GENERALIZATIONS PROVE THAT SPRING HAS COME

Little Signs Indicate Conclusively
That the Fatal Season Is Now With Us

At the end of a day of showers, a day preceded by a week of sunshine, we are inclined to give a grumbling assent to old Aristotle in his coldly conservative "For one swallow doth not make Spring, nor yet one fine day." But as we think longer we recall that we have observed little incidents—"little signs that never fail"—that are conclusive evidence to our doubting spirits that Spring is here.

Item: The daily practice of several two-piano duets is a sure sign of an imminent recital by the Piano Department * one recital for each of these duets.

Item: Quite a number of the boys are blossoming out in light suits and new sweaters; little decorations on the upper lip are the human counterpart of bursting buds in the flower world.

Item: Frequent consultation of the Social Calendar in conjunction with a regular calendar and an Almanac, by the young men, is evidence indisputable.

Item: Sparks has made his annual announcement that Willamette has absolutely no prospects in track this year; daily, between the hours of three and six, several groups of panting youths patter around the track.

Item: The birds of Wilson park and all territory near Salem are having their personal and family secrets pruned into by budding ornithologists.

Item: The Chem lab windows are open again and are ornamented with the human figure pendant.

Item: The maximum evening population of the library is reached at nine o'clock; fifteen minutes later it is reduced by half; five minutes later it is reduced by half of the remainder; the rest will wait for the Librarian's announcement.

Item: The Senior Bench is being used by two's and four's, but mostly two's.

WILLAMETTE IN GREECE

Barkev Saghtelian

CAMPUS CHEST PROJECTS FOREIGN OPPORTUNITIES

Willamette Scholar in Greek College Writers Appreciative Letter to Student Body

Along with the other claims of distinction to which Willamette may point with some pride is the fact that the student body has begun a project of foreign education that may in time rank with the famous Yale-in-China or Maine-in-Turkey. Last year through the Campus Chest Willamette students sent one hundred dollars to Anatolia College in Greece to be used in a "Willamette University Scholarship" which was offered to some deserving student in helping him through that year in college. Barkev Saghtelian was the young man chosen as the Willamette Scholar, and according to reports he has made a very good record during the last year. Mr. Davidson of the college writes in a recent letter: "Barkev is material well worth developing. He has always done all he could to help pay his own expenses and he is willing to continue to do so. He advises me that he is anxious to take the next year in college, but he is not sure that he will be able to earn as much money as he has in the past since the college has not as much work to offer as the year before."

Barkev writes personally to the student body in a letter which shows rather remarkable English considering the fact that he has only begun college. We reprint his letter in part:

Anatolia College,
Salonica.

Dear Friends:
Anatolia College has meant a great deal to me as well as the orphanage at Sivas where I first learned to read and write. It has meant a great deal to others also for it has been a school of friendship. Its aim has been to educate the children of refugees and of the Greek citizens. It was the first American school opened in Macedonia and it has done a great work. I wonder as to the future of the refugee children had this school not been founded here in Salonika.

There are more than one hundred and sixty students in the college. Out of this number some are being educated by guardians, some by the Near East Relief, and some are earning.

DEBATERS KEEP BUSY EVERY DAY IN WEEK

Men's Team Has Two Debates, and Women's Team Has Three Contests

Last week was a busy week in the annals of debate at Willamette; each night of the week hearing a discussion of the question of protection of our investments.

The men's team had two of these debates and took the negative in both contests. The first of these was with Monmouth Normal at Monmouth on Tuesday. The decision was rendered by the audience in favor of the affirmative. The second was with the University of Montana on Wednesday at Salem and was judged by Professor Lester Thomsen of Pacific University, and the decision was given in favor of Willamette.

The women's teams had three contests; two with Linfield and one among themselves. On Monday the Negative team debated at McMinnville in a no-decision contest, and on Thursday the affirmative team debated here with Linfield's negative team in another no-decision contest. Then on Friday evening the two Willamette Women's teams went out to Haystack and staged a debate with each other. The audience was allowed to choose the winner and decided in favor of the negative team.

TRUSTEES CONSIDER ENDOWMENT FUND

General Campaign for Endowment Funds Postponed Until After Coming November

COMMITTEE IS APPOINTED

Report of Present Financial Standing Submitted to University Officials

At the call of a committee on ways and means for completing the Forward Movement campaign, appointed at the mid-year meeting of the board of trustees of Willamette University, the board met in special session at Portland, March 2, to receive and consider the report of that committee.

The committee, having considered the possibilities for obtaining the remaining funds necessary to take full advantage of the general education board's endowment offer, presented suggestions as to the advisability of a funds campaign, and submitted a summary of conditions as they now stand. They deemed it best to postpone any general campaign for money until after the presidential election of next November.

They recommended, however, that a continued individual effort be made to secure pledges from friends of the university. Since pledges of approximately $275,000 are now available, conditioned on the raising of an additional $150,000, and the support of the conference pledged, the committee was of the opinion that an appeal to the public should be met with excellent success.

This movement for increasing the endowment of Willamette University is the result of a contract made with the general board of the Methodist church, on June 1, 1921, on the conditions that the university should pay off all its debts, secure $650,000, to match the gift of the board of $350,000, and that the total sum, $1,000,000, should be added to the University's permanent endowment. The contract first made to terminate October 1, 1928, has, by the generosity of the board, been extended to October 1, 1929.

Since the close of the forward movement for pledges, December 20, 1922, the total receipts have amounted to $612,784. But due to various expenses necessary from time to time, the total amount applied on the contract with the general education board comes to $321,517. Among the expenses were the rebuilding of Waller Hall after it burned, December 1, 1919, building the gymnasium after the old one burned, in May 1921, Forward Movement expenses, taxes, supplies, and other current expenses.

With the amount of the fund collected up to date, $321,517, the sum paid by the General Education Board, $173,124, and the previous endowment of the university, $553,522, the total endowment of the University is now $1,076,147, with approximately $75,000 expected yet to be paid in on old pledges, there remains $250,000 to be raised to secure the full offer of the board.

After thus far successfully carrying on the movement, and with such generous support on the part of the General Education Board, the committee considered it anything but right not to carry the campaign on to completion and victory.

After receiving the report of the committee, the board of trustees appointed a special committee of ten persons to have charge of continuing the work of securing enough money to complete the endowment of the university. The members of the committee are: R. A. Booth, W. W. Youngson, A. L. Howarth, Paul B. Wallace, A. M. Smith, Lloyd T. Reynolds, J. W. Day, A. A. Schramm, B. L. Steeves and Carl Gregg Doney.

With over a year and a half remaining to secure this money, the prospects are bright for making Willamette University's endowment substantial.

WALLULAH BORDERS ARRIVE FOR PRINTERS OF ANNUAL

The first shipment of cuts for the 1928 Wallulah arrived from the Hicks-Chaten engraving company of Portland early this week. The cuts are those which will be used to print the color border which will be run on all the pages of the annual. The border is in keeping with the Oregon scenery motif to be carried out in the book this year. The border has at the top the title heading "The 1928 Wallulah". The side represents a large fir tree which comes up from the bottom which pictures a typical bit of Oregon scenery.

Other work on the Wallulah is progressing rapidly and every effort is being made by the Editor, Paul Goddes, and his staff to keep the work on the annual schedule.

PROF. VON ESCHEN MAKES RARE SHELL COLLECTION

Up under the eaves of Science Hall where few people ever go are two rooms filled with specimens and apparatus that belongs to Professor Von Eschen. If you are ever lucky enough to have the privilege of seeing these specimens, you will find over a thousand different kinds of shells, all of which have been classified and verified. Professor Von Eschen classified practically all of them himself and sent them to the Smithsonian Institute in Washington to be verified. He sent some specimens which were the first of their kind ever found in this part of the country and these were kept by the Smithsonian Institute. He also sent some to Philadelphia.

The shells have been collected from over a wide surface of the earth, but the greater part have been found in the United States. He has literally hundreds of specimens of clams and mussels. Some of the specimens are very rare, as for instance the blood clam. The little animal has a very pale green lustrous shell which incloses the flat little animal. It is extremely rare and is only found occasionally in the Puget Sound region. One of the most delicate of the clam shells is the Angel Wing, a pure white shell of very delicate structure which is found on the coast of southern California. Among the commoner specimens which include the freshwater mussel shells many of which were found in the Mississippi river. The professor will tell you the part these beautiful shells play in the button industry. Several of these common shells are displayed in all graduations of size from the smallest baby mussel to a full grown adult. In these shells all the hints of the rainbow are found.

When the possibilities of the shells have been exhausted, but that will take a long time if you will ask an occasional question. Professor Von

TOOZE AND HARLAND MEET LINFIELD IN ARGUMENT

Debate Last Evening Before M. B. A. at First Methodist Church in McMinnville

Last evening, at 8 o'clock, Willamette University met Linfield College in debate which was given before the Men's Brotherhood Association at the First Methodist church at Linfield. Fred Tooze and Roy Harland upheld the negative for Willamette.

The question debated was: Resolved: That investors and investments in foreign countries should be protested only by the government in which the investment is made. The debate was a non-decision affair.

AMBITIOUS ORATORS HAVE OPPORTUNITIES

Schedule of Oratorical Contests Give Many Chances to Speakers

Ambitious orators will not lack for opportunities to display their ability at Willamette this year. The subjects upon which orations may be delivered are varied and the prizes are in every case worthy of effort to obtain. The contests vary all the way from local and state contests to national contests. Last year Willamette orators placed well in the contests which they entered and it is hoped that they will do equally well this year. The schedule of the contests is as follows:

1. Old Line Oratorical Contest to be held at Eugene on March 9 at 1 p.m. The oration may be on any subject and about 1500 words in length. First prize is a bust of Lincoln.

2. The State Peace Oratorical contest to be held at Albany on April 13 at 2 p.m. It must be written on the promotion of world peace and about 1500 words in length. The first prize is $50 and five second is $40. The Willamette prize is $25. The winner may enter the national contest eradicated upon competition with the first two prizes the same amounts as above.

3. The Pacific Coast Forensic League Oratorical contest on any subject and about 1500 words in length. The first prize is $50 and the second is $25.

4. The Pacific Coast Forensic League Extemporaneous contest with a first prize of $50 and a second of $25.

5. The National Constitution Oratorical Contest with a ten minute oration on the constitution.

6. The Keyes Oratorical Contest with a first prize of $15 and a second of $10.

LET'S GO WILLAMETTE

Let's Go Willamette

Juniors place first in Freshman Glee with pep in composition and rendition. Sophomores rated second by judges and seniors third; points are unusually close in annual song contest.

To the syncopated strains of Halle-lujah, which had its birth on New York's Broadway rather than a campmeeting, the Junior class shuffled to victory in the twentieth annual Freshman Glee.

The ratings of the different classes were unusually close, there being only 23 points difference between the juniors and freshmen in their grand totals. The juniors received first place chiefly by virtue of the number of points that they received on adaptability and rendition. The winners did not rate high on music and words, the two other considerations upon which the decision was based.

The summary of the points which were given to the four classes on the basis of the possibility of three judges giving a possible 300 in each of the four points of words, music, adaptability, and rendition was as follows:

VIVID RIOT DESCRIPTION IN LETTER BY JOHN TSAI

Former Willamette Student Relates Experiences Upon Return to Native Land

John Tsai, a Chinese youth who was graduated from Willamette in the class of '27 has written to his friends, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Behrstedt, a vivid description of the mob rioting and anti-Christian demonstrations which have taken place in war torn China during recent months.

According to Mr. Tsai the lot of the Christian teacher is anything but an enviable one. In one town he left behind him an executed college president and a large number of executed professors and students, he himself but narrowly escaping death.

Mr. Tsai is now in Kinkiang where he has accepted a teaching position in William Natt College.

Mr. Tsai has many friends on the campus where he was well known during his university career. He is the brother of Miss Hing Tsai who is at present a sophomore here.

DRINKWATER'S DRAMA PRESENTED TONIGHT

New York Cast Will Appear in Play Sponsored by Salem Drama League

John Drinkwater's drama, "Abraham Lincoln", after a successful tour of eastern and other cities enroute to the west will be presented tonight at the Elsinore theater. The company is composed of a New York cast of outstanding ability. Eustace Wyatt an Englishman, who plays the part of Abraham Lincoln, took this same part before London audiences.

Even though the play is a tragedy and ends with the death of Lincoln, there are many humorous touches throughout, depicted in the life of the life of the negro servant, and in the home life of Mrs. Lincoln.

The cast played before an audience of 5000 in Denver, Colorado, and to a capacity house in Omaha, Nebraska, where it was said to be the greatest drama of American life ever written.

Lincoln, Mrs. Lincoln, Grant, Lee, John Hay, Seward, John Wilkes Booth and other characters of the Civil war period are realistically portrayed by these artists.

The play is being sponsored by the Salem Drama League, and tickets may be procured today at the Elsinore. Prices range from 50 cents to $2.

MUTE FIGURE IN CEMENT QUIETLY ASKS FOR LIFE

Once Useful Servant of Students Stands Neglected and Unnoticed by All

There it has stood all through the chilling blasts of winter, and the "mist" of fall, alone, friendless and unfriendly—a mere ghost of itself, a spectre from its once useful past. All those cheering days are gone, when it was a daily refreshment, a fountain in the wilderness, an oasis in the desert. Today it is ignored and even shunned; it stands alone on its idle of safety and seclusion moaning in a sepulchral voice: "Forsaken, forsaken, forsaken am I; Like a stone by the wayside, all men pass me by."

Yet it has not always been thus; time was when everyone knew and loved the campus drinking fountain. In better days it was the center of much social life (or gossip, call it what you will) and furnished a meeting-place for many amorous couples. From its heart gushed cool and sparkling water from the very depths of the river. Like a veritable Good Samaritan it delighted young and old alike, Freshman and Senior, without fear or favor, pleasantly purveying liquid refreshment of a most dignified and morally pure nature. Breaths there man with soul so dead or mouth no far from thirst who does not long for the clear, cool blood of life to beat again within the heart of the forlorn and gray old drinking fountain?

Again we pass it by and hear a sad and solemn imploring groan, "Bring back the good old days."

A LA FANNY HURST

To anyone who is familiar at all with the more intimate details of Freshman Glee the close observation of any one of the class leaders on the night of the actual evening is a subject worthy of the attention of anyone interested in human nature. In this one person on this one night is packed all the material necessary for the best human interest story that a reporter ever wrote or one of the most touching stories of tragedy or triumph that any writer could see fit to clip from the pages of the book of life.

Some could only see in this little drama something amusing and to be soon forgotten. Others of a different nature can smile quietly at the note of concern which shows in the strained expression of the face of the leader as she takes part as a simple cog in the machinery largely the result of her own diligent efforts and become aware that they are witnessing in the miniature what is being repeated the world around every day.

Back of every institution and supporting every effort whether they are successful or not is a personality which is giving of its best thought and energy that the institution or idea might live and prosper. These persons may be unheralded and unsung, but they continue to work and are the people which make the world go around.

HALLELUJAH

At the risk of being considered trite and unoriginal we "Hit the Deck" and add our bit to the chorus of Hallelujahs which have been going over the campus since last Saturday night.

Briefly and frankly speaking our thesis is that unbidden, and occasionally unnoticed, Willamette life has been jazzed up. While hesitating to generalize or draw any conclusions from our rather limited observation and experience, we nevertheless believe that the tone of the Willamette student body has changed. Whether the change has been for the better or the worse is not for us to say at this time, but being of the present order ourselves we are inclined to look favorably upon the new. The performance Saturday was merely a rather dramatic indication of this change.

The student body today is not in appearance nor character what it was when the present Senior class entered Willamette. In appearance it is now a better dressed student body than it was a few years ago. The breakdown and decadence of the once unique social life of Willamette has been attended by the compensation of the increase in the ability of students to meet and adjust themselves to the demands of a social life which was previously both unknown and forbidden them. The student body may or may not be equally serious in its purpose in life; we do not know. However, we do believe the student body of today is more liberal and tolerant than it was formerly. At the same time we must almost admit that attending this growth of liberalism has come a somewhat less definite conviction in regard to many of the fundamentals of life.

SPRING IS HERE

During the last few days we have become conscious of a change in our environment. However we, as is the case of all human beings, have been running a poor second to the things of nature, which have anticipated for a long time the coming of Spring and have been active many days before we were even aware that Spring was with us.

The quiet balmy air makes us, like Rip Van Winkle, have an aversion to all forms of profitable labor. We have become converts to the gospel of contentment and quiet peace. Our mood is one of generous appreciation of the world and that it contains rather than the sanguine reformer spirit which is out in quest of wrongs to be righted and evils to be harried out of the land. We realize again the joy of living and the pleasure which can be derived from our associates and surroundings. We experience the desire which comes but rarely in the life of a college of getting away from the noise and activity of the usual humdrum.

We are inclined to accept as our creed,
"God's in his heaven—
All's right with the world!"

ONE SECRET OF GREATNESS

Beethoven is probably accepted in his field of music as holding the same relative position as Shakespeare holds in the realm of literature. He was supremely great in his chosen field of endeavor, yet he was not a narrow specialist.

He once wrote, "There is no treatise which would easily prove too learned for me. Without laying the slightest claim to scholarship I have yet, from childhood on, endeavored to grasp the thought of the best and wisest of every age. Shame on the artist who does not think it his duty to advance at least to this point in this respect."

This is the expression of a truly great man, who while perfecting himself in one work did not close his eyes to the value of the best which results from the efforts of men specializing in other fields of activity. There is in this one quotation one of the secrets of greatness which is often ignored by the student who early shuts his eyes to the benefits which can be derived from a wide variety of interests.

We're enthused ourselves and are eager to show them, (without any obligation on your part to buy). Every suit new, every one with two trousers, and not one over $45.

Agitation for Inter- class Walking Con- test Has Supporters

A large interclass sports schedule has been planned for this spring and restless Bearcats should not have an opportunity to become inactive. An interclass and interfraternity horse-shoe tournament has been planned. This is a great sport and it requires lots of skill to be good at it. Interclass tennis and baseball are also planned. Interclass tennis fell off in support last year but there is good material in every class and a little enthusiasm will revive it. Some recent comment has been heard about an interclass walking race. This event was used last year in place of a cross country run and it was at that time taken up with the hope that it would become an annual event.

Although the call for baseball candidates has not been issued every man should be out limbering up his arm and getting into condition. Several pitchers have been out throwing a ball around. It will take weeks before they can start on actual work. Baseball will start after the tournament is over.

The president of the student body called a special meeting of the W. Club Tuesday to find out their opinion on having only one award day. Coach Keene and others are much in favor of this idea in that it does away with the numerous award days all of which up to the present time have been almost what might be termed failures. The probable reason for this is that many of the men are working and they are unable to attend chapel. Another reason for the proposed change is that one award day would make it much easier for those who must necessarily sign the certificates.

There is much opposition to the proposed change, since many believe that it is not fair for him who wins his sweater at the beginning of his sophomore year that he should wait almost until he is a junior before he receives his letter. Moreover it is very beneficial to the school that men be allowed to wear their W sweaters as soon as they earn them because this is a very important way of advertising the school.

Also there is the question as to whether a single award day would be any better attended than the ones after the end of each season. Certainly the conditions that kept the athletes away from the present award days would also exist under a single award day.

Freshmen are desirous of seeing a single award day because they believe that they will get their sweaters at the end of their freshman year. Obviously the present system could be amended to this effect if the freshmen had satisfied certain grade requirements.

Other schools show their appreciation of their athletes and give a banquet at the end of every season. Why can't we loosen up and have a basketball banquet.

BASKETBALL PROSPECTS BRIGHT FOR NEXT YEAR

Practice Will Begin Earlier in Season With Plan to Use Two Teams Being Considered

Coach Keene predicts a great year in basketball for Willamette next year. Keene has already made plans for next year's season and is going to institute some new ideas in running the team.

This year's Freshman team was the best that Willamette has ever had and Keene expects to develop some good varsity players out of its members. Keene is going to have two varsity teams both of which will play conference games and that will be of almost equal strength. Willamette's team next year should be on a par with members of the coast conference and more games will be scheduled with them. One varsity team will consist of this year's Rook team and men from this year's Varsity that were Freshmen and the other will be made up of this year's varsity men. Men may be shifted from one to another but the teams will be the same as far as possible to make better team work. Several new men may help strengthen the teams.

Basketball practice will be held earlier next year for the men that are not out for football. They will work on fundamentals and try to get into condition along with the men that are playing football. This will allow the team to get into shape more quickly, a defect that seemed to bother the Bearcats in the early part of this season.

SPRING FOOTBALL CLOSING WITH PRACTICE TOMORROW

Practice Not Complete Success But Is Helpful Preparation for Coming Year

The spring football season will come to an end tomorrow. Although the results of the spring practice have not been anything remarkable yet the men who will try out for the coveted positions on the football team next fall have had a chance to limber up and develop coordination.

The proposed scrimmage which was scheduled for tomorrow has been cancelled because most of the fellows have been rather bashful about turning out for football every evening. It seems that ornithology and bushes pasture have greater charms than does spring football.

All that the coaches have been able to do during the season has been to have kicking practice and run through a few plays. If Cardinal can continue to get his number twelve shoes in the way of the pig skin, he ought to average at least 50 yards to a boot next fall. McMullin is also looking good. His year's leave of absence seems to have slowed him down a bit. Klindworth and Flock look exceedingly good at tackle. Other men who are showing to good advantage are Emmons, Philpot and Gaines.

Eschen will lead the way into another room where just as many wonders are displayed in the form of rocks and minerals. Here shelf after shelf of classified rocks repose many of which are very beautiful and rare but like the shells they cannot be displayed because unless they are in cases they are broken by rough handling.

Many of the specimens of both shells and rocks were in the fire when Waller Hall burned and were dug out of the ashes and cleaned. Often when a shell or rock showed the traces of the fire the professor sighed and said that there was so much work yet to be done on them and that it is impossible to keep them in condition because of the dust.

When he was asked why he was so interested, he answered that he could work at chemistry all the time but some other interest was necessary to keep a proper balance. He said that he has been collecting for twenty-five years whenever he found anything unusual and of interest.

ELIMINATIONS CHOOSE DISTRICT CHAMPIONS

No Team Seems To Be General Favorite; Competition Likely To Be Unusually Close

Basketball fans will see plenty of hot competition in the state basketball tournament this year with no team reigning as the general favorite. Several teams have made good records in their districts, but there is little basis for comparison.

In the first district Wallowa won out in the finals of the district tournament from Baker. Baker had been the favorite to win but Wallowa overcame an early lead and won 26 to 22.

Tillamook has been mentioned as a likely contender for the title having finished a long season without a defeat and having won from Astoria high which is also likely to come to the tournament. Astoria has to play St. Helens to decide the championship of the Lower Columbia district but should have little trouble winning.

The race in district three now remains between The Dalles and Bend. Bend won the Central Oregon title from Mitchell and The Dalles won the Mid-Columbia championship by defeating Wasco 30 to 13. These two teams will play this Friday at Madras for the district title.

Another possible contender for state honors is the McLoughlin union high school of Milton-Freewater. McLoughlin defeated Helix in the final game of the district tournament 21 to 17 and is reputed to have a good team.

The Portland district will send a strong representative to the tournament in Washington high. Washington won its final game from Benson in a thrilling game and finished its season without a defeat. Washington has a strong team, having defeated Salem high earlier in the season and given the Willamette Rooks their worst defeat of the season.

Medford still has to play Central Point for the district title but should have little trouble. Medford had little trouble beating Ashland, the only other strong team in the district. Medford broke even in a two game series played with Salem high at Medford.

University high of Eugene, coached by Okerberg, ex Oregon player, must play Albany to win its district title. University high had lost two games this year, one to Salem high and one to Corvallis high.

Marshfield, after making a slow start because of quarantine is now tied with Myrtle Point for the district title. The tie will be played off in the district tournament at Myrtle Point.

Salem high will likely again play in the tournament. The only team that stood in the way was Oregon City and they were probably easily defeated last night. Salem has improved with every game and they will send a team almost as strong as in previous years. Salem has won from Astoria high, Medford high, and University high, three teams that will probably be at the tournament.

INTERESTING LECTURES BY EDITOR ANNOUNCED

W. W. Ellsworth, Former Century Editor, Will Speak in Salem on April 4, 5, and 6

As previously announced, Mr. W. W. Ellsworth, one time editor of the Century magazine, will deliver a series of lectures in Salem during the first week in April. Willamette students will have the privilege of hearing four of these lectures during the week.

Mr. Ellsworth's tentative program, which promises to be highly interesting and instructive, is as follows:

Wednesday, April 4, evening — "The Age of Queen Anne".

Thursday, April 5, 11:25 a. m., chapel service—"The Making of the English Bible", or "The Joy of Writing".

Friday, April 6, 11:25 a. m., chapel service—"The New Poetry", or "The Writing Game". 4 p. m.—"The Times of Queen Elizabeth".

In view of the fact that Mr. Ellsworth is an accomplished writer, and that he was active as an editor at the time of such men as Emerson, Kipling, Joaquin Miller, and Presidents Grant and Roosevelt, his lectures bid fair to be well worth while.

COURTS IN HANDS OF TRUSTEE COMMITTEE

Decision as to Whether Necessary Funds Will Be Given Considered by Trustees

The building of a new tennis court is now in the hands of a special committee of the trustees with Paul Wallace as chairman. Wallace is vitally interested in Willamette and its athletic welfare and Dr. Doney intimates that the trustees might act favorably in raising the remainder of the money for a new court and the refinishing of the old. Dr. Doney presented the matter to the Board of trustees in Portland last Saturday and they referred the matter to the Committee.

Paul Wallace did not return from California until Wednesday and so a meeting of the Trustee committee has been delayed.

Work will begin right after the high school tournament is finished if the required money can be raised.

The Adelante Literary society donated practically $50 dollars, the juniors and sophomores 100 dollars each and the seniors 50 dollars making a total of 900 dollars. Approximately 1,150 dollars is needed and the Trustees have been asked if they would make up the deficiency.

TOURNAMENT TICKETS NOW PLACED ON SALE

Plans for Double Elimination Schedule Considered Impractical by Tourney Officials

Season tickets for the State Basketball Tournament to be held at Willamette on March 14 to March 17 are now on sale at the gym and at two sporting stores in town.

Plans have not been completed yet but it looks now as though the tournament will be run off the same as last year only with one more day of play. It has not appeared possible to attempt the double elimination with ten teams because it cannot be figured ahead of time when the tournament will end and it might make it necessary to play the finals on Monday night instead of Saturday night.

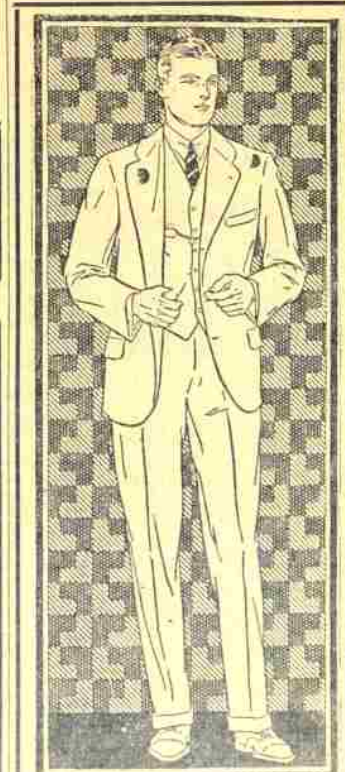

Three cups will be presented to the winners. The first place trophy is a large silver cup standing 31 inches on its base. It is topped with a basketball player. The second and third place trophies are silver cups standing 10 and 12 inches high on their bases.

Several of the teams are planning on bringing large delegations with them. McLaughlin Hi giving special notice of rosters accompanying the team. Requests for seat reservations have been coming in fast and indications point to a larger and better tournament this year.

SCIENCE AND THE BIBLE ARE NOT CONTRADICTORY

Science and the Bible Are Said to Be Twin Children of the Same Father

Science and the Bible are the twin children of the same father, according to Mr. M. A. Honline who spoke in chapel last Friday. Mr. Honline is head of the Southern California Institute for Religious Education at Pasadena.

He says there are four questions which people repeatedly ask him. What is the Bible? Is the Bible reliable and trustworthy? How should it be studied and read?

While not attempting to answer all these questions Mr. Honline, nevertheless, made some valuable suggestions regarding the study of the Bible.

He spoke as a layman and not as a preacher, and believed people had the right to ask these searching questions and the right to expect a definite answer.

According to him, science and religion are not contradictory. The conflict lies in the interpretation that is gradually coming closer together. Science reveals God's method and the Bible reveals God's purpose. One has no more right to expect the Bible to explain God's methods than one has to expect a thermometer to tell time. The functions of science and of the Bible are entirely different. Each is supreme in its own field.
