Teams Well Matched For Contest Which May Decide Conference championship

SAME STYLE OF PLAY USED

Victory May Go To Team Which Follows Ball More Closely; Lineup Is Announced

"All students should be in the rooters' section of the stands by 2 o'clock for the game tomorrow," said Yell King Hoskins. "The game starts at 2:15, and we want time to run through some of those yells we developed so well at Pacific. This game against CPS is far from a snap, and support of the students must be 100% to give the fellows on the team the added 25% strength which such support will provide. Everybody out on time."

When the Willamette Bearcats meet the Puget Sound Loggers tomorrow on Sweetland field, they will meet a team employing a style of play similar to their own, a team potentially as strong as themselves, and a team equally determined to win the Northwest Conference honors. Under such circumstances the battle will wax hot and the outcome will remain in doubt until the final whistle, but the victory will undoubtedly go to the team which follows the ball more closely.

The Cardinal and Gold gridsters have been pursuing the elusive pigskin with the utmost persistency and success all season, and there is no reason for believing that they will not do so on this occasion. Coach Keene has been "pointing" the boys for this contest, and their snap and dash in this week's practice shows that he is getting the desired result.

The Bearcat squad is made up of the following men, twenty-five of whom will, in all probability, get a chance to lash a Logger:

Keith Rhodes, '27, captain, tackle, Raymond, Washington, fourth year of varsity competition, who is a splendid leader for the "mighty fighting Bearcats;" Nick Bican, '30, center, Sacramento, California, who, it is predicted, will be the greatest center on the Pacific coast by the time he has reached his fourth year of varsity football; "Hank" Hartley, '27, tackle, Aberdeen, Washington, who will be on the mythical Northwest Conference eleven, if he continues to play against Puget Sound and Whitman as he did against Pacific; Cranor, '30, West Linn, Oregon, played half-back in high school, but has been shifted to end on the varsity; Herrman, '28, end, Nampa, Idaho, second year on varsity; Junghlom, '30, quarterback, Tonasket, Washington; Bergavick, '27, end, Portland, Oregon, first year on squad; Ferguson, '29, guard, Bremerton, Washington, second year on squad; Mike Mahoney, '30, center, Bend, Oregon; French, '30, halfback, Salem, Oregon; Loren Mort, '29, end and guard, Goldendale, Washington; McMullin, '29, fullback, Springfield, Oregon, second year on squad; Ruch, '30, end, Peoria, Illinois; Scofield, '30, guard, Stayton, Oregon; Winslow, '28, quarterback, Hermiston, Oregon, second year; Verstag, '30, Amity, Oregon; Waddill, '29, halfback, Baker, Oregon, second year; Steelhammer, '30, guard, Woodburn, Oregon; Laing, '30, fullback, Salem, Oregon; Nakuno, '28, quarterback, Washington High school, Portland, Oregon; Herbert Hartley, '30, center, Aberdeen, Washington; Woodworth, '28, guard, Jefferson High, Portland, Oregon, second year on squad; Robinson, '28, halfback, Salem, Oregon; Philpott, '30, halfback, Bend, Oregon; MacKenzie, '30, Woodburn, Oregon, played fullback at high school, but has been shifted to guard on the first team; Betts, '29, Athena, Oregon, tackle; Campbell, '30, halfback, Amity, Oregon; Bennet, '30, halfback, Scappoose, Washington; Zeller, '28, halfback, Salem, Oregon, second year on first team, and Clonfinger, '30, halfback, one of the mightiest of the lot.

A tentative line-up, as announced by Coach Keene today, is as follows:

Hermann and Cranor, ends; Rhodes and Hartley, tackles; Mort and Mackenzie, guards; Bican, center; Waddill and Zeller, halfbacks; McMullin, fullback, and Junghlom, quarterback.

Officials in the game which will start at 2:15 tomorrow are Mike Moran, referee; Ruzek, umpire, and Mason, head linesman.

Willamette Extends Hand of Welcome to Homecomers

Events of Week-end Are Arranged With a View to Entertainment of Returning Grads; Registration in Eaton Hall Saturday Morning

For the fourth time Willamette extends the hand of welcome to its returning alumni. The same true spirit deepened by the years has called grads to return—it is the urge of the "alma mater." The best homecoming program of any year is promised by the students to those who return. All indications point to a record attendance both by the alumni and friends of the school.

Registration for the visitors will be held in Eaton hall Saturday morning. At 11 in the morning the Alumni chapel will be held. Students are asked to attend and enjoy the interesting program which will be given.

The big yell rally will be held in the chapel Friday evening at 7. Everyone is expected to be out without any compulsion, for Willamette spirit is running strong as in "the good old days." After the rally the Freshmen fireworks will be set off on Sweetland field. The bonfire cannot be held because of the debris that it leaves on the baseball diamond.

The football game Saturday at 2 p. m., has been well characterized as "a fight from the kick-off to the last bang of the pistol." Willamette spirit, encouraged and strengthened by the "old fight" that Coach Keene has instilled into his squad, is strong and deep. The team also feels that the school is behind it s every effort and is anxious to show that it merits the trust and faith.

Between halves of the game the hag rush will be staged between the Freshmen and Sophomores. This struggle bids fair to show some real fight, for the Freshmen and Sophomores have not as yet tried their relative strength and each is ready and anxious to show that their class is the superior in strength.

All plans for the play, "You Never Can Tell," given Saturday at 8:15 p. m., have been successful. The experiment of a student coach has surpassed the expectation of the Theta Alpha Phi in the excellence of the final work.

Not only are the activities strong in their promise of an interesting program but they have been very well managed by Francis Ellis. The sale of Willamette stickers and tags has practically financed the entire undertaking.

BASKETBALL MEN START PRACTICE

Lestle Sparks To Have Charge Till Football Season Closes

Basketball practices will start with a bang today. Lestle Sparks will be in charge of the practices until the football season closes and then Coach Keene will take charge.

Coach Keene is conservative in his estimate and is not making any predictions concerning Willamette possibilities in basketball as he is new to the school and its present basketball material.

The early practices which will cover the fundamentals of basketball will include passing, pivoting, receiving passes, dribbling, and basket shooting.

The players left from last year's team are: Gurnee Flesher, "Hank" Hartley, and "Kenny" Litchfield. From the freshman team of last year Glen Ledbetter, Jack Minto, and Carlton Gaines are back. Among the new men there are a number of promising aspirants: Loren Mort, Delmar Campbell, G. Granor, Herbert Hartley, H. McKenzie, D. Shaw and I. Steelhammer.

TRACK PROSPECTS SLIM

There are only three men of last year's track squad among the total turnout of 35 men: Hathuway who holds the Northwest Conference record for the two-mile. Flesher who placed in the mile and a half, and Tweedy. Track is suffering from the loss of lettermen and among the new men there are no prospects for sprinters, hurdlers, or weightmen. Some material for these events will no doubt be found among the football squad. Fall practice will terminate in a cross country run about the 15th of this month.

Broadcasting From Waller

Alumni
W. U. in India
C. P. S. vs. W. U.
Campus Improvement

By V. D. C.

To the person who really lived during his stay at Willamette, it must have caused a feeling of poignant regret to say farewell to Alma Mater, and it must cause now a little stab of pain to recall again the pleasant days which were spent on the campus and in its halls of learning. The Alumni who come back year after year to the homecoming celebration to talk over again "old times" with fellow grads were those who did live and breathe the spirit of service for the university during undergraduate days. We are glad to welcome them back and to throw open the doors of the university for them. They did much for Willamette—they will continue to do much.

A Willamette university in India is the ambitious project of one enterprising alumnus. Mrs. Zena Austin Olson, who graduated from W. U. in '17, and who is now connected with the Baldwin Boys' High school in Bangalore, India. She writes to the Collegian for an opinion as to the feasibility of the undertaking. It is Mrs. Olson's plan, after talking to David Cook, W. U. '16, at Canton Christian College in China, to develop the Baldwin high school into a true western college and call it Willamette in India. Financial backing is required, of course, and Mrs. Olson suggests the beginning of a fund. What do the students think?

Tomorrow is a big day for Willamette. Meeting College of Puget Sound in a game which means a step forward in competition for the conference championship, or complete elimination, much is at stake for the Bearcats. That the men will fight for victory goes without saying. To say that the students and alumni will be out on the field urging the team forward to that victory is to be trite. Willamette wants a victory tomorrow. And the men have shown that they are capable of producing.

It will be a close, hard game. The loggers have a team—a real, fighting team. The 49 to 7 score against the wildcats of Linfield indicates that the Loggers have a passing team—a team which plays daring, spectacular football, the kind of football that fans like to see. Can the Bearcats break up those Gillihan to Wilson passes which have played such an important part in Maroon's victories this year? Can they stop fighting Tatum, who is heralded as the Red Grange of the northwest conference? They must, if they will have victory, and that's what the Bearcats are after.

Both teams are in good condition for the fray. The injury lists are practically free of names. Coach Keene's proteges are a bit tired from the Pacific game which was a terrific struggle. Yet, so must "Cac's" men be weary from galloping around in the gruelling game against Linfield last Saturday, which the Log-

Theta Alpha Phi Presents Annual Play Tomorrow Eve

Shaw's Play, "You Never Can Tell," Is Cynical in its Treatment of Modern Society; Reade, Gates and Redding Hold Leads

Was Bernard Shaw disappointed in love? This question may be answered after the Theta Alpha Phi dramatic fraternity presents Shaw's play, "You Never Can Tell," at the Heilig theater tomorrow evening, Saturday, Nov. 6.

This is the third year that the fraternity has sponsored the Homecoming play. The 1924 play, "Ice Bound," and the 1925 play, Barrie's, "You and I," were both given in Waller hall chapel which was very unsatisfactory, both to the cast and to the patrons. Therefore, the Heilig theater has been obtained for this Homecoming play this year.

Bernard Shaw is very cynical toward modern society in general. No matter how strong the character in the play, he eventually gives in to the pressure of modern conditions.

Mrs. Chandon, played by Adelia Gates, is a very intellectual and aristocratic woman who has written several books and who has a high regard for herself. The opening scene shows Dolly Chandon, Genevieve Junk, in a dentist's chair. Mr. Valentine, Charles Redding, is a rising English dentist.

Mrs. Chandon, her elder daughter, Gloria—Sadie Jo Read—and the twins, Dolly and Philly's—Donald Grant—are making their first visit to England. The twins are very modern American young people who are habitually where they are least wanted.

The children have been kept ignorant of their real name which is Crampton. Mr. Crampton — Bill Walsh—is a surly man, who holds out against modern advancement, only to give in completely at the end of the play.

A solicitor—Turfield Schindler—who tries so hard to be pleasing and who fairly fawns on his clients, only succeeds in making himself obnoxious. The barrister — Frank Van Dyke—is a commanding person. He has risen from a low status of society and is very determined to have people honor him in his new position.

The maid—Georgia Fairbank's—is ever present, and so is the unquenchable waiter—Charles Kaufman.

Bernard Shaw satirizes the position of all the characters, who are

STUDENT BODY BAND IS TO FUNCTION TOMORROW

The new band has been practicing every night and promises to give some very "peppy" music on its initial appearance at the game Saturday. Willamette needs a band and the director, Arnold Taylor, together with the other members have been putting forth their best efforts to make it a success.

At present there are only about ten pieces, but more are expected when the student body wakes up to the fact that there is a band. Trombones, baritone and alto horns are especially needed.

The director asks the student body not to expect too much in the line of music at the game, for the repertoire is somewhat limited, but at least there will be plenty of noise.

Warren Day, '26, is in the insurance business in Portland.

LADIES GLEE CLUB ELECTS MISS JUNK

Prominent Reader for Organization Is Chosen as This Year's President

Genevieve Junk was elected president of the Ladies' Glee cnlb at a recent business meeting of that organization. Louise Findley, accompanist-elect to rthis year was forced to withdraw from club activities on account of her health. Jean Hobson will therefore take Miss Findley's place at the piano. Miss Hobson has had a varied accompanying experience and will be in a position to do excellent work for the club.

Miss Junk has been with the Glee club for one year as reader and therefore knows the interests and needs of the group.

Professor Hobson has prepared a well balanced repertoire on which the girls have commenced work.

No definite schedule of concerts has been announced either for the girls' or boys' club. Manager Helen Borchardt and Manager Walter Iliff report that extensive trips are in prospect for both groups.

STUDENTS START TICKET SELLING

Classes Divide Into Groups Which Sells to Entire Business Section Wednesday

A very effective method of selling tickets for the Homecoming game in addition to advertising the events of the week end to the townspeople was inaugurated Wednesday.

During the chapel hour the four classes, each being assigned a certain business section of the city were divided into various groups of twos and threes and were sent to canvass their respective sections.

Despite the fact that the stores are remaining open Saturday afternoon over half of the 2000 tickets are disposed of.

Much interest was evinced by the business men, many of them congratulating Willamette students on the return of the "fighting spirit." Definite plans have been made to close the stores next year during the game.

COLLEGE OF PUGET SOUND, Tacoma, Wash., Nov. 4, 1926.—(Special.)—The College of Puget Sound Loggers are in excellent shape for the Willamette game Saturday. The Maroon while defeating Linfield 49 to 7 last week came through the game unscathed and with no one on the injured list. The Loggers will oppose the Bearcats with one of the best backfield quartets in the history of Logger sports, and a backfield that many critics consider as the fastest in the Northwest conference. Its scoring power has been well demonstrated. The main weakness of the team is at the center of the line.

If there is any "Red" Grange in the Northwest circuit, Logger fans will point to "Red" Tatum as the one. "Red" has been the sensation of the Loggers' backfield. His off-tackle and end runs have been the main factor in Puget Sound's ground gaining. Tatum's speed and fight are his greatest assets. He is also the Loggers big sprinting ace in track and will be remembered for his track performances last spring.

Frank Wilson, left halfback, is generally considered the greatest passer in this section. It was passes, hurled from the hands of Wilson, that scored for the Loggers against the University of Washington and every team met last year. Wilson is also adept at carrying the ball and does most of the Loggers' kicking which puts him in the triple-threat class. Little Frank Gillihan, at quarterback, and Onie Hannus, at right halfback, complete the first string backfield. Gillihan and Hannus are also sprint stars.

Amos Booth is being recognized as the find of the season. Playing second string end for two games, he was finally put in the starting line-up against Linfield and there showed such ability and power that he has won the first call. He made three touchdowns against the Wildcats, scoring twice on forward passes from Wilson, and once by intercepting a pass and racing to the goal for the count. At the other extremity is Dave Ferguson, a lanky individual of no mean ability.

The tackle berths are held down by two freshmen, John Garnero, all-state high school tackle from Washington last year; and Ralph Brear. Coach Hubbard has worked hard on them and his labors are being rewarded. The center trio of Browning, Bankhead and Miller is not up to snuff. Leatherwod may go into Bankheads place at center, and the two guards may also be replaced by the time the game starts.

Coach Hubbard is anticipating a close contest and so has been drilling the backs in field-goal kicking all week. Knowing something of the reputed strength of the Bearcats' forward wall the Loggers have altered their offensive tactics and it is expected they will resort mainly to a kicking and pasing game. Coach Hubbard makes the following statement concerning the game: "We're expecting the battle of our lives, but are coming prepared."

Twenty-one players including Coach Hubbard and Athletic Manager Clare Guest will arrive in Salem at 10:30 Friday night. The players making the trip are: Linemen, Ferguson, Booth, Anderson, LePenske, Garnero, Brear, Thornley, Norton, Browning, Miller, Johnson, Gardner, Leatherwood, Bankhead; backfield men—Gillihan, Parker, Wilson, Hannus, Tatum, Smith and Kepka. Ten of this number played against Willamette last year, and seven of these veterans will undoubtedly be in the

TO ALUMNI OF W. U.

Homecoming exists primarily for you, and our greatest joy comes through serving you, and extending to you the heartiest welcome.

Willamette gives to all of us the indelible stamp of her sonship, and makes of all her sons an enduring fraternity. Common experiences, common ideals, common purposes, and mutual loyalty furnish the basis of this true brotherhood.

The students of today welcome the students of other days. We appreciate the privilege of renewing old friendships, and of making new ones among you. We are anxious to prove to you that we are true sons of Willamette, that are holding high the standard which you have passed on to us. We are equally anxious to gain from contact with you some little glimpse of the life that lies beyond the senior orals.

For these few days let's lay aside the false distinctions between us, and be students together under the shadow of the old historic temple.

JOEL V. BERREMAN, President ASWU.

"Willamette welcomes your return and the visit of your friends. The school is proud of her family, but that pride would become pathetic disappointment if you did not come home to greet her and call her dear names and witness her clear gratitude.

The house has been set in order and she has remembered how you like to be entertained: the game and team, the open houses and reunions, the play and good fellowship, the optimism and spirit of oneness. I am sure you will be pleased. The faculty and students give to you the best they have and are.

You are home again; be at home. And before you leave, make a high pledge that soon you will come again because you "love Willamette U.

OLD GRAD DISCOVERS LONE CINDER IN MUSEUM, HARD BENCH DISCLOSES

By V. M. C.

Here is what a Bench in the Grandstand heard some Willamette graduates talking about:

Hard Bench (to next door neighbor): "Say, Sharp Sliver, wasn't it fun to hear that grad talking about the old school last night? He certainly sat on me for a long time, but it was worth it, for I surely heard some interesting gossip."

Sharp Sliver: "The Grad that sat on you wasn't half as entertaining as the one that sat on me. Do you remember what they said to him yesterday at the game? Everybody was so glad to see everybody else that they didn't pay much attention to the game right at first. Well, this fellow I'm talking about took his hat off to speak to an old friend and several old classmates yelled: 'Put your hat on Tom, you look better.' You see he was so bald that he was even past the hair tonic stage. He was fat and jolly though and he took it good naturedly even if he did blush a channel red color. He said he surely thought the school spirit here was wonderful this year. He liked the attitude on the campus. Everybody was so friendly, and our coach and team were passing all expectations. But he said he thought it was rather queer to have the organ grinder going around on the campus even if it was homecoming."

Hard Bench: "Ha, ha, that was a good one! My occupant thought he was sprinkling coffee on the grass to make it sleep! He didn't know that we are having the campus seeded. He said he wondered why the gymnasium department had the students put on overalls and pull that roller all over the campus. Another grad whispered to him that he thought this was a new piece of gymnasium equipment that had been donated, and the boys were trying it out. And say, Hardwood, I heard a girl say they must be intending to have a big bonfire with so much sawdust, but she didn't see why they put it on the football field. Then I heard one grad say he had just visited the Willamette museum and had seen the much talked of cindre that had been received from the track."

Sharp Sliver: "I heard one of the grads say as he looked at a girl he used to go with—'Old boy, I'm glad I'm a bachelor, for behold—the peach of yesterday is the prune of the beauty shop.' The girl overheard him, however and she remarked: 'The sheik of today is the shock of tomorrow.' And do you know, Hard Bench, I heard an old student body president say he wondered if he could still call a student body meeting by the millstream bridge late in the evening, and have a much larger attendance than he could at a regular meeting in the chapel, as he used to in the old days."

Hard Bench: "I think he would have a much larger meeting if he called it right here in the grandstand on rainy nights. I heard an alumnus say that he was sorry that the old grandstand was torn down because he had remembrances of so many pleasant hours spent there. Say, Sharp Sliver, I'd like to compare notes with old grandstand and see if it knew as much as we know. It could tell about the days when the old bell tower was here, and when the track was used for delivery wagons rather than collegiate heaps. The old grandstand was here when the big trees stood in all their beauty on the Willamette campus. But alas, the crying need for fire wood has made it necessary to cut down the old trees, and the grads come back to a tree-less campus."

Sharp Sliver: "I heard one grad say that if astronomy had been known to be a social science in his day that it would have been as popular then as it is now. Somebody said when they heard that the varsity band was trying to revive that they remembered the good old days when men were men and women were musicians!"

Hard Bench: "Say did you hear that young fellow tell the one with him that he was trying to grow a mustache? And he asked him what color he thought it would be?"

Sharp Sliver: "Yes, and the other one said: 'At the rate it's growing now I think it will be grey!' Ha, ha!—so that's what they learn at college, is it? Well, I'm getting sleepy but if you think of any more interesting news about these old grads, you wake me up and tell me, because it will be another whole year until Homecoming and I think it's the most fun of all times during the year!"

Alumni Interest In CPS Contest Big, Says Eakin

Harold Eakin, recently elected president of the Willamette Alumni association, expressed himself as vitally interested in the alumni homecoming, when he was interviewed by a Collegian reporter today.

"A great many alumni feel keen interest in the football game Saturday, particularly since the team demonstrated its ability by pulverizing the ancient rival, Pacific, said Mr. Eakin, "and I believe that that victory will increase attendance at tomorrow's game by fifty per cent. This will be the first time the alumni have had a chance to see 'Spec's' team, and, as they are all behind him strong in every way, they will be here in force for the homecoming game."

"Roy Shields told me last week that the Portland Alumni clubs have been eagerly awaiting homecoming and that every Portland alumni who can possibly get away will come down for the game.

"I am anxious that all the alumni come to the luncheon at the Marion hotel Saturday noon, and that they will attend the semi-annual business meeting immediately afterward. There are a number of important matters to be considered."

WILLAMETTE MEN ATTEMPT TO SET PACIFIC BONFIRE

Pre-Pacific Game Activities Result in Capture of Five Local Boys

Thursday night, October 28, Bert Thompson, Eldred Cobb, Chuck Bodine, Bruce Spaulding, John Russell, Rod Blatchford and Lucien Cobb piled into the latter's Packard and drove over to Forest Grove to help the P. U. students decorate their campus for home-coming.

The men arrived in Forest Grove about 2 a. m., and went right to P. U.'s bonfire. After the boys had put gasoline on the wood, Bruce Spaulding, like a gallant hero of the olden days, took some matches in his mouth and climbed to the top of the pile. Vainly he was trying to light the fire, for the matches were wet with saliva, when some P. U. fellows sprang up from nowhere and captured him.

Chuck Bodine ran for the car. Finding another already in it he supposed it was one of his fellow captives, so, sitting on his lap, proceeded to have sort of a petting party with him. What was his amazement a few moments later to discover that, instead, he was sitting in the lap of one of his captors! As Mr. Cobb, Sr., was planning a motor trip to Portland on Friday, Lucien had to bring the car back to him at Salem. The rest of the boys were thrown into jail from 3:30-4:30 Friday morning. At the latter hour they were released upon giving of a promise not to run away, and were taken over to the Gamma Sigma house where most of the football men live.

About 6:30 the Willamette forerunners were escorted over to McCormick hall, the boys' dormitory, and there put to work washing dishes and helping in the kitchen and dining room. From breakfast till lunch time the boys were free and could do pretty much what they pleased. Many a fair young damsel's heart did they capture—the P. U. girls were "just crazy" about them. Needless to say the boys were having a wonderful time. Friday noon Bert Thompson and Chuck Bodine escaped and came back to Salem. That evening the four boys remaining were given tickets to the Junior play. John and Rod having slept through the first act, gave it up as a poor job, went back to the dormitory, and there continued their peaceful slumber throughout the rest of the night. Saturday morning the W. U. boys were again given the privilege of washing the dishes.

When the Willamette students arrived in Forest Grove, P. U.'s prisoners were led around the streets by means of large ropes which were tied about their necks. The better judgment of the "Willametters" kept them from mobbing the captors. Just before the game started these four heroes were led onto the field and then released.

Although the boys said they had had a fine time and would not have missed it for anything, they were glad to get into the Willamette grandstand and glad to get home. In many respects the trip was a very profitable one for them. All they had to pay for was the gas which was used going over to Forest Grove. All their meals were given to them and they received tickets to the Junior play as well as to the game. Three of the girls went right to Portland instead of coming back to Salem, so they gave their tickets to the boys to use coming home on the train. After all is said and done, the fellows still declare, "We sure had a good time."

HOMECOMING NOW FIRMLY ESTABLISHED

The Homecoming celebration was instituted at Willamette University on November 3, 1922, and it proved to be the establishment of a time honored tradition here.

There were at this time about seven hundred invitations out, and many enthusiastic alumni came back to the school of the Cardinal and Gold. On Friday night, the Freshman class sponsored a very thrilling bonfire rally. Saturday afternoon at 1, there was an impressive dedication of the new gymnasium building. Following this, a most exciting game was played between Willamette and Whitman. Though Whitman was victorious, all were proud of the fighting spirit of our Bearcats. Then, Saturday night at the Homecoming social, everyone enjoyed the jolly good fellowship as well as the ridiculous concessions. On the whole, the first Homecoming at Willamette was one of marked success.

In 1924 Homecoming was celebrated on the twenty-fourth and fifth of October. Again a bonfire rally took place on Friday night. The game was with the College of Puget Sound, the score resulting in their favor 8 to 0. The circus on Saturday was a very unique and entertaining one.

Homecoming last year was held on October 30 and 31. With attendance at the high water mark, all the festivities were not lacking for spectators and old grads. The program included the usual peppy fireworks rally, breakfast served by the societies in their halls on Saturday morning, Willamette-Whitman game, and the play, "You and I," given by the Theta Alpha Phi. The game was quite close, the score being 20 to 13 in favor of Whitman. This Homecoming program is one of the best that has yet been given.

Each year the number of alumni attending has increased and every year more elaborate and more successful preparations have been made for their entertainment. This year, after the wonderful victory over Pacific, the game with College of Puget Sound is expected to be more thrilling than ever. With such a live-wire Freshman class, the fireworks are sure to be fine. Everybody, too, is anxious to go to the Theta Alpha Phi play; so it is anticipated that Homecoming at Willamette in 1926 will be better than ever.

This is the special homecoming edition of the Collegian. Why not mail copies of it to your relatives and friends? Papers can be secured at the Collegian office in the basement of Waller Hall for five cents per copy, wrapped and ready for mailing.

The Pacific Excursion Is Broadcasted By Radio; W. U. Sign Off at Close of Great Day

This is radio station W. U., broadcasting the regular evening program for children.

"How do you do, little students, how do you do.
How do you do, little kiddies, how are you?
How do do do do do do do?"

This evening, little Willamette friends, we will board the P. U. excursion train. All aboard — toot toot! Wait a minute—wee Willie Mumford has forgotten his tooth brush. Now — everyone ready? Toot toot—clang clang.

Trixie Merewether just lost her Alpha Psi pin out the window. Will the finder please return it to her at once, as this little girl prizes her toys highly.

We are now nearing Eola, where we will pick up Kenny McCormick, who is just getting home from the Junior party.

Toot toot! We're off again. Don't be alarmed—this peculiar noise you hear is not static, but just an innocent Freshman weeping because Spec Keene has cancelled her date for the evening.

Just a minute—bad news. One of our small passengers has been lost—it is Arnold Taylor. He is wearing Tommy Maynard's shoes, and Tommyis very anxious to find him.

Clang, clang—here we are at McMinnville. Everybody off. Why, here's a little lad who seems to be lost. He is unable to remember his name. Now he is talking—it's our little pal, Buddy Gaines. He's all right now—he just wanted another piece of pie!

Toot toot—all aboard. Keith Rhodes and his little playmates will now sing, "After the Ball is Over."

We have just received a telegram from Jackie Minto. He says, "Don't let the game start 'till we get there—we're having tire trouble."

Clang, clang—here we are at Forest Grove. The band is out to meet us. What's this — a buggy? It says, "Latest fussing conveniences at Willamette." Jeanie White will now sing, "Thank's for the Buggy Ride." Come on dear, don't be frightened. That's right!

Roddy Blatchford, Elly Cobb, Johnny Russell, and Bruce Spaulding, will entertain us with a pathetic rendition of "The Prisoner's Song."

Hello, little tots. Well, Willamette has another child! All aboard. Willis Hathaway has gone asleep murmuring, "Show Me the Way to Go Home."

Everyone quiet, kiddies! Yes, that was the curfew whistle, so it's time for all good little Bearcats and their friends to go to bed, so register bliss, please. Is such little face looking happy? All right then, we'll ring the Victory bell! Good night, everybody, good night!

PHIL TEA

The Philodosian society was at home Friday afternoon from 4 to 5:30 at the Philodosian hall to the non-society girls of the university.

The dimly lighted room was beautifully decorated with well-placed bouquets of yellow and white, and gold chrysanthemums.

Miss Margaret Raught introduced the guests to the receiving line: Miss Mildred Tomlinson, Mrs. Morton Peck, Beulah Launer, and Caroline Parker.

During the afternoon the following musical numbers were rendered:
Prelude Ap 20.....Chapin
Waltz in A Flat .....Brahms
Helen Bridgman
Nola .....Arndt
Thais .....Massenet
Clandine Gerth
Romance .....Rubenstein
Louise Findley

As the girls left they were given favors of dainty orange and black candy boxes.

Edna Wentz, Margaret Lenns, Sadie Jo Read and Eleanor Merewether visited in Portland last week end.

James Braly visited his parents in Portland on Saturday and Sunday.

Virginia Edwards, Lois Morris, Edna Letbetter, Beulah Launer and Buneva Culbertson were dinner guests of Alpha Psi Delta Sunday.

The editor wishes to correct a faulty item in last week's issue in which it was reported that three men from the Epsilon Delta Mu house were entertained at Alpha Gamma sorority at Corvallis on Sunday. George Van Natta visited at Alpha Delta Pi sorority and Charles De Graff and Rupert Philpott were guests of Sigma Gamma fraternity.

Mrs. Roy Keene, formerly of Corvallis who is now making her home in Salem, was honored with a very attractive tea on Friday afternoon when Mrs. W. Donnell Dyer and Mrs. Curtis Cross were joint hostesses at the Cross home on Lincoln Hill. Lavender and lemon pom pom chrysanthemums were used about the rooms.

Assisting in the living rooms were: Mrs. Prince Byrd, Mrs. George Alden, Mrs. William Kirk, Mrs. Chester Cox, Mrs. Keith Powell and Mrs. C. M. Hawkins.

Mrs. Carl Gregg Doney and Mrs. Alice H. Dodd presided at the urns. Eighty guests were bidden for the afternoon.

ADELANTE TEA

Adelante hall, colorfully decorated with yellow and white chrysanthemums, was the scene of a delightful tea honoring the non-society girls on Friday evening, October 29, between the hours of 4 and 5:30.

The guests were met at the door by Mildred Gilbert who presented them to the members of the receiving line: Mrs. Charles L. Sherman, Miss Lois Latimer, Sadie Jo Read, Eleanor Merewether, Helen Baird, and Margaret Bodine.

Tall yellow tapers, burning on the piano, cast a soft glow through the room, making a lovely back ground for the musical numbers of the program.

Refreshments of punch, cakes, and mints carrying out the general color scheme were served. As each guest left she was presented with an attractive favor consisting of a gold "A" attached to an autumn leaf of many hues.

November 14-21 has been set aside by the University Epworth League chapter as Fellowship Week. This is an annual event which usually takes place in the fall. Before last year this used to be termed Win-My-Chum week, but since it was changed to the better one of Fellowship.

The purpose of this observance is to bring inspiring messages before the students from students who are known for their Christian character and influence. It is a week of revival, reconsecration, meditation. The meetings, which will be held every night except Saturday will begin at 7:15 and be over by 8 o'clock. In this way they will not interfere with lessons.

Mildred Mills is in charge of the services. Each meeting will be conducted by an outstanding leader on some phase of the topic, "Discipleship."

Wednesday afternoon, November 3, the Chrestomathean society held its customary pledge service in honor of the following girls:

Dorothy Taylor, Helen Kafoury, Roberta Vannece, Dorothy Hutchinson, Donna Hildesheim, Myrtle Salling, Theresa Nanny, Orma McIntyre, June Mack, and Emma Wohr. After the ceremony the girls gathered around the fireplace and sang Willamette songs while refreshments of pumpkin pie with whipped cream and chocolate were served.

To formally meet and welcome new girls, the Clionian Literary society held its informal pledge service Wednesday, November 3.

In a dimly-lighted room the president, Irene Clark, performed the pledge service and welcomed the following girls: Leah Fanning, Catharine Barker, Violet Beecher, Camilla Gates, Merle Hughes, Helen Hughes, Mary Kightlinger, Mabel Snyder, Marjorie Nelson, Vivian Rasmussen, Sarah Poor and Beulah Wampler.

Talking together in cozy groups, the girls were served ice cream and wafers.

TOWN AND GOWN

Last Thursday afternoon the Town and Gown club met at Lausanne hall for its first meeting of the school year. Mary Findley spoke interestingly on Palestine. At the close of the afternoon tea was served to the thirty-five ladies present.

The Town and Gown is an organization composed of town and faculty women who are interested in Lausanne hall. Although the club is five years old the name is new. Heretofore it was known as Lausanne Guild. In its present name, the Town signifies the town women, and Gown signifies the commencement garb and hence the University women.

In 1921 due to the efforts of Mrs. A. M. Bush who at that time was a member of the board of trustees of Willamette, the Guild was organized. It has sponsored the furnishing of the dormitory, the planting of the lawn, shrubbery and flowers and is always working for the best interests of the hall.

The officers of the Town and Gown are: President, Mrs. C. P. Bishop; vice president, Mrs. E. C. Cross, secretary and treasurer, Frances Richards. The club meets the third Thursday of every month.

Misinformation is the major source of misunderstanding. Believing that such is the case with the editorial writer of the esteemed Pacific University Index, who in a homecoming edition last week criticised the conduct of athletic relations at two of the universities in the conference, we venture to set forth the true facts of the situation as far as Willamette is concerned, for the enlightenment of our neighbor critic.

Ordinarily, the Collegian would take no notice of an expression couched in such insolent terms. But it cannot believe that the editorial referred to reflects genuinely the opinion of the Index and the students it represents, especially in light of the real situation; and hastens to point out the true circumstances in a desire to clarify the situation so that the relations between Pacific and Willamette as members of the northwest conference may continue to be characterized by the same spirit of friendly cooperation which has been evidenced in the past.

Willamette, at no time, has sought to play unfair with sister members of the conference. Last year, the university suffered under the management of an incompetent coaching staff. Morale of the teams was low. Students and townspeople failed to support athletic competition as they should. Financial losses ensued. In the spring, the student body found itself with insufficient funds to carry on both track and baseball. Baseball held the least interest and was temporarily discarded as a student body sport.

Certain men students interested in baseball, banded together, took up a free-will offering, and played one game against Monmouth. While these men may have been credited in newspaper reports as being of a Willamette team, they received no money whatever from student body funds, and were wholly unauthorized to appear as representatives of the university.

When football season opened this fall, Coach "Spec" Keene, new at Willamette, faced a tremendously difficult schedule, which had been unthoughtfully arranged by the previous coaching regime. Not daunted, the new mentor went ahead and prepared his men, inadequately at best, considering the lack of time, for two tough games in succession against University of Oregon, and University of Washington, both games away from the home field. The contest with Washington was scheduled for Oct. 2 at Seattle, and the schedule tentatively called for a game the following Friday at Caldwell against the Idaho Coyotes.

It is to the so-called cancellation of this game that the Pacific editorialist takes particular exception. Let it be said, then, that no such game was ever definitely scheduled. There was a verbal agreement between the two institutions for a contest at Caldwell, but contracts had not been signed, and the verbal understanding was terminated last spring at the time the conference track meet was held at Salem. Coach Keene told the Idaho men then that the game could not be played. Willamette wanted to meet College of Idaho but it would have been physically and financially impracticable to go to Caldwell so soon after the Washington game.

Pacific university is to be congratulated on its football schedule. It is a fine thing to meet every conference college team in one season. Willamette wishes it were in a position to do the same. Yet, in a comparison of schedules, Pacific cannot, in justice, claim the more difficult one.

The Collegian firmly believes than another year will see the conference well on its feet. Athletics are reaching a higher standard. Larger crowds are being attracted to the games, and with the building up of a good paying gate, financial troubles which now beset members of the conference will largely be ironed out.

A year has passed since Grads last came home. The year has been full of achievement for the university. The coming of "Spec" has enlivened athletic activities. A new spirit—a spirit of fight—is manifest among students, a spirit which has been transmitted to the football team. Pacific university's long reign of supremacy over Willamette in this sport has come to an end as a result of this fight. Success for the remainder of the season will depend upon it.

To this renaissance, we point with satisfaction. We hope that the alumni will rejoice in it. We welcome you back, old grads, to celebrate with us during this week-end. Meet old friends; talk again with favorite professors; renew acquaintance with the president; mix with the undergraduates. For it is your school and ours, and we are proud of it.

And let not your connection with the university rest with one visit each year. Keep Willamette in your thoughts. Consider ways of improvement in the school. Give your support to its every undertaking. An institution can be no stronger than its product.

Welcome, Grads!

We are glad to resume tomorrow the fine relations that have always existed between Willamette and C. P. S.; we know that the game will be squarely played, yet played between two teams that are fighting for their lives; and we know also that whatever is the outcome of the game that no alibis will be offered, no unsportsmanlike spirit shown.

C. P. S. undoubtedly has a strong team, and it is made up largely, as Willamette's team, of underclassmen; and we predict for the College of Puget Sound an era of highclass athletics that will be rivaled only by that on which Willamette is entering.

Meanwhile, we hope that C. P. S. is mightily trounced upon tomorrow, and we believe that she will be; but if this proves to be the case, Willamette will doubtless know that she has met a real team.

Willamette Writers

WELCOME TO THE GRADS

A toast to the old grads,
We welcome you here,
We're happy to see you.
Here's the glad-hand of cheer

We hope you remember,
The old college dear.
We know that we're changing,
We advance every year.

But we still have the spirit,
Our standards don't lag,
We revere the old school,
Keep aloft the old flag.

But again let us tell you,
We're glad that you're here,
Let's boost for Willamette,
Our college so dear.

—Ruby C. Peterson.

A BICYCLE JOURNEY FROM BOSEBURG TO THE PACIFIC OCEAN

"One road leads to London.
One road runs to Wales.
My road leads me seawards
To the white dipping sails.
One road leads to the river
As it goes singing slow,
My road leads to shipping,
Where the bronzed sailors go."

Humming this song, I climbed to the top of Mount Nebo, a rocky eminence near the city of Roseburg, early one morning in late September. It was the day before the commencement of my proposed bicycle journey from Roseburg to the Pacific coast. On the morrow I would start upon my long anticipated journey to Bandon-by-the-Sea, ninety miles away, with the Pacific ocean which I had never seen as the object of my quest. Today, I must content myself with gazing once more upon the beautiful Umqua river valley from the top of Mount Nebo.

I reached the summit just as the sun rose from a brilliant yellow fog bank in the eastern sky. Nebo is the bare and rocky end of a long wooded ridge which extends back toward the mountains of the Coast Range. With the mist-clad valleys lying below on either side, the narrow ridge had the appearance of a long black promonotory extending out into a milk-white sea. As the sun climbed zenithward, long streamers of mist floated from the valleys heavenward, thinned, and vanished. Soon there lay revealed around me, like a painting from which obscuring curtains have been drawn, the winding fertile valleys and low rolling hills of the Umpqua river valley.

A short distance from where I stood the ridge dropped away precipitously for six hundred feet to the placid South Umpqua river. A narrow road skirted the base of the brown cliff, crossed a long red bridge, and entered the city of Roseburg lying half-hidden among gold and scarlet clouds of oak and maple leaves. Fringeing the city on three sides were low hills dotted halfway up with leaf-embowered homes. The quiet, tree-lined river flower past the edge of the city and curved away westward through cultivated valleys and rolling hills toward the blue Coast Range. Like a white ribbon the Pacific Highway unrolled from north to south, losing itself among the undulating foothills.

Before descending Mount Nebo I let my gaze follow southward the white stretch of the highway to the point where it vanished. Upon it I would ride on the morrow as far as Coos Bay Junction in the Dillard valley where I would turn westward toward the Coast Range and the Pacific ocean.

—P. G. T.

GOD

Night and silence; stars above,—
Mysteries of life and love—
How powerful is our God!

Eastern sky; faint streaks of gray,—
Shadows start to steal away—
How merciful is our God!

Light, more light! Flees the night,—
Haze lifts from the mountain height. —
How tender is our God!

Crimson bars, a wondrous dawn,—
Day is here and night has gone—
How loving is our God!

FIRE THOUGHTS

THE MAN

I look into the fire and see
No beauty there
Only hungry wicked flames
That taunt and leap in air,
Wild flames that torture as they leave
A landscape seared and bare.

THE WOMAN

I look into the fire and see
A happy home
Where laughing children live
The embers show a mother's face
And brighten it with beauty soft—
A family scene of charm and grace.

THE DREAMER

I look into the fire and see
No trace of sorrow
For flickering flame-dreams glow
And ever seem to borrow
The tender thought of yesterday
And brightness of tomorrow.

TO THE WIND

When quiet eve curtains the toil of the day,
And frees to thy breezes the dreams of the mind,
When in thy caress I wandering stray,
Sing! Sing to me, wind!

Tell of the wanderers who loved thee of yore;
Of battles and struggles that thou hast entwined;
Of minstralers hoary whose ballads you bore—
Sing! Sing to me, wind!

Send your wild notes over vale and moor!
Shriek through the forests and roar on the brine;
Sweep the broad meadow and beat on the shore—
Sing! Sing to me, wind!

I love the bright sunlight, the forest, the deep;
But naught like thy chorus entrances my mind.
Blow! Nature's wild spirit, and lull me to sleep.
Sing! Sing to me, wind!

"Don't let a club membership come between yourself and a friend. Just because you don't happen to belong to a prominent organization is no reason for there being any difference in your treatment of a fellow student and friend. The fact of the existence of fraternities and sororities on the campus is not at all an indication that the school is becoming aristocratic or snobbish, it is an indication of school progress and should have for its ideal the furthering of democratic principles among the students as a united and harmonic body." Reflections and Refractions

Dear Subscribers: Last week, because of the pressure of time, we drew pretty heavily on Life, but this week we are starting to be funny early. We hope to have time at least to re-word the jokes that we use, so that we won't have to pay royalty on them.

It is not often that we take exception in the column of this publication to any remarks that are made in chapel, but we feel it our duty as protectors of Willamette youth to point with alarm to the chapel talk made by Dean Alden the other day. A man that would so ruthlessly tear down all the beautiful stories of history, would not be beyond denying the existence of Santa Claus! Such a man is a dangerous influence for Willamette children. Dare we allow this insidious new thought to creep into Willamette classrooms? Ladies and gentlemen, think on these things!

The other night the science students demonstrated beyond the shadow of a doubt that the earth is round and not flat. This is a great relief to those fo us who have friends in Eastern Oregon, for we have been afraid that some of them might disappear by falling over the jumping-off place.

* * * * * *

We went to a movie last night and saw an advertisement urging the voters of Oregon to establish a normal school in Eastern Oregon. We are heartily in favor of that, and so is Jim Rettie, who hails from Fossil. He says that under the present system the girls who can first learn to count ten get the best schools.

The accompanying photo, which was snapped at the Pacific game Saturday, was rushed to McMinnville by oxcart, thence to Rickreall by the fastest sailing vessel in the Atlantic fleet, and finally to Salem by handcar. It shows the exact manner in which Willamette stopped the dangerous Pacific rush in the third quarter. In this set Emerson, great Pacific quarter, was at bat with three and two on him, when the referee penalized him for a broken dribble. Angered by this, the grand old man swung fiercely with his racquet, advancing the ball to a point right underneath Willamette's basket. Here he was fiercely tackled by Mac-

Members of the writers' section were the guests of Miss Renska Swart in her shop on Court street last night. Verse and prose were taken up during the evening. Mrs. Gertrude Robinson Ross opened the evening's program with the reading of a chapter of her new book "Nigh to Harvesting."

A short play which she has written recently and which will be presented by a group of Willamette University girls was read by Miss Mary Gilbert. She calls it "The School of Happiness."

Miss Silver, who came to Salem recently to serve as house mother at the Alpha Phi Alpha house after spending many years in the Orient, gave an interesting talk on the types of operas, plays and movies given in the Orient.

Three verses, two of which have been published recently, were read by Miss Edna Garfield. Mrs. F. G. Franklin read two poems, "Chrysanthemums Angelier," and "Hawthorne Buds," from a French anthology of prize poems. The two were written by Henry Schurrer.

Mrs. C. J. Lisle read a poem "Ode to Salem's Fountain," which was written by Mrs. Emma Matthews Wheeldon, a sister of Professor Matthews. Open discussion was held on a little book, "Tales by Candlelight," written and printed recently by Frank Bellemin of Amity.

During the luncheon hour Miss Swart was assisted by Miss Ruth Laurence.

Miss Mary Gilbert and Mrs. C. J. Lisle were voted into active membership of the section last night.

The group included Dr. and Mrs. F. G. Franklin, Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Paulus, Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Lisle, Mrs. Elizabeth Sherwood, Mrs. W. F. Fargo, Mrs. Gertrude Robinson Ross, Miss Audred Bunch, Mrs. Blanche M. Jones, Miss Edna Garfield, Miss Ruth Laurence, Miss Silver, Miss Mary Gilbert, Perry Reigelman and the hostess, Miss Swart.

SCHOOL OF LAW TO SECURE ENDOWMENT

President Doney in Banquet Address Says Action May Be Commenced Within a Year

Wednesday evening at a banquet at the Graybelle given by the Dean and faculty of the College of Law for law students, President Carl Gregg Doney formally stated that he had reason to believe that "within the next year action would be commenced to provide a separate endowment for the College of Law." This statement came as the climax of an address in which President Doney gave his impression of the law school, the opportunities which the profession offers to students, the ideals which it embraces, and in particular the situation of Willamette's own law school.

The banquet, which was sponsored by the Dean and faculty of the law school, was the first event of its kind at Willamette. The purpose of the occasion was to promote a spirit of unity and friendliness between the students and faculty of the law school, and to aid both in feeling that they were a real and vital part of the University as a whole.

The main speech of the evening was given by Justice Burnett of the Oregon Supreme court. Called with only a brief notice to deliver a speech, Justice Burnett acquitted himself as a master of quick and logical thinking and effective delivery. His talk was simple and to the point and left one with the impression of having listened to a sage.

He mentioned briefly his own experience studying for the bar in Salem when the town was of about 3000 population and Willamette had no Law College. Studying alone in the office of another lawyer, without any help except by reference work and occasional explanation of some of the more intricate points of the law by the older members of the profession, he eked out existence in the law until he gained membership to the Oregon bar and worked by gradual process to his present position of eminence.

Justice Burnett spoke somewhat of the origin of certain maxims of equity and showed the inseparable relation of law and equity. "The law by reason of its Universality must necessarily work injustice in particular instances, and by reason of that we have Equity." He quoted Blackstone and Marshall and other great exponents of the law with an ease and appropriateness which was a revelation.

In summing up the things essential to outstanding success in law he said, "Understand what you read, and store it away in a manner which will enable to call it forth at any time you may need it. Have within you a real and honest desire for justice and in your practice promote that ideal. But I regard as most fundamental and as necessary to the ultimate success in a large way, an upright character inspired with the words of the Carpenter's Son, given in his sermon on the mount. I regard it as our greatest equitable maxim."

The program consisted of the welcome by Dean Van Winkle, a vocal solo by Mrs. Harry H. Harms, an address by Hon. Geo. H. Burnett, justice of the supreme court, another vocal solo by Mrs. Harry H. Harms, and in closing a speech by Dr. Doney.

TAU KAPPA ALPHA INITIATES GRADS

Tau Kappa Alpha, intercollegiate honorary oratorical and debating fraternity, will hold an initiation service at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning, Saturday, Nov. 6, for alumni debaters who have not been able to be on the campus since the election last spring.

Tau Kappa Alpha has 63 chapters, 18 of which are chartered at state universities. Willamette university has one of the three western chapters—the other two are at the University of Washington and the University of Oregon.

The alumni who will be initiated are Esther Moyer Zeller, Lucille Tucker, Harold Eakin, Frank Bennett and Lorlei Blatchford Gillett. Merle Bonney, who is attending Stanford University, and Myrtle Mason McKittrick, who is at Arcata, Calif., will be unable to be at this initiation.

During commencement week last spring, five alumni were initiated: Rodney Alden, Violet Coe, Rawson Chapin, Elaine Clower and Caroline Tallman.

The active members, those on the campus this year, are Dean F. M. Erickson, Joel Berreman, Victor Carlson, Adelia Gates, Charles Redding, George Rhoten, Nadine Harding, James McClintock and Hazel Newhouse.

Dr. J. M. Canse, president of the Kimball School of Theology, is attending the group meetings of the southern district which are being held this week in Medford, Eugene and Marshfield. He is expected to return to Salem today.

Dr. and Mrs. Canse have just returned from a two weeks' trip in Washington. They spent the greater part of their time in Seattle, Tacoma, Olympia and Centralia.

WHAT HO! THERE WHO WILL WALK?

Chairman "Toughy" Haines Inaugurates Unusual Inter-class Contest

Instead of the ancient and unpopular cross country run, the next inter-class event will be a walking number. Each class will start a team of five at a selected point some five or ten miles from town. The first man to walk to the end of the course will win one point, the second two points and so forth. Every man that does not finish will receive 20 points for his class. The team making the least number of points will win the event.

Ronald Haines, inter-class rivalry chairman, says that, "All forms and means of locomotion except that offered by altering the relative positions of the posterior extremities with consequent alternate lifting and planting of each foot, will be barred. Any contestant caught running will be penalized 10 miles. Any contestant found riding will be penalized 47 miles and disqualified."

This race will take place some evening after school as soon after homecoming as the weather permits.

TALE OF A PEW FROSH

Reginald was a happy little Freshman at Pew University. He was immensely proud of his Alma Mater, for had he not already witnessed her mighty prowess in the great game called football? His little school had played the great University of Obregon to the south and after many hours of brilliant fighting had held the big school to a scoreless tie.

Today was a great day for him. All the Alums were coming back to the school, and everyone was preparing for the squirmish with the old rival, Williametta University. Reginald's thoughts were happy ones. He had no doubt of the final outcome. For six long years Pew had been victorious in this annual football game. To add to the general satisfaction this year, he recalled that two nights before some men from old Williametta who had come up to paint their horrid colors all over his beautiful campus had been caught and were even now being held in the most humiliating bondage.

Oh, yes, Reginald was very much excited, but he was sleepy too because he had been up all the night before guarding the campus. He decided to have a little nap before the game started.

Perhaps Reginald's lunch had disagreed with him. Whatever the cause he dreamed the most horrible dreams imaginable. It was an utterly impossible dream, for it never, never could happen.

Reginald saw hundreds of Williametta students in the streets of the town. They marched through the campus to the football field, they filled the grandstand to overflowing. They yelled, sang, cheered and laughed. He saw the two teams meet and he saw his own team go down to inglorious defeat.

Reginald awoke with a start. It was dark; he had slept all afternoon.

Reginald is an unhappy little Freshman at Pew University now, but he is going out for football and plans to be a happy little Sophomore at Williametta next year.

WHITMAN CLUB BUSY

WHITMAN COLLEGE, Walla Walla, Wash., Nov. 5, 1926.—(P. I. P.)—With a big three act play coming the second term and several groups of one act plays during the year, the Dramatic club has a full schedule ahead. Tryouts for new members, reading of several plays, discussion of plays being given in the large cities and colleges, stage technique, and the coaching of the casts for the several one act plays by the members are only a few of the activities of the group.

HONORARY INSTALLED

WHITMAN COLLEGE, Walla Walla, Wash., Nov. 5, 1926.—(P. I. P.)—Mortar Board, women's National Activity Honorary, was officially installed on the Whitman campus last Saturday by Miss Luella Galliver, assistant dean of women at the University of Wyoming.

PRESS CONVENTION TO HOLD CONTEST

Faber and Carlson Report Profitable Sessions at Newspaper Meeting in Reno

Development of plans for a prize contest to be conducted among the college papers of the Pacific coast, was one of the achievements of the Pacific Intercollegiate Press Association in their annual convention at Reno, Nevada, last week. Victor Carlson, editor, and Everett Faber, manager of the Collegian, attended the convention as representatives of Willamette university. The two men returned early this week and reported a highly successful conference.

Three prizes are to be awarded in the contest just inaugurated. They will be for the best editorial, the best newspaper story, and the most attractive front page make up. A certain issue of each paper will be specified sometime during the year to be sent in to the executive secretary's office for examination by judges selected from among editors of metropolitan papers in different sections of the coast. Prizes are to be donated by some outstanding metropolitan paper yet to be selected.

A flat rate of discount for national advertisers was adopted by the managers at the convention. This was made necessary by the attempts of national advertisers through their agencies to secure unfair rates from college papers. Hereafter a maximum of 15 per cent to the advertiser, 15 per cent to the agent, and 2 per cent for cash payment will be allowed.

Mid-year sectional conventions are to be held early in the spring to supplement the big annual meeting, it was decided. One of these metings will be held at Los Angeles, one at San Francisco, one at Salem, and one at either Spokane, Seattle, or both.

Among the matters considered at the convention were faculty interference, student interference, college credit for publications service, editorial, foreign advertising, advertising percentage, printing costs, subscription prices, staff membership, and exchange of cuts and news.

Instead of the twice a week news letter to every member of the association which has been sent out by the colleges, a copy of each issue of the paper will be sent to members by first class mail.

Delegates to the conference were elaborately entertained by the university of Nevada students. On Thursday evening a dinner (dance) was given. Friday afternoon the delegates were taken on a long tour with stops at Virginia City, Carson City, and Minden.

At Virginia City, the party was ushered through one of the oldest producing mines of the Comstock lode, after descending a shaft 1750 feet deep. At Carson City, an inspection of the Nevada state prison with its lethal gas chamber and prehistoric footprints was made.

The final business meeting and banquet were held at the Minden inn, a splendidly appointed hostelry in Minden.

OREGON COLLEGES TO HOLD MEETING

Independent Institutions Will Gather on Willamette Campus Nov. 26

The annual meeting of Oregon independent colleges will be held at Willamette university Nov. 25 and 26, according to plans made public yesterday. The program for the conference will be arranged by acting president Professor Meyers of the Eugene Bible university. A banquet probably will be held on Friday the 26th. Thirty delegates will be in attendance. Each school is to be represented by its President and at least one official delegate.

Members of the organization are Willamette University, Pacific University, Pacific College, Linfield College, Albany College, Philomath College, Reed College, Eugene Bible University and Oregon Institute of Technology.

"ZOOM, ZOOM," OF AFRICAN DRUM IS SUGGESTED IN BISHOP'S PILLOW TALE

"Zoom, zoom," droned the weird African drum. The sound, wraith-like, drifted through the years and echoed in the ears of certain men of God. Zoom! zoom. "No longer shall it call black men to heathen worship, but to Christ," they resorted. Thus it happened that their mission was fulfilled and that Willamette University became indirectly connected with their inspired work. Here is the story.

Years ago William Taylor, the flame of evangelism in Africa, returned to the United tSates and was directed to take charge of the Methodist conference to be held in Salem. The bishop had suffered from the intense heat of the tropic, his whole system being permeated with fever. At times during the conference his pain was extreme, but he was able to bring the meeting to a successful close.

Immediately afterward, the good bishop accepted an invitation to speak at Gladstone, Ore. A special rest tent was assigned to him that he might recuperate. One day Dr. Wire, now an aged member of the conference, called at the tent. To his great surprise he found the reverend bishop lying on the cot with a slab of marble for a pillow. When asked why he used such a unique pillow, Bishop Taylor said, "My head is still full of swamp fever. In Africa I found that a block of marble under my head was the only thing that cooled me, hence I brought it to this country."

Dr. Wire recovered from his amazement enough to ask if only that particular piece of marble had such power.

"No," replied the bishop.

"Then will you exchange your pillow for another?"

"Gladly," returned the bishop.

Dr. Wire took the original slab and presented it to Willamette university.

If you can influence Mr. Clark to give you the key to the museum, there you will see it—a white marble slab about two inches thick, eight inches wide, and ten inches long, and all the way from Africa.

Thus is Willamette connected with the great missionary work of Africa.

FROSH AND SOPHS TO HOLD BAG RUSH BETWEEN HALVES

Annual Inter-class Struggle Between Two Lower Groups To Be Feature of Football

As is the usual custom the annual Freshman-Sophomore bag rush will be held between the halves of the game Saturday. The line-up is not at all definite, but there will be ten men on each side and the heaviest and speediest members of the two groups will be used. The contest will be divided into two halves, each four minutes in length with a two minute rest period in between.

Past results seem to dope out the Sophomores as the winners because during the ten years in which the event has been given here the Rooks have only won twice. This year, however, the two break about even. The Sophomore class is short of men of any kind, and all the Frosh that have weight and speed combined are out for football and therefore are unable to take part in the scrimmage. It looks like a toss-up between the two.

This affair, the class fight at the beginning of the year and the tug-of-war are the only methods that the two classes have of venting their traditional aversion to each other. Talk of discontinuing these affairs has been current during the past year, but the present consensus of opinion is that such things add spirit to the occasion on which they are given.

THE FIRST HOMECOMING

"Hit the Track That Brings You Back—To the Whitman Game." Seniors, Alumni, how many recall this familiar slogan of the first Willamette Homecoming in 1923!!

Homecoming has not long been established in Willamette, but nevertheless it is now firmly fixed in the school traditions. Before November, 1923, the only get-together of the Alumni members was the banquet held at the end of the school year, but as Willamette grew and the number of her Alumni increased the need of an annual re-union became so apparent that an effort was made, under the leadership of Miss Elaine Oberg, to have a big homecoming.

The program, with a few exceptions, was much the same as it is now. Registration began Friday afternoon, and also the campus clean-up by the Cubs. The "W" club entertained about 50 lettermen at a banquet in the evening. Friday night brought the spectacular rally with a serpentine and huge bonfire on Sweetland field. Saturday afternoon a hard game was fought between Willamette and Whitman, two ancient rivals. One of the biggest features of the week end came Saturday evening when the new gym was formally opened and a big celebration was staged in the form of an old fashioned country fair. There were stunts and odd-looking booths, not to mention a big Mix Minstrel and a jazz orchestra.

This first homecoming will long be remembered because of its unusual success and the opportunity it gave to renew friendships, make new friends, and live again those "good old college days."

WHO IS COLLEGIATE?

OREGON AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE, Nov. 4, 1926.—(P. I. P.)—The question of who is the most collegiate man and woman on the O. A. C. campus has bothered campus humorists for some time so they have promoted a contest to determine the matter by popular vote. Celebrities of the campus will be interviewed and their ideas published. Their views are expected to be of great assistance in the forming of public sentiment which will be expressed when the issue goes to public ballot. The contest is being promoted by Hammer and Coffin, national humorist fraternity, and is really a serious affair, according to the committee now at work on the plans.

INTER-FRATERNITY COUNCIL GATHERS

On Wednesday evening the Epsilon Delta Mu fraternity were hosts to the inter-fraternity council.

All the houses definitely reported that they were in favor of having either an "open house" or an "at home" on December 11. The recommendation was passed that the vice-presidents of the houses confer together and draw up the plans for the invitations and schedule of the open house program.

In order to draw up a definite inter-fraternity basketball schedule it was agreed that the various athletic managers should meet with Leslie Sparks.

Dr. R. M. Gatke, the faculty chairman of the council, also urged that the managers and presidents of the house co-operate in the matter of seeing that the long overdue library books in the various houses be returned.

W. U. TO BE HOST

This year, Willamette university will be host to the intercollegiate oratorical association Old Line contest which will be held some time in April. The association each year sponsors two oratorical meets and this year an extemporaneous contest has been added. This competition will be held in the afternoon of the day of the peace contest.

Last year, Merwin Stolzheise, representing Willamette, won second place in the old line contest.

EXTEMPO CONTEST APRIL

The Pacific League forensic extemporaneous contest will be held at Corvallis some time in April this year. Delegates and representatives will adjourn after the extemporaneous speaking contest to hold the oratorical meet at Willamette.

Last year Willamette was represented in the extemporaneous by Joel V. Berreman who won fourth place.

The association is composed of the larger coast universities.

Philip Stover, '08, Law, is in the Philippines, an officer of the United States government there.

George A. Codding, '12, Law, who resides in Salem, is deputy corporation commissioner.

CAMPUS AT LAST PROMISES BEAUTY

Nicely Seeded Grounds Present Decided Contrast to Last Year's Condition

The Willamette campus presents a much better appearance to the Homecoming alumni this year than a year ago when the beautification process was practically at an unrecognizable stage.

The furrows are now replaced by a smooth though bare lawn; the weeds and thriving little maple trees have given way to beautiful shrubs; and the space occupied by the now uprooted trees is filled with little "Keep on the Walk" signs.

The smooth, seeded lawn gives promise of a grassy future, when Dean Clark will be seen energetically wielding a lawn mower around the campus of Old Willamette.

But seriously, improvement of the campus has been great, enough to make the seniors wonder if, in the days of their grandchildren's attendance at Willamette the campus will not out rank neighboring Willson park, in popularity.

R. H. Stone, '12, Law, married Dora Stone, '12, Law. They live in Baltimore, Maryland, where Mr. Stone is a minister in the Methodist church.

"SPEC" AND "CAC" TO MATCH FOOTBALL SKILL TOMORROW

Classmates at O. A. C., Who Now Are in Similar Capacities at Like Colleges Will Attempt to Establish Football Supremacy

"We're expecting the battle of our lives, but are coming prepared."
—"CAC" HUBBARD.

"The team was all keyed up for the Pacific game. If it is in the same frame of mind tomorrow, we will show C. P. S. a real game. If not, C. P. S. will win easily."
—"SPEC" KEENE.

From classmates, teammates, and coaching mates, to head coaches at the northwest's two Methodist colleges, is the story of "Spec" Keene and "Cac" Hubbard, whose football teams will vie here tomorrow on Sweetland field in the annual Willamette-C. P. S. game, which will be a main feature of homecoming for Willamette, and which also happens to be practically the only college football game scheduled in the northwest this Saturday.

It will be O. A. C. vs. O. A. C., so far as training of the two coaches goes. A number of requests for tickets have been received by Lestle Sparks, graduate manager, from friends of the two at Corvallis who want to see what their two teams can do to each other.

"Spec" and "Cac" both graduated from the college at Corvallis in 1921. The next year after graduation "Spec" took a job as head coach at Corvallis high school, while "Cac" became freshman coach for his own school at once. Two years later "Spec" took over the guidance of the Rooks and "Cac" became assistant coach for the regulars. Since that time the two have been lined up together, off and on, with nearly everything by way of athletics at O. A. C.

Last spring they both took the same hunch at the same time, and both went out from Corvallis to jobs as head coaches. "Cac" landed at Tacoma. "Spec" came to Salem.

The two schools, C. P. S. and Willamette, are similar in size and religious affiliation and have been rivals for years.

In "Luke" Gill, star halfback for the Aggies in former years, the Bearcats have one more O. A. C. man on their coaching staff than the Loggers. Gill has helped Keene whip the team into shape since early in the season.

WILLAMETTE LOOMS AS POSSIBLE CHAMP

Bearcats Down Ancient Rival Pacific and Look for More Conquests

The Bearcat aggregation, looms as a strong northwest conference championship contender by virtue of victory over the highly touted Pacific University Badgers at Forest Grove Saturday.

The Willamette gridsters, not at all pleased by newspaper reports emanating from the Pacific camp, that the championship of the conference would be decided at the Pacific-Whitman game in Portland two weeks ago, went over to the Badgers lair and proceeded to give that outfit the first defeat they have suffered at Willamette's hands for six years. The dope bucket was upset, as a result, for the Pacific men, having held the Oregon team to a scoreless tie, were considered strong, able football players.

A superabundance of fight is what carried the local team over to victory is the opinion of "Spec" Keene, Willamette mentor. "We missed a chance to score once when, after intercepting a Pacific pass deep in their territory, the ball was fumbled."

Linfield college was definitely eliminated from competition when it dropped to the Loggers its second conference tilt. College of Puget Sound, College of Idaho, and Willamette remain the only three undefeated, untied teams in the conference. Pacific and Whitman played to a 9 to 9 tie at Portland. College of Idaho has not yet played a conference game but will have its test tomorrow when it meets Whitman.

Not much is known about the strength of the College of Idaho coyotes although it is certain that they have a good team. Newspaper report from that section indicate that the morale of the team is not of the best, but that the material is good. The coyotes have only two games on their conference schedule. These are with Whitman and Pacific.

Whitman has the best material in the conference. A great number of lettermen are back. Scouts who covered the Pacific-Whitman game at Portland were of the opinion that Whitman had the better team and should have won. Yet, the Missionaries dropped a game to University of Washington 44 to 0 last week end.

The games this week end will have a strong bearing on the conference championship. All the league leaders will meet strong competition. Willamette meets Puget Sound here tomorrow, while Whitman and College of Idaho will fight it out at Caldwell.

KEENE'S COMING TO WILLAMETTE INFUSED SPIRIT

Under New Coach Willamette Is Destined to Great Achievement in Intercollegiate Competition

With "Spec" Keene, has come to Willamette a new era of success. Yes, success with a capital S. Athletics have passed through the Stone Age, the Bronze Age, the Copper Age. Now the Golden Age is beginning for W. U.—a new period of achievement and honorable notoriety.

Success is not new to "Spec," for his career has been one of triumph. But victory at Willamette, along the athletic line, has not been common and in "Spec" Willamette has a veteran to help the students to respond to new victories.

Keene's initiation into athletics began in the East Salem Athletic club. As near as one can find out, it was a sort of Rinkey-dink affair. For uniforms, Mother seemed to be the chief source. And when the team got out on the field, Spec's uniform undoubtedly consisted of an old pair of trousers that he had worn out, in both knees, padding of a pillow that Mother had missed for several weeks, and an old jersey that he still wears under his coat on cold days.

In Salem High, Spec was an all-around athlete. Football, basketball and baseball engaged his almost undivided attention.

His freshman year was spent at Missouri Wesleyan and was another year of athletics. O. A. C. interested him for the next three years. One is not told of his scholastic record, but the reports of his prowess along other lines are many.

His career as coach began with Corvallis High. Corvallis played Scott High of Ohio, for the U. S. championship that year. He then went back to O. A. C. as assistant coach for three years and the first thing Willamette and Salem people saw of him, was when he was introduced during the state tournament.

Coach Keene has brought new confidence and new spirit. The historic team defeated the Loggers from what was then known as University of Puget Sound by the score of 39 to 0 that year. History will surely repeat itself, consequently there is hope of such a score this year.

In more recent times, however, comparative scores strongly favor the invaders. In the last five years C. P. S. has defeated the Bearcat team every time, but in 1919 and 1920, under Coach Matthews, Willamette teams won 19 to 0 and 24 to 0. Past scores point to success for Coach Hubbard's proteges, but it is hoped by W. A. Roberts that the victorious beginning made at Forest Grove last Saturday will continue, and that the Loggers will be repulsed by a decisive score.

Scores of Willamette-C. P. S. games in the past are as follows:

Year	W. U.	C. P. S.
1921	6	19

He's keen! Who's keen? Spec's keen!

VETS OUT FOR TENNIS

There are only two veterans among the aspirants for the men's tennis squad this year. Bill Walsh, single's player, will represent the college in his last year of tennis participation. Jack Mintz, a double's player, is also back. Three letter women from last year, Irene Clark, Margaret Bansch, and Louise Nunn, are turning out again this year. A total of eight men and women are turning out regularly for fall tennis.

BEARCAT TROUNCES AMBITIOUS BADGER

First Victory In Six Years Over Ancient Rival in Tense Struggle

The Bearcat warriors, led by Chief Rhodes and accompanied by a trainload of tribesmen, met and conquered the Pacific Badgers in their forest lair last Saturday, 10-6. It was a hard game, fought under a clear sky, with the out-come in doubt until the final whistle. This was the first time in six years that the annual battle was won by Willamette.

The contest started with a kicking duel between Cloninger of Willamette and Jones of Pacific. The Badgers had the better of these earlier exchanges, but the Bearcats' offensive was sufficient to keep their goal line from danger. The break came late in the half when Jones fumbled a high spiral, and an ever-alert Bearcat recovered near mid-field. A pass, Cloninger to McMullin, netted 20 yards and Cloninger, on off tackle bucks and line plunges, carried the ball over for a touchdown. Campbell kicked goal.

Pacific launched a passing attack early in the third period which netted them a touchdown, on a cleverly executed heave from Tucker to Rannew.

The attempt for goal was blocked by the furiously charging Willamette line.

The raging Bearcats now started another offensive, with Campbell carrying the ball around the ends for 10 and 20 yards at a clip. The defense of the Forest Grove lads stiffened as they were forced back to within the shadow of their goal posts, and they held for three downs on the ten yard line. Little Snide Campbell, thereupon, dropped back and neatly booted a field goal from the 20 yard line.

A severe scare was given the Willamette students in the fourth period when Tippin, Pacific half, intercepted a Bearcat pass and raced 50 yards to a touchdown. The score was not allowed, however, since one of the Willamette men had been clipped from behind as he started to tackle the runner. The Pacific passes remained a constant threat until a few minutes before the gun when Cloninger speared one and raced down the side-lines to the Badger's 20 yard line. From this point it seemed certain that the Cardinal and Gold would score, but a fumble after yardage had been made, ruined the chance.

The Willamette forwards were a stone wall on defense, and when the Bearcats had the ball, the linemen were continually breaking through to aid the backfield's interference. Hartley, MacKenzie, and Bleau earned special mention for their exceptionally fine work.

Cloninger and Campbell were the bright lights of the backfield. They are entirely unlike in their physical qualifications, yet both of them contributed more than his share to the Bearcats' yardage. The whole backfield covered Pacific's eligible pass receivers well, after the Badgers made their first touchdown.

By combining the tenacious strength of the Bear with the agile speed of the cat, there is no reason for thinking that the Willamette university football squad will not thoroughly lash and hog tie the College of Puget Sound Loggers on Sweetland field tomorrow.

WOMEN ATHLETES ELECT

The Woman's Athltic association has elected the following officers for this year: Anna Zimmerman, president; Margaret Leavenworth, vice-president, Evangeline Heinick secretary, Irene Breithaupt, treasurer; Louise Lacy, hike master.

The organization is planning several interesting hikes for the year as well as some other activities.

FACULTY ADDS NEW MEMBERS THIS YEAR

A number of new professors have been added to the faculty of Willamette university this year. These professors succeeded a number of faculty members who were given leaves of absence.

Prof. Williston's opportunity for study in England created the vacancy in English Literature which is being filled by Prof. Henry C. Kohler, A. M., Ph. D. Dr. Kohler took three of his undergraduate years in the University of Cincinnati and there entered Ohio State from which he received his B. Sc. degree in Education. With teaching in view he had now the technical basis for work in the graduate department of his choice. In 1921 he took the M. A. in English and later received the Ph. D. in English Literature. For several years he was a teacher in the department at Ohio State University where his record was excellent. Professor J. V. Denney, chairman of the English faculty, Prof. J. R. Taylor and Prof. W. L. Groves, members of the faculty—personal friends of Pres. Doney—considered Dr. Kohler one of their outstanding men. Dr. Kohler is an Episcopalian and has been active in Christian work on the campus.

Prof. Walter T. Phillips, A. M., was engaged as Assistant Professor of Modern Languages, taking the place of Prof. Detling during his year of advanced study in France. Prof. Phillips is an honor graduate of the University of Washington, a member of the Phi Beta Kappa and has the Master of Arts degree from Stanford. He has taught in both institutions and has the highest commendations from teachers and administrative officers. He is a Methodist, of Lincolnesque stature and crammed with teaching enthusiasm.

The successor of Prof. Rahskopf in charge of Public Speaking is John O. Hall, Ph. D. Dr. Hall has the baccalaureate degree from Denver University and the doctorate from Columbia University. For ten years he studied public speaking in the University of Minnesota, the Cumnock School of Northwestern University and Columbia. For an equal period he has taught oratory, debate and dramatics. In 1915-1918 he was professor of the social sciences in Willamette, leaving to enter war service. His training and wide experience promise much for the department.

Alida G. Carrey is director of Physical Education for Women. She is a graduate of the New York Teachers College and has had graduate training at Cornell University and in the reconstruction work of the Walter Reid Hospital, Washington City. Her teaching experience covers three years. Her home is Peekskill, N. Y.

"SPEC" HAS HAD ABLE ASSISTANTS

Sparks and Gill Have Been Helping Coach Bearcats Into Machine

Success in developing a first class football machine out of the Bearcat material this year is due in great part to Leslie Sparks and Luke Gill, assistant coaches.

Sparks, in addition to his duties as graduate manager, has taken his share of responsibilities in coaching on the field. His ability to take charge of a group of men in practice has been of great assistance to the coach.

Luke Gill, who graduated from O. A. C. in 1923, has been drilling the Bearcats in passing and kicking. Ex-Willamette coach Matthews gave his opinion that Gill, when he was playing for the Aggies, was one of the greatest backfield men on the coast. Gill's kicking ability is unquestioned, and the Willamette kickers have shown a great improvement under his direction.

gers won by a 49 to 7 score. Conditions favor both teams. Which plays the best football? Which has the greatest endurance? The game tomorrow will answer these questions, for it will constitute 60 minutes of intense football and every man on the two teams will be called upon to give the limit of his strength and mental power.

Comparative scores indicate that the teams are evenly matched. Both are undefeated in conference standings. The Loggers' score against the Wildcats was impressive. So was the Bearcats' win over the stronger Badgers. "Cac" and "Spec" will spare no effort to surpass each other tomorrow. It will be a clash between two old classmates just as much as it will be a fight between their teams.

The campus grounds, in the course of two weeks, have shown astonishing improvement. There now is a decided contrast to the condition which prevailed last summer when cantaloupe and watermelon vines thrived where grass should have been. The grounds now present a neat appearance. Grass seed has been sown. Attractive shrubs have been set out. Unsightly trees have been removed. There is every reason to believe that in a few years the grounds will be as attractive as those in Willson park. And is it too much to hope that in the near future fine buildings properly to comport with these attractive grounds will find being?

holding out for their convictions, by having them surrender in the end. Throughout the whole play, there are many subtle and philosophic observations passed on modern life.

Only three of the cast have played parts in Willamette plays, but without exception they are well chosen for their parts in "You Never Can Tell." Last spring Turfield Schindler appeared in the one act play, "Wurzel-Flummery," Adelia Gates took a leading part in last year's junior play, "The Goose Hangs High." Sadie Jo Read has played leading rols in "Ice Bound," "You and I," and "The Goose Hangs High."

This play was exceedingly delightful to Willamette graduates. One old war horse of the team of '98 tells of playing with the Pacific star when his beard was a luxurious black, with moustaches curled at the ends.

WASH. HAS HOMECOMING

UNIVERSITY OF WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—(P. I. P.)—With the plans for street decoration and the reception and entertainment of returning graduates assuming definite form, one of the greatest alumni gatherings in the seven years that Washington has observed Homecoming week-end is predicted for November 5 and 6. Broadcasting by radio will be an important link in the publicity chain, besides publicity in city and community newspapers. In addition to the alumni banquet Friday evening and dance Saturday, an entertainment is scheduled before the California game. Revival of the historic pajama parade and the debute of the traditional siren will be the highlights of the rally on the eve of the big game.

YELL CLASS NEXT

OREGON AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE, Nov. 4, 1926.—(P. I. P.)—An amendment to the constitution of the associated students providing for classes for yell leaders has been presented. Each year all sophomores will have opportunity to attend the classes given by the encumbent yell leaders. They will have opportunity to try out before the student body at various events and the squad shall be cut to six of the best men. That group will then be voted upon at the student body elections in May.

PHYSICAL ED WORK IS FORGING AHEAD

Physical education work on the campus is forging ahead at a strong pace. The ideal of having everyone participating in some form of athletics is being carried out by the physical education department. Besides the Varsity turnouts in football, tennis, and track, the regular gymnasium indoor work is being carried on with everyone showing good interest. Gym work including the regular gym classes, tumbling classes, clogging classes, and swimming instruction are the main divisions of the work at present. Work in boxing and wrestling will be added next semester. If the progress in these sports reach the degree of development to justify matches, they will be arranged.

The department is not only giving attention to the physically strong but is giving special emphasis to a class in corrective exercises for those in any way physically deficient.

At Dann's Art Shoppe, 550 State St., Salem, you'll find all kinds of lovely suggestions in art needlework, pillow tops, luncheon sets, towels, pillow cases, scarfs, night gowns, etc., all stamped in attractive design for embroidering.

CORONA
The Personal Writing Machine

For twenty years the name "Corona" has been a synonym for "portable typewriter." Hundreds of thousands of the older folding Coronas, with their three-row keyboards, are still doing valiant service. Yet, in completeness of equipment and delightful smoothness of operation, our latest four-row model is a revelation.

Corona Features

- Variable line spacer
- Self-spacing carriage return
- Stenciling device
- Two color ribbon
- Twelve yard ribbon
- Automatic ribbon reverse
- Front-stroke type bars
- Standard four-row keyboard
- Shift-lock on keyboard
- Release on shift key
- Bakelite space bar
- Solid aluminum frame
- Adjustable Paper Guide
- Folding paper supports
- Perfect visibility - with indicator at writing point
- Carriage lock
- Paper release
- Right and left hand carriage release
- Right and left hand platen knobs
- Manual ribbon reverse
- Margin release
- Back spacer on keyboard

Very often people who are considering the purchase of a modern writing machine are surprised to learn that some old typewriter, which they may not have used for a long time, has a market value and will be accepted in part payment.
