

JUNIOR PLAY TRY-OUTS TODAY

Aspirants Urged to Meet Professor Rahe 1-6 P. M.

Tryouts for the annual Junior play, which is held the Saturday of May Day Week-end, are to be given Thursday afternoon in the Little Theatre.

Prof. Rahe of the Speech Dept. is to coach the performance. He and a committee have selected Shakespeare's drama, "As You Like It" for the production.

So far the manager has not been definitely chosen, but he will be in the near future and the practices will begin immediately following.

A special copy of the play has been printed by the Samuel French company. This copy contains all the details necessary. It gives a complete outline of each act, a careful study of each character, and many helpful hints for the staging staff.

Another consideration is being kept. There may be a possibility of having two performances. If there were, each group of characters would have an opportunity.

Sophs Must Take Comprehensives

Written Tests Will Be Required for Entrance to Upper Division Work

According to Dean Erickson the sophomore class will be required to take a comprehensive exam similar to the one taken last year. Beginning with the class of '35 it will become a required examination necessary for entrance into upper division work.

Coming Reign of Terror Gives Seniors Jitters

Oral Dates All Set—Students Aren't; Some Comprehensives Taken

Professors of the Natural Science and Language and Literature groups have issued their dates for the Senior Orals and for the comprehensive written examinations which are included this year as a necessary requirement for a degree.

May Day Manager Ray Rhoten Draws Tentative Plans

Ray Rhoten, appointed by the executive committee as May Day manager for 1933, is already making plans for May week-end, May 5 and 6. Although the exact motif has not yet been decided upon, Mr. Rhoten stated that an "International" idea is being considered.

Y. W. C. A. Elects J. Weil New Prexy

Garrett Assists President; Hottel, Secretary; Nelson is Treasurer

Janet Weil, a prominent junior on the campus, was elected president of the Y. W. C. A. last Friday, March 10. She will be assisted in the executive work during the coming year by Veva Garrett, vice president; Martha Jane Hottel, secretary; and Mary Nelson, treasurer.

PHILHARMONIC ENDS GROUP OF CONCERTS

Last Sunday the Philharmonic Choir presented its last regular program over KGW until after the opera because Professor Marshall and the students will be busy working up the "Bohemian Girl" from now on.

Hark ye, all Seniors whose awful orals haunt by night and day—the library will be open during vacation time so that ye may get knowledge.

Reasonless Printing Tells Of Many Changes In Ruling Script

There is absolutely no reason for printing all these amendments except that the A. S. W. U. Constitution says that all amendments must be published in the Collegian before they can be voted upon by the student body.

Be it enacted by the Associated Students of Willamette University: That section 3, Article III, constitution of the A. S. W. U. be the same hereby is amended so as to read as follows:

IVORIES TICKLED IN WALLER HALL

Waller Hall was the scene of an exceptionally interesting program last Monday night, March 13. A group of music students participated in the following program:

- Clara Wright Polonaise
Clara Wright Torch Dance
Charlotte Hill
Lidoff, Four Russian Folk Songs
a. Legend of the Birds
b. Danced With a Mosquito
c. Cradle Song
d. Dance

Two W. U. Women Gain Acceptance At Oregon Medical

Ralph McCullough Winner of Contest

Third Consecutive Year Finds W. U. Victor in Extempore Speech Contest

Willamette University's representative, Ralph McCullough, won the State Extempore Speaking contest held Friday, March 10, 1933 in Waller Hall.

Reading Contest Brings Responses

According to Mr. Spencer, librarian, several students have selected their books and are planning to enter the recreational reading contest.

SHAKESPEARE PLAY READ

Shakespeare Club met last Wednesday night, March 8, at Willamette Lodge to complete their study of "As You Like It."

Commencement Question Rears Ugly Head Again

Problem of Commencing New Citizens in Proper Manner Rankles

Again the old, old question of Commencement is popping up as it has a yearly habit of doing, and it is making a very fine job of plaguing the seniors.

At the faculty meeting Tuesday, March 14, Professor Clark presented a report in which he gave the results of the investigation of five possible places in which Commencement might be held.

PROHIBITION CLUB STARTED ON CAMPUS

The Prohibition Club which has been established on the Willamette campus has elected for its officers, Ed Rounds, president; Joe Rae, vice president; and Helen Childs, secretary and treasurer.

have added beauty and solemnity with an out-door setting, with the gym as a safety measure in case Jupiter frowns.

With the Glee platform erected and the bleachers forming an oval before it, Commencement could be made a very beautiful event, affording plenty of seating space for relatives and townspeople.

A senior class committee consisting of Ralph McCullough, Mildred Miller, and Lois Wilkes has been working in conjunction with Harold Rose, class president, and Professor Clark.

Two W. U. Women Gain Acceptance At Oregon Medical

Faye Henderson and Elizabeth Bishop have recently received word that they are to be among the four privileged women to enter the University of Oregon medical school next fall.

Any student is eligible for membership. Although the club has not accomplished much so far it expects to be quite active after the spring vacation.

WALLULAH PREPARES TOURNAMENT BOOKLET

The Tournament Booklet, put out by the advertising staff of the Wallulah for the benefit of Willamette advertisers has now gone to print.

How do you like "Promenade," our new feature? If you think the Collegian needs such a column and you like it, tell us. If you don't like it—well, we think you won't though.

D.T.G. NATIONAL CONVENTION HERE

April 7-8 Date of Daleth Teth Gimel Convention on W. U. Campus

The Willamette Chapter of Daleth Teth Gimel will be host at the national convention of this organization which is to be held April 7 and 8.

According to the tentative program worked out by the local chapter, the guests will arrive Thursday evening, April 6, and will be housed at Lausanne Hall and various town homes.

Love Affairs of Greek Gods Delved Into by Students of Greek, Latin

Members of the Classical Club were surprised perhaps, not a little embarrassed, by a question naile on Greek history and mythology at their meeting Tuesday evening.

Freshmen Take Glee Competition; Seniors "Come to Me" Makes Hit; Juniors Warble Badly; Hit Stream

The culmination of weeks of careful planning and long hours of practice came last Saturday night when the freshman class won first place in the Twenty-fifth Annual Freshman Glee.

The gymnasium was attractively decorated with masses of yellow and green branches of Scotch broom across the back of the platform and around the edge of the balcony.

GATKE JR. RECOVERING

Little Robert Gatke Jr. underwent an operation for mastoid Tuesday, March 14, at the Salem General Hospital.

REPORTERS!

Don't forget that the next edition will be out March 30, the week after vacation.

and a mellow crescent moon shone above as the first notes of their song rang out over the hushed audience.

The juniors were second on the platform, executing a heart shaped formation. Their song was accompanied by the chapel organ, which was connected with the gym by amplifiers.

After a solo by Maurice Dean, the sophomores marched confidently to their places to form a second heart-shaped group with an arrow through the center of the valentine.

The freshman class (ave plebes!), in a formation of diagonal lines, with approximately 150 participants filling the platform, were the last to sing.

After the usual long wait, Professor Matthews appeared and made the announcement that set the hash of the juniors.

Murder at Greystone

By David Johnson and Jane Robinson

Then, in a rush, the torrent of words broke loose. "Sure—he loved me, and I loved him—once. We were married in New York, and for a time, we were fairly happy. Then he tired of me, I guess. To me, marriage was a bond not to be broken. But he didn't think so. He sued for divorce, and got the decision. I was left with nothing. He wrote me, occasionally, and sent me money, but not enough. I kept track of him, though, intending some day to—oh, well—" to her mouth. "Any part in a storm. Have you ever been hungry?"

Mac shook his head. "I didn't think so. Well, I was hungry—much too often. I had the choice of coming back to Alex, if he'd let me, or of going to someone else."
MacBride raised his hand. "Don't—you don't need to—"
She continued, disregarding his interruption. "Well, I wrote to him, here, and he replied that I could come, if I was down and out, and work for him awhile as maid. Well, I came, and here I am. Now he's dead, and I wish I never did really come back to him, but just being near him, in reach of his insults, day in and day out, was rather a torture."
She stood up, suddenly, and went into the kitchen.

THE WHISPERING CAMPAIGN

Today's fable. We all intend to get our ten hours of sleep every night during spring vacation.

(Reprinted from last year—with variations): Our song, that the judges would never catch. Our song is our own and we like it that way.

It won't have so much of a freshman-like touch. And we can't begin over seniors to get.

Our song Won't appeal to the men in the spring. Our song won't inspire the lovers to sing.

The words may be crude; The tune may be wrong, But you'll find we'll swim for our song.

(The above is dedicated to the juniors and sophs, mostly the juniors. Maybe we'll have to reprint it again next year.)

If any juniors desire commiseration, just remember that the sophs didn't take first—or second.

We've been doing some undercover investigations to find out who'll be Queen of the May. It seems that every one is convinced she should be built on the lines of the little Baldwin boy.

Personally, we'd like to see Enoch Dumas or Ralph McCullough gracing (disgracing) the queen's throne.

Did you know that Cynthia Delano likes? She says: "Oh! You that somebody loveth me? Well, I don't believe you, but I hope it'll be you."

Deena Hart has been interpreting dreams for the "Y room gang." Let us give you a word of warning: don't ever tell her a dream if you want to retain your self respect.

Definition we found in the dictionary: Sophomore—of, pertaining to, resembling on characteristic of, a sophomore; hence, pretentious; inflated in style or manner.

Noah must have known the class of '35.

Louise Fletcher couldn't decide for a long time whether or not to cut her hair. She solved the problem by asking Frank Haley what to do. Since he said to leave it as was, she immediately hastened to the barber shop.

We understand that the new head of the biology department is named Lawrence. We had hoped they would call him Harry. But after all, he's a chip off the old block and should be called Chip Monk.

In honor of this latest faculty addition, Kenny Oliver submits the following: A little Monk came up to lab escorted by his dad. To see the students suffer so The Monk was very sad. He hovered o'er a garbage can Where worn-out things were sunk.

And now the cry of the lab is: "What became of the Monk?"

Well, since vacation time is here, we'll see you at the old swimmin' hole—and we don't mean the Millstream.

THE MUDSLINGERS.

Revising obsolete clauses and provisions of the Associated Student Body constitution has been the task of the constitution revision committee, composed of Ray Lafky, chairman; Katherine Earl and Enoch Dumas. While the revisions, as advised by the committee, will involve no great change in the present system of student government, their passage will correct several inequities which have long appeared in the constitution.

Many orders of procedure which have grown up through common usage will at last be made constitutional. The article which provides for a student body treasurer will be revised to tally with the present system of having a financial manager. The provision which is made for the A.S.B. yell king to be appointed by the executive committee will be revised to read that he be elected by student vote, as has been the custom.

Another recommendation of the committee calls for a redistribution of funds by transferring part of the Wallulah fund to that of the Collegian.

The proposed revisions will be presented to the students during the bi-monthly meeting of the Associated Student Body tomorrow.

VITAL STATISTICS

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Davies (Edna Gilbert), '21, are the parents of a son, Daniel Wilson, who was born February 19. They also have a son about three years of age. Mr. Davies is correspondent for the New York Times in Philadelphia, Pa.

A daughter, Joyce Marian, was born February 18 to Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Maynard. Mr. Maynard, ex-'27, is associated with the Y. M. C. A. in Portland.

A son, Robert Edward, arrived January 16 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Swift (Margaret Grover, ex-'32). Mr. Swift, '29, is an attorney in Newberg.

NEW YORK ALUMNI MEET

Mrs. Gerald Pearson (Mildred Cannon, ex-'31), secretary of the New York Willamette Alumnet, sent in the following article:

"On the evening of December 30, the New York Alumni enjoyed a May Morning Waffle Supper. After the 'breakfast' the May Day festivities began by electing the May Queen. Sam R. King was the unanimous choice. He was duly crowned and then everyone joined hilariously in the Maypole dances, the Junior play, and finally a track meet between Whitman and Willamette. Mr. and Mrs. Frank D. Leamer were in charge of this meeting.

January 13, the New York group met with Dr. Doney at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Story. All enjoyed hearing news of Willamette and old friends."

PERSONALS

Miss Ruth Field, '06, sailed from Seattle February 4 for Calcutta, India, where she will begin her third term in the missionary service there. When completed it will be 12 years that she has resided in India. She has been in the states on furlough for the past several months. Last summer she attended school at the University of Washington after which she traveled extensively in the interests of missionary work. She returned to Salem in January to visit with relatives and while here she was the inspiration of many social affairs.

Miss Field has been teaching music in India, but upon her return she will begin duties as assistant to the pastor of the First M. E. church there. She expects to arrive in Calcutta about the middle of March.

Word has been received that Donald Grant, '29, who is studying law at Harvard, has been offered a $400.00 scholarship by that university. Mrs. Grant (Evelyn High, '31) has a position as secretary in the office of a Boston law firm.

Rev. and Mrs. Paul Roeder (Elizabeth McClure), '25, and small daughter arrived in Portland recently from Huancayo, Peru, S. A., where the former has been serving as missionary minister for the M. E. church. They have spent the past two and a half years in Peru. They expected to remain there longer, but the missionary board under whose auspices they were sent found it necessary to recall them due to lack of funds.

Mrs. Helen Cochran Kutch, '32, is the coach of the Rickreall high school girls' basketball team which is the champion of Polk county, having won all games. Mrs. Kutch also teaches English, history, debate and music.

Eugene Sikes, '30, superintendent of schools at Hubbard, was elected president of the high school principals' association of Marion county.

George H. Duncan, '25, Stayton attorney, has been appointed by the council to fill the unexpired term of treasurer.

Ralph Purvine, '31, Eagle scout and member of the old troop six, Salem, represented Cascade area council at the inauguration ceremonies for F. D. Roosevelt. Mr. Purvine is attending Jefferson Medical College in Philadelphia.

Walter C. Winslow, '08, Salem attorney and grand master of the Masonic lodges of Oregon, was honored in New York by being seated at the left hand of President Roosevelt, when the latter conferred the degree of master mason on his son Elliott Roosevelt.

Winslow attended a meeting of the grand lodge of Virginia at Richmond and participated in the national conference of masters of grand lodges held in Washington for three days.

George Neuner, '08, U. S. district attorney for Oregon for the last eight years, announced recently that as soon as his successor is appointed he will retire to private practice in Portland.

James Mott, '17, new congressman from district 1, left Salem March 5 for Washington, D. C., to be ready for the convening of a special session of the congress. Mrs. Mott and the children will join him when school is over.

W. C. Hawley, '84, the former congressman from this district for 25 years, will be in Washington for several more weeks. He and Mrs. Hawley are expected home late in March.

Harold B. Jory, '15, was advanced last fall to the principalship of the senior high school in Everett, Wash. The enrollment of the school is nearly 1700. For several years Mr. Jory was principal of the South junior high school, the newest junior high in Everett.

Dwight Findley, '25, is head resident doctor in the General county hospital, San Diego, there are two other resident doctors and 17 internes under him. The hospital contains 800 beds. For the past four months, he has been serving as county physician of San Diego county. Dr. and Mrs. Findley have a daughter, Ruth Jeanine, who was born November 13.

FOR KINDRED SPIRITS.

I leave these things I love for kindred spirits to discover: The peace of early morning in the city, when the dim, gray streets are empty, and dawn is breaking pinkly over rows of silent buildings; The utter happiness of being at home; Rain on the roof; Moonlight, making fairy-land of gardens; The smell of violets after rain, and of new-cut grass warming in the sun; Music, aching with beauty; The silent understanding of friendship; Long roads, over beckoning hills; The long, strong surge of waves upon the sand; Wind, and Storms; The thrill of riding a madly running horse, and of driving from high places; The fun of "dressing up" for parties; and Parties themselves, with lights and colors and music; The rough tweed of overcoats; Familiar voices; Old houses, and Rambling flower gardens.

WHERE DO WE COMMENCE?

History will repeat itself it seems, and so we have the sight of another senior class trying to change its place of Commencement. Committees and debates rile the peaceful waters of the campus while class arguments scorch the walls of room 4.

The main desire of the class is to graduate some place where sufficient seating space is available to allow relatives to attend. First Church, scene of Commencement exercises for many a year, is too small to accommodate even a third of the friends and parents who have just right and desire to be present. The church is hard to decorate, and, when it is jammed full of people, extremely hard to ventilate properly.

With these factors in mind, the class of '33 fastened its eyes on the campus and decided in favor of an out-door graduation. The faculty also voted for the campus lawn, and the matter is now to be definitely decided by the trustees.

Expressing the wishes of the senior class, the Collegian respectfully petitions the trustees to grant the request for a change in the place for Commencement in order that parents, relatives, friends, and townspeople may be able to attend the exercises.

HATS OFF! THE FROSH ARE PASSING BY—

We can say that the Glee just past was a very beautiful one despite the attendant upsets that the judges rendered, but we can't say that everything after the Glee was beautiful or even funny. The cake-throwing episode and the near-tragedy of the truck were quite surpassed by the chapel Monday. It is safe to say that Waller has never before looked down on so much horse-play and downright slapstick, and—it is hoped—never beholds such a display again. Post-glee chapel should be and always is hilarious, as well as being clever, but such "celebration" can be easily overdone and become boring.

Also in the vein of true cheap comedy and slapstick was the heaving of the cake and the subsequent ruination of one boy's evening, to say nothing of his suit, and the general messing up of an otherwise lovely affair. We might remark about Willamette spirit at this point, but instead are saying that courtesy and common sense should have been the guide that night.

The serenade accident is truly to be regretted. After all, is that not part of the Glee tradition which might well be struck out? Everyone is "dead" after weeks of work and long hours of practice; nerves are on edge; every student is under a strain. It is certainly against all rules of health to put one's body to any more task after Glee is over. Could we not eliminate the serenade after such a near-tragedy as we had this year?

PROMENADE

BY PAT

Assuming a scriptural trend of thought, we marmur softly—man among men, honored one among infidels—bless you, ye who know his mode and style and acts himself accordingly.

What is this clothes question anyway? Some of us would gladly douse the matter. What with the depression cooperating with the bank moratorium to make us all feel the Shopping Blues. But it's obvious that we can't all throw a Mahatma Gandhi form of self expression so with the next best thing in mind, let's tackle this enforced fashion problem—and adopting, with variations the expression "When in Rome do as the Romans do"—see what's what on the calendar this season.

To begin with, I solemnly lay before you—the latest thing in the ten commandments as regards the modern trend—

Thou shalt have no other desire than to be smart.

Thou shalt not take the new mode—but a sun-tan, lightly.

Remember that thou keep holy the hemline—

Honor thy new figure and face that thy dates may be many in this land of feminine curves and soft colors.

Thou shalt do harm and create many Alice-in-Wonderland effects with an accompanying correct and naive expression on your naughty face.

Thou shalt not commit the unpardonable by appearing affected—for as the unaffected person is the most charming, so are the unaffected clothes. Setah!

Thou, men, shall steal a march on the mode and adopt greys, browns, and blues with chalk stripes, Wales stripes and Wales plaids.

Thou shalt bare no malice toward the Prince of Wales, thou shalt content thyself with a small but select wardrobe.

Thou shalt not make to thyself any graven image—nor the likeness of anyone who is in thy sorority or fraternity.

Thou shalt not covet thy neighbor's lipstick, nor her hair dress, nor her walk, nor her sleeves, nor her hips, nor anything that is his or hers.

For thou shalt create for thyself a new personality—thou shalt forget yesterday—do away with the old—be Joyous and assume a 1933 spirit with a frill.

We select for Promenade's Special Subject this week: George Cannady, whose extemporaneous interpretation of "just the thing in grass skirts" created a near riot at the Freshman Glee reckoning in chapel last week.

Miss Kay Skinner, Miss Virginia Durkee, Miss Lulu Allen, Miss Veva Garrett, Mr. Laurence Brown, and Mr. and Mrs. Herbert E. Rahe attended the performance of "Death Takes a Holiday," given at the Oregon State college in Corvallis, Saturday evening, March 11. The group visited the college speech department and laboratories during the afternoon.

The seniors majoring in physical education met Monday evening at the home of Mildred Miller for an informal meeting to discuss the written examination. Refreshments were served at a late hour.

Those invited were Gus Moore, Clay Egelston, Walter Erickson, Dwight Adams, Lewis Johnson, Bob Houck, Esther Arnold, and Mildred Miller. Additional guests were Mrs. Walter Erickson, Mrs. W. L. O'Hearn, and Stuart Gordon.

Miss Constance Cartmill and Miss Helen Keudell were hostesses at a delicious waffle supper Saturday evening at the home of Mrs. Roy S. Keene. Guests invited for the evening were Miss Edith Sidwell, Miss Anna Jo Fleming, Miss Olive Jones, and Mrs. Virginia Kaiser.

The Beta Chi alumnae were entertained informally Tuesday evening by Miss Lella Johnson and Miss Frances Hodge. Those present at the affair were Miss Josephine Albert, Miss Marjorie Christensen, Miss Marvella Edwards, Miss Loretta Fisher, Miss June Gains, Miss Florence Power, Miss Eloise White, Miss Florence Young, Miss Lila Cation, Mrs. Evangeline Blatchford, Mrs. Esther Day, Mrs. W. Griffith, Mrs. Margaret Kaufman, Mrs. Carolyn Simpson, Mrs. Dorothy Thomas, and the hostesses, Miss Lella Johnson and Miss Frances Hodge.

The Faculty Women of Willamette university will meet with Mrs. E. C. Richards on Thursday, Dr. Helen Pearce, Mrs. Willis Moore, and Mrs. Morton Peck will be joint hostesses.

Margaret Purvine was elected president of Beta Chi sorority at the annual election held last week. Other new officers for the ensuing year will be Sue Pringle, vice president; Edith Sidwell, secretary; Ruth Pick, treasurer; Barbara Elliott, manager; Roberta Mills, social recorder; and Virginia Sprague, sergeant-at-arms.

Delta Phi Dinner Kappa House Charming Affair

Delta Phi entertained with a charmingly appointed informal dinner at the Chapter house, Sunday, March 12. Daffodils in harmony with the spring mode centered the long table. Those present at this delightful affair were the Misses Phyllis Dennison, Margaret Notson, Cynthia Delano, Frances Stewart, Janet Well, Faith Sherburne, Mario Ledbetter, Naomi Hewitt, Mrs. Lillian R. Hagman, and the Messrs. Luman Ney, David Moser, Thoburn Hatton, Don Egr, Charles West, Percy Sweet, Al Pietola, and Miles Waadworth.

"Pay Up" Party Scads of Fun

A "Pay-Up" party was held at the Spa following a line party as a result of the late Freshman Glee. The round table was decorated becomingly with green glasses and cutlery. Those present were the Misses Paul Hauser, Carl Felkner, Jerry Sherman, Wayne Doughton, Don Coales, and Ralph Stearns. The escorts were the Messrs. Pauline Moore, Ruth Chapman, Elva Sehon, Gwen Hunt, Evelyn Shields, and Lois Wilkes.

The Beta Chi Mothers' club held its monthly meeting at the chapter house Tuesday afternoon. An interesting program following the meeting included Mr. Roy R. Hewitt who gave an interesting talk on his trip to South America; Miss Rosalind Van Winkle, who rendered several piano selections, and Miss Veva Garrett who gave a number of readings. Mrs. W. A. Marshall, Mrs. J. J. Nunn, Mrs. F. A. Legge, Mrs. E. W. Peterson, and Mrs. Arthur Upston were hostesses for the afternoon.

Inquired after the health of "James, dear," and received the only crackling remark that had passed her lips in hours.

"The pusillanimous nincimpoop," she snapped. "He'd get sick if he cut his finger." She seemed to forget that she had fainted.

About four in the afternoon it stopped snowing. The clouds scudded across the darkening sky in a manner that foretold clear and cold weather for the night, at least.

Steinman came down for dinner. Thurston kept to his bed. Mrs. Thurston ate heartily, and carried a tray up to the room. Thurston, it seemed, was quite weak from the shock of what he had seen. MacBride offered to go up and keep him company for a time, but Sarah coldly turned the offer aside.

After dinner, Steinman came into the lobby, and went behind the desk. Jeanne cleared away the table, and then went upstairs to her room. MacBride stirred up the fire. He sat down, picking up a magazine that lay on a table by the davenport, and turned the pages idly. He finally found an article, and settled down to read. Steinman pattered around the office, now writing a line or two on the typewriter, now jerking open a filing cabinet and ruffling through the papers it contained, and now doing nothing in general. After about an hour of this, MacBride became restless, and decided to retire. As he passed the desk, Steinman looked up, and spoke. "If you don't mind, I'd like it if you could stay here in the lobby tonight." "Why?" "Won't you be here?" "Yes, I'll be here. But Jeanne's nervous. She wants me to stay in the room next to hers tonight." "When did she say that?" "Just this evening. Before she went upstairs." "Alright," said Mac. "I guess I can do it." To himself, he thought, "Rather queer, to say the least." Steinman turned out the desk lamp, flung a curt "good night" over his shoulder, and went upstairs. MacBride shrugged his shoulders, and began to pace up and down the room. He circled the lobby twice, and then tried the telephone. He spun the crank repeatedly, but got no answer. Once he thought he heard voices somewhere on the line, and pressed the receiver tightly to his ear. He spoke into the mouthpiece, but there was no result.

He went over to the fire, put a fresh log in the flames, and lay down on the davenport. Thoughts of the murder began racing through his brain. He yawned and tried to concentrate on the puzzle of the killing. He yawned again, and lulled by the crackling of the fire, dozed fitfully.

MacBride struggled up through a cloud of whirling knives and clots of blood—and awoke. He lay still, wondering what had disturbed him. The fire was dying into a bed of coals. He listened. Suddenly he heard it. Someone was coming downstairs! The steps ruffled faintly in the plush of the carpet. The slippers rasped across the hardwood of the landing, and then all was still for a moment. Mac's blood sang through his veins in a tempest of excitement. His heart throbbed so loudly that he was afraid the other person would hear it.

The steps began again. Slowly, and with measured tread, they advanced toward the davenport. MacBride gathered himself for a leap. Was this another intended murder? He could see the form of whoever it was coming around the end of the couch. The figure came nearer—nearer—its breathing was audible. Then it stopped. It seemed to be listening for something. A sudden flare of the dying fire threw the averted face at the foot of the davenport into sharp relief, and Mac gasped. Then he closed his eyes, and feigned sleep.

Veterans Of Silver Glee Bets and Millstream Recalled Muse Of Dear Old Days

"Do you remember," asked a certain elderly man (as a matter of fact he was rather uncertain, due to the ravages of time and subsequent destruction of gray matter) "do you remember the Silver Glee of Willamette university?"

"Ah, yes," I replied, "now that you mention it, I do. It was about the time of the last Collegian, wasn't it?"

"It was," he said (with precision remarkable for one of his age). "It was the Saturday following the last Collegian. I remember it especially well because I was a member of the winning class—you see, it had become a tradition for the freshmen to win first place. Not that we didn't!"

"Go on," I said. "I know . . . I was a junior. But I was a freshman once—only then it was traditional for the freshmen to get fourth—customs will change."

"Not that we didn't earn it. We did; our words were—well, anyway, our music was good, our rendition was of the best, and (I thought I noticed a gleam in his eye) we didn't try to use the chapel organ. And did you notice the alacrity with which we went up to receive the banner? And our cheers—did you notice that we almost drowned the groans of the—oh, but you were a junior, weren't you? By the way, bo, ha, was the millstream cold? And that reminds me; did you make any bets?"

"Well, yes, I (confound him for asking) I did make one . . . I had to sit on the girls' side of chapel, but it was nothing like the bets Laurence Burdett or Virginia Kaiser made. He had to carry a bottle and nipple around to his classes, and she had to wear a dress made of newspapers—and it rained. But did you see those fellows sitting on the Kappa Gamma roof—like perching on a razor blade, huh?"

"Yes, and George Cannady in chapel—was that a bet, or just a change of costume?—and Lowell Eddy—and Louise Fletcher with number ten boots—such betting I never saw before.

"(Of course not," I thought; "you never saw any Glee bets before.") "No, it was the best since we were freshmen, when Charles Gianoli and Ted Parker sat on the dome of Waller hall for three hours, and . . ."

Just then my elderly companion glanced at a calendar. "My stars," he said, "it's time for another Collegian. Be seein' ya."

FILM FLICKERS

ELSIONEE
Wheeler and Woolsey, in khaki shirts, pith helmets and plaid socks, wrap a whacking blow of satire at wild animal pictures in the funniest of their feature comedies yet produced. "So This is Africa!" which Columbia presented at the Elsinore theater on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

"So This is Africa!" is a mad-cap story. Woolsey takes his inevitable cigar and Wheeler his cracking voice into the deep, dark, damp, forbidding depths of the continent that has been eulogized on the screen in "Africa Speaks," "Tarzan" and "Trader Horn," and they both flay carelessly and uncontrollably about the jungle.

"So This is Africa!" is no ordinary comedy. It is definitely not mere slapstick, and it has far more subtlety and finesse than any of the other pictures they have made. The hand-drawn pans and the dry dialogue that has been written in for Bob Woolsey make grand entertainment.

CAPITOL
This week's double feature, beginning Saturday, at the Capitol is a laugh-packed salty tale, "Sailor Be Good." A splendid comedy cast, headed by Jack Oakie, Vivienne Osborne and George E. Stone; a wealth of hilarious situations, make one feel the urge to speed to the nearest recruiting station to join the navy and see the girls.

AND
Barbara Stanwyck brings to her role of "Kitty Lane," the heroine of "Shopworn," the Columbia picture in which she is starring at the Capitol theater, a fine blending of innocence and sophistication—of girlhood looking forward to the romance of her young dreams and womanhood looking back on the story road she has had to travel because of a mother's selfishness. It is a magnificent performance and strengthens her position, which is high among the dramatic actresses of the screen.

TENNIS INTERESTS WILLAMETTE WOMEN

These first spring days have brought out many enthusiastic tennis players among the women, and those more seriously interested are looking forward to the varsity matches. With the graduation of Edith Findley, number one position will have to be filled, and Janet Well is the only letter-woman left with more than one season's experience. Janet will take on the responsibility of manager until the varsity is selected and a manager elected. Anna Colaba is already working hard getting back in training, and Isabelle Morehouse and Katherine Earle are both working for positions. Whether there is any good material in the freshman class remains to be seen.

If any girl wishes to try out for the varsity she should report to Janet Well as soon as possible so she will have an idea of how many tryouts should be arranged.

4 REASONS WHY you should wear the HOLEPROOF AUTOGART

THE *PRACTICAL SOCK-AND-GARTER COMBINED

1. Comfortable—The knit-in garter has just the right degree of elasticity to hold the sock snugly in place—no binding or chafing is possible.
2. Convenient—no before-breakfast scramble looking for separate socks and garters . . . on in a jiffy.
3. Sanitary—You put on a fresh pair of garters every time you change your socks.
4. *Practical—Because they are comfortable — sanitary — convenient — and you get a new pair if the knit-in garter loses its elasticity.

35c to $1.00
P.S. Not to mention that you are assured of Holeproof Quality—in a complete range of patterns and weights to suit your individual taste.

SPRING FEVER HITS TRACK MEN

Bearcats Run, Jump, Hurdle, and Heave Discus on Sweetland Field

Ordinarily it is not a notorious fact that an organization of Bearcat athletes voluntarily runs from opposition, but this spring's track squad promises to do just the opposite.

With the coming of spring weather every day witnesses a gradually increasing quota of runners, jumpers, vaulters, etc., out upon our partially cindered track lumbering up long unused but trustworthy muscles in an easy development program of preparation for the earnest training season which will start immediately following the spring vacation.

The long distance men, Lang, Adlard, Wied, Cook, Mealey and others have been out for some time and are in fair shape for this early in the spring. Lang, who was undefeated in his event, the two mile, last year may be expected to seriously threaten the conference record in that event this year.

It is expected that Willamette will be as strong as last year in the distance events and sprints while there is much available material for the field events. McKerrrow was Montana state high school champion with the discus last year and will work nicely with Faunzi in that event.

Questionable events are the high hurdles and high jump, but with some support for Carpenter in the high hurdles and some one to supplement Rieks in the high jump no difficulties are anticipated in defeating any opposition to be encountered.

SPORTORIALS

If you want to see some real poppy games come around to the Willamette gym and see the tournament in action—16 of Oregon's best high school teams will be in action.

If you wish to meet Willamette's prominent athletes in person, just visit the tournament—all the boys—football, track, basketball, or what have you—are working there in some capacity or other.

Saw Ed Franz, Gordon Williams, Seymour Feathers, Joe Scott, and a few other fellows kicking the football around. It looked pretty good. We'd like to see spring football.

The track boys are to be seen working hard and industriously. It looks like the man are taking their work seriously and we're liable to have another championship in track.

Baseball is just around the corner. A few of the boys, including none other than What-a-Man Gribble, have been batting the ball around. Regular practice will probably start right after spring vacation.

The tennis courts are getting frequent workouts lately. Willamette has always been strong in tennis, and we believe that this season will be as good as ever.

Don't any of you spring athletes break training over the holidays. Keep in trim for the old alma mater.

Baseball Practice to Start Immediately After Spring Vacation

Willamette batterymen turned out Monday to begin getting in shape for a big season this year. The pitching staff includes Tweed, Don Burch, Moyer, Henniger, Ely, Pietola, Paul, F. Burch, and Pemberton. McCann seems to be the only backstop out thus far although Bill Moyer may turn into a catcher.

Some infielders who will probably turn out are Gribble and Eggleston, lettermen, and Aravec, Hess, Anderson, Northrup, Swanson, France, Manning, and Oaksmith. Outfielders include Moore, Erickson, and Commons as veterans. Others in line are Pete, Williams, Feathers, and Tull.

Official practice will start after spring vacation, and all will be on their toes for a successful year.

Willamette University

Founded February 1, 1842
SALEM, OREGON

A Christian institution of higher learning. Located at the Capital of the State of Oregon. A beautiful campus opposite the Capitol building. Buildings and equipment attractive and adequate. Faculty of highest character, preparation and teaching. Student body clean, able and wholesome. Scholarship high and credited everywhere. Very inexpensive. Rich in tradition; large and honored list of alumni. Students wishing for work in the course of Liberal Arts, in Law, in Theology, in Music, or in Fine Arts are highly advantaged at Willamette. Close investigation invited. Bulletins on request.

State Hoop Tournament Schedule

Above is the complete schedule of the state basketball tournament. First round winners today proceed toward the right on the bracket and along the solid lines if they continue to win, detouring to the dotted lines if they lose twice. First round losers proceed to the left, and drop out if they are defeated again. The diagram shows rankings of the Saturday winners, but does not show that the loser of the 2 o'clock game ranks eighth, loser of the 3 o'clock game ranks seventh, loser of the 7:30 game ranks sixth. The basis for this ranking system is shown above at the left, plus signs standing for victories, minus signs for defeats.
