year has brought only the best of results.

WILLAMETTE DAYS

Willamette Spirit and Traditions

THE measure of a school's usefulness is safely gauged by the quality of its spirit and the wealth of its traditions. Willamette points with pride to her indomitable spirit, which has come down from the struggle and sacrifice of the early Oregon pioneers. In the wilderness they founded a college, and because of their faith and perseverance, this institution has endured as an eternal monument to their integrity and foresight. Striving always for those things that are right and productive for the cause of education and high ideals, Willamette spirit has influenced and colored the life of the entire Northwest.

The traditions to which Willamette steadfastly clings have been moulded out of her experience by this same spirit. The things which are good and progressive, which tend toward better ends and broader field of endeavor, have been retained and blended with the permanent life of the school. We do not hold to traditions for the sake of traditions, nor make of them objects to be desired for show or the gratification of vanity, but rather we remember traditions for Willamette's sake. The "old school" adheres to such principles and traditions as are in keeping with her spirit of progress and usefulness.

There is a high degree of human interest in Willamette tradition; interest that appeals readily to the students, that combines their own personal experience with the life and history of the school. The green cap custom for freshmen is of this nature. The frosh grow into the belief that green caps are a part of their education, and indeed, this is true. The senior bench is inviolate to the seniors. The underclassmen look at it longingly from afar and dream of the time when they shall have the honor of its full privilege.

The Mill Stream is a never-forgotten institution at Willamette. It has washed away the verdure of the frosh and rough corners of sophs, and, it is rumored, of even the higher-ups, for three-quarters of a century. None ever passes it by unheedingly, none ever forgets it; none cares to do so. Many a stigma that might otherwise have left a blotch on school, or class, or individual, has melted away in its magic water.

What Willamette man does not remember the old bell that clangs out the messages of victory? It has come to rest again in the bell tower of Waller Hall. Ringing joyously when Willamette conquers, it remains discreetly silent at other fortunes, awaiting another day.

The songs that have made Willamette the pride of so many student hearts are the product of the unique Freshman Glee. Every year each class produces a song—words, music and all the result of student talent. In a great public contest, to which school and city eagerly look forward, the songs are presented and the winning class awarded a pennant. This music is teeming with the life and spirit of Willamette, as revealed by the chorus of this year's winning song:

"Fight 'em, Bearcats, fight forever,
Guard Willamette through the years.
Fight with mighty strong endeavor,
Shield the spirit of our seers;
Fight 'em, Bearcats, sturdy warriors,
Fight with matchless courage bold,
For the glory of our Cardinal—
Cardinal and undaunted Gold."

Willamette Pep

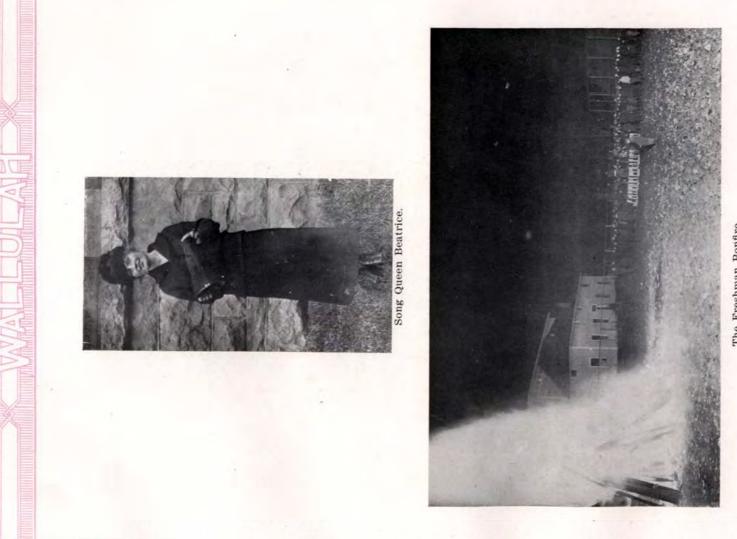

Yell King and Crown Prince.

Like the real super-man that he is, Yell King Flegel has his successor and puppet assistant, Crown Prince Gillette, always at arm's length. Not an event of the year has lacked enthusiasm, for the efficient apex of the pyramid has kept us stirred up continually. For the short, snappy rallies at chapel and in Eaton Hall, the serpentine through town, the bonfire and heralding of the Spirit of Willamette, and the incessant fight and vim of the rooting section at every game, we owe allegiance to the King and Prince.

Without our Co-ed support under Song Queen Beatrice Dunnette this rooting section would be incomplete, but when the girls sing "For her Bearcat who is out on the field," nothing can stop those teams.

Thanksgiving Jolly-Up

THE Thanksgiving Jolly-up, the first informal student-body gathering of the year, comes at a fortunate period in the career of the student who is not permitted to spend the Thanksgiving holidays at home. More than two hundred such students spent a lively evening in the Gym at the close of Thanksgiving Day, "topping off" a perfect occason of informal games in masquerade costumes with an unlimited supply of cider and doughnuts.

Washingtonian Banquet.

Post-Exam Jubilee

After the deepest gloom experienced by the students during the year (caused by the faculty's semi-annual weeding-out process), there comes a thorough reaction. Even the sober professors attend the Post-Exam Jubilee in the Gym and delve in the freest of sports. Class stunts and novel features combined to make the 1920 jubilee one of the most enjoyable functions of the college year, even for those who "flunked."

ARTICLE III. The management shall be in the hands of the freshman class and under the supervision of an upperclass committee of three. The manager shall be elected by the freshman class, and the committee appointed at least one week before the challenge is issued.

ARTICLE IV. The freshman class shall award a pennant to the winning class.

SECTION II.

ARTICLE I. Words and music shall be original within the class and shall be submitted at least two weeks before the date of the Glee.

ARTICLE II. Every member of the class shall take part in rendition. Affiliated members are eligible to participate.

ARTICLE III. There shall be three judges on each of the following: words, music, rendition, adaptation.

ARTICLE IV. The judges shall be selected from a list previously submitted by each class by a committee consisting of the manager of the Glee and a member from each of the other classes.

ARTICLE V. Judges shall judge according to the following: 25 per cent on words; 25 per cent on music; 25 per cent on adaptability; 25 per cent on rendition. No judge shall give any class a score of less than 15 per cent except as provided in Section III, article I.

At the discretion of the management a form of ballot shall be included in the printed program whereby the public may express its choice of winners.

SECTION III.

ARTICLE I. The student body shall decide upon the type of song to be submitted at the beginning of the school year. Types other than the one selected shall receive a score of zero on adaptability.

SECTION IV.

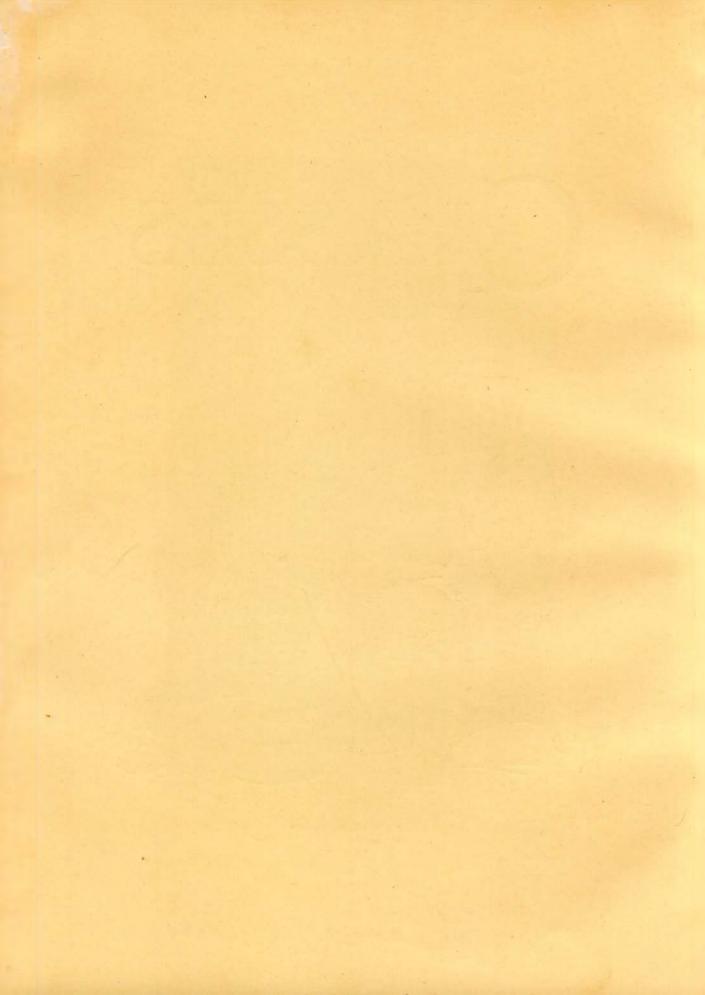

ARTICLE I. It shall be the duty of the president of the student body to see that these rules be carried out.

Senior History

Flunk Day.

THE class of 1920, with its numbers greatly depleted, has had the most unusual record of any class in the University. The spirit of the class took permanent form with the kindling of the big bonfire before the Pacific football game of 1917. The class gained another victory by winning the Freshman Glee and by giving Willamette one of her most popular songs.

This victory was scarcely accomplished before more than half of the men of the class left the University to serve their country. World wars are unusual and for two years the class of 1920 was forced to meet unusual conditions. But the class was determined to win in spite of opposition and the sophomore year was marked by the donning of the 1920 sweaters of cardinal and gold which are now recognized as the official school sweater.

As juniors the class managed a very successful Week-end and reestablished the custom of presenting a Junior Play. As seniors the class has taken a leading part in the University financial campaign and has been the leader in upholding the ideals and traditions of Willamette.

Now the class of 1920 is nearing the terminus of its college career and will soon leave Willamette. Yet as members of that class we are not loath to depart, but we are rather glad—glad to have spent four years at Old Willamette during the most severe crisis of her history.

The Class of '21

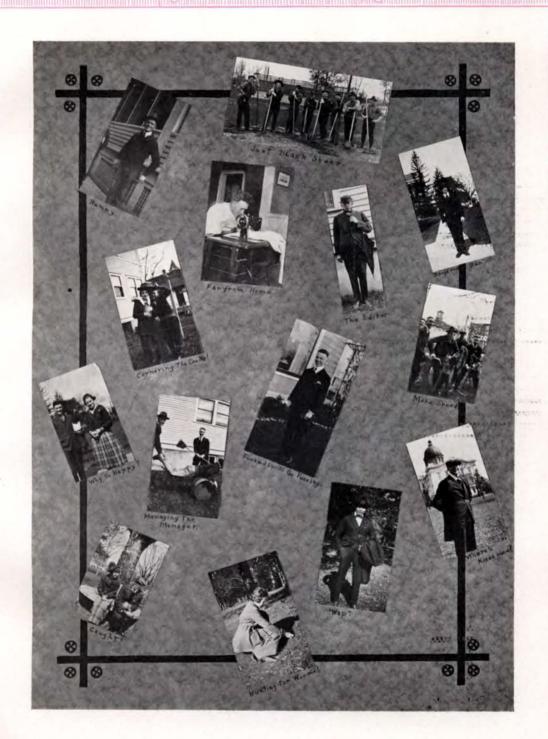

Out to graze.

THE class of '21—here's to the students who form it, and here's to the class they form. Probably for many years Willamette has seen no class whose members from the very dawn of their campus life have formed a mutual admiration society of such strong and lasting sentiment as have the class of '21. Loyal to the class and loyal to each other, every member has deemed it a prvilege to be called a champion of the purple and gold, and has been eager to further its interests or to better its standards. Co-operation and companionship have united to make the juniors regard their class life as altogether worth while. Very slight has been any diminution in numbers thru the past three years. Black sheep whose paths led from the main trail have departed with regret; newcomers have been absorbed quickly and easily into the flock. The spirit remains the same and beckons on to another year of possibilities and triumphs.

Sixty-three

ATTEBURY, RAYMOND - Everett, Wash.
One of those rare personalities to whom leadership comes as the natural consequence of unselfish activity. Arbiter of interclass scraps, but no pacifist.

"A generous virtue of a vigorous kind."

AUSMAN, GLYDE - - - - Salem, Ore.

An industrious frequenter of the laboratory
—but it does not interfere with her education.

Saves her words and energy for real accomplishment.

"Prompt with kindly word and deed,
To own the claims of all who need."

ALDRICH, FREDERIC - - Salem, Ore.
A good social manager; he can and knows he can. Hates to be bossed, but doesn't mind being worked. As a recreation he studies on Sunday.

"In books a prodigal, they say, A living cyclopedia."

BERG, ELIZABETH - - Fruitland, Idaho
Busy keeping her room-mate from flunking fussing. A sworn enemy of the mumps. Incidentally, "Bizzie" doesn't always study on week-end nights.

"Pleasure and action make the hours seem short."

BASLER, LOREN - - Bremerton, Wash. Leading man in the Junior play. Only a few things in this world demand the attention of a great man. "Baz" is great!

"Time! I dare thee to discover, Such a youth and such a lover."

Sixty-four

BUCKNER, DOROTHY - Salem, Ore. A maid who came to us from O. A. C.—industrious, willing to work. Doesn't worry particularly about her studies—why should she? "Let's banish business, banish sorrow,

To the gods belongs tomorrow."

BENNETT, FRANK - Gooding, Idaho
Possesses a fine sense of duty, but patience for those who do not. Time for work and time for fun. Eloquent orator.

"Wisdom he has, and to his wisdom courage."

COOKE, MARGUERITE - - Portland, Ore.
A valuable addition to the class of '21. She is full of pleasant surprises and capable of doing anything that needs doing.

"He that showeth himself friendly findeth friends."

BAILEY, LESLIE - - - Salem, Ore.

A man of wise words and rich experience.

Divides his time between Kimball and the University.

"When I was in the army-"."

CORNER, MARIE - - - Salem, Ore.

How does one wee lady do so many things so well? A good dose of her sunshine would cheer away the bluest blues.

"The very gentlest of all human natures, She joined it courage strong."

Sixty-five

BOLT. ED. - - - - - -

Seems to think the world was made to criticise; but manages to get pleasure out if it, nevertheless.

"Vanity of vanities, all is vanity."

CHENOWETH, IRIS - - Woodburn, Ore.

Assists in upholding upper-class dignity at Lausanne. There is a "lot to Iris" in more ways than one.

"Indeed, true gladness doth not always speak."

BROWN, PAUL - - - - - Amity, Ore.

A favorite victim of Prof. Sherman's penetrating pedagogical questions. Known by his nice white sweater and his curly hair. Famous coach for girls' basketball.

"The art of entertaining is a gift of the gods."

CROISAN, CHARLOTTE - - Salem, Ore.

Needs not to rest her hopes on scratch lists.

A good language student but she considers its over-use unnecessary.

"Is she not passing fair?"

CAMPBELL, GLENN - - Emmett, Idaho Like many another, he could not resist the Willamette pull after the war. We suspect that there were several reasons for his choice.

"Lost in Wells of thought."

CROZER, GLADYS - - - - Salem, Ore.

We don't know what Gladys is majoring in,
but it ought to be domestic science. She is kind to everybody, but especially to one fortunate individual.

"Very re-Morseful when she does not study."

CORNER, IVAN - - - Salem, Ore. Square Corners are all right, but Ikey's geometry fails when it comes to the shortest distance between two points—Glee Club called to witness.

"Nothing is so contagious as enthusiasm."

DUNNETTE, BEATRICE - Monmouth, Ore.
Our jolly Song Queen with the contagious smile. Always ready for a good time, and a firm believer in not letting her studies interfere with her education.

"Let's sing a song for old Willamette!"

COOPER, HARVEY - - Salem, Ore.
One of the busiest of the busy. Preaches and studies and yet finds time for participation in all school activities.

"There is time for all things."

EYRE, WINIFRED - - - Salem, Ore.

Her eyes are full of something that savors of mischief. A charming combination of femininity and independence. She can wheed!e anybody into anything.

"I don't care! So there!"

Sixty-seven

DAY, PAUL L. - - - Bremerton, Wash.

This bashful junior talks little, so how can we tell what he thinks? But we know what he can do—'most everything.

"To all obliging, yet reserved to all."

GARRETT, MILDRED - - - Salem, Ore.

Do you want something done, and well done?

See Mildred. So generous to others that self is forgotten.

"If you praised her as charming, some asked what you meant,

But the charm of her presence was felt when she went."

DAVIES, LAWRENCE E. - St. Helens, Ore. The Editor.

GILBERT, EDNA - - - Salem, Ore.

This winsome Junior never neglects her lessons to enjoy the sunny Ray on a spring day.

"Good thoughts, where her footsteps pressed, Like fairy blossoms grew."

ESTEB, LEMUEL - - - Salem, Ore.

Not a practitioner of procrastination, as far as certain things are concerned. Never, or seldom, descends to a commonplace conversation.

"He must observe their mood on whom he jests."

Sixty-eight

EMMEL, HAROLD - Portland, Ore.

This warbler isn't as surprised over life as he appears to be. A sober exterior with a witty humorous lining.

"It is, but hadn't ought to be."

GREGSON, AGNES - - - Salem, Ore.
A generous, warm-hearted girl with an everready smile. New member of the class of '21, but an enthusiastic one.

"The laughter of girls is, and ever was, among the delightful sounds of earth."

FISHER, ROBBIN - - - Salem, Ore.
One who knows what to say and when to say
it. Has the welfare of athletics at heart and makes chapel speeches showing us up when we don't attend.

Hustling, rustling, bustling Bob, Forever fussing Faye.

GUTSCHOW, MARGUERITE - Salem, Ore. Clever with tongue and pen. Takes her college course rather seriously, though you might not suspect it.

"One who to herself is true, And therefore must be so to you."

FLEGEL, PAUL S. - Portland, Ore. A man of many interests is "Fleg." As Yell King he is great, as Wallulah manager he is better, as a fusser he is superb. Happy,—cheerful always, and not afraid of work.

"At sight of thee my gloomy soul cheers up, My hopes revive and gladness dawns within me."

Sixty-nine

HOLT, GEORGE F. - - - Salem, Ore.

Quite adept at concealing his true self, he must be known to be appreciated. Serious usually, but full of droll humor.

"Deeper than e'er plummet sounded."

JONES, ARETA V. - Gervals, Ore.
One of these quiet observers who knows more than her victims suspect. Having learned to love Willamette in the academy, she gives the University her loyalty.

"That generous courage to defend An innocent or absent friend."

JACKSON, REIN - - - Emmett, Idano.
When it comes to Bearcat fight, "Jack" can show them all up. No time for such trivial things as sleep and rest.

"The real man is ever busy."

LIPPOLD, ELSIE - - - Salem, Ore.
One of the most obliging persons on the campus—but has decided opinions of her own.
"She doeth the little kindnesses
Which most leave undone, or despise."

LAWSON, DAVID J. - - Blanchard, Wash.
On the road to a complete recovery from a severe case of bashfulness. Pretends that he does not study.

"What's brave, what's noble, let's do it."

Seventy

LYNN, MARGARET - Coulee City, Wash.

A wanderer returned to the fold. Assists the manager in his clerical duties and finds the registrar's office far from dull.

"I can do anything. Let me try. I have the confidence and ability."

LYMAN, KEITH A. - - Gresham, Ore. Loyal backer of the Bearcats, and general booster for everything. Fairly impartial as to girls.

"He must needs be a wise man, He speaks so much of himself."

MASON, MYRTLE - - Boise. Idaho
A human grab-box for bright ideas, pep, jollity and inspiration. Perpetual motion personified. Has the well-earned reputation of doing most things best.

"Not a soul on the campus but called her a friend.

An all-round girl, from beginning to end."

LINN, LELAND - - - Silverton, Ore.

With a smile that starts the "miles of "smiles." Systematic, steady and business-like.

"Finds sermons in stones,

And good in everything."

MILLER, EVA LOVE - - Portland, Ore.

Just because one changes one's name one doesn't have to desert the class. Mrs. Miller is just as loyal as was Eva.

"So with decorum all things carried,

Miss frowned and blushed and then was married."

Seventy-one

MEDLER, JOHN HENRY - - Wasco, Ore. His enthusiastic confidence is contagious. Such an ardent wooer as "Johnny" could hardly fail to have his way.

"He said,

Or right or wrong, what came into his head."

MOORE, INA - - - Seaside, Ore.

An all-round college girl—can swing Indian clubs with the best of them. Not particularly averse to strolling, but studies once in a while.

"If she will, you may depend on it, But if she won't, that settles it."

MILLER, ORVILLE CROWDER Salem, Ore.
Our famous traveler, lecturer, and professor.
His dramatic and oratorical ability distinguish his college career and win for him merited recognition.

"A lion among ladies is a most dreadful thing."

McCLURE, SYBIL - - - Portland, Ore.
Altho this fair maid frequently says "I don't know," there are some things she is quite certain of. Why aren't there more nights for dates?

"And when once the heart of a maiden is stolen,

The maiden herself will steal after it soon."

McGREW, J. FRED - - Idaho Falls, Ida. Exceedingly interested in girls'—debates. Supplied with enough pep to set Waller Hall on fire—but we know he isn't guilty.

"But still his tongue ran on."

Seventy-two

McWILLIAMS, FLORA - Orchards, Wash.
A quiet student, thoughtful of others. Thinks more than she talks. Advocate of all that is good and true.

"Be wiser than other people if you can, But do not tell them so."

McINTYRE, FLOYD - - Salem, Ore. "Cherub" has a winning way—he is a born diplomat. Excels in song, especially in a mixed quartet.

"I want to be an angel."

NOTSON, MARY - - - Heppner, Ore. Loves a good time and is capable of doing her part in making it.

"Sweet promptings unto kindest deeds, Were in her very look."

McKITTRICK, BRYAN - Wenatchee, Wash.

All business—except when there is fun on foot. Fervent fusser! Furious fighter! Does anybody claim that boys never giggle?

"How do we know him? By his laugh, of course."

PETERSON, ESTELLE - - Seattle, Wash. For such a peaceful-looking little person, she has quite decided opinions.

"Nothing can make her remiss in the practice of her duty."

Seventy-three

MORSE, BERNARD - - - Salem, Ore.

Very busy man, but always ready to help when there is anything to be done.

"A youth would marry a maiden, For fair and fond was she."

PERINGER, FAY - Bellingham, Wash.
Originality and practical capability are seldom so well combined. She can lead in the Junior play as well as in many other things.
"Her lovely looks a springhtly mind disclose."

MORT, HOWARD - - Goldendale, Wash.

Jolly classmate, diligent student, faithful worker,—and not at all averse to fussing. The object of his choice not being here this year,
Howard pines away "Mortified."

"Whate-er he did was done with so much ease, In him alone 'twas natural to please."

PERSONS, RHODA - - Salem, Ore. Her beaming smile is now missing from the Willamette halls, while the owner of the smile plays pedagogue.

"The most manifest sign of wisdom is continued cheerfulness."

RANDALL, EDWIN - - - Salem, Ore.

Is it proper for a young married minister to talk to the feminine members of his ciass so much?

"A little nonsense now and then, Is relished by the best of men."

Seventy-four

PRATT, FAY - - - Wallowa, Ore.
A loyal '21-er. Likes her own way and generally gets it. Disposition sprinkled with a little spice, liberated by judicious teasing.
"Fickle maid, and fair."

RAREY, RUSSSEL - - - Tacoma, Wash.

Consistent and steady in everything, from basketball to fussing. "Russ" can hustle when he wants to.

"Life is well worth living."

RICHARDS, RUTH - Milwaukie, Ore.
Independent and yet very appreciative of people. Student of "things as they are."

"It was only a glad 'good morning'
As she passed along the way."

RAREY, RAYMND - Tacoma, Wash.

Deserter from the class of '21—we wonder why. Has a keen appreciation of beauty and doesn't lack for words to express his ideas.

"To love or not to love,

That is the question."

SATCHWELL, HELEN - Shedd, Ore.
Really believes that studying is part of a college education—but not all of it.
"A kind overflow of kindness."

Seventy-five

SHERWOOD, WILLIAM - - Salem, Ore. One of the "sure-shots" on the campus. He has other hobbies too, collecting botanical specimens, for example.

"The best-conditioned and unwearied spirit, In doing courtesies."

SMITH, SIBYL - Vancouver, Wash.

Always ready with a smile or cheery word for the person with the blues. Has executive ability and is one who upholds true "Willamette spirit."

"Thy modesty is a candle to thy merit."

SCHMALLE, RAYMOND - - Salem, Ore.

This busy man isn't seen much around the campus. Doesn't come to junior parties because of a "party" all his own.

"I am a gentleman."

STEEVES, MURIEL - - - Salem, Ore.

Not often heard from, but says worth while things when she does speak. She is an advocate of democracy but tolerates "Yell Kings."

"Her voice was ever soft, gentle, and low, An excellent thing in a woman."

SOCOLOFSKY, EDWIN - - Salem, Ore. He has a good share of the old fight. If anything happens that "Soc" has no hand in, it isn't worth much. Intensive worker, extensive fusser.

"Fearless minds climb soonest unto crowns."

Seventy-six

TREAT, HELEN - - - - Salem, Ore.

Does not look the part of the experienced school ma'am that she is.

"Be patient, for the world is broad and wide."

THOMAS, RALPH - - Wenatchee, Wash.

A big man in concentrated form is "Tommy."

Divides his valuable time between oratory, adseeking, fussing, and general management of Willamette.

"Nowher so besy a man as ther was.

And yet he semed besier than he was."

WELLS, MILDRED - Portland, Ore.
A Willamette booster. Generous with helpfulness, and graciously dignified. Finds strolling very healthful exercise.

"Happy am I, from care I'm free, Why aren't they all contented like me?"

TODHUNTER, RAY - - - Salem, Ore. Good at most everything, from cartooning to fussing. Has entered his application for "Dean of Fussers."

"The top rung of the ladder, Is none too good for me."

WELCH, ALICE - - - Salem, Ore.
The Song Queen's chief advisor is this lovely, languid lassie. Studies when necessary but doesn't often find it necessary.

"Her eyes' dark charm 'twere vain to tell."

Seventy-seven

WAPATO, PAUL - - Okanogan, Wash.
All-round athlete is "Wap." Always comes up smiling after a scrimmage. Boosts for W.
U. wherever he goes.

"Great is the power of eloquence."

WISE, RUTH - - - - Granger, Wash.
What thinkest, Ruth? Doesn't worry other folks with her opinions—but nevertheless has good ones. Sweet disposition and sterling character.

"Wonder not to see this soul extend its bounds,

And seek some other self, a friend."

WILKEN, HUBERT - Grants Pass, Ore.
An ardent Y.M.C.A.-er. Always busy and always going somewhere. "Bunny" carries a bit of the sunrise thru the day and always looks as the he knew something he wouldn't tell.

"He looks the whole world in the face, For he owes not any man."

WISE, PAUL W. - - Granger, Wash. Quiet, unassuming, but a wealth of gold inside. Verily he is Wise but does not display it to those who will not take the trouble to discover it.

"By the work one knows the workman."

WILKINSON, FLOYD - - - Salem, Ore. Is he joking? Whenever there is work to be done, you may safely guess that this obliging junior is somewhere close by.

"To do the little thing in life, Makes the path easier for someone else."

Seventy-eight

FOGG, ETHEL - - - - Dundee, Ore.
This modest lassie has more than once demonstrated her dramatic ability in Lausanne vaudeville, tho you might not suspect her of it.
"Pleasant Misty evening, with just one Dim star in view."

MILLIE, HENRY - - Grandview, Wash.

Life is so short that he would have each moment perfect. Details to him are important things.

"A lawyer and an honest man."

After the Bagrush.

Sophomore History

A^T the entrance of the class of '22 into Willamette the boys far outnumbered the girls. This unique circumstance was due to the presence of the S.A.T.C. on the campus, which also accounted for the fact that the frosh did not don their green caps until the opening of the second semester.

The annual Bag Rush was the first outstanding event of inter-class rivalry. In this event the class of '22 was victorious and the class numeral made its appearance on the grandstand. Inter-class rivalry did not hold a prominent position in University life until the second semester. It was brought to a grand climax on April 1, when the sophomore and freshman boys met in a battle royal on the athletic field. Neither class won a decisive victory.

The Freshman Glee brought to the class of '22 the worst defeat of the year; but with the winning of fourth place a firm resolve to attain first place the next time. That dream became a glorious reality when the sophomores won the Glee this year with their rousing rally song, "Fight 'Em, Bearcats."

Our class has decreased to about half the number with which we entered in 1918, but we have a mighty "peppy bunch" left. Willamette believes in quality rather than quantity always. The representatives of the class are found in all activities of the school. May they bring glory to Willamette in the coming years.

Frosh Building Their Walk

The Class of 1923

THE class of 1923 will never be accused of holding itself too lightly. We arrived on the campus, and believing implicitly that it pays to advertise, we advertised our arrival vociferously and with much persistence. Noting that our publicity campaign was only a partial success, insomuch that the faculty and upperclassmen seemed serenely unconscious that a new era had dawned in the history of Willamette University by reason of our advent, we decided to formally announce our presence. Whereupon we presented the institution with our calling card in the form of the freshman walk.

Our effort to gain recognition was eminently successful. Our presence was noted. Our pride was stripped from us by a particularly humiliating ceremony whereby the entire male membership of the class was admitted to the Order of the Green Cap, while our growing egotism came to an untimely death in the chilly waters of the Mill Stream. Then the error of our ways was pointed out to us and we were advised to direct our energies to boosting for the old School.

We believe that our record of achievement will show that we have conscientiously acted on the advice given us. In fact, even the sophs are willing to admit that a few more weeks under their capable tutelage will fit us to occupy the position which they are about to vacate.

The Year at Kimball

THE Kimball student body has been unusually active this year because of its work in connection with the school's campaign for $200,000 endowment. By their agitation for such a campaign, the students have been credited with the actual inauguration of the movement, and a standing committee is directing student participation in this effort. The student body constitution has been completely revised this year. The officers are: President, C. M. Keefer; vice-president, W. W. Howard; secretary-treasurer, R. M. Gatke; reporter, H. O. Cooper; sergeant-at-arms, J. A. McNees.

The Kimball spring frolic occurred on the first Friday in May, all studies being completely superseded by picnic fun from the noon hour until evening.

At the senior chapel on March third, a fifty-dollar check was presented to the endowment fund as the senior gift.

Among the coming events are the president's recepton to the graduating class, the annual banquet of the Kimball alumni association, and other attending features of Commencement week.

Willamette in the Conference

Eight years ago, following a highly successful football season, efforts were begun to secure Willamette's admittance into the Northwest Conference. Although these early attempts proved unavailing, the University continued to put out strong athletic teams until the opening of the war, and even during the wartime period the Cardinal and Gold held its own, especially in basketball, with the fastest college quintets in the Northwest.

Following the close of the 1919 football season, Coach Mathews attended a meeting of the Northwest Conference directors to apply for admittance in basketball alone. The proposal was rejected, but Willamette was unanimously voted into the conference in all branches of athletics, thus verifying the reputation which has been gained by the University's representatives during the last few years. No more signal recognition has been shown the Institution during its history, and the forward step marks a new era in intercollegiate athletics for Willamette. The first conference basketball season saw the team supported in a loyal manner throughout a schedule of twenty contests, and all pessimism which foresaw failure in attempting to carry the increased financial burden accompanying conference athletics has been dispelled.

The fighting spirit which has distinguished Willamette's teams in the past continues to pervade the campus; a coach who has no peer in the Northwest is present to build up the athletic machines; the conference membership is an added attraction for better athletic material. Never before has the old school faced so brilliant a future.

CAPTAIN DIMICK Right Half

Dimick, "the noblest Roman of them all," was the old war horse of the team. Upon Dimick's sturdy shoulders an honor was placed that few men have won before—that of being twice captain of Bearcat football teams. Dimick's star does not burn with the brilliancy of some but it burns steadily and his punch was always forthcoming when it was most needed. It was his indomitable fighting spirit that called forth every ounce of fight in his teammates and which gave to W. U. the successful record that the team leaves behind.

LOREN BASLER

Center

"Let me fight 'em," is Basler's slogan and he carries it out to the fullest extent, yet under all conditions he is the coolest man on the field. He plays a versatile defensive game ordinarily, but when that doesn't work he can stick his head down and plough through with telling results. "Baz" played tackle in 1917, and the next year showed the English how to play a real man's game while stationed there in the navy.

PAUL BROWN

Tackle

Claims that he don't care much for the game, and wishes the crowd would stop yelling so he could hear the signal. Brown is no grandstander, but we notice he stayed in the game and held his own when most men would have been going home on a stretcher. He's a married man, which explains why he is so scrappy. He played guard in 1915.

LESTER DAY

Guard

"Where did that guy come from?" was the question which opposing backs were unable to solve. "Les" doesn't know himself how he manages to get through the line almost before the backs receive the ball—or else is too modest to explain. He doesn't waste time telling what he is going to do (maybe that's it) and works to beat the band at anything he is given to do. He subbed in 1917, made a regular place this year, and has two more years to g(r)o(w).

One hundred eleven

WILLARD LAWSON

Guard

That rarest of combinations, a modest freshman. He is a fine specimen of the genus homo, and will some day discover how powerful he is. Playing guard for Coach Mathews is a lot like playing halfback, but we expect to see Bill tearing in from a tackle position next year, spilling the opposing backs behind the line just as he did at guard last season.

WILLIS VINSON

End

Football is serious business to this white-topped streak of lightning. While not a spectacular player, Bill is an end without an apparent weakness—which is saying something. Hard luck came his way during the season, and still worse after the season was over, but we hope to have him with us again. Vinson is also afflicted with modesty, but there are those who fully appreciate him.

PAUL WAPATO

End

Coach never was sure where he needed "Wap" most, but he played end the greater part of last season, being pulled back occasionally to pass or carry the ball. His knack of spearing forward passes and his impenetrable defensive work were deciding factors in more than one game. In the two years he has been on the team Wapato has not missed a minute of play. He has never gained fame as a musician, but with this exception there doesn't seem to be anything Wap can't do.

One hundred twelve

ATHILL IRVINE

Quarter

"Tuffy" is a sensitive soul, and refuses to take odds from anyone. Therefore we must not mention that he weighs only 137 and played through most of the season with only one good leg, but must confine our remarks to stating that he knows more football than Walter Camp, barks out the signals in a way that would make a team of horses play football, and holds his own both on offense and defense.

HAROLD TOBIE

Tackle

Born a conqueror, and fitted not to browse in the dry mysteries of Math. and Psych. but to use bone and muscle in a worth-while struggle, Tobie missed some of the things in the curriculum, but gained a consciousness of power which few of us can know. How he suffered in every game none of us knows, but we do know how he fought. The turning out of such men is the final justification of college athletics.

WALDO ZELLER

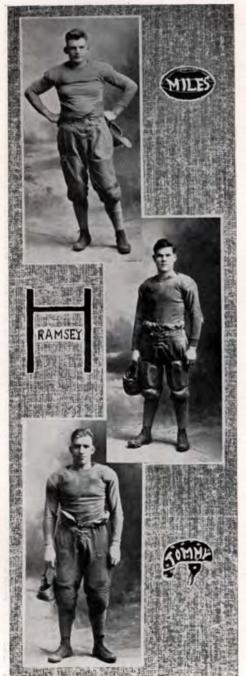

Half

Originator of the theory that it is easier to make a touchdown from the middle of the field than from the one-yard line. It is almost impossible to tackle him—the only successful system so far discovered is to impale yourself on his head and holler for help. "Fat" hails from Sunnyside, Washington, and this accounts for his sunny disposition, which doesn't change even in the thick of the fray. We wonder what would be the result if he ever did get "riled."

One hundred thirteen

ROSS MILES

Tackle

Injuries kept Miles out of all but the first game, but we know that he is a steady worker, a hard fighter, and a big man in every sense. Just as we honor the soldier who falls in battle, so in athletics should we remember the man who makes the sacrifice without gaining the reward he deserved.

BERNARD RAMSEY

Juar

Winner of the Hauser trophy cup awarded to the most valuable man on the squad who did not win a letter. He earned this honor by hard, conscientious work, and unquestioning loyalty to the team's best interests. Though one of the worst offenders in this line himself, he insists that Willamette men are the hardest to kill he ever saw, and advises hopeful youngsters to go elsewhere to sub.

ORIN THOMAS

End

Just another man who was quick to absorb the "old fight," and whose great deeds are yet before him. He showed a willingness and ability to play any position, whether he had experience there or not. Injuries alone kept Thomas from making a regular place in the lineup, for he is both fast and heavy, and has the football instinct to a marked degree.

One hundred fourteen

CAPTAIN-ELECT RAREY

ATHLETIC MANAGER FISHER

RUSSELL RAREY

Fullback

Though he was one of the lightest men on the team, fight and determination to do his best won for Russ the fullback position. Russ showed his superb grit in the Multnomah game, when he played through half the game with a broken ankle and then, to show that he was still a good man, went "fussing" that evening. Russ's earnestness in his work and ability to work well with the men should make him a popular captain next year.

Football

THE FOOTBALL SEASON OF 1919

The worth of Willamette's 1919 football eleven was demonstrated throughout a season of six hard games. Encountering stiff opposition in a majority of these contests, the Bearcats won the Northwest non-conference championship handily, held the strong alumni squad to a 3-3 score, and lost to the heavy Multnomah club team by two touchdowns after five of Coach Mathews' regulars had been forced from the battle with injuries.

The varsity was given its first real test on October 11, facing an alumni line-up composed of many real stars of former years. Using a few simple plays, but displaying great strength on defense, the University team played the ex-stars to a standstill, and only a 38-yard place-kick in the last five minutes of play saved the latter from defeat, for Dimick successfully executed a place-kick in the first quarter.

The varsity experienced a three weeks' rest as a result of the cancellation of two games, and the Chemawa Indians offered the Bearcats their first scalp of the season on November first. The visitors were on the defensive throughout the melee and were never able to advance beyond the forty-yard line, although they offered some stiff opposition. The team was strengthened in this game by the appearance of Harold Tobie, star tackle of pre-war days, who went into the battle with a single day's practice and smeared the opposing plays as of old. From that time, "Tobe" filled his former position throughout the season.

Pacific University's eleven trotted onto Sweetland Field the following Saturday to secure vengeance for many former defeats. This game found the varsity somewhat crippled, which was shown in the offensive play throughout the afternoon, but the "old fight" came out strong and gave to Willamette a well-earned victory, 12-0.

In the Multnomah game of November fifteenth, the true Willamette fighting spirit was demonstrated, and the varsity held the experienced clubmen, averaging thirty pounds heavier, to a 24-12 score. Willamette scored the first touchdown in the opening quarter, when Zeller received an onside kick at the 35-yard line, and sprinted over for a touchdown. Multnomah made two touchdowns in the first two quarters, but Wapato evened the score in the third period with another six points. By the end of the third quarter, Basler had two vertebrae discolated, Rarey had a broken ankle, Day was out with a sprained knee, and Tobie was forced from the game in a battered condition, while four of the other men, including Captain Dimick, were in bad shape, although remaining in the game. With a new, inexperienced line-up, the Bearcats staged the greatest defensive exhibition ever witnessed here, but they could not stop the terrific line-plnging of "Pruny" Francis and Miller, who carried the ball over for the final set of touchdowns and the victory.

Day, Rarey, and Bill Vinson were out of the game for the rest of the season, and the following Saturday at Reed showed the Bearcats to be in a badly weakened condition. As a result, only three touchdowns were made on the Portlanders, while they broke through the demoralized defense for two scores.

The final battle of the year and the one to decide the non-conference honors came on Thanksgiving Day, when the College of Puget Sound gridders invaded Sweetland Field. Although Rarey and Vinson were still out of the line-up, the team appeared to have regained a part of its lost strength, and a touchdown by Zeller in the first quarter, following a spectacular 60-yard run, opened a way for a supposedly easy victory. Hard luck in the way of fumbles followed the Bearcats through the contest, however, and a place-kick by Dimick resulted in the only other score of the afternoon.

Besides the men previously mentioned, a number of subs broke into the fray for short periods, and several of these exhibited ability which should secure for them varsity berths in another year or two. It fell to the lot of Ganzans, a freshman, to lead the team in several of the battles in the absence of Irvine, and he showed a good knowledge of the game. Power, Barnes, and Sherwood had their first taste of real football and made a creditable showing, while Jackson, who was unable to turn out until late in the season, has considerable playing time to his credit. Many other men whose praises will never be loudly sung, reported for the daily grind, and gave the varsity good scrimmage practice.

With Dimick the only senior on the squad, prospects for a winning eleven in 1920 are good, although several conference teams may be met and the opposition will be of a stronger nature.

BASKETBALL

CAPTAIN WAPATO Forward

For three seasons Wapato has not been out of the line-up for a minute, and he always plays more than his share of the game. When things are going bad Wap tears around the floor like a wild man, and whoever gets in his way is just out of luck—even though Wap is a gentle youth and disposed to turn the other cheek. Wapato was given honorable mention by Bohler for the all Northwest team this year.

RUSSELL RAREY

Guard

For two seasons Rarey just missed his letter by a few minutes, but this year he played every minute after the first three games. Nothing was seen to equal him as a back guard in the conference. He covers all the territory within twenty feet of the basket and even with two men bearing down on him with the ball he usually manages to smear the play. "Fight" is Russ' middle name.

REIN JACKSON

Conte

Breaking in under the basket is Jackson's specialty, and many badly needed points were annexed by this lanky Bearcat, by means of those easy tosses which no one else could make. At center he held some of the best men in the conference even and played a steady, reliable game at all times. He showed his unsurpassed grit by playing through two of the hardest games of the season on a sprained ankle.

BRYAN McKITTRICK

Juar

In several of the most important games of the season this calm veteran registered the number of points necessary to win. He is a dead shot from the foul line, and his favorite trick is to slip down the floor and score before his man can find him. McKittrick played both forward and guard, scoring regularly from either position, and ending the season as high point man of the team with one hundred and thirty-one points.

One hundred twenty-one

CLARE GILLETTE

Forward

As a long shot artist "Jete" proved to be a dangerous man, coming through a number of times with one of his perfect throws when the points were needed to put Willamette on the credit side of the score book. Furthermore, "Jeter" is there with the team work and plays guard and forward with equal efficiency. A year's experience in conference basketball should work wonders, and we look for Gillette to be a shining light next year.

ATHILL IRVINE

Forward

"Tuffy" played fast ball at both forward and guard positions during the early part of the year, but hard luck in basket shooting and injuries kept him on the bench as the season progressed. In the dressing-room "Tuffy" kept everyone laughing at his new (?) jokes, and at his arguments on the subject of holding. Irvine knows basketball and uses his head well on the floor and next season should see him on the first string again.

RAMON DIMICK

Guard

"Squint," whose nickname has nothing to do with his beauty, is the southpaw boy marvel—nothing less. Although he can shoot as well as any, his chief value to the team is his playing the floor. His presence in the line-up speeds up the passing to the point where opponents can only stand and blink. His cheerful personality and catlike activity excite the admiration of the fair fans, but it's no use—he never falls.

Basketball

THE BASKETBALL SEASON OF 1919-1920

The Cardinal and Gold basketball followers were treated to the most extensive season of high-class basketball in the history of the indoor game at Willamette, as a result of the school's entry into Northwest conference athletic circles. Admitted into the conference just prior to the baskeball season, the Bearcat quintet won from two conference fives besides holding the fastest teams in the confederacy to low scores and losing several contests after maintaining a good lead throughout the first half. Nonconference battles were all victories for Willamette, while a two-game series with the Multnomah club was evenly divided, and several independent teams were defeated by the University men.

Four wearer of the "W" appeared for the pre-vacation workouts, and, together with a wealth of other material, some experienced, insured a fast line-up to reprsent Willamette. Captain Wapato and McKittrick had each seen two seasons of varsity basketball; Jackson, the 1917 center, returned to school to fill his old position; Esteb was a forward on the 1917 squad, while Rarey and Irvine, although not lettermen, had had enough varsity experience to give them a strong chance for first team positions. Gillette and Dimick of last year's freshman team, Austin, a former utility man, and other experienced players, were all in line for regular berths.

After two weeks of practice, the squad met the Chemawa Indians in the first test of the year and lived up to expectations by registering a 34-22 victory. Following the Christmas holidays the real workouts were begun and another pre-season trial was given the Bearcats when they journeyed to Dallas to battle the fast American Legion quintet. Though the team had worked poorly in practice previous to this time, they staged a brilliant passing and shooting game against Dallas, winning by a single point.

January fifteenth marks the University's debut into conference athletics, for on that day the Whitman College representatives arrived for a two-game series with Coach Mathews' men. Superior passing and the basket shooting of Rich and Dement gave the Missionaries a double victory, revealing the weaknesses in the Willamette line-up and necessitating a week of hard practice and readjustment before the Oregon Aggie contests.

WILLAMETTE 46; RITZVILLE 15. Killing Time at Ritzville, Washington.

A wonderful transformation came over the Cardinal and Gold quintet during that week, for on the following Friday night they displayed a brand of basketball against the O.A.C. team which had not been equalled here before. Taking the lead early in the game, the Bearcats set the pace throughout the forty minutes of play and won, 26-25. The series was evened on the following night at Corvallis, when the Beavers captured a 25-18 contest. On Jaunary 29th the University of Oregon's baseball five was the reason for another Bearcat defeat, which was disappointing inasmuch as the Willamette men held a comfortable lead until the last ten minutes of play. The procedure was repeated the same week-end in Eugene.

Without the services of "Squint" Dimick in the O.A.C. and Oregon games, the varsity had not been represented by its full strength, gut he recovered sufficiently to leave with the team on Februard third for a northern invasion of six contests. Coach Mathews took on the trip Captain Wapato, Jackson, McKittrick, Rarey, Dimick, Gillette, Irving and Austin.

Again two heart-breaking battles were dropped to the Whitman tossers, after the varsity had rolled up a big lead in the second game. The University of Idaho's 1919 champions surprised Coach Mathews' quintet with a new system of offense, winning by a decisive score, but these defeats were partially compensated by easy victories over the Ritzville American Legion, Spokane University, and Washington State College.

On their return to Salem, the team met the Multnomah Athletic Club of Portland in what was perhaps the greatest exhibition of the season. After the Varsity had secured a three-point lead in the overtime period, the clubmen annexed two long field baskets and saved themselves from apparent defeat. The climax for heartrending battles came the following week, when, after a three days' rest, the Idahoans were entertained in a two-game series at Salem. Never was a harder defeat experienced than in the first of these contests, when, after a gruelling fight lasting 55 minutes, the visitors won by a single field basket. Several occasions saw the varsity on the margin of victory, but the "breaks" of the game carried the teams through three overtime periods and brought with it defeat for the Cardinal and Gold. The Bearcats experienced an off night in the second Idaho game, with the result that lax guarding, coupled with phenomenal shooting by Hunter of the visitors, lost a one-sided contest to the invaders.

One hundred twenty-four

(19 77 21)

Pacific University sent her basket tossers on March third to bow down before Willamette's altar. In a slow and poorly played exhibition the old-time rivals were vanquished by a small score, and the following week some hard workouts were indulged in to get into shape for the return contest with Multnomah. The clubmen had met several high-class conference teams and had a clean record up to the evening of March tenth, when Coach Mathews' rejuvenated quintet surprised them by a complete victory, 29-20. Although the visitors made a number of long shots, close guarding kept them from breaking into close range, while Dimick and McKittrick shot baskets from all angles for the varsity. For good measure, the team went to Forest Grove for a return game with Pacific University, capturing the final contest of the season by a comfortable lead.

The calibre of the 1920 quintet is illustrated by the number of close games played with leading conference quintets and by the clean slate of victories over non-conference institutions. Participating in conference games for the first time in history, the team made a highly satisfactory showing, and with this season's experience should win a considerable share of next year's contests. Not a single letterman will be lost this spring by graduation, so the outlook is highly encouraging.

BASEBALL

CAPTAIN McKITTRICK First Base

"Mac" came to Willamette with a reputation as a first sacker, and nobody has disputed his right to the position after watching his work during the past two seasons. Fielding of the highest order and a thorough knowledge of the game earned for McKittrick a captaincy in his sophomore year. Though naturally at home on first base, his work on the mound has been a valuable asset in the pinches. That special "hook" slide is a contributing factor in making him adept at base running, and he closed the season at the top of the scoring list.

PAUL BROWN

Brown came back from the navy with "gobs" of pep for baseball, and his experience, combined with his ability and love for the game, gave him the captaincy of the 1920 team. Brown considers it feminine to wear a uniform neatly, and not becoming to a real ball player. This theory works out well in his case for he swings a bat and handles his black mit like a big leaguer.

HAROLD DIMICK

Pitcher

Dimick pitched nice ball during the season, winning two out of the three games he started. Dim works cooly while on the slab and his experience carries him over many rough places. This sterling athlete has one more year to work on the diamond, and his batting and pitching should give W.U. several victories to crown his wonderful career in athletics at Willamette. We'll miss Dim when he is gone.

OSCAR OLSON Third Base

Olson was shifted from short to third base to strengthen that side of the diamond. He played a nice game there, cutting down many hot drives and pegging well to the bases. "Frosty" was elected captain, but his matrimonial ambitions kept him from heading the team this season. Here's many good wishes, Frosty, for a long and happy future.

LELAND AUSTIN Left Field

Austin appeared in a varsity suit the first night out and had his picture taken in it—however, he managed to keep it all season. "Perce" succeeded in acquiring two large strawberries early in the season which probably had something to do with his staying off the bases. He covered left field in an acceptable manner and gives promise of becoming a strong stick wielder. Another year should see him one of the strong men on the team.

One hundred twenty-nine

PAUL WAPATO

Center Field

Wapato was the old head in the outfield and his presence there helped greatly to steady it. Wap is another one of the dressing-room jokers—there he likes to make the coach laugh as he mourns over his loss of weight. In fielding Wap's percentage is above the average, while in batting he swings his big, black war-club at a .400 clip.

LOREN BASLER

Catcher

The need of a catcher brought Loren Herman into prominence, for though without experience at that position, he was willing to try anything once. Baz has a good "line" and he uses it to good advantage, causing many a batter to strike at a bad ball. He has naturally an aggressive nature which goes far toward making a good catcher, and his stick work is bound to improve during the coming season.

GORDON HICKMAN Right Field Hickman played a steady game throughout the season, showing greater promise with the passing of each succeeding game. "Hick" was always a hard worker, fast on his feet and a man who was not afraid to "hit the dirt." His good judgment in base running won him the recognition of being the only man on the team whom the coach allowed to steal at will.

在图片图像是 最高的特殊

LAWRENCE DAVIES Short Stop

Davies broke into the game at second base but was moved to the short field position where his "peg" could be used to better advantage. The "young fellow" filled his position in nice style and at bat his short, sharp grounders over second placed him well up in the batting average. Davies' sunny smile and cheerful disposition are always in evidence on the field and his baseball playing, like good wine, grows better with each passing season.

RAMON DIMICK Second Base

"Squint" won his spurs his first year out, covering the keystone sack like a veteran. Young Dim promises to outshine his big brother on the diamond before many years pass. Dimick is the only southpaw on the squad, but he takes his honors modestly and his work, both at bat and in fielding, continues to improve with each passing contest.

KENNETH POWER Utility

Power was the general handy man through the season, and though he failed to break into many contests he was always useful somewhere on the diamond. In practice Ken did everything from chasing flies in the outfield to donning the chest protector and mask behind the plate. Power was a hard worker and a year's experience should do wonders in his playing next year.

Baseball

THE 1919 BASEBALL SEASON

Although an extensive baseball season seemed assured when the 1919 spring workouts were started, bad weather and ineffectual attempts to secure games reduced the number of contests to three, and deprived the varsity of a chance to show their real strength. From the squad of six lettermen, a number of former utility players, and several freshman candidates, a team was built up which excelled that of the previous year in both hitting and defensive playing.

A new battery was developed early in the season, several shifts were made in the infield to good advantage, and the new outfield was strengthened considerably by new material. Dimick was destined to perform the greater share of the mound duty, while Basler, without previous experience, worked on the receiving staff like a veteran.

The season's opening contest against the Chemawa Indians, who had captured three of the four games played with the varsity the year before, was a feature of the junior week-end. A long string of base hits, combined with errors, gave Willamette a one-sided victory with an 8-2 score. The return battle was also a Cardinal and Gold victory, although the 10-8 result indicates a much closer game than the first one. Following this, a ragged seven-inning contest was dropped to the O.A.C. Rooks.

Arriving in mid-season the team faced the cancellation of two other games, and efforts to revise the schedule proving futile, the team was disbanded.

Baseball promises to be the leading attraction this spring, with a full list of fast games assured by Willamette's advent into conference athletics.

THE VARSITY VERSUS O. A. C. Irvine Scores on Page's Sacrifice Hit.

The return of ex-service men and the presence of many other experienced players is good evidence that the 1920 Bearcat line-up will be the strongest for years. The infield, which will be selected from McKittrick, Page, Irvine, R. Dimick, and Davies, should rank among the fastest college combinatons in the Northwest, which the outgarden, although built around a single veteran, promises to be above standard. Austin, who is improving his stickwork this spring, will likely be seen in left field, while Power, Brewster, Spiess, and several freshmen will fight for the open positions. Jackson and Irvine, both overseas men, will be in line for considerable mound work, although Dimick may break into some of the games, and Brown, a veteran of the 1916 squad, has been detailed to catch. Basler will also be a valuable assistant there, with a year of varsity experience.

TRACK

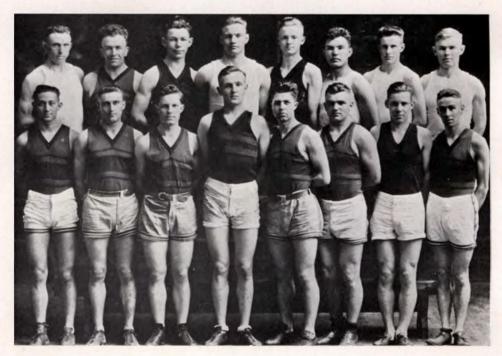

CAPTAIN NICHOLS

Weights-Jumps

Nichols threw the discus and put the shot in finished style, but his prettiest work was in the high jump, where he cleared the bar consistently at five feet six. His work in track was as clean-cut as it was in baseball. "Nick" was a conscientious giant who always did his very best in whatever he attempted. Track was no exception to him and it was by his steady "plugging" night after night that won for him the honor of being high point man of the squad.

ROBBIN FISHER

Middle Distance

In the interclass track meet Fisher surprised every one by taking first in the half-mile with little apparent effort. Later he was sent to the Columbia meet at Portland, where he managed to place in the half after a wonderful race against older and more experienced men. Since then Bobby has been a consistent point-getter in all Willamette meets and his earnestness in his track work gave him the honor of being elected captain for the 1920 season.

HOMER TASKER Jumps—Weights
Consistent hard work throughout four seasons won a letter for Homer in his senior year. With his fellow "string bean" pushing him hard in the high jump he managed to go a little over five feet six, which was usually enough to win. His dependable work in the weights counted several more points for W. U., and his presence in these events will be missed next year.

MERRILL OHLING—Distance Events
"Hike" proved his ability to measure off the mile in both meets, but he was unable to capture first place in that event because a horse, disguised as a Chemawa athlete, always crossed the line ahead of him. In the halfmile, "Hike" showed his real ability by winning a first in that event for the Cardinal and Gold. Ohling has a stride that few men can equal and with more experience in setting the pace should break the tape ahead of most of his competitors.

KEITH LYMAN Pole Vault

Keith got out of his high school pole vault habits by placing the bar a foot higher when going over for Willamette. Unfortunately for himself Keith is a specialist and although he captured firsts in the pole vault he was unable to annex the three additional points necessary for a letter. He is, however, a good man in the discus and javelin and will, without a doubt, capture a winged "W" next season.

One hundred thirty-seven

HAROLD DIMICK Dashes—Javelin Not content with capturing letters in all other major sports, and a Bar "W" as well, Dimick found time to annex some additional "W's" in track. He placed consistently in the dashes and his work with the javelin improved wonderfully over that of last season, Dim could usually pick up a point or three in the broad jump, discus or 220, and he could always run a strong race in the relay, especially if that relay was needed to win the meet.

LYLE BARTHOLOMEW

Hurdles—Dashes
"Bart's" specialty is the hurdles, although the century and 220 dashes also receive a share of his attention.
He had good form in running and succeeded in gleaning enough points to win the coveted "W". Another year should see him well up among the chief scorers in the meets.

JOHN MEDLER Dashes—Hurdles Medler was especially adept at scorching the track in the short distances, and both high and low hurdles. Johnny was a broad jumper, too, of no mean ability, but his fondness for Roses may cause him to give up athletics and go to farming. We hope there is nothing in the rumor, however, for Johnny's good-natured smile and keen wit would be missed on the field, as well as around Eaton Hall steps, if he were to leave us.

THE INTERCLASS TRACK MEET Jackson (Juniors) Wins Relay

THE TRACK SEASON OF 1919

Although considerable attention was devoted to track work in the early part of the 1919 season, and efforts were made to revive the annual non-conference meets in addition to securing several dual contests, the year came to a close after two meets had been held with the Chemawa Indians as opponents. The first of these contests, staged on Sweetland Field during junior week-end, resulted in a 69-53 victory for the Bearcats, while the return meet was a 54-54 tie. Previous to the Chemawa contests a team of five men was sent to the Columbia indoor meet in Portland, Fisher making a good showing in the half-mile event.

Although Fisher is the only letterman from the 1919 squad who is working on the cinder path this spring, several other "W" men who have returned from the service will add new strength to the team. Paul Brown is a weight man of no little ability, while Athill Irvine won the hurdles from the best in the state in 1915. Jackson made a first-class showing in the local meet this spring, as did Lyman, Zeller, Gillette, Ganzans, and several other men.

Although no schedule for the season has been arranged, it is probable that no non-conference meets will be staged, but Coach Mathews may take a squad of men to the conference gathering at Pullman during the last part of May. However, an extensive season is not planned, inasmuch as several of the track men are members of the baseball squad and baseball will be the principal spring attraction.

MARY FINDLEY

Tennis

Miss Findley is Willamette's veteran tennis player, having won her first letter in the spring of 1916 while enrolled in the Academy. Mary has set a high standard in girls' tennis which ranks favorably with that of other Oregon colleges. Last year she had little trouble in defeating the *O.A.C. girls' singles champion in straight sets, 6-3, 6-3. For the last two years Miss Findley has enjoyed the honor of being the only woman member of the "W" Club.

NOBLE MOODHE

Tennis

When it comes to real ability in the net game, Moodhe is in a class by himself. In the opinion of older men "Nibs" probably never has had an equal at Willamette. Playing with a cool and relentless spirit Moodhe places the ball in different parts of the court with an ease that is uncanny. The facility with which he defeated the O.A.C. singles representative in straight sets is evidence of his ability. Although modest himself in regard to his playing, "Nibs'" opponents are loud in their praise of him.

FRESHMAN BASKETBALL SEASON

The Freshman Basketball Team, altho organized rather late in the season and encountering several difficulties, put in a very successful season. They took the interclass series at Willamette in two fast, decisive games, and held Salem High School, the State Interscholastic champions, to a 16-21 score.

Only one game was played away from Salem. The Frosh journeyed to Newberg to meet Newberg High and returned on the big side of a 20-15 game. During this game Thomas made an excellent record of converting six out of seven free throws. Later, in a return game, Newberg was revenged by winning from the First Year men by two points

Wapato acted as coach for the Rooks, and altho he was very busy with varsity ball he succeeded in whipping them into good shape. Several of the Frosh promise to make excellent varsity material in another year or two. Ganzans, who played a fast game at forward, and Socolofsky, captain, and a strong guard, were both members of the varsity squad this season. Stone is a promising center, and after a little more experience he will undoubtedly make a good showing. Ellis is a steady, hard-working forward, and Thomas plays an admirable game at either forward or guard.

Interclass Rivalry

Interclass athletic activity for the spring of 1919 was confined wholly to the track and field meet, since the annual tennis tournament was not staged last year. A novel field meet, in which the affiliated members of each class were entered in every event, was won easily by the 1921 representatives. Success in keeping a one hundred per cent representation on the field was a factor which aided materially in swelling the sophomores' final score.

In the fall of 1919 interclass competition was placed upon a regulative basis by the adoption of interclass rivalry rules, which ceded to a rivalry committee the supervision of all interclass contests. The first event to be staged under the new system was the cross country run just prior to the start of the Multnomah football game in November. With her five representatives all placing near the top of the list, the junior class continued her long string of victories by capturing the cross country event, Fisher being the first man to cross the finish line. He was followed closely by Gillette of the sophomores, but the next two places both went to junior entrants. The winning team was composed of Fisher, Flegel, Davies, Medler and McIntire.

The annual freshman-sophomore bag rush which, however, is not included in the interclass rivalry ranking, was won last fall by the frosh, after a hard fight. Immediately afterwards an orange and black '23 assumed its place with other class numerals on the grandstand.

Following the Christmas holidays a doughnut basketball league was organized to give every man in the University an opportunity to indulge in the indoor game. The league consisted of six freshman quintets, three from the sophomore class, and one from each of the upper classes, each team meeting every other one, so that an exciting series of six weeks followed. Although the results of this schedule did not count toward the interclass rivalry scores, a good opportunity was afforded for the selection of the regular class teams, which played for the University championship early in March. The winners in the doughnut league were the "Polecats," a team of freshmen. In the first game of the interclass series, the juniors came fully up to expectations by winning a decisive victory over the senior quintet, the final score being 49-16. The following afternoon found the freshmen and sophomores battling in a fast, but one-sided contest, which ended 21-7, a frosh victory. Although the odds for the champion-ship struggle appeared comparatively even, close guarding prevented the junior offense from slipping under the basket, while the freshman forwards engaged in a spectacular shooting game. The rally of the uperclassmen in the second half could not overcome the freshman lead, with the result that championship honors went to the 1923 class by a score of 27-19. Following is the personnel of the class teams:

Senior—Legge and Kelty, forwards; Austin, center; Doughton and Spiess, guards. Miller and Brewster, spares.

Junior-Fisher and Davies, forwards; Basler, center; Socolofsky and Lyman, guards. Foster and Bennett, spares.

Sophomore—Doney and Harra, forwards; Lucker, center; Power and Irvine, guards. Sackett and Buren, spares.

Freshman—Ganzans and Ellis, forwards; Stone, center; Thomas and Socolofsky, guards. Notson, Strevey and Bain, spares.

The next instance of athletic rivalry was the interclass track and field meet this spring, which was captured by the juniors with an eight-point lead over their nearest opponents, the freshman representatives. The winners took firsts in the half-mile, 440, 220, discus, pole vault, and relay, besides placing well towards the top in several other events. Jackson, of the juniors, was high point man with thirteen, and Ganzans, freshman sprinter and hurdler, came second with eleven points.

The tennis remains to be played to complete the interclass competition for 1919-1920, but the sophomores, represented by Moodhe, Doney, and Findley, are expected to take first place with little difficulty. Another item is the number of men contributed by each class to the varsity athletic and forensic teams. Present predictions give the first three places to the juniors, sophomores, and freshmen, respectively. At any rate, the final rivalry results are certain to exceptionally close. The class scores, omitting the last-named events, read as follows:

SALEM HIGH'S STATE CHAMPIONS

Oregon Interscholastic Tournament

The State Interscholastic Basketball Tournament was held at Willamette, March fourth, fifth and sixth, under the auspices of the Greater Willamette Club and the management of Coach Mathews. The tournaments was the most successful ever staged in Oregon, the Greater Willamette Club furnishing splendid entertaainment for the visiting high school teams, which represented every section of the state.

Twelve teams competed in the preliminary series on the first day. The result of the first round of play was as follows: Salem 45—Astoria 18; Ashland 24—Medford 11; Forest Grove 29—The Dalles 19; Lincoln 52—Rainier 16; Albany 35—Madras 19; La Grande 31—Marshfield 21.

The second daya, during which the semi-finals were fought out, witnessed some hard, fast work and conclusive scores: Lincoln 36—Ashland 16; Albany 35—Forest Grove 26; Salem 36—La Grande 20.

Semi-finals: Lincoln High 50-Albany High 11.

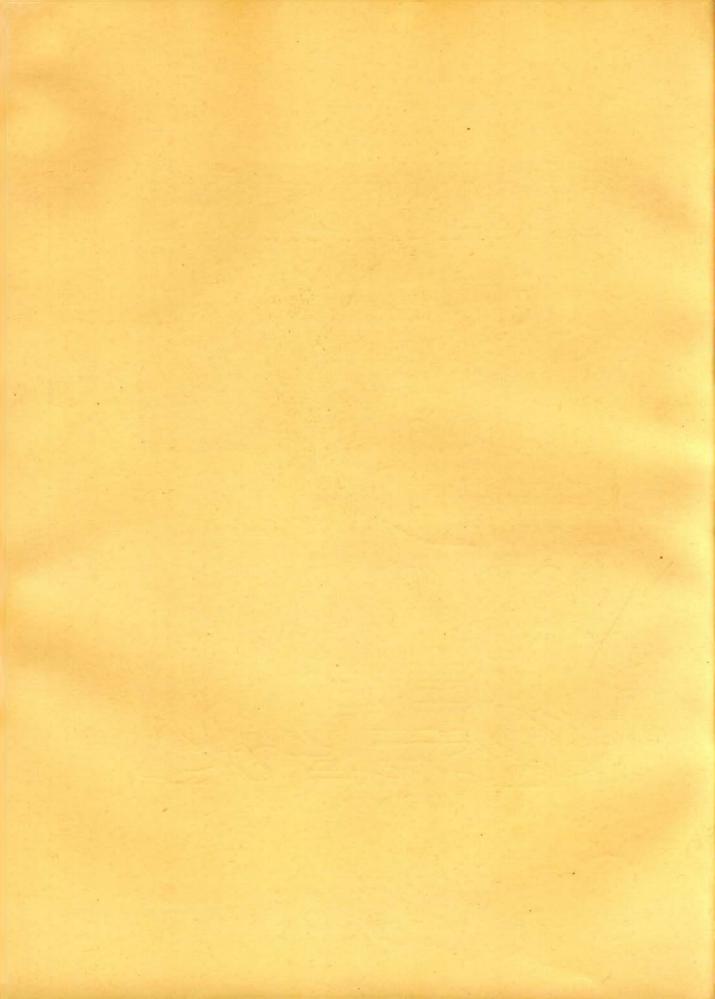

The final game was staged the afternoon of the third day between Lincoln and Salem, before an enthusiastic audience of 2000. The game was by far the closest and hardest fought of the tournament. Both teams put up a wonderful exhibition of guarding. The outcome of the game was in doubt until the very end, but in the last minute of play E. Gill of Salem slipped in the winning basket, thus making Salem the undisputed State Interscholastic Champions. Final score: Salem 12—Lincoln 11.

Coach Mathews then picked an All-State team and gave several men honorable mention. The All-State team: Beck, forward (Lincoln); Wright, forward (Lincoln); E. Gill, center (Salem); Cole, guard (Lincoln), captain; A. Gill, guard (Salem); alt., Shafer, forward (Salem); alt., Leggitt (Lincoln).

STUDENT GOVERNMENT-

The question of student government and the honor system for Willamette may comprise a vital issue for student-body consideration next year. Discussion with regard to this plan of control is being promulgated on the campus at the present time, but student sentiment in favor of the project has not crystallized to a sufficiently high degree to warrant its presentation before the student body. Apparently, opinion is now strongly divided, but with numerous advocates in both the faculty and student body for a trial of the honor system, it is altogether probable that an opportunity will arise next year for a definite expression of the student body's attitude toward the plan.

Girls' Willamette Club

The Girls' Willamette Club is an organization to promote real democracy in campus life, to develop ideals of friendship, and to perpetuate the memory of Jason Lee. The Co-ed Carnival, held this year for the first time, proved an excellent means of bringing University girls into closer contact with each other and with the faculty ladies. It is to be hoped that this affair will become an annual event. Bernice Knuths was President for the year, and Beatrice Dunnette, Song Leader.

Members of this organization are among Willamette's most ardent boosters. Their aim is to interest Washington students in Willamette, and Willamette students in the Evergreen State. That they have been successful is evidenced by their rapidly increasing membership, which has now almost reached the hundred mark. The annual banquet given by the members of the society on Washington's birthday is an event enjoyed by the entire student body. Willamette is justly proud of her Washingtonians.

One hundred fifty-one

Alumni Association

MERTON DeLONG President

In the possession of the officers of this association is an old, timeworn book, yellow with age, and on its pages are recorded the happenings at all the annual meetings of our venerable association.

The first recorded meeting was held July 25, 1867, when "pursuant to appointment twenty-six of the graduates of 'Willamet University' met * * * | for the purpose of forming an Alumni Association," at which meeting Professor F. H. Grubbs was elected the first president and P. L. Willis, secretary. Annual meetings have been held continuously since then during the week of Commencement.

The worn old record-book above referred to cites many instances where faithful members have tried, sometimes in vain, sometimes with better success, to arouse the members to take a more lively interest in the association and the school that has given them so much. Each succeeding senior class solemnly vow among themselves to return for each Commencement, attend the alumni meetings and banquet, and there meet the old classmates and renew old acquaintances. But when the cap and gown have given way to the conventional clothing of the business world it is all too easy to forget the "old school." When we do think of her it is to feel proud that we are among those who sat in her halls and that she is our Alma Mater.

Let us never forget "the ladder by which we have climbed," but through our spirit of co-operation, ideas, financial assistance or otherwise, do all we can toward placing her where she rightfully belongs—in the front rank among the best colleges and universities of the land.

The Fraternity Situation at Willamette

RATERNITIES for both men and women are in the experimental stage on the University campus. So far, the organizations are of a social or dramatic character. At the present time they are in the form of clubs, and are not legal local fraternities because there has been no recognition given them by the Board of Trustees. Much consideration is being given, and a long time taken for experiment, in order that the decision may be best for the interests of the school. Officials and students are both desirous of the establishment of fraternities, if the effects will aid in the development of the University. For this reason, no final action has yet been taken by the Trustees, but the matter will come up for final settlement at the meeting in January, 1921.

In the meantime, the fraternity and sorority spirit is increasing among members of the student body, as several new organizations have made their formal appearance upon the campus this spring. A wise decision cannot be reached until fraternities and sororities have been given a fair trial and have proved that they are adaptable to the needs of Willamette, and conducive to her best cultural and educational interests.

The Missionary Committee

The Missionary Committee at Willamette is a direct result of the Student Volunteer Convention at Des Moines, Iowa, which was held at the close of 1919. It is composed of three representatives each from the Y.M. C. A., Y.W. C. A., and Student Volunteer Band. The purpose of the committee is to centralize missionary activities in the hands of a few, to interest the student body at large, and to promote an organized campaign for Student Volunteers, Life Service Pledges, and financial support. Each branch of the work is carried on by sub-committees, thus insuring efficiency in the prosecution of the work.

The Committee has this spring carried on a successful financial drive for $536 in the University, and arranged to utilize the visit of Mr. J. R. Wilson, traveling secretary of the Student Volunteer movement, so that the students might receive the most possible benefit from both public talks and personal interviews.

Student Volunteer Band

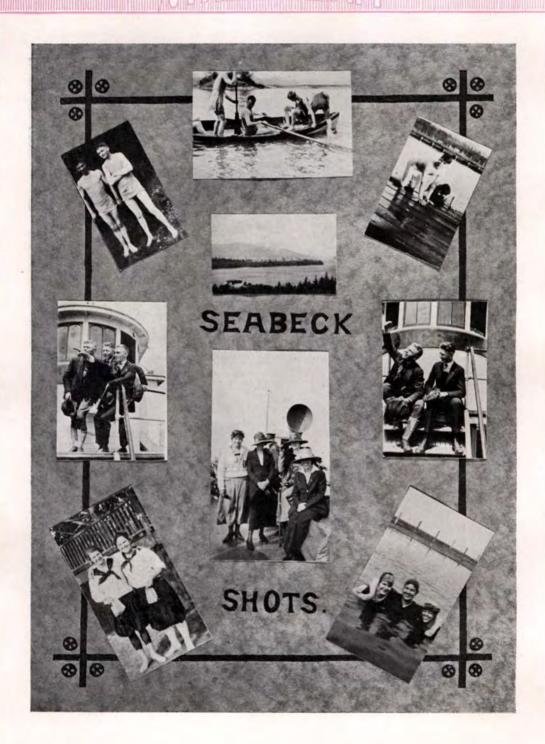

This organization is composed of students who are looking forward to "overseas" life service. The membership of the Band has trebled during the past year, and the interest has been greater than for several years.

Five delegates from Willamette were sent to the Student Volunteer Convention at Des Moines, which convened from Jan. 29 to Feb. 4. These students returned more enthusiastic than ever in promoting world service, through informational means and presentaton of opportunities for life work.

Regular weekly meetings are held by the members of the Band, and at intervals all students interested in the work are invited to special programs. Several returned missionaries have given interesting talks about their work at these open meetings. Virginia Mason has been Leader of the Band for the year.

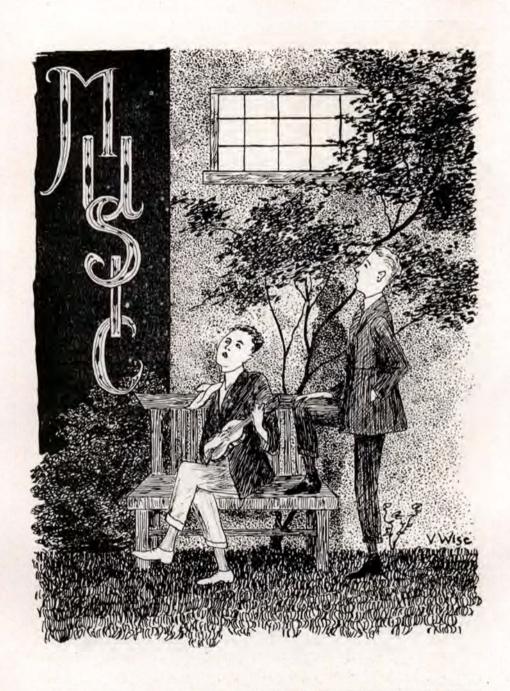

Next year the work of the committee should be still more successful as the leaders profit by the experience of this spring. Robbin Fisher has acted as chairman since the beginning of the organization.

A two weeks' invasion of northwest cities and towns by the varsity warblers was completed on the fourteenth of February, when the glee club returned to the campus from the first extended tour since 1918. This year twelve successful concerts were presented in cities of eastern Oregon, the Yakima Valley, and Puget Sound territory, in addition to a like number produced before Willamette Valley audiences. A varied program of the highest order was the result of an early start effected in the glee club work last fall, coupled with expert training and good management. While this season's successes have marked the climax of several years' effort, indications point to a well-balanced organization and another good season for 1921.

Efforts of the Ladies' Glee Club this spring have been concentrated upon the production of the comic operetta, "The Yokohama Maid," presented during junior week-end by the two glee clubs and other music students. In the attempt to make this production one not soon to be forgotten, plans for the annual Salem concert of the organization have been set aside. However, much has been accomplished this year toward developing a high class concert program, which will simplify the glee club work for next year and insure a successful season. Wth the excellent start already made, supported by plenty of enthusiasm and a club of carefully trained voices, the girls hope to be a potent factor in advertising Willamette during the coming year.

MISS MARGARET GARRISON, '18

Winner of the national Intercollegiate Prohibition Association oratorical contest, Des Moines, Iowa, January 5, 1920. Miss Garrison was the representative of the Pacific Coast universities by virtue of her decisive victories in both the state and interstate contests three years ago. She won the national honors over a field of seven contestants representing every section of the United States.

Prof. Miller Coach of Oratory

Mr. Rahskopf Assistant in Debate

Intercollegiate Debate

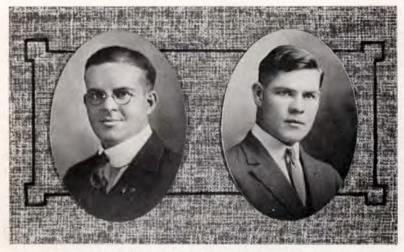

The question for varsity debate, "Resolved, that the United States should assume mandatory control over Mexico," called out eight contestants: Bernard Ramsey, Howard George, Sheldon Sackett, Frank Bennett, Ina Moore, Dewey Probst, Bernardo Gapuz, and Verne Bain, of whom the first four mentioned won places on the team. Since all of the winners were of the negative side, Sackett and George changed their arguments to fit affirmative convictions, leaving the opposition to Ramsey and Bennett.

A dual debate with the College of Puget Sound and a triangular contest with Pacific University and McMinnville College completed the intercollegiate debating season, since a second triangular was cancelled by one of the opposing teams. An excellent showing was made in each contest, the varsity speakers securing an even break with C. P. S. and winning the triangular debate by a single point. Obviously, the affirmative side of the question was the more difficult, for in no intercollegiate debate was an affirmative team victorious. However, the one vote which Willamette's affirmative team secured in the Pacific debate, combined with the unanimous decision won by the negative over McMinnville, gave the University men the winning score in the triangular.

Failure to secure a concession permitting the affirmative team to travel in the latter debate deprived the Salem audience of a chance to see Ramsey and Bennett in action, but their double victory is ample evidence of their season's work. Every member of the debating squad will be at Willamette next year, so future platform prospects are highly encouraging. Manager McGrew has handled the forensic program this year in a very successful manner, and the coaching has been directed by Professor Miller and Mr. Rahskopf.

Women's Debate

A challenge from the Oregon Agricultural College aroused activities in the realm of women's debate this spring. The question, "Resolved, that the principal cause for America's present wave of anarchy is to be found in unjust labor conditions in this country," was agreed upon, and by issuing a number of further challenges Willamette was successful in securing debates with the College of Puget Sound, Pacific University, and McMinnville College, in addition to the dual contest with the Oregon Agricultural College co-eds.

The question dealt with an issue vital to America's welfare today, yet profound enough to require unlimited research work. However, fourteen contestants wrestled with the problem for a period of six weeks, and eight of them entered the tryout. Places on the squad were won by Myrtle Mason, Lorlei Blatchford, Ina Moore, and Helen Hoover, the first two named being assigned to the affirmative side. The other contestants were Lola Housley, Grace Tyler, Hazel Bear, and Crystal Lockhart.

As the season draws near its close, victory has come to the Willamette women in every instance save one. The first contest was divided with the College of Puget Sound, while double victories have resulted from each of the other sessions, with the Aggie debate remaining on the schedule. Although co-ed debating was inaugurated at Willamette this year for the first time, its instant favor and the constant successes of the teams will no doubt make it a regular feature of the forensic program. The work of the regular debate coaches has been supplemented by that of Bernard Ramsey, who acted in the capacity of women's debate coach.

State Oratorical Contest

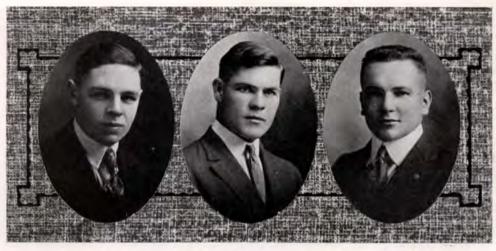

The increased interest in all phases of forensic work produced four contestants for the local oratorical tryout, which occurred on March first. Of the orations submitted in the contest, Paul Wapato's treatise of "Americanization" was awarded first place, winning for him the Keyes prize and the honor of representing Willamette in the State Oratorical Contest. The other contestants in the local tryout were Roy Skeen and Frank Bennett, Miss Rosenkranz being prevented from participating because of sickness.

Eight colleges and universities were represented in the state contest held March twelfth at Pacific University. The various phases of the reconstruction problems afforded the general theme of the orations, and the places were closely contested. Although handicapped somewhat by his position on the program and by a lack of finish in delivery, Mr. Wapato made a strong appeal, which brought to Willamette fifth place in the final standing. The contestants in the order of their ranking were:

Interclass Debate and Oratory

Preparatory to the intercollegiate debating season this spring, a complete schedule of interclass forensic events was staged in accordance with the regulations of the interclass rivalry system. Class tryouts were held in January for the selection of teams, who used the same subject as that chosen for the varsity debates. In the first preliminary clash the senior representatives, Hazel Bear and LaVerne Bowersox, were defeated by Ina Moore and Paul Day of the junior class. Later the class of 1923, represented by Bernard Ramsey and Howard George, won a close debate from the sophomores, whose speakers were Sheldon Sackett and Bernardo Gapuz. In the final contest for the Elmo S. White trophy cup the juniors, who drew the affirmative side of the question, lost a close decision to the freshman representatives.

Oratory, which also counts toward the interclass rivalry championship, interested a large number of contestants this year. As a result of the class tryouts, which occurred the week preceding the contest of April 10, Roy Skeen won the right to represent the freshmen, John Jucker captured first place in the sophomore section, while Fred McGrew was conceded the honor of defending the class of 1921. No entrant appeared from the seniors.

First place in the contest was won by John Lucker of the sophomores, whose treatise of the subject "Keep America Fit" was as highly finished as any of the orations in the varsity tryout. Fred McGrew won second honors, while the third position in the judges' ranking was given to Roy Skeen of the freshman class.

From more than one point of view, the intramural forensic season has been the most successful ever experienced at Willamette. Three members of the varsity debating squad received their preliminary training in interclass competition, while one of the women debaters appeared in the class contests. Affording platform training to far more students than has previously been possible, the continuance of the interclass rivalry plan insures ever keener competition for next year.

Representing the University in intercollegiate oratory or debate is the requirement for a Bar-W award, which is a recognition as highly significant as the athletic awards. Although three members of the club will not return to Willamette next year, several new candidates will be admitted following the fall awards day, when the debaters representing the University in intercollegiate contests this spring will be rewarded for their services.

DELLA CROWDER-MILLER Author and Director

Willamette Historical Pageant

Most stupendous of spectacles was the historical pageant presented on the Willamette campus June seventh, ninth, and tenth, nineteen hundred nineteen, celebrating the seventy-fivth anniversary of the founding of Willamette University.

Professor Della Crowder-Miller, author and director of the pageant, is accorded highest praise, not only for the successful presentation but for the construction of such an epic of the West.

The pageant consisted of twenty-two episodes recalling the chief events in Oregon history, as the Indians at St. Louis seeking the White Man's Book of Heaven; Dr. Mc-Loughlin's work as the father of Old Oregon; the coming of Jason Lee; the beginning of the Provisional Government, and the founding of Willamette University.

Great interest was manifested in the Indian Fair reproduced by the Indians from Chemawa, while the wonderful Indian curios supplied by Colonel Lee Morehouse from his collection contributed much to the general effect.

The names of Jason Lee and his associates have long been loved and honored by the students of Willamette for the heroic struggles in the history of the Northwest. But Professor Miller, through careful research and her wonderful dramatic ability, made the characters live so that they will ever be real people, rather than names, to the thousands of people who were fortunate enough to see the pageant.

The Junior Play

The juniors chose as their class play "The Lady of Lyons," a classic comedy of literary and dramatic value, from the pen of Sir Edward Bulwer-Lytton. A masterful finished drama was assured when the class secured Miss Elizabeth M. Barnes, head of the dramatic department of the Ellison-White Conservatory of Music, to direct their production.

The scene of the play is laid in Lyons, romantic old city of France, shortly after the close of the French Revolution. Portraying in appealing and amusing style the life and passions of the French people, the work is a charming one. The story of "The Lady of Lyons" is that of Pauline, the proud daughter of a wealthy merchant, Monsieur Deschappelles, and his prouder wife, who scorns the advances of her ignoble townsmen. Beauseant and Glavis, both of them refused, seek revenge, and using Claude Melnotte, a gardener's son who had longed dreamed of the Lady of Lyons, as their tool, they disguise him the the Prince of Como, contracting him to "woo, win and bear Pauline home" to his mother's cottage. The complications of the plot are further increased by the shrewdness of Colonel Damas. The entire story is a conflict between pride and love and in the final revelation is seen the culmination of a constant romance.

The Willamette Collegian

The Associated Student Body has as its official organ the Willamette Collegian, which has just completed the thirty-first year of its existence in that capacity. The two duties which belong to Willamette's newspaper are to portray faithfully all the events of the college year to both students and friends of the institution, and also to acquaint the alumni, the townspeople of Salem, the high schools of the Northwest, and many other universities and colleges of the United States with Willamette University.

Since its founding in 1889, the Collegian has undergone many changes, chief among which was the change from a monthly magazine to a weekly publication. This occurred in 1902 and since then steady progress toward the metropolitan journal has been noted. This year has seen the Collegian restored to pre-war size, four pages of seven columns each.

Thanks to a hustling management the paper has met with no financial difficulties, in spite of the increased prices, and is rightfully ranked among the leading college publications of the Pacific Coast.

The 1921 Wallulah

To publish a year book which will serve in the future as a worthy memorial to the Class of 1921 and a credit to Willamette University has been the recognized aim of the Wallulah staff. Supported in a loyal manner by members of the class and also by talent from the University at large, the complexity of the editorial work has been considerably reduced. Following the custom of past years, the artistic talent of the entire student body has been utilized in an endeavor to secure the best possible results, and this opporportunity is taken to express the staff's appreciation for the special art work contributed by the following persons: Dean Pollock, Miss Margaret Legge, Miss Vera Wise, Miss Lida Fake, Waldo Kelso, Jack Prescott, and Ray Todhunter. Others who contributed in any way to the publication are likewise assured of our sincere thanks.

ROBBIN FISHER Manager 1919

What yells to learn, what songs to sing, when to appear in the green cap, the why and wherefore of the senior bench and the mill race, who's who at Willamette, and many other customs and traditions, besides a condensed history of every campus organization and of the previous season's records in athletics and forensics, are made known to the incoming freshmen each year through the Willamette Handbook, presented by the Christian associations.

Compiled and printed during the summer, the little volume of valuable information is ready for distribution at the opening of the college year. Both the cover and contents of the 1919-1920 Handbook showed marked improvement over previous publications.

The Willamette Song Book

"On Willamette, Ever Onward."

"Fight 'Em, Bearcats!"

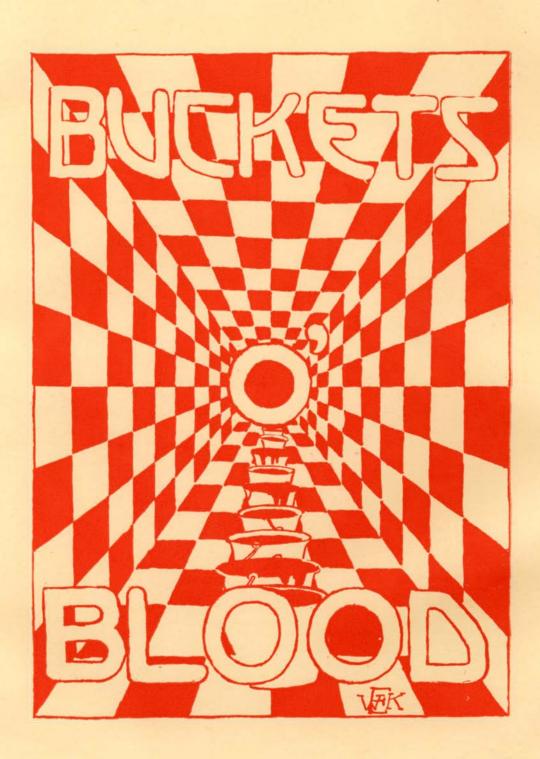

"Willamette's Spring Song."

"That's the Old Fight!"

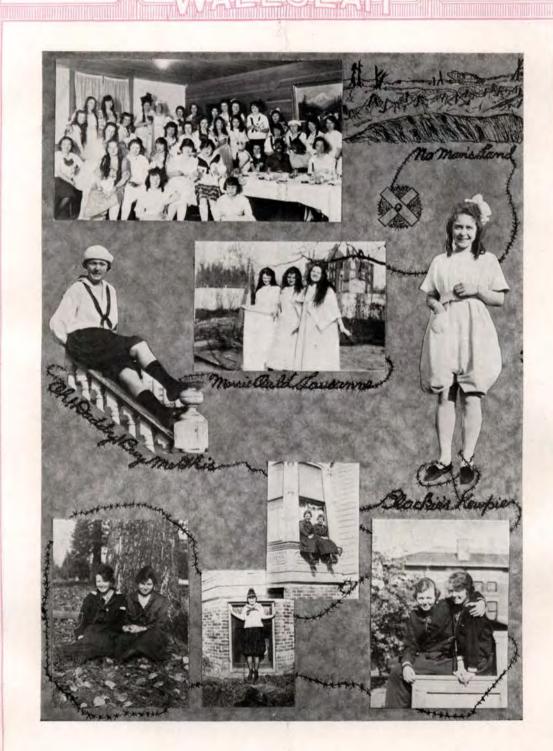

"A Here's to W. U."

These songs, together with fifteen other original Willamette productions, will appear in the second supplement of the varsity song book, which is being compiled by the Websterian Literary Society under the direction of Ivan Corner and Gustav Anderson. The 1920 supplement of forty pages will comprise the musical compositions of every Freshman Glee during the past five years. When added to the Willamette Song Book in its present form, a collection of campus melodies will be obtained which, from the standpoint of wide variety and inherent quality, will be unexcelled by any college collection in the country.

Letters To The Dean

(Letters to these columns will be answered by Miss Richards without charge. Communications are confidential, and names will not be published. Correspondence with those in love is especially desired.)

Dear Miss Richards:

So many people have come to you in their troubles and you have helped them that I am coming to you for advice. The question has bothered me long and I know not how to decide. How should a man deport himself when canoeing with a lady? To be sure it is necessary to sit in the stern of the craft when propelling it forward, but when one merely wishes to drift, the gentle whisperings of the waves, and the silvery moonlight, tempt one to sit by the lady's side. And canoes are much more stable when the weight is in the bottom. What is proper?—V. B. Bain.

Answer: Your philosophy is good, but why pay for a canoe when there are so so many unoccupied park benches, and the bridge that Ralph built is so serviceable?

Dear Miss Richards:

I loved the girl, and I believe that she cared for me. I intended to ask her to marry me, one night, but first I that I should tell her all. I told her what any girl should know, I did what I believed to be honorable. I informed her that I was Swedish. I am, but few people know it, and if she really loved me she would overlook it, even the it is so great a matter. Can I regain her love?—Bill L.

Answer: There is a bill pending in Congress to make Sweden a part of Minnesota, so your hopes may yet be realized.

Dear Miss Richards:

I am in need of advice. Recently I became acquainted with a charming young lady, and the our meetings were only of a business nature at first, I later took her out several times. But I have discovered that she is engaged to another man. She has never mentioned it to me, and I have never seen her wear the diamond, but my brothers mention it to me every day. I love her, but what should I do?—Sailor Les.

Answer: Engagements are like cobwebs, sometimes very long, but always easily broken. Stay with the ship.

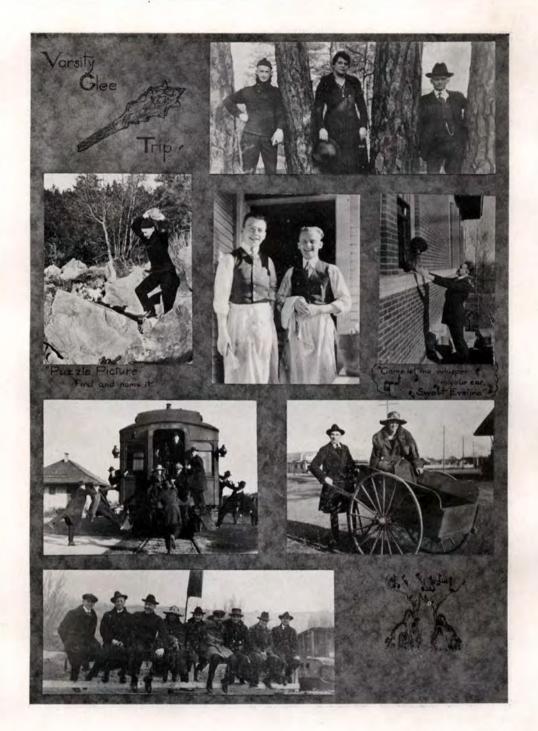

Dear Miss Richards:

I am a senior and am about to go out into the cruel world. I fear to face it alone, but altho I came to college to secure breadth and depth I find I have attained height and am above the average man. Can you suggest a method for deducing from the stature?—Bernice.

Answer: A railroad wreck might cut off two feet.

Tribute of the Supreme Court of the State of Oregon to the Law Department of the Willamette University

Extracts from a letter written by the Supreme Court of Oregon, to the President of the University, bearing date of December the 29th, 1913:

"In our examination of applicants for admission to practice Law in Oregon, we have always found the graduates of the Willamette Law School as full and well prepared as the graduates from any the Law Schools, including the leading colleges of the United States; and graduates of the Willamette Law School have repeatedly taken first honors in such examinations. We have also observed that many of the Alumni of the Willamette Law School have taken high rank in the practice of their profession, and are among the prominent and useful citizens of the Pacific Northwest thus reflecting credit not only on the Law School, but on the Willamette University, which they regard as theoir alma mater."

The College of Law has several special advantages. It is located in the capital city where the Supreme Court is almost constantly in session. The Law Department has exceptional facilities in its nearness to the State Library, containing more than thirty thousand volumes, to which the law students have free access.

This school is fully accredited by the State and Federal authorities for the payment of benefits to those entitled to them under the returned soldiers, sailors and marines educational aid and vocational training acts.

The home of the Law School is on the college campus. Law students are members of the Student Body of the University and have the opportunity of engaging in the various student enterprises and activities, and do in fact take a prominent place in the student affairs.

REQUIREMENTS FOR ADMISSION

Applicants for admission to the Freshman year must be at least eighteen years of age and must furnish certificates of good moral character. Graduates of high schools maintaining a standard four-year course of study, or educational intsitutions whose course is equivalent to such high school course, are admitted without examination, other applicants are required to pass satisfactory examination in the essential subjects of a four-years' high school course; in special instances, persons whose educational qualifications are deficient may have the opportunity of making the necessary grades in the College of Liberal Arts or the Academy during the time they are taking the Law Course.

The course covers three years, graduates receiving the degree of LL.B.
