"That We May All Be Acquainted"

Victory and History

President Carl Gregg Doney. Leader of the Campaign Culminating in the Million Dollar Victory.

Dr. B. L. Steeves, President of the Board of Trustees, in a short address at the student body celebration of the campaign victory, called attention to the fact that 15 years ago when Dr. Doney assumed the presidency of Willamette a large and long standing debt had to be met, two burned buildings had to be replaced and the Women's Dormitory had to be constructed, all at a cost in excess of $275,000. Those were dark days demanding a leadership which Dr. Steeves characterized as outstanding, further stating that, in his judgment, the accomplishment of Dr. Doney during these 15 years did credit to the normal expectancy of a life time.

Faced with the task of securing $40,000 in cash by Tuesday midnight, September 30, to make possible the completion of Willamette University's drive for $1,000,000 additional endowment, a group of 10 men affixed their names to a note of a local bank, secured the money, assumed personal responsibility for the debt, and went home with the realization that Willamette University, seventeen years older than the state of Oregon, would begin October 1, 1930, with $1,743,000 of productive endowment.

The job was done.

Names of the few men who guaranteed the cash advance to make possible the full $1,000,000 of additional endowment were not announced by President

Carl G. Doney, but included in the donors were trustees and other friends of long standing.

Earlier in the campaign E. S. Collins of Portland had pledged $50,000 to be paid when the campaign cash had come within this point of completion. Mr. Collins tendered his check of $50,000, and added $7200 to help the cause along.

R. A. Booth of Eugene likewise tendered $50,000 in cash to bring the endowment totals to the desired mark.

These marked the culmination of a special effort which began February 1, 1929, at which time the university undertook to raise $350,000, including the General Education Board's gifts, to complete the $1,000,000 additional endowment for which extensive solicitation was made in 1922.

Students, catching up the significance of the event, rang the "Victory Bell" at the campus, indicating a major achievement for the university. Plans for a general celebration were immediately begun, to culminate at Homecoming time, October 25.

President Doney, in a statement said the total productive endowment of Willamette University now amounted to $1,743,000. He declared that the average earnings on this sum would exceed five per cent, all this money going to university maintenance from year to year. Under the terms of the endowment gifts, the moneys are proffered to the university in irrevocable trust, all revenues going to the support of the institution.

Securing of the additional $350,000 within the last eighteen months means at least $17,500 annually added to the university's income, the president indicated. More than $200,000 has been received in cash within the last month, and this sum alone means $10,000 additional in university income for the year 1930-31.

Willamette University's balance sheet now shows property valued at approximately $2,500,000. Buildings and equipment together with the campus are valued at nearly $1,000,000. The university is entirely free of debt, this being one provision before any money could be obtained from the General Education Board.

Willamette University, under the leadership of President Doney, began its $1,000,000 additional endowment drive in the fall of 1922. Subscriptions for more than $1,250,000 were then received, the pledges to be paid within five years from that date.

Of the first money received, $25,500 went to retire a long-standing debt of the university. Then $250,000 was expended for the construction of Lausanne hall, and the new gymnasium and to reconstruct Waller hall. Some additional outgo was incurred in the campaign expenses.

These items, together with shrinkage in receipts from 1922 pledges necessitated the inauguration of a second drive in February, 1929.

As a token of appreciation for his work in the endowment campaign, trustees of Willamette University, on the evening of the completion of the campaign, voted President Carl G. Doney a three months' leave of absence. Dr. Doney was notified of this action but had no plans made, he said. He has been active for the last eighteen months in bringing the campaign to a successful conclusion.

Fifty-seven Years Ago

[Written by Olive Doak, senior law student at Willamette and Social Editor and Feature writer for the Salem Statesman.]

Willamette University went "over the top" September 30 just $1,00,000 strong. To a vivacious lady of 76 years who lives in a great square house by the side of the road on the outskirts of Salem and who has lived on the farm upon which this house stands practically all of her life of 76 years, that amount of money means a long leap for the Willamette University from which she graduated in 1873, fifty-seven years ago.

This sturdy little white haired lady whose quick, sure step bespeaks the pioneer stock from which she comes, was born in Salem in 1855 on the farm where she now lives. Her father, Fabritus Smith came across the plains in 1846 with one other man, Joe Waldo by name. They had an ox team and traveled all the way from St. Joseph, Missouri, to Oregon, overtaking first one train after another, for traveling alone as they were, they were able to make better time than the large trains.

At the same time they were traveling across the vast expanse of wilderness between Oregon and St. Louis, another train, which later was to be vitally connected with the life of Mr. Smith and Salem, was also making its way to the west.

This group was the Pringle train whose manager was "Grandmother Brown" who later became the founder of Pacific university. Soon after the Pringle train reached Salem, Smith and Waldo came. One morning Smith went to the Pringle camp to get some milk and there a slip of a girl saw him. Not so long after that informal meeting Miss Pringle become Mrs. Fabritus Smith and went to live on the old donation land claim purchased from the original owner by her young husband.

This farm is still distinguishable although now over 100 people live on the tract which has been cut up into many small places. At one time it reached to the east as far as Twelfth street, to the south to Pringle creek, to the west at least two blocks above the Pacific highway, and to the north to McGilchrist street. Mrs. Smith can well remember when a "patch" of timber lay between the "farm" and Salem.

When Mr. and Mrs. Fabritus Smith began living in "Salem" there was just one house, the old Jason Lee house which stood on the outskirts of North Salem.

Mrs. Ohmart does not remember that but she does well remember the old "Institute" which marked the beginning of the present Willamette university. It was here that Mrs. Ohmart got most of her education, only at that time she was Velleda Smith.

Here all the work from primary grades on was taught. When Mrs. Ohmart was just about ready for the university the "institute" burned and then it was that Waller hall was built. "They had one commencement exercise in Waller hall before the building was completed," reminisced Mrs. Smith, "and the first assembly hall was a tiny little place not much larger than twice the room in which we sit."

But for all that Willamette was not such a small school in 1873 for that year there were 300 students registered. "That did not happen for a long time after that year and it had never happened before" remarked Mrs. Smith, who recalls every incident with such clarity and alacrity that it puts a much younger person to shame.

T. M. Gatch was president of the university at the time Mrs. Ohmart attended. Other instructors were Prof. Leonard Powell, mathematics; Mary Adams, preceptress or "dean" of women as you would say now," smiled the wise old lady. "Prof. Crawford taught science but I just can't recall his first name," frowned Mrs. Smith, "but he was a handsome man. Ellen Chamberlain had charge of the academy department which was the grade school of the university."

There were fourteen members of the graduating class in 1873. It was amazing to hear Mrs. Ohmart speak their names and spell them without even hesitation. "Yes, I can tell you their names. The girls were Jennie Miller Kellog, Theresa Holderness Byrd, Mary Jory Shepherd, Lydia Chamberlain Crockett, Emma Schattuck, and Libby Brown all of whom are now deceased." Mrs. Ohmart and Saly Chamberlain Moore are the only women out of the class who are still living.

Just here Mrs. Ohmart had to tell an amusing incident concerning "Sally and Lydia Chamberlain, who were twins, and young Crockett who stayed at their home while he went to school. He always took the two girls to every thing, and none of us ever knew until the day of

CHAPEL ORGAN AS GOOD AS NEW

"The finest in organ recitals" is what Willamette will enjoy again. During the past summer the pipe organ has been completely remodeled by the Guenther Organ Co., of Portland. Mr. Guenther, who personally directed the work, stated that there were no better pipes made than the Dennisons, 1000 of which are in this instrument. As the organ now stands it is completely electric pneumatic, all revoiced and used on high wind pressure. This adjustment coupled with the superior quality of pipes in the instrument gives us an organ, while not the largest in size, is of superior quality.

The instrument has been tuned for recitals so the organ and piano can be used together. The front has been re-decorated and the console, formerly in a pit, has been raised to the level of the stage floor.

HOME COMING OCTOBER 25THE LIBRARY IS IMPROVED

Dr. Franklin, the librarian who would choose to buy books in preference to having his salary increased, is happy over the addition during the summer of some 1100 volumes to the University library. Aside from the variety of volumes acquired the Educational Index and the Readers Guide completed down to June 1930 are included.

Among the new volumes added the following subjects are covered: fiction, theology, philosophy, business, immigration, citizenship, science, prohibition, music, minerals, folk lore, humor, German readers, travel and finance.

Add to this the complete renovation of the Library room and the re-tinting and re-decorating of the walls and you do not wonder at the librarian's contagious smile.

HOME COMING OCTOBER 25HEATING PLANT ENLARGED

To serve the dual purpose of heat economy and protection against breakdown a second unit was installed in the heating plant last summer. The two units may be operated together or, in case of trouble with either, each may be operated independently of the other. With this arrangement far better and safer heating service is assured, not only for the building but for the gymnasium showers as well.

WILLAMETTE STANDARDSRECOGNIZED

It will be interesting to all Willamette people to know that Pomona College rated Willamette at the head of its list of those schools petitioning Phi Beta Kappa. Professor Duncan, the President of the Pomona Chapter, stated that when Dr. Doney arrived at Pomona they were prepared to tell him that they did not care to recommend such a small college. Several of the members of the Phi Beta Kappa group at Pomona quizzed Dr. Doney with regard to the qualifications of Willamette toward securing a Phi Beta Kappa chapter and they were so impressed by his replies that they changed their idea entirely with regard to the situation.

HOME COMING OCTOBER 25

Professor Duncan said that he thought Dr. Doney was one of the leading college presidents on the Coast; that his modest answers to searching questions were so carefully given that they made profound impression upon the Phi Beta Kappa Chapter at Pomona.

This information was given by Dr. Duncan to Leland Chapin during a conversation at Stanford University. Dr. Duncan had previously served as Dean of Lingnan University during the time that Mr. Chapin was an instructor in that institution.

HOME COMING OCTOBER 25UNIVERSITY HONORS PORTLAND PASTOR

Dr. Wilbert Dowson, pastor of First Methodist Episcopal Church, Portland, who was granted the honorary degree, Doctor of Divinity, at Willamette last commencement was educated in England and received into the Illinois conference in 1909. Before coming to First Church, where he is serving his fourth year, he served four years at Danville, Ill.; four years at Bement, Ill.; five years Springfield, Ill.; and four years at Decatur, Ill.

HOME COMING OCTOBER 25"A RARE DISTINCTION"

Mr. Victor Collins '22' and Mrs. Edith Bird Collins '18, who live at 1923 Russell St., Berkeley, Calif., send full payment of their pledge plus compound interest. That's a rare distinction—this compound interest.

WHY APOLOGIZE?

Numbers! Numbers! and greater numbers has been the hue and cry of many institutions of learning until the advertising effect of that appeal has been to create in the minds of many, false standards of value. Especially is this false standard magnified, in the minds of boys and girls who make up the freshman classes of our colleges and universities.

There is no denying the popular appeal and the drawing power of numbers. We like to "follow the crowd," not necessarily because that is the best thing for us to do but because we assume (usually without thinking) that what the "crowd" does, and where the "crowd" goes is the popular or the fashionable or the profitable thing for us to do or the place for us to go. Advertisers have long since learned to capitalize on this psychological kink. College and university officials are no exception to the rule, especially in those colleges and universities where enrollment and finances run the circle of "more students more money, more money more students." This appeal for numbers has brought about the opinion, popular in recent years, among students and prospective students, that where the large enrollment is, that's the place for me.

However, have you noticed that in recent years those institutions which number their students by the thousands are making conscious and consistent effort to, by various means, break up their masses into smaller units, in order to attain the instructional and the personal contact benefits of the smaller institution? If you have observed this you will never again feel apologetic for Willamette's five hundred enrollment.

The administration at Willamette stands four square on the policy of quality versus numbers, quality made possible through the limitation of numbers. When we consistently and without apology preach this to our neighbors, tell it to our friends, make it known to our high school officials and teachers, emphasize it to the high school students that the prestige of Willamette is built on her quality and not on her numbers, then we will have two applications for admission for every one we can accept under the policy of selective enrollment. That will mean still higher and finer quality.

AN ASSOCIATED STUDENTS' PLEDGE

An expression of gratitude and a pledge of loyalty is the keynote of a resolution unanimously adopted at a specially called student body meeting on the morning after the great Endowment Victory. The resolution expressed gratitude to President Doney for his successful leadership in the campaign, to the Board of Trustees for their unselfish devotion in giving both time and funds, to the six thousand friends of the institution whose contributions, large and small, placed Willamette University among the upper half dozen Methodist schools in the entire world when ranked on the basis of endowment per student.

However, the resolution did more than express this gratitude; it made a pledge . . . "A pledge of support in carrying out the objects of this great endowment campaign."

The objects of this great campaign were not merely more dollars in the treasury, not marble halls, not to make possible the vain boast of a student body numbering in the thousands; but rather to make possible the conversion of more gold into more character, more righteous stamina, more power exerted in the direction of Willamette's aim.

I say "hats off" to the students, who unanimously pledged concerted and organized support to such an objective.

HOME COMING OCTOBER 25

"THEM AS HAS GETS"

After the victory of completing the million dollar endowment drive had been celebrated President Doney's office was visited by a friend who had $500.00 he wanted to invest in humanity. He passed over the half thousand to the University.

Yet it is something more than mere "luck" that makes true the old adage, "them as has gets."

HOME COMING OCTOBER 25

Why are the members of the class of '21 called the "black sheep"? We will publish any answer that is guaranteed to be true. (Does that list of '21'ers reported by Helen suggest a possible reason).

REGISTRATION TOTALS

With the first semester's registration opening on September 15, there are, as this goes to press, 546 students registered at the close of the seventeenth day. On the corresponding day a year ago, there were 496 registered, or an increase this year of 10% over last. The totals as they now stand are practically 100% what the administration aimed at for this year; that is 500 in College of Liberal Arts with enrollment in the College of Law to be gradually increased.

The most striking contrast between this and previous years is in the percentage of men registered in the Freshman class. Following shows comparisons:

	This Year		Last Year
	Men	Women	Men	Women
Freshmen	111	82	70	79
Sophomore	37	59	51	61
Junior	45	57	40	57
Senior	32	52	21	51
Graduate	8	6	1	1
Special (Music)	9	16	13	16
Law	31	1	35	2
Totals	273	273	231	267
Grand Totals:
This year	546		Last year. 498

The above totals do not include Summer School registration.

With 514 of this year's students registered in Liberal Arts, the number in that College is what the administration looks upon as about ideal. By continuing the policy of selective enrollment, maintaining a constant total in the College of Liberal Arts not below the present level, and increasing the total in the College of Law, Willamette's present high standards and commendable prestige will be maintained.

Alumni Organizations Here and There

The Alumni Association of Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn., has offered two twenty-five dollar prizes for two new football songs submitted for use this fall.

Wesleyan University Alumni Association takes justifiable pride in the fact that they have 32 active Alumni Clubs in cities and towns.

No men need apply! In the city of Chicago the women members of the University of Chicago Alumni Club have given a two year scholarship each year to a girl high school graduate who is a

ONE FELLOWSHIP AVAILABLE

The Oregon Division of the American Association of University Women offers a graduate fellowship of $1200.00 for the purpose of stimulating scholarship among women of the state.

The holder of this fellowship must be a woman resident of Oregon, a graduate of a standard college, and must have good health, excellent character, ability and initiative. It is desired that she be already the holder of a Master's Degree. The fellowship must be used for one year of constructive work, and not merely for the purpose of general culture.

The tenure of the fellowship shall be from July 1, 1931, and the stipend shall be paid half-yearly in advance, provided that the fellow has forwarded a report before the second installment is paid, satisfying the committee that she is pursuing the research indicated in her application.

Applications and recommendations for this fellowship must be received not later than January 1, 1931. None can be accepted after that date. The letter of application should contain an account of the applicant's educational training, a statement in full of the plan of study or research and the object in view. It should be accompanied by:

1. A certificate from the registrar of the college or university awarding the degree or degrees received by the applicant.

2. Date of birth, testimonials as to the health, character, personality, ability and scholarship of the applicant.

3. Thesis, papers or reports of investigations, published or unpublished.

Further information may be obtained by writing Helen Pearce, Willamette representative on Fellowship Committee, 267 N. Winter Street, Salem, Oregon.

A year ago the University of Chicago received thirty-five two-year scholarships for men.

Within the University of Colorado Association there are 31 active, live-wire alumni clubs reaching from Schenectady, N. Y., to San Francisco.

Ohio Wesleyan alumni appear to be active in the interest of Alma Mater. There are 96 local clubs organized and functioning. Six of these are in foreign countries.

The Willamette Alumni Placement Bureau is concerned more with the type of placements it makes rather than with the number.

You who are employers let us know your needs.

Graduates from the College of Law may be just the type you need.

Remember the prestige of Willamette graduates when hiring new men and women. Give some of these recent graduates a "chance at the first job" the same as you had 5-10-30 years ago.

Willamette Alumni Placement Bureau

Dean Frank M. Erickson, Director

Salem, Oregon

The following reprints are expressive of action directed toward a definite end. "The Alumni Association of Lima (Ohio) entertained a number of prospective students at a banquet given at the Norval Hotel . . ."

"The Cincinnati club held a luncheon meeting at the Y. M. C. A. . . . Seven girls, prospective students for Ohio Wesleyan, were our guests. . . ."

Delegates from fourteen clubs met in Central Ohio recently and, "In discussing the mutual project for the coming year a suggestion was well received that the clubs take as their special task the making of definite contacts by calls on each Ohio Wesleyan former student in the communities represented. It was agreed that such a task be undertaken in order than many more alumni might feel the O. W. U. spirit in 1930-31."

The July issue of Ohio Wesleyan Alumnus carries announcement of reunions of 12 classes at commencement time last June.

A Willamette Alumni Club has been organized in Salem where there are over 200 grads and ex-students. This is the eighth club to organize. Where will the ninth one be? (Don't all speak at once). A club in a community with only half a dozen members could do fine constructive work in the way of contacting and interesting new students.

Bouquets and Brickbats

[This is your Magazine but you have not used its columns. Your comments, ideas, suggestions, criticisms, will gladly be published. Names will not be used but your class numbers will be shown with your contribution. This should be made one of the most constructive departments of the magazine because it will reflect your personal actions and reactions. Address your "Bouquets and Brickbats" to the University, care of the Alumnus.]

"A new spirit of growth seems to be arising, indicated by the number of Willamette clubs that have been formed in the last three or four years. The increase in enrollment of the Freshmen this year show that the alumni, who are scattered about, are getting High School students interested in Willamette.

"The broad-casting of the champion foot ball game last fall by the Portland Willamette University Clubs points to the new spirit that is growing. The Willamette clubs of Portland are most enthusiastic and exceed in attendance any of the groups of alumni at the banquets.

"Membership in the Alumni Association has increased from one hundred paid members to two hundred paid members. Counting the Law, Music, Medicine, Pharmacy, Oratory, ex-Willamette students (anyone who has attended Willamette two years is eligible to membership in the Willamette Alumni Association), and Liberal Arts graduates, we have a total of fifteen hundred people.

"What a large amount of work needs to be done to increase the paid up membership of the Association. Should every one of these people become interested in Willamette and in the Associations' student activities, what a strong Association we would have. The Association has been kept alive by a few loyal members. Let's show the same loyalty and try and interest these other members in the activities of the Association and Willamette."

Who? What? When? Where?

Class of '85

The Corvallis Gazette Times characterizes as an "Outstanding Social event" the celebration of the Golden Wedding anniversary of Professor and Mrs. John B. Horner. President Doney acted as best man at the ceremony.

The celebration, on September 5, was a large affair, with guests from all parts of the state. The big Student Union building on the Oregon State College campus was filled with visitors who were friends; and, in many cases, former students of Professor Horner, affectionately known as "Jackie."

In addition to his degree in '85, Professor Horner was granted the honorary degree of Lh.D. at Willamette in June, 1929.

Class of '12

Edgar L. Martin is a practicing attorney in Los Angeles.

Class of '14

Modesty thy name is Edith Sherwood Mason. Mrs. Mason writes from Mill City, Oregon, and sends in the following information concerning some of her classmates of '14, but leaves us entirely in the dark concerning herself. She doesn't even say a word about the little Masons.

After a visit to Salem late last fall, Lola Belle-Cook (Bellinger) returned to Honolulu, T. H., where she has charge of the Children's Department of the Library of Hawaii.

George Vandevort, M.D., has a flourishing practice in Bend, Oregon, not many miles from his childhood home.

At Bend, also, lives Agnes Alford (Larsen) with her two small girls and her husband, Oscar Larsen. Aside from taking excellent care of her family, and doing professional work, as a trained nurse, Agnes is active in the work of the church and Grange. Busy as ever.

Paul T. Homan is one of the instructors at Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y. He writes that his home is situated on the bluff overlooking the lake, with a beautiful view, and invites all W. U. friends to visit him there.

The lure of climate has taken several of our class members to California—Rena Mickey, Edna White, and Vivian Young, all pedagogues, meet occasionally in Los Angeles; and Errol Gilkey is practicing law with vim and vigor in Berkeley.

Class of '15

Dr. M. A. Marcy, (D.D., Willamette '29), Superintendent of the Salem District, Oregon Conference, moved his family from Eugene to Salem during the past summer.

Harold Jory is Principal of the South Junior Hi at Everett, Washington. He is choir director of the Congregational Church and on the Y. M. Executive board.

Clara Schnasse Francis, Olympia, Washington, writes a most enthusiastic letter in which she gives the following facts regarding a number of her classmates.

Rev. J. M. Hixson is pastor of the Methodist church at Tumwater, Washington. Mr. and Mrs. Hixson were instrumental in establishing the Epworth League institute and summer camp at Discovery Bay, Washington.

Nina Groves Hermann (ex '15), living four blocks from the Francis' is actively associated in the missionary and choir work of the church. Their oldest of four children is entering high school this year with full intent of entering Willamette.

Ruth Young Gould (ex '15) graduated from Berkeley and later from Johns Hopkins. She is active in all phases of church work, Red Cross and is an officer in the Association of University Women. She "sends greetings."

Kate Barton Ganer lives in Morrisonville, Ill. They have one four year old daughter.

Daisy Mulkey Maltby lives in Lincoln, Ill. They have two boys and a girl. In each letter she wishes to, "be remembered to all the dear ones out west."

Among the fifteen members of the class who were present at the June reunion was Mary Cone Acheson, wife of Rev. Thos. Acheson pastor of Epworth Church, Tacoma, and formerly of Jason Lee Church, Salem. At the Epworth Heights Institute in July, where Mrs. Acheson met some of the '15'ers she dispensed "some of the old class spirit."

The Francis' moved from Oregon to Olympia, Wash., in 1926 where Frank bought half interest in the Dietz Business College, which interest he still holds. In addition he is auditor of the Port of Olympia. He has perfected and published a system of shorthand which is gaining much favor.

In addition to mothering two girls, ages four and nine, Mrs. Francis is active in church, Sunday School, choir, missionary work, and Association of University Women.

Class of '16

Eva Hogue Jory, the proud mother of two girls (four and nine) is actively interested in the Everett, Washington, Y. W. C. A. and is pipe organist at the Congregational Church.

Ada Ross, who has been teaching in the Salem High School, is now registered at the University of California, where she is doing work for her Masters degree, with a major in English. She is living at the new one and one-half million dollar International house, where 600 students are accommodated under one roof.

Fred McMillan is teaching Science at the College of Puget Sound, Tacoma, Washington.

Class of '17

Ruth Hodge Todd lives at 4315 Winslow Place, Seattle, Washington.

Class of '20

Oscar (Frosty) Olson (ex '20) made a fine contribution to and showing at the State Fair this year. His large display of cut flowers was in competition with exhibits from Portland to Eugene but we noticed "Frosty" carried away the ribbons.

Ben Rickli, for the past four years assistant secretary of the Salem Y. M. C. A., has severed his relations with that organization, and has gone to Berkeley, Calif., where he has charge of promotion work as assistant general secretary. While the change is in the nature of a promotion, Rickli stated that he disliked leaving Salem. However, he believed Berkeley would offer a wider field for advancement.

During his four years with the Salem association, Rickli has worked strenuously and has gained many friends who expressed regret that he deemed it necessary to leave. He served four years with the Portland association before coming to Salem.

Class of '21

(Sent in by Helen Satchwell Gragg, Monroe, Oregon, Secretary and Editor of the "Class Letter.")

The former class mates, Lawrence D. Davies and Edna Gilbert Davies send an announcement of the arrival of Gilbert William on July 15. He weighed 6 3/4 pounds. If the little bundle of humanity is half as cute as the announcement, he is surely some baby.

The Davies live in Philadelphia, where Lawrence is correspondent for the New York Times. Edna is Librarian at the University Club.

Rhoda Persons Baker, who has recently moved into their brand new home at E. 103 Rich Ave., Spokane, Wash., writes emphatically that "the latch string is always hanging out."

Sybil McClure Doughton keeps house for Millard Doughton '20 and three children. They live in Salem, where Millard works for Uncle Sam.

Dr. David Lawson is practicing medicine at Prairie City, Oregon. He married a class mate, Marguerite Cooke. Dave writes an interesting letter with which he closes, "Let's keep on boosting the old school!"

Russel Rarey is athletic coach at Tillamook High School, married Charlotte Croizen, '21.

Edwin Socolofsky is with the Seattle Y. M. C. A. He married Veona Belle Williams. Their one and only daughter is old enough now for kindergarten.

Tinkham Gilbert is in Salem, and Assistant State Supt. of Banks. He is married.

Dr. Paul Day is instructor at University of Arkansas, Little Rock, Ark.

Married Mildred Garrett, '21, and recently added a red-haired daughter to the family.

Herald Emmel is manager of a Penney Store at Rushville, Illinois. He, also, is married.

Areta Jones Harper lives on a farm near Gervais, Oregon, and keeps house for her husband and two children.

Paul Flegel recently of the Berkeley Y. M. C. A. writes that he is expecting to help start a private camp for boys.

Dr. Robin Fisher, practicing medicine in Pomona, Calif., married Faye McKinnis. He has one son, Gordon Emerson, about twenty months old.

Winifred Eyre Walker, is married and lives on a farm five miles south of Salem.

Frank B. Bennett, who is Supt. of Schools at Tillamook, Oregon, married Ethel Mocoft, and is father of four children. He recently boasted that he weighed as much as the rest of the family put together.

Henry R. Spiess, is Supt. of Schools at Yreka, Calif. He is married and has two boys.

Dr. Paul Wise, a dentist at San Dimas, Calif., married Sybil Smith, '21. They have three children.

Leland Linn, who is Supt. of Schools at Myrtle Point, Oregon, married Fay Pratt, '21. They have two sons.

Myrtle Mason McKittrick lives at Arcata, Calif., and keeps house for Bryan McKittrick, '22.

Muriel Steeves Morse lives in Vancouver, Wash., where she keeps house for Paul W. Morse, and three charming daughters.

Elsie Lippold Hill keeps house for her husband in Salem.

W. Bernard Morse teaches in Monmouth High School, is married to Gladys Crozier, '21, and has one daughter.

Keith A. Lyman teaches in Breerton High School, is married, and has one boy.

Glen Campbell and Mildred Wells Campbell live at Bellingham, Wash., where they both teach in the high school.

Dr. Hubert T. Wilken, San Fernando, Calif., married Vivian Isham. They had three children at the last count.

Class of '22

Edwin Noren is doing an interesting bit of work in the Educational Department of the Penn Mutual Life Insurance Co. of Philadelphia.

Class of '23

Elsworth L. Anslow is teaching in High School at Port Orchard, Washington.

Dr. Everett Lyman is a resident physician at Marine Hospital, San Francisco.

Willard Corey (ex-'23) spent a year in Alaska after graduating from the University of Washington in '26. He and Elmer Strevey drove out from Chicago in August and after spending a month, they returned by way of Salem, where they stopped to visit Dr. Doney.

Corey will graduate at Northwestern next June with his M.D.

Elmer Strevey (Ph. D. Chicago, '30) remains at Chicago teaching American Colonial History. He has been assigned the task of writing one of a four volume history of the University. His volume will cover the period from 1848-1870.

His Doctor's thesis treated the study of "The Political Influence of Editor Medill" (Editor of the Chicago Tribune).

Strevey was one of the many old grads who stopped during the summer to say "Hello" to Dr. Doney.

Class of '24

Fred Patton, superintendent of schools at Clatskanie, Oregon, was in Salem on business during the summer. Patton formerly was school superintendent at Falls City. "The cooperative dairy association is building a new plant in our city," Patton reported. He says that the community is prospering. There are 200 pupils in the high school. They are drawn from several districts. Mrs. Patton was Phyllis Palmer, '24.

Class of '25

Howard Mort has two big irons in the fire at the University of Chicago, where he is Manager of the University band and also Manager of the Reynolds Club, a large club for men students.

Dr. J. E. Vinson (M.D. '29) announces the removal of his offices in Portland to Forty-first and Fremont, opposite the Beaumont school.

A greeting card was received during the summer, mailed at Balboa, Canal Zone, by Paul Roeder and Elizabeth McClure Roeder, who gave as their home address: Institute Andeno, Huancayo, Peru.

Class of '26

Pauline Miller, who has been employed at the State Library in Salem since her graduation, is attending Columbia University for advanced library work.

On September 1st, Vera Branson (Kimball '30) took up her work as pastor of the Methodist church at Bay City, Oregon.

George Rigby, son of W. T. Rigby, '89, has accepted a position with the Du Pont Co., a large rayon manufacturing company, at Buffalo, N. Y., where he will be employed as a research chemist and will work toward the development of scientific advances in the use of rayon. Mr. Rigby secured his Doctor's degree from Massachusetts Institute of Technology this spring, and graduated with high honors. He also won a scholarship from Willamette when he graduated here. Before leaving for the east, George went to Spokane, where, on August 19, he took unto himself a wife, who was none other than Virginia Crites, '28.

Class of '27

Margaret Brown is studying library administration at Columbia. She has been employed in the State Library at Salem for the past three years. Miss Brown was extensively entertained by friends before leaving for Columbia in September.

Earl W. Douglas, coach for the year of 1928-29 at Leslie Junior high school, Salem, Oregon, has been appointed as athletic coach for the northeast Y. M. C. A. at Portland. For the past year, Douglas has been athletic director at the Eugene Y. M. C. A.

Hazel Newhouse, who has been teaching at Chehalis, Washington, has accepted a position in the Boys Higher School, Peiping, China.

Hazel will be remembered by many for her activity at Willamette in forensics.

Joel V. Berreman—senior scholar in Sociology,—President of the Student Body,—Husband of Sevilla Ricks Berreman,—father of a husky 2 year old boy,—graduate work at U. of O., etc. and etc.

At Oregon Berreman did much of his graduate work with Dr. Alexander Goldenweiser, one of America's leading anthropologists. For his thesis, Joel treated the subject, "Evolution and Theories of Progress." Dr. Goldenweiser considered this thesis of such high order that he placed a copy of it on his reserve list for reference. Berreman is Principal of the Bonanza High School.

Mary Erickson (M.A. U. of C. '29) is an assistant in the Department of Biology at the University of California. Miss Erickson is one of the few American girls to be selected to live at the International House, where 600 students, from all parts of the world, live. Few American students are accepted.

International House at Berkeley, which is occupied this year for the first time, cost considerably in excess of a million dollars.

Brothers College of Drew University, Madison, New Jersey, announces the appointment of James A. McClintock as Teaching Fellow in Philosophy and Psychology for 1930-31. Mr. McClintock received the degree of Bachelor of Divinity this year from Drew University with the notation magna cum laude, an unusual honor signifying a very high grade of scholarship during his entire course of study. At the same time, he received the Master of Arts degree independently from New York University in philosophy and psychology. At Willamette, he was manager of the Forensic Council. In addition, he has taken work in the Kimball School of Theology.

Helen Baird, whose home is at Forest Grove, goes to Western Reserve, Cleveland, Ohio, where she will take special work in Library Science.

Class of '28

Ella Pfeiffer was one of the complimented guests entertained by Professor and Mrs. Peck of Willamette, before she left for Gresham, Oregon, to resume her work as teacher of Senior English at the Gresham Union High School.

Frances Lemery (M.S., U. of W. '30) is teaching Sciences at the Opheim, Montana High School.

Hobart Kelley will teach in Snohomish, Washington, this year. This will make his second year there. He was a visitor in Salem during the summer.

Goldie Pier (ex-'28) married William B. Manlove last August. On November 1st, Manlove enters the U. S. Forest service with headquarters in Portland.

Jim Rettie has written local friends of his activities at Yale university during the past several months. He has been associate general secretary of the Yale Y. M. C. A., recently, he says. He is taking advanced work at the eastern university and, also, "Y" work as a sideline. Announcement of the birth of a son, Dwight to Mr. and Mrs. Rettie in March was made in the letter.

Kenneth Lawson is another registrant at Yale where he is working for an advanced degree. During the summer, he visited at his home in Spokane, Washington, returning east by motorcycle. Enroute east, he visited Paul Trueblood '28, who is at Duke University, studying for his Ph.D.

Cynthia Pier has returned to Pateros, Washington, where she teaches mathematics and music in the high school.

During the summer months, Miss Pier was assistant in the County Superintendent's office of Lewis County, Washington.

Class of '29

Bernice Jackson, who is assistant librarian at the Hood River County Library responded to an S. O. S. and sent in the following up to the minute notes on the '29'ers.

Georgie Fairbanks and Vernon Taylor (ex-'28) were married August 30 at Cleveland, Ohio, and are now at home at 416 S. Webster Ave., Kokomo, Indiana. Georgie will be remembered as the '29 May Queen.

After having spent the summer as guide at the Glacier National Park in Montana, Lloyd Harder and his wife, Bonnie Wienheimer, (ex-'31) have returned to Parkdale, Oregon, where Lloyd teaches science and mathematics in the high school.

Ivan White is at U. of W. where he has a teaching fellowship in Political Science.

Kenneth Litchfield is principal at Bellfountain again, with his wife, Frances McGilvra, as assistant.

Maida Caldwell is teaching in the commercial department of the high school at Joseph, Oregon.

'29ers who had the good fortune of being re-elected for their second year of teaching are:

Louise Liere, English and Dramatics, Manson High School, Manson, Washington.

Dorothy Peters, Music and Home Economics, Manson, Wash.

Frances Fellows, Latin, Salem High.
Anna Mary McKinley, French and Latin, Ontario, Oregon.

Doris Phoenix, French and English, Rickreall, Oregon.

Wm. Smullin and Charles Nunn '26, have purchased a weekly newspaper at Marshfield, Oregon.

Loren Mort and "Bill" Tweedie are both teaching at Redmond, Oregon. Loren is teaching science and coaching, while Bill is teaching history and civics and initiating a music course. Needless to say, Bill plays for both church and Sunday school. (The Young Ladies' Class now holds the record for 100% attendance). [Some one asks "to what extent is Bill's playing responsible for this fine record?"]

Everett Gardner has returned to Boston University after a summer vacation spent as general handy man in a private summer home at Cape Cod.

Elsie Tucker is Girl's Reserve Secretary for grade school pupils in Portland. At present she has 15 clubs with a total enrollment of 400 girls. She was Y. W. Secretary at Baker, Oregon, last year.

Her office is at the Y. W. C. A., Portland.

Chas. Kaufman completed requirements in June at U. of W. for his M.A. in English and has a position as Professor of English in the Moran School for Boys at Atascadero, Calif. He and Margaret Morehouse (ex-'31) were married last August.

Mary Louise Aiken, who taught English, Spanish and Dramatics at Independence, Oregon, last year, is now teaching Fellow in Spanish at U. of W.; and, of course, working for her "Masters."

Class of '30

court judge of Oregon and Imbrey upon graduation went to Washington state where he became a stockman.

William Miesse was studying to be a minister and while going to school he rode the circuit upon which Leslie church was and preached there all during his school career.

And so each was accounted for. The girls all married with the exception of Emma Schattuck, who became dean of women at Willamette.

And what was commencement like in those days? Well, the same excitement but not quite the same preparation. Commencement was held in Waller hall in 1873. President Gatch gave a reception in honor of the graduating class at his home on the corner of Trade and Winter street. The commencement program was confined to one day with the morning given over to the reading of essays written by members of the class and the afternoon to a program of music and speeches.

"Girls in those days had their vanities just as the girls of today," laughed Mrs. Ohmart. "We braided our hair in tight little braids the night before commencement, and then combed them out the next morning and pinned both sides of our hair up behind our ears and left the ends flowing free. We all wore dotted Swiss dresses."

Mrs. Ohmart and Theresa Holderness were the youngest members in the class, each was just about 18 years old. "People were older those days when they graduated from college," smiled Mrs. Ohmart.

What changes has Mrs. Ohmart seen in Willamette university? Well, her father was a member of the board of trustees for years and there was many a time out of those years that the members of the board had to help pay the instructors.

Back in 1873 there were four members of the faculty and the president. Now there are many times that number. There is now a science hall, a music hall, a library and large auditorium, there is an administration building and a gymnasium, and there is a foot ball field specked with struggling humans most any time of the day that one passes by there.

A long leap, many changes and great growth, but the clear eyed, quick thinking little lady who graduated from "her Willamette" in 1873 is able to understand and appreciate it and still smile warmly over "her day" when half the present luxuries of the present Willamette were not even dreamed.

commencement which one he was really going with. Commencement day the secret was out for her married Lydia."

Of the men in the class there was William Miller, James Imbrey, Robert Aicken, William Miesse, LaDrew Royal, and Alfred Nichols all of whom are now deceased but LaDrew Royal who lives in southern California.

Mrs. Ohmart was all animation as she discussed each one of the class. LaDrew Royal was the clown of the class; Robert Aicken and James Imbrey were the handsome men in the class; Aicken was later a judge and then a supreme

DISCOVERY OF GREAT SIGNIFICANCE

About a month ago, word came to Professor Clark of the Department of Geology that a tooth of a mammoth had been taken from a spring in the hills near Lebanon.

The result was an exhuming party on Saturday, Sept. 20. Accompanying Professor Clark, were Professors Monk, Dr. Laughlin, Dr. Schulze, eight students, and the families of the faculty members.

After draining the spring, and clearing away the brush, a hole about eight feet in diameter was excavated through the mud and blue clay to rock five feet below. Great excitement prevailed when bits of bone were thrown out with the mud, and when a solid tusk was encountered, ringside seats were fought over by those not digging in the hole. When finally uncovered, the skull, parts of the tusks, a tooth, and part of a leg bone were exposed.

When all was removed from the hole, spring water bubbled up through a fissure in the rock at the bottom, doubtless the same spring to which the mammoth had come to drink many thousands of years ago. While quenching his thirst, he had become trapped in the bog, and carnivorous animals had torn him to pieces, leaving the bones scattered.

The head was not attached to the vertebral column, the tooth was five feet from the jaw, and one tusk was removed from its socket and lying by the head. The other tusk had been broken off about two and one-half feet from the head many years before the animal's death. This broken end had been smoothed and polished like the sides of the tusk, as he rooted in the ground or fought other animals. The tusks were about six inches in diameter at the base and the entire one nearly eight feet in length.

The tooth was an unusually well-preserved specimen of a second molar. This revealed that the animal was an elephant of the mammoth type. The second permanent molar is cut at the age of 60 or 65 years and wears down so that it no longer functions, allowing the animal to die of starvation and old age when about 120 to 125 years old. Since this molar was well worn down, the mammoth must have been a hundred years old when he came to his end.

During the ice age and for a long time afterward, elephants were common in North America. Originating in Africa they migrated to Europe and Asia, and by way of a land connection between Siberia and Alaska came to North America, going as far south as Central America before becoming extinct probably about ten or twenty thousand years ago.

PRESIDENT NOTSON'S
SUGGESTED PROGRAM FOR THE YEAR

1. Strengthen the Alumni association and alumni activities.
2. Build stronger ties of allegiance between graduates and the university; reestablish old friendships between graduates and build new ones.
3. Give definite assistance to our alma mater in the successful completion of the forward movement and the full realization of the general education board offer.
4. Promote student-alumni cooperation and understanding.
5. Assist in outlined program for greater publicity for the university and its affairs.
6. Arrange for more definite participation of alumni in the publication of the Alumnus, preparatory to enlarging its scope by financial contribution.
7. Give personal as well as moral support to the athletic program of Coach Keene.
8. Plan more definite participation of the alumni individually and collectively in the selection of new students and interesting of good young people in Willamette.
9. Promote the organization of and stimulate the activities of alumni groups.
10. Make homecomings and annual alumni banquets highlights in the calendar of all Willamette graduates.

Dr. William Henry Scott, former President of Ohio State University, in 1924 included in an address what he termed, "A Dedication Prayer of Clinton (Ohio) Schools."

At the last meeting of the National Educational Association Dr. Scott's "Gettysburg Address of American Education" was re-dedicated as the Schools of the Nation Prayer to the Cause of American Education.

It follows:

"Let us now with earnest hearts and with exalted faith and hope solemnly consecrate our country's school buildings to their high and holy purpose. May the youth of this great nation for generations to come gather in these schools to receive instruction in knowledge and training in virtue necessary to a true and enlightened education.

"Especially, may our teachers be examples of excellence in scholarship and character, seekers after goodness and truth, lovers of children, enthusiasts and adepts in the finest of all arts, the development and the inspiration of human souls. May our school rooms always be pervaded with an invigorating atmosphere of mental and moral life, and may no child pass from these rooms to higher grades or to the outer world without having been made more intelligent, more thoughtful, more courageous, more virtuous, and in every way more capable of wise and just, of useful and noble living.

"To this end, may the blessings of God be upon child and parent, upon pupil and teacher, upon principal and superintendent, and upon every one whose influence will in any degree effect the work of education as it shall be conducted in our schools."
