The search has begun . . . Each man, like the circuit rider, seeks tomorrow individually . . . In the duration of time, linking the moment of birth to the instant of death, every man, in his own way, strives to find himself and certain meaning for his life . . .

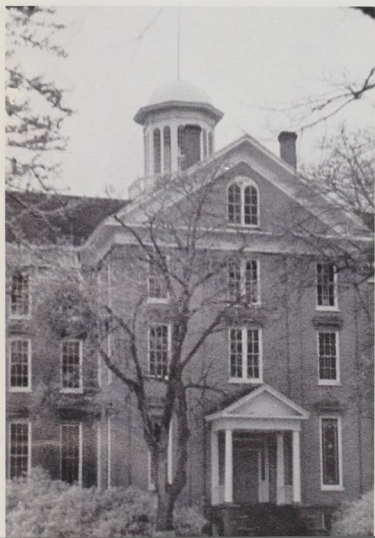

We seek enjoyment, companionship, love, and knowledge, hoping we shall find in each a greater understanding. Understanding does not always come, as futility is encountered equally with success . . . We suffer and are wise . . .

Our search is not without direction: our guideposts are our friends, and our compass is our education.

ADMINISTRATION 1966-1967

The pioneer Christian missionaries who met on the first day of February, 1842, at the old Mission House, were clear in their objectives and statements of purpose which included the following declarations: the necessity of a "permanent literary institution" is to provide the "intellectual and moral training for the present and prospective wants of the children and youth of Oregon." Now, one hundred and twenty-five years after Willamette's founding, no period intervening has had greater need or has depended more on the intelligent, educated man and woman of high moral principle than we do today. The challenge is greater than ever before because of the vast explosion in knowledge. Fortunately, Willamette has grown in resources and capacity to serve the present day. To us is entrusted the responsibility to maintain the moral stature and fiber; without which, the educated man is a menace rather than a blessing to society.

DR. G. HERBERT SMITH
President
Willamette University

CHARLES L. BESTOR
Dean, College of Music

As the communities of the frontiers began building there was a need to provide educational opportunities for the young people. A school system is necessary for perpetuating a stable society. Because of his more advanced education, Jason Lee was able to see the need for an education. Willamette University, however, has grown more than even he could have anticipated. The stabilizing elements of the society and of the school both grew to give each other what they needed in a changing world.

This continuous growth and existence provides stability for the student today. He knows that hundreds of people have come before him leaving a heritage. A school should not live with its heritage but by it, thereby providing more of a stimulus for building an educational program.

DR. BYRON DOENGES
Dean, College of Liberal Arts

As we examine what appeared to be the goals of the founding fathers one hundred and twenty-five years ago, we realize that just as a great artist can never put on paper all that he envisions neither could the founders of Willamette set forth all of their ideas and goals. It would be very difficult to fulfill these promises of yesterday. However, Willamette University can live with itself and serve its fellow man. Perhaps in doing this the University would be closest to following the goals of the Founding Fathers.

Student Senate, 1966-1967, was involved in controversy. Led by President Bill Alberger, the Senate attempted to solve various problems: housing, parking, and representation. It conducted various student opinion polls. While the President presided over the Senate, Ken Rice, First Vice-President, was in charge of co-ordinating the Rally Squad and scheduling all social functions on WU's campus. Denny Cole, Second Vice-President, took charge of conducting the various campus elections. Earlene Anderson, Secretary, kept minutes of the Senate meetings and distributed them to the campus. Carmy Mausten, Treasurer, kept tab of the ASWU financial status and devised a budget for the academic year.

COLLEGIAN

The Willamette Collegian is the campus weekly newspaper. Edited this past year by Jon Carder, the Collegian stirred up controversy while being the object of much criticism. It was an eventful year, characterized by late Tuesday and Wednesday night sessions in order to meet deadlines.

SCOTT FREUND
Editor, Wallulah

The Wallulah, the campus yearbook, was edited by Scott Freund. As a publication its purpose is to record the events of the past year. The 1967 book has many added new features, primarily color and captions for the professors. The Wallulah 1967 is the one hundred and twenty-fifth anniversary edition commemorating Willamette's founding.

FRESHMAN CAMP

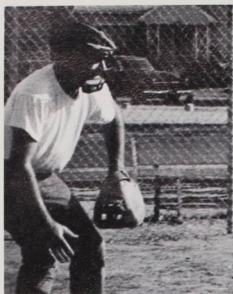

The tone of freshman camp was established with the theme, "The Hopeful Generation." On August 28-29 and thirty miles from anywhere, the frosh found a time between leaving home and embarking upon their college years to relax, meet new classmates, become acquainted with professors, learn about campus life in general, and to get an idea of what would be expected of them at Willamette. At the same time that the frosh were meeting their new classmates, they were coming in contact with traditions, slang, and atmosphere of our campus. Faculty members, student leaders, and discussion groups added intellectual stimulation.

The camp schedule allowed plenty of free time for the many different recreational activities. Words that would pop into a freshman's mind when thinking of camp: fun, new friends, talent show, boating, walks and hikes, football, swimming, cold feet at night, camp fire, singing, Trickle Falls, hemlock, hillside, Bear Creek, reveille . . .

ORIENTATION — REGISTRATION

The Climb

Orientation Week is planned to help orient the freshman to college life—getting used to the routine before classes begin. It also gives those not attending camp an opportunity to get to know others. The activities planned: registration, welcome teas in the living organizations, welcome assembly, reception at President Smith's home, a movie for relaxation, a picnic and softball game with the faculty, a dance, and church fellowship meetings.

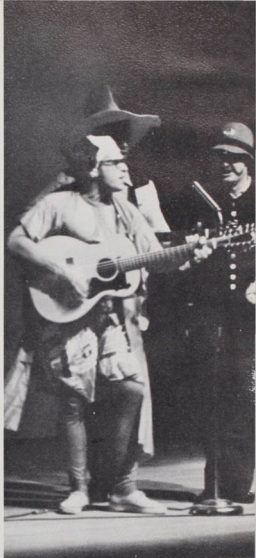

NOTEL MOTEL

SEPTEMBER 24, 1966

On September 23, 1966, the Willamette Collegian ran a full page advertisement for the Notel Motel. The ensuing reaction varied from extreme favor to disfavor. Some comment came from Charles Sprague, editor of the Oregon Statesman, the Oregonian, the Oregon Daily Emerald, the National Student Press Association, and scores of other college newspaper publications. The outcome for the Collegian, the Publication's Board, and the ad purchaser was an appearance before the Disciplinary Board. Regardless of one's position on the matter, all can agree that it began a year of discontent and student activism on the Willamette campus.

"Folk-pop" came to the Fine Arts Auditorium, October 18, in the form of the Serendipity Singers. Singing of "love, lies . . . flying festoons and other songs by Shel Silverstein," these eight singers, whose success began with "Don't Let the Rain Come Down," combined their many talents and versatility into an evening of original entertainment.

PARENT'S WEEKEND

One weekend a year, students make their parents special guests at Willamette. For Mom's and Dad's interest and entertainment, all campus activities are planned: Varsity Varieties and the atmosphere of a grand variety show, a Parent-Faculty coffee hour, a football game, and a pleasant reminder of the good ol' days and times past. Finally, a whole years' worth of serenades are sung in a couple of hours as all the campus sings. As a finale, two generations join in song, drawing the weekend to a close.

AN AMERICAN DREAM

On November 8, 1966 the American voter turned out in a record number to exercise his franchise in selecting those candidates he felt would best conduct the government. Being located on one side of State Street, Willamette was afforded the opportunity to view the political campaign between Tom McCall and Robert Straub in their fight for the Oregon governorship. Of national importance was the Senatorial race between Governor Mark Hatfield and Congressman Robert Duncan. Marked with controversy over the Vietnam conflict and fiscal responsibility the campaigns were hard fought and fairly won.

Without the aid of echo chambers and electronic doctoring, the naturalness of the Norman Luboff Choir manifested itself in the Fine Arts Auditorium. The maestro, whose group has begun within recent years to perform live, presented a program ranging from Bach to blues.

DR. ROGER HEYNES NOVEMBER 3, 1966

Speaking on the eve of the November elections, Dr. Roger Heynes, Chancellor of the University of California at Berkeley, commented on the need for dialogue between students and faculty, a problem which gained world-wide notoriety at Berkeley and influenced the political scene in California.

HOMECOMING '66

"The Good Times," theme of Willamette's 1966 Homecoming, proved to be fact. It stimulated a stiff competition among the living organizations for the display which best carried out the theme. "Good Times" were had by those who went to the Saturday afternoon football game as Queen Peggy received the laudits of the crowd as she was crowned by Pat Gundy, 1965 Homecoming Queen, and as the Bearcats put on a fourth quarter surge to overcome the Knights of Pacific Lutheran. Homecoming was closed by the dance at the Marion Hotel.

Campus Koinonia is an interdenominational campus organization promoting worship and discussion, with an interest to understand the Bible beyond the words themselves. Creativity and originality by the individual is encouraged. Churches in Salem provide dinner for the meetings after which there are discussion groups. Discussions have been led by professors, ministers, and students, depending on the topic.

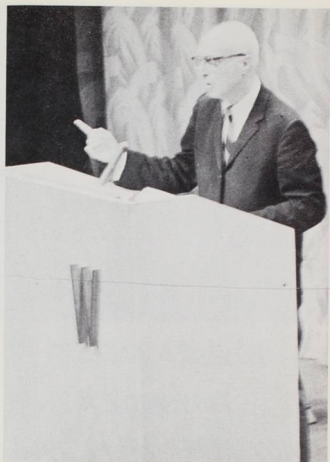

Christian Resources Week provides the campus with an opportunity to come together with a guest speaker who leads the convos and discussion groups for one week. Reverend Swiggum was this year's guest.

RICHARD ARMOUR NOVEMBER 29, 1966

Richard Armour, the famous American satirist, presented his views on many topics via his humorous style. His subjects ranged from his personal friendship with the social critic, Upton Sinclair, to daily living in the atomic age. It was a memorable visit that Willamette will not soon forget.

On November 18, Willamette was the scene of a significant event. The Drama department presented Edward Albee's "Tiny Alice." Combined into Albee's play are many themes, all of which are contemporary and controversial. "Tiny Alice" contains a thinly veiled criticism of organized religion, and questions the importance and relevance of social values. This social critique was fairly well produced and there were many fine performances, primarily those of Relan Colley, Jon Roberson, and Al Gould.

CONVO CONTROVERSY

The convocation seemed promising. Speaker of the Oregon House of Representatives, F. F. Montgomery, was to speak. The convo engendered a little more excitement than was planned. On January 31, 1967, a group of students protested the compulsory convocations requirement as set by the University. The main complaint, though, was the lack of quality of speakers. This particular convo marked the beginning of a campaign which resulted in a change of policy which would bring better speakers to Willamette.

The internationally renown New Christy Minstrels was one of the highlights of the Willamette "big name entertainment" venture of the 1966-67 season. Singing everything from ballads to country folk music, the creators of "Green, Green" and "Today" presented a fine, well-rounded concert with something for everyone.

"Braggart Warrior" treated the Fine Arts Auditorium audience with a superb comedy which was well produced and well acted. From the writings of the Roman dramatist, Plautus, this play portrays the story of an obnoxious warrior, who believes he can get anything he wants, and those people who try to foil his plans. It is the warrior's slave and the girl the braggart is trying to woo who best cross him. Plautus' psychological insight into the human character helped him establish a comic atmosphere.

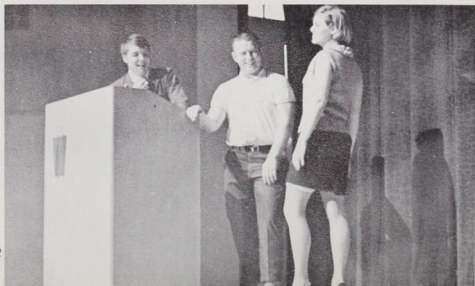

The production was enhanced by the simplicity of the set design which was to give the effect of universality to the play. Most of all, though, the portrayal of the warrior by Jon Roberson made the evening a sterling success.

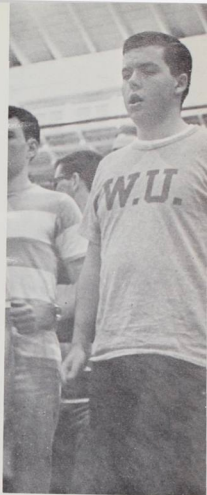

FRESHMAN GLEE '67

Challenge . . . Response . . .

Accepting the challenge of the freshman class president to compete in the fifty-ninth Freshman Glee, the three other class presidents kicked off what was to be one of the most memorable Gleees in Willamette's history. This challenge assembly was highlighted by the Senior cutups who satirized life on WU's campus, such as the Disciplinary Board, the cleaning ladies in the men's living organizations, and the number of books in the library.

To Work, Perfect . . . Unity . . .

Following the Challenge Assembly, all classes began practicing their song and march to be presented on March 4. The week, characterized by early risings and long, continuous practice, was arduous and demanding on the participant in the "living tradition" Glee.

Blue Monday brought tears and laughter to the Class of '67, which after three straight Glee victories, walked the Millstream. After the Blue Monday Assembly, in which many Glee bets were paid and the Seniors presented a review of their four years at WU, the Millstream brought an end to an eventful week. It was a week when everyone agonizingly tried to perfect note and step. It is competition . . . a job well done

MUSIC

Willamette is a music-minded school. Set against the backdrop of the College of Music, the University provides an opportunity for group and individual development in the pursuit of performance and appreciation. The Choir and Orchestra provided a Christmas Concert, and the Choir performed late in the spring after returning from the annual spring concert tour. The tour this last year took the Willamette performers to Northern California. The Band played at home football games and combined with the Orchestra to provide the music for the musical, "Finian's Rainbow."

There were many individual performances this last year. Recitals and Varsity Varieties provided the opportunity for the student to show off his musical talent.

The National Shakespeare Company highlighted the WU theatrical season with its production of the bard's comedy, "Much Ado About Nothing." The repertory company attempted with some success in presenting the much loved story of the lovers, Claudio and Hero, the matching of wits between Beatrice and Benedick, and the devilish scheming of Don John. The two foolish officers added to the comic situation.

Shakespeare's use of servants, masks, disguise, eavesdropping, and just plain stupidity help make the evening one the WU student will not long forget.

Spring Weekend, an annual event on the Willamette campus, affords the high school Senior to come to view all aspects of college life, social as well as academic. The potential freshmen live in the various living organizations and participate in the events of the weekend. The activities of the 1967 weekend included the crowning of the Spring Queen, Miss Vicki Baker, the Phi Delt smoker, a style show, dances, and serenades. Terry Hall was Spring Weekend Manager.

BLOOD DRIVE

On November 22 and March 30, the Willamette student body let blood. Through the auspices of the Red Cross almost 600 gave a pint of blood which is later used in disasters and other times of need. All the various living organizations compete to see which organization has the highest percentage of donors. The first semester winner was Delta Tau Delta and the second semester winner was Sigma Chi. The Blood Drive managers were Pat Armstrong and Rick Gates, fall semester, and Jim Phelps and Norm Thorpe, second semester.

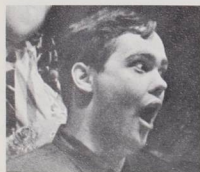

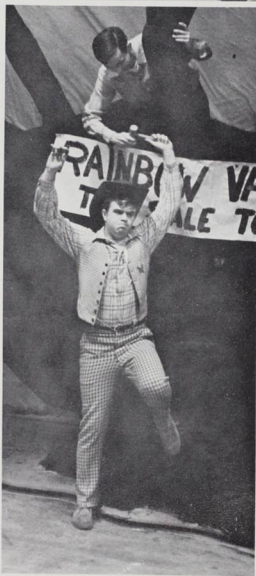

FINIAN'S RAINBOW
APRIL 18-19, 1967

E. Y. Harburg's and Burton Lane's musical, "Finian's Rainbow," set the Fine Arts Auditorium audience in rapture as Willamette University presented its second straight musical in as many years. Its production was the joint effort of the Drama, Music, and Physical Education Departments. Mr. Putnam directed the stage production, Mr. Brennan conducted the orchestra, and Miss Searles was in charge of choreography.

The play is set in the imaginary state of Mississippi where Finian and his daughter, Sharon, have come from their home in Ireland. The story concerns their seeking of fortune and how they succeed. The authors used various devices, a leprechaun, a pot of gold, a ruthless politician, to carry out the play's plot. The music, light and very gay, contains such familiar songs as "How are Things in Glocca Mora," "That Old Devil Moon," and "Great Come and Get It Day."

HOOPSTERS HALVE SEASON

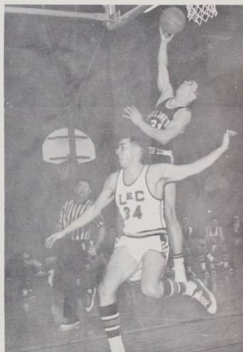

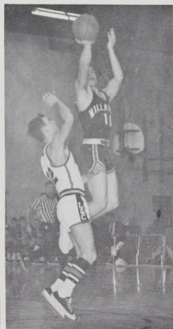

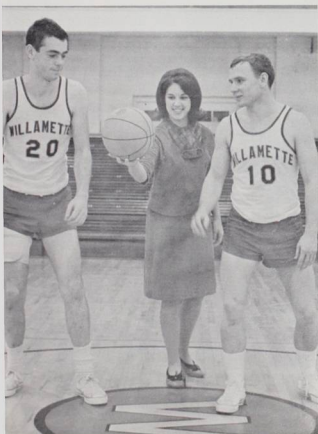

The Bearcat hoopsters placed fourth in NWC play. Coach John Lewis' team broke even for the season with a 13-13 record. Beginning the season by capturing the Tip-Off Tourney title, the team appeared to be headed for a highly successful season, but then it slumped. This slump was to lead to a temporary place in the NWC cellar, but the team gained enough momentum to earn their fourth place. Among the outstanding players were Spike Moore, Pete Slabaugh, and Gib Gilmore.

DELTS CAPTURE INTRAMURAL CROWN

Delta Tau Delta ousted Phi Delta Theta as intramural champ for the 1966-1967 season. The title is based on the total number of points accumulated by all teams for participating in and winning the various sports activities set up by the intramurals manager. The program is designed to promote competition among organizations on campus.

COEDS ACTIVE ON WU SPORT SCENE

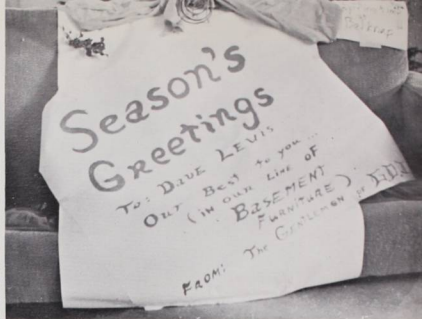

Girls' athletics is an integral part of the Willamette sports program. Intramurals among the various living organizations, track, and an outstanding tennis team constitute the main segment of this program. Mrs. Williams and Miss Searles of the Physical Education Department aid girls' sports on the WU campus.

The tumult and the shouting dies;
The Captain and the Kings depart:

Still stands Thine ancient sacrifice,
An humble and a contrite heart.

LIVING ORGANIZATIONS
1966-1967

DIANE SEAVER, Panhellenic President—1967.

PANHellenic -

VOICE FOR SORORITIES

Panhellenic Council is an organization composed of two members from each sorority on the Willamette campus. Holding weekly meetings, Panhellenic discusses matters directly affecting Greek living, primarily rush. This last Panhellenic was vital with the reinstatement of fall rush. Diane Seaver was this year's president.

IFC ASSUMES NEW FORMAT

IFC, the fraternity counterpart to Panhellenic, meets to discuss rush and its many rules. This year IFC underwent a major change. Instead of rotating the various offices among the six Willamette fraternities, the Greeks voted in a constitutional change establishing the filling of the IFC offices on an elective basis. Nick Tibbets was IFC's first elected president. Among other activities were the Council's influence on major student issues, especially the Student Senate representative controversy.
