Willamette University Is a Small College Affording the Advantages of a Large University

WILLAMETTE is essentially a small college and has the ideal of encouraging smaller class groups and intimate personal relationships between student and teacher. It is proud that it can support a faculty of 46, and that, with a student body of 600, it can avoid the crowded conditions and the impersonality of the larger university. No student is "lost in the crowd" at Willamette.

Willamette, however, is able to afford approximately the same advantages in curricula in its College of Liberal Arts, College of Law, and School of Music as do the same schools in the larger university. The extra-curricular activities at Willamette in forensics, dramatics, athletics, music and publications are as highly developed as in the larger institutions. Willamette affords the additional advantage that each student enjoys the development of personality that comes from participating in activities of his own choosing.

The University faces the State Capitol before which stands the statue of the Circuit Rider, emblematic of the sturdy Christian spirit of the Oregon pioneers.

PRESIDENT BAXTER

A New President Looks at Willamette

I am one of the Freshmen at Willamette, for I have been on the campus but a short time. Therefore I have been seeing the University from somewhat the same point of view as a new student sees it. Probably my first impressions will be your first impressions also. Willamette has that difficult to define but easy to recognize attribute called atmosphere. It is proud of its history as the oldest school west of the Rockies. It is represented by distinguished alumni throughout the world. It possesses a cultured and capable faculty and an enthusiastic and earnest student body. At once you discover that this is no ordinary college campus. I have never seen as keen and as wholesome a college spirit as you will find here. Character and scholarship are given first place while at the same time recreation and student activities are given their fair share of time and interest. You will achieve friendships with fellow students and faculty members that will become your most precious possessions. Daily you will meet those who seek to know you and to be of service to you. I am sure that you will enjoy Willamette as thoroughly as I am enjoying it. May we not enter upon this adventure together?

Cordially yours,

Bruce R. Baxter

Willamette University Has Foremost Recognition as an Educational Institution

THE UNITED STATES has approximately 1300 colleges—some good, some indifferent, some woefully weak. Various accrediting agencies have come into being to evaluate the worth of our institutions of higher learning. The highest academic rating that can come to a college is to be recognized by the Association of American Universities. Only four Oregon colleges and universities have been so recognized. Willamette University was fully approved by the Association of American Universities in 1927.

Recognition by the Association of American Universities means that graduates of Willamette University are admitted to graduate and professional schools throughout the country on the same basis as the graduates of any other similarly accredited college in the United States.

Willamette is also recognized by

Oregon State Department of Education.

Pacific Northwest Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools.

American Council on Education.

Association of American Colleges.

American Association of University Women.

Admission Requirements

THE CURRICULUM of Willamette University attempts to integrate the work of the preparatory years of the high school with those of the college. It assumes that the prospective student has demonstrated the mental ability to do work of college grade (placement in the top half of the high school graduating class is an original estimate of this ability), and is known to be a person of high character and social promise. The University will build upon his high school courses, recognizing attained proficiencies and supplying those lacking elements which are assumed to be a part of the intellectual equipment of the socially effective human being. While preference is given to those students who present the standard entrance units, the requirements are flexible enough that a deficiency will rarely bar a high school graduate of calibre and ability.

The successful completion of two years work in a standard college is a prerequisite to admission to the College of Law.

Library Facilities

More than 450,000 volumes are available to students of Willamette University in the following libraries: Willamette University libraries of Liberal Arts and Law, over 36,000; Oregon State Library, 334,000; Oregon Supreme Court Library, 52,000; Salem Public Library, 30,000.

Willamette University Has the Lowest Tuition Charge of Any Independent College of Equal Standing in the Entire West

WILLAMETTE UNIVERSITY has an endowment of approximately $1,750,000. The income from this splendid endowment pays about one-half the cost of operating the institution with the result that tuition rates have been kept most reasonable. Some colleges charge a high tuition and give scholarships in large numbers. Willamette has followed the policy of keeping the cost low and expecting each student to pay his share (but not the share of others).

ESTIMATED EXPENSE BUDGETS FOR THE COLLEGE YEAR

	Minimum	Average	Liberal
Tuition (full program)	$130	$130	$130
Library and Health Service Fee	4	4	4
Laboratory Fees	0	8	10
Student Body Fee	20	20	20
Books and Supplies	15	25	35
Board and Room	180-220	240	315
	$349-389	$427	$514

Clothing, transportation expense and miscellaneous expenditures vary with the individual and are not included in these budgets.

It is not the policy of Willamette University to award scholarships in large numbers. Twenty-five University scholarships are awarded each year on a competitive basis to outstanding high school students of the Northwest who have been recognized as leaders in their respective schools and communities.

The income from a limited number of endowed scholarships is available to deserving students. The University attempts to use student workers wherever possible and aids in the finding of employment for students who need help. The prospective student is advised to have resources upon entering sufficient for at least one semester.

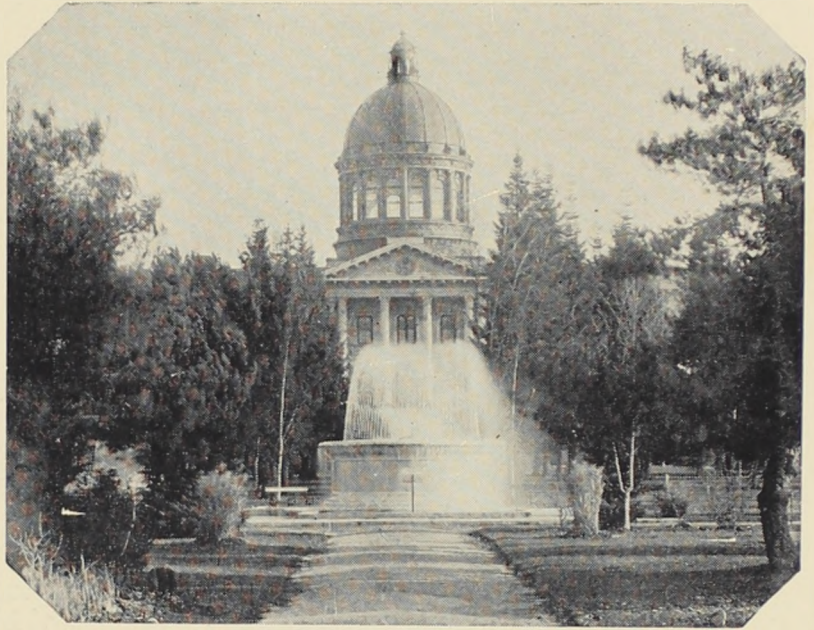

CHAPEL IS OUT

Chapel is an attractive part of life at "Old Willamette." Three times each week the students assemble for exercises of inspirational appeal; once a week the Christian Associations hold their meetings; Friday's assembly is directed to student body business and "pep" rallies.

"The Beautiful Willamette"

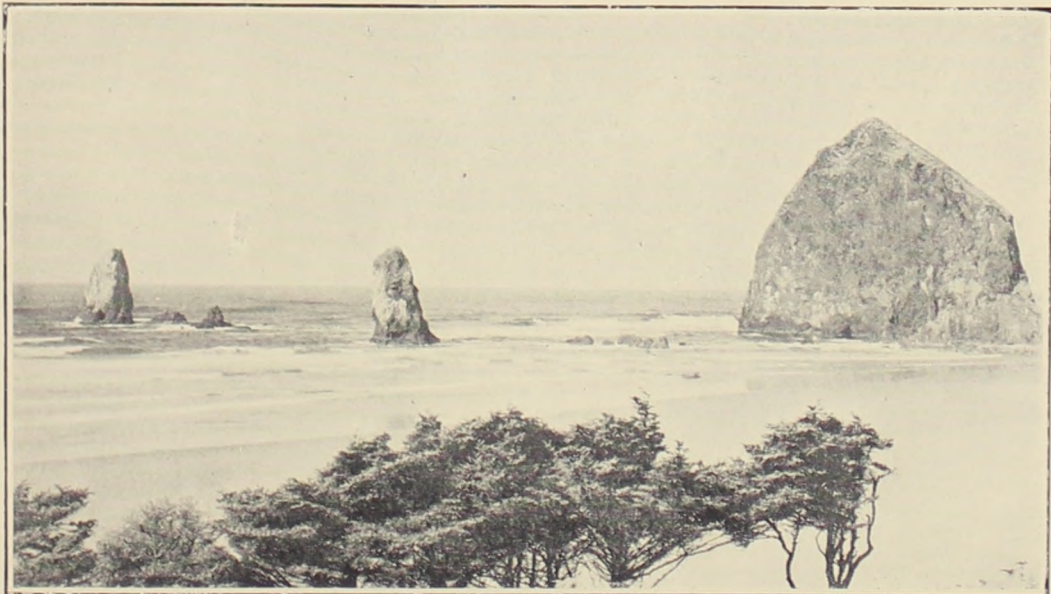

State Capitol and Waite Fountain

Salem, in the Beautiful Oregon Country

Willamette is fortunate in its location. Salem, fifty miles from Portland in the heart of the Willamette Valley, is a thriving business city of 28,000 population. It is a beautiful city with broad streets and attractive homes. The campus is at the civic center, a ten-minute walk from the business section and the city churches. The Carnegie city library and state libraries are adjacent to the campus. The legislative sessions, state offices, state court, and state institutions offer the student unusual opportunities for study and observation.

COLLEGE OF LIBERAL ARTS

Dean Erickson

THE PURPOSE of the arts college is to familiarize the student in some degree with the various fields of thought and investigation; to train him in the methods of creative thinking in his chosen field; to prepare him for more effective participation in the life of his time; to help him to see life whole and in its true values and to find and enjoy the deeper satisfaction of life.

Altho the liberal arts college is often contrasted with professional schools it is closely related to them. Nearly all professional schools of high grade require at least two years of college work for admission and many require graduation from college. This is true of schools of business administration, colleges of law and medicine.

On the other hand much of the work of the college is of a practical nature, aiding directly in vocational preparation. Willamette graduates without other professional training have in recent years become conspicuously successful in the field of journalism. The courses in economics cover most of the usual courses in business administration. Willamette graduates hold important positions as college teachers and as teachers, principals and superintendents in public schools. Others are winning distinction in the graduate and professional schools of Washington, Oregon, and California, and in important universities in the East, among them Chicago, Northwestern, Harvard, Yale, Johns Hopkins and Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

THE COLLEGE OF LAW

Dean Lockenour

THE COLLEGE OF LAW, founded in 1883, is the second oldest law school on the Pacific Coast. Numbered among its alumni are leaders of the Bench and Bar of the Northwest, and several of its graduates have attained national and international recognition.

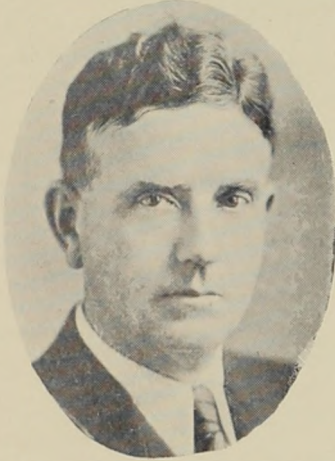

The College is located across State Street from the Supreme Court of Oregon and the State Capitol, and is but a few blocks from the justice and circuit courts. This unexcelled location affords the student an excellent laboratory for legal training. Library facilities are exceptionally good. In addition to the College's own library of 10,000 volumes, students are privileged to use the Supreme Court Library, one of the largest libraries in the West.

The Faculty is unusually well-qualified, every instructor having had many years experience in teaching and practicing law. The so-called "practical" courses, legal bibliography, briefing, evidence, code pleading and trial practice, are emphasized. Opportunity for training in the actual trial of cases is afforded in moot court work, which is a required subject for all students during their three years in the College of Law.

THE SCHOOL OF MUSIC

Cameron Marshall, Director

THE SCHOOL OF MUSIC has been in continuous operation since 1870 and has had a significant part in the cultural development of the Northwest. Its curriculum is approved by the National Association of Music Schools. Individual instruction is given in voice, piano, violin and organ and all theoretical subjects are taught in classes.

Student activities have an unusual importance in the School of Music. The Men's Glee Club and the women's Treble Clef Club are recognized for their superior quality. The Philharmonic Choir, a mixed ensemble, has won a national reputation, representing the State of Oregon and Willamette University at the Century of Progress Exposition. The Light Opera Club presents an annual opera, "The Bohemian Girl," "The Golden Trail" and "Pirates of Penzance" having been produced in recent years. The Beethoven Society, the String Ensemble, and the University Band are also under the direction of the School of Music. Students have frequent opportunity to do radio broadcasting.

ATHLETICS

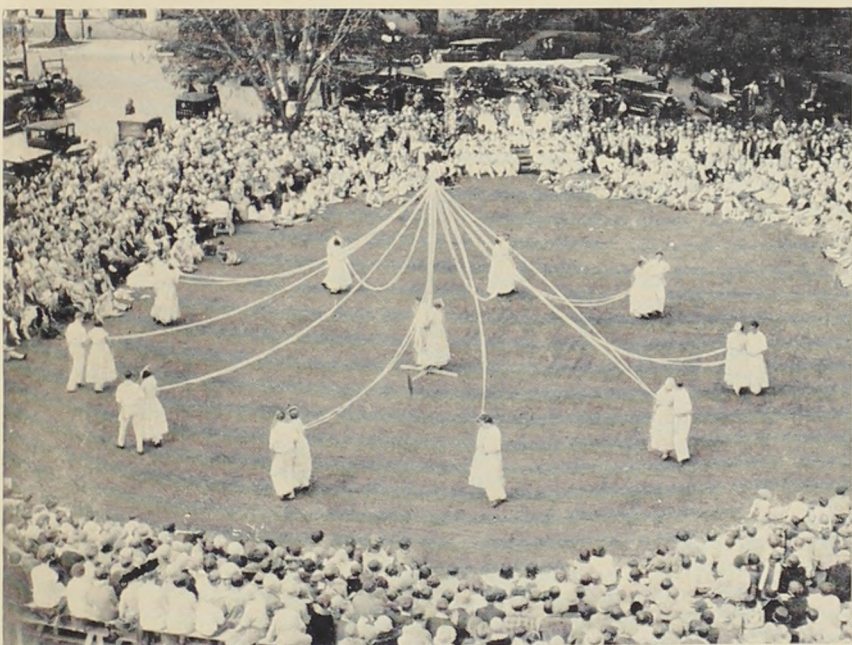

Willamette is a member of the Northwest Conference and, in addition, each year schedules games in all sports with the state-supported universities of the Northwest. Football, basketball, baseball, track, swimming, boxing, wrestling and golf teams represent the Bearcats in intercollegiate competition. An increasing rivalry in intra-mural sports has been developed between the classes, fraternity organizations and various student groups.

A wide program of athletics for women is maintained and includes hockey, basketball, volleyball, tennis, riding and swimming. A splendid sports field is provided for the women of the campus.
