

Huge Building Program to Start at WU

Auditorium, Fine Arts Building, Women's Dorm First on List

The new fine arts building which was approved by the Willamette board of trustees Tuesday. It will be located on site of old Sweetland grandstand, and would include 1250-seat auditorium and classrooms. This, plus new dormitory wing for Lausanne, would cost approximately $1,000,000. (Cut courtesy Capital Journal.)

A drive to raise one million dollars for construction of a new fine arts building and auditorium and a new women's dormitory wing will begin May 1 following approval given Tuesday by the board of trustees to a large scale long-range plan for campus development and for an increased endowment.

The total program, announced at the mid-year meeting of Willamette's board of trustees in Portland, includes five million dollars, half of which will go to double the endowment and half to the construction of about nine new buildings or additions.

On Site of Sweetland

The fine arts building, auditorium and women's dormitory wing will be erected on the site of the old Sweetland grandstand beside the Mill stream.

When completed, the long-range building program will include a student union building, a chapel, infirmary, increase facilities for class rooms, a president's house and a swimming pool connected with the gymnasium. These plans, however, are only in the discussion stage, Truman W. Collins, chairman of the trustees, said.

$250,000 Gift Donated

Dr. G. Herbert Smith said a gift of $250,000 had already been contributed to the fund-raising campaign by an unnamed donor provided the first group of buildings are constructed at the same time that an additional $400,000 be raised.

Improvements outlined in the building program would allow an increased enrollment of 25 per cent, Dr. Smith said. The board authorized the eventual increase in the student body from 1,000 to 1,250. No increase is anticipated at present, however, he said.

The endowment will be raised from two and one-half million to five million, Smith said.

Trustees Plan 4 Buildings On Sweetland

The old Sweetland field may be barely recognizable after completion of plans for a quadrangle of new buildings approved by the board of trustees Tuesday.

The first two buildings, the fine arts and auditorium and the Lausanne wing, are the first of nine or so additions to the campus plan. President G. Herbert Smith could not say when work on the buildings would be begun or when it would be completed.

The two buildings will be of modern concrete and brick construction and would provide the latest in auditorium, fine arts, drama, speech and radio classrooms and for dormitory space. The new auditorium will seat 1250 and the wing for Lausanne hall, 75.

Auditorium in Building

The auditorium would occupy the center of the building, with the wings to be used by music, speech and drama and the fine arts department.

The fine arts building will resemble Baxter hall in architecture and will be constructed on a terrace which will be elevated to the height of Eaton hall. It will occupy the site of the razed grandstand beside the Mill stream.

Other Buildings Planned

Other buildings planned tentatively for the future include a new class room at the southeast corner of Sweetland, a student union at the northeast corner and a swimming pool addition to the gymnasium. The chapel is planned for the site of the music school building which will be moved.

Tuesday Convocation

All classes will meet in the gym on Tuesday at 10 for class meetings.

$25 'Incidental Student Fee' Added to 1954 School Costs

The Willamette 1953-54 catalog came out this week with no changes in finances or curriculum, but an "incidental student fee" of $25 a semester was levied Tuesday by Willamette's board of trustees.

The fee is effective February 1954 and is in addition to the present tuition of $210 a semester.

The new fee was authorized upon recommendation of the board's finance committee and it accompanied plans by the board to launch a long-range building program and to double the endowment from two and one-half to five million dollars.

The increase will go toward raising the salaries of the faculty. The salary increases will be made effective next September.

No major changes were noted in the new catalog.

Potential Campus Leaders Invited to Training Program

"All potential leaders on campus, which means everyone, are invited to participate in the Leadership Training conference, to be held here next Saturday, March 7," Chairman Dona Mears said today.

The meetings are designed to give students an insight to the art of leadership. Discussion meetings will be held during the afternoon when students will have a chance to present problems and hear answers.

The conference has been planned for Willamette students. However, invitations have been sent to surrounding colleges and high schools.

All students planning to attend the luncheon and dinner are asked to sign up in their prospective living organizations by next Wednesday. Registration for all students wishing to participate in the conference will begin at 8:30 Saturday morning in the basement of the State library.

To launch the day's events the keynote speaker, to be announced later, will address the group on "Why leadership" at 9:30 in the State Library. Following at 10 there will be a talk on "What is leadership" stressing the qualities and responsibilities of leadership.

Following a 11:15 coffee break, the "effective types of leadership" will be discussed.

Those attending will have a choice between three discussion groups beginning at two o'clock. They will include: "Campus communications," "Program planning" and "Parliamentary procedure."

Following the 3:15 coffee break, three discussion groups will be held simultaneously. They are "organization finance," "student-wide participation," and "orientation programs."

Bringing the conference to a close will be an informal banquet at Lausanne hall. State Senator Phil Hitchcock will be the featured speaker.

'Pygmalion' Due Thursday

George Bernard Shaw's "Pygmalion," Willamette theatre's third production of the year, begins a three-day run Thursday night at 8:15 on the state of Waller hall.

Students may reserve seats for either Thursday, Friday or Saturday night performance by presenting their student body ticket at the drama office.

According to Director Dean Graunke, the production style will be a "severely modern and experimental treatment of staging." The three sets for the three-act play will each feature a predominant color: wine, blue and pink. Costumes and furnishing will also be severe and modern in keeping with the stylized version.

Starring roles will be filled by Teddy Ruth Gordon as Liza Doolittle and John Bone as Mr. Higgins. The supporting cast includes Jim Chittick as Colonel Pickering; Kent Lawrence, Alfred Doolittle; Fred Cummings, Freddy Eynsford Hill; Lollie Coffey, Mrs. Eynsford; Elizabeth Winship, Clara Eynsford Hill; Margaret Conklin, Mrs. Pearce.

Bob Kaufman, Dee Miller and Bill Hagemeyer will play bystanders, with Jean Thomas as Mrs. Higgins and Johanna Beckman as the parlor maid. Dorothea Anderson is production manager.

Schulze to Replace Clark As Frosh Glee 'Man of Hour'

Dr. Daniel Schulze has been chosen by the Glee committee to replace ex-Willamette Professor Herman Clark as the "man of the hour" for the night of the class song competition. Dr. Schulze will announce the class Glee placings because of the retirement of Prof. Clark.

Classes will meet next week to shape up plans for participation in Willamette's forty-fifth Glee March 21.

The class meetings will be the first big step in class action since the election of officers two weeks ago.

Manager Vaughn Blankenship predicted that class rivalry would be stepped-up in preparation for the Glee challenge March 10.

Other developments toward Glee night are progressing satisfactorily. Words and music for class Glee songs are due in Dr. George Martin's office by 4 p. m. next Friday. Judges have been selected, but will not be

Band Prepares More Concerts

Willamette's road-happy concert band will complete the second of two tours to Northwest cities today with a morning concert at Estacada high school and an afternoon appearance at Cleveland high in Portland.

The group played at Stayton high last night and previous to that time they had completed a four-day tour to Eastern Oregon and one Washington concert.

After the Eastern Oregon swing two weeks ago, five members of the band were confined to the infirmary due to what was reported to be a hard band trip. Maurice Brennen, band instructor, said that the trip was hard but that such was necessary to make the trip pay for itself. The band gave three concerts a day and had a large distance to travel between concerts. Prof. Brennen attributed the infirmary cases to improper rest by those concerned after the tour.

revealed until later. A pictorial review of Glee, the size of the Collegian, will be distributed also, he said. Each student will be entitled to one free copy.

Betas Cop Song Crown

The campus chapter of Beta Theta Pi returned from the fraternity's annual Northwest Beta Songfest in Seattle last weekend with a healthy share of the awards presented.

The chapter's entry in the 16-man chorus competition won first place over a field of seven other Northwest delegations to regain the crown they had held previously for four consecutive years. The local chapter also brought home the scholarship award and the trophy for the outstanding chapter news publication.

Students to Buy Ballet Tickets at Lower Rates; Williams' 'Streetcar' to Be Featured Number

By Duane Alvord
Collegian Reporter

Special student tickets will be made available to Willamette students at a reduced rate for the March 6 appearance of the Franklin-Slavenska Ballet in the Salem high auditorium. Concert Manager Phil Ringle announced that the special tickets, selling for $1.00, are available at the student body office or from the various living organization salesmen.

Three of the ballet world's brightest stars—Mia Slavenska, Frederick Franklin, and the incomparable Alexandra Danilova—head the company which is fresh from an extended run at New York City's New Century theatre. All three are former lead dancers with the Ballet Russe.

Feature attraction of the ballet troupe will be Valerie Bettis' dance version of Tennessee Williams' Pulitzer prize winning play, "A Streetcar Named Desire." The ballet company of 50 is complete with orchestra.

Two other ballets, "Mlle Fifi," and "The Nutcracker Suite," will be included on the program.

The reproduction of "Streetcar" is described by a New York critic as "an independent theater piece of enormous dramatic power and emotional urgency. Miss Bettis has told through movement that which could not be told in words." Another critic said, "From stage to movie to ballet it apparently grows in strength."

The Real University

What can we say about the announced building program Willamette is undertaking except, we approve heartily. It is a great thing both for Willamette as a school and for us as students and as graduates of Willamette. But we hope, too, (and we have every reason to believe) that this physical growth will be accompanied by a spiritual growth, by an increase in Willamette's efforts to turn out the best in a balanced liberal education. This program should be a challenge to everyone concerned, from the board of trustees to each student, to build up the real university.

To show our enthusiasm for the program and our belief in the ability of the heart of Willamette to grow as fast as its body, we hereby pledge $5. Maybe it will start the ball rolling. —D.S.

Being a Leader Is Easy

As Senator Hitchcock said, "Being a leader can be as easy as being a follower." And when speaking to college students, especially Willamette students, he is right. College students have had every opportunity to develop the qualities of leadership—intelligence, education, a strong moral fiber. Potentially, then, we are ready to take our place in the world in which we will someday direct the affairs of our nation and possibly much of the world.

But the potential has not been developed and that is why the Collegian urges each one of our readers to participate in Willamette's forthcoming Leadership Training program. For an entire day you will hear the why's and wherefore's of leadership explained and see leaders in action. One day will not make an Eisenhower or a Gandhi out of you, but it might provide the inspiration. In a college student as in a mature citizen, leadership is the sum total of everything good you learn in college. For your own good, as well as for the good of this country in twenty years, make the most of it.

WHO'S WINNING IN 'SOSHING' vs STUDYING?

By Jim Hitchman

(The Collegian asked Jim Hitchman, vice-president in charge of social activities, to discuss his segment of student government. The following is a collection of opinions, actions and ideas garnered after several months' meandering in student affairs.)

At Willamette we label ourselves with the "too many activities" malady and then go ahead each day without doing much of anything about it. It is my belief that we do not have too many activities on our campus, rather that the key to the problem lies with our attitude. There are a few people in many activities and many people in a few activities. The solution lies in picking and choosing for ourselves—no one can do it all. I also feel that maturity is a goal worth reaching, and if striven for, would solve many of our complaints and indifferent attitudes.

Three-Step Plan

For Controlling Activity

Concerning the Activities Board, we have seen the problem in a three-step plan: basic checking and regeneration of groups, regulation of meetings of all sorts (time consumers) and student attitude. Endeavoring to alleviate these three components, we began by installing a new central calendar and bulletin board and working for closer contact with activity groups.

A ruling was passed assuming jurisdiction over temporary and newly forming groups. Then the regulation that read "All campus activity groups shall cease meetings at 7:30" was neither adhered to nor was it adequate: so the board extended the time for meetings of all sorts (excluding living groups) to be over with to 8:30 on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. The idea behind this was to regulate everything in order to be fair to all, avoid duplication and conserve time.

Is a 'Dead' Month Dead?

We were worried about another ruling which concerned January as "dead month," which was so general that interpretation and enforcement were difficult. Thus, last Monday the board passed a motion stating that January shall be social dead month and that all activities such as dances, firesides, ASWU activities, faculty or University sponsored activities for ASWU, retreats, faculty recitals, class

A TRIP TO WORLD PEACE'S WEAKEST LINK

By Stan Nelson

A quick view of the Mediterranean area in 12 exciting lessons was made by Edith Wissenbach, Willamette senior who returned to campus this semester. Her trip by boat and plane from Barcelona, Spain, to Athens, Greece and back again, with 10 other stops in between, began August 11 and ended October 18 of last year.

Edith, or "Edie" as she is called, made the journey with her folks and a friend. Each stop was limited to approximately a week, but she managed to learn a great deal about the people and their attitudes. She said she observed much about the conditions of the respective countries visited — and even received a proposal of marriage! Many Ports Visited

Beginning at Barcelona, the group traveled on by ship to Marseille, Naples, Alexandria, Cairo, Leghorn, Genoa, and to Beirut, Lebanon. Disembarking at Beirut, they went by land to Damascus, flew to Jerusalem, Istanbul and finally to Athens. The travelers then retraced their steps back through the waters of the Mediterranean.

Edie's most significant reaction to the places of visitation came in her week's stay in Jerusalem. The group stayed in the Arab sector of the city, where she found conditions among the Arabs appalling.

Arab Land Overpopulated

The United Nation's division of Israel is very uneven, she found, and made a hodgepodge of the country. The Jewish people, she said, own most of the money and control the rich land, while the Arabs are forced to live in poverty.

The Arab sector of Jerusalem has a population of about 800,000 people, twice as many people as the land supported before the UN division of Israel — and the land barely supported the 400,000 natives.

Filth, squalor and disease is the condition in which the Arabs live. "The greatest need for these people," said Miss Wissenbach, "is sanitation and screens for doors and windows to stop the flies and insects which run rampant in the Arab sector."

Edie added that a dozen or so children will follow you about in the streets begging for food, while their jobless folks are idle. Two small soap and ice factories, both of which could probably be put in the basement of Waller hall, are the only evidence of industry.

U.S. Supports Jews

She stated that "the Arabs like Americans personally" but are "mad at the United States for the deal they are getting in the division of American aid." The U. S. at the present time is supporting Jewish Israel.

"Egypt," said Edie, "is strongly anti-British. Alexandria," she said, "is much dirtier since the British have left. You can smell the city from several miles at sea and a captain told of seeing a dead horse and a dead baby floating in the water near the port."

Edie found prices very low in Spain and said that the government opened the country to tourists recently, although the move is opposed by the Roman Catholic church in Spain. "The people," she added, "are poor, sort of lackadaisical, but seem to be getting along all right." She found very little begging by the people of Spain.

Anti-American signs such as "Ridgeway go home" and "Americans go home" were found in France, denoting the Communist influence there. "However," said Edie, "Communism is not as rampant in southern France as it is in the northern part of the country."

Turkey Impresses Edie

Edie was most impressed by what she found in Turkey. "Turkey is an up and coming country," she said, "they are doing a wonderful job in developing their nation by making the most of U. S. aid, and they are ready to fight Communism at the drop of a hat."

"Many reforms have been instituted in Turkey," she added. "The women there no longer wear veils and many other social and religious customs have been lifted."

The situation is contrary in Greece where inflation is "terrifically high and without U. S. aid," said Edie, "the country probably would not even exist."

Guide Proposes Marriage

Probably the oddest thing Edie had happen to her was a proposal of marriage by a guide to the group — two hours after he had met her! He was very proper about it, however, because he went to her father first. Edie's father turned the guide down.

Edie found Jerusalem, with its narrow alleys and veiled women to be farthest from U. S. life. She said Hollywood reproductions of Near Eastern cities are true, except that they "leave out the flies and the dirt." In Damascus, the group had to flatten themselves against the walls of the streets to let donkeys and camels pass by.

Edie said that due to the short time they visited each city, her observations might possibly be incorrect or incomplete. Her report comes from observations found after not more than a week - and - a - half visit in any of the respective cities.

Do All Stories Need a Subject?

By Jim Scott

Empty is the ship without a cargo; desolate is the desert without an oasis; forlorn is the puppy without a boy and frantic is this reporter without a subject. As the old saying goes, there is no use to turn up the wick if there is no kerosene in the lamp, but when Mr. Editor is justly expecting Oil for the Cramps of Pica it is our necessary duty to supply the literary kerosene.

I was considering the setting up of a poll of student suggestions, in which the members of the faculty and student body might suggest the topics they would like to see written up as a feature column. I was going to do this last week but I was so busy cutting the valentines off the Red Heart dog food labels that I forgot all about it. This poll of which I speak with the students supplying topical fodder for the features could certainly add to the student interest and, as they might come to say, it's a wise feature writer who knows his own fodder. We might title such a column The Trotter Poll as we are not in as much of a hurry as the Gallup Poll.

By way of gathering syntax for today's edition I strolled into the library with an overdue book under my coat, smiled at the librarian like a mule munching cactus and by way of distracting him I gayly chided, "You know, we're intellectual opposites — you're intellectual and I'm opposite. By the way, how are you today?" He slipped my book out of the pile I had concealed it in, flipped open the cover and replied, "Fine—sixty cents, please." I believe all librarians are suspicious of people who have that look of studied carelessness. I know the librarian was wondering how long I had studied to look as careless as I did.

Having gotten off to such a poor start I decided against doing an article on the library and as the latest Kinsey report had not arrived I felt there was little reason for my lingering.

Still in need of fuel I looked over the calendar and noticed that February seemed to be the month for some of our Presidents. But these men would have had birthdays even if they had never been elected, as Stevenson fans will verify, so there was little news here.

Dead week, of a sort, is just around the corner, so to speak.

Freshman Glee is getting close, but other members of the staff will be throwing logs on that conflagration; but by next week I might have a poll to toss in the fire myself.

If anyone does happen to have a topic he would like to see written up in the form of an intelligent feature column, he will be cordially received in the Collegian office. And if anyone has a topic he would just like to see treated, I would be only too pleased to discuss it with him.

The Student Body Roundtable

To the Editor:

One week ago today our basketball team came from behind to defeat Linfield 66-67. The fact that they could win after trailing by 16 points indicates the spirit and fight the team has shown this season. Time and time again they have had to play taller and faster teams, yet they still are in contention for the Conference title because they play with all their strength and heart. Win or lose this week end, our team will not be outfought - they just don't give up.

We, as a student body, should be ashamed of the support we have given this team. I had the opportunity to sit across from the Willamette rooting section for the first quarter of last week's game. The student attendance was poor—no Pepecats were visible. For the first three quarters only a very small handful of students were yelling (about ten, counting the rally squad.)

In short, our yelling last Friday was the poorest I've ever heard, and it's been poor all season.

And so, tonight, let's all go to the game, let's all stand when the band plays "Fight Bearcats, Fight," and let's all give our fighting team the encouragement they richly deserve.

Rollin Cocking
Student Body President

parties, movies, meetings of campus peripheral, service or honorary groups, programs and intramurals the week before finals shall be prohibited. An amendment was passed giving the activities board the power to maintain, retract or add to the above as the situation demands. The principle we followed was that anything not connected with the curriculum at Willamette is extra-curricular, time consuming and social.

I believe that there is a lack of genuine academic interest on the part of the ASWU. Don't too many of us study when there's nothing else to do? Activities and studies must be balanced, as both are necessary; but you cannot stress both. This spring there are faculty forums and faculty firesides planned. The latter are for the express purpose of furthering student - faculty relations and pursuing usable knowledge in a relaxed atmosphere. It will be revealing to see how these firesides succeed.

Leadership Important

On March 7 there is to be a Leadership Training program. It is apparent that at this time we as members of the ASWU and as individuals could derive and contribute much to this program. Dona Mears and Dave Wisnom have geared the program to suit Willamette's problems — if we do not respond we have only ourselves to blame.

In closing let us think for a moment about one of the maladies that faces a democracy. Whether in national government, city government or student government it is the same—apathy. Worded differently, it means that we do not get up and do something about that which is on our minds, or we have it too easy, or we're kidding ourselves . . .

In principle, student government is as important in its sphere as national government is in its sphere. A weak or indifferent student body and government reflects the individuals in the student body . . . Maturity presents a challenge and it is a test of character to accept the challenge.

Activity Board Deadens 'Dead Month'

Calendar Cut for January In Strengthening Previous Law

The activities board has taken action designed to make "dead months" more effective and to improve faculty-student relations.

The board voted to abolish all activities during the month of January. These include dances, firesides, ASWU, retreats, faculty recitals, class parties, movies, meetings of campus service or honorary groups, programs and intramurals.

Handbook Definition

The ruling of the student handbook previous to this passage stated that "no social activities, except class parties to be held on one designated weekend of the month," are to be scheduled during January. The board felt that this statement was too general as was evidenced by the last January dead month. During this time a faculty sponsored basketball game, a concert artist performance, an intramural basketball tournament and numerous club meetings took place.

The newest law prohibits any such activities. However, by means of an amendment, the board reserves the right to allow a social activity in the case of an unusual event, such as a touring concert artist.

The student council has the right to change this ruling and override the decision of the activities board. The new passage can also be changed by future activities boards.

Spring Firesides Considered

The new spring fireside program adopted at a recent board meeting elaborates on the growing idea that more academic interest should be stimulated.

The faculty-student program, designed by Mary Ellen Snyder and Dean Robert Gregg, is to provide for department advisors to invite their advisees into their homes on a specific night in order to discuss current problems and subjects in that field.

Scheduled for March 25, April 1 and May 6, any student may attend any program he so desires. Transportation and refreshments are to be furnished from a special fund.

Mase Selected New Rotarian

Dick Mase, senior in physical education and captain of the Willamette basketball team, was named by the student council this week as Rotarian for the month of March. Mase will succeed Joe Benninghoff, last month's Rotarian.

Considered Willamette's leading basketball player, Mase has led the team to their second place position which they now hold in the Northwest Conference. Consistently high in scholarship averages, Mase is active in the independents organization on campus and is a discussion group leader at the forthcoming Leadership training program.

WU Song Books Going to Press

Willamette song books will be sold this year at Freshman Glee by AWS, Mary Campbell, president, announced this week.

Sheila Schuerman is in charge of the publication, which is coming along quite smoothly, she said.

The song books will feature words and music of one song from each living organization and Glee numbers of the past three years, with this year included also.

This is the first time a book of Willamette songs has been published since the year 1932.

Palm Sunday Marks Beginning Of WU Choir's Northwest Tour

A concert given by the Willamette university choir at the Centenary Wilbur Methodist church on Palm Sunday will mark the beginning of a two-week choir tour throughout Washington and part of Oregon.

The choir, under the direction of Dean Melvin Geist, will travel by busses on the journey,

Medical School Accepts McDowell

Milton McDowell has been accepted for study at the University of Oregon Medical school, it was announced today by Dr. Cecil Monk, advisor to the Med club.

McDowell brings to eight the number of Willamette men who have been accepted to West Coast medical schools this year. McDowell, a junior from Portland, attended the Naval Academy at Annapolis before coming to Willamette.

Gates, Schnelker to Be Heard In Faculty Recital Monday

The College of Music will present the first faculty recital of the year on Monday evening at 8:15 in the recital hall. Dr. Willis Gates, violinist, and Josef Schnelker, pianist, will perform a program of Sonatas representing four different periods of musical composition. The first number will represent the Modern period with the Sonata in F Flat, Op. 11, by Hindemith. This Sonata consists of two movements and is interesting for its unconventional harmonies and varying rhythms.

The second group performed by Dr. Gates and Mr. Schnelker returns to the Baroque period with the Sonata in E Major by J. S. Bach. This Sonata is typical of pre-classical music written in that form, with the first and third movements written in slow tempo and the second and fourth movements played at faster speed.

Following the Bach will be a composition by the Classic master Beethoven. This composer brought the sonata form to its highest peak of development, and the Sonata in G Major, Op. 96, is an excellent example of his art.

The concluding number on the program is the Sonata in F Major, Op. 57, by Dvorak. This Sonata, an example of the Romantic period, is not so strict as to form, but is rich in harmonic and melodic material.

Shaw's 'Pygmalion' Salty Production; Plot Built Around Phonetics Prof

George Bernard Shaw's salty "Pygmalion" will be sprinkled over Willamette and Salem theatergoers next Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

The bouncing production, under the direction of Prof. Dean Graunke, was titled by Shaw from a tale by the Latin poet Ovid who speaks of a sculptor named Pygmalion who created a beautiful statue and then fell in love with it.

Shaw's Pygmalion is in the person of a London professor of phonetics, Harry Higgins, played by John Bone. The good professor picks up a poor cockney flower girl, Eliza Doolittle, portrayed by Teddy Gordon, and transforms her into a well-educated, respectable lady.

Alfred Doolittle, played by Kent Lawrence, comes onto the scene in his role as a chimney-sweep. Shaw uses Doolittle to mirror his annoyance at people who are comfortable when they should be uncomfortable. Doolittle is one of the "undeserving poor."

The undeserving Doolittle demands payment from Professor Higgins for using his daughter, Eliza, in his experiments. All he wants the money for is "one good spree for myself and the missus, giving pleasure to ourselves and employment to others."

Higgins asks Doolittle why he does not marry that "missus" of his and the chimney sweep reports that he is willing but that she is not. Doolittle says that if only he could claim her as his legal wife, then he would have to give her presents and be agreeable to her in order to keep his hold on the woman.

WU Debators Visit Portland

Four members of the Willamette forensic squad will attend the Fifth Northwest Inter-collegiate Town Meeting tournament in the Portland area this week.

The delegates of each of the fifteen participating colleges and universities is limited to one student moderator and three speakers. Willamette's moderator this year is Tom Scheidel, senior, and the three speakers are James Wood, senior, and Marian Rutledge and Gay Kent, freshmen. Each of the four will participate in six programs before different audiences within a radius of 25 miles of Portland. The programs will all take the form of panels and symposia with the usual question and answer period afterward.

Last year Willamette's representatives, appearing individually on programs with students of other schools, addressed audiences ranging from high school assemblies numbering nearly 2,000 to a small group of disabled soldiers at the Veterans hospital.

Dr. Howard W. Runkel, director of forensics, considers the Town Meeting tournament the most productive of all events on the Willamette debator's schedule because of the challenging and varied audience situations presented and the necessity for each speaker to defend this point of view under impromptu questioning from the audience.

Council Picks Trio for Meet

Two Willamette students, Deline Montag and Jim Hitchman, will accompany Prof. A. Freeman Holmer to the Pacific Northwest Conference on Higher Education to be held at the University of Oregon March 13 and 14. The three were named in the regular meeting of the student council Wednesday.

Other business taken up by the council included approval of dates for May Weekend manager petitions, voting on the May Queen and petitions for student body offices. A committee was also appointed to look into the possibilities of a career day program.

The conference on higher education deals with gearing administrations to expanding student bodies. Roundtable discussions will be held on how to serve gifted students, how to get more value out of the administration dollar and similar topics. Top-flight administration officials are brought in as speakers.

First vice-president Bob Stone reported that petitions for May Weekend manager must be in by March 25. Voting on the top ten May Queen candidates selected by the senior class will take place on April 21 and petitions for next year's student body office posts are due May 4.

The possibility of a career day was proposed which would set aside a day or an evening for the purpose of orienting students to definite careers. A committee was appointed by President Rollin Cocking to check with the freshman and sophomore class presidents to estimate how well such a program would be accepted.

Final business of the day concerned the passing of the constitutions of Sigma Alpha Chi and the Student Christian Social Action committee group.

Prof to Speak On Semantics

Dr. Marco Rignalda, professor of journalism, will speak on "Language and Meaning" at the next meeting in the Faculty Forum series Wednesday night at 8:15 in the Music school recital hall.

Dr. Rignalda will consider how the recent movement of scholars to throw new light on the nature of language and of knowledge itself has had a far-reaching effect upon the entire contemporary approach to science and philosophy.

The fundamental problem of conveying sense rather than nonsense and of insuring clarity of expression has attracted close study by some of the keenest scientists, mathematicians and philosophers of the past few decades, he said.

Bearcats Need Clean Sweep for Honors Or Else Championship Goes to Pioneers

By Hal Johnson
Collegian Sports Reporter

Things are looking tough for the Bearcats this week as they go into their final scheduled weekend of action this season against the conference-leading Lewis and Clark Pioneers.

The 'Cats go into the two-game home-and-home series a full game out of first place and a do-or-die proposition facing them.

Bearcat Chances Good

In order to retain their league crown the Bearcats must win both Friday and Saturday nights. Friday the basketballers perform in Salem and Saturday they play in Portland.

Both Coach John Lewis and

Golf Meeting Today

All those who are interested in playing golf this spring for Willamette, defending Northwest conference champions, are urged to meet in room 204 in the gymnasium this afternoon at 12:30.

his players are looking at the picture with a slight bit of optimism. Lewis thinks of the Willamette chances as very possible and fairly probable. His squad is at full strength and should it remain this way the chances of a double victory are good. One thing for sure is that Lewis hopes the team does not make a habit of getting 17 points behind as they did against Linfield last weekend, because it might prove fatal against Lewis and Clark.

The team morale is high and they should put out their usual scrappy game. Pete Reed is back in shape at the pivot spot. Dick Hoy and Dick Mase are playing top notch games at forward, while Dave Gray and Lefty Shield are doing some fine play-setting at guard.

Pioneers Favored

The bench is even stronger now with the discovery of Jim Henslee's rebounding which came out in recent games. Jack Scrivens, Jerry McCallister and Bill Colvard all contribute to making an impressive bench.

Eldon Fix's Pioneers will probably be the favorites, as they hold the edge in size and experience. They have led the conference for the last two or three weeks and will have a definite edge on their home floor Saturday night.

The Lewis and Clark starting line-up will have two of the top scorers in the conference on it. They are Ken Servais and John Fuez. Servais broke the Lewis and Clark scoring record last Monday night against College of Idaho when he scored 36 points. Fuez was the leading scorer in the conference up till last week when R. C. Owens of College of Idaho passed him.

Milt Schroeder is the other starting forward and Gary Jackson and Duane Brady are the starters in the back court. Brady is a freshman from Powers, a class "B" school. Brady will be remembered for his playing in the state tournament which has been held on the Willamette campus for the past two years. Brady received all-state honors both years.

Willamette Bearkitts Face Pioneers; Frosh Loop Championship on Block

The Willamette Bearkittens are little better off in their race for the league crown than are the Bearcats.

Although the Frosh must win both games against Lewis and Clark this weekend like the varsity, they still can take a share of the mythical Northwest freshman basketball crown if they split with the Junior Pioneers. If the Bearkittens drop both games, it would give the league championship to Pacific.

The probable starting line-up for Jerry Frei's Bearkittens has Jerry Kangas and John Bradtl at the forward spots and Jerry Patterson at the center slot. The probable guards are Bob Miller and Ralph Rudzik.

The Bearkittens moved closer to the league crown with a 84-66 win over Linfield last Saturday night, but lost their fifth game in 15 starts last Tuesday night to West Linn in a non-league affair by a 73-70 score.

The win over the Junior Wildcats made it three straight over the McMinnville crew. Also for the second straight time, the Bearkittens led all the way. Ron Fitzgerald and Dale Gustafson led Willamette with 11 points apiece, but Gauthier of Linfield was high point man for the evening with 18.

The West Linn Lions overtook the Bearkittens in the second quarter and led the rest of the way. The Lions had a 32-27 half-time lead. Fitzgerald again was high point man for Willamette with 15 points, followed by Ron Butler with 11. Ron Webster of West Linn was high point man for the night with 18.

Dick Mase, shown above, is one of the two seniors who will be playing their last game for Willamette this weekend. (Statesman cut.)

Mase, Shepard Finish Careers

Dick Mase and Bob Shepard will be playing their last game for Willamette this weekend when the Bearcats meet Lewis and Clark.

This year Coach John Lewis will not be hit as hard by graduation as he was last year when six Bearcats ended their basketball careers for Willamette.

Both Mase and Shepard came to Willamette as transfers two years ago. Mase attended University of Oregon and Shepard went to Oregon State college for his freshman year.

Mase attended Salem high and played for the Oregon Frosh. After sitting out a year because of eligibility rules, Mase broke right into the Willamette starting line-up, and finished third in the season's scoring. Mase leads the Bearcats in scoring this year.

John Lewis says that Mase has been one of the finest competitors that he has ever coached and he has been invaluable as the leader of this year's ball club which is so young.

Shepard is an example of what determination can do. He did not play basketball at Salem high or at OSC. Then last year Shepard went out for the varsity and made it.

Track Meet Set

WAA Archers Take Third Spot In National Meet

Willamette's WAA archery team finished in third place in the Intercollegiate archery meet behind two teams from the University of Connecticut.

Three divisions made up the meet, one of men and women alone and the other women and men together. Eighteen colleges entered the meet comprising 109 teams and over 300 archers.

In the class "D" bracket which Willamette entered five teams, three teams placed in the top twelve. Besides taking third, Willamette finished in the sixth and twelve spots.

The Connecticut school placed eight teams, but had entered 47 squads in the competition.

Willamette finished in first place last year with a total score of 6206 while the winning score this year was 6262. Willamette's third place team this year had a score of 6038 while the second place team had 6083.

In individual scoring, Ursula Glaeser of Willamette tied for second place with Lorraine Hauscheld of Connecticut. They had a score of 528 while the winner, Elizabeth Kinsey of Connecticut had a perfect score of 540.

Other archers from Willamette who placed in the top ten are Claudia Engdahl and Shirley Dugger who placed fourth and eighth respectively.

In other girl's sports, Linfield defeated Willamette 33-18 in basketball Thursday, February 19. Last night Willamette's badminton team traveled over to Linfield for a play day.

Baseball Tuesday

All candidates for varsity baseball this spring will meet at McCulloch stadium next Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock for the first practice of the year, according to John Lewis, baseball coach.

All men must furnish their own equipment for the first week of practice.

Riflemen Add 2 New Matches; Join Society

Two more mail matches have been set for Willamette's ROTC rifle team, according to Coach M-Sgt. Robert Howard.

Louisiana State university is the first opponent and the match has been set for Saturday, March 7, and the following Saturday the Willamette squad meets Ripon college of Ripon, Wisconsin.

These two new matches make a total of three yet to be fired by the rifle team. The other match is against North Texas State Teachers college. This is a mail match set for Saturday, April 11. Additional matches may come before the school year is over via challenges from other AFROTC schools.

The Bearcat squad has also joined the Society of American Military Engineers. The society was limited to engineers and ground forces until this year when it was opened to the air forces. Willamette will be able to participate in the society's annual rifle marksmanship competition. The winner of the meet is given a trophy and the members of the winning team are given individual medals.

This match gives the Willamette squad three major meets to compete in each year. The other two are the Hearst and the fifth regional of the NCAA.

Some More on the Ski Meet

It is very seldom that two different sides of one story can be correct, but this seems to be the case in the intramural ski meet controversy.

The Betas, winners of the meet this year, claim that all teams were told of the competition and that the intramural managers of the different organizations did not have to be notified since they have not been in the past. Instead the top skiers of each organization were supposedly told of the meet.

Word comes from Wally Boe, a member of the Intramural council last year which consists of all the intramural managers, that the council did know that last year's meet was being held. Bill Hagemeyer, Phi Delt intramural manager, checked and found out that none of the top skiers in the Phi Delt house knew anything of this year's ski meet.

Letter Gives Different Impression

Also in the letter written by Jim Bergmann which appeared in the Collegian last week, it sounds as though one team forfeited its chance to run in the intramural race because one of its members chose to enter another race being held that day, while one member of the independent team raced in both meets.

According to Merlin Schulze of the Sig team, which incidentally is the team in question, had the Portland Day Trail race been started on time no one would have been able to run in both ski events, but because of radio difficulties, the Portland race started an hour and a half later than it was scheduled for. Not knowing this was going to happen, Schulze declined to run in the Intramural race in lieu of forfeiting his entry fee in the Portland race.

Another thing which Schulze believes is wrong is the fact that no pre-entry list was made before leaving for the intramural ski meet. The pre-entry list which includes all those who are planning to ski is made up so that all the participants will have a way up to the site of the meet. Had this been done, Schulze believes that there would not have been any arguments since all teams would not only know of the running of the meet, but would have been represented at the meet which was held at Mt. Hood.

Many in Favor of Another Meet

Most of the organizations are in favor of running the meet off again. And as Bob Swift of the SAE's puts it, "The Betas could surely win the ski meet again if all the organizations knew of the time and place of the meet since the Betas DID outrun ALL the opposition at the meet."

Of course, the biggest problem would be in the re-organizing another meet. Some of the teams are so bitter about the situation that they will not have anything to do with organizing another ski meet.

The best situation brought forward so far is to have a committee composed of one member from each organization get together and organize another meet. This way no one would have anything to squabble about when a new meet is run off.

Willamette Keeps Title Hopes Alive With Last-Minute Win Over Linfield

For the second straight game, the Willamette Bearcats won on a last-minute basket.

This time it was Dick Hoy who kept the Bearcats in the race for the Northwest conference championship as Willamette edged Linfield 77-76 last Saturday on the local floor.

The Monday night previous, Jim Henslee's bucket gave the Bearcats a 72-71 win over College of Idaho.

Willamette at one time was 17 points behind Linfield, but with Dick Mase and Hoy leading the way, the Bearcats cut the lead down to six points with six minutes remaining. In the next three minutes the margin was cut in half. Mase finally tied the score with just two minutes left in the game.

Ad Rutschmann dropped in a free throw and a lay-up to put the Wildcats out in front by three again and it looked as though he might become the hero of the game. Mase cut the lead to one with a one-hander from the side.

Linfield had possession of the ball with less than a minute remaining. Rutschmann rather than freeze the ball went up after a crumble, but missed and became the goat of the game. Henslee grabbed the rebound and tossed it out to Lefty Shield. Shield brought it down the floor and tossed it over to Hoy who promptly popped it in for the game-winning score.

Linfield had a couple of shots before the final gun, but missed both. Henslee tied up Olson and a jump ball was thrown as the buzzer sounded to end the game.

Hoy led all the scorers with 27 points. Shield and Mase followed with 17 and 16 points respectively. Tarpinning of Linfield finished with 19 points while Ted McKee followed with 17 although he played only about 20 minutes.

The win gave Willamette the edge in the three-game series with Linfield. The Wildcats took the first game and spoiled Willamette's conference home opener. The Bearcats came storming back in the second game and walloped the Wildcats 103-69 on the McMinnville court.

Last Saturday's loss for Linfield dropped them deeper into the conference cellar. Linfield was one of the pre-season favorites for the league championship, but now is one of the best "cellar" teams ever to inhabit the Northwest conference basement.

Marian's Music . . .

By Jane Fooshee

It seems hardly necessary to write any comments on last Tuesday night's concert by Marian Anderson. Those who heard her will agree that she is one of the world's greatest singers, and those who did not attend the concert have probably already come to the conclusion that they missed one of the greatest experiences of a lifetime.

Miss Anderson has a tremendously versatile voice. She sings opera arias in the "grand tradition" and I believe she could hold her own with any of the best contraltos in the Met. Her voice has a marvelous carrying power; her softest tones were audible from any back seat in the auditorium, but when a song required volume, her voice could be heard over the loudest tones the accompanying piano could produce.

Understands Music

The quality that makes her "Marian Anderson" and not just another good contralto, however, is her perfect understanding of the exact type and amount of emotion needed for each song. She does not merely "sing" music, she lives it, and when she sings, one has the feeling that she has established a bond of complete understanding with her audience.

Miss Anderson impresses one immediately as a person of great mental ability, emotional depth, and kindness. She is very reserved, but occasionally her very clever sense of humor comes to the surface, and with it, a warm smile. We were discussing her early singing experiences, and she commented that when she sang in her church choir "quite a few years ago," she often substituted for the high soprano soloist. "Then, I felt no restraint about sailing way up to the high C's, but now," Miss Anderson said, "I know better."

Chapel Address

Students attending last Tuesday's chapel realized Miss Anderson's greatness before ever hearing her sing. She has one of the most beautiful speaking voices I've ever heard, and the few words she addressed to the student body were spoken to the quietest audience any chapel has seen in a long time. She spoke of her religious convictions and what they had meant to her, expressing these ideas simply in the words of one of her favorite spirituals.

This may be the secret of her greatness, it seems to me. She has risen to her present position in the musical world against many odds because she possesses an inner conviction that she has something to give the world. In personality, as well as in voice, Marian Anderson is always an inspirational figure.

the last word from ann klindworth

Bishop house elected officers recently and Sallie Cheavens has stepped into the president's job . . . Laura Abel is now vice-president and Doris Shelbourne is secretary-treasurer. Grace Link is recorder and historian and Mabel Davis will lead the group in singing. Bishop's representative to the student council will be Marilyn English.

Sigma Chis have selected Burke Samuelson to serve as their new rush chairman.

Real Deal

If you think January was a dead month this year you'll find that it was only slightly ill in comparison to plans for future January's made by the Activities board this week.

Salem theater's will be glad for their trade already booms during dead month . . . there's nothing else to do. Of course there's a liberal clause to the new ruling . . . the board is given power to withdraw or place other restrictions on activities during dead month. So if an honorary want to meet . . . or any group except living and religious organizations . . . they just go to the activities board with their reason and try to get permission. What it boils down to is this . . . when everybody is looking for something to do to ease the pressure of studying . . . playing records instead of going to concerts etc. . . the activities board will be meeting weekly to keep others from meeting.

Shaw Gets Coast ISA Post

By Stan Nelson
Collegian News Editor

A two-day convention of the Pacific Coast Regional Independent Association on the campus last Friday and Saturday resulted in the election of Willamette's Stuart Shaw as vice-president of the organization and the formation of plans for an independent council on this campus.

Shaw, a co-chairman of the convention, is the second Willamette person to hold an office in the association, Bob Stone getting the same position last year. Other officers are Dale Boose, WSC, president; Evelyn Griener, OSC, secretary and Yvonne Llewellyn, WSC, corresponding secretary and treasurer. Next year's convention site will be OCE.

Coordination Needed

It was felt by the local independent groups in attendance at the convention that more coordination is needed between them and a meeting was held between the groups Monday night for the purpose of laying groundwork for an independent council. Present were representatives from Baxter hall, Lausanne hall and the Wits. Bishop house will be asked to join.

Under the chairmanship of Gordon Wylie, Baxter, a constitution will be drawn up for the council. Helping him will be Fenton Hughes, Baxter; Jackie Meadows, Lausanne, and Evie Bollinger, Wits with a representative from Bishop yet to be chosen.

Two representatives from each organization will be elected at the next house meetings and a similar meeting will be held Monday night in the library, following regular house gatherings.

Presidents of the various campus independent groups who will be ex officio members include Stan Vanderwal, Baxter; Jackie Meadows, Lausanne; Mike Tavenner, Wits, and Sallie Cheavens, Bishop.

Shaw and Stan Nelson, convention co-chairmen, reported an enthusiastic conference "which will most certainly re-

Awards Mark Law Luncheon

The annual presentation of awards and installation of new officers was held last Friday at a Law School luncheon in Baxter hall. Speaking at the event was Sen. Paul Geddes of Roseburg.

New officers of the law school student body installed at the luncheon were Paul Dally, president; Ronald Watson, vice-president; Richard Barber, secretary-treasurer, and John Weisser, student council representative.

Pres. G. Herbert Smith presented the awards which went to James Maletis for his outstanding work as editor-in-chief of the legal handbook; to Anthony Brosterhous, Richard Brownstein, Donald Buss, Charles Burt, William Sims and Gordon Teter for editorial service; to outgoing student body officers, Keith Evans, president; Meredith Van Balkenburgh, secretary-treasurer and James Anicker, student body representative. Balkenburgh received an additional award for his work as student manager of the Law School's Legal Research service.

The featured speaker, Sen. Geddes, spoke on opportunities in the law profession, and gave advice to young lawyers going into new communities.

Those attending the luncheon in addition to students and faculty of the law school were Dr. Robert Fenix, Dean Robert Gregg, Dean Melvin Geist, Dean Mark O. Hatfield, Harold P. Jory and Charles A. Paeth.

sult in better organized local groups and in a noticeable increase in strength of the Coast ISA."

New Members Added

New members to the Coast region, adding to the membership of Willamette, WSC, OSC and Idaho, were Oregon, Pacific and College of Puget Sound. Fifty-four delegates from the six outside schools attended, in addition to 27 Willamette delegates.

Two speakers, Senator Richard L. Neuberger and Dean of men George Ennis of Lewis and Clark addressed the group.

Neuberger spoke of the independent as one who can "judge objectively" and who can "choose his own friends" because of his independence. He added that one of the biggest values of having the independent organization is its tolerance and general non-exclusion of members which is not true of fraternal organizations.

Congratulates Audience

Neuberger congratulated the audience for their position as independents and said that he chose to not affiliate with Greeks when he was a student at the University of Oregon. He repeatedly cautioned the group to judge persons as "individuals," however, and not "according to their group ties," something "that independents as individuals are able to do."

Ennis' speech was titled, "Can an Independent be Too Independent?" He cited the extreme individualism and the member of a Greek letter organization as the most non-individual of the campus, saying that "there is a job to be done by the organized independent who can do it because he wants to, and he does it for the school and not for the glory of a fraternal order."

Nichol Keeps Study Grant

Prof. J. Charles Nichol received news this month of the renewal of a grant made by the Research Corporation of New York in 1949.

The original grant was made for the purchase of equipment to aid in research in studying the "moving boundary systems containing weak electrolytes." The study has been conducted using simpler molecular systems with the hope of gaining understanding of them and consequent understanding of the complex systems. The process of study involves passing an electrical current through a compound in solution.

A partial report was made to the Northwest regional conference of the American Chemical society last year. Publication of results will be sometime in the indefinite future.

The renewal of the grant has enabled Prof. Nichol to secure a student, John Rockenfeller, to aid him in his work.

The original grant was in the amount of $2600 and is known as the Frederick Gardner Cottrell grant.

Up to 75 fellowships may be awarded, with fully-accredited graduate study to be carried out in three locations. One of the programs is operated by the University of Washington and the Hanford Works of the AEC.

Nine months of course work at the university is followed by three months of additional study and field training at the co-operating AEC installation. The program is accredited for graduate-level training leading toward an advanced degree.

Basic stipend for men is $1600 per year, with an allowance of $350 if married and $350 for each dependent child. University tuition and required fees will be paid by the Oak Ridge Institute of Nuclear Studies, which administers the program for the AEC.

1 Year Foreign Study Offered

A chance to spend the junior year of college attending the University of Munich, Germany, has been made available by Wayne university in Detroit, Michigan, sponsors of "The Junior Year in Munich" program.

Wayne is sponsoring the reopening of the German Junior Year, starting in September, 1953 as one of the Junior Year Abroad programs designed to make contributions in international experience and understanding.

Students admitted to the program will participate in an intensive orientation course in German conversation, composition and reading. The orientation program lasts until the opening of the winter semester at Munich, which starts early in November.

Courses can be either as those specifically designed for the Junior Year group or a combination of university courses supplemented by "junior year" subjects.

Courses are offered in composition, literature, history, philosophy, music and the sciences.

Further action taken by the Willamette board of trustees calls for promotion in academic rank for five faculty members. Advanced to the rank of full professorships are Dr. John A. Myers, psychology; Dr. Cameron S. J. Paulin, art; Dr. Howard W. Runkel, speech, and Dr. Martha E. Springer, biology and botany.

Blue Monday Bets Inspired By Primitive Emotions, Motives

Bet-making is one of the un-fine arts in which self-deception precedes rational thought. Nevertheless, Freshman Glee has incited such primitive emotions through the years of the tradition that a day has been set aside in which members of each class may achieve catharsis.

Someone must win Glee. Despite the fact that this reporter is absolutely certain of the outcome, there are those who think otherwise. A bet is in order. On March 23, Blue Monday will see the pay-off.

In past Blue Mondays Willamette student behavior has run the gamut of conduct described in modern psychology texts—some even that have not been described. In 1949, for instance, one bet loser, dressed as the ancient Greek philosopher Diogenes, strolled through the Oregon state Senate and House of Representatives carrying a candle and a sign bearing the words, "I'm looking for an honest man." He failed to find one. This failure prompted these two august bodies to pass legislation to the effect that future Willamette Blue Monday activities be confined to the campus.

Bets are in order. Whether class members make one bet or twenty they are urged to make sure that they won't be the loser.

Plans Listed For Teaching

Recognizing the need for elementary teacher training, Willamette university is now cooperating closely with Oregon schools of education. Though this university does not offer a program leading to elementary teacher certificates, there are four ways a prospective education major may secure such a certification, points out Dr. George Martin, head of the education department.

1. Enter Willamette and stay as long as desired, transferring to an elementary teacher training institution at the end of the sophomore or junior year. Plan work at Willamette for this purpose.

2. Enter Willamette and take the Cooperative Degree program, by which three years with Willamette and a fourth at Monmouth, Ashland or La Grande (all schools of education) will lead to regular elementary certification and a degree from the latter college. This must be a planned program for each of the three years at Willamette.

3. Enter Willamette and graduate, with regular degree program and with some of the courses leading to secondary certification, followed by a summer session at one of the elementary teacher training institutions. This would earn the emergency certificate for elementary teaching, but would necessarily be followed by at least two successive summer sessions at an elementary teacher training school to earn regular elementary certification.

4. Enter Willamette and graduate, as in "3" above, and take a fifth year at an elementary training institution, rather than at Willamette.

Final Lead Filled For 'Good News'

Sophomore Lollie Coffey will sing the female lead of Constance Lane in the May Weekend musical, "Good News," Director Dean Graunke announced after Wednesday night tryouts. Malcolm Campbell was named last week to fill the male lead of Tom Marlowe.

Miss Coffey filled the final vacancy in the principal cast which was released last week. The list of vocal and dance chorus members is still incomplete beyond the previously announced group.

Films for FTA

Dr. Robert Anderson, Salem physician, will show films on education reconstruction in Europe to the Future Teachers of America at their meeting Wednesday night at 7:30 in Cresto Cottage. Dr. Anderson took the pictures during his trip to Europe last year.

ials on "Social Drinking," with a cash award of $200 for the first place paper in the contest.

Findings of real research, not "off the cuff" writing, must be used in an editorial to objectively evaluate social drinking, according to Edwin H. Maynard, contest secretary.

The contest is open to any full-time undergraduate college student registered during the 1952-53 school year. No student who has written professionally is eligible. Editorials may deal with any phase of social drinking and each writer selects his own title.

The typewritten manuscript must be submitted by May 1, 1953, to the Intercollegiate Association, 12 North Third Street, Room 522, Columbus 15, Ohio. Judging will be based on soundness and originality of thought, quality of research, clarity of expression, and accuracy of basic facts.

C-R Week Program Features 3 Special Worship Chapels

Christian Resource week had as its nucleus three chapels posing the question, "Is Christianity More Than a Dream?"

Tuesday's chapel was a prelude to the quest and search for God brought out in subsequent gatherings. Highlight of this chapel was the presence of Marian Anderson. The message "This I Do Believe" as presented by Dr. Raymond Grant, bishop of the Methodist churches of the Portland area, sought to remind that religion or Christianity can be questioned, that it is great enough to retain its entity under questioning.

Reverend Herbert E. Richards, of the First Methodist church of Boise, Idaho, developed his theme of "Searching the Wastelands." He expressed his feeling that the world is largely devoted to negative causes; it worships the brilliant color as a color rather than loving the color as a representation of its Creator.

Yesterday's chapel was devoted to the questioning and examination of "The Realness of Christianity" with Rev. Richards again presiding.

Board Grants Special Leave

By Evelyn Bolliger
 Collegian Reporter

Dr. John A. Rademaker, professor of sociology, was granted a requested leave-of-absence by the board of trustees at their mid-year meeting in Portland last Tuesday. The leave will be in effect during the coming 1953-54 school year.

"I feel the need for time to read in the various sociological fields" said Rademaker. "I will also visit sociology departments elsewhere to determine major trends in current research and trends in teaching policies at other schools."

Dr. Rademaker will concern himself chiefly with recent developments in intergroup relations and in community organization.

He plans to live at Denver. Appointment of a man to fill the temporary vacancy is under consideration. Others in the sociology department will continue in their present capacities for another year.

Dr. Rademaker will return to Willamette in September, 1954.

Missionary To Visit Campus

Billy Blakeley, Presbyterian missionary candidate planning to teach in India for a three-year term, will be on the campus next Wednesday for individual and group conferences.

Miss Blakeley will hold meetings with member groups of Interfaith Council and with Unesco. The campus YWCA will be hostess for her visit.
