FOOTBALL PROSPECTS

COACH CHASE IS WORKING HARD

Captain Nace Is the Only Veteran, But Many of the New Men Have Had Experience

With what might be practically termed an entirely new team with which to start the football season, Willamette University will endeavor to put a Northwest championship aggre-To secure this gation on the gridiron end more quickly and surely a coach has been secured in the person of Dr. C. F. Chase, of Toledo, Ohio. With the material which has been placed at his disposal the coach is not very well satisfied, but as is entirely natural, will endeavor to put out a team thát will make a strong bid for the Northwest championship. However, if Willamette does not win the coveted championship it will have the satisfaction of knowing that the team will be well worthy of representing the institution and that the "cardinal and gold" will be upheld with honor.

Many of Willamette's stár men are not seen this year on the Vársity grid, and make large holes in the line-up which are exceedingly hard to fill. Nevertheless, there are men trying out for these places who have football ability and things may not be so discouraging for Willamette as might

Manager Spaulding has been busy for several weeks in arranging and completing what will be one of the best schedules Willamette has had for some time. In all there will be about nine or ten games played by the team, and of these games nearly half will be contested on our own gridiron. This should be encouraging to the lovers of the pigskin sport, for there will be some lively and spectacular scrimmages that ought to arouse and thrill the blood of every Varsity lad and lass. The management does not see fit to announce the full schedule at present, or at least until it has been thoroughly completed, but it is understood that the Thanksgiving game will be with the University of Montana and will be played in this

Coach Chase has a reputation in his profession that is hard to excell. His work with the University of Michigan squad and the Toledo Athletic Association has given him a name that is almost national. He has a pleasing personality and a sturdy, husky frame that wins admiration from all with whom he comes in contact, in his work or otherwise. It is practically certain however, that he will do wonders with the material at his command. It is earnestly hoped that every student will take an interest in the work and give the coach their hearty and loyal support.

Captain Nace is one of the old "stars" that glow in the firmament of "Old Willamette.'' Unlike the meteoric flight of some his star continues to grow brighter and more luminous as time passes. When the team chose Alvin Nace for captain of the '07-'08 squad they could have done no better. Nace is a hard worker, full of fire, and With such plays á clean, manly game. a spirit to lead the team it would be strange if there is not something doing doing when the scrimmage is warm and tough. With every student lined up with him when the pigskin starts a-rollin' Captain Nace will surely lead his men on to a glorious victory.

The grid is being cleaned up preparatory to a new and much needed coat of sawdust.

NEW BUILDING ON CAMPUS

STRONGEST FORCE IN THE WEST

Students in College of Music are to Be Congratulated on securing New Accommodations

The College of Music is reaping its reward for the efficient work done last year, and has opened up with a recordbreaking attendance, not only from all parts of this State, but from Washington, Idaho, and other States the pupils are flocking together. The faculty this year is stronger than ever before. Five concert artists are at the head of the various departments: Dr. R. A. Heritage, vocal and theory; Arthur Von Jessen, piano; LeRoy Gesner, violin; H. N. Stoudenmeyer, cornet; and T. S. Roberts, organ.

The new college building is a beatiful addition to the University campus. It is located between the Medical College and Lausanne Hall, facing Winter Street. The building contains an office in the center of the first floor, with a large studio on each side. Directly back of the office is the reading room, where the leading musical journals and a good library are at the disposal of the students. On the main floor is a classroom for harmony, orchestra practice, and small classes; also two good rooms for piano and vocal students. On the second floor in the center is the violin studio, with two large music rooms on each side. Taken in all its detail, it is the most complete building devoted exclusively to music in the West.

The pupils of the college will have a regular Musical Sociely every Thursday evening, which will give them abundant practice in playing and singing in public as well as reviewing the musical topics each week, and having historical sketches and musical biographies. This society will really be the College Life of the school.

Certainly the College of Music of Willamette University has prospects for the brightest year in its history.

CHANGES IN FACULTY

The Teaching Force Has Been Greatly Strengthened by the New Members

The changes made in the ranks of the faculty for the coming year are not many—only three new professors and one who has previously taught in Willamette halls. They are Professors Clements, biology and geology; Sherwood, Greek and Latin; Patterson, economics and history; and Royal, English. We wish to welcome these new heads of departments and wish that their work with us in the classic halls of "Old Willamette" may be the most pleasant of their professional career.

Professor Clements has a long and distinguished pedigree. He first graduated from Moore's Hill College of Indiana. In 1892, upon completion of his medical course in the New Orleans University, he received the degree of M. D. The year 1895-96 was spent in post-graduate work at Johns Hopkins University where he took biology, histology, and physiology. He was professor of biology and geology at the Puget Sound University from 1897-98 and later dean of the Flint Medical College of New Orleans, and physician in charge of the Sarah Goodrich hospital. The above, with much more that we might enumerate, shows well that Professor Clements knows something about the subject which he teaches.

Edwin Sherwood, A. M., B. D., comes to us from Somerset, Ohio, where he was pastor of the local M. E. church for the past three years. In addition to his collegiate work the professor has had foreign travel and study which makes him peculiarly fitted for the work which he does with us. The Somerset News speaks highly of him and says: "The people regret to lose him, but a host of friends wish him well in his new home."

Professor Patterson has not as yet arrived, but is expected. He hails from New York.

Of Professor Royal we need say little for her past record in the school is of a quality beyond question. We wish her a pleasant year in the old haunts and are sure that she will renew all her old acquaintances and make many new ones. We are glad to have her influence in the school.

With pride we salute and with pleasure we drink "To the best Faculty that Willamette University has ever had"

The Chemewa Indian Training School is well represented in the halls of "Old Willamette," there being about ten all told who have entered this year. We are glad to have them among us and hope that they may find the time spent here the most pleasant and profitable of their school life.

When you see "Fat Niles" from the Salem High coming down the halls please squeese, not him, but close to the wall.

SILVER CREEK, THE BEAUTIFUL

High on the mountain side,
Far from the swelling tide,
Flows the stream;
Bright o'er the slopes or slides,
Deep in the glen it glides,
Like a dream.

Then o'er the jagged rocks,
Mocking, it laughs and talks
Merrily;
While through the cozy nooks
Softly it moves and looks

Fairily.

Birds in the air above thee
Sing in their joy and love thee
Without fear;
Bathing the fir-clad shore
Rich with thy liquid store,

Water clear.

Quickly the waters lunge, Swiftly the waters plunge Far below;

While from the shores around Echoes the full sweet sound, Soft and low.

Down from the awful height,
Sent with a giant's might
In the pool;
Where in a snowy foam,
Melts to a peaceful home
Clear and cool.

Brightly the silver stream
Catches the warm sunbeam
As it falls;
Gilding the fairy spray,
Like to a palace's gay
Golden halls.

By Perry Reigleman

Clear are the summer skies,
Seen where the water lies
In the dell;
Haunting, the sounds we hear
Echoing far and near,
Like a spell.

Blooming the fragrant flowers
Kissed by the shining showers
Falling there;
Fresh are the old fir trees,
Sweet is the cooling breeze
Blowing there.

Laughing, the stream goes by,
Face to the open sky
Fair and blue;
Fleeting along to the sea,
Soon will thy greeting be
"Mother true."

Wine of the wooded land,
Life of the forest grand,
Flows so free;
Love for thy might and power
Grows with each passing hour
Constantly.

Gridiron Hymn

P. R.

When you hear the name Willamette,
Don t it make your blood run bold,
And to see that banner waving,
It's the "cardinal and the gold."

Don't you see those giants waiting
For to hit that trembling line,
Don't you see how low they're crouching,
Dont you see their bright eyes shine?

Don't you see that nervous tremor Shooting through their eyery frame, When they hear the old school calling, Calling each one on to fame?

If you think that you would like to,
They can show you how its done,
Just a little snap and ginger,
And the game for us is won.

Don't you hear those lads a-cheering, Don't you catch now what they say? It's a sweet refrain and nearing, "Old Willamette's won the day."

Young Ladies of the University Delightfully Entertained at Chestnut Farm

The Young Woman's Christian Association extends a hearty welcome to every University girl, both old and new. The meetings are held on Sunday afternoons at 3 o'clock in the Philodorian hall, and mission and bible study classes will soon be organized. It is sincerely hoped that all girls will ally themselves with this accociation at once and help make this a banner year from the standpoint of helpful Christian work.

The Y. W. C. A. entertained the girls of the University at Chestnut Farm Soturday afternoon from 2:30 to 5. The hospitality and delightful home of Miss Field, a place which in the annals of Willamette has become famous for its good times, was again filled with happy college girls. Greetings, amnsements, and refreshment, and all so pleasant that the parting came too soon. But the girls became acquainted and Chestnut Farm and the hostess will always be remembered.

The opening event of the college social year was held last Saturday night in the Varsity gymnasium when a very enjoyable "stag" was given by the college Y. M. C. A. The purpose of the entertainment was to arouse interest in the Y. M. C. A., and to have a general roundup of the young men, both new and old students, who are in the University. A very pleasant time was had. Games that afforded sport and amusement for all were the order of the evening and were thoroughly enjoyed. Then, at seasonable time, the refreshments consisting of excellent apples, good coffee, and delicious doughnuts, were served. Needless to say, the viands disappeared in a most amazing manner, while as a result a look of satisfaction and comfort overspread the faces of

For advertising rates address the Business Manager, Willamette University, Salem, Ore.
Members of the alumni, old students, new students, and others interested in the prosperity and success of the paper are in vited to contribute at any time. Address all communications to the Editor-in-Chief.

A prominent newspaper man, after looking over our plan for the Willamette Collegian for this year, said that the paper would not only be one of the best papers ever put out by Willamette, but the best paper of its class in the Northwest. Assuredly it is the aim of the editor and manager to make it such. All will agree after seeing this our first issue, that the prospects for the Collegian are exceedingly bright. Notice how heartily the business men of the city have supportedit; how much larger it is than in previous years, and the form and style in which it is gotten out. These are the qualities that, together with the trustee, faculty, and student support in a literary and financial way go to make up a paper-a true college paper. Your support in a literary way means to hand in articles, news, jokes, everything of interest to the school; in a financial way it means to subscribe for the Collegian. Stop in the Collegian office, or see either of the subscription managers and hand in your subscription. Another thing—Patronise the advertisers. Do not do your shopping in a haphazard manner, but look up the advertisers of the Collegian and trade with those who make this paper a possibility. All have been given an opportunity to advertise and those who have not done so consider that they can hold the college trade without advertising in the college paper. Advertising should be purely a business proposition with the business men, not a charitable one, therefore let it be said that we, as a school, from president to prep, patronize our advertisers.

DESIRABLE STUDENTS

The term "student" is generally applied to those individuals who are devoting themselves to study at some educational institution. The object of their attendance to rules, books, and professors is greater knowledge or graduation The curiculum and other things to which the student is expected to give his attention are intended to be arranged so as to develop and establish in him a strong healthy body, a correct conception of his relation and duty to God and man, and to establish a superior capacity and ability for acquiring and communicating knowledge and wisdom, and to teach him to think. The aim of the college is to direct him through all the successive steps that are necessary to enable him to acquire these fundamentals.

The student then should work for definite result and should concentrate his entire energy toward that end. Time and effort spent in doing immaterial, useless, or harmful things are as disasterous to him as to a business man. It follows then that a desirable student is one who at the beginning of his course discovers to himself the bearing upon the end which he hopes to reach, of every book that is studied, every deed that is done, every subject or principle that is grappled with, and even every laugh that is laughed. A good chess player never moves a man until he has first figured out what is the best move to make, yet how much more important is the goal which conscientious students have in view.

The most desirable student will learn his exact physical condition and will take that kind of recreative work which will build up the weaker and undeveloped parts and which will tend to perfectness in the whole body. He will see how little he is at best as compared to the Creator, and will learn obedience and reverence. He will also see that there is a close relationship existing between himself and other men; that he owes the duty of honesty and forebearance toward them, and to become as nearly a perfect person as possible himself, and to be otherwise helpful and useful to individuals, to his country, and to the whole world. Hence the desirable students arê those who are honest and who take the trouble to learn whither they wish to go, and who then take pains to travel the shortest road to that end.

Function of the College Paper

One function of the college paper is to represent the college in the outside more correct impressions of the vast the college well represented in this way. Consequently, all should be willing to support the Pioneer. All should be ready to subscribe for it. We do not mean that the Pioneer is a charity affair and cannot exist on a business basis. What we mean is that if a student reads the Pioneer, as we believe most of the student body do, he will be willing to pay for what little benefit he derives from it, in order that it may have the financial backing it needs, to be a creditable representative of the college in other places. In other words, those who read the Pioneer should read their own paper, and not some other person's.-Whitman Pioneer.

Changes In Rules

Spaulding's Official Football Guide for 1907, edited by Walter Camp, has just been published and contains all the new rules as revised by the rules committee. The wholesale revision of the rules for last season proved exceptionally satisfactory and it is to be hoped that the further revision for this season will prove still more valuable. The main changes are as follows:

An increase in the length of the game. It was found that under the new rules the players were less fatigued than under the old, so each half has been lengthened five minutes, increasing the actual playing time of the game ten minutes. The ten yard rule is retained exactly as before, it having met with general approval in that it, to a great extent, did away with the mass play, and brought forth the open play which is so much enjoyed by the spectators.

The forward pass has also been altered so as to make its use less risky. Instead of loosing the ball in case it strikes the ground, the forward pass, before striking a player, or is illegally made, the ball must be surrendered to the other side exactly as before. It is also stated that the forward pass, or tripping, or hurdling by the side that did not put the ball in play, should be penalized 15 yards.

Last year there was considerable quibbling regarding a line man carrying the ball. The rules as altered for this season states that a line man may carry the ball provided he does not leave his position in the line before the ball is put

Regarding the fair catch, it was enacted that a man should have the opportunity of making a fair catch, providing it was possible for him to reach the ball before it should reach the ground. It was further enacted that if one man of a side signal for a fair catch and another one of the same side who did not signal catch the ball, this player is not allowed to run with the ball, nor is he entitled to any of the privileges of a fair catch, but must put the ball down where he caught it, for a scrimmage by his side.

These are the most important of the changes in the rules for this season, and their appearance here is for the benefit of those who do not read the rule book.

SOCIETIES

Websterian

The Websterian Debating Society is now entering upon its third years' work. Although yet in its infancy it already excells in spirit, numbers, and efficiency. Its record for promptness and regularity has not been approached by any other organization in the University. As the the name implies, this society makes a specialty of debating, but however important debating may be we do not limit ourselves to that alone. Oratory and public speaking in general receive full attention, nor is the social life at all neglected.

We earnestly invite all who contemplate joining a literary society to give us a call.

The Philodorian

With the beginning of the school year the work of the literary societies opens and ushers in a sphere of student activity that no one who wishes to get the most out of his college life can afford to neglect. The Philodorian Literary offers advantages that are well worth the serious consideration of every new student who is thinking of allying himself with some such literary organization. Among the members of the Philodorian Literary are numbered some of the strongest and most representative men of the University. Ask any one of these loyal Philodorians and every one will say that the time spent in the work of the society was as profitable and yielded as great results as did any one study. In fact, if one wishes to be found among the "live" ones of the University he had better allay himself with some society, and the Philodorian is the society for which he is looking.

Last year was successful in every particular and the prospects for this season are as bright and hopeful as could be wished. In the oratorical contests which have been held at the close of each year between the literary societies the Philodorians have won on each occasion. Four of last year's debating teams were Philodorian members. The society is the oldest in the school and counts among its former members many of the alumni who have made enviable records in the outside world.

and will make everyone feel quite at home in our meetings.

Further notice of our meetings will be posted in the bulletin. Members will please take notice and be on hand to greet the new students.

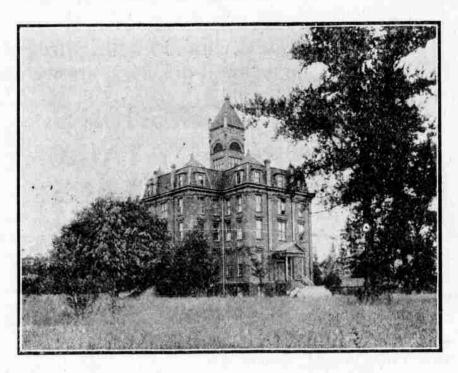

The society work for this year will consist of various branches of literary and social work, also parliamentary practice.

We intend to be loyal to our motto and make this the leading society in Willamette.

Now is the time for some good yells to be heard.

Knot-holes mostly taken. A few left. See "Johnnie on the Spot."

Now for a college "glee" that will rouse the enthusiasm to the highest pitch and put life into college social circles.

George Hunt of the University of California, a former student of W. U., was visiting with old friends in chapel Monday.

Trade with the advertisers, and when trading do not forget to mention that you have read their ad in the Collegian.

Both the business man and the manager will appreciate this.

And the college, or rather Varsity orchestra, ought to meet pretty soon. Just think about this, you musicians. It means a great deal.

Marriage licenses issued during the summer: D. H. Mosher, Maude Stone; Eugene Whipple, Mary Fields; Lloyd Whipple, Julia Fields; William Pollard, Gussie Randall.

The quota sent to Willamette from the Salem High School is getting larger every year. We welcome them to the institution and hope that the number may ever increase.

The Art Studio has opened for the season, and Dean Craig will be pleased to meet the former students of this department and all others who are interested in the work.

H. E. Savage, a former student of Willamette and later a graduate of Stanford, was a chapel visitor Monday. Mr. Savage is now head chemist in the sugar factory at Punenne, T. H.

The talk of Prof. Bach last Friday at chapel was fraught with a meaning that grows more plain and lucid as it is contemplated. It has a deep meaning and throws light on the much asked question of why a person should go to college.

It is up to the students now to brace up, pull themselves together, and make this the banner year of student enterprise and spirit in the history of the institution. We can do it, and all the requirement necessary is that each do his or her part quickly, cheerfully, and, above all, with a spirit that cannot help but put Willamette far in the front rank of institutions that are "live" and full to the brim with "college life."

Babies Arrive

The Freshman Class of 1907 is one of the largest ever known in Willamette University. The members of the class are very desirous to do their best and will doubtless take part in all the college enterprises. There is plenty of material both in literary and athletic lines and the Freshmen mean to use it to the best of advantage. Social life will also be looked after, and the one aim above all is that we, the Freshman class of 1907, may be as loyal to "Old Willamette" as any of our upper classmen.

Philodosian

The Philodosian Literary Society of Willamette is a flourishing society for the young ladies of the University.

The advantages offered by this society are of such a character that no young lady can afford to miss them. The first meeting was held last Friday evening and the following officers were elected: President, Miss Glover; Vice President, Miss Pigler, Secretary, Miss Ione Fisher; Assistant Secretary, Miss Winslow; Treasurer, Miss Williams, in interpretable in the interpretable

Censor, Miss Gittings; Sergeant-at-Arms, Miss Viola Fisher.

The society expects this year to be the best that it has ever had, and an invitation is extended to the girls of the University to attend our meetings.

The "Limit" girls, we are sorry to say, have not returned as yet, and we fear they have been caught by the "four winds." However, we may hear from them yet. At least we hope so.

So far only one member of the "Big Four" has made her appearance in the University halls. Information regarding the others will be gladly received by either Weller or Robert.

EXECUTIVE COM-MITTEE CHOSEN

DEBT TO BE WIPED OUT

Conflict In Student Body Constitution Caused By Lengthening of Academic Course

At the meeting of the student body Thursday morning the following persons were elected to places on the executive committee for the ensuing year: Miss Young was chosen to represent the the senior class; Shanks will be the representative from the junior; George Forbes from the sophomores; and Zimmerman from the freshies. From the academy the representatives are Messrs. Geo. Winslow, F. H. Reeves, and W. H. Oldenburg.

Owing to the fact that the academic course has been lengthened to four years, one class was not provided for in the constitution of the student body. The constitution as it now stands provides for only seven persons to be helpful. New ideas are found and many classes, but an amendment will soon be make college life better. We are criti- Stearn, "The Antique Lady."

inserted so that the extra class may be represented.

The students recognizing that the addition of another year to the academic course is one of the best changes that has come to Willamette for some time, so no trouble in passing the proposed amendment is anticipated.

The new executive committee is thought to be unanimously in favor of wiping out all student body indebtedness by the end of the year, and it is the duty of each student to help them in their work. Pay your student body tax.

EXCHANGES

The exchange department of a college paper is an important one and should be given careful consideration. The benefits to be derived from a good exchange cannot be underestimated or undervalued. In the first place one college finds what is being done at another college and it tends to foster a spirit of progressiveness that is most beneficial and cised and give criticisms, all in the spirit of helpfulness and good will.

We wish that you would please exchange with us because we wish to keep in touch with the college world and we need the paper that represents you.

We find that there are things doing at Whitman as told by the Whitman College Pioneer. The girl's glee club is well under way, while a college band and a conservatory orchestra are planned.

The physical development and training of the young ladies should not be neglected. To keep themselves in good health and spirits for the proper pursuauce of their studies the young ladies of the University of Washington have organized a cross-country club. We can ouly wish the club the best of success for the future. Willamette girls, wake

We wish to acknowledge the receipt of the commencement number of the Nugget of the Baker City high school. The paper is neat in appearance, well arranged, and a credit to the school. The poem "The Seeker and the Quest" by Alma Payton is well worthy of menchosen from the college and academic suggestions given that improve and tion, as is also the story by Frank
