SCHOOL YEAR 1915-16.

FOREWORD

---

In presenting Volume Six of the Wallulah for your consideration, the Junior Class has had but one constant aim—that it may depict to all readers, in a small measure at least, the student life at Willemette University during the year which it purports to represent. ¶ If we, by our earnest endeavor and many happy hours of toil, have been successful, we are glad; but should either success or failure follow the wake of our efforts, we shall have the comforting knowledge that nothing less than our best has been given. ¶ Our greatest desire is, then, that you may read as joyfully as we have written; that the production may give as much pleasure to the reader as the producing has given to the class of 1917.

To
Wallace Mac Murray, A. M. whose art is to produce the complete life within every individual
This Hallulah
is sincerely dedicated by
The Class of 1917

To raise the genius, and to mend the heart.”

T. S. McDANIEL
President of the Board of Trustees

TO be at once a friend of the Trustees, Faculty, and Students, and withal to retain a firm hand of executive strength, is the stupendous task assigned to the President of the Board of Trustees. Willamette has been fortunate in having for this trying position one so capable and worthy as Mr. T. S. McDaniel. No one is more eagerly anticipated as a chapel visitor than is this "Mark Twain of Oregon," and his appearance is always indicative of a pleased student body.

The President

WILLAMETTE UNIVERSITY has always had abundant reason to feel proud of those who have served her as President. From the early missionary educators to the more recent day, when such personalities as Hon. W. C. Hawley, Dr. J. H. Coleman and Dr. Fletcher Homan have guided the administrative affairs, the institution has had men who possessed that peculiar combination of virtues that inhere in the successful college president. However, as Willamette has progressed from a missionary school for Indian natives to the great institution of power that it is at present, greater minds have been required to guide its destinies. The demands made upon the chief executive have grown as the school has grown, until the President must now be selected from that extremely thin upper stratum of Christian educators.

The coming of Dr. Doney as the seventeenth President of the University, marks an epoch in the history of the institution. The work of those who have sowed is ready for one who can reap the wise harvest. It is not endowment, nor is it scholastic standing that is especially wanted, as these fundamentals are already secured in at least a limited degree. The need of the present is for a man of power to build upon the foundations that have been laid. It is a task of enlargement, of building the superstructure, that awaits the new executive.

Dr. Carl Gregg Doney was born in 1867 on a farm near Columbus, Ohio. After finishing the course offered by the rural school near his home, he entered the preparatory department of the Ohio State University. After three years he went into the College of Liberal Arts, to work for the B. S. degree. While in the University he excelled in scholarship to such an extent that he was one of two, out of a class of 125, that were elected to the honorary fraternity, Phi Beta Kappa. He then turned his attention to the study of philosophy, and did considerable post-graduate work at Harvard University. It was not long, however, before his mind wandered to the law profession, and returning to his Alma Mater to resume his studies, he was graduated after two years with the degree of LL. B.

The ministry then sounded its call, and Dr. Doney took a pastorate at Bainbridge, Ohio. For fourteen years he divided his time between his pastoral duties and the completion of his graduate work. In 1899 Ohio Wesleyan granted him his Master's degree, and in 1902 he secured from his Alma Mater the coveted Ph. D. His pastorate had already included several large churches, but he attained his greatest success when he went, in 1905, to Hamline

Church, Washington, D. C. While in the Capital he became active in the prohibition work, and for one year was president of the D. C. Anti-Saloon League. It was while at Washington that he wrote and published the two books that bear his name, and which are now widely read and appreciated: "The Throne Room of the Soul" (1906), and "An Efficient Church" (1907).

As a result of his active interest in Christian education, and of the remarkable executive ability which he had shown at various times, he was, in 1907, elected to the Presidency of West Virginia Wesleyan College.

To his success as a college president is but a repetition of his former years of efficient service as a pastor and Christian citizen. He at last had opportunity for an expression of his great latent administrative powers, and in eight short years West Virginia Wesleyan grew from an insignificant school to a college of national repute. An endowment was raised, new buildings were placed upon the campus, the school was standardized, and the student body increased 500 per cent. In 1912 his success was recognized by Howard University of Washington, D. C., when they granted him the honorary degree of L.L. D.

Dr. Doney is closing the first year of a most successful administration, but has had little opportunity, as yet, to accomplish those great achievements that are maturing in his master mind. He has already shown that he is worthy of the trust that has been placed with him, and Willamette has just cause to expect a great future.

Of the salient features of President Doney's personality, none is so marked as his versatile nature. His interests are with any organization or activity that has for its ideal the uplift of humankind. By means of his exhaustless store of energy, and his marvelous vigor, he has found time to associate himself with the business world in a vital way, and his keen intellect grasps the financial problem as readily as his deliberative mind solves the philosophical questions. He has become an active member of two fraternities, the Beta Theta Phi and the Phi Delta Phi, and has attained the thirty-second degree of the Masonic Order. Since coming to Salem he has been actively interested in the Commercial Club and the Social Service Center, thus making his rich life a powerful force in the community.

As an educator President Doney is ranked among the most successful in the country. Possessing a most powerful personality, he attracts the youth with an irresistible force. He is fair, but stern; compromising, but never sacrificing the smallest ideal of life. The Student Body is wholly under his control, but without feeling that it is dominated by an outside power. In brief, his is the nature of the ideal college president.

The Willamette Spirit

IN EVERY section of our land there have been colleges and universities founded, dedicated to the noble work of higher education, but endowed by private capital and conducted wholly apart from the regular system of State public instruction. As a rule, freedom of thought, democratic ideals, and an all-pervading atmosphere of Christian culture, has typified these institutions. Free from political domination and from the undesirable restraint that is placed upon many State schools, nearly all the colleges of this type have enjoyed a most pleasing progress. They have been the pioneers in the field of higher learning, and today hold the chief seats in the hall of educational achievement. It is as an institution of this sort that Willamette University wishes to be presented for your earnest consideration.

Our course was determined for us many years ago by men of vision, who saw in this beautiful Northwest a land of future promise. Founded by the early Methodist missionaries, our great school has remained a lasting memorial to the sturdiness of Christian character that first brought light into the "Oregon Country." They built into our halls that same spirit that caused them to push out into "the continuous woods

Where rolls the Oregon,"

and endowed us with an ideal of Christian citizenship that has ever been known as "The Willamette Spirit."

To one who is unfamiliar with this "Willamette Spirit," the loyalty and devotion for the University that exists among both students and alumni is truly a mystery. The ideals of life, and the wonderfully adequate preparation for complete living that is acquired by all who become a part of the institution, is the result of this dominant spirit. It has produced men and women capable of standing as leaders in a complex order of society that demands nothing less than the best of every individual. But, plus this power, it has endowed them with a virtue far more valuable—wholesome, Christian characters.

The year which is just closing has witnessed many important changes. The President and one third of the Faculty were new to us last September, and, added to this unusual condition, we had the largest Freshman class in our history; a class nearly equal in number to all the remaining students. Never before has the "Willamette Spirit" been put to such a test, and we are pleased to admit that the successful result has been due, in a large degree, to the quality of these new forces. To President Doney, and the new members of the Faculty, Willamette owes a debt of gratitude that can scarcely be paid. The lofty ideals which they brought have added an element to the prevailing spirit that has been conducive to strength and power. The large Freshman class is becoming a part of the old Student Body, and is introducing another characteristic, one that is peculiar to the class of 1919.

Thus, the year has been one of change, and has been intensely vital in its relation to the future. It has been imbued with new customs and new ideals; but as we reflect upon the past, and strive to gain a conception of the future, we must come to a realization that the "Willamette Spirit" has remained dominant; that it has absorbed the new ingredients and has been made stronger in the process. With a sincere confidence do we approach the future, for, come what may, the spirit of the early missionary is sure to triumph.

GEORGE H. ALDEN, Ph. D.
Dean of the College of Liberal Arts

CARLTON College. B. S., Harvard University, A. B., Fellow in History at University of Chicago, University of Wisconsin, Ph. D.

Dean of the College of Liberal Arts, 1914-1916.

It was during a year that was probably the most critical in the recent history of the University, that Dr. Alden proved his worth. Entering a field that was entirely strange, he at once became acting President of the University and Dean of the College of Liberal Arts, with the responsibility of the whole institution resting largely upon him. Too much credit cannot be given to one who is capable of such executive ability and such administrative powers as were shown by Dr. Alden during that year of doubt and unrest among students, faculty and trustees.

FLORIAN VON ESCHEN

MORTON E. PECK

JAMES T. MATTHEWS

Mathematics

McMinnville College; A. B. and A. M., Willamette University.
Professor in Willamette University 1893-1916.

It is a rare personality that can remain in one university for twenty-two years, and each year grow in favor among the students, both young and old. Acknowledged to be a master in his profession, he yet finds time to make his rich life a model for the undergraduates. Always considerate and kind, and with a sincere confidence in the youths that are fortunate enough to come into an acquaintance with him, Professor Matthews has remained "the Students' Friend." His kindly advice and timely words of encouragement have led many into brighter and more useful lives.

Physics and Chemistry

Ph. B. and Ph. M., Simpson College; Graduate Student, University of Chicago, 1905-1907; Washington University, 1907-1908.
Professor in Willamette University, 1908-1916.

By his untiring efforts to serve the University and the City of Salem, Professor Von Eschen has won much admiration for his faithful work as a Christian citizen. As Secretary of the Faculty he has most efficiently organized the work of the College, and has done much to bring the University into higher repute as an institution of learning.

Biology

A. B. and A. M., Cornell College; three years' research work in Central America, under auspices of Carnegie Museum, Pittsburg, Pa.
Professor in Willamette University, 1908-1916.

Beloved as a friend of the students, admired as a professor, and respected as a man, Professor Peck is eagerly sought as an instructor by all. He has strengthened the Biology Department wonderfully by his earnest consecration to the work.

Professor in Willamette University, 1907-1913, 1915-1916.

Professor Kirk returned this year to again take the chair of ancient languages, after an absence of two years. His faithful devotion to the welfare of the University has always made him a popular, and much admired instructor. Besides his work in his department he has for this year, the general supervision of the library.

WALLACE MAC MURRAY

Literary Form and Criticism

A. B. and A. M., University of Minnesota; Residence Work for Doctorate, University of Minnesota.

Professor in Willamette University, 1913-1916.

Certainly no instructor in the University is more popular with the students than is professor MacMurray. He has the distinction of having more students enrolled in his department than in any other in the College of Liberal Arts. As a master of his art he is not excelled by any man in the West. The dedication of this Wallulah, to one so worthy, is an attempt on the part of the Student Body, to show their appreciation of a valuable service rendered.

CHARLES L. SHERMAN

Philosophy and Education

Ph. B., Upper Iowa University; Ph. D., New York University; Ph. D., New York University, School of Pedagogy; Sometime Fellow in New York University.

Professor in Willamette University, 1914-1916.

Dr. Sherman has given to Willamette University a new conception of a young man's possibilities. He has proved by his own life, that a man's mind can master much of human knowledge before old age steals it away. The masterful work of Dr. Sherman cannot be given too much praise. Not a little of the success of Willamette graduates as high school teachers is due to the excellent work done under the guidance of our Educational Department.

Coming to us as an unknown quantity, Dr. Hall has more than demonstrated his ability both as an instructor and as a student advisor. His timely humor and vast knowledge makes his classes unusually attractive and inspiring. His active interest in student affairs has already made him a favorite of the Student Body.

HELEN MILLER SENN

Professor in Willamette University, 1915-1916.

Professor Senn is starting a work that, if continued, will bring Willamette University before the public in a way that will be most beneficial to us as an institution. Our Forensic department has been in need of just this sort of a vigorous, personality, that will lift it into a place where recognition is imperative. Mrs. Senn has proved that she is capable of doing all that we wish to have done in debate and oratory work.

The Class of 1916

THOMAS D. YARNES

WALTER S. GLEISER

IN THE great mosaic of Willamette's history is woven a curious pattern. It is elusive, changeable and of a quaternary nature. It must be viewed from four different angles. To the novice it means nothing, but to the initiate it arouses a flood of memories. It is the pattern woven thru four years by the class of 1916.

At first sight the pattern presents a jangle of colors. Cubes, triangles and squares are thrown together, while lines, running hither and thither and lost in the confusion, indicate the futility of individual endeavor. There are brilliant spots, dark spots and skillful shadings marred by dark blotches of failure. All is chaos. Thus ends the first year.

The second angle reveals a continuation of the same jangle, but like a pattern woven from the center outward, the fringe is somewhat unified. There is blending of color, a harmony, and an indication of strength. Individuality is not lost, but has assumed a direction.

A tertiary view conveys strength, action and purpose. From this angle projects a single brilliant thread, formed to the woof by a master hand. It is outstanding. It predominates. All the rest of the design is lost in this factor. Thus ends the triumphs of the third year.

Sensed from the fourth and last angle, the pattern is a completion, a unit, and an individuality. The vigor, industry, and personality of four years' work have left their indelible imprint. All who will may look upon the pattern woven by the class of 1916 and read the story of deeds accomplished and victories won for "Old Willamette, our Alma Mater."

TO THE CLASS OF '17

HAPPY and joyous, glad and free,
 The years we've spent together;
 And, classmates dear, they'll linger long,
 These mem'ries sweet and tender.
 Yet, thru all our years in college,
 Like a silk thread, strongly spun,
 Runs the life theme, straight and shining.
 He who wins must learn to run.

Not for ourselves alone we'll strive,
 But, helpful service giving,
 Enrich the world for larger growth,
 For nobler, freer, vision;
 That by our efforts on thru time,
 The spirit of our College
 May touch and mould the coming lives,
 In endless, glad tomorrows.

—E. V. E. '17.

The pepless wonder. A handsome villain with a pompadour, black eyes, and a slow smile. As powerful as an elephant, and just as fast. Mild tempered generally, but, man, don't tempt him too far.

"Don't wait to be cranked; be a self-starter."

BARTLETT, WILLIS M. - Newberg, Oregon

Defies all description, he is just "Jack." Distinguished by his comedian ability, a dislike for convention, and a fondness for girls.

"Sentimentally, I am disposed to harmony, but organically, I am incapable of a tune."

BILLINGS, EDNA - Harrington, Washington
Biology

You would know her anywhere by that low-pitched "Ha, ha, ha!" An argument is food and drink to her, and you have no "idear" how soon you will be vanquished—if you have not tried it.

"Attempt the end, and never stand to doubt: Nothing's so hard but search will find it out."

BOTSFORD, IRMA - - Salem, Oregon
Letters

Quiet and petite, yet you can't miss her. Pleasingly dignified at a reception, and exceedingly jolly on a "hike." While she makes her lessons go, she keeps a merry eye on Joe.

The Junior Spirit

A UNIVERSITY may be likened to a magnificent temple, ever in the process of erection. Its form shows the touch of a multitude of hands and minds, and its architecture reveals a combination of historic styles, the evidence of many changing years of construction. As each class has passed thru its portals, something definite has been left; a colonnade, an arch, a bit of tapestry, or a polished shaft, each a living testimony to some class that has come and gone.

Thus, Willamette University is the composite result of the thousands who now name her as their Alma Mater. The temple has long been in formation, for as each class has graduated, and one has entered that was larger and better, a definite work has been finished and a new task begun.

The self-sacrifice and generosity, the energy and high ideals of this class are only adequately revealed by a review of its achievements. The purpose has been to make W. U.—their college—bigger and better. As Freshmen, the primary interests were centered upon strengthening the athletic teams with material from within the class. This was done to such a great extent that when an effort was made to organize class teams, it was nearly impossible to find any available men. Such has been the existing condition thruout the whole three years, a certain indication of the self-sacrificing class.

The system of having some distinguishing mark for the Freshman had often been discussed by the Student Body, but no action had ever been taken. The class of '17, in its Freshman year, without influence from any outside power, imposed upon itself the rule requiring all Frosh boys to wear the green cap. After finishing the year under a self-made law, it was proposed that the Student Body adopt resolutions regarding the establishing of the custom, in order that the work of the class might be permanent. The result is that Willamette now has a most effective green cap custom.

As Sophomores, attention was concentrated upon fixing relations between the two lower classes. The bag-rush, now also adopted as an annual event decides the ever-troublesome matter of Freshman rights to numeral space on the old grandstand roof. The class of '17 organized the movement, and then, by its own initiative, made it permanent.

Approaching the Junior year, the class made a further effort to accomplish something that might be of value to the University. Realizing that Freshman girls are subject to an extremely complicated change in living conditions in their first year away from home, the girls of the Junior class effected an organization known as the "Junior Sisters." The purpose is implied in the name, and the idea is carried out in every detail. The girls of the lower class are given the privilege of any experience that their Junior Sisters may have gleaned from two years in college, and are made to feel at home in the new environment of college life.

As the class of '17 is passing thru the temple, its deposit has already been greater than any made previously. The building is being beautified and strengthened, adorned by strong lines, typical of twentieth-century architecture. But this temple will soon be left behind, a structure more magnificent as a result of Junior endeavor, while the Junior Spirit moves on thru the lives of the members of the class of '17.

DOUGHTY, LILA - - Sheridan, Oregon
Modern Languages

She has enough good looks for several girls, but is saving them all for one man; either a Daniel or a Queen. Appears dignified, but isn't. Bored by ordinary people, but very gracious to her friends.

"She has all the regal making of a queen."

DOUGLAS, LEIGH C. Wenatchee, Washington
Social Sciences

Sober, even serious-looking. Attends to his own business, keeping a bulldog grip on things, for he is desperately in earnest, and life is a big job. Forgets his ministerial dignity, when occasion demands, and has a good time.

"Why look you yet so stern and tragical?"

EMMEL, AETNA L. - - Sherwood, Oregon
Social Sciences

A girl of real character. You can feel her sincerity and genuineness. A versatile Junior, equal to every occasion and any emergency. Jolly, spirited, clever, thotful. A rare combination of Christian womanhood and worldly ambitions.

"She doeth little kindnesses that others leave undone."

"If he be not in love with some woman,
There is no believing in old signs."

GATES, GROVER A. - - Salem, Oregon
Biology

A sad, lonesome-looking sphynx, who elevates one shoulder and makes his way quietly out of the crowd. A most loyal student, who has excellent ideas. Never frivolous, but not always so serious as he appears. Most at home in a baseball suit, guarding third base. He is not fond enough of the Junior girls to be altogether satisfactory.

"You can hunt the wide world over, and you'll never find one so quiet."

The Class of 1918

ERROL PROCTOR

HAROLD McQUEEN

SO FAR as time is concerned, the Sophomore class has completed half of its college course, but in other ways the half is yet far from being reached. At the present time ten of the men of '18 are wearing the official "W" for their participation in one or another of the athletic sports, which shows that we have done well in defending the Cardinal and Gold. But this is only a start. We have two years more in which to make W. U. a greater school.

Socially, we are just beginning to get acquainted, and altho our parties have not been surpassed by those of any other organization, yet in the future we expect to do even greater things to make the social life of "Old Willamette" more attractive.

In class work we are improving and by June, 1918, we hope to be second to none in scholastic standing. Friendship toward each other, and loyalty to the school prevails among all class members, and altho the past has been good, we confidently expect larger achievements to come from our last two years in Willamette.

The Class of 1919

JOSEPH MINTON

RAYMOND ARCHIBALD

THE Freshman Class, which assembles under its colors the citizens of four states, has won a prominent place in W. U., for several reasons, chief among which are its athletic and scholastic talent, and its beauty in the girls' section. Regarding athletic ability, suffice it to say that the Freshmen placed five steady and two occasional players on the Varsity Eleven and two men on the Varsity Quintet. Further information on this subject may be had by asking the class of '18 about the results of the cross-country run, the bag rush, the football game, the interclass basketball series and the class scraps. And now, what shall be said about this delicate question of good looks? Of course, it is improper to boast of beauty in either the first person singular or the first person plural, but the class of '19 proposes to do this thru the testimonial actions of upper-classmen. When a few ambitious Junior and Senior boys utterly forget the climax of their college careers, that rare day in June when the sheepskin shall be unfurled, and begin to concentrate their attention on the bright eyes of the Freshman class, obviously that class must instantaneously assume a vital place in campus life. But, perhaps, the greatest factor in bringing the class of '19 into prominence, is the fact that it lost second place in the Freshman Glee to the Sophomores, the leaders (?) of Varsity life, by only seven twelfths of one per cent.

I. HOMER VAN WINKLE, A. B., LL. D.
Dean of the College of Law

SINCE graduating from Willamette in 1901, Mr. I. H. Van Winkle has been actively interested in the work of the school, his particular attention being centered upon the Law Department. After serving as an instructor for several years, he was, in 1913, elected Dean of the College of Law. Altho much of his time must of necessity be given to his office work as Assistant Attorney General, he finds time to serve the University in a most efficient manner.

THE graduation of the class of 1916 marks an epoch in the history of the College of Law, they being the first to complete the new three-year course that is now being offered. Out of the large class that would have graduated in 1915 under the old course of two years, only five remained to take the extra work, explaining the fact that the class is very small. As a result of the decrease in numbers, the instructors have been able to give extra time to each student, giving them what might be termed "individual instruction." The class, on the other hand, has responded in a brilliant manner, and will leave the University well fitted for the profession which they have chosen.

MILLAR MCGILCHRIST

Here's a mighty shark, I discern,
 Who's exceedingly eager to learn.
 He's just leaving the rut
 Of the "tall and uncut,"
 And you'll find him remarkably stern.

RAY GRANT

The man with a speech that is slow and sedate;
 Whose brain is so busy 'tis always too late
 To say what he knows about Blackstone and code;
 So, we ne'er stop to question his method or mode,
 But we judge from his look that he knows the whole book.

ARLIE G. WALKER

If e'er you meet a busy boy, a-hurrying by so fast,
 Who hasn't time to greet a girl until she's almost past;
 That's Arlie.
 If, after dark, you meet a pair a-strolling by, so slow,
 Engaged in earnest converse, with voices soft and low,
 One of 'em's Arlie.

PAUL R. SMITH

The hair and the smile are on for all while,
 And we fear that, till dead, they'll still be--just red;
 But "Pinkey" knows law, and, when he has time,
 Makes quite a success of work in his line.

LESTER SHEELEY

He's made a most important find, the wonder of the age,
 Of how to transfer knowledge to his brain from printed page;
 'Tis a most effective method, to this we do agree,
 For he always has us guessing what his question next will be

The Moot Court

REALIZING that the instruction gained at a law school is of little value until it is put into actual usage, the Willamette University College of Law maintains a most efficient moot court, with Dean Van Winkle as judge. Cases of every type are conducted by the Seniors, the underclassmen acting as counsels. The earnestness with which these cases are prepared, and the excellent manner of conducting the trials, are indicative of the work done in the Law Department. The students are eager to take advantage of the superior library facilities offered by the Capital City, the success of the moot court being but one of their commendable accomplishments.

THEOLOGY

Kimball College of Theology

KIMBALL College of Theology was founded ten years ago by Dr. Henry D. Kimball, a member of the Columbia River Conference. It was founded and opened as a school of Willamette University; but about a year after its opening, by authority of the Board of Trustees of the University, it was organized as an independent institution, under a separate Board of Trustees, and with a distinct administration. It is the only college in the Northwestern region, under direction of the Methodist Episcopal Church, devoted exclusively to the training of men for the Christian ministry.

Its patronizing territory extends North from California, Eastward to the Rocky Mountains, and includes seven Annual Conferences. Slowly, but surely, the campaign for the endowment of five chairs goes forward. Constantly, new friends of the College are appearing. In all its history the institution has not had a finer body of students than it has this year; nor have its prospects ever been more encouraging.

DR. H. J. TALBOT is closing the second year of his administration as President of Kimball College. His wise, conservative manner has won for him the admiration of all who have the privilege of his acquaintance.

THE College of Music has enjoyed a most prosperous year under the direction of Dr. F. W. Chace. Willamette is fortunate in having an artist of such rare capabilities as Dr. Chace to direct the work in the Department of Music, and has just cause to look forward to an era of prosperity in this part of the University.

MARGARET GILL

Graduated from the Art Department of Willamette University; Studied in New York City at Cooper Union, Pratt Institute, and Art Students' League; Pupil of Kenneth Hays Miller and Rhoda Holmes Nichols.

Instructor in Willamette University, 1913-1916.

UNDER the direction of Miss Margaret Gill, the School of Art has grown to a place of real prominence among the departments of the University. It is serving a distinct purpose, in giving to the students of Willamette, and to the people of Salem, the privilege of taking work in all branches of the fine arts. China painting, drawing from life, water and oil color work, general illustrating, and an excellent course in Art History, are offered to the students in this department. The work done is of an extremely high order, representative of the accomplishments of the whole University. The credit for this success is due very largely to Miss Margaret Gill.

PROFESSOR Ford was called back to his Alma Mater to take the position of Principal of the Academy, in order that an adequate test of the efficiency of the school might be made. The future of this part of the University depends largely upon this year's results, and at the meeting of the Trustees, in May, the question of continuing the preparatory department will probably be settled.

The work of the whole corps of teachers is appreciated by everyone in the University, and whether the Academy remains or not, their success will not soon be forgotten.

ACCOMPANYING the increase in number, the Academy Student Body has experienced a distinct improvement in quality. The students have effected a strong organization, separate from the College of Liberal Arts, and have shown themselves capable of accomplishing real achievements on their own initiative. Perhaps their greatest disadvantage is the fact that their funds are united with those of the Liberal Arts Student Body, which prohibits them from participating in interscholastic activities as they desire. The difficulty is partly overcome, however, by the fact that the boys are given the privilege of using the gymnasium, and of securing places on the Varsity teams.

On the whole, the relation between the Academy and the different colleges is congenial, and is conducive to a stronger and better University. The progress of the whole institution is dependent upon this pleasant relationship, and the present realization of this fact is doing much toward securing the desired advancement.

*"The mellow Autumn came, and with it came,
The promised party to enjoy its sweets."—BYRON.*

Y. M. and Y. W. C. A. Reception September Twenty-fourth

Society spirit ran high on Friday evening, September 24th, when the Y. M. and Y. W. C. A. gave their annual reception to all new students of the University. The sombre corridors and reception rooms of old Eaton Hall were transformed into a bower of beauty by the use of Oregon's gorgeous Autumn foliage and sweet-scented fir boughs. The orchestra was concealed in an alcove by a screen of palms. Inviting cozy corners, forming niches representative of woodland nooks, were hidden in the banks of foliage, while over all was a flood of mellow light falling on the merry throng.

The guests were welcomed by representatives of both the Faculty and Student Body. Dainty programs, in which signatures were to be exchanged, were given to the guests, and thus the new and old students became acquainted.

Miss Beryl Holt, President of the Y. W. C. A., gave an address of welcome to the new students, and Miss Lela McCaddam and Mr. Alfred Schramm entertained with pleasing vocal solos.

Refreshments were served in a room, the walls of which were banked with fir boughs and Autumn leaves. Huge bouquets of dahlias brightened the place and harmonized with the table decorations of colored leaves and shaded candles.

The large number of students, alumni, and friends who attended, enjoyed the largest and one of the most successful of opening receptions.

Much credit must be given the Christian Associations for the splendid manner in which they open the social life at Willamette each Fall.

*Senior
Class Party
September Sixteenth*

The Class of 1916 gathered at the home of Miss Genevieve Avison on the first night of its last year in college. Pulling taffy was the chief diversion of the evening, but while this was being prepared by the girls, "The Senior Gossip," which had been circulated during the summer, was read, disclosing the joys, the sorrows, the burdens, and the contentment of the Seniors during the vacation months. After singing the class songs, to the accompaniment of the ukulele, the members took their way homeward with high hopes for the most pleasant year in four. Some of the "Sixteeners" of the Junior year had dropped by the wayside, but those who were left purposed to make the Class of '16 bigger in spirit and in deeds than ever before.

*Philodosian
Launch Ride
September Twenty-first*

What is the advantage of going to a school with boating privileges, if you do not make the best of them? The Philodosians love the water, and never lose a chance to indulge in its joys. In order to acquaint some of the land-bred Freshman lassies with the "Beautiful Willamette," they hired a launch one evening, and speeded up to Phi Landing. There, around a big bonfire, they spread a picnic supper. But, for once, "eats" were given little thought. Nature was at her best, and the scenic beauty of the river in the moonlight was such that sordid, tho substantial, things were relegated to the background. After a lazy hour or two lights were seen moving up the river, and the girls regretfully stamped out their fire and prepared to embark.

Y. M. C. A.
Annual Stag Mix
September Eighteenth

At the opening of the school year the Y. M. C. A. declared an open season for "stags," when all the fellows in school should assemble at the gymnasium in hunting clothes, prepared for a warm reception. With the crowd divided into three groups, the Oregon, Washington, and Idaho contingents, contests were entered into, to decide which state produced the huskiest men. In the duck race the Web-footers showed their superiority, while the Evergreens and the Shepherders won out in the other contests. When the cider, apples, and doughnuts were dispensed, and the big circle formed on the floor, each stag was given the opportunity to tell from what jungle or backwoods he came. "Hot-hand" concluded the program, and from that time on each man had a warmer feeling toward his neighbor.

Freshman
Bag-rush Party
October Eighteenth

To celebrate their victory in the annual "Bag-rush," the class of 1919 held a jolly-up, October nineteenth, at the home of Grace and William Sherwood. The Frosh, mindful of the adage that "in union there is strength," met at Eaton Hall and proceeded to their destination in a body. No disasters happened, however, and a happy evening sweetened the fruits of their victory.

Sophomore
Bag-rush Party
October Eighteenth

Everybody said that the "Bag-rush" was a joke. Whether it was or not, the Sophomores' celebration after the event was anything but sad. One by one the lads and lassies gathered in the gymnasium, laden with mysterious baskets, which proved to be the "food" for one of the jolliest of class "spreads." A large table was improvised in the center of the gym, upon which such a tempting array of "eats" was displayed that the hungry youths eagerly cut the grand march short, and, cafeteria style, plentifully supplied themselves with good things. Chattering groups were formed on the bleachers and everyone "feasted to the full." Then the good old Virginia Reel and Tucker were enjoyed in the true Sophomore fashion until lectures, picture shows, studies, and Miss Todd called time.

Reception to
Mrs. Carl G. Doney
October Fifth

Miss Junia Todd and the girls of Lausanne Hall entertained in honor of Mrs. Carl G. Doney at a tea on Tuesday afternoon, October fifth, from three to five o'clock. The guests were met at the door by Miss Addie Tobie and Miss Clara Perkins, who introduced them to those in the receiving line. Standing in line were Miss Junia Todd, Mrs. Carl G. Doney, and the Misses Ruth Winters, Edith Lornsten, Ruth Tasker, Helen Wastell, Esther Cox and Erma Davenport. During the afternoon piano solos by Miss Doris Wilt and Miss Esther Cox, a violin solo by Miss Lucile McCully, and a vocal solo by Miss Evelyn Cathey were greatly appreciated.

Beautiful Autumn leaves were used to decorate the hall and parlors. In a room which was tastefully decorated with ferns and cut flowers, dainty refreshments were served by the girls of Lausanne.

*Philodosian
Slumber Party
October Eighth*

Invitations to that paradox, a "Slumber Party," are always welcomed by girls, and those issued by the Lausanne Philodosians were no exception. The early part of the evening was spent at the Grand Theatre, where "The Goose Girl" was witnessed, followed by a light luncheon at the Hall. "Lights out" then sounded, and the girls sought the long rows of beds which had been put up in the Assembly Room. They were wafted to sleep by the strains of serenaders, but their slumber was soon broken by a shrill bell which told them that the mid-night lunch was ready. When the beds were again sought, the morning was several hours on its way, and the chance for much tarrying in "By-low Land" very small.

*Adelante
"At Home"
October Ninth*

The Adelante Halls presented a scene of gaiety Saturday evening, October ninth, when the society entertained in honor of the new girls with an informal party. The guests were met at the door by Miss Aetna Emmel and Miss Laura Ross, who presented them with dainty favors, which were to be used later in the evening. A delightful program and clever games furnished the entertainment until refreshments, carrying out the Society's colors in every detail, were served at small tables, screened off in a bower of green and gold. Ivy and marigolds were used in profusion to convert the parlor into an ideal Autumn scene. Nasturtiums and Virginia Creeper carried out the color motif in the dining room

*Philodosian
"At Home"
October Sixteenth*

Each year, some time during the month of October, the Philodosian girls are "at home" to all the women of the University. Last Fall the affair took the form of a trip to the Panama-Pacific Exposition. Guide-books to the grounds, which were laid out in the main halls, were distributed by little dancing maidens from "the Zone." By means of these directions it was possible to visit intelligently the "Fine Arts Building," the "International Building," the "State Buildings," and "the Zone," which were cleverly represented in various corners and booths. The dining room was converted into an "Inside Inn," where a refreshing luncheon was served. The affair was so realistic that it seemed to the guests who had not attended the Exposition at San Francisco, that they had been there; and those who had made the trip were sorry they had wasted the money.

*Reception to the Women's Clubs
October Eighteenth*

The Salem Women's Club had the rare privilege of being hostess to the Federated Women's Clubs of Oregon during the month of October. Of the many receptions given the visiting ladies, none was more pleasing than that tendered by the wives of the faculty and trustees of the University in Eaton Hall. The guests were shown about the grounds by Senior girls, visiting the historic Chapel, the library, the museum, and thence to the Young Woman's Christian Association rooms, where tea was served.

*Kimball College
Reception
October Eighteenth*

Students of Kimball College always look forward with pleasure to the regular social events of the year, for it is on these occasions that a fellowship is enjoyed which is unexcelled for its unity of spirit and edification. One of these delightful occasions was enjoyed on the evening of Monday, October 18, when the new students were entertained by the old students. The assembly hall was gaily decorated with the college colors, purple and white. The address of welcome was delivered by Dr. Talbot, Dean of the college, Mr. Abbott responding with a few well chosen remarks. Music, consisting of vocal solos by Mrs. Jasper and Mrs. Brewster, and a violin selection by Mr. Cady, furnished a pleasing part of the program. Refreshments were served, and a flashlight of the group taken.

*Faculty
Reception
October Twenty-second*

As a fitting welcome to President and Mrs. Carl G. Doney, the most brilliant social affair of the season occurred Friday evening, October 22, when the faculty entertained in their honor. For this function the main corridor of Eaton Hall was artistically decorated with the varied hues of Autumn foliage. Evergreen boughs formed a background for attractive cozy corners. The main stairway banked with ivy, rose briar, and dahlias, made an alcove where the receiving line stood. Professor James T. Matthews introduced the guests to those in the line, Dr. and Mrs. Carl G. Doney, Dr. and Mrs. George H. Alden, Dr. and Mrs. Henry J. Talbot, and Mr. and Mrs. I. H. Van Winkle. The dining room was in charge of Mrs. William E. Kirk and Mrs. Gustav Ebsen, who were assisted by Senior girls. Several hundred students and friends called during the evening between the hours of eight and ten-thirty.

D. D. Club
"Open House"
October Twenty-third

An event of unusual social interest was the "Open House" held by the D. D. Club at its beautiful home on Chemeketa Street. The guests were welcomed by Errol Gilkey '14, and were introduced to the receiving line by Harry Bowers. Standing in line were Dr. and Mrs. Carl G. Doney, Miss Junia Todd, Professor James T. Matthews, and the officers of the Club. Pleasing souvenirs were handed the guests as they registered. The members of the Club then conducted those who so desired, on tours of inspection thru the house, after which all were served with punch and wafers by Miss Lela Jones and Miss Winifred Bagley. The lower rooms were tastefully decorated in dahlias and Virginia Creeper, while the Den and the boys' individual rooms were of great interest, with their novel schemes of ornamentation. Concealed in an alcove, the University Orchestra made the evening pass more pleasantly by their sweet strains.

Philodorian=Philodorian
Hallowe'en Party
October Twenty-seventh

"Hallowe'en! What better time for a jolly-up together?", said the masculine and feminine Philos. So the boys hied them to the country, ravaged the fields of the farmers, and returned laden with dried cornstalks, big, middle-sized, and tiny yellow pumpkins, and shiny, red-cheeked apples, with which to beautify their classic halls. With such inspiring decorations, no one could resist the spirit of the night, and all of the thrilling, mysterious rites peculiar to Hallowe'en were performed, from counting apple seeds to a close acquaintance with a laboratory skeleton. The staging of "Blue Beard" marked the climax of the evening. After the shivers produced by this thrilling tragedy, the Philos felt the need of the coffee and pies which were dispensed by tall-hatted and black-garbed witches.

Adelante=Websterian
Informal
October Thirtieth

Hallowe'en spirits reigned supreme Saturday evening, October the thirtieth, at the Adelante-Websterian Informal. Caps of many colors and of most bewitching shapes were given to the guests as they arrived, and proved a most entertaining means of finding partners for supper. A grand march ended at the tables, where a delicious supper was enjoyed. Extemporaneous toasts from "the departed spirits" of old "Webs" and Adelantes added much to the gaiety of the evening. Clever games and stunts, and a splendid program furnished fun for everyone. Characterizing the affair as typical of Hallowe'en were the beautiful decorations. Autumn-tinted leaves were hanging from the ceiling and clustered about the walls, transforming the rooms into a fairy woodland, where "Web" and Adelante spirits frolicked. Swinging from a tripod, was a huge cauldron from which a witch, in the proverbial costume, dispensed cider. Among these enchanting surroundings; a jolly good time for everyone was the only possibility.

Freshman Class Party November Sixth

One evening early in November, while the Sophomores guarded Waller Hall, the Freshmen eluded them by assembling at the home of Miss Teresa Fowle for their first class party. The house, which was decorated with a combination of University and class colors, was a scene of merriment. The committee in charge had arranged an interesting program consisting of clever "get-acquainted" conversations, interspersed with vocal and instrumental numbers, but the excitement and real program of the evening was furnished by the strife between the boys of the two lower classes. The presence of two captive Sophomores was a reminder to the Freshmen of their success and an added factor in removing the customary restraint of "first affairs." Another proof of the resourcefulness of the Freshmen was the auto truck, which, flanked by an advance and rear guard of boys, conveyed each girl to her home. Prof. and Mrs. Matthews and Prof. and Mrs. Ebsen chaperoned this first social function of the class of 1919.

*Sophomore
Hard-Time Party
November Thirteenth*

One of the jolliest affairs of the year was the Sophomore hard-time party on the nineteenth of November. At six o'clock the members of the class, arrayed in garments indicative of a Democratic administration, gathered in the attic of Science Hall, where a substantial supper was served. At such an affair third and fourth helpings are in order, so it was some time before the floor was cleared and attention given to the program presided over by a genuine backwoodsman from the "Other side of Nowhere." Later, the flaring tallow candles were extinguished, and in the moonlight that streamed through the roof, to the accompaniment of Metcalf's melancholy horn, the party enjoyed the popular "Methodist Dancing games."

*Philodossian
Banquet
November Twentieth*

To Philodossians, young and old, Thanksgiving is synonymous with the "home-coming of the Snodgrass-ses." For years each Thanksgiving has marked a Philodossian reunion dinner and masquerade, in which each girl, for the time, loses her own identity and becomes a child, or grandchild of Grandfather and Grandmother Snodgrass. The Vandermorgans, garbed in the latest and most correct dress, come all the way from New York; the Dramaticusses regale those that will listen, with anecdotes of the stage and green-room; Doctor Kill-emquick serenely disregards the unseemly behavior of his triplets; Ma Peck looks with scandalized eyes at such "goin's on;" the Bushwhackers and Swatterbeans talk, eat, and enjoy every minute in sublime unconsciousness of their social inferiority, while Grandfather and Grandmother Snodgrass beam on all. This year Professor and Mrs. Sherwood again threw open their home to the society for the event, and much credit is due them for the success of the evening.

*"It snows! it snows! a merry play
Is o'er us on this happy day."*—HANNAH F. GOULD.

Thanksgiving
Jolly-up
November Twenty-fifth

Homesickness and lonesomeness are quickly disposed of at the annual Gym Jolly-up, held for those students who are unable to go home for the Thanksgiving feast. This most informal occasion has the reputation of being the jolliest and merriest of all social events, and never fails to dispel any gloom that may be in evidence at this vacation time. The affair this year was most successful, and should serve as a model for such occasions in the future.

Lausanne Hall
Party
December Fourth

Lausanne Hall parties are always full of fun, and the man is deemed exceedingly lucky who receives an invitation to one of them. Last November the girls of the Hall gave one of the most charming affairs of the school year. The chief entertainment of the evening consisted of a dressmaking contest in which Coach Matthews showed remarkable ability. After a pleasing program of musical selections, the guests were called into the large dining room, where a delicious chafing-dish spread awaited them. It was with reluctance that the boys took their leave, to await their next opportunity to enjoy the hospitality of Lausanne.

*Adelante=Websterian
Formal
December Tenth*

December tenth, 1915, will always be remembered by those Adelantes and Websterians who gathered at their halls on that evening. The rooms, decorated with ferns and palms, were made more beautiful by soft, mellow lights. While cards formed the principal amusement of the evening, numerous selections on a Victrola made the time pass more pleasantly. A delightful program was given, followed by dainty refreshments served by the Adelantes.

*Adelante
Christmas Tree
December Twelfth*

The Adelante Annual Christmas party was crowded full of enjoyment. Despite the fact that some of the girls had already started home, the rooms were filled with many and varied characters who might, perhaps, be recognized as Adelantes if one looked closely enough. Grandmothers and little ones, ballet dancers, and preachers, eagerly watched the tree, which the Freshman girls had so beautifully decorated. The program took the form of a school entertainment, with Miss Mabel St. Pierre as the prim schoolmistress. Among the numbers presented were the usual "good little Milly" X'mas pieces and the "bad little Billy" ones, by diminutive speakers with blue bows and bobbed hair. Two especially remarkable numbers were the "Doll Song", with gestures, by the Junior girls, and the aesthetic dancing. The program was ended by a very moral talk from a school director, and the remainder of the time was spent in posing, as a whole, and by groups, for pictures. Although the bridal party had trouble when the groom did not appear, and the brides-maids insisted on having a more conspicuous place than the bride, complications were finally disposed of, and the girls departed, carrying a very pleasant memory into the X'mas rush.

*Senior Leap Year
Party
January Fifteenth*

The Senior girls took an early advantage of their last opportunity to make proper use of a co-educational institution, when they invited the boys to the home of Miss Eva Hogue, during the first week-end of 1916, for a most elaborate and formal party. The young ladies of the class did all the honors of the evening by escorting the boys to the party, and proposing to them in a very novel manner. Music, games, and a reviewing of the class history made the evening pass most pleasantly. After luncheon, the guests adjourned, resolved to have a reunion in 1916.

*D. D. Club
Coasting Party
January Fifteenth*

The members of the D. D. Club were hosts at a novel party Saturday evening, January 15th, at their Club-house on Chemeketa Street. The guests met at seven o'clock, and were taken to enjoy a coasting party. After their return to the Club, tempting refreshments were served. Music furnished the entertainment for the remainder of the evening.

*Post Examination
Jubilee
January Twenty-eighth*

Of the several all-school affairs that add charm to the college social calendar, none is more enjoyed than the "Post-Exam" Jubilee. Examinations are over, for better or for worse, and a spirit of relief and exhilaration pervades the entire student body. Last February the society halls were considered a fitting background for the celebration. Germanias and grand marches were interspersed with several feature numbers, the most unique being a Spanish costume dance by Miss Helen Wastell. The evening did not have a dull moment, and was a fitting conclusion to the first semester.

*Dewdrop Inn
Party
January Thirty-first*

The Dewdrop Inn was the scene of a most delightful girls' party on January thirty-first, when the "Dewdrop Maidens" and their guests, clad in dainty kimonos, went through various mystic ceremonies in a weird blue-shaded room, during which the worship and fellowship of the Inn was disclosed. Next a grand "dress-up" was enacted, which resulted in an extremely ludicrous company, ranging from chorus girls to washerwomen. After various original stunts were performed, all gathered around the fireplace to enjoy a most delicious Welsh rarebit with accompanying dainties. A good old "sing," to the accompaniment of ukuleles, in the fire light, completed the evening's entertainment, and each guest departed with a dainty hand-painted kimono lady favor, and a good-night "kiss," to be unwrapped when she reached home.

*Sophomores Entertain
Freshmen
February Twenty-fifth*

All the proverbial animosity existing between the Freshmen and the Sophomores was banished for a few hours on the night of February twenty-fifth, when the upper class entertained their younger brethren. The scene of the revelry was in the Philodorian Halls, which were artistically decorated for the occasion with pussy-willows and streamers of red crepe paper, forming a beautiful canopy. The entertainment for the evening was a mock Freshman Glee, which, in anticipation of the real event, called forth the same spirit of rivalry, and resulted in original class jingles. During the evening Messrs. Rexford and Doxie gave vocal selections, and Miss Florence Page presented, in costume, a Grecian dance. After the program a grand march led all to the refreshment table, where ices were served.

*Philodorian
Entertain Philodorian
March Tenth*

The Philodorian proved themselves model hosts at their recent "Wild March" evening. The color scheme was green, in recognition of the natal day of good old Saint Patrick. Progressive games, characteristic of the topsy-turviness that the name March usually implies, formed the entertainment. The taste of everyone was satisfied, for the different tables ranged from rook to mumble-peg and soap bubbles. A dainty luncheon, served at the candle-lighted tables, concluded a most creditably managed party.

*Y. W. C. A.
Anniversary
March Twentieth*

The fiftieth anniversary of the Y. W. C. A. was observed in a most fitting manner on March second. An attractive musical and literary program was enjoyed during the afternoon meeting in the rest room. A social hour followed, in which everyone experienced the true "Y. W." fellowship. The closing event of the day was the informal reception and banquet held in the four literary society halls. The guests gathered in the Philodorian Halls, which were decorated in pussy willows. At five-thirty the ladies of the faculty, alumnae, and college girls joined in a grand march, which led to the banquet rooms. Around tables which were beautifully decorated with daffodils and violets, about one hundred girls enjoyed an elegant three-course dinner. The Y. W. C. A. President, Miss Holt, acted as toastmistress, and the students learned many interesting incidents in the life and growth of the Association from the lips of those who were here years ago. After the banquet twenty girls, dressed in colonial costumes, danced a graceful minuet, several college songs were sung, everybody talked, and then old and young, alumnae of thirty years ago and Freshmen, departed with a bigger, happier view of the Y. W. C. A. and its work.

*Freshman
Glee
March Fifteenth*

The most purely characteristic event connected with Willamette University is the "Freshman Glee." Each class renders a song, of which both words and music must be original. The class which the judges decide has the best song is awarded a large pennant, made by the Freshmen, under whose auspices the contest is given. Owing to the incapacity of the Chapel to seat the crowd, this year's Glee was held in the First Methodist Church. The choir loft was transformed into a huge arch of green, dotted with white lilies and crested with a gold "Nineteen," while the base of the balcony and the walls were ornamented with a fringe of lilies and green leaves. The Seniors, making their first appearance in caps and gowns, sang their song first. They were followed by the Junior, Sophomore, and Freshmen classes, respectively. During the interval awaiting the decision of the judges, Mrs. Helen Miller Senn read a selection from "Macbeth," and the Freshmen gave a musical "stunt." Professor Matthews then presented the pennant to the Junior president, the Sophomore class taking second place, the Freshmen, third, and the Seniors, fourth. After the Glee the Seniors went to the home of Miss Holt and later to the Spa for a jolly-up; the Freshmen to the Gray-Belle; the Sophomores to the Spa; and the Juniors to Lausanne Hall. The latter place, at least, was the scene of a genuine celebration; for, by winning the pennant this year, they instinctively returned to the care-free Freshman days, when they obtained their first Glee victory.

Junior Week-End May first and second

Junior Week-End at Willamette is the great social event of the year. For months in advance almanacs are consulted, and during the preceding week, the barometer is visited hourly. Last spring the elements compromised, for we had neither torrents of rain nor a superabundance of sunshine. Thursday evening a down-town parade ushered in the "big doings." The various classes and organizations entered floats, whose primary purpose was to advertise the Junior play, May Morning Breakfast, and the athletic contests of the week. Friday morning the annual tennis tournament and general "campus clean-up" occurred. At noon everyone assembled on the lawn about Lausanne Hall for the Student Lunch. Sweetland Athletic Field, where a track meet with O. A. C. had been arranged, drew the largest crowd in the afternoon.

Friday evening the Junior Prom was held in the gymnasium. The University orchestra furnished the music, and each class, at intervals, presented some stunt or feature.

The next morning, at the first gray streak of dawn, signs of life began to be apparent at Lausanne. By six o'clock rows of inviting tables were spread out under the trees, and excited waitresses and white-capped chefs were dancing about to receive the first "would be" breakfaster.

Promptly after lunch the May Day festivities began. The royal procession, consisting of the Queen of the May, Leila I, her attendants, choruses, and dancers, wended its way from Kimball College to the throne, which had been constructed under the campus maples. After the impressive coronation ceremony, the queen graciously commanded her subjects to make merry before her. The Maypole was wound, and several graceful dances given. Later in the afternoon the W. U. baseball team met the Chemawa Indians on the athletic field, while the "Sophs" and "Frosh" held their annual tug of war over the mill race.

The last event of the week came Saturday night, with the presentation of "The American Citizen" by the Junior class, at the Grand Theatre. The play was a clean, spicy comedy, and was well staged.

Vesper services on Sunday afternoon closed Willamette's greatest Junior Week-End celebration.

Freshman Reception to S.H.S. Seniors

May Twenty-second

It is an annual custom of Willamette Freshmen to entertain the Senior class of the Salem High School, and the class of '18 did its part to perpetuate the tradition. The dominant note of the color scheme used in the decoration of the reception rooms was purple and white in honor of the guests. "A Midsummer Night's Dream" was the title on the cover of the programs distributed; and each of the five acts was delightfully suggestive. The one most thoroly enjoyed was a presentation of "Pyramus and Thisbe" which disclosed hitherto unsuspected dramatic ability. Partners for supper were procured by following the threads of an immense cobweb through all its intricate windings.

Junior-Senior Banquet

May Twenty-second

The most formal social event of the year was the Junior-Senior banquet, when the class of '16 acted as host to the class of '15 at the Marion Hotel. The long tables showed a color motif in green and white, developed in Karl Druski roses and similax, while each plate was marked by a nosegay of dainty flowers which bore the place card. The delight of the evening, however, was neither in the flowers nor in the food, but rather in the interchange of merry jests and spicy toasts inspired by a clever toastmaster,—all of which surround this event with a host of happy memories.

*Junior
Flunk Day
April Twentieth*

One balmy day when the zephyrs of Spring capered joyously thru the woods, beckoning humans to come out and study nature, the Juniors assembled and after careful planning decided to "walk out" on the following day. When the next morning arrived, Juniors were seen hastening with arms loaded with eats and Indian Blankets to the boat house, where a steamer waited to take them up the Willamette to the "Old River". An exciting game of baseball between the Amazons and the mere men, in which the former won, constituted an interesting prelude to the dinner. After the appetite of everyone had been satisfied, the "Junior Aesthetic Evolution" was indulged in. Following closely upon this was the main event of the day, when Ball became a hero and saved a young lady from inverting a canoe in the middle of the river. After this thrilling episode the crowd decided to turn their faces toward civilization once more.

*Senior
Flunk Day
June Third*

"Who is this I see?", says Father Eaton Hall, as he casts a sleepy eye over the old campus one early June morning. "Seniors in groups of two and three moving steadily toward me; now they have all collected at my steps. 'You, Cassius, hath a lean and hungry look.' But what mysterious packages! That surely must be a coffee pot! Now they are leaving me; what can it mean? Chapel bell rings, and still my Seniors do not return."

Following these jolly Seniors, they are found in a shady spot on the bank of the Willamette. "Weenies" are sizzling; eggs are frying; a delicious odor of coffee fills the air. Seniors wander idly thru the woods, while the Juniors are left to carry Senior dignity with what grace they may.

*Oyster Stew
at Paradise
June Fourteenth*

Laying aside their society manners, but not their society clothes, the Seniors repaired to "Paradise" after the President's Reception, where ladies prepared mysterious brews, while Knights of the Fifteen once more conquered the grandstand roof, and left as booty a bright, new '15. Meanwhile oyster stew was pending the return of the knights to "Paradise." "Eats", rook, maidens' chatter, and jolly stunts reigned until—Oh, well, the "Paradise" clock was always unreliable.

*Y. M. and Y. W. C. A.
Reception to Seniors
June Eleventh*

The delightful home of Dr. and Mrs. M. C. Findley was the scene of the farewell party given by the Y. W. and Y. M. C. A. in honor of the Seniors. The lawn made a beautiful setting for this last association social event.

Japanese lanterns cast a weird light over the green, where games were played. Informality was evidenced in the amusements, and the lack of the usual receiving line was much appreciated.

A rose-decorated table was placed under the trees, where delicious ices and wafers were served by the Freshmen girls.

*Dr. Alden's
Reception to Seniors
June Fourteenth*

The closing social event of the year was the reception given to the Seniors by Dean and Mrs. George H. Alden at their home on North Seventeenth Street. The house was most artistically decorated with cut flowers and vines. Representatives from the faculties of the Colleges of Liberal Arts, Law, Music, and Theology, with the officers of the Senior class, received during the evening.

Refreshments were served from rooms adjoining the reception halls. Society matrons cut the ices, and the Junior girls assisted in serving. The affair proved to be one of the most pretentious social functions of the year.

*Senior
Breakfast
June Fourteenth*

Thirty shining faces helped Old Sol scatter sunbeams over the Pearce lawn on Monday morning of commencement week, when the Seniors gathered there for another one of those "last times together." Several Junior girls assisted in serving to the hungry '15ers those delightful hot things which are appropriate to that time of day. The class prophecy was then read, much to the simultaneous chagrin and amusement of the several members. A most pleasing feature of the morning was the reading of a letter of congratulation from Miss Krenning.

*Class
Day
June Fifteenth*

The program for Class Day consisted of stunts by the various classes, a student lunch, and the Senior play. The class stunts were headed by the Juniors, who first planted ivy at Waller Hall, and then gave a comical representation of the manner in which the Seniors would receive their diplomas. The Sophomores, impersonating the faculty, gave their idea of a correct faculty dance, and a ludicrous chapel performance. The Freshmen sent up balloons, each bearing the name and accomplishments of some Senior. Then the class of '15, as a tribute to their Alma Mater, dedicated to her the massive pillars which now welcome all who enter the gateway to Old Willamette. These pillars bear marble plates, upon one of which is engraved the name "Willamette University," and upon the other "Class of 1915." Electric lights not only ornament the gift, but serve to light the campus as well.

The festivities of the day were closed by an "Irish Evening." A stage was erected in the natural theatre near the gymnasium, where Irish songs and folk dances preluded the Senior play, which was a clever adaptation of the Irish morality play, "The Hour Glass."

Commencement
Day
June Sixteenth

The joys of Commencement Week culminated in Commencement Day, when thirty-one students were graduated from the College of Liberal Arts. Moving in a dignified march, the class went from Eaton Hall to the First Methodist Church, where the exercises were held.

The address was made by Dr. Adna Wright Leonard of Seattle. After the degrees had been conferred, the class marched to the inspiring strains of the great pipe organ, down the aisle, thru flower arches held by the Junior ushers. An informal reception was held in the church parlors, where the class received congratulations.

Alumni
Banquet
June Sixteenth

The Alumni Association held its annual banquet at the Hotel Marion, June 16, 1915. According to a time-honored custom, when the guests entered the dining room, they all remained standing until the class of 1915 were introduced, which was done in a very pleasing manner by

Mr. James Crawford. All were then seated around the tables, which were beautifully decorated with pink roses and smilax.

After a most delightful feast of the choicest dainties, a pleasing program was rendered, consisting of vocal selections, college songs, and addresses by representatives of the different classes. Mr. N. M. Newport, President of the Alumni Association, presided at the banquet.

The 1917 Wallulah

VOLUME VI of the Wallulah is the result of a united effort on the part of the class of 1917 to publish a year book worthy of the University of which it is a part. The book is, in a unique sense, the product of the entire class. By eliminating the proverbial editorial staff, it has been possible to give each Junior a definite part of the work. This plan has centered responsibility with the editor, and has resulted in a greater efficiency than could have been expected under any other system. A generous amount of credit should be given several who have been required to do work of a more difficult nature. Rosamond Gilbert, Carrie Cooksie, Aetna Emmel, Irma Botsford, Violet Maclean, Esther Emmel, Grover Gates and Sam R. King are deserving of this special mention. Such recognition, however, should not detract from the commendation due the other members of the class, for in very few instances did the editor meet other than a hearty response to his requests for assistance.

It was deemed advisable to make use of talent from the University at large, whenever a superior quality of work could be secured. The "Wallulah" is therefore indebted to Mr. Errol Proctor, Miss Margaret Gill and her students, Miss Florence Page, Miss Loretta Ford, and Miss Winifred Bagley for the assistance they have rendered in doing much of the art work. Their contributions have enabled the editor to carry out plans that would otherwise have been impossible.

The work done by the amateur photographers of the University, in securing the fine collection of "snaps," also calls for generous praise, for this feature is certain to do more than any other to remind the reader of campus life at Willamette.

Those firms upon whom the management has been dependent for photography, engraving, printing and binding are deserving of most hearty appreciation. Commercial obligations have been waived, in the effort to produce a book of real merit.

As is the case with all publications of this sort, the advertisers have made possible the financing of the enterprise. They have been cordial in their treatment of Wallulah representatives, and liberal with their assistance. A generous patronage is the only method by which the University can repay them.

PROBABLY no other factor has been of so great importance as the Willamette Collegian, in the marked development that the University has experienced this year. Established in 1889, this publication has gradually grown from a small monthly edition, to a regular college weekly, and has this year taken the form of a seven-column newspaper, adequate for the complete expression of the student life. Altho this increase in size was a daring innovation, the present staff has succeeded in giving Willamette a publication worthy of the high ideals of her student body.

The Collegian's policy has been to consider Willamette first in all things, to strive for the greatest development of the institution, by giving due publicity to its activities. Special endeavors have been made to feature athletics on a special sport page. The society columns have been of exceptional interest, and have been illustrated each week. All through the year it has been the aim of the publication to broaden and intensify student activities, to aid the administration by attracting more endowment and a larger student body, and to finally reach the goal of a greater and better Willamette.

A Greater and Better Willamette for Superior Men and Women

The Students' Handbook

THE Willamette Handbook is a joint production of the varsity Y. M. and Y. W. C. A. It is presented to the students at the beginning of each school year, and serves as a detailed introduction to the student body activities and organizations on the campus. To most recipients its value increases as time passes, for at the close of the year it usually contains a record of all intercollegiate contests, besides an interesting personal diary.

Willamette Song Book

ONE of the most successful undertakings of the class of '14 was the publication of the first Willamette Song Book, during the Spring of 1914. To Mr. Herman Clark, as editor and manager, and Miss Mary Pigler, as assistant, much credit is due for the artistic binding and arrangement of the edition. It was reissued, and the first supplement published, the following year, by the Websterian Literary Society, with Paul Irvine as editor and manager, and Ray Metcalf as assistant.

This collection of songs may well be called "the textbook of the Willamette Spirit." They are similar to the folklore of a nation, having grown as a part of the institution. The contents are divided into three divisions: Freshmen Glee songs, songs as sung by the Willamette Glee Club, and Willamette choruses.

As a supplement is to be issued every two years, the next issue will be published in the Spring of 1917.

Willamette University Bulletin

IT is the custom of the University to publish, during each year, four bulletins, containing information that is of interest and value to all friends of Willamette. Perhaps the one most appreciated, of those distributed during the past year, was in the form of a calendar, which was mailed to all of the best homes in the State. During the month of May the annual catalog will be ready for distribution, and the aim is to place it before all the high school graduates in Willamette's territory. In this little booklet will be presented the real purpose of a Christian institution of learning, and also the scholastic advantages offered by the University. One will find the trustees, administrative officers, faculty, and students, besides full information regarding the courses offered. It will, in every respect, be a reliable guide for the selection of one's collegiate work.

AS a part of last season's May Day festivities, the presentation of Ryley's comedy, "An American Citizen", by the Junior class, stands out as a fitting climax. The excellence of the acting, not only portrayed the theme of the play to advantage, but also disclosed the dramatic ability of the class, and the efficiency of Professor MacMurray as a director. At no time did the attention of the large audience wander from the stage, the play being enjoyed and appreciated by everyone present.

It was at the close of the second act of this play that the Sophomore mule made its debut in the theatrical realm, much to the chagrin of the Freshmen present.

ALTHOUGH the class of 1915 will always be remembered by the excellent presentation of "Canterbury Pilgrims," during its Junior year, the staging of W. B. Yeats' drama, "The Hour Glass," as a part of the Commencement exercises, will stand as a fitting climax to their college course.

For the presentation of the play a natural theatre was formed by the construction of a stage under the trees east of the gymnasium.

The drama is symbolic in nature, the thought centering about the question of a future life. A wise man, in the evening of life, has, by his studies, formed the conclusion that there is no life hereafter. Two young students seem to be favorably impressed by his teachings, only the faith of a fool being to the contrary. Suddenly an angel appears, who tells the wise man that he has but one hour more to live, and that his salvation depends on being able to find one person who believes in a future life. Thereupon the wise man tries to show his students the falsity of his conclusions; but to no avail. At last he has the fool brought before him, who saves the wise man by his sincere faith in a life after death.

IN the selection of a class play, it was the desire of the Junior class and Professor MacMurray to stage a production that would not only excel similar affairs of previous years, but that would be remembered as the best Junior class play in years to come. With this in view, Alfred Noyes' drama, "Sherwood", was chosen. It is a play of real literary value, of such a character as should feature all college performances. It embodies a difficult theme for amateurs to interpret, but the untiring efforts of the members of the cast and Professor MacMurray have culminated in a finished production.

FOR several years Willamette has not had a regular quartette, but this year it was deemed advisable to organize one for the purpose of introducing Willamette to nearby high school students. Their work consisted of week-end appearances in the neighboring towns under the auspices of the local high schools. At every place they succeeded in arousing the student's interest in college life, and particularly in the advantages offered by Willamette.

The programs consisted not only of college songs, but of readings, solos, duets and jokes that told of jolly good students. A few of the places in which they appeared were: Seaside, Harrisburg, Molalla, Lebanon, Yamhill, Falls City, Junction City and at the Centenary Church of Portland.

HOWARD JEWETT
President of the Student Body

“CONCENTRATED Pep” was the slogan under which Howard Jewett was elected to the presidency of the Student Body. Contrary to the usual political platforms, his election promises have more than been fulfilled, for he has instilled into the entire organization a spirit that is completely saturated with that strange phenomena called College “Pep”. Without detracting from the dignity of his official position, President Jewett has made his influence felt in a direct manner in all activities of the college. His efforts have been to unite the forces of the Student Body, that greater things might be accomplished for the mutual good of all. Invariably these efforts have culminated in a stronger and better organization.

The management of the business of a great composite organization such as a University Student Body, is a task that requires the most exceptional student ability. In Willamette this important and difficult duty rests with the Executive Committee of the Student Body. The personnel of the Committee is carefully chosen, and generally results in an efficient body, capable of dealing wisely with the problems that come before it.

Stability and conservatism have characterized the present administration. Innovations have been few, but a permanency has been evident in all that has been done. Without doubt, the adoption of a new requisition system for the expenditure of Student Body funds, has been the most important action taken. Under this system, responsibility is centered in the Committee, and a permissious spending of the money intrusted to their care, made impossible.

A feature that distinguishes the Committee from the majority of those of preceeding years, is the regularity in its meetings, and the faithful attendance of the members. There has been a session every Friday of the college year, when the business demanded it, with the result that the work has been kept up to date at all times. An office has been secured in Eaton Hall, and adequately equipped, for the exclusive use of members of this committee, which is another example of the business ability of the present administration.

“A MAN is only half a man without a woman.” In all lines of college activities the Willamette boys feel that the “co-eds” are loyally supporting them and ready to offer them help in any way possible.

The Girls' Willamette Club, including all women in the University, was organized in the year 1913 with a two-fold aim: the maintenance of a high athletic standard for Willamette University, and a proper observance of a Jason Lee Memorial Day.

Loyal co-operation with the coach in regard to practice, diet, and training hours is essential to the success of all athletic work, and the girls realize that their influence along these lines counts for much.

“Play the game straight and be clean, whether you win or lose, and we will never fear for the Cardinal and Gold,” is the high standard set by this organization.

Lela McCaddam and Esther Cox directed the singing at the athletic contests for the year '15-'16.

THE real test of the efficiency and greatness of any educational institution is the character of the men and women which it produces. An institution may be rich in material wealth and tradition, it may have spacious grounds and beautiful, well-equipped buildings, it may have the best faculty which money can procure; but if the graduates of such an institution are not men and women of high ideals, of vision, then that institution has failed in its real mission. It has ever been Willamette's boast that her sons and daughters have "made good." Her roll of honor began with the graduation of the first class, in 1859, the same year that the State of Oregon was admitted to the Union. Thus, since the very birth of the State, Willamette has been sending forth her graduates annually to help solve the problems and to enrich the life of the commonwealth. The highest positions in the State have been filled with Willamette men, and the influence of the University has also been extended to the National life thru senators and congressmen. But while it is natural to mention first those who have been prominent in public life, or those who have achieved eminence along some special line, nevertheless there is the danger of overlooking the great number of those "to wealth and fame unknown." To those of this latter class nearly every community of the State owes a great debt. Thru them the spirit and the inspiration of the University have reached the common people. As long as Willamette continues to produce men and women of this type, she may be said to be fulfilling her mission, and her continued existence is amply warranted.

THE Young Women's Christian Association must supplement the secular life of the University in such a way that it will permeate all college activities, keep the ideals high, and the purpose true to the best that Wil-lamette stands for. Its aim is to make Christian living a practical, concrete, reality in the life of every Y. W. girl, and to make this life so attractive that all university women will become actively interested.

The Y. W. C. A., interests extend to all phases of college life. Social, intellectual, and moral movements are championed with equal vigor by the Y. W. girls, and not a few of them originate in this active organization of live Christian women. Notwithstanding their many-sided interests, the supreme ideal of noble character is placed first in the heart of each member of the Association. This is the impelling force that has made the Y. W. C. A. successes in University life possible.

THE work of the college Young Men's Christian Association is to make the connection between the new vigor and enthusiasm which is always generated in college society, and the problem of building strong personal character. Its meetings and informal discussions on the campus and in the Summer Camps, bring about an interchange of individual viewpoints, stimulate the development of intelligent, constructive attitudes toward life, and help the students, in a vital sense, to find themselves. Its social service work gives an opportunity for earnest men to learn the principles of unselfish service by first-hand experience. Lastly, and perhaps the most important of all, it affords a chance for an intimate connection with a body of great association leaders, such as Gale Seaman and John R. Mott, who are the most eminent workers in the Christian propaganda of our age.

THE Intercollegiate Prohibition Association was reorganized upon a new basis early in November. The purpose of the society is to create interest in the Prohibition Oratorical Contest, to acquaint its members with the liquor problem of today, and to establish and nurture an active prohibition spirit in Willamette. To secure these ends attractive programs are given in which are presented, in a systematic way, the different phases of this social evil. Thru the united action of Dr. J. O. Hall and the I. P. A., a course treating the liquor question is offered by the University.

ANY army, to be successful, must be organized. It is highly fitting, then, that the young people who have decided to fight the greatest and most strenuous of all battles should have an association known as The Student Volunteer Band. Membership in the Band depends upon the student signing the pledge card, in which he declares his sincere intention and earnest endeavor to become a foreign missionary. The local band supports a worker in Korea, and is also directly connected with the State Association and the national headquarters in New York.

Willamette Volunteers have gone to China, India, Japan, and Maylasia, and are doing work of which our Christian University is justly proud.

THE Washingtonian Club, composed of students and faculty members whose homes are in the state of Washington, is a live organization devoted to the best interests of their state and their university. It is the purpose of this club to bring the advantages of Willamette before their fellow citizens, that they too may know of Willamette and its accomplishments. Their work is showing direct results in the large number of Washington men and women now enrolled in the university.

LAUSANNE Hall holds the key to Willamette's social life. The active interest of the girls in the all-school affairs, and the pleasing social functions given under their immediate direction, give them an extremely great influence in University social circles. The girls who call Lausanne their home are fortunate in being placed in the care of one so thoroly capable as Miss Todd. Under her administration, life at the Hall has come to hold an attraction of which few girls' dormitories can boast.

EIGHT jolly, congenial girls, a charming housemother, and a delightful "Inn" are the three planks in the "Dewdrop Inn" platform. Altho the Club is in its initial year, and is not so large as many other organizations, it has succeeded in making a distinct place for itself in University life. The "Dewdrops" pride themselves on their ability to keep a majority of the officers of the many campus organizations among their members, which has caused the "Inn" to become a recognized center in the activities of the college.

The future of Club Houses of this sort is guaranteed, for the "Dewdrop" girls have proved that Willamette is in need of such organizations; that the fullest realization of college life can not be attained without them.

TAKING advantage of the first opportunity to establish a club-house, the D. D. Club was organized in the Fall of 1914. It continues to be the only large club of its kind in the University, and naturally holds a place of of unequalled prominence. Being the pioneer in a movement that should mean much to Willamette, its perpetual success is of vital importance to the University. The growth of the Club has been steady, and, situated in its new and spacious home, it should continue to an extent even more marked than that which has characterized it in the past.

DESPITE the fact that there was an increase in the number of men's boarding clubs, the Kloshe Klub has witnessed another successful year. It has been the aim of Manager King to uphold the name of Kloshe, which means "Good Eats", by furnishing appetizing, wholesome food to the members at the nominal price of three dollars per week.

With headquarters near the center of the campus, the Kloshe Klub besides being characterized as the best food emporium for Varsity men, has the well sustained reputation of being the campus forum. It is the center of gravity for the intellectual, political, and humorous life of the institution, and makes itself felt in all branches of college activities.

THIS group of men is composed of warriors who hold as enviable a position as the proud wearers of the athletic awards, since they too have fought and won battles for the glory of old Willamette. The bar "W" men are among the leaders in student activities of all kinds, and are representative of the different departments of the institution.

Seven of the men will be graduated this spring, and it is with a deep sense of regret that Willamette must bid farewell to their future forensic talents. But by their efforts many undergraduates have been helped and inspired to work not only for the maintenance of the University's present standing, but to increase the glory of her prestige. However, as college training is preparation for the greater things of life, the future work of these men is certain to be in harmony with the ideals of their Alma Mater, and add to the splendid records of her alumni.

The Year In Forensics

Mr. P. R. SMITH
Manager of Forensics

Mrs. SENN
Coach of Forensics

IN both debate and oratory Willamette made a decided advance during this year, for which much credit is due to the efficiency of the new public speaking department, under the leadership of Prof. Helen Miller Senn.

The initial forensic event of the season took the form of an essay contest. Nine well constructed manuscripts were placed in the hands of the judges. J. Read Bain's production entitled "A Sane View of the Great War" was awarded first place, for which the author was presented with a beautiful Willamette blanket. Herbert Blatchford, author of the essay "A Practical View of Christmas", received a large W. U. pennant as second prize.

With the exception of the Peace Oratorical Contest, Willamette was represented in all Inter-Collegiate oratorical contests. The local tryouts were manifestations of supreme ability and enthusiasm for the work, vitalized by a desire to further Willamette's prestige.

Interest in local forensic activities has increased to such an extent that several prominent business men of Salem have contributed cash prizes as an incentive to aspiring students. The contest on March 31, won by James Ewing, was especially good, prizes totaling twenty-five dollars being offered by Drs. Steeves and Findley.

Forensic work has received an impetus this year that assures Willamette of real achievements in the future. The interest of the participants, and of the Student Body in supporting the debators and orators, has made such activities a living factor in Willamette.

Inter-Collegiate Oratorical Contest

FRANK M. JASPER

TAKing all the colleges into consideration, the annual State Oratorical contest is the most important forensic event of the year. The real purpose of the contests is to further the art of public speaking among college students.

The orations are required to partake of no special theme, the contestant's power of creating a logical composition, and of delivering it, being the only bases for the decision of the judges.

This year's contest was held at the Oregon Normal School, March 10, 1916. In addition to the orator and delegates Willamette was represented by forty students, and their champion, was deserving of the spirited cheering they manifested during the evening. The decision of the judges showed him to be a close second to Mr. Walter L. Meyers, of the State University, who won first honors, and by securing this place six other institutions were defeated.

The order of the contestants as determined by the judges was as follows:

- |                                 |   |                      |
|---------------------------------|---|----------------------|
| (1) University of Oregon        | "Independent Sovereignties and Vital Interests" | Mr. Walter L. Meyers |
| (2) Willamette University       | "The Invisible Devastation of Selfish Strife"   | Mr. Frank M. Jasper  |
| (3) Oregon Normal School        | "The Education of Tomorrow"                     | Miss Marie Myers     |
| (4) McMinnville College         | "Social Unrest and the Liquor Problem"          | Mr. M. C. Smithson   |
| (5) Oregon Agricultural College | "Americanizing Our Immigrants"                  | M. Eric Englund      |
| (6) Pacific University          | "Will America Follow Rome"                      | Mr. Max W. Ricker    |
| (7) Pacific College             | "The Trust"                                     | Mr. Meade G. Elliot  |
| (8) Albany College              | "A Present Day Problem"                         | Mr. Folmer A. Jensen |

Prohibition Oratorical Contest

ALTHOUGH most students look upon the Inter-Collegiate Prohibition Association only as a means to further forensics, it has a greater aim in view. Its real purpose is to prepare active efficient men, that they may be able to cope with the great world problem of prohibition. This organization is nation wide, nearly every college in the United States having a branch of the Association. That the work of all the local organizations may be in harmony and work in unity for the greatest good, a series of inter-collegiate oratorical contests is made an annual affair. These range from local to national importance.

HERBERT H. BLATCHFORD

Mr. Herbert Blatchford won the local contest and represented Willamette at the State Contest held at Forest Grove, April 14. His oration "Prohibition and National Efficiency" showed a deep knowledge and keen analysis of the problems inherent in prohibition. At this event six colleges were represented and as many logical well-constructed orations were delivered. In spite of the fact that Mr. Blatchford was awarded third place, Willamette feels that she was ably represented.

The standing of the colleges, as arranged by the decision of the judges is as follows:

- |                             |   |                      |
|-----------------------------|---|----------------------|

INTER-COLLEGIATE Debates were not participated in to any great extent this year, the dual debate with Pacific University, April 21, being the only contest that the Varsity team entered. The question debated was: Resolved, That the United States should own and operate the railroads within its borders engaged in interstate traffic.

Eakin and Spiess, Willamette's affirmative team, met Pacific's negative team composed of Jones and Taylor, on the home floor, while Savage and Gleiser competed with Pacific's affirmative team, consisting of Rasmussen and Jack, at Forest Grove. The judges rendered a two to one decision in favor of Willamette's team in each contest.

Both debates were especially well presented. The question was difficult, and all four teams displayed the result of hard work and thoro preparation. Each speaker presented three or four cardinal arguments in favor of his side of the case, which, to the respective audiences, seemed almost impossible to refute. The rebuttals tended to substantiate points in the contestants favor, instead of refuting the opposing contentions. Both debates were judged upon the merits of the arguments, and not in any sense upon the merits of the question.

AN ideal way in which to harmonize the common interests of the administration and students in inter-collegiate sports was formulated in the permanent committee known as the Athletic Council. Meetings are held regularly at the beginning of each athletic season at which time schedules are considered and pre- and post-season reports are received from the respective student managers. The duty of the Council is to work for the best interests of athletics in all the different phases.

The sentiments of Alumni, faculty, and students are unified thru the efforts of the council. The president of the Student Body and two athletic "W" men represent the undergraduate interests while two members of the Alumni Association, a faculty member and the coach represent the administration. Such a representative personnel insures a broad and detailed consideration of all athletic problems.

THE "W" Club was organized in the spring of '12 for the purpose of maintaining a high standard of sweater awards and the furthering of all athletic interests. The club is the strongest organization in the school, and the sentiment radiated by its members has done much to make the "W" respected and cherished as an exclusive insignia, significant of high honor for service rendered the Cardinal and Gold.

On February 22, the date commonly known as "W" Club Day, the favored few are awarded the letters earned during the previous seasons. It is the big day for Willamette athletes and with boosting Alumni, songs, and cheers, interest is stimulated. Immediately following the presentation a banquet is held and a feast of fellowship between athletes, old and new, is enjoyed.

The crystallization of the highest standard of athletic sentiment into a working force is reason sufficient for the existence of the Club, but its function is not thus limited. It is a social group, and when opportunity arises, a trophy room will be arranged, a book of records outlined and the club will assume a more tangible form.

The Year in Athletics

R. L. MATHEWS, Athletic Director

ATHLETICS, like all other student interests, fluctuate from year to year. The seasons prior to 1909 were extremely erratic, but with the advent of Dr. Sweetland as coach, all athletic enterprises were subject to a new birth. The season of 1914-15 was one of depression; a pause, an adjustment between the old and the new. The rapid changing of events placed a spell upon the creative Willamette genius and stunned it.

But the old spirit, the pioneer sacrifice that has made history, was only dormant. When the 1915-16 season began, it came to life with an overpowering, irresistible flash and has continued to grow steadily, carrying the teams honorably thru the darkest hours and over the most disheartening obstacles. The attitude of the administration and students, individually and collectively, has been such as to inspire the best in all wearers of the Cardinal and Gold. A heavy football schedule was carried from a gloomy outlook to a successful close; five conference basketball games were made possible thru willing student sacrifice. A special trainload of rooters to Forest Grove, a packed gymnasium at all games, two non-conference championships, and the support of Salem sportdom are monuments to the noble spirit pervading the athletic activities. Baseball, track, and tennis have also fallen victims to this wave of enthusiasm and are scheduled for record seasons.

Every man in school has been engaged in some athletic or gymnastic work and the women of the University have also had opportunity for systematic exercise as well as indulging in inter-class basketball.

Under the guidance of Coach Mathews, athletics have been given a great impetus and the Willamette spirit has been born anew; not to a sudden death by virtue of its spontaneous re-birth, but to grow ever stronger and be counted the basis of greater athletics in the "greater Willamette."

Football

GLOOM and clouds with jet black lining marked the opening of the 1915 football season. When the call to the pig-skin was issued, Captain Flegel was the only veteran to report for duty. The new material was an unknown quantity and a new man was to guide the team thru a heavy schedule. Prospects for a successful season could not have been more discouraging.

However, with less than two weeks to prepare for the Alumni game, there was no time for mere speculation and "work" became the watchword. The new material proved both green and light, but with their veteran captain as a working example, and the untiring labor of their coach, they were moulded into a football machine inspired with the spirit characteristic of worthy Cardinal and Gold defenders. This was evidenced in the annual Alumni fracas on September 25, when the "old grads" met a 27 to 0 defeat. October 2, a week later, found the Varsity eleven at Corvallis pitted against men of All-American calibre. They were outweighed and outplayed but never outfought, and the defeat thus sustained may well be counted a victory. The next victim of the Bearcat appetite was Albany College. The game was a rugged exhibition staged on Sweetland field and resulted in a 7 to 3 score. After a stubbornly contested game on the local field, October 30, the U. of O. was returned a 47 to 0 victor. The following Saturday Chemawa was met by a badly crippled Varsity eleven and held to a scoreless tie. This marked the worst slump of the entire campaign. At Forest Grove on November 13, was staged the final game of the season. It resulted in a 13 to 7 victory for the Bearcat contingent and a Northwest non-conference championship for Willamette. Pacific put up a scrappy game but could not solve the attack or overcome the defense of the fighting Bearcats.

EARL FLEGEL, "W"
CAPTAIN

Weight 171

Fullback

In common sporting parlance, the captaincy of a team means the slump of the player; but Flegel proved the exception. He played so consistently that his teammates have elected him to lead them for another season; the first football man to receive such an honor. Playing in every position, excepting center, and in every minute of every game, he proved a staunch nucleus about which to develop a team. Never has a more versatile athlete, nor truer sport, fought under the Cardinal and Gold. "Fleg" has served the varsity well for three seasons, but greater service is predicted of him next year.

BRAZIER SMALL "W"

Weight 127

Halfback

Like his name, Small is tiny in stature, but the opposite in deeds. Two years ago "Smalley" stirred the Northwest and made his name big when he scored the touchdown that spelled victory for Cardinal and Gold over Lemon and Green. Last fall, tho he had been out of school a year, he showed the old time speed and was Oregon's vexing worry the week of October 30. He is the proverbial wild fire for speed.

PAUL HENDRICKS "W"

Left Guard

"Tubby" played for Oregon last year and on October 30 made them wish that he was still playing for them. He showed great form at backing up the line and made the necessary hole when called upon. Hendricks fought hard and his experience and good judgement were valuable additions to the team. He could play the backfield and make yardage with a vengeance.

DONALD RANDALL "W"

Right End

Randall held down an end for Salem High thru two championship seasons. This experience combined with his fight made him Coach Mathews choice for right end, tho he was shifted to half back late in the season. He is rather light but delivered the goods whenever he got a chance.

RAYMOND ARCHIBALD "W"

Weight 167.

Center

Every play centered around "Peany" and he liked it. He started all plays just right and did his part in finishing what he started. His habit of breaking through the line from defense was a stumbling block to the opposing backs. "Archy" made all centers respect him and thrilled the fans with his defense against Oregon. Like his brother he was possessed of the unconquerable football spirit. He is an All-Star non-conference choice.

PAUL MILLER "W"

Left End

Early in the season "Hap" showed a proclivity for stopping interference and grabbing forward passes out of the ether. For this reason he was given the left end job and the tendency developed into a habit. "Hap" is always over anxious to do his share of the work and deserves the "W" he receives.

HAROLD TOBIE "W"

Left Tackle

"To-bie" or not "To-bie", that was the problem the right wing of our opponents had to solve. It usually resulted in the equation Tobie equals stone wall. His style of play won for him the nickname "Demon" and he well deserved his place on the All-Star eleven. It was impossible to lay him out.

ATHILL IRVINE "W"

Weight 133

Quarterback

The pivot duty was intrusted to Irvine and he ran the team on high gear without a slip. "Toughie's" speed made his 133 pounds show to advantage, especially from the short punt formation. With the experience gained under Coach Mathews he should be efficient at the signal calling station next fall.

GROVER GATES "W"

Weight 136

Sub-End

Injuries kept Gates from occupying a regular birth on the team this season, but after his stellar performance of last year, no one dares question his ability. His hobby is breaking up the interference, and then getting the man himself. With Grover playing defensive end, the halfback has few cares. He was never known to miss a pass.

LLOYD W. SHISLER

Weight 152

Halfback

Shisler reported for practice late but his grit and speed won him a halfback birth. Instinctively to took to football and made good tho new at the game. His repeated long runs were the feature of the Pacific game and wrote his name permanently on Willamette's football honor roll. "Shi", the only senior on the squad, will not be back next year. The place of such a sturdy player will be hard to fill.

PAUL BROWN

Weight 168

Sub-End

Brown showed excellent football tactics for a man new at the game, and did good work when called upon. Sickness kept him out of the game most of the season. With the experience gained, and better luck next year, he will be a valuable man. He is big and fast.

ERROLL PROCTOR

Weight 148

Sub-Guard

Few men have worked harder than "Proc" to make all contenders respect the Cardinal and Gold. He is not a sensational player in himself, but he is always ready to do his best and to submerge himself in the interests of the team. He is developing speed and does good work in the line for one of his size.

DERRIL REXFORD

Right End

"Rex" found pleasure in out-punting his opponent and scoring from placement and drop-kick formations. He did not have a punt blocked during the entire season. "Rex" was usually good natured but he could get serious in a football game. He is another Willamette man cast in an All-Star mould.

ARVID PETERSON

Weight 176

Right Guard

"Pete" was the heaviest man on the squad. Last fall was his first attempt at the pig-skin game but he soon learned to use every ounce of his 176 pounds of brawn to advantage. The "Big Swede" created lots of fun, but got real serious when it came to playing the game. With three more years to play, a great name is predicted for him in the greatest of all college sports.

ARNOLD GRALAPP

Weight 151

Sub-Halfback

Gralapp is a willing worker and always full of life. He was ready to fill any place, proving a utility man of the A number one class. "Germany" was an understudy to both the line and back field. His faithful practice and conscientious work made him a valuable man to the squad.

CHESTER WOMER

Weight 164

Sub-Guard

Womer came to Willamette from Estacada High, where he starred for three seasons. He is heavy and with the development of a little more aggressiveness he will be a man hard to play against.

Basketball

WINNING the non-conference championship, defeating a conference team, and holding the O. A. C. Coast champion contenders to a 17 to 13 score, tells the story of a successful basketball season for Willamette's fighting quintette.

By the score of 27 to 24, the Chemawa Braves were the first victims of the Bearcat's ravenous appetite. The Alumni and local Y. M. C. A. then drew the short straw by scores of 19 to 16 and 36 to 12 respectively. A few days before California was to be met, Captain Shisler was forced from the game. With her right paw thus amputated, the Bearcat was overwhelmed by the heavy U. of C. team 35 to 20. The University of Washington next invaded the local floor and went away a 26 to 30 victor, but with a profound respect for the Cardinal and Gold defenders. Ending the first half the Varsity was a 15 to 8 favorite. With Shisler's return to the lineup, new life was evidenced and Idaho was met and defeated 25 to 21. The Idaho players fought stubbornly but they could not solve Coach Mathews offense nor stand the pace set by the fighting Willamette quintette.

Again must team work be broken up; Irvine forgot to study and was dropped from the squad. During the period of readjustment that followed, the Multnomah Club was met in Portland and held to a 26 to 17 score. The O. A. C. Beavers then gave battle to the Bearcat and, in one of the most hotly contested games ever played in Salem, won a 16 to 13 victory. Throughout the first period the Varsity outplayed the Aggies, scoring two field goals and two fouls to their three fouls. This and the final game of the season won 31 to 18, from P. U., marked the zenith of play for the local team. The offense and defense were perfected. Pacific had a game, fighting team, but they were decidedly outclassed.

The Varsity five were extremely light for a collegiate team. Tho weight seemingly may not count in the indoor game, it is a significant fact that W. U. held a lead at the end of the first half in all but two games.

Weight 152

Forward

Shisler has scored his last goal for the Varsity. For four years he has been the worry of his opponents, and in every game in the past two seasons he has made the highest individual score. "Shi" has a foul shooting average of .667 to his opponents' .491. His floor playing was phenomenal, and his passing accurate. The knowledge that their captain was never beaten while there was playing time, was a constant inspiration to the team. No one can boast a truer sportsmanship than that displayed by Captain Shisler.

EARL FLEGEL, "W"

Weight 171

Guard

Flegel has played three years for the Varsity, was acting captain in 1914, and is the unanimous choice for the leader of the 1917 campaign. He has improved each year, and the past season saw him playing the floor and passing in perfect form. "Fleg" plays an even game with his opponent, preventing him from scoring, or tallying a like number of points himself. He repeated his football record of being the only man to play full time in every game.

RENE JACKSON

Weight 148

Sub. Center

Emmett (Idaho) High School developed a star in Jackson. He outjumped every center he faced, and fitted nicely into the team work; but he lacked the driving aggressiveness necessary in a collegiate player. "Jack" is a Freshman, and gives great promise for the three years before him. He missed his letter by only a small margin.

ATHILL IRVINE

Weight 133

Utility

Too great an interest in scoring points for Willamette and not enough interest in his studies cost Irvine his "W." Fast on the floor, and an accurate passer, he always showed first-team form, and played consistently at either guard or forward. "Toughie" is a Freshman, and has three years yet to do battle for the Varsity colors. He shoots fouls to good advantage.

HOWARD JEWETT "W"

Weight 127

Forward

Jewett's stature does not typify the athlete, but guards of the Northwest met their Waterloo trying to cover him. If the average sized athlete had as much fight and real ability to the square inch as the "midget" Willamette forward, the rules of the game would need revision. Jewett stepped into the limelight last year and has since been the wonder and delight of Varsity supporters. Tho he leaves by graduation this spring, the memory of "the little man of big deeds" will still linger.

WALLACE ADAMS "W"

Weight 165

Center

"Big Ad" got "on the hop" last year and made a good center about which to build a team. He has met few men who could out jump him. During the present season he played a defensive game and did spectacular work in the Washington and Idaho contests. "Ad" has one year yet to play and more aggressiveness will make it his banner season. He works hardest against severe competition.

RUSSEL BROOKS "W"

Weight 144

Guard

In 1910 O. A. C. had her last Northwest Conference championship basketball team. Brooks was a guard on that aggregation. This winter he demonstrated that he at least remembered what he learned on the gym floor while at the Aggie school. He held the wonderful Sieberts to one field goal and shot as many himself. "Russ" was one of the fastest men on the floor and his experienced aggressiveness was a great asset to the team.

ERROL PROCTOR

Weight 148

Utility

For two years Proctor has trained conscientiously, worked hard, and subbed for the first team. His reward has been in knowing that the Varsity has played better ball by virtue of his sacrifice. At the close of the season "Proc" was playing fast ball, and with two years left he should easily earn the coveted "W"

Inter-Class Basketball

Mann, Esteb, Archibald, Sandifur, Sparks
Freshman Team

INITIATED into Willamette sportdom last year, the inter-class basketball series has proved the most interesting feature of the mid winter athletic season. In the series six teams are entered and a double round of six games is played, no varsity players being allowed to participate. The presentation of the Watt Shipp loving cup to the winner lent added interest to the playing, and gave assurance that the event will be on the calendar annually. The championship for two successive years is necessary for permanent retention of the silver trophy.

The cup was first won by the 1915 seniors. It is now held by the class of 1918, who developed a fast team and passed thru the season with a clean slate. Three freshmen, Esteb and Sparks, forwards, and Archibald guard, were chosen for the All-Star interclass team. Bain of the seniors was named captain and center, and Tobie, sophomore, was picked for the other guard. Varsity teams benefit from the men thus developed in the rival classes.

CALIFORNIA-W. U. GAME

THE TEAM

Baseball

THE 1915 baseball season was only a mediocre success. A schedule of six collegiate games was played with two victories credited to W. U. There were seven veterans on the team, and the men all worked hard, but the "punch" to win was not there. History does not always repeat itself, however, and the season of 1916 bids fair to eclipse all previous records. There is a sound basis for this prediction. In the first place Willamette has a baseball coach of the first order and he is drilling the "inside" game into the men. Secondly, the best schedule has been arranged that has ever been attempted. Thirdly, the four veterans on the team are fighting harder than ever before, and the new men are above the average in hitting ability, a weak point of the previous Varsity nines.

A summary of the games played thus far will substantiate the prediction of the season's success. The University of Oregon nine, was met in a two-game series April 7 and 8, at Eugene. The result was a double victory for the Lemon and Yellow by the twin scores of 3 to 0. In the eighteen innings played, Oregon got 8 hits, earned 1 run, and errored once; Willamette got 6 hits, earned no runs and errored 14 times. A week later O. A. C. took a 16 to 0 game on the local field. The Beavers had a big day with the stick and the local nine were off color. Baseball "luck" was on duty with the unexpected. April 25 the U. of W. was played a 7 to 2 contest on Sweetland field. The box score summarized, gives Willamette 6 hits and 5 errors; Washington 7 hits, and 1 error. Such was the come-back staged against a team that defeated O. A. C. The fielding weakness, an easily reducible factor, proved the downfall of the Bearcat contingent in each game thus far. Individually the players are the strongest produced on Willamette soil for several seasons; collectively, they are in need of a little more "inside baseball" under the direction of Coach Mathews. The schedule includes another game with Oregon, a series with O. A. C., and several non-conference games.

LLOYD SHISLER "W"

Senior

Outfield

A lead-off man of the first order, Shisler works the opposing pitchers to the limit. His batting average ranked him among the first for the past two seasons, and he will surely repeat this year. He plays the outfield, but is valuable as a relief pitcher, on one occasion pitching a one hit shut-out. "Shi's" popularity among his teammates was mirrored in his election to the captaincy in his junior year.

WALLACE ADAMS "W"

Junior

Pitcher

For the past two seasons Adams has been the mainstay on the mound. Recently he pitched a 3 to 0 five hit game against the heavy hitting Oregon team. He has speed, a varied assortment of curves, and good control. Last year he lead the team in hitting, besides winning half of his games. "Wally" is at his best when the bases are occupied. The present season will show him to advantage.

PAUL BROWN "W"

Freshman

Second Base

Brown is a dark horse infielder. He was a veteran catcher in interscholastic circles, but in order to strengthen the inner garden he has been shifted to the keystone sack. "Amity" hits well and promises much for the four years before him. Hard work and lots of "pepper" is his playing slogan.

GROVER GATES "W"

Junior

Third Base

This is the fifth year that Grover has handled the hot ones around third base. He earned his "W" when only a sophomore in the Academy, and has been a mainstay ever since. For three years he played without an error, a feat that is extremely rare, for one guarding the difficult corner. "G. Rover" is there with the stick also, and knows baseball all the way thru.

PAUL MILLER "W"

Sophomore

First Base

The best fielding first basemen Willamette has ever produced, is the consensus of opinion regarding Miller. You can't throw or hit "em" out of his reach. "Hap" is the "Charley Chaplin" of the squad and keeps everybody in good humor. He works on high gear all the time and is rapidly improving as a hitter. He has the natural baseball sense.

DERRILL REXFORD

Freshman

Pitcher

Rexford made his debut on the Varsity by pitching a three hit game against Oregon. To date he is tied for the highest batting honors. An unlimited assortment of benders, a mixed speed, perfect control, and cool judgment spells his pitching worth. "Rex" is a product of Albany high and is a great asset to the Bearcats, providing the Big Brush does not sign him. His smile and confidence are contagious.

HILBERT TASTO

Freshman

Shortstop

Baseball is second nature to Willamette's "tow-headed" short fielder. Tasto helped Salem high win several pennants and is at present doing his best to land the Bearcats at the top. The baseball stops when it hits his territory. "Dutch" is a dangerous man on the bases, and leads the team with the stick. He is a universal favorite with the fans.

DEAN ADAMS

Sophomore

Catcher

"Little Ad" proved to be a dark horse in the catching arena this spring. Altho it is his first year on the Varsity, he has proved that he can see and remember a batter's weakness. His "peg" to the bases is a delight to watch and is an assurance against a pilfering opposition. "Ad's" hard work and judgment of batters makes the pitcher's work easy.

ERROL PROCTOR

Sophomore

Utility

Proctor is a clean fielder, good batter, and steady player. He can step into any players' shoes and fill them with credit. His value to the team is inestimable. "Proc" works hard and improves rapidly. He is dangerous as a pinch hitter.

ARNOLD GRALAPP

Junior

Outfield

Assistant Manager Gralapp works overtime for the squad. Nothing is too hard for him to try when it will help the team. He is a sure fielder and with more experience at bat and on the bases, will gain a regular berth.

LEMUEL ESTEB

Freshman

Outfield

Esteb's speed and sure fielding gives him preference in the outer garden. He is the only left handed batter gracing the lineup. "Esty" is an aggressive player and with college experience will make a dangerous man at the bat and on the bases.

READ BAIN "W"

Senior

Outfield

By being a sure fielder and having a good "peg" Bain is qualified for an outfielder. He earned his "W" in his second year. Handicapped by rheumatism, he will be unable to play this year, but his psychology will always be in action; helping the team from the sidelines.

FRANK GROSVENOR

Academy

Second Base

Grosvenor is doing track, but also finds time to guard the keystone cushion. He broke into the Washington game like a whirlwind, gleaning two hits and scoring two runs. The team is stronger offensively and defensively since "Tekoa's" advent.

LABAN STEEVES, Manager

QINDER path and field work are coming into favor more and more each year. The season of 1915 could not be termed a success so far as victories are concerned, but nevertheless several features are noticeable. There was not a veteran in school, necessitating a team of new material. Representatives were entered in the Columbia Indoor Meet at Portland and on May Day, Willamette's cohorts took two firsts against O. A. C. on the local field. Irvine took first in the hurdles and Bagley was an easy first with the javelin. A non-conference meet in which six schools participated was successfully staged on the local field. Pacific University won the meet with 45 points, Chemawa took second with 32, and Willamette third with 29. In a second non-conference meet held at McMinnville, this team took 38 points, giving W. U. second place.

The season at hand promises much. Small, the veteran sprinter, is again in school and is the only letter man in training, but the new material is all of excellent quality. Coach Mathews entered five men in the Far Western Meet at O. A. C. and three of them returned winners, for a total of six points. The enthusiasm with which the men are training gives assurance of a successful season.

The schedule is opened April 29 with the Annual Interclass meet in which every man in school has an opportunity to take part, and the big meets will follow in quick succession.

BERT FORD

Sophomore

Sprints

Fred Kelly had to tie the world's record for the 80-yard dash to beat Ford in the Far-Western meet. Ford spent his first year at Oregon. His only opportunity to date to do battle for the Cardinal and Gold came in the meet at O. A. C. this spring, but by his feat there he won a place in the hearts of all Willamette's supporters.

LABAN STEEVES

Junior

High Jump, Sprints

This is the third year that Steeves has been taking points for Willamette. He broke into track as a high jumper, but has since developed into a sprinter of unusual merit. Laban has worked hard, and will undoubtedly win his letter before graduating.

FRANK GROSVENOR

Academy

Quarter-mile Run, Broad Jump

"Tekoa" was the star sprinter, broad jumper, and quarter-miler at Salem high last year and was a member of the Varsity team at the O. A. C. indoor meet. His thoro training and willingness mark him as a future point winner for the Cardinal and Gold.

BRAZIER SMALL "W"

Junior

Sprints

Small has returned a winner from both the Columbia in-door meet and the Far-Western meet staged at O. A. C. This places him among the three best sprinters in the Northwest. Fifty yards is his favorite, but he works equally well in the hundred and the two-twenty yard stretches.

KARL CHAPLER

Junior

Mile Run

Chapler has a gold medal that is a reminder of his prowess as an interscholastic star. He has represented the Varsity the past two years and is undoubtedly the best distance man in Willamette. His finish in the mile against Pacific, last spring, was the prettiest run of the season. Chap is due for two more years.

PAUL BROWN

Freshman

Weights

The javelin throw in the Far Western Meet marked Brown a winner of points for the Varsity colors. He is heaving the shot and discus in great form, and will undoubtedly make a creditable showing in these events. Brown is from Amity High, where he won first honors in Interscholastic circles, throwing the javelin.

Tennis

WILLIS BARTLETT, Manager

Howard Jewett, 6-0, 4-6, 6-4. The matches were not as fast as had been anticipated although a number of them kept the spectators interested. The men players will probably be chosen from Smith, Jewett, Bagley, Austin, and Irvine. In the women's singles Miss White won from Miss Tobie in a match that was exceedingly fast.

The tennis schedule for this season includes tournaments on our own courts with Pacific College and McMinnville College, on May 5 and 13, respectively, while these schools are to be played on their courts May 20 and 19. The schedule will probably include Reed College and Pacific University, but definite dates have not been decided upon. With favorable weather conditions Willamette should turn out a tennis team which will account for itself in all meets.

THE tennis season of '15 was not so successful as Willamette had hoped for. The spring tournament showed some pretty fast matches, particularly in the semi-finals. Howard Jewett won the finals from Paul Smith by scores of 2-6, 6-0 and 6-2. There were but two tournaments, both of which were with McMinnville College and were won by her representatives. Miss Mary Findley succeeded in winning the ladies' singles in each match and also captured the school championship in that event. Tennis letters were earned by Miss Findley, Smith, Jewett and Flegel.

There was no fall tournament in 1915, but Paul R. Smith won the men's singles in the spring tournament from

Senior

Men's Doubles

It is impossible to drive the ball past Willamette's diminutive racquet wielder. Jewett is not rangy enough to develop a smashing serve, but his quickness makes him a hard man to beat at the net. "Prexy" fits nicely in team work in the doubles and readily adapts himself to any style of play.

PAUL R. SMITH "W"

Senior

Men's Doubles

Smith is the most experienced player on the team. He is always cool and works his opponent to the limit. His serve is hard to handle. "Pinky" is at his best in singles, where he can go after everything that crosses the net. He likes to return the difficult ones and disconcert his opponent.

EARL C. FLEGEL "W"

Junior

Men's Singles

Flegel is playing his third year of tennis for the Varsity. He plays a smashing game carrying the fight to his opponent. "Fleg" has perfected a driving serve that will lift the best player from his feet. Discovering his opponent's weak points and driving hot ones there constantly, is his hobby.

Intramural Athletics

DEMOCRACY prevails in Willamette athletics. Altho Varsity athletes are given first place, and are honored to the fullest possible extent, respect is not lacking for the man who participates in gymnasium and field work for the sake of the exercise alone. During the past year, every man in the University has been engaged in some form of physical training. The effort has been to establish a physical standard for all Willamette men, in order to build the balanced individual.

These athletic enterprises take various competitive forms, resulting in a healthy rivalry between the classes, societies, and clubs of the college. The interest naturally centers largely around the two lower classes. Early in the Fall the boys of these classes hold a bag-rush to decide the question of numeral space on the grandstand roof. For two years the Frosh have succeeded in capturing the necessary number of sawdust bags, and their adversaries have been compelled to permit the boys of the verdant hue to decorate the roof as they desired.

Next in order comes the Soph-Frosh football game, which is the most important interclass event of the year. Practically every man in the two classes reports for practice, and the best possible teams are obtained. A 6 to 6 tie was the final score of the 1915 contest.

During the winter months, basketball reigns supreme. Teams are organized in all the classes, and many other organizations, and a double round of games scheduled. The Watt Shipp loving cup stands as the reward to the winner. Again the Freshman team scored a triumph over the irate upper classmen, and captured the coveted trophy.

To further track interests, a cross-country run of five miles is staged, in which many contestants are entered. A silver loving cup was presented to Rene Jackson '19, winner of last Fall's event.

A tennis tournament is usually held in the fall, but events crowded it out, and this year it came early in the Spring. Smith returned the champion of the men and Miss White of the ladies. These tournaments include practically all the tennis aspirants in the University, and the winners are easily champions of the school.

Women's gymnasium work has been indulged in to a marked extent. Regular classes have been held under the supervision of Coach Mathews. Class basketball teams have been organized and the co-eds have obtained a great deal of good from the physical training thus received. The asphalt courts make tennis attractive to the ladies and several especially good players have been developed.

The great interclass event on the spring athletic calendar is the track meet, participated in by all the classes of the University. The meet this year was held on April 29. Several extremely close races provided thrills for the spectators. The half mile relay captured by the Sophomores, and the 220-yard dash won by Small proved feature events of the day. Much promising material was disclosed, which insures track enthusiasts that they will see the judges hand many of the blue ribbons to Willamette's defenders.

Thru the work of Coach Mathews, the efforts to raise the physical standards of the students, are being furthered by President Doney and the faculty. Their ideals are being realized, in a noticeable measure, and many good results should follow in the wake of their efforts. Willamette is proud of the high rank of her intramural athletic activities.

CHAUTAUQUA

The Chautauqua in the West, as an institution, has shown a remarkable growth. Once only a by-word, Chautauqua is now on the tongues of all.

Five years ago, six successful Chautauquas were in operation on the Pacific Coast and this summer over two hundred communities will have held successful assemblies.

The growth is a remarkable one. It not only indicates the trend of public thought, but it indicates a new era of public spiritedness now dawning on the Pacific Coast.

Two hundred Chautauquas on the Pacific Coast are under the direct management of the Ellison-White Chautauqua System. Many of them are in Oregon.

If your community is without the Chautauqua, an effort should be made to secure one. You will have one some day. In the words of a famous grist mill, "Eventually—Why not now?"

There Will Come a Time

THE man who goes into the market and picks up the bargains, is the man with cash in his hand, and credit which his cash creates.

Q. Who hasn't felt the pang of disappointment that comes of seeing something he wants badly pass for a song to another who had the cash to take the bargain?

A. Well, what's the lesson?

A. There will come a time to you and to me when a sum of cash in hand and the credit power which it brings will open the way to profitable undertakings.

A. And we need not mourn our lot and say "it's not for me," because we can have at the Savings Bank the means of gathering together the little sums, perhaps now wasted, and thus provide against the day of opportunity.

A. Build a cash reserve at this bank, so that you can have in reach the things which money commands.

Get the Habit

No matter what you buy, learn to go where you will get quality. Your athletic goods should be of a higher standard than anything else you buy—you put them to harder service and rougher usage.

Learn to buy the best—you will find it the most economical in the end.

Go where they sell the best, it will save you time and trouble.

College of Law

TRIBUTE OF THE SUPREME COURT OF THE STATE OF OREGON TO THE LAW DEPARTMENT OF THE WILLAMETTE UNIVERSITY.

Extracts from a letter written by the Supreme Court of Oregon, to the President of the University, bearing date of December the 29th, 1913:

In our examination of applicants for admission to practice law in Oregon, we have always found the graduates of the Willamette Law School as fully and well prepared as the graduates from any of the Law Schools, including the leading colleges of the United States; and the graduates of the Willamette Law School have repeatedly taken first honors in such examinations. We have also observed that many of the Alumni of the Willamette Law School have taken high rank in the practice of their profession, and are among the prominent and useful citizens of the Pacific Northwest, thus, reflecting credit not only on the Law School, but on the Willamette University, which they regard as their alma mater.

The College of Law has several vital advantages. It is located in the capital city where the Supreme Court is almost constantly in session. The Law Department has exceptional facilities in its nearness to the State Library, containing more than thirty thousand volumes to which the law students have access.

The home of the Law School is in Science Hall, on the college campus. Law students have the opportunity of engaging in the various student enterprises and activities, and do in fact take a prominent place in the student affairs.

REQUIREMENTS FOR ADMISSION

Applicants for admission to the freshman year must be at least eighteen years of age and must furnish certificates of good moral character. Graduates of high schools maintaining a standard four-year course of study, or educational institutions whose course is equivalent to such high school course, are admitted without examination, other applicants are required to pass satisfactory examination in the essential subjects of a four years' high school course; in special instances, persons whose educational qualifications are deficient may have the opportunity of making the necessary grades in the College of Liberal Arts or the Academy during the time they are taking the Law Course.

FEES

Registration fee $5.00 per year; Tuition, $50.00 per year.

For additional information, address A. A. Hall, Secretary of Law Faculty.
