PACIFIC REALIZES CHERISHED DREAM

PENNINGTON SUCCESSFUL

Standardization of Colleges Comes After Sustained Effort and Planning

With the recent telegram from Dr. Levi T. Pennington, president of Pacific College at Newberg, the dream of that school of higher education has been realized. Pacific has been working for many years towards standardization and through the efforts of President Pennington and many other earnest friends, the task has been accomplished.

Pacific Academy was founded in 1836, and was expanded into a college in 1891. Both the academy and college have grown since that time, the college alone having a student body of 150 now. The faculty contains 16 professors.

In 1921 all scholastic qualifications had been made in order that the school might measure up to the requirements of the United States Bureau of Standardization, but the Bureau changed its requirements regarding endowment, and Pacific has waited and labored until now. With the realization of a dream, Pacific does not rest on her oars. She now launches a campaign for an additional hundred thousand which will make even finer her splendid achievements.

A certain hiker's club has a singularly appropriate initiation stunt. The candidate is required to climb three mountains which are designated by the old members.

This is surely a cut and dried way of finding out whether a neophyte is worthy—and yet a very practical one. It is vastly more sensible than many paddling or tubing, which are calculated to test endurance, and might therefore be used to advantage by a laundry worker's union.

Freshman duties present a veritable mountain range to the unsuspecting. The most formidable peak is willingness-to-serve which is climbed by succeeding steps composed of miles of grass to be cut, and acres of windows to be washed and floors to be polished. Sometimes symbolic mountains are considerably more fatiguing than the actualities. Mountains are mountains, whether they be the usual great piles of earth and stones or merely figures of speech.

Pi Gamma Mu Boasts 18 Seniors This Year Elbert Derry President

Pi Gamma Mu begins work on the campus this year with 18 seniors as new members. At the first meeting of the year which took place last Wednesday, Professor S. B. Laughlin presided.

The officers elected for the organization are: Elbert Derry, president; Geraldine Cook, vice president; and Myrtle Jensen, secretary-treasurer.

The executive committee is planning a program of social and economic research work to begin immediately after the holidays. Aside from this the organization will have periodic meetings in which vital problems of the day will be discussed.

Pi Gamma Mu is a national honorary society which has as its purpose the encouragement of undergraduate study of social science.

Professor S. B. Laughlin, a national chancellor of the organization, was the founder of the Alpha Oregon chapter at Willamette which was first organized on the campus last year. Only six students were included as charter members, the rest of the organization being made up of faculty members and alumni. A complete survey of the city was made by the group last year.

The following professors are members of the organization: S. B. Laughlin, E. M. Erickson, H. C. Harding, G. H. Alden, R. M. Gatzke.

The students who have recently received the honor of membership are:

HERING G. McCAIN SPEAKS AT CHAPEL LAWYER FROM ALASKA

Hering G. McCain of Cordova, Alaska was a recent visitor and chapel speaker at Willamette. He attended Willamette University for two years, he is now district attorney in Alaska. His daughter, Ruth McCain, is a freshman here.

He spoke of the misconception that we have of Alaska. Alaska is comparable to a step-child with the United States as the home government. Since it was the gold stampede that made Alaska known, we think of it as a mere gold mine. It was founded in the spirit of stampeding and traveling; the people there were not interested in building up the country into local standard communities.

However, in the past decade the people are becoming rooted. Homes, schools, churches, railroads, highways, agriculture are growing; they are making a better and a more permanent country.

Another modern misconception is that of the climate in Alaska. A part of Alaska is in the same latitude as northern Europe. Alaska is not far away; it is nearer in miles than Chicago. No seaport other than Nome ever freezes up. There are many college trained people in Alaska. At Fairbanks there is a Territorial Agricultural College.

The territory of Alaska ships $200,000,000 actual gold into the U. S. each year; 30 to $50,000,000 of fish; 1 to 3000 of fine furs. Also, since the fur farms are being specialized, more furs will be produced. There are large bodies of timber suitable to pulp manufacture. Most of the benefits of Alaska are realized in the United States.

HAWAII PRESENTS JOYS TO TEACHERS

Requirements Similar To Those of the States. Work Varied and New

The desire to teach in Hawaii has become generally widespread in the last few years. But the qualifications necessary and how to get there presents somewhat of a puzzle to the average applicant. Applicants are to be two classes—high school teachers and grammar school teachers. In both cases previous experience is desirable but not necessary.

There are only four high schools in the territory, one on each of the larger islands, so the number of high school positions open is naturally limited. A college degree is the one absolute requirement. Appointments to schools, and in general the assignment to various branches of the work, are made at the main office in Honolulu. Most of the adjustment, however, is left to the principal after all of the teachers are assembled in their respective schools. For example, if one expects to teach English and the appointment blank specifies history, it need not be a cause of worry.

This adjustment of grades by the principal also holds true among the grammar school teachers. First and second class certificates are issued by the department of public instruction to grammar school teachers. Those possessing a normal school diploma or its equivalent receive the first class certificate; those who do not have this education and training receive the other. Possessors of first class certificates are usually given preference in positions, but otherwise the only difference is in the salary.

The territorial department of public instruction uses a graded salary rating. Two years of experience elsewhere counts for one year in the territory. The salary is paid in $50 for each year's work. The minimum salary for grammar school positions is $110 a month, and for high school, $120.

Teaching the native child presents a problem new to most teachers. Japanese make up the bulk of the population of Hawaii, and Portuguese come next in numbers. Chinese, Hawaiians, Filipinos, Porto Ricans, Koreans, and various combinations of these also occur in great numbers. Some of the races, especially the Chinese and sometimes the Japanese, are of the middle class, but the bulk of them are field laborers living in crowded plantation camps. The background of the child

LOUIS K. ANSPACHER TO LECTURE HERE

Author of "The Unchastened Woman," Man of Varied Experiences

Louis K. Anspacher, American orator, playwright, actor, and poet will speak in Waller Hall tonight at 8 o'clock.

Mr. Anspacher has spoken before the finest audiences in America and needs no introduction to many people. Those who have heard him do not require any urging to go to hear him again. He stands in the very front ranks of the great platform men that this country has produced in all its history.

Mr. Anspacher was born in America and educated here. He attended the public schools, the college of the City of New York, Columbia University Graduate School, and Columbia University Law School.

He has held many positions of importance, having been secular lecturer in Temple Emmanuel, Fifth Ave., New York City, and a member of the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences.

Besides his great ability as a speaker, Mr. Anspacher is one of the world's finest comedy writers and is also a poet of no mean ability. His plays have been produced with great success. Some of the best known are "The Unchastened Woman" and "The New House."

For many years Mr. Anspacher was also an actor. He is now married to one of America's best known actresses, Katherine Kidder. Thus he knows the stage both from the viewpoint of the actor as well as from that of the playwright.

His poems, written for the National Committee before and during our participation in the world war, have become a part of our war history, and some of these poems, particularly "The Clarion" and "The Pledge," have been incorporated into and are still used in many of our national memorial ceremonies.

People enjoy his lectures for they are scholarly yet full of life and color. It is to be hoped that Willamette students will take advantage of this wonderful opportunity to hear him tonight.

"BLEST BE THE TIES THEY BUY"

Newspaper advertisements, window displays and the dullness of the December skies proclaim again that the Christmas shopping season is at hand. Each day newspapers tell off the inexorable fact of "only so many more days until Christmas." The shopping public notes with interest and prepares itself for the inevitable last minute rush.

The selection of Christmas gifts has given rise to a number of myths. One of these goes its way each year in the comic strips and humorous magazines of the country. Consider for a moment the number of jokes that are written about the suffering of defenseless men because of neckties that women have bought for them.

Then consider in the next moment the testimony of men's clothing dealers that "the woman of today knows more about harmonizing colors and the selection of neckties than mere man could ever hope to." The reason for this merchants say is the fact that women dress white men only clothe themselves. Then too a man buys a tie because he likes it and it seems very desirable at the moment. A woman picks a tie that blends with an outfit and is more suited to the wearer.

Then husband, brother or sweetheart, if mildy fair chooses a necktie this Christmas as a token of her regard, speak not of it lightly but remember that it was selected by an expert and is very good—maybe—E. of Kansas.

ANY DAY ON THE SLEEPING PORCH

My roommate had written back to her parents at their request, telling them she'd like a holiday coat and a sweater for Christmas. She had just received a reply from them saying that they had already purchased these and while she thought of something else when a terrible crash was heard.

"That's the sound line you're talking out of that work!" I yelled.

The broken girl did not wait a chapter, she wants the chap alone.

Debate Schedule Nearly Arranged. Eastern Engagements Planned

The work of the debate squad is progressing well, says Professor Rahskopf. Arrangements are being made for the inter-scholastic debates. A slightly different plan is to be followed this year.

In order that the debates may be of more value to the squad and to the community, it is hoped that they may be made open forum. "We should be trying to get away from the idea that a debate is intellectual football with the chief aim to overcome the opponent, and to make it a means of discussing public problems for the sake of information and thought," says Prof. Rahskopf.

The open forum debates differ from the regular debates in that there is no definite decision given. After the regular speeches opportunity is given for the audience to ask questions. In most cases a vote will be taken from the audience on the merits of the resolution. This type of debate is of value to both the debator and the community.

The debator must thoroughly know the subject in order to answer the public's questions. This will give him practice in facing actual situations. Also, the questions of interest are brought to the attention of the people of the city and communities.

To carry out this idea further debates are to be held before the men's organization at Jason Lee and the Six O'clock club of the First Methodist Episcopal church. The Salem Women's club is sponsoring one of the women's debates. Arrangements are being made to debate before community forums near Salem. These communities will provide the auditorium and the audience. This plan makes possible the maintaining of an interested public.

The plan is of value to the university in that the communities around Salem will get into direct contact with the school, thus serving as an advertising means.

The question to be discussed is the adopting of the amendment to the constitution giving congress power to regulate child labor. Some decision debates will take place in our own chapel.

It is definitely decided that the Freshmen women will meet the Reed Freshman women. The Freshmen team of Willamette will meet the Freshmen of Linfield and Pacific. The women's varsity squad will meet Albany, Linfield, and College of Pacific. Arrangements are being made for others. It is difficult to get as large a women's schedule as desired because many of the schools do not seem to be doing much women's debate work.

The men's varsity schedule includes: University of Redlands, University of Southern California, Wheaton College, University of Utah, Ripon College, College of Puget Sound, Albany College, Oregon Normal, and Linfield. The first debate will be about the middle of February.

MARY GILBERT GIVES ONE-ACT PLAY DEC. 12

Miss Mary Gilbert, '25, presented before the Women's club last Saturday afternoon an original Christmas play. The parts were taken by eight small boys of the Training school. The plot of the play was simple, representing the scenes of "King and Queen."

In beginning work on the play, Miss Gilbert planned to dramatize and the characters, they were made, and allowed them to suggest their lines. The costumes, also, were created largely according to the boys' ideas, then came such an interest in the play.

After a rather protracted rehearsal, the play was presented several times in the gymnasium last evening. The boys' play was a success. It was the only play of the kind ever presented in the gymnasium. The play was a success. It was the only play of the kind ever presented in the gymnasium.

The boys' play did not wait a chapter, she wants the chap alone.

NEW CONFERENCE FORMED AT TACOMA

Willamette With Schools of Her Own Class In Athletics

A new conference has come into existence in the Northwest, a conference in which the smaller colleges will have equal opportunity for championships in the various sports. This is the Northwest conference, renovated and rejuvenated.

Representatives of the smaller colleges met last Friday in Tacoma and agreed to form a conference to be known as the "Oregon Trail Conference." This was to be comprised of the smaller colleges in which each would have a chance to win. But adoption of this conference was made unnecessary.

Instead all the larger schools of the northwest conference withdrew, leaving it to the smaller schools, Linfield, C. P. S., and College of Idaho were invited in, and they accepted.

The conference as it now stands includes Willamette, Pacific, Whitman, C. P. S., College of Idaho and Linfield. The conference goes into effect immediately. The coming basketball season will be the first to come under its scope.

This means just exactly that Willamette will now have as much chance as the next school to take off top place in the Northwest conference. It means that when the boys fight now, they will have something to fight for.

To add to interest in winning the championship of the new conference, the winners will hold a meet with the smaller colleges champions of California. It is planned to make this an annual event.

Dean Erickson of Willamette University is president of the new conference. It was largely due to his efforts and those of Coach Guy L. Rathbun that the conference came into being. The next meeting of the conference is to be held in Portland sometime in the spring.

Creation of the new conference—for virtually it is a creation—has shot up interest in Willamette athletics at least 100%, both on the part of the students and on the part of the local fans. Calls have been received at the University almost incessantly since Monday—calls from Salem business men—congratulating the University on its joining the new conference, and offering and promising support.

The conference games Willamette has scheduled for the coming basketball season follows:

Jan. 9—Linfield at Willamette.
Jan. 15—Willamette at Whitman.
Jan. 22—Willamette at Pacific.
Jan. 29—Whitman at Willamette.
Feb. 5—Willamette at Linfield.
Feb. 11—Willamette at C. P. S.
Feb. 17—C. P. S. at Willamette.
Feb. 24—Pacific at Willamette.

In addition to these, Washington University will play the Bears in Salem, January 28, Oregon University and Oregon Agricultural College will also be played, it is probable.

Everyone should have on his study schedule an hour or two for dreaming. The schools would be doing an important service to the country by teaching men and women how to build their air castles.

In the first place, dreams are foundations of achievements. From dreams arise great books, beautiful pictures, marvelous music, bridges, skyscrapers, radio. In the second place, dreaming is one of the ways to happiness. Great men have been dreamers. Lincoln dreamed, Jesus had his dreams. Dante had his dreams; his Beatitudes, which you had never in his mind on earth.

Quite much in the evening he mused and the glow of knowledge may slip into the corners of the day's lesson slip away. A picture of the day in some old picture before your eyes as the day's work is done. The thoughts of a dream may lead you straight out of the psychology of today.

Success in the university will be the same if you take the role of the dreamer. In the morning you will find yourself surrounded by the things of the world. The things of the world are the things of the world. The things of the world are the things of the world.

The boys' play did not wait a chapter, she wants the chap alone.

SOUTHERN PACIFIC SPECIAL LEAVES AT 2 P. M. ON FRIDAY

No doubt students who go to Portland and points beyond are looking forward to the two hour ride on the special train that leaves at 2:30 o'clock Friday afternoon as much as any other part of their respective journeys. Since nearly 100 have made the trip in past years fully that number and more are expected to go up on it this vacation. As there is no one else but W. U. students aboard Willamette spirit runs riot in songs, yells, and general merrymaking to the accompaniment of "ukes," banjos, etc. Those that use this route express great appreciation to the Southern Pacific company for putting on a special as it makes connections with all trains going north and east at 4:00, otherwise it would necessitate a long and tiresome wait in Portland or some smaller town.

All students intending to go home this way are requested to sign up in the office immediately.

PENN. STUDENTS VOTE DOWN CHAPEL

By a vote of 1709 to 35 students at Pennsylvania State College expressed their disapproval of compulsory chapel. This was one of the largest votes ever polled at Penn State College.

With these returns as a basis it is expected that the Student Council will petition the Board of Trustees for abolition of the institution. The chapel referendum came at the culmination of a two-week discussion of the question. The entire campaign was managed by the Penn State Collegian.

SENIORS AT TOP IN BASKETBALL

Sophomores Try Cellar With Frosh Not Too Far Away

Interclass basketball was finally brought to a close last Thursday with the games between the Freshmen and Sophomores, Juniors and Seniors in order to decide second and third places, the Freshmen receiving second and the Juniors third. MORONI OLSON AND JANET YOUNG PLEASE

"THE SHIP" BIG SUCCESS

Drama Well Presented To Enthusiastic House New Play Coming

In the presentation of St. John Ervine's tragedy, "The Ship," at the Hellig theatre Wednesday evening, the Moroni Olson Players surpassed their former dramatic achievements and reached new heights of interpretation.

The play is one that requires a forceful, yet sympathetic treatment, and the acting of the whole company stands out unique in maintaining such a high standard of action.

The theme of the drama is the age-old struggle—the struggle of youth against the tyranny of maturity. John Thurlow loves his son and his two, steady ships. He dreams of the time when Jack shall take his place in the yards, never calculating that his son despises the brutal commercial world and wants to live his own life. Inevitable doom? To satisfy his father's whim and to save the old man from a breakdown, Jack sails on the new ship Magnificent only to be drowned as the vessel sinks in mid-ocean. However, the bitterness of tragedy is mollified by the sweet philosophy of old Mrs. Thurlow.

Although each actor plays his part with finesse and insight, the acting of Janet Young as Grandmother Thurlow is outstanding. With slow, musing step and delicate, quavering voice she wins the audience completely, for her gentle ways and her deep insight into human life make her the mediator between the opposing forces. She is wonderfully human. Miss Young deserves special commendation since this is her first attempt in the role of an old woman. She does remarkably well.

In an interview Miss Young declared that she was delighted with the new role and really enjoyed it. "But I have to watch myself," she laughed, "just I walk too merrily on the street. You see I have formed the habit."

Moroni Olson as John Thurlow, her son, does a remarkable piece of work, also. He has real power and understanding making his audience love him in spite of his stubbornness.

Byron Fautzer as Jack, his son, and Gordon Nelson as Captain Cornelius were also very good.

The next appearance of the Moroni Olson Players in Salem will be March 9, 1926, in Paul Koster's "Friend Hannah."

Playacting Class To Present One-Act Plays Early in January

The Playacting class of the public speaking department has been working for some time on a group of one act plays which are varied in nature and representative of different types of drama. January 22, 1926, the Forensic Council will present the Play Acting class in an evening of one-act plays chosen from the group now being prepared.

The proceeds of the entertainment will be used to carry out the debate and oratory schedule. Last year the Forensic Council found it necessary to have additional money and a similar program was given which was well received. The money raised last year was used to finance the debate tour.

The group of plays will be the second dramatic program of the year. At Homecoming, the Theta Alpha Phi dramatic fraternity gave the play, "You and I" which was very well presented.

We all appreciate the work of Professor Rahskopf in giving us such excellent productions.

Much emphasis is placed by every school on its colors but few, if any, have the unique distinction that the University of Montana has. It is the only school on the Pacific Coast. These colors are usually wrapped around one of the goal posts on the gridiron. Inspiration for the three colors came from the fact that copper, silver and gold mines are among the big natural resources of that state and these colors were adopted by the University of Montana.

The Same To You!

One of the outstanding social events of the season occurred during the past week and when the sororities of the campus were at home to students and friends of the university.

The annual "at home" of the Beta Chi sorority was held Saturday evening, December 12, from seven-thirty to eight-thirty o'clock.

The living rooms of the house were decorated in yellow and bronze.
A subdued lighting effect was obtained by the use of candles and lamps.

The guests were greeted at the door by Miss Romah Tryor. Miss Ruth Hewitt introduced to the receiving line which was composed of Miss Hollis Vick, Mrs. Alice H.
Dodd, Dr. and Mrs. Carl Gregg
Doney, and Professor and Mrs. E.
C. Richards. Miss Carl Cheney and Mrs. Asol Oeff, and Mary Jane Albert presided at the punch bowls during the evening.

Frederick and Collin Slade distributed the favors which were small bunches of violets.

Saturday evening the members of Delta Phi were at home to their friends from nine to ten-thirty. Ruth Wachter greeted them at the door and Mildred McKillop introduced to the receiving line, Marguerite Bridgman, Mrs. John Reed, Dean
Frances M. Richards, Prof. Burroughs, Prof. and Mrs. Brown, Miss Mary Finley, E. C. Bannan, Margaret Maden and Pauline Miller.
Miss Latimer and Miss Gabriel presided at the punch bowls. The house was attractively decorated with palms, ferns and baskets of flowers, and lighted candles cast a soft light over the rooms.

As the guests left little Jean Clara Husley gave the favors to them.

The Alpha Phi Alpha sorority was at home on Saturday evening, December 12, to students and friends of the university.

Sister church met the guests at the door. Those who received were Ann Silver introducing to Hazel Mal-ston, Miss Marian Wyman, Prof. and Mrs. Donald Riddle, Miss Virginia
Melton, Dr. Comstock, Lucile Wylie and Ruth Heineck.

In the dining room the guests were served with punch and wafers.
Elsine Clower and Mary Gilbert presided at the punch bowls. Elizabeth Silver, Ruby Delk, Helen Baird and Hazel Newhouse assisted.

After an inspection of the house the visitors were bidden goodnight by Nora Peterson.

Friday night the Adelantes gave their annual Christmas party at which about thirty-five couples were present. Tiny booklets containing the program and partners for the evening were given to each couple at the door. As one of the numbers, two dainty snowflakes distributed presents to the guests. Refreshments of angel food cake and punch were served at the close of the evening.

Patronesses for the affair were Dean Frances M. Richards, Miss Pauline Gabriel, Miss Virginia Melton, and Miss Lois C. Latimer.

The Adelantes and their guests present were Misses Mildred Grant,

The Philodossian Literary Society held its weekly meeting Wednesday afternoon. Viola Carrier gave a pleasing piano number. Mrs. John Reed gave an interesting and helpful talk on Friendship. A stringed trio composed of Anna and Jo Zimmerman and Phoebe Smith gave the feature number of the program.
Florence Volstorf was pledged to the society.

At the business meeting the following officers were installed:

President—Eva Tacheron.
Vice president—Jo Zimmerman.
Recording Secretary—Viola Carrier.

Corresponding Secretary—Lety
Leighton.
Critic—Hazel McMorris.
Sergeant-at-Arms—Jessie Pyhus.

Friday evening the Chrestomath-eans and Chrestophilians gathered to have their annual Christmas party.
The cottage was appropriately decorated in red and green, and to add to the spirit of the season there was a Christmas tree with presents for all.

All were in full costume. The evening was spent in relay races of passing a lighted candle, necktie-tying, and knotting handkerchiefs.

The fun culminated in the distribution of the gifts, and refreshments of apple pie, chocolate and candy.
Professor and Mrs. Florian Von Eschen were the chaperons.

Dean Frances M. Richards had as her dinner guests Sunday President and Mrs. Carl Gregg Doney, Professor and Mrs. E. C. Richards, and Miss Edith DeNise.

Miss Frances Fuller who has been ill at her home in Eugene is again attending her classes.

In honor of the birthday of Elizabeth Hyde a dinner party was given at Lausanne Hall, Tuesday night.
Mrs. Minnie G. Hyde, a house guest of her daughter Elizabeth, was the guest of honor. Others present were Adella Gates, Ruth Drew, Dr. Comstock, Helen Baird, Mary Martin, Ann Silver.

Other Days

Taking it as a whole, it seems to me that the life of a University student is happier than that of any other class of people. In my opinion, this is particularly true of Willamette students. If you have any sorrows or disappointments and I suppose no human being is entirely free from them, you are putting them in the background, and presenting only the joyous side of student life.

This is exactly as it should be and now as we approach the season when all the world rejoices over the birth of Christ it is the time for Willamette students to be especially joyous.

You are about to return to your homes, and to a meeting with loved ones, which, under any circumstances, should be joyful after a three months' absence, but with the added joy of the Christmas season and a consciousness of three months of good University work accomplished.

your joy this Christmaside can hardly be confined.

As you go to your happy homes, you will, of course, not forget the good deed of helpfulness and cheer which you may give to those less fortunate than you. At this time you will hear the Christ message of Peace and Good Will to all those whom you meet. In doing so you will yourselves be twice blessed.

Please carry with you everywhere the benediction of "Old Willamette" not only upon your own lives but upon the lives of all you come in contact. To your fathers and mothers let me express my appreciation that they have consented to your being here, and to your brothers and sisters let me express the hope that they too in time will become Willamette students. To them all, and to especially to you, students of Willamette, let me extend the greetings of the season and the most sincere wish that you may have a very, very Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

—GEO. H. ALDEN.

HAWAII PRESENTS TEACHERS' FIELD

From these families is naturally limited. Among the lower classes there is the question of discipline to be considered. In the upper grades and high school the undesirable element is, to a large extent, eliminated. In this latter case the desire to learn and the appreciation shown is extremely gratifying.

Cottages are furnished all teachers in Hawaii gratis, except in Honolulu and Hilo. While they are not palatial, they are livable and comfortable and in many cases very attractive. The necessary furniture, oil stoves for cooking, and various motley assortments of dishes are to be found in all cottages. Sometimes table linen, curtains and silver are left there by previous occupants, but everything else, even mattresses, must be furnished. Servants ask such low wages that teachers usually get a Japanese or Portuguese maid and cook.

Plantation life prevails because the principal industries of Hawaii are the raising of sugar cane and pineapples. With few exceptions the numerous plantation communities are hardly large enough to be called towns, but in spite of this, social life is not lacking. The many American families who have made their homes in Hawaii are always interested in knowing the teachers. Dances, theatricals, teas, and social functions in general occur frequently at various community centers.

It is absolutely necessary either to have a contract for a definite position, or to have sufficient funds to live on for several months and to buy a return ticket, before going to the islands. Many young women lured by the spell of the tropics go to the islands in great numbers, hoping to get a teaching position or some other kind of work immediately upon their arrival. A few are fortunate enough to do so, but by far the greater number return penniless and disillusioned. Every year large classes of Orientals and other natives are graduated from the territorial normal school. They can never hope to gain work outside of the territory, so it is up to the territory which educated them to provide them with positions. For this reason it is becoming more and more difficult for mainland teachers to be placed in schools. Appointments are made in February and March each year so it is best for those desiring to teach in Hawaii to make application early directly to the department of public instruction in Honolulu.

Defying the high price of railroad transportation, a law student at Stanford University bought a hearse at a bargain and took seven of his friends to their homes in Los Angeles to spend the holidays.—Palo Alto.
