Annual Commencement Number

NINE GRADUATE

Liberal Arts Turns Out Largest Class in Recent Years

The Class is Composed of Three Young Women and Six Young Men—Commencement Exercises Will be Held June 13th.

Three young ladies and six young gentlemen compose the '07 class, College of Liberal Arts. Individually they are:

Veva Bartlett, president of the class, who came to Willamette from Morningside, (Iowa), college. She is one of the founders of the Adelante society, and president of the G. S. A.

John Elliott, manager of the Collegian, one of the 'steadies' of the Websterian society, Y. M. C. A., man and general good fellow.

Alma Hales, ex-president of the Y. W. C. A., and the Philodorian society, President of the Tennis Association, member of the Willamette quartette.

James Hall, who joined the class last fall, coming from Cornell, (Iowa) college, member of the winning team in the Class Tennis Tournament.

Chas. McKnight, who came from McKendree College, (Ill.), two years ago, president and one of the founders of the Websterian society, ex-president of the Y. M. C. A., guard on last year's 'varsity eleven,' and class orator.

W. M. Sanders, Jr., from Kingfisher, (Okla.), college two years since, tennis fiend, one of the directors of the Tennis Association, Y. M. C. A. worker, manager and director of the Philodorian Quintette, and an ex-president of that society.

Lena Schindler, ex-member of the Y. W. C. A. cabinet, ex-president and one of the staunchest members of the Philodorian society.

Lloyd Whipple, prominent Y. M. C. A. worker, and the best basket ball center in the northwest, ex-treasurer student body organization.

Edward Winans, Rhodes Scholar, dynamo of the Y. M. C., president of the student body organization and ex-holder of almost every office in the Philodorian society.

May they prosper and bring credit to themselves and their Alma Mater.

Dramatic Recital.

There are certain things always connected with June, some unpleasant, as fies and examinations, and some pleasant, as roses and band concerts; but by far the most pleasant happening which regularly occurs in June is the College of Oratory play. That the College of Oratory always has a good program and always gives it well is attested by the crowd that fills the chapel at every recital. The annual play is the culmination of the year's work and has always been a great success.

A little scented love note forms the theme of the play. It falls into the hands of everyone but the right one and is always turning up at the wrong time. It gets the characters into no end of embarrassing and ludicrous situations. All on account of this little pink love note the leading man finds himself a tete a tete with a married lady, much to the chagrin of her husband, sending billet-doux to an old maid which causes joy to her brother and consternation to herself; proposing to the niece of his friend, while all the time he is secretly in love with a French lady.

Wallace Trill, Ralph Rader, Olive Rigby and Ethel Cotter take the principle roles and are ably assisted by Clark Belknap, King Macdonald, Chester Catlow, Verda Byars, Olive Riddell, Ione Fisher and Barbara Durbin, all of whom have an established reputation; or in the phraseology of stageland: Sara Brown Savage with an all star cast, presents the comedy, "A Scrap of Paper," at the Grand Opera House Monday night, June 3rd.

WILLAMETTE UNIVERSITY

For the Cup.

The big society event of the school year will be pulled off in chapel Friday night, June 7, when Marker representing the Philodorian, Miss Gittins the Philodorian, May or Reichen (not yet decided), the Websterians, and Miss Casebeer from the Adelante society meet in the second inter-society oratorical contest for the big silver cup now in possession of the Philodorian. The society winning the cup three times in succession gets permanent possession of it. Mr. Marker won out for the Philodorian last year, and needs no advance agent to herald his abilities as an orator. Miss Gittins, a freshman, won for herself an enviable reputation as an orator in her high school career at Eugene. Both the candidates from the Websterian society are of marked ability in the oratorical line. Miss Casebeer is one of Mrs. Savage's most promising pupils besides being a student of high standing in the regular college work.

With all this array of talent and ability a spirited contest is assured.

Chas. H. McKnight has been elected to a position in the Hood River High School for next year. Mr. McKnight is a member of the '07 class and has been tutoring during the second semester, having earned the required credits by the close of the first semester's work.

Sylvia Jones, '06, who was up to the Law College Commencement, returned to Gervais Wednesday.

CLASS OF TEN

Senior Normal and Academy Students to Graduate

An Excellent Program has Been Arranged for—Dr. Skipworth Will Deliver the Address of the Evening, June 11th.

It is needless to say that the Senior Normal and Academy graduating class is the finest ever known in the history of the University. The ten members of the class are unusually good students and undoubtedly each will make his separate mark in the world.

The class roll is:

- Mr. Clyde Waincott, president.
- Miss Mathilda Seigmund, vice-president.
- Miss Hattie Beckley, secretary.
- Miss Fannie Funk, treasurer.
- Miss Viola Fisher.
- Miss Elizabeth Frogley.
- Miss Gladys Riches.
- Miss Maud Vandervert.
- Miss Inez Maas.
- Miss Mirie Williams.

The program will include numbers from Prof. Von Jessen, Dr. Heritage, and Mrs. Hug. The Rev. Malton Skipworth one of the trustees of the university is to make the address. Dr. Coleman will present the diplomas.

The students of the University and their friends are invited to be present at the exercises on the evening of June 11th, at the Methodist church.

The Senior laws now have their "L. L. B.'s" but the specter of that impending Supreme Court examination deprives them of that feeling of exquisite self-satisfaction with which those beautiful engravings might otherwise be regarded.

The final doubles in the class tournament came off last Monday, Hall and Saunders, '07, winning out over Johnson and Chamberlain, '09. The score was 8-6, 6-4, 6-2.

The Editor's Farewell Address.

At the beginning of a voyage if we could see the labor and difficulties to be encountered throughout the journey, the outset instead of being a time for congratulations and great joy would be a time for heroic resolutions or of weak lamentations. It is not the part of wisdom, however, to forecast possible dangers and lament over them in advance. Things easily done are frequently of but little importance. Significant undertakings alone are worth our best efforts, and when a worthy task is begun, to be successful is an honor and a rightful source of pride; to fail has no sting but regret that the desired result was not obtained.

The editorship of a college paper is an important post and it is within the limits of possibility for the editor to make his paper neat, newsy and interesting. But to be faultless is hardly to be expected in his class of the human specie.

The trials of an editor do not consist of the criticism from the wise, nor the knocks from the ignorant, nor in the multitude of tedious tasks to be performed; but rather in the high hopes and ambitions of his paper that so often are unattained and unattainable.

It is with not a little sadness that we approach the end of the year and publish this, the last issue of the Collegian for the year 1906-07. The work has afforded many pleasant occasions and even the few trials, which are now all ended, will be a source of pleasant memories. The correspondents, faculty and students generally have supported the paper most loyally in preparing material, subscribing, by kindly forbearance and in many other ways, for all of which the editor is very grateful. Notwithstanding a great many articles, for lack of space or for other reasons, were not published, no service little or much has been received without appreciation.

We now hand the pen to the worthy editor-elect, Mr. M. D. Shanks, hoping and believing that under his influence, abilities, skill and management the paper will be second to none among the western college papers.

As the year 1906-07 comes to a close it brings with it the change of offices. As manager

I wish to thank the students of the University for the support which they have given me.

To the business men of Salem I wish to extend an hand of thanks for the way they have stood by the Collegian and trust all have received good profits from their advertising.

I bespeak a successful year for my successor, C. J. Catlow, who is a man in every way capable of filling this office with credit to the student body. The only way to make a success as a whole is for the student body to stand together and "patronize our advertisers."

Again I thank you all for your support during the past year and trust you will stand square behind Mr. Catlow and he will put out the best paper possible.

JOHN A. ELLIOTT,
Mgr., 1906-07.

Two members of Willamette's faculty for 1906-07 will not be with us next year as the resignations of Professor Kauffman and Professor Coghill have already been announced. Dr. Coghill is eminently a scientist and since coming to Oregon has made a name for himself in scientific circles. As secretary of the Oregon Academy of Science and contributor to eastern scientific publications Dr. Coghill has ably represented science work at Willamette in the educational circles of the northwest for the year and we regret to see the relationship severed. The well wishes of a host of Oregon friends follow him to his new field of activity at Denison, Ohio, where he becomes Professor of Zoology.

Professor Kauffman announces her intention of fulfilling next year a long cherished desire to travel in the Holy Land. In addition to her literary attainments, Professor Kauffman is a very pleasant speaker, which with her experience as a missionary in China, has made her a much desired speaker at missionary meetings. During the year she has frequently represented Willamette at church gatherings throughout the valley. Friends at Willamette unite in wishing for her a most pleasant and profitable year abroad.

Why Collars Crack==

You'll often find, among your new laundered collars, some that are scratched or blistered on the seam—that is, unless we do your laundry work. It's not a necessary evil, either. The explanation is simple—the seam of a double fold or wing point collar should be evenly dampened before folding; otherwise it blisters or cracks. We have a machine to dampen those seams. It must dampen them evenly, for it does it with mechanical precision, and the girl that operates it knows her business. You'll get no cracked collars from us.

Enjoy Forensic Tilt.

In the halls of the Websterian Literary society last Friday night the members of the society gave a very pleasing and amusing mock trial. It abounded with wit, humor, sarcasm and brilliant eloquence which was very moving—mostly moving to laughter. The audience was treated to the very best quality of "laughing gas" and enjoyed the treat to the utmost.

It seems, so ran the charge, that one Weller Chamberlain, heretofore an unexceptionable student both in behavior and character, did on the 17th day of April on the Willamette campus while the high lights were shining, about the hour of midnight, criminally assault and most shamefully batter the person of one Mr. Robert Eakin. The case was a serious one and caused much comment. The case had been in a solution of formalin and water for some time, and had become quite rich in its possibilities of sensational matter.

Messrs. Guy Smith and Shields, prominent would be attorneys at W. U., were retained by Mr. Chamberlain as lawyers for the defense. These bright minds, with ingenuity rare in man, woman or child, sought far and near for evidence and authority and finally found it between the covers of Dr. Pierce's pearly almanac and those of that renowned volume, the White House cook book. This research showed mighty endeavors and a liberal burning of midnight oil.

For the prosecution the state attorneys were Jim Crawford and John Johnson, who, without exception, showed as much ingenuity and forensic ability as their opponents. It was a delight to watch the pyrotechnics as they burst from the intellectual swords when they clashed.

But when all was over and the charge given to the jury, which was composed of six persons, after remaining out for a short time the jury reported to the judge, Murray shanks, that their decision stood 4 to 2 in favor of the prosecution. The jury had "hung"—sad to relate, and the end is not yet.

The Philodorian Quartette went to Milwaukee Wednesday last where of Mr. Belknap, quite captured the audience with her readings.

Mr. Plumer has been reappointed to the Albany church by the Evangelical church at its recent conference.

The Commencement exercises of the College of Music will be on Monday evening, June 10th, at the Methodist church.

The various "Firm names" in the College of Music are, Ketchum & Hug, Quinn, Hug & Co., A. Strang, Hug & Co., Get Rothy & Hug, but the latest is Eakin & Hug. Either of these firms ought to do a rushing business.

Dr. Heritage and Mr. Von Jessen furnish the music for the State Teachers Association July 1, 2 and 3; and for the Willamette Valley Chautauqua Assembly at Gladstone Park, July 9th to 21st.

Radium.

By A. C. Price.

In 1896 Prof. H. Becquerel of Paris succeeded in discovering an element he called radium, and which had radioactive properties but was not very active. This induced M. and Mme. Curie to begin a prolonged investigation of all elements, rare earths and a great number of rocks and minerals, in the hope of discovering other radioactive bodies, and were rewarded by discovering that pitch-blend, which is a mineral containing the oxide of uranium, was more active than pure metallic uranium. In their course of work they succeeded in separating two substances. The one I wish to describe is exceedingly rare, there being less than one ounce in the world today, and is called Radium.

Radium has been largely obtained from uranium residues of pitch-blend. The mineral is estimated to contain about two or three ten-millionths of the element. The process of obtaining it is intensely expensive. In 1903 it is said that to produce two pounds of chemically pure preparation of Radium would cost $6,000,000 and that this quantity would require 5,000 tons of uranium residue at an expense of handling of about $2,000 per ton. Of late years it has become more expensive, costing $12,000,000 for one pound instead of two. Thus the expense is so great in preparing it that it is worth 40,000 times its weight in gold. The first that was obtained required one year for its production. If we compare the value of gold to that of radium we can see the great contrast. Gold is worth a little over $300 to the pound, while radium is worth $12,000,000 to the pound.

The most wonderful feature about this substance is its properties. Its atomic weight is the highest in the Periodic Table, 226, and is followed to be an element, although produced yet only as a chloride or bromide. M. Curie has shown that radium sets free in a continuous manner, energy in such a form as to maintain its temperature, 15C, above that of the surrounding bodies, regardless of their temperature, and of such an amount that one gramme of radium would raise the temperature of 100 grammes of water one degree C in an hour. If it were placed on a cake of ice it would soon melt its way through. There are two rays, the one deflected in a strong magnetic field, is easily cut off by a thin screen of metal, the other corresponds in every particular with the Cathode ray of the Xray tube, and has more power to penetrate. By a continued exposure of the rays of radium the skin is burned, as by the Xray. M. Curie carried a small piece on his person for a short time, and before he was aware of it it had produced a sore on his skin which required over six months to heal. In some cases it has been known to paralyze the nerve centers. Bacteria are destroyed and seeds lose their power of germination when exposed to the rays of this remarkable metal. It liberates heat spontaneously and continuously, effects the photographic plate, and produces radioactivity in other substances with which it comes in contact. One of the most remarkable properties of radium is its power of emitting heat and light continuously, without combustion or chemical change and without any apparent decrease in its energy. It forms a gas through which electricity is capable of being conducted.

Its uses in the medical world are numerous, as it contains the same therapeutic properties as the Xray in such diseases as cancer, lupus, etc. Our University has a small amount, less than one 5,000 of a grain. In other words there are 480 grains in one ounce, and we have one 5,000 part of one grain. Although so small, yet by the aid of the microscope it can be seen emitting bright sparks resembling stars, and when placed in a dark room it can be seen at a distance of fifteen feet. Thus this element, on account of its wonderful properties and an enormous expense of production, is considered the rarest and most wonderful element of the Scientific Age.

Y. W. C. A.

The Y. W. C. A. met last Wednesday evening at the usual hour. The meeting was led by Mrs. Dodd, who spoke on "Women of Culture." Mrs. Dodd is a woman of refinement and culture and gave a very interesting and helpful talk to the girls. It was such a talk that does one good, and leaves an impression long to be remembered. She also told some interesting things of her recent travels in Europe and the Holy Land. It certainly would be a great help to all girls were it possible for them to attend the Y. W. C. A. meetings.

Mr. H. H. Markel and Prof. Pridoux went out to the Reform school Friday evening to entertain the boys there. Mr. Markel stayed over to attend the Boys' convention Saturday and Sunday.
