

ASWU Dance and Picnic

The last student body dance of the year is to be held next Friday night in the gymnasium, with Bill DeSousa's orchestra furnishing the live for the hepcats. Mary Head is in general charge.

Climaxing the year's program of student body social activity, the annual all-school picnic is scheduled for Saturday, May 24, with Marge Waters, incoming social chairman, in charge of arrangements. Buses will provide transportation to the picnic.

These events will take the place of the recreational weekend, originally scheduled for these dates. "Lack of funds forced the abandonment of plans for the recreational weekend," Mary Head, ASWU social chairman, said this week.

Sparks' Trip

Lestle Sparks, associate professor of physical education, this week commented on the widespread evidence of defense activity which he observed on a three weeks' trip to the Atlantic coast, from which he returned last Friday.

The purpose of his trip was to attend the national convention of the American Association for Health, Physical Education and Recreation in Atlantic City.

Traveling east by train, Professor Sparks stopped in Spokane to attend a few sessions of the Inland Empire Teachers' association, where he acted as chairman of the health section.

"Detroit is an outstanding example of the defense industry boom," Sparks commented. "While in Detroit, he witnessed the first public demonstration of the army's new 2,800 ton tank."

From Michigan, Professor Sparks went on to the six-day convention, attended by 3500 delegates. As a member of the legislative body he aided in completing reorganization plans for the association. He was also made a member of the national committee on health education terminology.

Other than the legislative council, Professor Sparks' special interest lay in the teacher education sections. One of the best attended section sessions, according to Professor Sparks, was the tennis clinic featuring Alice Marble and Don Budge. Outstanding speaker in the general sessions was Will Durant, modern philosopher.

Noticeably outstanding to Professor Sparks during his two days in Washington, D. C., was the acute housing problem, caused by the huge governmental defense expansion, which daily brings 100 new workers into the city. While in Washington, Professor Sparks visited several Willamette alumni.

Reluctant to attempt any analysis of public opinion, Professor Sparks finally ventured a few observations. "The Midwest is slowest to accept national defense policies and the East is most outspoken in criticism of the present administration and is much more conscious of the war and our part in it," he reported. He commented on the superiority of the West in working and living conditions.

Annual Flunk Days

Calm descended upon the hallowed halls of old Willamette Wednesday and Thursday as juniors and seniors observed their respective flunk days by picnicking at the beach.

Contributing to the general serenity were sleepy-eyed freshmen and sophomores exhausted by their night's work of attempting to prevent the upper class holiday. It was conjectured that there were sleepy ones among the juniors Wednesday, for some eight carloads were involved in "rescuing" junior prey "Swede" from excited sophomore mobs.

Both classes chose Three Rox as picnic grounds. Committees for the juniors were headed by Betty Keller and Art Franz; for the seniors by Maxine Crabtree, Dick Jewett and Lynn Zimmerman.

Sorority houses anticipated more trouble than actually occurred. Two houses banded together for mutual protection; some coeds stayed awake all night expecting the worst. But disappointment and disillusionment! Sophomores are said to have decided that a day without the juniors would be a thoroughly peaceful one and that they really didn't care whether the upperclassmen ever came back.

Prexies' Journey

Greeted in "sunny California" by drenching rains, Bill Thomas and Ralph May, outgoing and incoming ASWU presidents, stuck it out to be rewarded by good weather and a wonderful time during their eight day trip to Southern California for the Pacific Students Presidents' association convention.

Thomas emphasized the decided California mist in his short talk before the Los Angeles breakfast club, when he mentioned that they had not yet seen Los Angeles, since the glass-bottomed boats would not be available until time for the trip to Catalina Island, where the convention was held.

The convention held its first sessions at Occidental College, later adjourning to Catalina Island for the final meetings. Sessions were held in the casino, largest example of circular architecture in the world.

Outstanding recreational highlights of the convention were the two-hour boat trip to Catalina, biking on the island, speed-boating in Avalon Bay, a dinner dance with guest hostesses from Los Angeles colleges, and a seaplane trip back to the mainland.

Both May and Thomas agreed that much was gained from discussion of campus problems and contact with other student leaders.

RES IPSA LOQUITUR

Notes from the College of Law—by VERNE McCALEM

Formal acceptance and dedication proceedings for the new mural to decorate the presently bare entrance to the Law School building will be held during graduation week in June. On behalf of the faculty, Dean George McLeod will accept the painting for the school; the unveiling will be conducted under the direction of Student Body President Sol Stern.

The central theme of the picture will present a life-size portrait of the only law school participant in the May Day festivities ever to be accorded the distinction of being placed on the "All Marypole." The Law School is indebted, and wishes to express its thanks

Dr. Peck's Book Comes Off Press

Work on Flora of Oregon Based on 32 Years of Collection

Willamette's Dr. Morton Peck revealed yesterday that his book on the flora of Oregon is now available to the public. Dr. Peck received his first copy May 1, but it is only this week that Binford-Mort, Portland publishers, announced the book ready for general distribution.

Dr. Peck's work is based upon a period of 32 years of collection and classification of specimens. Actual writing consumed the last 13 years, when Dr. Peck was busy teaching classes as well.

Contents Described

The volume, dedicated to Mrs. Peck, contains in its 866 pages an introductory discussion of plant regions or areas, complete descriptions of 3203 species (common names appended), and a glossary with reference to illustrative diagrams of plant parts. This glossary, combined with the key to all the higher plants of Oregon, furnishes a guide book for even the lay botanist.

Unusual feature of the book is a frontpiece of Dr. Helen Gilkey, botanist professor at Oregon State college. The cut, presented by the WU class of '14, displays Hall's violets, a rare western flower discovered in 1870 on the Willamette campus.

Delores Netz, Willamette junior of Salem, drew the cover design of Oregon grape.

Hale Tabor Elected Head Of New Board

The newly created Publications board elected Hale Tabor, editor of the Collegian for the 1941-42 school year, as its permanent chairman at its first meeting Thursday morning. Chloe Anderson, secretary of the student body was appointed secretary of the board.

Discussions concerning the organization of the publication manager's department, budgets for next year, and the letting of contracts took place. A meeting was set for next Wednesday to decide more definitely on publications' policies and the above problems.

Laughlin Gets Scholarships

Offers of a fellowship in sociology at Haverford college and a scholarship in anthropology at Harvard were made to William Laughlin, president of the senior class.

Laughlin accepted the fellowship from Haverford and expects to receive his M. A. degree there next year. He will also be allowed to study anthropology at Bryn Mawr and the University of Pennsylvania.

Laughlin is senior scholar in sociology, a member of Blue Key, Pi Gamma Mu and the Society for American Archeology.

His brother, John Laughlin, 40, will continue his work at Haverford college next year.

Cap and Gown Adds Members

New members of Cap and Gown, woman's service honorary, were formally installed May 8 at a public pledge service in chapel. The neophytes were Chloe Anderson, Esther Gunesdal, Elizabeth Hamilton, Barbara Hollingworth and Dorothy Moore.

Dr. Erma Gordon, international representative Oregon chapter of the American Association of University Women, was the principal speaker. Dean Olive M. Dahl also added a few words.

The pledges and the speaker were afterward entertained at a luncheon at Ullman's.

Beta Chi In Chapel Today

Beta Chi scheduled playlet, "Little Red Riding Hood," under the direction of Dorothy Baldwin, for student body chapel today.

The Alpha Phi Alpha's program in chapel last Friday featured musical numbers and a musically illustrated three bears story.

Next Friday's program will be in the form of an installation of new ASWU officers, combined with a presentation of athletic

... of a scholarship for summer drama study is HELEN NEWLAND.

Newland Wins Drama School Scholarship

Willamette Junior to Study With Plymouth Drama Festival

Helen Newland, junior from Portland, plans to leave in June for Plymouth, Mass., to study with the Plymouth Drama Festival for which she received a $150 scholarship. She was one of 40 to be accepted from 1000 applicants for the scholarship. The recommendations of Mrs. Genevieve Oppen and Bishop Bruce Baxter were an important factor in placing her among the four or five ever to be chosen from Oregon.

The course lasts for six weeks and includes the production of a new play each week with Broadway stage successes in the repertoire. The Festival which this year celebrates its 35th anniversary is the only summer colony of its type to place students directly in stock companies.

Miss Newland is an English and drama major who has appeared in many major dramatic productions on the campus, including "Taming of the Shrew," "Little Brown Jug," and "Comedy of Errors." She has been active in forensics and radio drama as well. This year she was pledged by Theta Alpha Phi, national dramatic honorary fraternity.

Education Leaders to Teach At WU Summer Session

By MARY JO GEISER

Two visiting lecturers, distinguished alumni of Willamette university, and leaders in educational circles of the state, will offer courses in the department of education at the University summer session beginning June 9, according to Dr. William C. Jones, director of the summer session.

Frank B. Bennett, superintendent of Salem schools, will teach a course in the administration of smaller schools. Besides having superintended five schools, Westport, Prairie City, Tillamook, Albany and Salem, Bennett is a member of the board of trustees of the Oregon State Teachers association and chairman of the advisory committee on elementary teacher education.

Bain Teaches Curriculum

A course in the secondary school curriculum is to be taught by Dr. Verne D. Bain, assistant state superintendent of public instruction in charge of elementary schools and curriculum.

"Before coming to his present post Dr. Bain was superintendent at Springfield and Woodburn and a member of the faculty of Southern Oregon College of Education. He is also secretary of the Oregon State Teachers association committee on curriculum.

Other Courses Offered

Regular members of the Willamette faculty will offer additional courses in education, administration of community recreation, the high school newspaper, counseling and guidance, problems in health education and physical education and recreation.

"An additional course in chemistry, six hour beginner's, will be given by Dr. Kenneth McLeod of the chemistry department," Dr. Jones said.

Seabeck Meeting Slated June 14-22

The annual Seabeck conference hopes to answer through its interesting seminars and discussion groups to be held during the week of June 14-22 on Puget Sound the question, "Can We Build a Christian Democracy?"

Seabeck is sponsored jointly by the Pacific Northwest Student YMCA-YWCA regional council, the co-chairmen of which are Miss Mary Lou Sander and Mr. Don Bishop of the University of Washington. As part of the faculty this year the council has secured Rev. James Myers, industrial secretary of the Federal Council of Churches, and of S. Ralph Harlow who is professor of religion and social ethics at Smith college, Northampton, Massachusetts.

There will be morning and afternoon seminars, subject for which will vary from current problems to classes in friendship, courtship and marriage, and recreational activities—swimming, hiking and boating.

Many former Willamette YM and YW members have taken active parts in these annual conferences.

Spec Keene's Bearcat baseballers added game number 12 to their victory string when they roughshod over the OCE Wolves by a 10 to 1 count on the Monmouth diamond yesterday afternoon.

Hustling Hal McAbee, permitting but six safe blows and striking out nine, was never in serious trouble during the contest. The one OCE run was an unearned tally coming in the second frame as a result of a walk, the only pass issued by McAbee, and a subsequent infield error which would have retired the side.

Classes in Shop Train for Jobs in Defense Industries

By WINSTON H. TAYLOR

Growing out of the defense program, positions for trained workers have become available to Willamette university students through courses given in the Salem high school shops. Some from Willamette have already taken the work and been employed.

Aviation sheet metal classes started in Salem last summer took an upturn in January when more than 50 trainees were called to assembly jobs with Boeing aircraft factory. Again in April, Lockheed officials administered their personnel tests and 99 youths from the Salem area were immediately employed.

Haugeberg-Gutekunst Employed

Among those who have taken the course are Victor Haugeberg, '40, employed for several months at the Douglas plant in California; George Gutekunst, '41, who reported to work Monday with Lockheed at Burbank; Bill Kilkenny, James Goodsell and James Selton.

Four Pacific coast aircraft manufacturers have inquired about the training here, from which placement is made through the Salem office of the state employment service. Because demand for trained workers has increased greatly, numerous jobs are available when the competent person has been found.

New Groups to Start

About 100 are now enrolled in the course, running in four daily shifts at the high school. Fifty more of NYA age are at Chermawa. New groups are to start every two weeks, according to present plans. An extra shift may also be added.

The class takes six hours a day, five days a week, for approximately 12 weeks. Where possible, part-time employment is arranged for the trainee to defray living expenses.

Entrance to the class is secured only through the Salem office of the state employment service, on Ferry street one block from the campus.

Faculty Vote Recommends BS Degree

English-Drama, Social Science-Journalism, Speech-Drama Added

Addition of three new majors to the curriculum and a recommendation that the board of trustees grant the university the power to confer Bachelor of Science degrees was voted by the Willamette faculty late last week. English-drama, speech-drama and social-science-journalism are the new fields of study accepted by the group.

The new majors will not call for a great change in the courses now presented, it was indicated, but will call for a rearranging of the required courses of study.

New major professors will be Murco Ringalda and a social science head for social science-journalism; Dr. Helen Pearce and Mrs. Genevieve Oppen, English-drama; and Dr. Herbert Rahne and Mrs. Oppen for the speech-drama course.

The suggested BS degrees would be in the fields of chemistry and biology.

Hours required in the English-drama and speech-drama majors will be adapted to the individual needs of the student by the faculty of the departments concerned.

In the social science-journalism major 12 hours of journalism, 12 of literature and 36 of social science will be required.

ASWU Recreation

One of Prof. Les Sparks' favorite subjects is the need for a program of physical activity to balance the study activity of the college student. Too often, he says, the student spends so much time in satisfying his passion for knowledge that he neglects his physical development.

To provide some healthful outdoor activity as well as to give opportunity for student relations in other than campus class rooms, an all-student overnight camp was planned for next weekend. The student body social chairman and the physical education department cooperated in outlining two days of play, entertainment, relaxation. The campus social committee gave its consent to the project.

Careful study this week of social funds available, however, necessitated abandoning the project. A per capita tax slightly higher than the maximum set by the social committee would have been essential to finance the camp.

For this spring, then, the recreational weekend plan is definitely out of the picture. Instead, May 23 and 24 will be devoted to an all-student dance on the campus Friday night and picnic at Silver Creek Saturday.

We may hope that the idea worked out by this year's social chairman may be appropriated next spring, for it's a good idea. The ice once broken, arrangements may perhaps be completed satisfactorily another year.

FLEETING FACTS . . .

Willamette is a progressive, democratic, active university. Salem is a progressive, democratic, active town. The Willamette valley is full of hospitable, friendly people. The Willamette valley is broad and flat and beautiful, and most of it is outdoors. That's a fact.

Everybody knows what the American Youth Hostel Association is. It has headquarters in Massachusetts, and it used to sponsor trips abroad. Well, the government is going to take that over pretty soon, on a larger scale. But the Hostel association is coming close to home now. Several hostel routes have been established on the west coast, including a circuit from Eugene to the coast. A feeble attempt was made to establish routes from Salem with no results. Everybody said, yes that was a wonderful idea and why didn't somebody do something about it? And nobody did.

I think it was in 1939 that Miss

Thorns and Pussy Willows

By ELIZABETH HAMILTON

The other morning, just as it was getting light, I awakened. My watch admitted that it was only 4:13. I gazed out at a Lombardy poplar tree. Not a branch of it was stirring, but every particular leaf was in mad, dervish motion.

I looked along the beds of the porch at the sleeping faces there. Calm, emotionless, they expressed no prejudice, no hatred for anyone. Were it not for the poplar tree, I would have been unable at that moment to believe that blind fury could exist, stirring apparently thoughtful citizens to insane activity.

On the shoulders of this musing rode in a remembrance of lines from Marquand's "The Late George Apley." Apley was a solid patriot in the last war, unable to go overseas but active at home on innumerable committees and ever busy with little "thoughts."

"To any rightly thinking person there can be no compromise between wrong and right. Germany is wrong and the Allies are right. The devastation of Belgium and the atrocities of the invading horde of barbarians are an outrage to civilized mankind."

Later he adds: "I regret that there is also a committee raising a fund for milk for German babies."

Mr. Apley's masterpiece of war-thinking is this: "I for one am very sorry that any tacit approval is given en Germany by employing a German as director of our symphony orchestra. It may be true that the man is an artist, if any German can be an artist, which I very much doubt, but any sympathy with him is only a compromise with justice."

The reference to symphonic music reminded me of a remark by Deems Taylor one Sunday defending (it has even now become necessary for a defense) the continued performance of works by Wagner.

"Bigotry, hatred, stupidity, intolerance—these are the fifth columnists we must fight today, no matter what language they speak or what flag they wave."

That statement almost comforted me until I returned to a realization of an old maxim, recognized by everyone and repeated pithily to me by a campus sage:

"It's not the truth that makes history, but what people believe."

And I am afraid of what people believe.

Today there is a definite trend among economic thinkers, especially among those would-be intellectuals upon our capitalist supported and maintained campus, to sponsor socialism. Their appeal is not to the thoughtful, judicious and calmly sane reasoning of their audience, but instead to the emotions, to play upon their sympathies, their hatreds, their class consciousness.

SAY IT HERE . . .

SAVE SOCIALISM FOR HITLER!

This appeal of socialism as against capitalism is based upon the very methods which brought Hitler to power and which maintain his nation of security-seeking, propaganda-fed people in their ruthlessly cruel war effort. If our intellectuals were true intellectuals, would they not attempt to avoid the waste of change, would they not see that their propaganda should be based upon an appeal to reason? Thus what they would set up would not of its emotional momentum be carried to an extreme, such as the socialism of Germany and the idealistic philosophy of Russian communism, wherein the more desirable end was lost because of brutal and intolerant means.

Fanatical Beliefs

These intellectuals have so hypnotized themselves into a state of fanatical belief in the benefits of socialism that they would allow Hitler to rule the world rather than let the present world rather than let the present American trend toward government control be slowed by supporting England in its heroic effort to stop world regimentation and a world wide OGPU of Gestapo, those two lovely benefits of state sponsored security and planned economy. They are canny enough to know that war effort requires efficiency and unity, two things that socialism and its evolution cannot withstand.

For socialism is not efficient nor can it be achieved where there is national unity. National unity opposes class consciousness

Huntley Finds "The Family" Really Enjoyable Best-Seller

(Ed. Note: Below is presented the book review which won first prize in the 1941 recreational reading contest, sponsored by Robinson Spencer.)

A REVIEW OF NINA FEDOROVA'S "THE FAMILY" By Gene Huntley

Neither the simple nor the sophisticated will, as with many best-sellers, find "The Family" just passably and momentarily interesting, but will discover it to be lastingly fresh, colorful, depictive—a really enjoyable book.

Some writers are introspective and delve into their souls, taking a delight in telling what they find there; others are perpetually wondering about the paradoxes of life, concocting and posing answers for the riddles of existence; and there are those who are master story tellers and ply their craft by weaving intricate plots, tangling and untangling; still others laugh or cry out, as the case may be, at the eternal foolishness of society.

Nina Fedorova does none of these things.

She does, rather, that which writers with more egotism could never do—she paints an objective, almost disinterested, picture of a Russian family in exile. Her canvas is vivid, multichromatic, inclusive, but always its main object is the family; the secondary object is the boarding house which mother manages; fading into the background progressively and gradually is war-torn China of 1937; beyond that is the outside world which we know exists, vaguely; and beyond that—infinity. The Family, which is the focal point of the picture, is as pulsatingly alive and real as a portrait by Rembrandt. Her characters are three dimensional rather than two.

The source of the book's interest is difficult to trace. It is caused by an amalgamation of characteristics. Probably outstanding among these characteristics is that one, and a difficult one for most writers, of presenting a clear and natural flow of conversation between the people of the book. Mrs. Fedorova does this—and more; we have that delightful mental experience that artfully arranged words playing upon the imagination can give—even the minutest expressions on the faces of the characters as they talk to one another become very real to us. And she does this without becoming grandiloquent or tiringly complicated.

Colorful Characters

There is practically no story to the book. It merely pictures an exiled Russian family making the barest living by running a boarding house in Tientsin. The boarding house is important; somewhat like Wuthering Heights or the House of the Seven Gables—it is the setting, the center of life in which the characters move. Through the portals of the boarding house come many fascinating people from different stations of life and varying parts of the globe. There is Mme. Miliza, the mystical and shabby Bessarabian fortune teller; Prof. Chernov, a Russian scientist ruined by his extreme idealism; Mrs. Parrish, an Englishwoman of past good breeding who gets drunk habitually; the cagy Chinese professor; Jimmy Bennet, an American youth who courts the daughter of the Family; and many others no less interesting.

The Family, the sun around which these other satellite characters revolve, consists of the central figure, Mother, who is wise, hard-working, lovable. Granny is always thinking of the good and prosperous days in Czarist Russia, but still manages to be pleasant, helpful, and practical. Lida, the daughter, is thoughtful and sensitive—and always patient. Two nephews—Peter, about 21, and Dima, a little fellow with a strong devotion for his bull dog—complete the Family.

Russian Individualist

The author is herself a Russian exile, lived in China, and now resides in Eugene, Oregon, where her husband is a professor. More of an observation than a criticism is the fact that she is not, as nearly as we can follow a generalization, typically Russian. She portrays the same misery and poverty that Dostoevski or Gorki captured and put into mood and feeling—but she does only that; portrays. There is no interpretation. She does not instill the Russian sorrow and tragedy; nor is she concerned, as are the classical Russians, with "raison d'etere." If you are pessimistic by nature, then the novel will cause you to feel pity and sorrow; if optimistic, you will find much that is good and joyous in their economically pinched lives. The picture is objective; your predisposed disposition will determine the interpretation.

Mrs. Fedorova strikes a half-hearted cord in the very last of her book when she diverges, in a paragraph of explanation, from the consistent extrinsic attitude dominant in the novel, to make an analogy between the Family and all humanity—"id est," we are all one big, happy family. . . . quarreling now and fighting and killing each other, and yet fundamentally one family of human beings. . . . If Nina Fedorova's purpose in writing her book was to epitomize and picture all humanity through one family, then she failed—and failed utterly.

Because, you see, she succeeded in giving us only a delicately written, finely delineated, and highly interesting novel.

Chapter 8 of "To Will or Not to Will" by Joseph E. Bright, cites examples showing that some persons choose singular objects on which to inscribe their last wills. The choice example is the one inscribed on the back of a beautiful young lady. A wealthy individual, shipwrecked along with companions on a desert island, with no writing materials available, found a sailor who volunteered to tattoo the will on the back of a young woman companion to which the testator duly made his mark.

Coast Nature Life Studied by Classes

Plant and animal life of the Oregon coast came in for scrutiny this week as the biology and zoology classes took their annual field trips along the ocean side.

Twenty zoology students under the supervision of Prof. Cecil Monk and Bernice Orwig started Tuesday by going through the Marine Gardens near the Yaquina Head lighthouse at Newport and discussing the marine life noted therein. They had lunch at the Newport coast guard station, studied the fossils at Spencer creek and then visited the aquarium at Depoe bay.

Dr. and Mrs. Morton E. Peck and the plant biology class left Salem at 5:30 a. m. yesterday, were to study the plant life at Heeeta Head and other points along the coast, and will return to Salem this afternoon. Ruth Grant, Delores Metz, Barbara Pinney, Dick Jewett, Everett Wilcox and Paul Wedel compose the group.

Highlight of the zoology group tour through the Depoe bay aquarium was the spectacle of an octopus munching a snack of fresh crab. After watching that the class took an excursion boat trip out into deep water. Jim Burgess did not enjoy the trip as much as he might have for he developed a case of seasickness, but the rest of the group were more fortunate.

The Medicine Dropper

Suggestions from Dr. Ralph Furoine By Keith and Kent Markee

Willamette university's great Emancipator of Flesh, "Slim" McWain, has proved to himself and the world in general that a determined man can move mountains (of flesh).

Genial Wes lost 80 pounds of—well, let's say superfluous McWain—in 2 months, 3 days, 4 hours, and 23 minutes. Where did it all come from? The waist, of course. Yes, the circumference of the popular after-dinner speaker dropped off 12 inches.

"It's all the result of my little green bottle of white pills, and that awful diet sheet," said Wes. He could eat only lean meats, 5 per cent vegetables (string beans instead of carrots), and 10 per cent fruits (pineapple instead of peaches). He had to drink a quart of water every day but could have no Coca Colas, pastries, desserts or between-meal snacks.

The Medicine Dropper here-with offers this illustrious example of medical achievement which has been accomplished in our very midst by one of our own group.

Those of us who fight avoirdupois take heart and face our task anew!

LETTERS to the Editor

Here is a slight matter I should like to call to the attention of the students. You are giving a dinner and, naturally wishing to know how many guests to expect, you put an RSVP on the invitation. The day before the dinner you are dismayed to find that only half of them have responded. The night of the banquet you may have from 20 to 90 percent of the invited guests.

That is the usual percentage at Willamette—I know! I have been YW chairman of faculty

COLLEGIAN YESTER YEARS

8 Years Ago May 18, 1933

Feminine newcomers to the campus next fall will not have to be misdirected by any and all students but will be able to have the advice and aid of girls familiar with the campus. Twenty girls, five from each sorority and five independents, have been chosen because of qualifications of scholarship and personality to act as friends and advisors. They are to be called Big Sisters.

Four members of this year's senior class have already obtained teaching positions for next year. Among them is Walt Erickson, to be athletic advisor at Camas, Wash.

LETTERS to the Editor

firesides this year. While members of my committee and myself have greatly enjoyed the contacts, we have been continually exasperated at the failure of students to act upon the RSVP.

There seems to be no lack of interest in the firesides—either it is carelessness or ignorance of the meaning of RSVP. This simple request is not Emily Post at her most confusing, but an attempt at convenient planning. Out of courtesy to the hostess, such an invitation demands a response. Yet there is a great deal of inconsiderateness among Willamette students. From reports, carelessness in such matters may be assumed to be a trend, but that thought lends little consolation to the hostess.

Invitations will be out soon for the senior reception. I will wager that half of the seniors will fail to respond, and of course the faculty members who manage the affair must pretend to overlook it!

Struttin' in Style

By BETTY KELLER

The last weekend was certainly a gala one, with five big dances, giving all the girls a chance to wear their spring formals for the last time before packing them away in their trunks.

All dances were formal except that of the Delta Phis. A new dress at this dance was Dorothy Este's black sheer. It had a flared skirt, the fullness accented by lines of cording. Its V neckline was also trimmed with a white organdy collar edged with pleating and fastened in front with a small black ribbon bow.

Gwen Griffith's L'Aigon dress was of a spun rayon-like material—navy white figures on a light blue background. Its skirt was box-pleated all around and the top of the dress was the shirt waist style, so becoming to Gwen's jovial personality.

Betty Sackett worked hard all Saturday to finish her navy faille dress, featuring a white, square eyelet-embroidered yoke set in with organdy ruching. The waist fastened down the front with round white pearl buttons, as did the wide cuffs on the three-quarter length sleeves.

At the Alpha Phi Alpha formal dance, Mary Barker was dressed in a white crepe gown, which had a square net yoke, and three-quarter length sleeves. For color contrast, Mary added a blue locket and bracelet.

Craoilyn Brown's pink net dress was outstanding for the material, soft cording formed patterns on the net and gave the material weight. It had long sleeves, a round neckline which caught in a gathered waist, and a wide fitted girde which released fullness to the waist and skirt.

Luree Norris was very attractive in her jersey dress Saturday night. It had a white full skirt with a red and green print top with a low V neckline and tailored lapels. A wide red and green shirred girde joined the waist to the skirt.

Ruth Jones wore a white one-piece dress. The skirt had a white background with a red and green palm tree print, with a red and green jersey sash tied in a bow at the back. Aileen LaRaut's pink taffeta dress was made with a full gored skirt and bustle effect at the back which was accentuated by her fitted jacket, trimmed with pink braid.

Many gala colors frolicked at the Beta Chi's spring formal at the Marion hotel. Jean Moore wore yellow, a full taffeta skirt and a shirtwaist chiffon top. The long, full sleeves and collar were edged with pleating.

Lois Phillips' white dotted swiss dress splashed with large rose and blue flowers was very formal, having straps over the shoulders and a low V back. The fitted bodice came to a V in front where it joined a full gathered skirt.

Frances Harris' darkness was set off by her formal white moire dress made with halter neckline, a white gardenia and red carnations provided contrasting color.

Gym Decked In Streamers For Prom

Entering through a pink curtained doorway, guests at the junior-senior prom Friday night were greeted by purple spot lights playing upon a gay nineties scene.

Paul Seibert and his orchestra played for dancing. Betty Keller was general chairman of the affair, assisted by Maxine Holt and Cliff Stewart.

Patrons and patronesses were Dean and Mrs. D. H. Schulze, Prof. and Mrs. Robert Wilson and Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Hicks.

Hanauska and Toolson Blank Pacific 3-0, 2-0 Give 'Cats Series Lead

Hanauska Wins Three-Hitter
With Triple; Daggett's Homer
Aids Toolson to Five-Hit Win

Willamette U's pennant bound diamond machine paved the way for its capture of the western division northwest conference title with two business-like 3-0, 2-0 victories over the Pacific Badgers on slippery Sweetland field May 7.

Freshmen Bill Hanauska and Earl Toolson permitted only eight scattered blows while administering the double whitewashing that moved "Spec" Keene's crew within one game of the Western division crown.

Keeping three Badger blows widely spaced, Hanauska won his own ball game with a triple in the fifth inning to send home Neil Owens with the winning run. Jimmy Robertson's double in the sixth brought across Cameron and Walker with Willamette's other two tallies.

Earl Toolson hurled an equally excellent masterpiece in the full nine-inning second game, keeping five hits scattered over as many innings, while striking out eight. Bobby Daggett smacked a line drive homer into left field to give Toolson a 1-0 advantage in the fifth frame, and Gene Stewart followed the little second baseman across the plate thanks to some fancy cake-walking underneath two successive flies by centerfielder Styler.

First baseman Jack Richards with three singles in eight trips, and outfielder George Hochstetler, with two-for-five, topped the hit parade. Owens and Hochstetler both came up with sparkling catches afield.

The absence of Bunny Bennett, No. 1 player on the Bearcat team, and an unfamiliar course proved serious handicaps to the WU strokers.

Shutout Over Pilots
1st Frame Wins Game

Hurling flawless ball lefty Jack Richards pitched the Willamette Bearcats to a 4 to 0 shutout over Portland university in a swiftly played game at Waters park Wednesday afternoon. Richards' six-hit triumph gave Spec's warriors the annual Pilot series, three games to none.

While lefty Jack was whiffing nine of the opposition, walking none and letting only two men reach second base, his teammates were reaching Johnny Pesky for three runs in the initial frame and one in the fifth.

Richards himself was responsible for all the scoring in the big first inning; driving in Stewart and Hochstetler who had singled ahead of him and scoring a moment later on Robertson's blow the left field. Stewart spiked the plate again in the fifth, when he doubled to left and scored on Hochstetler's single to the same field.

Big guns of the Bearcat batting attack were Hochstetler with two for three, and Stewart and Robertson with two hits in four trips. Hardest blow of the game was Ragsdale's slashing double down the third base line in the seventh.

Keenmen Win Twelfth

Yesterday's victory over the Oregon College of Education nine marked the 12th win in 17 games for Spec Keene's Bearcat baseballers.

Two of Willamette's losses were against the professional Salem Senator club of the Western International league, and two more were at the hands of Oregon and Oregon State, in first and second place respectively in the northern division loop of the Coast conference.

The Bearcats hold wins over the Salem Senators, shutouts of the University of Oregon, and the state penitentiary Greys, and three straight victories from Portland university, besides five wins in six conference games.

Thinclads 'MURAL SLANTS

By Paul Sheldon

It's the Alpha Psi A's and the Law school in the finals of the playoff for the championship of the 'mural softball league. These two teams will meet in a best two out of three series.

The Emanons, the other team in the playoff, was eliminated this week by losing to both the Psi's and the Barristers. It was previously announced that the Kappas would also be included in the playoff, but it was then later decided that only three teams would participate.

The Emanons, although eliminated, didn't go down without a struggle, and engaged the would-be lawyers in by far the best game of this year's league play. The final score was 4 to 3 in favor of the Law school, but the Emanons had scored one run and had the bases crammed in the last frame when Ted Ogdahl made the final out. The athletes were only able to touch DeSully, Law school chucker, for three safeties, while the lawyers collected but five bingles off of Jacobsen, who was on the mound for the Emanons.

In the other playoff game, the Emanons dropped another close one to the Alpha Psi's, 5 to 3. French, Psi hurler, allowed the Emanons but five well scattered blows, and after the first frame, was never in trouble. The Psi's collected six safeties off of Jacobsen, Emanon pitcher.

This just about winds up the firing on the softball front for this week. Next week, we will print the official all-star teams, selected by the umpires and the intramural manager, Maury Kreutz.

The batting averages of the ten leading hitters are as follows, also the final standings.

| Team                 | AB | H  | Pct. |
|----------------------|----|----|------|
| Bennett, Emanons     | 14 | 8  | .571 |
| Desjardin, Sigs      | 20 | 10 | .500 |
| Barbour, Emanons     | 20 | 10 | .500 |

| Lieser, Campus Y     | 15 | 7  | .466 |
| Parker, Emanons      | 15 | 7  | .466 |
| Quesseth, Law School | 13 | 6  | .461 |
| Fravel, Alpha Psi A  | 11 | 5  | .454 |

Toolson Has Most Strikeouts

Besides leading in the victory column, Toolson has 44 whiffings to his credit to take honors in that department.

Though Hanauska has but two victories and one loss to his name he is the workhorse of the club in the total innings pitched, 43½.

Richards with three wins against two defeats has walked but eight men in 40 innings, an average of only two per game. Walden and McAbee each have one victory and no losses.

How they're hurling:

|          | IP | ER | HRF | SO | BB |
|----------|----|----|-----|----|----|
| Toolson  | 38 | 9  | 22  | 44 | 19 |

Bearcats Swat Portland 9-6 Second Time

Pilots Nicked
For 14 Hits; Dad Has Perfect Day at Plate

Willamette university's potent stickers hammered two Portland U hurlers for 14 hits and a 9 to 6 victory at Water's Park Saturday afternoon, to take a commanding two game lead in their annual series with the Pilots.

Spec's clubbers showed little respect for Frank Maloney, the heralded footballer, slapping him off the mound with only one away in the initial inning. Bespectacled Dick Pesky, his successor, fared little better though he managed to last the remainder of the route.

Big Bill Walden, number four man on Keene's mound corps, starting his first collegiate game, held the Portland club to two singles until he retired in favor of Hanauska in the fifth, after two one-basers and a mental error by the 'Cat infield registered a run and filled the sacks with Pilots.

After tallying five times in the big first inning Willamette showed across one in the second and third and spiked the plate twice more in the fifth.

Family cares failed to burden "Dad" Walker, who had a perfect day at bat, getting four safeties in as many trips, scoring three runs. Robertson and Richards each had two for four. Portland..... 6 0 3
Willamette..... 9 14 2
Maloney, Pesky (1) and Shaw; Walden, Hanauska (5) and Cameron.

WU Linksmen Best Pacific

Paced by the veteran Bunny Bennett, Willamette University's golfing fraternity made an auspicious 1941 inter-collegiate links debut last Friday by posting a 6½ to 5½ victory over the strong Pacific Badgers on the Salem course.

Though Bennett was the only member of the Bearcat four to hang up a win, his two stroke margin over Dick Osburn was enough to insure victory for the locals. Ties annexed by Beardsley and Reynolds helped the WU cause.

Willamette's Buddy Reynolds and Fred Berner of Pacific captured medalist honors with one-over-par 73's.

| W. U.         | P. U.      |

| Reynolds, 1½  | Berner, 1½ |
| Bennett, 2½   | Osburn, ½  |
| Beardsley, 1½ | Miller, 1½ |

The links team of Bennett, Reynolds, La Vatta and Frairola dropped a 4½-3½ decision to Pacific U. yesterday afternoon on the Forest Grove course.
