OUR COVER

Willamette is justly proud of the contribution its alumni have made through the years to the Oregon State Legislature. Among those graduates who are serving in this year's session are Douglas Heider, '56 serving his second term from Marion County, welcoming Robert F. Smith, '53 to his first session. Smith is from Burns, Oregon, serving Grant, Harney and Lake Counties.

In the Next Issue

In the spring issue of The ALUMNUS you will become a part of project "Moonshooter '61." A special insert will bring you, as alums, close to the orbit of the college student in 1961.

Here is a chance to acquaint yourselves with the students who are now in college. You may examine at length, their motives, aims, joys, and sorrows.

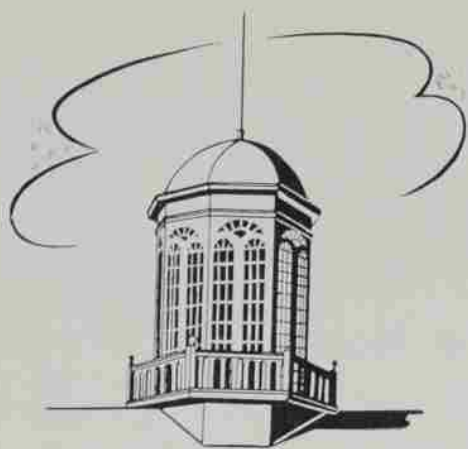

The publishers of "Moonshooter '61" say: "In Moonshooter '61, by employing a new kaleidoscope technique, we've tried to show how and why the student ticks . . . how and why the student years are and should be a time of errors as well as triumphs, of ideals and sometimes cynicism, of self-searching, of discovering truth."

To bring home the thoughts behind "Moonshooter '61," the Willamette Alumnus will present a glance at Willamette, through the Moonshooter kaleidoscope. The why and wherefore of the Willamette student will be examined by the students themselves. With the aid of "Moonshooter '61" you may again see how the world looks, through the eyes of the college student.

Men's Dormitory Rises

It's mighty difficult for one now to visualize how the mire of the Willamette University campus area just north of the Twelfth and Trade streets intersection will one day be transformed into a beautifully landscaped lawn leading up to an attractive brick-faced 240-man dormitory. But, rest assured—it will.

According to Harvey Pruitt, project manager for contractors Viesko and Post, the new $1,036,000 structure is at the 25 per cent completion stage, with work running nearly on schedule. A slight delay has been caused by inclement weather, Pruitt reported, but any type of a break from the weatherman will see the construction schedule back on time so that occupancy by fall semester will be realized.

Ground was broken August 23, 1960, when the traditional silver shovel turned the sod. Architect is Salem's James L. Payne, who has blended the contemporary design of the new building into present campus architecture. A circular drive and parking area are to be constructed adjacent to the H-shaped living quarters.

The building will contain five wings, including two which will face Twelfth street and house fraternities. A central wing will be reserved for upper class men, with the remaining two wings for freshmen. Fraternity sleeping rooms will be in the wings, but dormitory residents will have sleeping facilities provided in their respective rooms.

WU Students Give Blood

As usual, when a crisis arises, Willamette University can be counted on to come to the rescue. And, that's just what WU students did during the last Red Cross blood drive on the campus.

Final tally showed that Willamette U students set an all-time campus high by donating some 63½ gallons of the life-saving fluid to the American Red Cross regional blood bank. According to Red Cross officials the 254-pint contribution was enough to supply for one day the 82 hospitals in Southwest Washington and Oregon comprising the regional bank. Red Cross figures indicated that 35 students were rejected for various reasons from among the record 289 volunteers.

Among individual donors, David Patch, Salem, was honored with membership in the gallon club. Campus living organization competition was won by Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity whose members donated 53 pints of blood, over one-fifth of the total. Pi Beta Phi was a one-tenth percentage point winner over Lucy Anna Lee House among women's living organizations. Campus drive chairman was Tom Dunham.

Faculty Members Honored

Two members of the Willamette faculty were among those honored recently by the Capital Journal as this area's men of the year. Receiving accolades for their contributions to the Salem community's year were Dr. Robert Purbrick (science) and Ted Ogdahl (sports).

Dr. Robert L. Purbrick, who has headed up the Willamette U physics department since 1955 and has been on the faculty since 1947, was cited for the recognition his physics department has been accorded during his tenure. In addition, graduates of his department, nearly 80 per cent of them going on to graduate schools, have made outstanding records, reflecting much credit on the Purbrick-led department.

Latest honors included a three-year, $14,000 National Science Foundation research grant and a $2,500 General Electric Foundation grant.

The other WU faculty member similarly honored by the Salem newspaper was Ted Ogdahl, coach of Willamette's only unbeaten football team in the past 47 years. Ogdahl's honor recognized not only an undefeated football squad that went through an 8-0 season, but a man who has consistently turned out football machines during his nine-year reign, and many fine sportsmen and outstanding citizens as well.

Coach Ogdahl

Ogdahl - coached teams at Willamette have established an over-all record that lists 43 victories, 25 defeats and 8 ties.

Like the old saw says, one is seldom missed until he is gone. The Salem community is fortunate that some small measure of recognition and appreciation can currently be accorded to those who help shape its destiny. Indeed, Willamette students, alumni and faculty colleagues can be very proud of the accomplishments of Dr. Robert L. Purbrick and Coach Ted Ogdahl.

Visiting Professorship Accepted

A visiting professorship at Rutgers Law School, Newark, New Jersey, has been accepted by Dr. Reginald Parker, professor of law. Dr. Parker, a prolific legal writer and educated abroad, assumes his duties with the eastern university soon after the beginning of February. At Rutgers, Dr. Parker will teach courses in administrative law and comparative law during his one semester stay.

Assuming the WU professor's classes will be Professor John Paulus, who will teach "Agencies," and Mrs. Jean Schlegel,

Dr. Purbrick

Marion county assistant district attorney and 1958 Willamette College of Law graduate, who will offer the "Conflict of Laws."

Mrs. Parker, bill indexer for the Oregon legislature, will join Dr. Parker in Newark as soon as her successor has been trained.

Shell Foundation Grants Award

Three grants of $500 each from the Shell Companies Foundation have been awarded to Willamette University under the foundation's "Shell Assists" program.

Established in 1958, the program provides a $1500 donation to each of a number of privately supported colleges and universities for purposes designated by the Foundation. The total donation is comprised of three $500 grants. The first grant is "free" money, and may be used by the recipient school for any purpose it chooses; the second is for general academic faculty development; the third is for additional professional development of faculty members, usually in the scientific field.

In keeping with the Foundation's wishes, Dr. G. Herbert Smith reported that Willamette's third grant would be used for professional improvement of the University's chemistry department faculty.

Honors Program Adds Member

Another recruit has been added to the ranks of the freshman Honors Program, of which Dr. O. W. Frost is chairman. Latest Willamette University student to make the select group is Clifford V. Comisky, holder of a Mary L. Collins scholarship. Young Comisky is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford C. Comisky, Portland.

The mid-year invitation was accepted by the Grant high school graduate, according to Dr. Frost. Honors work on the freshman level was first begun at Willamette University during the 1960 fall semester. Honors work on junior and senior levels has been offered for two years.

Cadets Crown 'Little Colonel'

Highlight of the Air Force Cadet program on the WU campus was the group's annual military ball held Saturday, January 7. Extended the tiara that symbolizes ROTC royalty was a Menlo Park, Calif., coed, Miss Pamela Stearns, who ruled over the Air Force cadets' formal affair, held in the Gold Room of the Marion Hotel.

A "South Pacific" theme dominated the event of which Tom Hemingway, San Mateo, Calif., cadet was general chairman. Miss Stearns topped the balloting of the group's 350 cadets. Other members of her court were Catharine Campbell, Salem; and Karen Ward, Portland.

A stately brunette, Miss Stearns brings qualifications other than beauty to her role. A graduate of International School in Geneva, Switzerland, she is majoring in languages. In addition, she serves as Y-Teen adviser and social chairman of her Doney Hall independent women's living organization.

Little Colonel - Pamela Stearns

Another highlight of the Air Force cadet year was a parade and ceremonies at McCulloch Stadium, Tuesday, January 10, at which two of the WU Air Force ROTC's top cadets were honored for their outstanding records in scholarship, military classes and summer camp training sessions. The two honored cadets were cadet commander Gordon Rounds, Gladstone; and Tom Elliott, McMinnville. Appropriate distinguished military students awards were presented the pair by Capt. Paul Muzzio, commandant of cadets.

Among the honored guests on the reviewing stand was Major Russell A. French, assistant inspector general, headquarters, Air University, Maxwell AF base, Montgomery, Alabama. Major Russell was on the WU campus for a two-day routine inspection of detachment No. 700.

Distinguished Alumni to be Honored

The annual Alumni Citation Awards will be presented to five outstanding alumni on Founders' and Benefactors' Day, February 9.

The Board of Trustees, upon recommendation of the Alumni Association, award these Alumni Citations in recognition of outstanding achievements and services which reflect honor upon Willamette University.

Alumni are urged to submit names now to the Alumni Office of persons whom they believe should be considered by the anonymous alumni citation committee.

SULA MARIE CORNER, '22

The primary purpose of Willamette University is to prepare men and women to serve their fellow citizens. The life of Sula Marie Corner is an excellent example of such purpose. This distinguished alumna spent over thirty years as a missionary in India. Miss Corner's career has included manager of Mecosa Bagh Girls' School, Nagpur; supervisor of three day schools and a health welfare center in Bombay City; and as principal of the Taylor High School in Poona.

In all that she has done, Miss Corner has demonstrated the love of God and neighbor of an extremely high order. Truly, the world is her home and her field is "service to others".

MERTON R. DELONG, '12

The career of investment banker Merton DeLong, is eloquent testimony of a man dedicated to humanitarian endeavors. A graduate of the College of Law, this devoted son of Willamette gave distinctive service in the development of the Law Library during the depression years. Several activities have received his interest and support including the Mental Health Association, National Rehabilitation Association, Oregon Historical Society and the Oregon Prison Association. He has had a life-long interest in his church and has served as chairman of the Board of Governors of the Portland YMCA. One of his greatest interests has been in the Goodwill Industries of Oregon which he helped organize in 1927. Since 1955 he has been serving as chairman of the board of this, the largest rehabilitation agency in the world.

Mr. DeLong is truly a distinguished Christian gentleman who has lived a life of helping others.

REIN E. JACKSON, '21

Countless hundreds of Portland youth have benefited from the leadership of able educator, Rein Jackson. This distinguished son of Willamette is currently Director of Secondary Education for the Portland Public Schools. He began his teaching career as a high school science teacher in McMinnville. He served as elementary school principal for seven years. For fourteen years, prior to his present position, he served as principal of Jefferson, Benson and Cleveland high schools in Portland.

Mr. Jackson has held major offices in several professional organizations. He is active in his church and community affairs. He is currently serving on the Mayor's Committee for Decent Literature and Films, and the Board of United Good Neighbors. He is past president of the Portland Council of Churches.

Few men have used their talents more ably to serve the youth of Oregon than this Willamette graduate.

WILLIAM M. McALLISTER, '28

William M. McAllister, Chief Justice of the Oregon Supreme Court, is one of Oregon's most distinguished citizens. From 1931 until his appointment to the Supreme Court in 1956, he practiced law in Medford. Justice McAllister served in the legislature from 1937 to 1944 and was Speaker of the House in 1943. During World War II he served as a Major in the Judge Advocate General's Department. In 1949 he again returned to the legislature as Senator from Jackson County. He has been extremely active in affairs of his church.

This distinguished jurist was recently re-elected Chief Justice for a term of six years, an action which testifies to the soundness and wisdom with which he administers the responsibilities of his high office.

BERNICE I. ORWIG, '32

Few women have contributed more to the noble cause of nursing education than Miss Orwig. Her present position on the faculty of the University of Oregon School of Nursing includes important responsibilities in the Continuation Education for Nurses — a program for nurses in teaching, supervisory, and administrative positions.

This distinguished teacher of nurses has served on the faculty of Emanuel Hospital School of Nursing and at the University of Portland College of Nursing. In 1959 Miss Orwig was presented the James E. Culligan award, presented annually to the most outstanding lay faculty member at the University of Portland.

Willamette is proud to honor this distinguished daughter "for her outstanding devotion to the education of our youth".

IN KYOTO, JAPAN, Clara Jasper Simerville, '28, meets the mother of an Oregon State College student. "Language is no barrier," says Mrs. Simerville, "when two mothers have pictures of their children to discuss."

The Lure of Far Places

teled" through Europe in 1953-54. Then in 1955-56 she visited Mexico. A 1958 trip to the Caribbean area inaugurated a series of visits to the homes of her student advisees.

In the meantime she had joined the faculty of Oregon State College and has served there as assistant dean of women, an instructor in sociology, and since 1956 as Foreign Student Counselor. In this latter position she became increasingly aware of the need for her as a counselor to understand the background—the family life, the schools, the society—from which her students come.

She felt she needed to know U. S. representatives in other lands who were counseling and selecting students to come to this country to study. She has a growing conviction that any person who would do a good job of counseling foreign students in this country should have a first-hand knowledge of the situation—the conditions of prestige and prejudice—to which they will return.

To find out more of the things she needed to know, Dr. Simerville began to plan a trip to the Far East. Arranging for transportation and obtaining passport and visas were a small part of the preparation. Requiring more attention were detailed daily schedules to make the short time she would spend in each country as productive as possible.

Students on campus, of course, gave a good deal of help, and their relatives and friends at home spared no effort to make every moment enjoyable, interesting, and profitable. Alumni did their part, and State Department and ICA officials cooperated. Before she left this country she had almost every hour of the trip accounted for.

For example, a typical day in Formosa, for Friday, April 3, was laid out in advance like this:

8:00 a.m.-12 noon — From Taipei to Taichung.

Lunch at Taichung with OSC alumni, Mrs. Tao.

2:00 p.m.-6:00 p.m. — Visit Tunghai University, National Central Museum, Taiwan Provincial Government, Taiwan People's Assembly.
6:00 p.m.—Dinner and stay overnight at Sun-Moon Lake.

Day after day the schedule was laid out in detail. "It took a good year," Clara says, "to prepare for the Asian trip."

But even careful planning could not have foreseen all of the dilemmas and surprises that awaited her. She began the Far East trip early in January 1959. At her first stop, The Philippines, she was nearly swept off her feet with the overwhelming hospitality she encountered. In homes and schools, on a trip into the wild mountain country of Luzon, at receptions and interviews by the press she gained an insight into the lives of her student advisees that she could have acquired in no other way.

In Indonesia some of the growing pains in a newly independent nation made her wary at first, but renewal of old acquaintanceships soon smoothed the way to a new insight into that country. Singapore brought its surprises and Bangkok many friends, since OSC at that time was exchanging faculty and students with Kasetsart University in Thailand.

Burma, India, Ceylon, and Nepal brought gracious hospitality and friendly tours. Hong Kong, Taiwan, Korea, and Japan all contributed to her store of intimate knowledge.

When asked about the hardships and discomforts of a strenuous 33,000-mile trip in 3½ months, Clara Simerville is apt to break into a sparkling smile and with a chuckle relate how she slept on the baggage rack of an overcrowded Indian train, or tell how to get rid of the little red spots left by insects, or explain why Americans and Europeans in Indonesia hesitate to move about without a native driver. She discounts the unhappy experiences because the comforts of friendly association with ordinary people in their day-to-day lives far outweigh any momentary discomforts.

On her return flight—by jet plane 11 hours from Tokyo to Vancouver,

Clara Jasper Simerville '28 is off this winter on another tour into homes on the other side of the world. Her itinerary includes eleven nations of the Near and Middle East from Egypt to Pakistan.

As Foreign Student Counselor for Oregon State College, Mrs. Simerville has frequent contact with practically all of the 256 students from other lands who are enrolled at OSC this year. But she does not stop with campus contacts. She has formed a close relationship with parents, former teachers, and advisers in the home countries of her students. It is a system of relationship that has been years in building.

After Clara received her B.A. at Willamette she went on to graduate school at the University of Oregon and received her M.A. in sociology in 1930. As a housewife in Bend, she became especially interested in international relations and served for more than a decade as a coordinator of speakers and visitors from foreign countries to that community.

As her family grew older—she has one son in college, a married daughter, and an older son who lives in Portland—she returned to graduate work and in 1953 received an Ed.D. degree with a major in counseling and guidance from Oregon State College. Soon after finishing graduate school, her world travels began. With her younger son, she "hos-

These Goals of Ours

About This Article

One of the major objectives of The Alumnus is to keep our Willamette alumni informed about the current thinking on campus. We are privileged to share with you this article which so well describes the viewpoint of Willamette's part in Higher Education. This was originally an address delivered by one of Willamette's most popular faculty members, Dr. Howard Runkel, Professor of Speech and Drama, at Parents' Weekend last October.

I have been asked to describe your faculty's aspirations insofar as they affect your loved ones—and I shall try to speak accurately on behalf of my colleagues in this.

Our first goal, I suppose, must always be to develop in our students an insatiable intellectual curiosity. Perhaps "habit of inquiry" or "will to know" is a more satisfying way to express it.

The vitality of our democracy today is being sapped by citizens who haven't bothered to "find out." A newspaper survey some years ago disclosed the fact that 26% of the college graduates and 52% of the high school graduates in this country hadn't read a single book in the preceding year. A questionnaire returned by a large number of high school students in the east indicated that 10% of them thought Abraham Lincoln had written the Declaration of Independence; 70% put Venezuela south of the Equator; 35% declared that the Earth was the center of the universe. The late Ruth Isabel Seabury, lecturer and writer, used to say that our young people are most ignorant of all about their Christian faith. She asked one group of teenagers assembled in a church meeting the simple question: "Who were Christ's friends?" Answers ranged from "Moses" to "Revelations!" To the query: "What was Sodom?" several replied, "A kind of soup the Hebrews ate." Others identified the Bible's Sarah as "the daughter of Winston Churchill."

Now, what is a concomitant of all this? Indifferent citizenship, of course. We are uninformed, hence we feel ourselves inadequate to participate in solving public problems. One poll reports that 60% of the citizens questioned during the 1956 presidential race admitted that they "simply hadn't been following the campaign." Many of these naturally don't bother to vote with the result that a 60 to 65% turnout in a United States election is considered a proud achievement. Actually, it ought to cause concern because the comparable data in elections abroad are 95.5% in Australia, 88% in West Germany, 82% in Israel, 80% in Canada, 79% in Great Britain and 77% in Sweden.

At this point one is mindful of the grim warning of Dr. Robert Maynard Hutchins to a graduating class in a large university. Said he: "From this day on, because of the way of this world, each of you is going to begin to do more and more acquiring and less and less inquiring."

The steadfast goal of a liberal arts college like Willamette University, then, becomes of the utmost vitality—to develop a habit of inquiring, a will to know, an intellectual curiosity that never knows complete satisfaction—one that impels us to put inquiring ahead of acquiring in our lives. Any lesser objective fails to meet the essential challenge of a democracy!

Our second goal at Willamette is to produce in your sons and daughters a sense of social responsibility. This may be translated into a "willingness to act"—the readiness to spend and be spent for a cause. One contemporary philosopher puts this quality most graphically when he says that "a man has made at least a start on discovering the meaning of human life when he plants shade trees under which he knows full well he will never sit."

What a need there is in our society for citizens who are willing to "plant"—to act on behalf of society! One humorist analyzes the "action-capacity" of the nation with these engaging calculations:

"The population of the United States is 180,000,000.
62,000,000 are persons over 65 years of age;
118,000,000 are left.
65,000,000 are under 21 years of age;
53,000,000 workers are left.

20,000,000 are housewives;
33,000,000 are left.
8,000,000 are Federal employees and servicemen;
25,000,000 are left.
15,000,000 are city and state workers;
10,000,000 are left.
5,600,000 are in hospitals and asylums;
4,200,000 are left.
4,000,000 are collecting unemployment insurance;
200,000 are left.
126,000 are ill at home at the moment;
74,000 are left.
62,000 are bums and drunks;
12,000 are left.
11,998 are in jails and prisons;
That leaves two—you and me. And you'd better get going because I'm getting sick and tired of running this country all alone!"

All joking aside, most of us will say "amen" to Edmund Burke's declaration that "all that is necessary for the forces of evil to win in the world is for enough good men to do nothing." So Willamette's mission is not just to produce good men, but to motivate them toward worthy action. To this end the geography of the campus is fortunate. Our proximity to all the State institutions and offices cannot but bring about an awareness of the problems of society and the solutions thoughtful men are creating to deal with them. Willamette's avowed Christian commitment ought to promote the conviction in her students that the things that make men alike are finer and stronger than the things that make them different. And out of this will come a better-balanced person, whose orientation is humane, whose outreach is a blessing to all with whom he comes in contact. This personal gain which comes from service-consciousness is described in the statement of a distinguished psychiatrist:

"Are you worried? Is your mind filled with personal problems? Cross over to the other side of the tracks in your own home town. There you'll find someone who needs you. Minister to him—and your own ills and worries will disappear."

Such is the citizen Willamette strives to produce in her students—men and women who are genuinely impelled to plant shade trees under which they know full well they will never sit.

Our final goal here at Willamette is to nurture in your sons and daughters a mature, satisfying philosophy of life. Dr. Julian Price, trustee of the American Medical Association, tells us that "the

WILLAMETTE BEARCAT SPORTS ROUND-UP

Things have been happening sports-wise at Willamette since the last issue of the Alumnus — but not all of it good.

Following a trio of victories in the WU-hosted NAIA Tipoff Tournament and receipt of the tourney crown, Willamette's Bearcats had sports writers and fans agog. It didn't seem possible that Coach John Lewis's varsity cagers actually had the material this year to make a successful defense of the Northwest Conference hoop crown. However, win the Bearcats did.

Even as the Lewis-led hoopers headed south to Chico, Calif., for the Chico Invitational gathering, they owned a very respectable 5-2 mark. Then the 'Cats proceeded to knock off the hosting Chico State five in a first round game to chalk up another win. Coupled with two successive losses in the remainder of the Invitational tourney contests, the WU casabateers still looked potent, having a 6-3 pre-conference record.

A conference opening win by Whitman's fighting Missionaries was the beginning of the end for Salem's pride. Of six Northwest Conference games through January 17, after which followed a 10-day layoff for semester exams, the Bearcats found themselves deep in the conference cellar with a lone win against five defeats.

Teams Willamette "should have beaten" were salvaging second half wins. It seemed as if everything went sour. Early-game leads fizzled into the smoke of defeat for the 'Cats. The trouble?

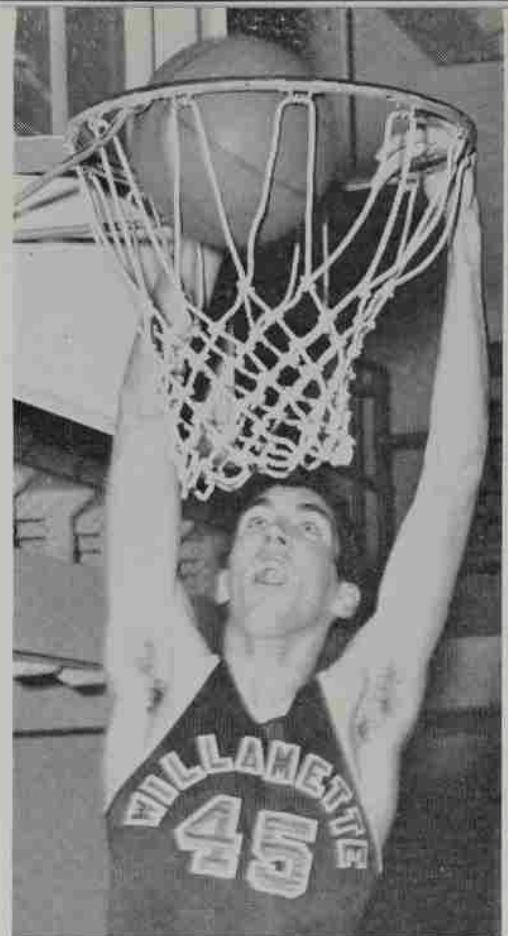

Well, as Capital Journal Sports Editor Bob Robinson's "Robbie's Comments" puts it:

Actually, cold statistics tell the whole story. Last year, WU's championship team shot .395 from the field in 28 games. The current edition to date is firing away at a much superior clip. Last season's club averaged 44 rebounds per game, the present one 43 rebounds.

So, how come the losses? Simple! Bad passes and violations of one sort or another have cut the 1960-61 team down to an average of 60 field shots per game. Last year, the Bearcats — making many fewer mistakes — managed an average of 71 shots per outing . . . Those 11 lost shots have made a world of difference.

Good News Cheering

As far as the brighter side of the Bearcat sports picture is concerned—

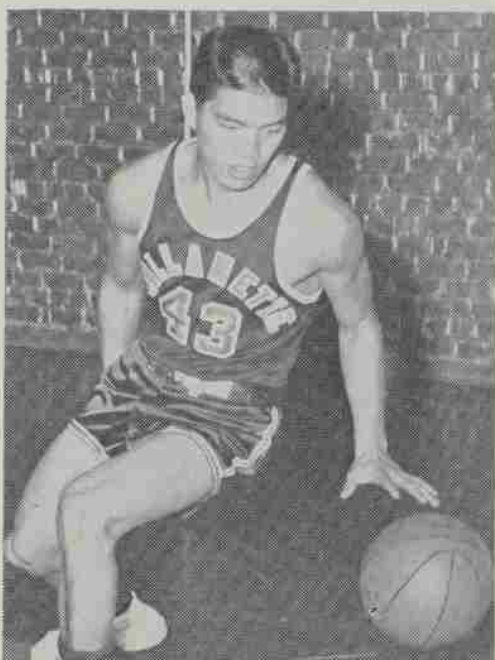

LOTS OF STRETCH—Fourth among 'Cat producers, but tops in the rebounding department with 189 backboard grabs is 6-8 forward Ken Ashley, ex-Silverton high star.

and there is a brighter side — Hisao (Junior) Sato, the swift Hawaiian who operates from a guard position for the 'Cats impressed everyone at the Chico Invitational Tournament with his ball handling skill, point making and general ability. When it came time to pick the stars, little Bearcat "Junior" Sato was named to a first team tournament berth.

On another sports front, several of WU's 8-0 undefeated footballers picked up a few all-star honors themselves. Topping the star list, of course, was Stan (King) Solomon, one of Willamette's all-time grid-greats. Stan won first team spots on the Methodist College all-American and Williamson system little all-American squads. In addition, he was named a Northwest conference all-star halfback, United Press little all-Coast back, NAIA offensive halfback and the Oregon Journal's player of the year.

Other 'Cat gridders winning all-American honors were Jim Robinson (Methodist College all-American second team tackle), Marv Cisneros (NAIA first team defensive guard), and Stuart Hall (Academic all-American linebacker). In fact, an even dozen members of the Ted Ogdahl-Jerry Long Bearcat eleven (first perfect team in 47 years) snared honors ranging from conference mentions to all-American posts.

ALL STAR — Hisao (Junior) Sato snared a first team all-tournament berth at the December Chico State Invitational.

mental and physical health of the American people is relatively good; spiritual disease is spreading." This is not the lamentation of a preacher, it is the thoughtful observation of a man of medicine! Surely it is not secret that our American value-system has deteriorated. One item alone tells the story clearly—that Americans today are spending almost as much on alcohol as they are on education! Consider also this disgusting bit of evidence, as it was provocatively analyzed in Christian Century magazine some months ago:

"Elvis Presley, fresh out of Army khaki, may not have returned from overseas as a conquering hero, but his claim to dubious fame as America's sex idol is still intact, it would seem; he recently received no less than $125,000 for one night's appearance on a network TV program. He did two wiggles and sang two songs, and for this received more than the yearly salary of the President of the United States and three times the yearly salary of the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court. An identical sum of money would pay the salaries of 25 school teachers, 42 ministers, or 63 farm hands in many of our states. It would provide a year's training for 30 or more nurses, would give 125 American young people a year in college, would stock 10 mission hospitals with elemental tools and drugs. It would feed 3,000 refugee children for a whole year. All this reveals the depth of decadence into which our scale of values has sunk."

The ultimate significance of this is put into proper perspective by a man of science—Lawrence M. Gould, eminent geologist, Antarctic explorer and now president of Carleton College in Minnesota:

"I do not believe the greatest threat to our future is from bombs or guided missiles. I don't think our civilization will die that way. I think it will die when we no longer care—when the spiritual forces that made us wish to be right and noble die in the hearts of men. Arnold Toynbee has pointed out that 19 of 21 notable civilizations have died from within and not by conquest from without. There were no bands playing and no flags waving when these civilizations decayed; it happened slowly, in the quiet and the dark when no one was aware.

"If America is to grow great, we must stop gagging at the word 'spiritual.' Our task is to rediscover and reassert our faith in the spiritual, non-utilitarian values on which American life has really rested from its beginning."

So Willamette University is unashamedly a Christian university. We have a chapel program; we teach courses in religion; we try to leave no stone unturned in creating on this campus a climate of values in which your sons and daughters will choose to live the rest of their lives. And out of these lives will come the inevitable effect of enriching the values of our society which so desperately needs it.

This, I believe, has been a fair statement of the mind and the hopes of your Willamette faculty with whom young people will be so closely associated during their four years here. Keep in touch with us—our relationship as parents and faculty members can be the most fundamental possible in "training up the young child in the way he should go." For if it is true that "the hand that rocks the cradle rules the world" then it is just as true that the mind that directs in the classroom can move the world.

CLASS NOTES

Again, an apology for being unable to use all the information sent the Alumni office. Lack of space in this issue prohibits use of all the class notes, but we shall try to have them in your next magazine.

1895

Miss MUSA GEER will move from Goodnoe Hills, Wash., where she has lived the last 50 years, and by Feb. 1 will be at the old Geer Land Donation Claim five miles south of Silverton, Ore., where she was born 88 years ago. She will be caretaker of the old Geer home which has been faithfully restored and opened to the public as a family museum. The home has been fitted with many pioneer relics and will have benches and tables for picnic facilities in the summer.

While at Goodnoe Hills, Miss Geer has been storekeeper and postmistress, and friend and advisor to the Rock Creek Indian people. The latter role became the guiding motive in her life and the one which kept her "on the job" the last fifty years.

Mrs. FRANCES CORNELIUS SIEWART is to be congratulated on the fact that her work, The Amplified New Testament, is now in its third year and is the best seller in its field in America. She is now in virtual seclusion working on a similar amplification of the Old Testament, the first volume of which will be published in '61.

1908

Dr. LUZANA GRAVES, Rt. 2, Box 314, Corona, Calif., writes that she has cataracts, and because of her failing eyesight has had to give up the practice of medicine.

1909

Mrs. EDITH CARTER KEENEY has doubled her regular annual contribution and sent it as a loyalty token "in loving memory of Dr. Charles O. Boyer, who died Nov. 1." Her letter continues . . . "To those of the class of 1909 he was Dean Boyer—a wonderful teacher, a helpful and inspiring mentor and a dear and beloved friend—especially to those of us who were (to put it gently, as he did) ebullient and had to be sent from time to time to his office for discipline and advice. On these occasions his words were firm and his injunctions positive but, though one eye was glass and stern, his good eye always twinkled before the interview was over. And we loved him dearly, we of those long ago years, and as long as we live we will cherish him, in loyal and loving memory."

Mrs. CYNTHIA HORNIBROOK BOWDEN writes from 104 S. Palouse St., Walla Walla,

B. C.—she says, "I realized that now for the first time on this trip I was on my own. There would be no eager parents and former students to meet me. From now on I would need to find my way by myself. In this thought, however, I was mistaken, for in Vancouver a Canadian family met me."

In Seattle, in New York, in fact, everywhere she went, former students sought her out to gain first-hand news of the families back home. "Many people have asked me if I were afraid to travel alone," she says. "I can only say, I don't know. I never have."

The National Association of Foreign Student Advisers and the Publications Office at Oregon State College are planning now to combine her letters written home from each country she visited with a guide on preparation for such a trip and publish it in book form. They call the book Home Visits Abroad and plan to publish it later this year.

To it they will add letters she writes home from this year's tour of the Middle East. She left in January for a tour that is taking her now to Egypt, Kuwait, Pakistan, Afghanistan, Iran, Iraq, Syria, Lebanon, Jordan, Israel, and Turkey.

As have adventurers of countless generations, Clara Jasper Simerville has heard the enticing call of faraway lands beyond the seas. It is not for gold and jewels, nor for silks and spices, nor for power and prestige that she heeds the call. It is simply to learn to know, understand, and appreciate the peoples of the world as she continues her home visits abroad.

Physicist

Dr. Victor Hicks, '25, formerly chief physicist for the Allen-Bradley Co., Milwaukee, Wis., manufacturers of electronic components, has joined the Remington Rand Univac Military department as staff scientist.

As head of the physics department at Allen-Bradley since 1952, Dr. Hicks was responsible for solid state physics research, physical analysis, and general applications of physics, including consultation on radiation damage and chemical metallurgical problems. Death recently took one of Willamette's greatest friends, Charles E. (Ed) McCulloch, who for a dozen years between 1945 and 1957 was president of the Board of Trustees and afterwards president emeritus. He died on January 17 in a Portland hospital.

The passing of the beloved Dr. McCulloch resulted from complications of injuries received in an untimely New Year's Day fall at his Portland home. Funeral services were held Friday, January 20, from J. P. Finley & Son, Portland, with private vault entombment at Portland Memorial.

Mr. McCulloch, who was born in Peoria, Ill., June 3, 1882, was not only a motivating force in the strengthening and growth of Willamette University as an outstanding educational institution, but he contributed much to his community, and the entire state of Oregon during his life.

Obtaining an A.B. degree from Ohio Wesleyan University and an LL.D. from Illinois Wesleyan University, Mr. McCulloch was admitted to the Illinois bar in 1907 and to the Oregon bar in 1908. At his death, he was an associate and partner in the Portland law firm of Hart, Rockwood, Davies, Biggs & Stayer, last in line of successors to Carey & Kerr, the first law firm with which he was associated in Oregon.

A highlight of Mr. McCulloch's career was the erection of McCulloch stadium in the Bush pasture area and the transfer of the athletic field to the plant, toward which he was principal donor.

In June, 1957, the honorary degree, Doctor of Humanities, was conferred upon Mr. McCulloch, the long-time friend of Methodism and Willamette University.

Survivors include his widow, Nina; a son, Charles E., Jr.; a daughter, Mrs. Helen M. Selander; a brother and sister and six grandchildren.

SUMMER SESSION

The 1961 summer session will open on June 19 for the first 4-week session ending on July 15. The second session will open on July 17 and will run until August 12.

The program is again designed for the teacher who wishes to complete teacher certification requirements, the graduate student who is working toward the M.A. in Education, the M.Ed. or the M.M.Ed. The graduate requirements have been changed to permit a student to complete requirements for the M.E. degree without writing a thesis. Otherwise, the requirements for degrees remain the same.

Opportunity is also given to interested non-degree people who may wish to study in some field for personal enrichment.

The University desires for its alumni to investigate the possibilities for taking needed summer courses on the campus of their alma mater.

Sincerely,

James R. Lyles, Jr.

BUSY MAN — BUSY YEAR

C. Gilbert Wrenn, '26, and his wife, the former Kathleen LaRaut, '24, spent the fall of 1959 in Europe, principally in England. He was on a sabbatical quarter from University of Minnesota with the task of attempting to study the existence of personnel services, particularly counseling, in British universities. As part of the process, however, they spent some eight weeks on the continent and traveled some 7500 miles in their small French car.

Since that time he has been on leave from the university acting as Project Director for the Commission on Guidance in American Schools. This commission, an agent of the American Personnel and Guidance Association, secured a grant of money from the Ford Fund for the Advancement of Education with the purpose of outlining the directions of school counseling for the next two decades.

In the spring of 1960 he was appointed a Consulting Editor of the Houghton Mifflin Company for a series of books in the field of school guidance, college personnel work and freshman orientation. He has been editor of the Journal of Counseling Psychology since 1954.

Last September, Mr. Wrenn attended the first organizational meeting of the Board of Missions of the Methodist Church and was appointed by the Council of Bishops as a member-at-large of the Board for the next four years. He was also appointed to serve in the Division of World Missions, on the Joint Committee for Missionary Personnel and on two Policy Committees. He found that two leading laymen on the Board of Missions were GEORGE ATKINSON and TRUMAN COLLINS, both alumni.

This year he was also elected to the Executive Council of the Division of Counseling Psychology of the American Psychological Association of which he was president in 1950, and also elected to the Executive Council of the American College Personnel Association, of which he was president in 1948.

Founders' and Benefactors' Day

Willamette University's traditional Founders' and Benefactors' Day is scheduled for Thursday, February 9, when the lives of Thomas Hall Pearne and L. Franklin Belknap will be honored as founder and benefactor, respectively.

Other highlights of the day will include the conferring of degrees on nearly 30 students at a mid-year commencement and the presentation of Willamette University alumni citations by Dr. Allan Ferrin, alumni association president.

Student speakers are Paul McGilvra, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh McGilvra, Forest Grove; and Karen Madsen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Soren Madsen, Junction City. McGilvra will honor Mr. Pearne, while Miss Madsen will highlight the career of Mr. Belknap.

Thomas Hall Pearne, who came to Oregon in 1851, immediately assumed a place of leadership in the Methodist church and community. He was a member of the Charter Board of the Oregon Institute, WU predecessor, a presiding elder of the Marys River District, later serving briefly as first editor of The Pacific Christian Advocate.

L. Franklin Belknap's contributions are best remembered for his faithful service to the church by his membership on the Board of Trustees during a time when the frequent transfers of ministerial members from pastorate to pastorate made continuous Board service extremely difficult.
