One of the highlights of the 1997-98 year was the holiday lighting of Willamette's five Star Trees, planted in 1942 to commemorate the University's Centennial. This lighting, accompanied by caroling Willamette students, was viewed by hundreds of people who saw the event as a special gift from Willamette to the people of Salem. Like many of the programs featured in this annual report, the Star Trees lighting happened because someone cared. In this case those who cared included Dick and Linda Carney, Farnham Electric, Elwood's Tree Service, Boise Cascade, Willamette Valley Model A Club, Capitol Facilities, KBZY, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers Local #280, Maynard Dawson and a number of campus offices and organizations.

lamette. I hesitated a moment, then cautiously acknowledged I was and asked him if there was any problem. To my relief, he confided, "I've been following these teams around town for two days now and I hope your team wins. They're the better men." He was right, Willamette is characterized by exceptional people.

I left the next two goals — setting a tone honoring the past while embracing the future and providing a symbol of the presidency to both the students and the larger community — were best accomplished together. My theory was that if people sensed leadership and purpose in the office, they would keep their focus on the future.

I invoked some highly complicated plans to reach these goals — I walked around campus and talked to people. I talked to students each chance I got, I attended events, listened to student presentations and tried to get the campus community to sense how important they were to me. I was encouraged when some members of the women's soccer team later told me that my trek across the muddy field to congratulate them after a victory meant a great deal to them. Their words meant a great deal to me.

Involving the larger community was nearly effortless. I followed through on the good ideas of others. I approved the lighting of the star trees for the holidays, an event that was very well received. I joined others in serving breakfast to all who came to watch Willamette's regattas in Salem's new Riverfront Park. I encouraged the Music Department to inaugurate the outdoor auditorium at Riverfront Park with an afternoon of jazz, aptly titled "Willamette on the Willamette." To insure that the community connection was a two-way street, I made arrangements with the local newspaper resulting in weekday deliveries to each dorm room on campus.

Others will judge whether my coins have been multiplied. They will determine if I accomplished these objectives, or perhaps there are other ways to judge my success. However, I do know that I enjoyed the year tremendously and I emerged with a wealth of new knowledge. I also know that the campus and community are ready to embrace our new president, Dr. M. Lee Pelton. As for myself, I hope some future writer of the Chronicles of Willamette will say about me what was said about our first interim president, "... the work of the school has gone along pleasantly and comfortably under the direction of Dr. Alden and he has made for himself many friends among the faculty, students and citizens of Salem."

M. Lee Pelton
President, 1998

All alumni and friends of Willamette University are cordially invited to the inauguration of M. Lee Pelton as Willamette's 22nd president. This very special event will be Friday, Feb. 19, 1999, at 3 p.m. in Cone Field House, Lestle J. Sparks Center. The keynote speaker will be James O. Freedman, president emeritus of Dartmouth College.

Other scheduled inauguration events include:

Wednesday, Feb. 17

Atkinson Series Lecture with Jill Ker Conway,
Smith Auditorium, 8 p.m.

Thursday, Feb. 18

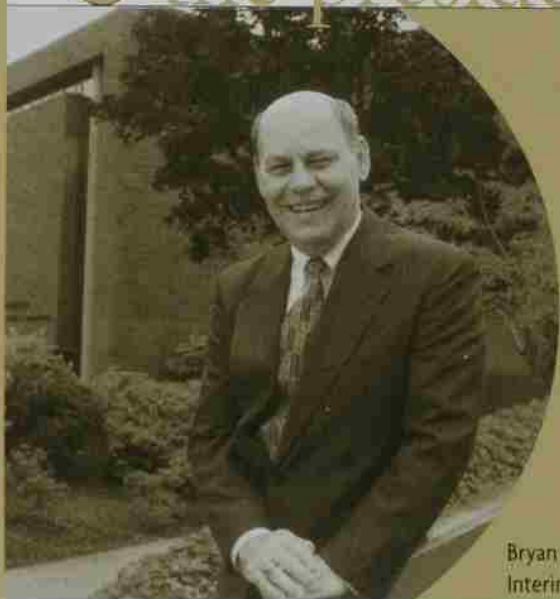

University Symposium, "New Roles for Liberal Education," Smith Auditorium, 1 p.m.

Friday, Feb. 19

Black Tie Affair, Inaugural Ball,
Oregon State Capitol, 9 p.m.

If you would like a complete inauguration invitation package or additional information, please call the University at (503) 370-6209, or see the inauguration web site at www.willamette.edu/inauguration.

the president's message

Bryan Johnston
Interim President, 1997-98

“ The interim presidency struck me as similar to the biblical account of the three servants who were entrusted gold coins by their master as he departed on a trip. Only one of the servants failed to multiply the coin he had been given. This servant buried the coin entrusted to him rather than run the risk of losing it by putting it to use. While the first two servants were rewarded, the third was tossed into the darkness. Rather than be tossed into the darkness at the end of my year, I set my sights on what I felt were three accomplishable goals.”

In the spirit of accountability, it is appropriate to do a little reflection on my brief hold of the reins of this great university.

Self-evaluation may not be the most objective analysis available, but as one of my last uses of presidential prerogative, it will allow me an opportunity to record some perspectives for a footnote in the next Chronicles of Willamette.

The interim presidency struck me as similar to the biblical account of the three servants who were entrusted gold coins by their master as he departed on a trip. Only one of the servants failed to multiply the coin he had been given. This servant buried the coin entrusted to him rather than run the risk of losing it by putting it to use. While the first two servants were rewarded, the third was tossed into the darkness.

Rather than be tossed into the darkness at the end of my year, I set my sights on what I felt were three accomplishable goals. I told the University community I would facilitate their excellent work, I would set a tone that embraced the past while preparing for the future, and I would provide a symbol of Willamette for the students and for the larger community.

My first goal — facilitating the work of the Willamette community, was made easier by the solid foundation Dr. Jerry Hudson had already created. The Willamette community is composed, almost without exception, of talented women and men who bring to their jobs an extra dimension of commitment. Their successes are best reflected in the varied compliments I have received throughout the year. These words of admiration included all manner of people and programs, ranging from the beauty of our campus to the quality of the individuals on it. It has been inspiring to watch the faculty at each college continually strive to renew their material, searching for the best content and the most meaningful delivery.

Facilitating the Willamette community's work was further eased by the quality of the Willamette student body. These are extraordinary people. There are many who had stand-out years — Liz Heaston broke the gender barrier in collegiate football and this summer Joey Lillywhite participated in the most prestigious archaeological dig in Greece. Equally important are the hundreds of others outside of the spotlight's glare who studied, worked and lived in such a way as to make the Willamette community a special place.

This is no better example of Willamette University's reputation than an event during our trip to Tennessee for the national football championship. As I was walking up to the stadium, a state trooper came up to me and asked if I was the president of Wil-

Willamette on the Willamette

The 1997 Bearcat football team was the focus of attention for the fall semester. Elizabeth Heaston '99 made history when she became the first female to play in a collegiate football game. She made two points-after-touchdown in a 27-0 win over Linfield College. The team eventually won its third straight conference title and advanced to the NAIA national championship contest, where they lost 14-7 to Ohio's University of Findlay.

The women's soccer team won a school-record 14 straight games, won their fifth consecutive NCIC championship and qualified for regionals. The team was eliminated in the semifinals by Seattle University, 1-0.

In December, the first lighting of the star trees became a new campus tradition, one that symbolizes the partnership of the University with the community of Salem.

M. Lee Pelton was named to become the 22nd president of Willamette.

Willamette's chapter of the Phi Beta Kappa Society held its installation on Founders' Day, Feb. 1.

The Music Department sponsored Willamette on the Willamette, a jazz concert in Riverfront Park, in May.

Offensive coordinator Mark Speckman was named head coach of the football team when Dan Hawkins resigned to coach at Boise State.

More than 250 faculty, staff and students volunteered their time to help build A.C. Gilbert's Discovery Village, a museum for children in Salem.

A series of readings by Northwest poets was sponsored by the Hallie Ford Chair in English and featured Clem Stark, poet-in-residence and recipient of the Oregon Book Award for poetry.

Cornel West, author of Restoring Hope and Race Matters, spoke as part of the celebration of Martin Luther King Jr.'s life.

The College of Law's Law Review sponsored a symposium on "Redirected Democracy: An Evaluation of the Initiative Process."

The Atkinson Graduate School of Management became the first and only program in the U.S. to have chapters of academic honoraries for both Beta Gamma Sigma and Pi Alpha Alpha. Pi Alpha Alpha is a national honor society recognizing excellence in the study and practice of public affairs. Beta Gamma Sigma is an international honor society that recognizes outstanding academic performance of students in business management programs.

Bryan Johnston was appointed by the board of trustees as interim president for the academic year.

Karen Hamlin '75, who has taught in the School of Education since 1991, and Debra Ringold, Atkinson Graduate School of Management faculty member since 1994, were the 1997 recipients of the Jerry E. Hudson Distinguished Teaching Award. Tom Hibbard, professor of economics who has taught at Willamette since 1973, received The United Methodist Church Exemplary Teaching Award.

The Distinguished Artists Series presented performances by bassist Edgar Meyer, the American Brass Quintet and pianist Claude Frank.

On the Verge, a play by Eric Overmyer and directed by Steven David Martin, was chosen to participate in the regional American College Theatre Festival. The Theatre Department's season also included a rousing production of Shakespeare's A Midsummer Night's Dream which was set in 1969.

Two former congressmen — Tom Rees, a Democrat from California's 26th district, and John Erlenborn, a Republican from Illinois — visited campus as part of the Congress to Campus program. Willamette was one of only nine schools nationwide to be chosen for such a visit.

New Off-Campus Study programs were started at Universidad de Los Lagos in Osorno, Chile, and at the University of Wales in Aberystwyth. A program of urban studies was also begun in Chicago.

In November Willamette crew held its first invitational regatta, Head of the Willamette, and celebrated the event with a community pancake feed in Riverfront Park.

More than 300 students, along with faculty from 22 colleges and universities, attended the Murdock Science Research Conference Oct. 31-Nov. 1.

G. Dale Weight retired as dean of the Atkinson Graduate School and Steven M. Maser, professor and associate dean, was named interim dean. Bryan Johnston, who had been serving as interim president of the university, was later named the new dean of the Atkinson School.

The 1997-98 Atkinson Lecture Series featured speakers Meron Benvenisti, writer and columnist for Ha'aretz Hebrew Daily; author Anna Quindlen, who spoke on "The Politics of the Family"; and James McPherson, historian and author of numerous books, including the Pulitzer Prize-winning Battle Cry of Freedom.

Laurence Meyer, a member of the Federal Reserve board of governors, was this year's Gillis Lecturer.

Ellen Eisenberg, history, fall and spring. Eisenberg performed a research/writing project on the migration of East European Jews to Oregon, and spent time developing a new humanities senior seminar based on W.E.B. DuBois' Black Reconstruction.

Kathy T. Graham, College of Law, fall. Graham conducted research regarding custody mediation in Marion County. She wrote an article based on her research.

Jerry Gray, economics, fall and spring. Gray explored the inequality in U.S. income distribution within the context of competing theoretical approaches as related to the explanation of persistent inequalities. He drew on theoretical issues explored in his dissertation, redefining his work on the debate about underlying causes of income inequality and exploring policy implications of the various explanations.

Michael Wise, College of Law, spring. Wise was awarded a Fulbright Scholarship and is teaching and conducting research on human rights and comparative constitutional law in Namibia, Africa. The work he is doing extends through fall semester of 1998.

Sam Hall, mathematics, fall and spring. Hall applied new developments in computer and calculator technology to mathematics courses in collaboration with mathematics education organizations in Oregon to develop telecourses for high school mathematics teachers. He also worked on strengthening the sister college relationship with Simferopol State University. He continued to expand his practice of nonviolence and peace studies, which will be applied to his integrative studies course, peace studies.

Jim Hanson, economics, spring. Hanson examined conditions under which reducing trade restrictions affects a country's ability to achieve environmental objectives and explored alternative policies for dealing with environmental problems which occur. He also extended his earlier work by using his observations of Oregon export activity to develop case studies with which he examined the validity of competing theories of international comparative advantage, which he expects will produce an article or policy monograph.

Robert Hess, art, fall. Hess traveled to Spain to draw and study with a special focus on the architecture of Antonio Gaudi (Barcelona), and the paintings of El Greco (Toledo). He also created several bronze sculptures.

Linda Heuser, sociology, fall and spring. Heuser wrote a student manual to accompany the latest version of the computer software package used by the major students. She also participated in "service-learning" as a tutor at Bush Elementary School and wrote an article analyzing the educational value of this kind of experience for liberal arts students. She studied sociological theory to enhance her background in the subject for teaching of medical sociology and the sports and society courses.

Anita King, music, fall and spring. King prepared a solo piano recital for public performance, studied several works with master teachers who are internationally known concert pianists, and wrote on the subjects of piano and music pedagogy.

Doug McGaughey, religion, fall and spring. McGaughey studied the influence of German Idealism other than that shaped by Hegel on the work of several theologians, and an exploration of feminist theology. He plans to publish the results of his research and use it to develop new courses and to refine existing courses.

Bruce McIntosh, music, fall and spring. McIntosh returned to a focus on his instrument, the cello, through study and preparation for performance of literature by Bach, Shostakovich, Tartini and Hindemith. He also reviewed programs and material available for computer assisted instruction in music theory and ear training, and developed a data base index to the Letters of Mozart and His Family.

Dan Montague, physics, fall and spring. Montague continued work on the structure of liquids with the help of a colleague from the Electron Research Facility in Grenoble. He also updated course content for materials science in advanced physics courses including condensed matter physics and quantum mechanics.

Michael Strelow, English, fall. Strelow wrote poetry and continued work on essays and short stories and re-wrote a completed novel. His goal is to write enough poetry to approach a publisher with a book-length manuscript.

John Uggen, foreign language, fall and spring. Uggen completed a book-length manuscript about Evermont Hope Norton and the Ecuadorian Cooperative, the first multinational corporation in Ecuador. Until Uggen's work, there were no studies of this corporation.

Retirements

David Cox, associate professor at the School of Education program, retired this spring after 37 years of teaching. He joined Willamette after his retirement from Portland State University in 1995.

Norman J. Hudak retired from teaching chemistry at Willamette after 37 years of service. He attended DePauw University for his undergraduate degree and earned his Ph.D in organic chemistry with minors in inorganic chemistry and physical chemistry from Cornell University.

Dallas W. Isom taught at Willamette's College of Law for 30 years before retiring. Prior to teaching at Willamette, Isom was a teaching fellow at Stanford Law School and later an associate with the Portland law firm of King, Miller, Anderson, Nash and Yerke. He authored various articles on civil practice and procedure, and taught civil procedure, federal jurisdiction, antitrust and the appellate review seminar.

G. Dale Weight retired from serving as dean and professor of finance at the Atkinson Graduate School of Management in December of 1997. During his seven and a half years of service, he guided the school to accreditation by both the AACSB — International Association for Management Education and by The National Association of Schools of Public Affairs and Administration (NASPAA) and increased the school's reputation for academic excellence.

Faculty Sabbaticals

Cheryl Brown, education, fall and spring. Brown performed research which contributed to the long-term mission and goals of the School of Education. She developed a theoretical framework for collaborative teaching and learning. Her work will provide a model for M.A.T. students to use collaborative processes in their classrooms and the school community.

Russ Cagle, exercise science, spring. Cagle investigated current clinical research related to intermuscular temperature and proprioceptive control. He plans to submit his results for publication.

David Douglas, rhetoric and media studies, fall and spring. Continued to work on his dissertation research about the 19th-century debate over women's access to higher education and the discourse concerning it. He also developed an archive and extended his previous research on rhetorical genres within environmental discourse, focusing on the recursive patterns of argument. He produced several papers from this research which he plans to publish.

Bill Duvall, history, fall and spring. Duvall continued extensive work on the French novelist and essayist Albert Camus, producing an article on Camus' critique of German philosophy, and began a comparative study of two periods in crisis, the post-1848 and post-1968 French intellectual generations. He also worked on a reading project of primary and secondary literature in the field of European intellectual history, which will provide a greater depth and breadth to his teaching.

Peter Eilers, earth science, spring. Eilers investigated the physical geography and cultural ecology of New Zealand and the Pacific Islands and took advanced courses in Geographic Information Systems. He continued his research on coastal and inland wetlands.

Financial Highlights

Willamette University's financial results for 1997-98 included continued compound growth in the above graphs representing market value of total endowed funds and total net assets. The largest element of that growth in recent years has been realized and unrealized gains in long term investments. For the 1997-98 fiscal year those gains totaled over $29.3 million. The portion of those gains used in support of the operating budget was over $6.5 million and the portion reinvested in endowed funds totaled over $22.8 million. The total increase in endowed funds including new gifts as well as investment gains was over $33 million. While the recent volatility in financial markets has resulted in erosion of investment gains, Willamette's Trustee Endowment Committee has fostered a conservative and well diversified investment portfolio which has maintained value well.

The next largest element in net asset growth for 1997-98 after investment gains was new gifts totaling over $12.7 million. That all-time high figure included major gifts for development of the Hallie Ford Museum of Art and for construction of the Mary Stuart Rogers Music Center, as well as large contributions for endowed programs and scholarships.

As has been the case for 21 consecutive years, a positive balance from the operating budget also contributed to the increase in net assets. The budget surplus of $542,000, or approximately one percent of the operating budget, was set aside to provide for projected facilities repair and improvement needs.

Student financial aid, particularly scholarship aid, is the fastest growing operating budget element in both size and importance. Willamette provided its students with over $14.6 million in scholarships, over 15 percent more than in the previous year. Scholarships amounted to over 35 percent of tuition in 1997-98 compared to under 33 percent in 1996-97.

With college costs continuing to grow, the need for additional endowment funds devoted to student scholarships is increasingly critical.

Willamette's financial statements reflect the continuation of a long trend of growing financial strength. They also reveal some of the pressure to raise additional resources for pursuing the University's goals. Willamette competes with colleges which have greater endowed resources per student. The University's endowment, in addition to providing student scholarships, provides for faculty positions, building maintenance and programmatic enhancements. Willamette must continue to improve its financial position and use its strength to foster even better educational programs and an even more effective and beautiful educational environment, and to preserve those benefits for deserving students from diverse backgrounds.

willamette university annual gifts report

Willamette University is grateful to the donors who have made contributions during the 1997-98 fiscal year. Matching gifts received from employers have been included when determining the appropriate giving society memberships. Titles have been omitted wherever possible to save space. If you are a donor, but your name does not appear in the 1997-98 President's Report, one of two things may have happened: 1) your gift may have been received after Willamette's fiscal year ended May 31, 1998; or 2) in the process of generating the annual report lists, your name was inadvertently excluded. Inquiries or requests for further information should be directed to: Mamie Noble, Director of Donor Relations and Special Events, Willamette University, 900 State Street, Salem, OR 97301 (503) 370-6726.

50 by 2000 campaign

WILLAMETTE UNIVERSITY

50% Alumni Participation by the Year 2000

For many, the arrival of a new millennium is a symbol of change and of new things to come. There is great anticipation and considerable conjecture about what life will be like in the 21st century.

Several events of the past year provoked serious discussion about where the University would like to be in the year 2000. The overhaul and implementation of new general education requirements, a presidential search, and the University's earlier application for membership in Phi Beta Kappa have given alumni, students, faculty and staff the opportunity to discuss the state of the University and to identify future goals of the institution.

As part of these discussions, the alumni board of directors recognized the University's need for consistent financial support and introduced an important new campaign. Calling it the "50 by 2000 Campaign," board members pledged to help increase the number of alumni who consistently support Willamette to 50 percent by the year 2000. Their efforts over the past year have been a testament to their commitment to Willamette and I am grateful for their involvement.

Giving back to Willamette is especially significant in light of this campaign for participation. Every graduate and friend who simply makes a gift (regardless of size) is critical to the future success of the University. The following pages are a testament by each person who provided support last year. Because of their contributions, Willamette is able to continue its tradition of academic excellence.

I am truly grateful for the support Willamette receives from its alumni. I thank each of you who has come forward to be counted among alumni who believe in Willamette. With your help we will continue to improve the University and we will reach our goal of 50 percent giving by the year 2000. You serve as a model for others; your continued generosity will lead us into the new millennium.

grace goudy distinguished artists series

The Distinguished Artists Series gives music students at Willamette a unique opportunity to interact with and learn from the greatest names in music today.

Since 1982, this program has featured prominent musicians such as pianist Claude Frank, the American Brass Quintet, the Tokyo String Quartet and the Guarneri String Quartet.

The series was recently endowed by The Collins Foundation, ensuring that the tradition will continue for years to come. Renamed the Grace Goudy Distinguished Artists Series in honor of Grace Collins Goudy, the series will have a new home this spring in the Jerry E. Hudson Performance Hall of the Mary Stuart Rogers Music Center.

In addition to an evening concert open to the Salem and Willamette communities, performers in the Distinguished Artists Series also conduct a master class for the benefit of music students.

Several local businesses have also provided sponsorship, most notably, Dain Raucher, Inc., which provided significant funding for three years. Other sponsors include Pence/Kelly, Sather Travel, K/P Corporation, and Azumano Travel.

Waller Society

The Waller Society honors individuals who contributed $1,000 to $4,999 to Willamette during the fiscal year. This society is named for Alvan F. Waller, who carried on the tradition of service and devotion begun by Jason Lee. It was Alvan Waller, as the University's agent, who bore the responsibility for developing the financial well-being of the University as it grew. He raised the funds for and supervised the construction of what is now known as Waller Hall, which was completed in 1867.

Step Society

The Step Society commemorates the historic old step at Waller Hall, worn down over time by the feet of so many people. The society honors individuals who contributed $500 to $999 to Willamette during the fiscal year. Contributors to the Step Society provide vital support for the academic footing needed by new generations of students who cross Willamette's threshold.

collaborative research in science

Working with Peter Eilers, professor of environmental science, Ken Duncan '99 received a fellowship to do a summer-long ecological study of Dry Falls Lake in eastern Washington. "It gave me a wealth of field experience, which is very valuable since environmental science majors don't always have the opportunity to work in that kind of research setting," Duncan says.

The Science Collaborative Research Program offers students an opportunity to assist professors with research projects. "You get to see things from a researching professor's point-of-view," says Duncan. The program was initiated through a gift from the Murdock Charitable Trust. When that grant expired, the program was endowed with a $2 million gift from The Mary Stuart Rogers Foundation. John Rogers, a 1963 graduate of Willamette, serves as president of the foundation. Students participating in the research program will be referred to as The Mary Stuart Rogers Fellows.

Trustee William B. Webber has pledged additional support toward the program. His pledge, included in his estate plans, will allow for The Murdock Fellows, in memory of Tektronix founder Jack Murdock.

1842 Society

The 1842 Society recognizes individuals who contributed $150 to $499 to Willamette during the fiscal year. The largest giving society, the 1842 Society commemorates the year of the University's founding and represents the base on which the future Willamette will be built.

willamette writing program

"I will never forget how scared I was when I came to college and had to write my first paper," said Annalivia Komyate '99 (pictured, working with student Stephanie Roberts '02), a writing consultant at the Willamette University Writing Center. Annalivia eventually overcame her fears, enough so that she now spends time helping other students overcome theirs.

Annalivia, like other student and faculty writing consultants, is trained in different strategies to help students organize and compose written work. Any student can use the writing center, which was made possible through the support of the Bill '59 and Kay Long Endowment.

The writing center is a part of the Writing Program, an "across-the-curriculum" program developed in 1995 to ensure that all graduates have a strong writing background. In the program, students take "writing-centered" courses from across the disciplines that push them to focus on the process of writing as well as the final product. In addition, the program requires students to compile a portfolio so they can see the improvement in their writing during their Willamette education.

R.A. Booth Society

The R.A. Booth Society was established in 1990, honoring the trustee who in 1908 pledged $100,000 to boost the University's endowment. Members have affirmed the University motto "not unto ourselves alone are we born" by establishing planned gifts which benefit the University. In the spirit of the society's namesake, these members will provide for future generations at Willamette University through bequests, life insurance policies, life income trusts and life estates.

If you have named Willamette University as a beneficiary in your will or a life insurance policy, but are not listed, please let us know. We would like to express our thanks. At their request, some members' names are not published here.

carson research grants

Ben Joyce '99 (pictured) spent the summer writing and painting. That might be expected from an art and English double major. "But I don't have much time to explore my talents and interests outside of time dedicated to classes," he says. Thus, Ben applied for a Carson Undergraduate Research Grant to study the nature of Welsh identity and the preservation of Welsh culture at the end of the millennium. "The Carson Grant gave me the opportunity to utilize my talents full-time in a specific area of interest."

In 1989 Dean Julie Ann Carson saw a need for undergraduate research opportunities and started Willamette's program, which has since been named in her honor. The program, which awards about a dozen grants each year on topics from all disciplines, was endowed in 1994 by a gift from Bill '59 and Kay Long.

Jeremy Hall '98 received a Carson Grant during his junior year and used it to teach low-income families how to grow their own food. His project earned a 1998 President's Service Award from the Points of Light Foundation.

Scholarships and Prizes

Scholarships help the University meet the financial needs of students or provide funding for awards which recognize student achievements and excellent academic performance. The University extends its thanks to the individuals and organizations who contributed during the fiscal year to the scholarships and prizes below. We are particularly grateful for the support of endowed scholarships, which provide assistance for today's students and for generations to come.

bearcat mindventures

Bearcat Mindventures makes real the Willamette motto — “Not Unto Ourselves Alone Are We Born.” A cooperative effort between the University’s athletic program and Mindventures, a children’s store in Salem, the program promotes child literacy through direct outreach. Willamette athletes like Matt Smith ’99 (pictured) visit Salem-area schools to read books that incorporate themes of success in athletics and in life to children. “It’s really easy to get caught up in life at Willamette,” Matt says. “Bearcat Mindventures is a really good way to get off of campus and make a difference.”

Despite his busy academic schedule, Matt is among the one-third of Willamette students that the Community Outreach Program estimates participate in community service. Students logged 24,000 hours of service in 1997-98, an increase of 8,000 hours from the year before.

Many community service programs are coordinated by student-led organizations; community service is also becoming a part of curricular activities as more professors require students to become involved in the community as part of their courses.

second tuesday luncheon series

“It gave me the chance to share my love for Shakespeare with people who may not have otherwise been exposed to the joy, power and passion of iambic pentameter,” says Steven David Martin, a theatre professor, of his presentation at the Second Tuesday Series. Bringing cast members from the theatre department production of Romeo and Juliet to his lecture, Martin playfully demystified Shakespeare for an audience of more than 60 people.

Martin’s talk is typical of the Second Tuesday Series — informal, witty and interesting. Conceived by then-president Jerry E. Hudson in 1988 and organized by the Office of Alumni and Parent Relations, these popular brown-bag luncheons provide a continuing education opportunity for members of the community — both campus and Salem.

Speakers in 1997-98 included Paula Petrie, head women’s basketball coach and assistant athletic director, on “Title IX: The Changing Face of Women’s Athletics”; Lonnie Jackson ’79, director of minority services of Oregon Youth Authority, on “African-American Male Transition Project: Reclaiming Lives”; and Gary Tallman, Taul Watanabe Chair in Biology, on “Cloning and its Biotechnological Applications: from Microbes to Mammals.”

atkinson lecture series

"It's such an enriching experience to meet and hold discussions with a world-renowned expert in a specific field of study," said Carrie Ray '99, (pictured standing, center) with historian Stephen Ambrose. Ambrose, the author of Undaunted Courage: Meriwether Lewis, Thomas Jefferson, and the Opening of the American West and D-Day, June 6, 1944: The Climactic Battle of World War II, was a speaker in the Atkinson Lecture Series, which not only provides a free lecture for all students, but also allows some of them to meet with the lecturer in a small, informal setting.

Last year's lecturers included Meron Benvenisti, an expert on issues in the Middle East; Anna Quindlen, a Pulitzer Prize-winning journalist and author of several best-sellers; and James McPherson, a historian of the Civil War.

The well-attended evening lectures, sponsored through an endowment from the Atkinson Fund and organized by the Office of University Relations, are open to the public.

general motors internships

General Motors, which sponsors marketing internships in undergraduate business classes across the country, recently decided to expand the program to the graduate level, and chose the Atkinson Graduate School of Management for the pilot program.

"I think the reason General Motors contacted us is because of the uniqueness of our program and curriculum at Atkinson," says Debra Ringold, professor of marketing.

Through the program last year, 16 Atkinson students worked with Capitol Auto Group in Salem, a sponsor of the program. They helped the company do primary and secondary market research. Then they developed a print campaign, media plan, and web site based on their research with Creative Company, a professional advertising agency. There, the students gained experience with graphic designers and media planners.

The program was a complete success, according to Carrie Larsen, director of marketing for Capitol Auto Group. "Our expectations were far exceeded by the work of the students. When we were asked to do it again we were excited at the opportunity."

new music at willamette

John Peel, composer-in-residence, believes that not all great music was composed before 1860. To prove his point, he brings some of this century's greatest musicians to campus as part of New Music at Willamette.

Through this program sponsored by the Irene Gerlinger Swindells Chair in Music, students have a chance to hear — in concert and in lecture — such important names from 20th-century music as Milton Babbitt, Susan Narucki and Cuarteto Latinoamericano.

Coordinated by Peel, New Music at Willamette was founded in 1990 to bring composers, conductors and performers of modern music to campus for residencies which include concerts, rehearsals and master classes.

New Music at Willamette has also provided opportunities for the premiere of new compositions by Willamette students and faculty. John Peel's Novellette was first performed by Cuarteto Latinoamericano in a New Music concert, and violinist Alan Feinberg and pianist Rolf Schulte presented his Scena ed Aria.

Corporate Matching Gifts

Many individuals are eligible to have their gifts to Willamette matched by an employer or a spouse's employer. The University deeply appreciates the additional support, which increases the impact of an individual's gift while counting toward a membership in the giving societies. The date on which a matching gift is granted may not coincide with Willamette University's fiscal year. This list includes donors whose gifts were matched during 1997-98 (denoted with a + here and throughout the Annual Report) as well as donors who requested matching gifts

off-campus studies

Kelly Ainsworth, director of off-campus studies and international education, believes that getting out of town is an important part of a college education. "Study off campus provides the quintessential liberal arts experience," he said, "by placing students in unfamiliar situations that demand critical thinking and an appreciation for cultural differences."

In 1995, fewer than 80 students left Willamette to study abroad. By the 1997-98 academic year, that number had grown to 194 students. Willamette now offers programs in 16 different locations, with four new programs expected to be added in the next two years. Additionally, the University belongs to an international exchange consortium with more than 200 university partners allowing for study in more than 33 countries.

Students like Mindy (Biethen) Haynes '99 (pictured left) can spend a semester in places such as Europe, Ukraine or Chile, or a summer post-session in Cuba. Through an exchange consortium, students can travel to countries like Tanzania, Zambia, Thailand and Colombia. Students can also stay in the U.S., participating in special programs in Chicago or Washington, D.C.

public interest law project

Willamette University College of Law students spend much of their time reading case briefs. "A lot of things you can read about," says Jennifer Wright, director of the Clinical Law Program, "but until you actually apply them, the information isn't as useful as it could be." The Willamette University Public Interest Law Project and the Clinical Law Program allow students to take what they learn in the classroom into real-life situations.

The Willamette University Public Interest Law Project is a student-initiated group created in 1992 which raises money so students can apply for grants to spend summers working for not-for-profit public interest groups.

The Clinical Law Program also provides students with practical experience through community service. Begun in 1993, the program takes several hundred cases per year for clients who cannot afford legal counsel; for example, many of the cases are domestic relations cases. According to Christina McMahan who worked in the Clinical Law Program last summer with a grant from the public interest law project, "working at the clinic offers students the chance to see what the practice of law is really like."

university convocation

“Convocation allows people from all corners of the University to grapple with issues of general interest — and, in the process, to practice intellectual community across the lines of discipline or status that too often separate us,” says Charlie Wallace, University chaplain and coordinator of University Convocation. The direct descendent of “compulsory chapel” in earlier generations, the weekly Convocation still usually takes place in Cone Chapel, but programs cover a wide range of topics, and attendance is voluntary.

Theatre Roundabout (pictured), a two-person theatre troupe starring William Fry and Sylvia Read, is but one example of the diverse programming offered at Convocation. The duo visits Willamette biannually; their last performance was an interpretation of John Bunyan’s Pilgrim’s Progress.

Other recent Convocations have featured Salem author Al Furtwangler on Chief Seattle and Sacred Ground; Melinda Strobel ’85 in a one-woman drama on Northwest women; and a performance by Salem singer-songwriter Martha Schuyler Thompson. Convocation also provides a venue for discussion of such timely issues as American policy in Iraq and Willamette’s own struggle with U.S. military recruiting policies.

willamette forum

The Office of Alumni Relations is always thinking of innovative ways to connect alumni with each other and the University. "That's the great thing about the Willamette University Forum," said Jim Booth, director of alumni and parent relations. "Not only do alumni in the Portland and Seattle business communities get the opportunity to continue learning, they also get to network with other alumni and professionals. And it's a great opportunity to connect to the University as well."

Conceived by David Good '67, the Forum began by providing approximately four breakfast speakers each year in Portland. Based on the success of the Portland program, a series of lunchtime speakers was organized in Seattle.

Speakers in the 1997-98 Willamette University Forum series in Portland included former Senator Mark O. Hatfield; Pat LaCrosse, president of Oregon Museum of Science and Industry and Gerry Langelier, founding member of Mentor Graphics. Scheduled to speak at a forum in 1998 is Mary Sammons (pictured), president and chief executive officer of Fred Meyer Stores.

“Part of the virtue of World Views is that it makes students struggle with something unfamiliar to them,” says history professor Bill Duvall (pictured at the blackboard in his World Views course.)

Created in 1987 to give all first-year students a common experience, the World Views seminar is a one-semester course that focuses on a particular land and culture. For the last four years, students studied the Middle East, learning about cultures there through special art exhibits, lectures by various experts and readings in literature, history and politics.

What makes World Views a unique classroom experience, says Duvall, is that “it puts me in a position where I can’t be an authority.” World Views faculty come from a wide range of disciplines and must approach the classroom prepared to learn as well as to teach. The class and the professor must work together to make sense of material with which they are both unfamiliar.

Consequently, students and their professors gain a clearer understanding not only of the culture they study, but also a broader view of themselves and their place in the world.

educational programs committee

"I do look forward to our public conversation and critical exchange." So began Cornel West, professor of Afro-American studies and philosophy of religion at Harvard, at a lecture in Smith Auditorium celebrating Martin Luther King, Jr. "I hope I say something tonight that unsettles you and provokes you and pushes you because I plan to be unsettled and provoked and pushed myself." West's lecture was sponsored by the Educational Programs Committee (EPC) in cooperation with the Multi-Cultural Law Student Association and several other campus organizations. His remarks reflect the mission of EPC, which is to enhance the educational environment at Willamette University.

Aside from helping to fund special speakers such as Cornel West, EPC also sponsors a series of forums, speakers and concerts united under a particular, timely theme.

The theme of the 1997-98 EPC series — "Community" — looked at community issues such as foster care and adoption, the role of women in society and physician-assisted suicide.
