WILLAMETTE SCENE

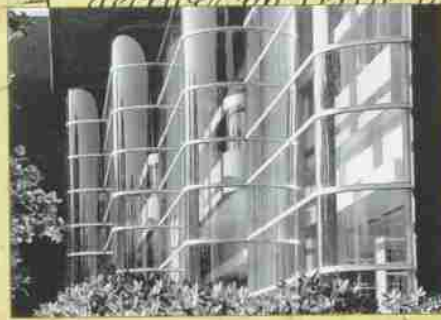

SPECIAL EDITION

Architectural details of campus buildings were photographed to illustrate the vignettes which appear throughout the Annual Gifts section of this President's Annual Report. These historical vignettes introduce you to the people for whom the buildings were named. Although the campus continues to grow and change, much remains familiar. Perhaps these photographs will evoke for you a memory, experience or adventure which reminds you that Willamette is, always, a very special place.

ANNUAL GIFTS REPORT 14

However you feel at this time, it is true that while none of us will stay in this place forever, something of this place will stay forever in us.

There is something special about this place because for 155 years, people here have cared. Today we are the beneficiaries of a benevolent spirit displayed by those who have been here the last century and a half. Your predecessors answered the call. Each of us has warmed ourselves by a fire we did not build, and each of us has drunk from a well we did not dig. We have the responsibility and the obligation to do something for those who come after us, as others provided for us.

There is something special about this place because faculty and staff care about teaching and care about students. They care enough not to have allowed you graduates to choose the easy way or the shallow way to escape accountability. They have asked you, even demanded of you, that you stretch yourselves intellectually ...

Willamette is a special place where many of you have tasted failure at times (on a test or on the playing field) but it is these failures that have caused you to grow and succeed. This is a place where your characters have been tried and molded. Some of you fell in love with learning here, while others of you just fell in love. In either case, this is a special place for you ...

To the Willamette class of 1997 my heartfelt congratulations. You validate why this university exists. I wish for all of you the best of lives. Go with confidence for you have had a fine education. Be yourselves. Prize tolerance and common sense. Take time for those things that make you more human. Read books, and if you tire of that, write some books. See the world. Love your children. Don't take yourself too seriously. Be good to those around you. And some time somewhere along the way, do something for your country, and do something for your university. May you leave here as knowledgeable as you are intelligent, and as good as you are smart. May God bless you all, and may God bless this university.

Bryan M. Johnston was appointed by the board of trustees to serve as interim president of Willamette University for 1997-98, while the search for the next president continues. Interim President Johnston is a member of the Oregon House of Representatives. From 1984 to 1991, he served the Willamette University College of Law in positions including associate professor of law, director of the Clinical Education Program, director of the Center for Dispute Resolution and associate dean. He established a private practice in dispute resolution in 1991.

Jerry E. Hudson was president of Willamette University from 1980 to 1997. This President's Annual Report issue of the Willamette Scene reflects the accomplishments of only his 17th and final year. A more complete review of the University's accomplishments during his years of leadership was published in the Willamette Scene Spring 1997 edition.

President emeritus Hudson is now executive vice president of The Collins Foundation in Portland.

Transitions

IN AUGUST OF 1996, THE CLASS OF 2000 ENTERED WILLAMETTE UNIVERSITY — the final class to graduate in this century, this millennium; the first in a new decade. Their need to be prepared for transition is representative of the pace of life at Willamette during the year, when the continuum between change and continuity tilted toward change:

- ◆ In September, President Jerry E. Hudson announced that the year — his 17th leading Willamette University — would be his final one here.
- ◆ A faculty study of the College of Liberal Arts curriculum continued through the year, culminating in adoption of a new general education curriculum, which will be in place for the class entering Willamette in the fall of 1998.
- ◆ The physical shape of the campus continued its perpetual transition, with the acquisition of a building at the corner of State and Cottage Streets, a block from the Art Building, which will become the new Hallie Brown Ford Art Museum, expected to open in the fall of 1998. This will provide the opportunity to expand and showcase the University's Northwest and other art collections, and will be developed with a strong focus toward serving Salem-area residents as well as the campus.
- ◆ The stage was set for another facility change when the board of trustees approved plans to raise money for a new music building, and to raze the Bishop Memorial Health Center Building to create the site for it.

As the 1996-1997 year ended with Commencement on the quad — for the first time under a huge tent which protected graduates and guests from the unseasonably warm May sunshine — President Jerry E. Hudson addressed the participants. Among his words were these excerpts providing reminders to the newest alumni as they experience the life transitions ahead:

“ There is something special about this place.

There may be other campuses equally loved — where truth is served equally well — but our hearts declare what our heads acknowledge — there is something special about this place ...

Some of you are sure that life's best years lie immediately ahead; some of you fear that life's best years may have already been lived. Some of you believe that, if you never see this place again, it will be too soon. And some of you have already begun to miss Willamette and you will miss it even more next August when a new school year begins without you.

Carolyn Forché

Rudolfo Anaya

Julian Bond

Guarneri String Quartet

Noted speakers:

- Louis Simpson, Pulitzer Prize-winning poet.
- Rudolfo Anaya, writer and University of New Mexico professor emeritus.
- Carolyn Forché, poet and human rights activist.

A new Biology Hall of Fame honored five past professors. Those present at the induction were Libby Yocom and Don Breakey. The others were Morton Peck, Cecil Monk and Martha Springer, all deceased.

The College of Law launched a new student externship program.

The women's volleyball team won its fifth straight Northwest Conference title. The women's soccer team earned its first appearance in the national tournament, finishing with the best record in the NAIA, 21-2-1. Women's soccer also received much press coverage because the team included three sets of twins. The football team advanced to the NAIA playoffs for the first time in 28 years.

SPRING SEMESTER

The College of Liberal Arts faculty adopted a new General Education curriculum, which will be effective for the class entering in Fall Semester 1998. It will broaden and enhance language and quantitative requirements and make the Bachelor of Arts the primary undergraduate degree.

Julian Bond, civil rights activist, was the keynote speaker at the Martin Luther King Jr. Celebration.

Atkinson Lecture Series: Stephen Ambrose, historian and author.

A performance by the Guarneri String Quartet capped the year for the Distinguished Artists Series.

The baseball team set a school record for wins in a season with 28. The women's swimming team finished third at the NAIA championships.

W WILLAMETTE UNIVERSITY • HIGHLIGHTS OF THE YEAR

JUNE 1, 1996 – MAY 31, 1997

SUMMER

✦ A new Science Collaborative Research Program funded by a grant from the M.J. Murdock Charitable Trust enabled undergraduate students to spend the summer doing research. The students also gained experience in writing and presenting results.

✦ The Atkinson Graduate School of Management hosted an Applied Public Finance Symposium, attended by scholars, civil servants, business professionals and elected officials from the United States and Canada.

✦ The Collins Science Center was renovated to accommodate the departments of earth science, physics, mathematics and computer science.

FALL SEMESTER

✦ Jerry E. Hudson announced that he would step down from the presidency after the 1996-97 academic year and 17 years of service to Willamette University. Throughout the year, he made a series of farewell visits to many of Willamette's 24 alumni clubs.

✦ The $7.1 million E.W. Olin Science Center, which houses biology and chemistry, was dedicated September 5. Celebratory events included a lecture by Leroy Hood, who is William Gates III Professor of Biomedical Sciences, University of Washington School of Medicine.

✦ Two new endowed chairs were filled, bringing Willamette's total to 10. The first Taul Watanabe Professor of Science is Gary Tallman, professor of biology. Virginia Furtwangler is the first Hallie Brown Ford Professor of English and Writer in Residence; she writes as Ann Copeland.

✦ Professors recognized for excellence:

FACULTY SABBATICALS

Claudia Burton, College of Law, fall: Burton researched and wrote chapters for a book about the Oregon Constitution.

Catherine Collins, rhetoric and media studies, chair, academic year: Collins spent her sabbatical on three projects: first, she completed a text on the history of rhetorical theory; second, she wrote papers on American culture, the Gulf War, the intifada, and environmental rhetoric and revised several other papers for publication; and third, she learned more about video and audio editing in order to develop case studies in media framing.

Ludwig Fischer, German, academic year: Fischer researched and wrote a book with the working title Where the Novelties End. Begins the Novel: Herman Hesse as a Literary Teacher of Personal Development and the Importance of World Masterpieces in Higher Education Today. During the fall of 1996, he worked and studied with leading scholars in Germany and Austria. In the spring, he prepared a book manuscript on the subject.

Meredyth Goldberg Edelson, psychology, spring: she finished writing two studies on antisocial behaviors in children; revised a paper on establishing intelligence norms in autistic individuals; and completed studies on degree of autism related to diagnosis and on drinking behaviors in college and high school samples. She also wrote an initial paper based on the pilot study of her current ongoing research investigating the efficacy of an educational program for nonabusive mothers to help their children cope with the effects of domestic violence.

Maureen VanderMay, College of Law, spring: VanderMay wrote a chapter on antitrust issues for a book (edited by Professor Gwen Griffith) on health care transactions. She revised and updated a chapter on advertising and solicitation in the Oregon State Bar's book entitled The Ethical Lawyer, and completed and circulated to various law reviews an article titled "The Misunderstood Origins of the Plenary Power Doctrine." She also worked on a new article concerning the lessons government can learn from the corporations law literature on the separation of ownership from control.

Patricia Varas, Spanish, fall: Varas worked on her book manuscript about the Uruguayan poet Delmira Agustini. The five chapters she proposes to write will be "cultural essays" centering around Agustini's life, including a depiction of life in Montevideo at the turn of the century, topics dealing with literary and feminist theory, a biographical essay on the life and family of Agustini, and several chapters dealing with her poetry in relation to the movement known as modernism.

Valerie Vollmar, College of Law, spring: Vollmar worked to complete her casebook, An Introduction to Trusts and Estates.

RETIREMENTS

Steven Archer retired in December 1996. He came to Willamette in 1973 as founding dean of the Atkinson School. His B.A., M.A. and Ph.D. were all from the University of Minnesota. Since 1979 he had been the Guy F. Atkinson Professor of Economics and Finance.

Marge Patton, Summer Conferences, was hired in 1976. In February 1984, she began working with Summer Conferences in a position that grew to director level before her retirement.

George Struble, Computer Science, taught at Willamette University from 1982-97. He earned his A.B. at Swarthmore College, and his M.S. and Ph.D. from the University of Wisconsin-Madison.

Marge (Coker) Walker began as a housekeeper in 1975 and later became supervisor of Custodial & Housekeeping Services.

IN MEMORIAM

Ryan Andrew Martin, student, August 2, 1996

Donna Betts, housekeeper, August 17, 1996

Andrew Holt, student, October 26, 1996

Paul Beal, associate professor emeritus of romantic languages, November 27, 1996

Carolee D. Horn, student, December 21, 1996

Valencia Alexia Alvarado, student, February 24, 1997

Al Ferrin, trustee, May 10, 1997

Mary Ann Johns, art, spring; Johns, an artist whose specialty is in the field of photography, embarked on a study trip to the Southwestern United States to research historical and contemporary photography at the Universities of Arizona and New Mexico. Concurrent with her study of photography, she studied historical and contemporary ceramics of the Southwest to enhance her teaching of both photography and ceramics. Second, she created a new body of computer/digitally inspired work in photography. These works will be in a public exhibition in the Willamette Valley.

Susan Kephart, biology, academic year; Kephart developed research and teaching methodologies that will engage undergraduates and high school students in cooperative projects involving plant reproductive biology. Willamette students will serve as mentors for high school students from under-represented groups. Second, she updated and revised courses in field botany and plant systematics while improving her knowledge of the Oregon flora and plant conservation biology, and by creating new laboratory exercises. Third, she analyzed and summarized data from prior research efforts into manuscripts for scholarly publication.

John Koprowski, biology, fall; Koprowski collected data and photographs from specimens of tree squirrels at major natural history museums in the United States and England for inclusion in technical publications. Second, in conjunction with a scholarly meeting in Canberra, Australia, he developed a postsession course. He also continued two research projects on the behavioral ecology of two rare mammals of the Southwest, and continued collaboration on a book concerning two species of tree squirrels. Finally, he organized the International Colloquium on the Ecology of Tree Squirrels held in Oregon in 1997.

Lane McGaughey, religion, academic year; McGaughey spent his sabbatical in residence at Cambridge University in England working with Professor Daryl Schmidt of Texas Christian University on a new edition of A Greek Grammar of the New Testament and Other Early Christian Literature by Blass, Debrunner and Funk for the University of Chicago Press.

Junpei Sekino, math, academic year; Sekino had three sabbatical projects: a study of dispersion of pollutants and raindrops in the atmosphere; investigations of Newton's Method for solutions of nonlinear equations and for equations with a complex variable, and a computer graphics study to convert polygons such as triangles and rectangles into curved figures such as circles. He collaborated with Dr. Morachevsky of St. Petersburg State University in an interdisciplinary study involving geophysics and ecology with mathematics and computer graphics.

Todd Silverstein, chemistry, academic year; Silverstein devoted fall 1996 to completing several papers for publication, to collaborating on an Introductory Chemistry text, and to writing lecture notes for two courses. The manuscript revision involved publications with undergraduate research students. During spring semester 1997, he worked with Dr. John Allen at the University of Lund in a continued collaboration which began with Professor Silverstein's Fulbright Fellowship at the University of Lund in 1993.

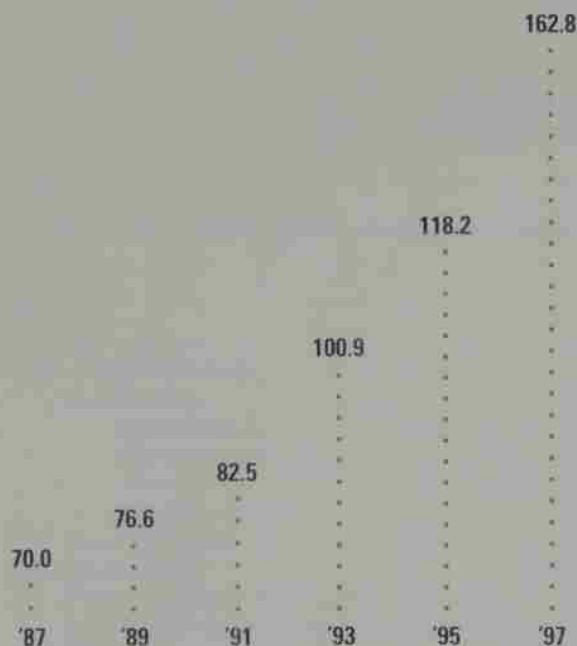

Susan Smith, College of Law, fall; Smith was awarded a grant by the University of Sydney in Sydney, Australia, to work on two research projects, "Enforcement of Environmental Law in Australia and the United States: A Comparative Analysis" and "The Domestic Implementation of Ecologically Sustainable Development in Selected Countries."

Jeffrey Standen, College of Law, fall; Standen was a Scholar-in-Residence at the University of Virginia School of Law. He completed two articles, "Remedies Considered: The Cathedral from a Different View," and "Unconstitutional Vicarious Criminal Liability." He also prepared course materials for a class in Advanced Criminal Law, which he taught in the spring at Willamette.

Tom Talbott, philosophy, spring; Talbott produced a booklength manuscript entitled Reason, Revelation and Religious Pluralism. He will examine in particular the idea of revelation and the related idea of inspiration, not only as it appears in Western tradition but as it appears in Eastern religions as well. He researched selected sacred writings in the Eastern tradition such as The Upanishad, The Bhagavad Gita, and The Quran, as well as the sacred writings of the Jewish and Christian traditions.

John Tenny, School of Education, academic year; Tenny proposed two projects investigating advances in educational technology. First, he examined how computer software enhances student-directed thinking and problem solving, particularly for special needs students. His research and interviews of software developers and educational researchers were conducted through the Center of Electronic Study at the University of Oregon. Second, he advised the Inspiration Software

STEWARDSHIP

ENDOWED FUNDS 1987-1997

MARKET VALUE AT MAY 31 ($ MILLIONS)

FINANCIAL HIGHLIGHTS

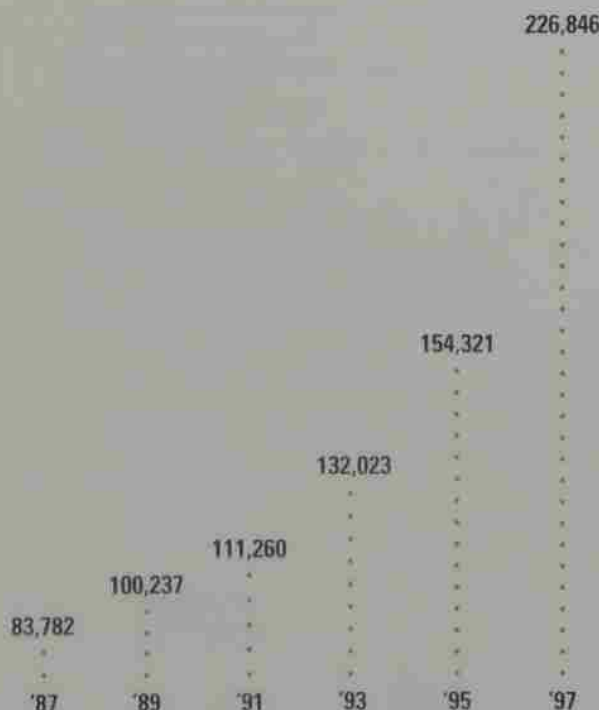

◆ Willamette's 1996-97 financial statements reflect the continuation of a long trend of growing financial strength. The year 1996-97 was the 20th consecutive one of balanced operating budgets for the University. Contributions of $11,558,000 were the highest in Willamette's history. The continuing strong securities markets combined with careful investing helped endowment and life income funds grow by over $21 million.

◆ For 1996-97 tuition revenue and student financial aid were both higher than budgeted because of higher enrollment in the College of Liberal Arts. Strong enrollment was due both to more new students than planned and to higher retention of previously enrolled students.

◆ The $11,558,000 record level of contributions on an accrual basis continued the trend of growing support among Willamette's constituents and was achieved at a total fund-raising cost of $962,000 or just over 8 percent of funds raised. Of those gifts, $8,539,000 will ultimately go to the University's endowment where most of the resulting investment income is designated to support student scholarships and endowed professorships.

◆ The endowment and life income funds assets grew by over $21 million during 1996-97 from $141,761,000 to $162,817,000. The largest component of that growth was investment income of $18,487,000. Of that amount $5,970,000 was used to support University operations leaving a reinvested balance of $12,517,000. That reinvested income combined with the new contributions of $8,539,000 explains the $21,056,000 in growth.

◆ Overall, Willamette's total net assets grew by over $23 million during 1996-97 to a total of $226,846,000. The University's continued financial strength helps assure that its high quality educational programs will be available to future generations of students.

JASON LEE SOCIETY

The Jason Lee Society recognizes individuals who contributed $5,000 to $9,999 to Willamette during the fiscal year. The society is named for Jason Lee, the principal founder of the University. He left his entire estate to Willamette and his gift continues to touch the lives of students attending his beloved school more than 150 years later.

WALLER SOCIETY

The Waller Society honors individuals who contributed $1,000 to $4,999 to Willamette during the fiscal year. This society is named for Alvan F. Waller, who carried on the tradition of service and devotion begun by Jason Lee. It was Alvan Waller, as the University's agent, who bore the responsibility for developing the financial well-being of the University as it grew. He raised the funds for and supervised the construction of what is now known as Waller Hall, which was completed in 1867.

WILLAMETTE UNIVERSITY ANNUAL GIFTS REPORT

THANK YOU

WILLAMETTE UNIVERSITY IS GRATEFUL TO THE DONORS WHO HAVE MADE CONTRIBUTIONS DURING THE 1996-97 FISCAL YEAR. Matching gifts received from employers have been included when determining the appropriate giving society memberships. Titles have been omitted wherever possible to save space. If you are a donor, but your name does not appear in the 1996-97 President's Report, one of two things may have happened: 1) your gift may have been received after Willamette's fiscal year ended May 31, 1997; or 2) in the process of generating the annual report lists, your name was inadvertently excluded. Inquiries or requests for further information should be directed to: Maraie Noble, Director of Donor Relations and Special Events, Willamette University, 900 State Street, Salem, OR 97301 (503) 370-6726.

STEP SOCIETY

The Step Society commemorates the historic old step at Waller Hall, worn down overtime by the feet of so many people. The society honors individuals who contributed $500 to $999 to Willamette during the fiscal year. Contributors to the Step Society provide vital support for the academic footing needed by new generations of students who cross Willamette's threshold.

1842 SOCIETY

The 1842 Society recognizes individuals who contributed $150 to $499 to Willamette during the fiscal year. The largest giving society, the 1842 Society commemorates the year of the University's founding and represents the base on which the future Willamette will be built.

EATON HALL

Abel E. Eaton

In History of Union and Wallowa Counties, Abel E. Eaton is described as one of the giants of achievement in the West with "great powers of adaptability and talents to enable him to fathom to the bottom any line of industry that he may undertake."

Eaton was born in 1834 in Conway, N.H., ninth of 11 children. Almost entirely self-educated, Eaton taught for a number of years throughout what was then the far west — Indiana, Ohio and Illinois. Not long after one of the schools where he taught was disbanded by General Rosecrans of the Union Army, who exercised the right of eminent domain and used the school as a war telegraph office and drill ground, Eaton headed west. With his ox team and $7.50 in cash, Eaton stopped in the place where Baker City, Ore., now stands.

With all but $1 of his meager cash capital, he purchased a scythe and cut 40 tons of wild hay which he quickly sold, using the profit to purchase six yoke of oxen and two wagons. With the ox teams, he hauled freight between Umatilla landing and Boise basin, stopping at mining places along the way. Eaton dealt mostly in groceries, and within six years he had 100 yoke of oxen and two six-mule teams.

Around 1867 Eaton married Mary E. Baird and settled on 320 acres in the Grande Ronde Valley of Union County. There he began a farm, which he ran in addition to the freight business. Later he opened a woolen mill in Union, Ore., and by the late 1880s owned more than 4,000 acres in that area.

For one year Eaton was mayor of Union and was an active member of the Methodist Church. He helped build two school houses in the Union area.

When Eaton died in 1917 he left a portion of his estate to Willamette, to be held as the Eaton Endowment Fund of Willamette University.

Eaton Hall was built in 1909 and renovated in 1982. It houses the departments of history, religion, English, sociology and philosophy.

WALLER HALL

Alvan Waller

Even though it was as a missionary that Alvan Waller first came to the Oregon country, he saw the potential for growth shortly after his arrival with the Great Reinforcement.

His mission was established on land held by John McLoughlin of the Hudson's Bay Company. Jason Lee had approached McLoughlin to use a parcel of McLoughlin's land as a site for the mission. This site, near the falls on the Willamette River, seemed ideal because of the many Indians who came there to fish and to trade with the Hudson's Bay Company station. McLoughlin had agreed. And in 1840 Waller established a branch mission there. On Sundays Waller would hold as many meetings as the length of the day would permit; and at the mission house, he and his wife entertained and served large numbers of strangers traveling to and from the main mission at Salem.

However, after about a year, Waller's letters to the East were concerned far less with the Indians than with the profits to be made. He pointed out the need for "many wholesome settlers, embracing some capitalists," and complained about the monopolistic practices of the Hudson's Bay Company and argued that the first need was for the government of the United States to extend its jurisdiction and protection over the country. Other missionaries described Waller, in various letters from the period, as a strong man, "but not so free from the world."

Waller described himself as "a jack of all trades, a joiner, carpenter, receiver and forwarder of goods, boatmaker, salmon salter, farmer, blacksmith, nurse and physician to say nothing of being an evangelist to the natives."

In 1842 Waller laid claim to the land which John McLoughlin had allowed the missionaries to use, beginning a legal battle which would last two years. For many writers of Oregon history, in fact, Waller is best-remembered for this land dispute with John McLoughlin. McLoughlin insisted that he had claimed the parcel in 1829 for a saw mill, and Waller founded his claim on the fact that he was a citizen of the United States [he was acting under a bill passed by the U.S. Congress in 1841 allowing land claims of 640 acres], causing McLoughlin to respond: "... [Waller] had no right, so far as I am informed, to commit an injustice by invading the rights of others, even though those parties should not be natural born American citizens. Even [the bill] has no clause excluding foreigners of any nation from becoming Citizens of Oregon, but states that every white male inhabitant shall be allowed to possess 640 acres of land. In regard to his taking possession of it in 1840, I am astonished that the Gentleman should say so. He was and is a servant of the M.E. Mission, earning their money, and placed there for their service by the superintendent the Rev'd Jason Lee who writes me in his letter: 'I had not the most distant idea when I placed Mr. Waller there that he would set up a private claim to the land.'"

Although his issue was settled by an agreement signed April 4, 1844, the controversy extended for at least another century. Many local people, for decades, assumed the claim was McLoughlin's private property, and severely condemned the action of the missionaries in contesting it.

It was also in 1844 that Waller began his work toward establishing the first school in the Pacific Northwest — at that time called the Oregon Institute, founded in 1842. In a letter written that year, he wrote: "I want more than anything else a chance to educate and Christianize my children. And in order to do this I have ventured to pledge two hundred dollars for the erection of an institution of learning in this country, entitled the Oregon Institute [later Willamette University]. The frame is now up for the main building and is being enclosed."

Throughout the rest of his life, Waller was one of the staunchest supporters of the Oregon Institute, serving as managing agent and on the board of trustees, where he served until his death in 1873. When the time came that a new university building was needed, Waller got in his buggy and made endless rounds of the valley — from Portland to Eugene — seeking donations for the building fund. He supported his family by selling off pieces of his donation land claim. Money earned in his position as university agent was rarely accepted.

✦ University Hall was first built in 1867, suffered through two fires and was most recently renovated in 1989. It was renamed Waller Hall in 1912. It houses Cone Chapel and administrative offices.

BAXTER HALL

Bruce Baxter

During his life, Bruce Baxter worked his way to prominence in not one, but two, fields. As an educator, he served at three institutions, ultimately becoming president of Willamette University. As a churchman, he served as a minister for many years, ultimately becoming a bishop governing 550 Methodist churches.

Born in an Ohio log cabin in 1892, Baxter attended Oberlin College, where he earned his bachelor's and Master of Arts degrees, and then the School of Theology at Boston University. After serving as field secretary for the Methodist Church, Baxter began his career as an educator at Mount Union College.

Baxter then moved to the University of Southern California, where he served as professor, chaplain, and dean of the School of Religion. Along with his wife, Martha, Baxter came to Willamette in 1934 at a time when the University sought a president who would give the greatest exposure.

Though he only served as Willamette's president until 1940, his leadership brought the greatest growth in any six-year period — up to that time — in the history of the University. The enrollment rose from 548 to 870, the faculty increased from 38 to 53, and two new buildings, Collins Science Center and the university library, were added to the campus.

Baxter's contribution is remembered as more than quantitative. In a tribute to his predecessor, President G. Herbert Smith said, "In the internal affairs of the campus, no two people could have endeared themselves to the Willamette family, faculty, students and trustees alike, more than did Bruce and Martha Baxter."

After leaving the University in 1940, he remained involved in the institution through service on the board of trustees. However, his focus shifted to the church, and he accepted the office of bishop. He remained in that office until his death in 1947.

Upon his death, the respect he had earned was obvious. Baxter was remembered in memorials and tributes around the nation — from as far away as New York. His local influence was powerful as well; The Portland Journal, The Oregonian, and The Oregon Statesman all ran editorial tributes to Baxter, remembering him as a man who contributed greatly to both education and to the Methodist Church in Oregon.

✦ Baxter Hall was built in 1948 and houses approximately 115 residents.

R.A. BOOTH SOCIETY

The R.A. Booth Society was established in 1990. Members have affirmed the University motto "not unto ourselves alone are we born" by establishing planned gifts which benefit the University. In the spirit of the society's namesake, these members will provide for future generations at Willamette University through bequests, life insurance policies, life income trusts and life estates.

If you have named Willamette University as a beneficiary in your will or a life insurance policy, but are not listed, please let us know. We would like to express our thanks. At their request, some members' names are not published here.

DONEY HALL

Carl Gregg Doney

"President Doney's coming to Willamette was so quiet that I have forgotten the manner of his arrival. But his departure was marked by a series of events of high distinction with tokens and gifts of honor and affection." So wrote James T. Matthews in his autobiography, Turn Right to Paradise.

Carl Doney came to Willamette in 1915 and served until 1934. Events marking his tenure included the burning of Waller Hall and the old gymnasium and, more importantly, World War I and its devastating effect on the University.

Doney was born in 1867 and raised in Ohio. After going as far as he could in the one-room school house near his home, he asked his father for the use of three acres of farm ground and worked all summer to raise the crops that would pay his way to college. The next fall, with $150 in his pocket, he hitched horses to a buggy and headed for Ohio State. Although he studied law and passed the Ohio bar, he was drawn more and more toward the ministry. After less than a year as a practicing attorney, he was appointed to the Hamline Church in Washington, D.C., where he served two successful years before being asked to become the president of the West Virginia Wesleyan College at Buckhannon. Of his time spent as college president, he said: "There is a glamour about a college presidency, which the president himself may feel for the first month or six weeks. After that he will understand how saints could suffer and like martyrdom, though he knows his work will make no saint of him."

When Doney came to Willamette in 1915, the endowment was about $500,000 and the University was more than $30,000 in debt, to the point that Doney said he hated running into trades people on the street. Better buildings, higher standards, more students and certainly more money was needed. There was no architectural harmony, Doney wrote, with the buildings "being as unlike as animals in a zoological garden." He said Waller Hall had architecture that looked as if "the architect had left town, instructing the office boy to plan for 50 rooms and use a lot of lumber." The gymnasium was a wooden shell that let in rain.

During Doney's first year, the debt was reduced by about one-fourth, and the second year's enrollment in liberal arts up more than 67. However, these successes were short-lived, and in April 1917 the U.S. went to war. Attendance dropped, income decreased, and the University entered its own period of confusion and hardship. Asked by the National YMCA to go to France to speak to the soldiers, Doney had the opportunity to meet with nearly all the 60 Willamette "boys" serving there. From January to July 1918, Doney toured the battlefields and cities, speaking to soldiers. His experiences left him a strong pacifist who spoke out in his autobiography against war. Ten Willamette students died in World War I, "a dreadful toll," wrote Doney, "for one small college five thousand miles removed from the scene of the conflict."

Under Doney admission to Willamette became more selective and tuition was raised. The students, Doney felt, should help bear the burden of the cost of their education. The honor society Alpha Kappa Nu was founded, honor courses were added and courses were separated into upper and lower divisions. Student health services were added, and in 1927 Willamette was placed on the list of approved institutions by the Association of American Universities.

Doney retired because of health reasons in 1934, returning to Columbus, Ohio, where he lived the rest of his life. He had gone a long way while Willamette's president toward reaching his goal: "The best college in America for five hundred selected students."

* Doney Hall was built in 1955 with an addition in 1967, and houses approximately 110 residents, as well as the offices of Residence Life and Campus Safety.

SHEPARD HOUSE

Cyrus Shepard

Cyrus Shepard was born Aug. 14, 1798, in Acton, Mass. He was converted at a Methodist revival in 1826, and was a teacher in Weston, Mass., when he was called to go with Daniel and Jason Lee to the Oregon country as a missionary teacher to the Indians. In the Chronicles of Willamette, Robert Gatke wrote that Shepard was often referred to as the "Saint of the Oregon Mission." However, Shepard always felt his efforts fell short of his mission. In Jason Lee: Prophet of the New Oregon, Cornelious Brosnan wrote that Shepard's failure could not be blamed on his own efforts. "That his intelligent and heroic efforts did not result in notable missionary achievements was due to the impoverished and diseased condition of the disappearing race with which he labored," Brosnan concluded.

Cecil Dryden, author of Give All to Oregon! said of Shepard: "He was a real shepherd to his flock and had no personal ambitions and no political aspirations. He was filled with the spirit of Christ, and the Indian children loved and trusted him." Yet Malcolm Clark Jr. in Eden Seekers called him the "most pitiable of Oregon's early missionaries." Certainly his time in Oregon was plagued with illness, depression and a sense of a mission unfulfilled.

But Cyrus Shepard's story is best told in his own words, taken from his diary.

March 4, 1834. "Took leave of my aged mother, brother and friends, the place of my birth and youthful sportiveness, the grave of my father and all those scenes rendered sacred by the recollections of days gone ..."

May 16, 1834. "Journey much as usual with nothing especially worthy of notice. Dined on cold boiled beef, corn and tea - may gratitude to that Benevolent Being who gives me these good gifts richly to enjoy, be most prominent in my breast ... have lost ground of late in spirituality by giving way to impatience, fretfulness, etc., when I had ought to be meek and humble, patient and enduring."

Sept. 23, 1834. [At Fort Vancouver, where, due to illness, he spent much of the fall as Jason and Daniel Lee built the mission at its Willamette site.] "Go into the school at six o'clock when the children assemble for prayers and remain till the bell rings for breakfast, and thus continue through the day having only an hour for breakfast and another for dinner. Feel somewhat depressed."

Oct. 6, 1834. "Enjoyed myself well in school during the day, but experienced an unusual depression of spirits in the evening and uncertain feeling of loneliness which prevented my sleeping till quite late. Desire more conformity to the Divine image and patience to suffer the will of God."

Nov. 8, 1834. "Unwell in body and discontented with my present situation. Resolved to leave here the first opportunity."

Nov. 29, 1834. "A year this day since I first saw Br. J. Lee and learned that he was desirous to have me accompany him this side of the Rocky Mountains. How rapid the flight of time and how little have I done in the glorious cause since that period."

Dec. 21, 1834. "Passed the day quietly in reading the scripture ... and in meditation and prayer. Feel the Spirit of Truth stirring within me exciting to greater watchfulness, diligence and untiring effort to be useful in this remote region ..."

Aug. 19, 1835. "This morning a little before three o'clock died Kenotish, one of the Indian lads who came to live with us last April, his disease was pulmonary consumption ..."

Aug. 25, 1835. "Kenotish's brother and three other Indians arrived having come to see him not knowing that he was dead, at their request his body was disinterred and the coffin opened, when they expressed their satisfaction and put some shells, a blanket and handkerchief in the coffin, they sat down and wept bitterly."

Dec. 25, 1835. "Br. Lee preached from the second chapter of Matthew, O that I may have much of the mind of him whose birth we this day celebrate."

That was Shepard's last entry in his diary. Four years later he died. His last few days were described in a letter written by his widow: "Early in the fall of 1839 Mr. Shepard began to suffer again from the pain in his limb, which continued to increase until he was obliged to apply his former remedies [being bled, by lancet and cupping-glass], which failed to afford any relief. Finally amputation was seen as the last chance for his recovery. In December the doctor amputated his leg. He bore it very patiently, as he did all his sufferings: 'God is good!' he would often exclaim." He died on the last day of 1839 at the age of 40.

Shepard House was built in 1963 and houses approximately 46 residents. Cyrus Shepard's original diary is now in the Yale University Library.

YORK HOUSE

Emily J. York, Class of 1859

Twenty-one years before the first Equal Rights Amendment was proposed, Willamette's first graduate, Emily York, put her job on the line for her belief in equal pay for equal work. After graduating from Willamette in 1859, York went to Santa Clara, Calif., to teach in a public school, but returned to Oregon in 1861, taking a position as teacher and preceptress at the Portland Academy, a boarding school for young men and women. When she learned that her $600 annual salary was $400 a year less than a male professor, she asked for a raise. She was denied the raise because "women could not expect to receive salaries as large as men."

"I couldn't see why I should not be paid what the work was worth," York told a reporter in 1915, "so I resigned in 1864."

York had been born in Illinois in 1835 and was the daughter of the Rev. John W. York and Mary Collier York. The family moved to Oregon in 1852 and settled in the Corvallis area.

Emily York enrolled at Willamette in 1855 and lived in the home of the university president, the Rev. Francis S. Hoyt, and his wife, Phoebe. It was the custom at the time for the president to arrange housing for all the students in order to be sure they lived in good, Christian homes. He had accompanied York on her side-saddle ride from Corvallis, so he made her a member of his own family for the next four years.

At Willamette York would most likely have studied English grammar, composition, mathematics, French, Latin, natural science, logic, history, mental philosophy and moral science. As it was deemed inappropriate in those days for a young woman to receive a "bachelor's" degree, York was awarded a degree as Mistress of English Literature.

After York left Portland Academy, she took a job as compositor for the Pacific Christian Advocate, setting type for the newspaper. She had not left behind her fight for women's rights.

"One day I found on the copy book a communication from a very illiterate man against women's rights. His grammar and spelling were original and peculiar. He argued that women didn't know enough to vote, and that men, having more education and experience than women, should receive higher wages." When she set the type for the man's letter, she left in the errors. However, she had to correct it before it went to print.

In the early 1870s York was living in Olympia, Wash., caring for her ailing sister when she met A.W. Moore, a schoolteacher and Olympia's first postmaster. She married Moore in 1872, but their marriage was short-lived as he died three years later. York died on Dec. 8, 1915.

✦ York House was built in 1959 and serves as a residence hall for 24 students.

SMITH AUDITORIUM

G. Herbert Smith

When G. Herbert Smith stepped into the presidency of Willamette in 1942, the institution was at its lowest point. Much of the student body had disappeared because of the war; the class of 1943 graduated only 30 percent of its members.

In an address he called "The Changing Role of the College Administrator," Smith wryly reflected on his early years at Willamette, exemplifying how bleak the times were: "At one point during the first year of administration, the Professor of English called the President to inform him that the plaster had fallen off the ceiling. Since the lone maintenance man was experiencing a major problem with the college boilers at that moment, the President accepted the lesser crisis, took the broom and dustpan and cleaned up the fallen plaster."

Smith's willingness to "clean up the fallen plaster" is one reason why Willamette persevered through the war years. And not only did the institution endure — it grew immensely during Smith's 27-year presidency.

Smith's leadership brought growth to nearly every part of the University. The number of campus buildings grew from 11 to 30 during the period, and the campus took on the appearance that it maintains today. Doney Hall, the Fine Arts Building and Auditorium, the Bishop Memorial Health Center, Baxter Hall, the Matthews Complex and the Lee and York Houses were all built during Smith's presidency. During this time, Willamette also annexed land in Bush's Pasture Park where McCulloch Stadium was built.

Smith was also instrumental in increasing the endowment, and began an alumni relations program to involve the University's alumni in its operation. Before Smith, there was no alumni office, but he developed an office that would keep alumni informed through regular publications such as the Willamette Alumnus.

He also helped advance the scholarship of the University by striving to bring in the best faculty and by enhancing the programs the institution offered. Smith greatly increased scholarships and awards available to students, and created the off-campus studies program when he added a semester of study at American University in Washington, D.C., and approved a sister university relationship with Japan's International College of Commerce and Economics (which is now Tokyo International University).

After leaving Willamette's presidency in 1969, Smith served as the university provost for about a year before becoming the executive director of The Collins Foundation. After about six years in that position, Smith retired completely. He died of cancer in 1980.

✧ The 1,250-seat Smith Auditorium was constructed as part of the Fine Arts Building in 1955 and named in honor of G. Herbert Smith in 1970.

ATKINSON GRADUATE SCHOOL OF MANAGEMENT

George H. Atkinson

George Herring Atkinson was born in 1905 at Colorado Springs, Colo., the fifth generation of what might have been considered a construction dynasty. His grandfather and great-grandfather were contractors in Pennsylvania and his great-great-grandfather followed the same profession in Yorkshire, England. The Atkinson family began building in the U.S. in 1830 when John Atkinson emigrated from England to Pennsylvania and started a masonry contracting business. As they built, the Atkinsons moved west, and by the first part of the century, Guy Atkinson was building highways in California.

George Atkinson took on his first job at the age of 11, running the commissary during the summer on the Grapevine Highway project near Bakersfield, Calif. From 1921, he worked regularly during school vacations at everything from driving trucks to learning office routine.

Atkinson was sent to Willamette University as a freshman in 1922, spending his last year and earning his degree in 1926 from Stanford University. Shortly after graduation, he married his Willamette sweetheart, Mildred McKillican, and joined, as a full partner, the firm his father had founded. He remained a partner until 1934, when the company was incorporated and he became vice president. In 1938 he became general manager, and in 1943 was named president.

Under his leadership, the company created some of the largest monuments in the country, including Grand Coulee Dam. At Grand Coulee, George was the general manager for Mason-Walsh-Atkinson-Kier Co. on the original $40,000,000 contract for construction of the low section of the dam. In addition, he supervised the construction of Denison Dam in Texas, and of the Hansen Flood Control Dam near Los Angeles. These two dams were two of the world's highest rolled type earth filled dams. They also built Mud Mountain Dam, one of the world's highest earth and rock filled dams. During World War II, the company performed much of the Army building construction program in the Aleutians, and in a joint venture completed the Roosevelt Navy Base at Long Beach, Calif., plus work on the Hanford atomic plant and other war projects. In conjunction with the Willamette Iron and Steel Corp., the company built many millions of dollars worth of ships for the Navy.

The Atkinson Company under George's leadership was noted for more than large dams, however. It was also known for exceptional fairness in dealing with employees, as well as an interest in employees' welfare, initiating a bonus system in which neither of the Atkinsons nor the other directors could participate.

Three of George and Mildred Atkinson's four children attended Willamette and the family's respect for the institution grew. It became important to George to return something meaningful to the University which had meant so much to him. This desire led to the founding of the Atkinson Fund, a major endowment which continues to support work of the campus chaplain's office and the Atkinson Lecture Series, as well as providing major scholarship support and funds for special projects not possible from the regular university budget.

Atkinson was elected to the board of trustees in 1939 and was chosen in 1964 to replace his close friend Truman Wesley Collins as chairman of the board, where he served until 1975. A goal shared by Atkinson and then-president G. Herbert Smith was to add a third school — a school teaching business administration — to the University. In 1964 discussion of the new school was begun, and in late 1971, after years of planning, deliberating and fund raising through a campaign called the Fund for Educational Excellence, the board of trustees, led by Atkinson, voted in favor of creating the school. The school officially opened its doors in 1974 and the building — named the Seeley G. Mudd building in honor of a $1 million gift from the Seeley G. Mudd Foundation — was dedicated in 1976. The new school was named the George H. Atkinson School of Administration. In 1981 the name was changed to the George H. Atkinson Graduate School of Management to better reflect the mission of the school.

Atkinson was also active in the Methodist church and was deeply involved for many years with the Pacific School of Religion in Berkeley. For 30 years, from 1945 through 1975, Atkinson served on their board of directors. He died in 1978.

GEORGE PUTNAM UNIVERSITY CENTER George Putnam

In the 1920s George Putnam was the loudest voice in Oregon speaking out against the rising power of the Ku Klux Klan. His philosophy, in his own words, was: "... to expose everything that is crooked and to support anything that is sincere and right. ... Any time you put the truth up to the public, and explain it so they can understand it, they'll support you — so long as they feel you really stand for better government."

Putnam had already made a name for himself before he came to Salem in 1919, at the age of 47, to serve as editor of the Capital Journal. From 1907 until 1919 he had served as the editor of the Medford Mail Tribune, where he reported on a "murderous assault" by a railroad president against the mayor of Medford, a charge which led to Putnam being sued for libel. The subsequent court case laid the foundation for freedom of the press in Oregon.

After taking over the leadership of the Capital Journal, Putnam began writing editorial after editorial denouncing the Klan, as that secret, hooded organization began its fight for political control of the state. During the 1922 state election, he lashed out at the secret meetings, hooded gatherings and what he called the "un-American invisible Empire of bunk." When the Klan tried to organize a boycott of the paper, Putnam was supported by Salem merchants who voted to ignore the Klan.

The campaign of 1922 marked the high point of the Ku Klux Klan in Oregon. Its influence in the next two sessions of the State Legislative Assembly and in the municipal affairs of a few Oregon cities were still somewhat in evidence. But the heat was dying down and the bitterness fading out. In a few years all traces of Klan influence had disappeared.

In the 1930s Putnam took on a new fight, this time against lawlessness and violence in the labor movement. Putnam continued to run the newspaper until his retirement in 1952, at the age of 80. In 1955 he was the subject of a book by George Turnbull entitled An Oregon Crusader, and he received an honorary Doctor of Literature degree from Willamette. Putnam died in 1961.

~ The George Putnam University Center was dedicated Jan. 31, 1970.

GOUDY COMMONS

Grace, Class of 1922, and Elmer Goudy

Elmer Goudy was born in Chicago in 1900 and moved with his family to Portland in 1904. As a young man he was interested in agriculture and went to Oregon State University with the intention of majoring in agriculture. While there he became interested in law and after graduation entered the Stanford Law School, graduating with a Juris Doctor degree.

From law school, Goudy went into private practice in Portland until he caught the eye of Governor Julius Meier. Meier persuaded him to leave his practice and enter a second profession in service to the State of Oregon. Goudy became the first administrator of the State Public Welfare Department, but after 10 years there, he moved into a third profession with the Collins Pine Company.

Goudy admired and endorsed long-existing commitments of the Collins Pine Company to the welfare of employees and their community. The company undertook four tasks at its Chester, Calif., mill in order to provide a suitable environment for its 500 employees: good schools with competent faculty; trusts to support higher education scholarships; financing to build a medical clinic; and assistance to local churches.

In 1964 he became president of Collins Pine, and in 1974 he was elected chairman of the board, serving in that position until 1977. He also was president and director of Almanor Railroad Co., Big Creek and Telocaset Co. and vice president and director of Ostrander Construction Co. He served on the boards of U.S. National Bank of Oregon, the Oregon Museum of Science and Industry, the Medical Research Foundation of Oregon and the First United Methodist Church.

In 1926 Goudy married Grace Collins. Her family had a long history of civic involvement, including almost uninterrupted service on Willamette University's board of trustees since 1912. She was the daughter of Everell S. Collins, Willamette board of trustees 1912-1940, and Mary L. Collins, board of trustees 1943-1946; sister of Truman Wesley Collins '21, board of trustees 1926-1964. Grace served on the board beginning in 1946 and was granted life membership in 1971. Alan, son of Elmer and Grace Goudy, graduated from Willamette in 1951 and has served on the board of trustees since 1979.

Grace Collins Goudy was born in 1901 near Kelso, Wash., and spent some of her childhood in Pennsylvania, living in small sawmill towns in the northwest part of the state in the Allegheny Mountains. After four years the family returned to the Pacific Northwest. Grace attended Willamette where she majored in English, receiving her bachelor's degree in 1922.

Grace's principal interest over the years was in Willamette University. This was reflected in her contribution to Willamette's School of Music, providing recording equipment in 1975 in memory of her classmate and dear friend, Eva Roberts Nipps. She and Elmer created the Elmer and Grace Goudy Endowed Scholarship Fund and she supported the G. Herbert Smith Scholarship Fund, the Truman Wesley Collins Legal Center, College of Law library and programs, Alumni Annual Fund, the E.S. Collins Science Center, the Elmer and Grace Goudy Endowed Professorship in Public Management and Policy Analysis at the Atkinson Graduate School of Management, Hatfield Library and Goudy Commons. In addition to her contributions to education at Willamette, she was active with the YWCA board, the Doernbecher Hospital Guild, and The United Methodist Church. For her years of support and service to Willamette, she was awarded an honorary degree, Doctor of Humane Letters, in 1985.

Elmer Goudy died in 1979 and Grace Collins Goudy died in 1996.

— Goudy Commons, the University's first central dining area, was dedicated in 1992.

MATTHEWS HALL

James T. Matthews, Class of 1889

Called the "Mr. Chips" of Willamette University, James T. Matthews, class of 1889, was described by one of his former students as "... a gentle little man whose personality overflowed with quiet, dry humor and love of humanity and faith in simple Christian living." He was loved by students for his homespun chapel talks, his sense of humor which never grew stale with age, and his genuine interest in the thoughts and ideas of "modern" students.

In his own words, Matthews was: "... five feet seven inches, one hundred and forty pounds, just one long and slender neck, and only two legs - mostly very short. I really should state that my eyes are dark, for eyes do speak. Blue eyes, you know, say, 'Love me or I die.' Dark eyes threaten, 'Love me or you die.'"

Matthews was born in 1864 near Penzance, Cornwall, England, about 10 miles from Land's End. In 1872 on his eighth birthday, his father left for America, pledging to send for the family. His mother envisioned America as the land of opportunity, expecting that there her children could receive a college education.

In 1883, Matthews fulfilled his mother's dream and came to Willamette, lured by its "intellectual table spread with a feast of good things like mathematics, classics, philosophic literature." At that time, the University consisted of University Hall (now Waller Hall) enclosed by a five-board fence. When Matthews came to enroll, President Van Scoy took his tuition, asked a few questions about his studies and he was admitted. His first classes covered Virgil's Aeneid and beginning Greek. University Hall contained the large chapel, all the classrooms, the library and laboratories and administration office. The city was lighted by gas and the University with kerosene lamps. The toilets, he wrote, were "out behind and of the old-fashioned type." Salem as yet had no general sewer system.

It took Matthews six years to complete his college education as he often took time off from school to earn money to continue. He worked as a teacher and later as principal in area schools. In 1889 he graduated, completing his junior and senior requirements in one year. He wrote that one of the highlights of his years at Willamette was listening to a lecture by Lew Wallace, who wrote the book Ben Hur.

He was serving as principal of the Lincoln Grammar School when he was asked to return to Willamette in 1893 to teach mathematics, a position he held for the next 49 years.

In 1942 Matthews wrote his memoirs, Turn Right to Paradise, which he dedicated to his "foster mother," Willamette University. In his book he stated that he hoped "to be granted health and strength to round out a full half century of teaching." Sadly, Matthews fell one year short of his goal. In the spring of 1942, with examination papers graded and commencement approaching, he left campus early one evening, asking to be taken home because he didn't feel well. He also requested that someone record his grades for him. He died just a few days later.

In Turn Right to Paradise, Matthews described his as a very serene and happy life. When asked if there were anything he would change, he answered: "I have always wished to be tall and good-looking; to speak with a pipe-organ voice; to have sweet disposition, or better control over the one I carry around. And if I were rich I would own a sailboat and live where I could sail every afternoon."

* Matthews Hall was built in 1961 and houses approximately 95 students.

LAUSANNE HALL

The Lausanne

In the early morning hours of Oct. 9, 1839, carriages rattled through the streets of New York City, transporting a select group of ministers, carpenters, blacksmiths, teachers, farmers, cabinetmakers, and one physician to the end of Whitehall Dock. From there about 50 passengers boarded the tug Hercules for a short ride to a sailing ship anchored in the East River. Chartered by the Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church, the new vessel was copper fastened and had spacious, well-furnished staterooms. Josiah Spaulding, veteran of nine voyages to the East Indies, was commander of the 400-ton Lausanne, chosen to carry reinforcements to the mission fields of the Oregon territory.

As the passengers settled into their cabins, the ship's holds were filled with household goods, tools, farm implements, machinery for a sawmill and grist mill, window sashes and clothing donated for the Indians. Because of the nature of the expedition, no "spirituous liquors for freight or use" were admitted on board. Also loaded onto the ship was an engraved marble headstone for the grave of Anna Maria Pittman Lee, first wife of Jason Lee, supervisor of the Methodist mission in Oregon.

Lee was one of the travelers on board the Lausanne, along with his second wife, a bride of two months, Lucy Thomson Lee. Also on board were some of the most prominent men and women in Oregon's — and Willamette's — history, including: the Rev. Gustavus Hines; the Rev. Alvan Waller; the Rev. John P. Richmond; Lewis H. Judson; Josiah L. Parrish; Chloe Aurelia Clark; Henry and Laura Brewster; and George Abernethy, who later became Oregon's first governor.

Before setting sail, a farewell meeting had been held Oct. 3 in the Methodist Episcopal Church on Green Street for the mission family, and a second service was held to bless their endeavors once they boarded the Lausanne. An infant, the son of the Richmonds, was baptized during the shipboard service and, in honor of the ship's destination, the child was named Oregon.

The importance of the venture for the United States didn't go unnoticed. The New York Journal of Commerce dated Oct. 9, 1839, reported: "The sending of this large expedition to Oregon is an important event, whether considered in its religious or political bearings. Among other things, it will expedite the settlement of the Territory; and we may hope also that it will give a tone to the moral and religious character of the people."

Whether the expedition was primarily political or religious was an issue of much debate. A rumor persisted from the 1840s well into the 1920s about secret government funding for the passage of the missionaries. Although the missionary board of the church firmly stated that the group was not going to plant a colony, but to save souls, Josiah Parrish wrote in 1878 that the cost of the passage — $250 for adults; $125 for servants; children at the rate of $16 2/3 for each year of age; and freight $25 per ton — was underwritten by the U.S. government.

According to Parrish, Jason Lee had been given a subsidy from the Secret Service Fund of the government to assist in financing the transportation of the Lausanne passengers to Oregon. Parrish wrote that it was his understanding that the government paid the shipping company, Fry Farnham & Co., $50 dollars for each person on board. "I have no doubt," he wrote, "that that reinforcement was the settlement of the [Boundary] question really." In 1858 this rumor was also mentioned in a letter from the Rev. George H. Atkinson, a Congregational minister residing in Oregon. In a letter he wrote to his missionary board, he quoted a Methodist agent: "... they [the government] gave our missionaries $100,000 to come out to Oregon as colonists when there was danger the English would get the country." Atkinson suggested that the measure was introduced and approved in secret session of the Senate. However, in 1924 an article in Washington Historical Quarterly written by Edmond S. Meany stated that the rumor had no basis in fact. Meany quoted information received from the U.S. Treasury Department that "their [Treasury Department] accounts of expenditures from the Secret Service fund begin only in 1865, and the fund, as such, probably did not exist before that time."

Along the way the Lausanne made stops in Rio de Janeiro, Valparaiso and Honolulu, with Rev. Lee giving lectures on the history of the Willamette Mission during the last leg of the trip. Finally, in May, after 236 days at sea, the Lausanne arrived in Baker Bay at the mouth of the Columbia River, and began its slow trip, 90 miles up-river toward its final destination. Unfavorable winds and ignorance of the channel slowed progress and it wasn't until 6 p.m. on June 1, 1840, that the Lausanne dropped anchor at Fort Vancouver. The Great Reinforcement had arrived.

* Lausanne Hall was built in 1920 and houses approximately 120 students. It was renovated in 1985.

REQUESTED MATCHING GIFTS

Many individuals are eligible to have their gifts to Willamette matched by an employer or a spouse's employer. The University deeply appreciates the additional support, which increases the impact of individual gifts while counting toward a membership in the giving societies. The date on which a matching gift is granted may not coincide with Willamette University's fiscal year. This is a listing of donors who requested, during 1996-97 that their gifts be matched; donors for whom matching funds were received during the fiscal year are denoted with a * elsewhere throughout the Annual Report.

LESTLE J. SPARKS PHYSICAL EDUCATION AND RECREATION CENTER Lestle Sparks, Class of 1919

Lestle (Les) Sparks came to Willamette in 1915 as a freshman and for the next 64 years — until his death in 1979 — he dedicated his life to serving the University.

Sparks began his career at Willamette as general manager of the Associated Students in 1926. In 1943 he was named head coach and director of athletics, replacing Roy "Spec" Keene who entered Naval service that year.

Known as Mr. Willamette, Sparks at various times coached football, basketball and track, served as head of the physical education department and trainer for the athletic department. His great love, however, was tennis and from 1951 to 1961 his teams captured 10 straight Northwest Conference championships and went undefeated in league dual matches. He coached Bearcat tennis teams for 50 years and continued even after he retired in 1974.

He also enjoyed a distinguished career in high school sports, handling Salem's entry in the state high school basketball tournament in the early 1920s (serving as manager and director of the tourney which moved to Willamette during its second year) and refereeing high school games for 25 years.

Sparks began his sports career at Willamette in the old "Temple of Hygeia," which had been built in 1885 for $250. When the time came for a new athletic center, he was named honorary chairman of the Salem campaign to raise $200,000 in the community for the proposed $2.5 million Physical Education and Recreation Center. In collaboration with John Lewis, Bearcat basketball and baseball coach, he helped lay plans for the $2.6 million center that bears his name. Sparks retired in 1974, the year Sparks Center was dedicated. In 1981 Willamette established the Lestle J. Sparks Medallion which is presented each year to the alumnus/a who best reflects Sparks' loyalty and service to the University.

The Lestle J. Sparks Physical Education and Recreation Center was built in 1974. It contains the Edwin E. and June Woldt Cone Field House, Chester Hinkle Gymnasium, indoor swimming pool, classrooms, handball and racquetball courts.

BELKNAP HALL

Lewis Franklin Belknap, Class of 1890

Lewis Belknap was born in 1852 in Benton County, Ore., descending from a line of staunch Methodist pioneers. Keturah Belknap, matriarch of the family, kept a diary of her adventures on the Oregon Trail, when she, along with a large company of other Methodists, came to Oregon in 1848. For many years Keturah Belknap was a strong supporter of Willamette University.

In 1890 Lewis Belknap graduated from Willamette and proceeded to Garrett Biblical Institute in Chicago. He was ordained in 1893 and began preaching in Dayton, Ore. After serving in a number of churches around Oregon and as a circuit riding preacher, his ministerial career ended at the Klamath Indian agency in 1922 when he retired because of his age.

Too old to preach, Belknap began a new career as — in his own words — a “fruit rancher” on 20 acres of pears in Medford, where he grew Bartletts and d’Anjous. At 92 he was still busy working his orchard, splitting wood and hunting. “I’ve never been really sick,” he said in a newspaper interview in 1944. “When anything gets the matter with me, I take the work cure.”

Belknap loved to hunt, especially in the mountains of Southern Oregon and, as an octogenarian, he bagged a moose in Canada. He continued hunting all his life.

In 1945 he received an honorary Doctor of Divinity degree from Willamette, just three years before his death at the age of 95. It wasn’t illness or age that finally took Belknap, but rather his love of the outdoors and hard work.

Around 10 one morning he went down to Bear Creek, near his home south of Medford, to repair a fence. While wading in the creek, he apparently slipped, fell into the water and drowned.

~ The Matthews complex, including Belknap Hall, was constructed in 1961 at the cost of $1,250,000. Belknap houses approximately 75 students.

LEE HOUSE

Lucy Anna Lee, Class of 1863

Lucy Anna Maria Lee, the only daughter of Jason Lee and his second wife, Lucy Thompson Lee, was an orphan before the age of three. Her mother died – probably of pleurisy – three weeks after Lucy Anna was born on Feb. 28, 1842, and she was cared for in the home of Gustavus and Julia Hines.

In 1844, shortly before her second birthday, Lucy Anna accompanied her father and the Hines family on the English bark Columbia to Hawaii. From there they all intended to travel on to the East Coast where Jason Lee planned to approach Congress for an endowment for his Indian Manual Labor Mission School, as well as a federal appropriation for the Oregon Institute (later Willamette University).

However, while in Hawaii, Jason Lee learned his superintendency had been terminated and a replacement was already on the way. Anxious to confront the mission board, Lee set off immediately for Mexico and a shorter route to the East, sending his daughter back to Oregon with the Hineses.

Before leaving Hawaii, Lee wrote a will naming two guardians – George Abernethy and Gustavus Hines – for his daughter, but in a codicil to the will dated Feb. 28, 1844, he revoked the appointment of Abernethy and conferred the guardianship “solely upon said Gustavus Hines, and in no event upon the said George Abernethy.”

His letters back to Oregon referred often to his daughter – “Tell Lucy Anna Papa loves her, and prays for her, wants to kiss her, and will come and see her as soon as possible.” – but after a year’s time Hines began to doubt that Lee would ever leave the United States and return to Oregon. Therefore, wanting Lucy Anna to be closer to her father, he made plans to return with his family to the United States. Hines had no way of knowing that when he left Oregon in 1845, Jason Lee had already died. They arrived 14 months too late for Lucy to see her father.

Lee’s copy of the will written in Hawaii was among papers stolen from him in Mexico, so as he lay dying, too weak to write, he hastily dictated another. “Let her [Lucy] have,” he urged Hines, “a first-rate education, but above all, do not neglect her religious education. Dear Brother and Sister Hines, I must hold you responsible under God to train that child for heaven.”

The Rev. Hines and his family returned to Oregon in 1853 and made their home in what is now Salem. Lucy Anna received the education her father had wanted for her, graduating from Willamette in 1863. She began teaching during her senior year at a salary of $500 a year for half-time work and married a classmate, F.H. Grubbs, after graduation.

A tall, slender woman who wore her hair in a braid wrapped around her head and whose favorite poem was “Evangeline,” Lucy Anna Lee Grubbs was remembered by her students as “a woman of superior knowledge, reserved and dignified, and a most devoted Christian. ... deep in her convictions of right and wrong.” She taught French and English composition at Willamette and served as the University’s first preceptress, a position she held until 1869.

After leaving Willamette and the Salem area, she and her husband lived in several communities where they both taught, until ill health forced her to quit. Lucy Anna’s final home was in The Dalles where her husband served in the public schools as a principal. She died there in 1881 at the age of 39. One child, a daughter named Ethel, was born to Lucy Anna and F.H. Grubbs.

~ Lee House was built in 1959 and houses about 24 residents. The offices of Summer Conferences and the Clinical Law Program are also located in Lee House.

MARK O. HATFIELD LIBRARY

Mark O. Hatfield, Class of 1943

Former U.S. Senator Mark Hatfield's political life had its start at Willamette; now he has returned to campus, bringing more than 40 years of experience in politics to the classroom with him. In the fall of 1997, Hatfield began teaching a class about the U.S. Senate, a place he knows well.

After more than 30 years in Washington, D.C., Hatfield has also returned to his roots. Born in Dallas, Ore., he attended Salem schools and graduated with a B.A. in political science from Willamette in 1943. From 1949 to 1956 he served Willamette, first as a professor of political science and then as dean of students.

Hatfield credits two of his Willamette professors for encouraging his interest in politics: Robert Moulton Gatke, political science, a strong Republican, and Ivan Lovell, history, who could almost be described as a Jacobean socialist. But it is President G. Herbert Smith who was credited by Hatfield as being the greatest influence on his professional life. "He took on this young, inexperienced person and served as a mentor to me in administrative procedure and philosophy." When Hatfield wanted to serve in the Oregon Legislature while still dean of students at Willamette, President Smith gave that endeavor his blessing, thus giving Hatfield his start in political life. In 1956, at the age of 34, he became the youngest secretary of state in Oregon history; he was chosen soon after as governor, and after two terms in that office, entered the U.S. Senate in 1966. He never lost an election.

Once called "the Senate's most prominent dove" by the Washington Star, Hatfield, a deeply religious man, has been characterized as an independent legislator who voted his conscience. One of the earliest opponents of the Vietnam War, he cast the only negative vote on this issue at the 1965 and 1966 Governors' conferences. He was a leader in efforts to combat world hunger and raise human rights issues, and for years spoke out against the draft as unnecessary and discriminatory. He has said that he remembers with deep anguish when, as dean of men during the Korean War, he had to choose which young men in Willamette's freshman class would be granted a draft deferral and which ones would be sent off to war.

Once in the Senate, Hatfield continued to fight against U.S. military involvement abroad and consistently fought for nuclear disarmament. While serving as a lieutenant in the Navy during World War II, Hatfield witnessed the battles at Iwo Jima and Okinawa and was one of the first to enter Hiroshima following the dropping of the atom bomb in 1945. The horror of these events lives with him, he has said, and can be seen in such actions as that early opposition to the Vietnam War and, more recently, his lone vote in the Senate against both military action and economic sanctions in the Persian Gulf War in 1991.

From 1981 to 1987, while serving as chairman of the Appropriations Committee, Hatfield helped divert $100 billion that President Ronald Reagan wanted for the Pentagon into social programs instead, fighting the proposed "Star Wars" missile defense system. In the Senate Hatfield was also a leading advocate for the clean-up of nuclear waste; opposed the line-item veto, sponsored the "motor voter" bill, the national bottle bill, opposed the death penalty and worked to stabilize benefits to the elderly and disenfranchised.

Apart from his political life, Hatfield has a passion for rare books and presidential history and is a student of Herbert Hoover and Abraham Lincoln. He is the author of three books: Not Quite so Simple, Conflict and Conscience and Between a Rock and a Hard Place. He has co-authored four other books: Amnesty: The Unsettled Question of Vietnam, The Causes of World Hunger, Freeze! How You Can Help Prevent Nuclear War and What About the Russians? Among his many other awards, Hatfield holds more than 80 honorary degrees, including an honorary Doctor of Laws in 1958 from Willamette.

~ The Mark O. Hatfield Library was dedicated in 1986.

GATKE HALL

Robert Gatke, Class of 1919

Most of what we know about the early years of Willamette is thanks to the research and writing of Robert Gatke '19. Gatke was more than just an alumnus of the University; he was the chronicler of Willamette's history.

Something in Gatke's experience at Willamette, either as a student or later as a professor, inspired him to a lifetime of devotion and service to the University. After receiving his B.A., Gatke went on to earn a Master of Arts in 1920, and the Bachelor of Divinity from the Kimball School of Theology in 1921 and was ordained by the Oregon Conference as a minister of the Methodist Church.

Gatke took a two-year leave from Willamette and went to American University where he held a fellowship and earned a Ph.D. in history and political science. He returned to Willamette where he taught until his retirement in 1961.

Twenty years of Gatke's life was dedicated to writing the 700-page Chronicles of Willamette, which was published in 1942, timed to coincide with Willamette's Centennial. Gatke, who researched the Chronicles while still carrying a full class load, considered it a true labor of love, and it was published with no financial sponsorship by the University.

As Willamette's first professor of political science, Gatke had the satisfaction of seeing many former students take important responsibilities at all levels of government. At one time two of Gatke's former students were serving together in the U.S. Senate — Mark Hatfield '43 and Robert Packwood '54.

While teaching was his vocation for more than 40 years, Gatke's avocation was horticulture and he was responsible for most of the early plantings on Willamette's campus. In 1934 he began serving as advisor in landscaping and beautifying the campus, and personally planted most of the rhododendrons on campus.

For his years of service to Willamette and to the academic community as a whole, Gatke was awarded an honorary Doctor of Humane Letters degree in 1967, and the same year was honored once again when his name was placed on what was then the College of Law building. Gatke died in 1968.

Gatke Hall was built originally as the U.S. Post Office for Salem in 1938 and later relocated to Willamette's campus. It has housed various University departments, including the College of Law, Education, Campus Safety, and is now the home of WITS (Willamette Integrated Technology Services) Production.

WALTON HALL

William S. Walton

William Walton rose from office boy at Ladd & Bush bank to vice president of U.S. National Bank and was one of the most prominent civic and industrial leaders of his time. Walton held a major role in no less than 10 different companies during his lifetime.

Born in Salem in 1884, Walton began his career in 1899 at the age of 15 as cashier of the pioneer banking institution, Ladd & Bush. In 1914 he was made assistant cashier and promoted to cashier the following year. In 1923 he was chosen a director of Ladd & Bush and in 1924 was advanced to executive vice president. When U.S. National Bank purchased Ladd & Bush in 1940, merging the state's largest national bank with its oldest state bank, Walton was named a vice president.

Walton was also a director and shareholder in a number of important Oregon corporations, and was interested in hop growing and the stabilization of the Pacific Coast hop industry. He was one of the original officers of the Pacific Coast Hop Stabilization Corporation, which later became the United States Hop Growers Association.

In 1908 Walton worked with Senator Charles McNary in organizing the Salem Fruit Union, a step which marked the beginning of the development of the now extensive fruit and canning industry in the Willamette Valley. He also served for many years as treasurer and director of the Valley Packing Co., a meat firm.

In 1933 he was named a member of the advisory committee of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and served until its discontinuance by Congress. He also served on the advisory committee of the War Finance Corporation from 1920 until it ceased to function.

Walton developed an early interest in the paper business and assisted in establishing pulp and paper mills in the Northwest and served for many years as treasurer and a director of the Oregon Pulp and Paper Co. He was president and a director of the Western Paper Converting Co. and director of other paper firms at Vancouver, Wash., and Portland.

Walton died in 1954 at the age of 70. At the time of his death he was a director of the Salem branch of U.S. National Bank, although he had retired as vice president in 1948. Walton established a charitable trust in his will and over the years Willamette has often benefited from this fund. It made possible the construction of Walton Hall and helped support the University's Capital Campaign for Willamette and the Mark O. Hatfield Library. It has also contributed to such projects as the Spec Keene Baseball Stadium.

Walton Hall was constructed in 1967 and houses the foreign language departments.

SMULLIN HALL

William Smullin, Class of 1929

Bill Smullin always considered his job as head of California Oregon Broadcasting, Inc., as a public trust, saying in 1983, that "the maintenance of free television is still vitally important to the American people. It's vitally important, for the simple reason that communication with the people helps preserve our national institutions, including the freedom which we enjoy under the United States of America's flag."

Smullin was born in Kane, Penn., in 1907 and was brought in 1909 to a homestead at the base of Mt. Hood, where his family started a farm. He attended Willamette University where he worked on the Collegian, a job he loved and which started his interest in communications.

After graduating he took a job as editor of the Marshfield News and then the Grange Bulletin in Portland. His love of news and information continued throughout his career in newspaper, radio, television and cable television.

In 1933 he started KIEM Radio in Eureka, Calif., and for the next 62 years dedicated himself to the pioneering of broadcasting throughout northern California and Oregon. His company is the oldest continuous, independent broadcast group in the West. He put on the air KAGL in Grants Pass, Ore., in 1939 (which he gave to Southern Oregon University in 1991), KIEM Radio in 1933, KOBI TV in Medford, Ore., in 1953 (the first VHF television station in Oregon), KOPI TV in Klamath Falls, Ore., in 1956, Southern Oregon Cable TV and Humboldt Bay Cable TV in the late 1950s and '60s, KEKA TV in Eugene, Ore., in the 1990s.

In 1990 the National Association of Broadcasters presented him with its National Distinguished Service Award, the industry's highest honor. In Oregon he received the state's highest honor, the Tom McCall Award, for outstanding service to the state, and the Oregon Cable TV Award for outstanding service to the cable industry. In California he was presented the Harvey Levine Award for outstanding achievement in broadcasting. He was also given an outstanding alumni award at Willamette for his service to broadcasting, and received an honorary doctorate from Willamette in 1988.

Smullin and his wife, Rusty Duell, were married in 1945 and have five children. Their youngest, Patsy Smullin, is president of the company her father founded and said this about her father: "There is an old saying that there is no end to the good that can be done if one does not care who gets the credit. My dad was a perfect example. His contributions were endless and most were unknown. Professionally, what he loved was the opportunity to communicate with people. His hope was that if individuals were given the proper information about their communities, they could make the best decisions for their communities. His introduction in the company handbook that he wrote describes further his philosophy: 'In our service to listeners, viewers and subscribers we have unlimited opportunity to help individuals in existing businesses stay alive and new ones get started. Let's join together in the fun of creativity and work that serves individuals, eases pain, increases happiness, and promotes accomplishment.'

As Senator Mark Hatfield said at the time of Smullin's award from the National Association of Broadcasters, "The history of broadcasting in Oregon and California is largely the history of Bill Smullin."

Smullin Hall was dedicated in 1988. It houses the departments of politics, economics, WITS, psychology and rhetoric and media studies.

BISHOP HEALTH CENTER

C.P. and Fannie K. Bishop

Charles Pleasant (C.P.) Bishop was born in Contra Costa County, Calif., in 1854. His father, W.R. Bishop, was a Cumberland Presbyterian minister who earned his living as a miner and farmer. He moved his family to Brownsville, Ore., in 1856, and settled in as a preacher and principal of the Brownsville School.

His mother, Elizabeth Adams, came to California across the plains by ox team in 1846, despite her father's death along the way in Fort Hall, Idaho.

When C.P. was 20, he accepted employment as a bookkeeper with Kirk and Hume, early Brownsville merchants. He spent two years in their employ and then worked for another two years with the Brownsville Woolen Mill. There he met and courted Martha, or "Fannie" Kay, eldest daughter of Thomas Kay, part owner and boss weaver of the mill. They were married in 1876.

Fannie Kay grew up in the woolen mill environment and developed an interest in machinery and manufacturing unusual for a girl of her day.

When Thomas Kay established his mill in Salem, he brought C.P. in as a partner. C.P. also opened the Salem Woolen Mills Store. Active in civic affairs, he served as mayor of Salem from 1898 to 1904, and as a member of the state Senate from 1915 to 1917. A lifelong Republican, he was a delegate to the national convention of the party in Chicago in 1916.

In 1909 the Bishop family was looking for the opportunity to open a woolen mill of its own and found it halfway across the state: The Pendleton Woolen Mill, founded in 1893, had never been very successful, and had recently closed. The people of Pendleton asked the Bishop family, by then established Willamette Valley wool manufacturers, if they would be interested in operating the mill.

C.P. and his sons, Roy, Chauncey and Clarence, were well qualified to make it a success. Through their combined knowledge of manufacturing and retailing, they transformed the Pendleton Woolen Mills into a highly successful operation.

In 1909 the mill employed 80 people and did an annual business of roughly $75,000. Today the firm operates plants scattered across the nation and processes millions of pounds of wool annually. The staff has grown to more than 2,000. Pendleton Woolen Mills soon controlled the product from the purchasing of fleece to filling retail orders for finished merchandise.

While his sons were making their marks in the woolen industry, C.P. remained in Salem and continued on his own path as a clothing merchant. In the 1920s he renamed his Salem Woolen Mills Store the Bishop Clothing and Woolen Mills Store. Later known simply as Bishop's, the store was a Salem institution for 90 years.

For three generations the Bishops have been strong supporters of Willamette. Three generations of Bishops have served on the board of trustees, and in 1948 the family donated their family home to the University.

C.P. Bishop died in 1941 at the age of 87.

~ Bishop Health Center was built in 1955 and housed the medical services, registrar's office and counseling center. In 1997 the building was torn down to make way for the new music building, but the Bishop name will remain associated with the site. In honor of the family's long association with the University, the area fronting the new building will be named Bishop Plaza.

E.S. COLLINS SCIENCE CENTER & TRUMAN WESLEY COLLINS LEGAL CENTER

Truman, Class of 1922, and Everell S. Collins

The Truman Wesley Collins Legal Center and the E.S. Collins Science Center are a testament to the support the Collins family has given Willamette University over the years.

Their story begins in 1855 when Truman Doud Collins took an interest in timberlands and sawmills and started a lumber business in Pennsylvania. He was soon able to support another great interest: the foreign missions of the Methodist Church. Among his many gifts in their support was $10,000 a year from 1902 until 1912 for the establishment and support of the Collins Institute for the Underprivileged in India.

In 1887 Truman D. Collins acquired timberland around Ostrander, Wash., and put his only son, Everell Stanton Collins, in charge of that operation in 1890.

At the age of 13 Everell Stanton (E.S.) Collins had been packing shingles for three cents an hour, and later worked as a raft hand on the Allegheny and Ohio rivers. He invented and patented some sawmill machinery, speculated in real estate around San Diego and taught himself engineering and bookkeeping. In 1888 his father made him a sawmill manager in Pennsylvania. It was from there that he headed to the Pacific Northwest.

The Ostrander operation was losing money, but by 1914, E.S. Collins had turned Ostrander Railway and Timber Company into a multimillion-dollar business.

E.S. Collins upheld his father's commitment to the church, making major world mission gifts to the Peking Academy in China, a boys' home in North Africa and the Bareilly Theological Seminary in North India. He also was a frequent benefactor to community projects, such as the YMCA, gifts of land for beach front parks, as well as generous gifts to universities, including Willamette.

In 1899 E.S. Collins married Mary Laffey, and they had three children: Alton Laffey Collins, Grace Esther Collins and Truman Wesley Collins.

E.S. Collins served as a trustee of the Methodist Episcopal Church's board of foreign missions from 1928 to 1932, where he learned of the needs of various foreign missions, and offered a 54 percent interest in 75,000 acres of northern California timberland, with income dedicated to the foreign missions pension fund. This forest is still helping fund foreign missions.

From 1912 until 1940, E.S. Collins served on Willamette's board, and in 1940 the board approved a new science center. E.S. Collins was to direct the project, but before the building could be completed, he died at the age of 74. He had been one of the greatest benefactors of Willamette's first century, someone whom Carl Doney called "one of the unfaltering Greathearts of Willamette who give and give, all the while bestowing courage and inspiration to others."

In 1940, at the death of his father, Truman Wesley Collins assumed primary responsibility for the family businesses. At that time he also made it known that his father had been the donor for the new science center, which was named in his honor.

Truman Wesley Collins majored in chemistry at Willamette, earned an M.B.A. from Harvard, studied engineering at Oregon Institute of Technology, and during W.W. II served in the US Navy, rising to the rank of Lt. Commander. In 1943 he married Maribeth Wilson, the daughter of a Methodist minister, and they had four children. Throughout his life he continued the philanthropy of his father and grandfather, and in 1947 his vision resulted in the creation of a foundation whose purpose was to make grants for "charitable, religious, educational and scientific purposes within the state of Oregon." He died in 1964 at the age of 61.

~ The E.S. Collins Science Center was completed in 1941, with an addition in 1962. It was renovated in 1981 and 1995. It currently houses the departments of environmental science, earth science, math, computer science and physics.

~ The Truman Wesley Collins Legal Center was built in 1967 and renovated and expanded in 1992. It is home to the College of Law and Center for Dispute Resolution.

CENTER FOR DISPUTE RESOLUTION AFFILIATES

Center for Dispute Resolution (CDR) Affiliates are leaders in their fields and visionaries who support the work of conflict theorists. Affiliates keep the CDR program personnel informed about issues and new developments in dispute resolution practice and submit disputes as raw materials for academic discussion. They also provide financial support to the CDR program and are included as principal guests at every CDR event. The CDR Affiliates program was founded in 1993.
