PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

JERRY E. HUDSON
President,
Willamette University

As Willamette University administrators report to me throughout the course of any given academic year, I inevitably hear the diverging strains of "Mission Accomplished!" and "Mission Impossible!"

Webster's defines "mission" as "a specific task with which a person or group is charged." And, for me, it is a word of rich history and meaning when associated with Willamette University.

- Our 143-year-old roots date back to the establishment of a school for educating the children of the Oregon Mission;
- Willamette's faculty, administration and staff contribute to what our catalogs refer to as a university mission that involves a blend of liberal arts and professional education;
- I have now completed five years of what I consider to be my personal mission as president of Willamette University.

But a sense of mission seems all too easily lost within the confines of an annual report. By its very nature, an annual report focuses on a 12-month snapshot of things – usually things like "profit and loss" – and leaves the longer-range picture of mission blurred. The tendency is to think and talk less in terms of one's mission than in terms of a chief executive officer of a small conglomerate (albeit, an educational one) that operates hotels, restaurants, activity centers and a convenience store for 1,850 customers.

So I have attempted this year to broaden my annual review of Willamette and provide you with some greater sense of the university's ongoing mission by adding two elements to my annual report for 1984-85:

1. Some statistics to give you a five-year perspective on the life of the university; and
2. A focus on our reason for being: our students.

As I mentioned earlier, I have just completed five years as president of Willamette University. And, perhaps naturally, I have spent this summer reviewing the last five years as well as the last year. This has been helpful for me and I trust that providing some of this five-year perspective will be helpful in giving you a better grasp of the vitality of Willamette's ongoing mission.

This year's annual report also includes a special section that focuses on the Willamette student. The university's educational mission is built around our undergraduate and graduate students. We gauge our success on our ability to meet their educational and developmental needs. Serving our students is the core of our mission.

You have heard me say it many times before, but I will say it again: Willamette's ability to carry out its important mission is dependent on your continuing financial support. A review of the university's 1984-85 fiscal year would not be complete without recognition of the many of you who contributed to Willamette. And, thus, I am pleased that the Willamette University Annual Gifts Report is included in this year's annual report.

I thank you, the alumni and friends of Willamette, for the part you have played in Willamette's story for 1984-85. And a special word of thanks to the university's board of trustees, faculty, administration and staff for their faithful service to Willamette's students.

Jerry E. Hudson

THE 1984-85 STUDENT

Willamette University enrolled 1,866 students for Fall, 1984. A majority of these students were from the Pacific Northwest. Approximately one-half lived in residence halls on campus.

More than two-thirds of Willamette's students were enrolled in the College of Liberal Arts. And it was in the College of Liberal Arts where 1984 enrollment increased the most. This was due to a dramatic increase in the number of undergraduate freshmen.

And, most important, the College of Liberal Arts enjoyed an increase in the quality as well as the quantity of its freshman class. Average SAT scores of freshmen were 80 points higher in 1984 than in 1983. And the number of National Merit Scholars in the freshman class rose from three in 1983 to seventeen in 1984!

Willamette's graduate schools - the College of Law and the Atkinson Graduate School of Management - also enrolled an impressive group of students in Fall, 1984.

Admission to Willamette signifies that a student has already established a solid record of academic work, test scores and extra-curricular activities. We believe that all admitted students are capable of earning Willamette degrees and that many of them will distinguish themselves prior to and after graduation. It came as no surprise then, but was a great source of pride for the university, when several Willamette students earned significant honors during the 1984-85 year. The following were among those honored:

STUDENT HONORS

Kevin Connors, Julie Conrad, Kara Crisifulli, Jeff Leavitt and Leslie Wilday: Named to All-America teams in recognition of outstanding athletic performance.

Paul Cummings: Oregon Heart Association Summer Research Grant.

Tom Eubanks: Spies Foundation Merit Scholar; selected for summer research position at the Oregon Regional Primate Research Center.

Craig Faiman: 1985 K/P Companies Scholarship.

Robert Fenty: Oregon Alternate, Harry S. Truman Scholarship.

Susan Fox and Mary Summers: First place, Northwest regional mock trial competition.

Jeffrey Hansen: 1984-85 Venture Capital Paper Award, from the National Association of Small Business Investment Companies, for his paper titled, "The Management Style of Entrepreneurs and the Funding Selections Made by Venture Capitalists."

Dorothy Hoover: First place, Oregon district competition sponsored by the U.S. Small Business Administration, for her consulting report on a building supply dealer.

Jeff Jones and Andy Klug: Named NAIA Academic All-Americans.

Thaddea Jones: First place, Northwest Composing Artists Competition; winner of Bach Division, Spokane Music Festival.

Donald Krahmer, Jr.: Publisher's Award from Oregon Business magazine, acknowledging significant individual efforts to improve the state's economy.

Donna Kreitzberg: Named Oregon Young Careerist at state convention of Business and Professional Women.

David Kuizenga and Raymond Otto: Placed in top five nationally in SBA competition for their 1982 consulting report.

Debbie Lenox, Tyler Parker and Mark Ursin: Honorable mention, Annual Marketing/Communications Competition sponsored by Philip Morris, Inc.

Focus: Serving the Willamette Student

Phil Nelson: Winner of Chopin Division, Spokane Music Festival.

Janet Reynolds and Maria Rucci: Graduate assistantships in Speech Communications at Pennsylvania State University.

Tracey Rizzo: Graduate teaching fellowship in History, University of Oregon.

Danny Santos: Elected 12th Circuit Governor of the American Bar Association Law Student Division.

Lee Schafer: Cornell University law scholarship winner.

Karen Solonika: Jean Davis Memorial Scholarship for graduate study in plant ecology or systematics, awarded by the Native Plant Society of Oregon.

Jim Vike: Signed a professional baseball contract after being drafted by the Houston Astros.

Caitilin Walsh: Awarded an assistantship in English at the College Victor Hugo in Bourges, France.

The Class of 1985 was comprised of 379 graduates, raising the number of Willamette alumni to over 14,000. The university awarded 390 degrees, including 215 bachelor's degrees, 35 Master of Management degrees and 140 Doctor of Jurisprudence degrees.

These 1985 graduates have now gone their separate ways. Approximately 50 percent of the graduates from the College of Liberal Arts will pursue graduate work and many 1985 graduates already have secured employment in the public and private sectors. While comprehensive placement information is not available, we are encouraged by the following examples of what 1985 graduates are now doing and by what this indicates about the quality of the job we are doing in serving Willamette students:

- Willamette's 1985 graduates are involved in graduate studies at such prestigious institutions as Harvard and Cornell Universities, at various West Coast universities and other graduate schools in the United States and abroad, while one hundred percent of those graduates who applied for admission to medical and dental schools have been accepted;
- Many graduates have gone to private sector jobs with such companies as Arthur Anderson and Co., Hewlett-Packard, Intel, Peat Marwick, Tektronix and Xerox, while many College of Law graduates are now employed by prestigious law firms;
- Members of the Class of 1985 have secured public sector positions with legislative offices (including those of Senator Mark Hatfield and Senator Robert Packwood), with executive offices (including the Oregon Public Utilities Commissioner and the Oregon Human Resources Department), and with judicial offices (including those of the Alaska Supreme Court, the Oregon Supreme Court, the Oregon Court of Appeals and the Federal District Court).

ACADEMIC PROGRAMS

Serving the Willamette student is primarily accomplished by providing excellent academic programs.

As the oldest university in the West, Willamette has a 143-year academic track record. And three words readily come to mind in describing this enviable academic track record: stability, maturity and quality. But a fourth word should be added to this list: vitality.

Despite the university's long history and well-entrenched reputation, Willamette's academic programs are anything but static. Current programs are routinely reviewed and revamped, and new programs are introduced when appropriate. The result is a vitality in academic programs that increases our ability to attract and serve quality students.

A look back at the 1984-85 year indicates much that was new in the university's academic programs:

College of Liberal Arts: The Class of 1985 was the first class to graduate under a new academic framework implemented in 1981. The new curriculum and a new set of graduation requirements were designed to ensure that a College of Liberal Arts graduate not only satisfied requirements for an academic major, but also successfully completed a general education program and demonstrated proficiency in the English language and in basic mathematics.

As a result, approximately 25 percent of an undergraduate's coursework now consists of gaining a breadth of knowledge in Fine Arts, Humanities, Literature, Natural Sciences and Social Sciences. And the college's commitment to liberal arts education is now more fully reflected at the core of its new curriculum and graduation requirements.

How did the 1984-85 Willamette student feel he or she was served by this new academic program? In response to a detailed questionnaire, graduating seniors indicated that they believed they had been well-served. As an example, 9 out of 10 of those responding rated the curriculum as valuable or very valuable.

College of Law: 1984-85 marked the first year of operation for another new academic program: the Center for Dispute Resolution. Central to the center's purpose is to serve the Willamette law student through the broadening of legal education beyond its traditional emphasis on litigation as the primary dispute resolution process.

In its inaugural year, the Center for Dispute Resolution took impressive strides in the four components of its operation:

1. ACADEMIC: The center enrolled 579 students in 13 sections of new or existing dispute resolution courses on negotiation, mediation, arbitration and litigation.
2. RESEARCH: The center undertook several research and publication projects during 1984-85 in an effort to contribute to knowledge in the dispute resolution field. Projects ranged from a six-month comparative study of litigation timeliness in two Oregon jurisdictions to a study of the marriage dissolution process in Marion County.
3. CLINICAL PROGRAMS: The center operated two clinical programs. One allowed students to represent indigent clients accused of misdemeanor or criminal offenses in Marion County District Court. The other allowed students to resolve disputes between indigents and public administrative agencies.
4. EXTERNAL EDUCATION AND TRAINING: The center reached outside the College of Law to conduct workshops, seminars and conferences involving more than 700 individuals.

Atkinson Graduate School of Management: A new international program for our graduate management students began to take shape in 1984-85 with the announcement of a new endowed faculty chair.

The Helen Simpson Jackson Chair in International Management was created by members of Mrs. Jackson's family and will be endowed by contributions of $1 million. Given Oregon's developing interest in international trade, particularly with Pacific Rim countries, the new program will be both timely and valuable for GSM students and for Oregon.

The announcement of a new international management program and chair capped off a year of celebration at the Atkinson Graduate School of Management. The year 1984-85 marked the 10th anniversary of Willamette's "new" school and of its "new" brand of management education.

For a school as relatively new as Atkinson, GSM has a remarkable aspect of maturity to go along with its youthful excitement and vitality. The new Helen Simpson Jackson Chair makes the third endowed chair for the school. This speaks well of the resources available to serve Willamette's graduate management students.

THE FACULTY

Serving the Willamette student through excellent academic programs is obviously dependent upon a quality faculty. For it is our faculty that serves our students in the classroom day in and day out.

The primary emphasis of our faculty is on teaching. And this year, thanks to funding from the Burlington Northern Foundation, Willamette was able to give special recognition awards to two members of our outstanding faculty. For excellence in teaching during the 1984-85 academic year, Burlington Northern Foundation Faculty Achievement Awards have been presented to Patrick Connor and Suresht Bald.

In performance reviews by students and colleagues, Dr. Bald is consistently judged an "exceptional" teacher. Chair of the Political Science Department, she has been a member of the Willamette faculty since 1981. She was previously a lecturer at the University of California at Santa Cruz. Originally from Lahore, Pakistan, she earned her bachelor's and master's degrees from Delhi University and her Ph.D. from Harvard University.

Dr. Connor, a Willamette faculty member since 1982, is professor of Organization Theory and Behavior at the Geo. H. Atkinson Graduate School of Management. He previously served as professor of management at Oregon State University.

A prolific writer and scholar, he had five books and articles published within the last year. He is an associate editor of both the Journal of Management and the Academy of Management Review. In addition, Connor serves as vice president of the Western Academy of Management and as a consultant to two major Northwest firms.

But Willamette faculty do far more than teach. The university strongly encourages them also to pursue professional development and scholarship opportunities, often with financial support from the institution. And, very important, each faculty member schedules a significant number of hours each week for serving the Willamette student one-on-one as an advisor and/or tutor.

Two professors who have effectively juggled these multi-faceted responsibilities for many years at Willamette retired at the end of the 1984-85 academic year. Between them, Professor of Physics Robert L. Purbrick and Professor of Law John C. Paulus served Willamette students for seventy-four years. They have been models and inspirations for many; they have made significant contributions to Willamette's reputation for quality faculty members. And sadly, another outstanding teacher was lost to Willamette with the illness and death of William A. Medina, the Elmer and Grace Goudy Professor of Public Administration at the Atkinson School.

Willamette has just cause for being proud of its distinguished and active faculty, as evidenced by this sample of faculty publications and honors for 1984-85:

1984-85 FACULTY HONORS, PUBLICATIONS, AWARDS AND ACTIVITIES

Stephen Archer: Served as acting dean for the year at Atkinson Graduate School of Management; taught finance course for BPA; completed numerous community talks and manuscript reviews; conducted research study, with G. Marc Choate and Earl Littrell, on "The Effects of Measured Rate Telephone Service on Business in Oregon."

Suresht Bald: Authored "Integrating Women in U.S.-funded Activities: A Case Study of Rural Public Health in India," a paper selected by National Association of Women in Development for presentation at the International Women's Conference in Nairobi.

William Berberet: Re-elected chairman of the Oregon Committee for the Humanities; served as president of Mid-Valley Arts Council.

Cheryl Brown: Named Women's Basketball Coach of the Year for NAIA District 2.

G. Marc Choate: Served on the Board of Trustees of Salem Hospital; conducted financial assessment of the Greater Cleveland Hospital Association.

Patrick Connor: Published Organization Structure and Design (Modules in Management series, James E. Rosenzweig and Fremont E. Kast, eds.), Chicago, Science Research Associates, Inc., 1984; elected vice president of the Western Academy of Management.

James Cook: Awarded National Endowment for the Humanities grant for summer Bach research; with Valerie McIntosh, selected to study and perform at the University of Delaware with Elly Ameling and Gerard Souzay.

William Duvall: Named director of a National Endowment for the Humanities grant for fostering coherence in the study of the humanities.

Bruce Gates: Delivered twelve regional talks on Northwest public power; selected as consultant and rate analyst for BPA; conducted seminar for U.S. Forest Service; served as a member of the Mayor's Task Force on Wastewater Management; developed a special class on using Lotus 1-2-3.

Robert Hess: Commissioned by City of Salem to create Salem Civic Center memorial to toymaker A.C. Gilbert; commissioned by First United Methodist Church to sculpt brass sanctuary cross; exhibited throughout Oregon.

Thomas Hibbard: Named Associate Dean of the College of Liberal Arts.

Michael Holland: Appointed commissioner for the Northwest Association of Schools and Colleges Commission on Colleges; served as chairman of the Salem School Board.

Susan Leeson: Appointed to the Commission on the Bicentennial of the Constitution of the United States.

Earl Littrell: Published "High Tech's Impact on Management Accounting," Management Accounting (Oct. 1984) pp. 36-39. Also served as president and director of the Marion and Polk Schools Credit Union; acted as consultant for the Oregon Public Utilities Commissioner and for Clear Lumber and Precision Pine Co.

Steven Maser: Appointed to the State Advisory Council on Occupational Safety and Health; served as board member of Northwest Human Services, Inc., and MIT Educational Council; presented papers at the American Political Science Association conference and at the Carnegie-Mellon Conference on Political Economy.

Bruce McIntosh: In his first year as founding director of the Willamette Community Orchestra, won critical acclaim for initial performances.

James Nafziger: Published Conflict of Laws: A Northwest Perspective, Butterworth, 1985. Also delivered papers on international criminal law and international copyright law at the annual meeting of the Association of American Law Schools; conducted seminars in New Zealand and talks in Cypress; served as scholar-in-residence at the Rockefeller Foundation Study Center in Bellagio, Italy.

Carlton Snow: Elected to the board of directors of the National Academy of Arbitrators Education Foundation; selected as national chairman for the National Academy of Arbitrators' Mid-Year Program.

Michael Strelow: Conducted studies in Spain under Fulbright Scholarship.

Richard Sutliff: Awarded Joseph J. Malone Fellowship for studies in Cario.

Valerie Vollmar: Elected to the executive committee of the Estate Planning and Administration Section of the Oregon State Bar; appointed to Legal Ethics Committee of the bar; appointed to Governor's Education Mission to Oregon State System of Higher Education.

Michael Wise: Elected president of the board of directors of the Oregon Legal Services Corporation.

1984-85 SABBATICALS

Frances Chapple: Full-year sabbatical to study quantum mechanics at Cambridge University, and to conduct research on early history of modern science.

Kathy Graham: Fall sabbatical to gain additional practical experience in her teaching area, torts and products liability.

Jack Hafferkamp: Fall sabbatical to investigate the evolution of the field of mathematics, especially from the standpoint of mathematics curricula at various historical stages, and to gather material for a course in the history of mathematics.

Earl Littrell: Spring sabbatical to conduct research and consulting activities, and to gain additional experience with micro-computer applications to the areas of his teaching and research.

James Nafziger: Spring sabbatical to complete two books; to conduct seminars in New Zealand, to work as a scholar-in-residence at the Rockefeller Foundation Center in Bellagio, Italy.

Ken Nolley: Fall sabbatical to work with internationally known filmmaker Peter Watkins in the shooting and editing of a major film.

Ross Runkel: Fall sabbatical to conduct a trip to the U.S.S.R. for American attorneys and to study dispute resolution issues in Soviet law.

Robert Stoyles: Spring sabbatical to complete a research and writing project on "Computer Crime" for the Oregon State Bar, division of continuing legal education.

OUTSIDE THE CLASSROOM

Realizing that much of a student's education and development occurs outside the classroom and in interaction with others, Willamette University devotes substantial time and resources to provide students with opportunities for enrichment through cultural, recreational, athletic and social events.

Distinguished speakers and performers were brought to campus in 1984-85 by all three colleges, by individual departments and by the students themselves. The College of Law introduced students to such nationally recognized figures as the Hon. Harry Edwards of the U.S. Court of Appeals, David MacMichael, former CIA operative and expert on third world insurgency, and Fred Barbash, Washington Post reporter and long-time observer of the U.S. Supreme Court.

The Atkinson Graduate School of Management, through its Executive on Campus Program, enabled students to learn from, and become acquainted with, leaders in business and government. Among GSM's visiting executives for 1984-85 were Bend publisher Robert Chandler, Portland-area business executive Roger Brooks, Salem Mayor Sue Harris, national authority on taxation Alvin Rabushka of Stanford University, and Japanese industrial leader Satoshi Nakaichi of NEC America, Inc.

Through the many programs associated with the College of Liberal Arts, students were presented with daily opportunities to participate in the cultural life of the university. The Distinguished Artists Series, for instance, exposed students to the musical talent and insight of pianist Ilana Vered, the Haydn Baryton Trio and Collegium Vocale. Filmmaker Julia Reichert and composer Norman Dello Joio were typical of the other artists brought to Salem through the efforts of CLA faculty members.

Grants and gifts from outside the university often were used to underwrite the appearances of scholars and musicians at Willamette. In spring of 1985, a new grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities was the source of funding for extended visits by two renowned scholars, Sir Edmund Leach and Dr. David B. Allison.

"Thematic programming" was introduced during spring semester by the Educational Programs Committee, the student/faculty committee charged with the majority of programming decisions. Using "Willamette Focus: Women" as its theme for 1985, the committee sponsored films, lectures, panel discussions and musical programs focusing on women's talents, contributions and roles in society. A much publicized debate between National Organization for Women leader Eleanor Smeal and anti-feminist spokeswoman Phyllis Schlafly generated both interest and controversy.

Students not only attended, but also performed in a wide variety of musical and theatrical events. Two new groups – the Willamette Community Choir and the Willamette Community Orchestra – were added to a number of ensembles providing students and faculty members with outlets for their musical talents. Two members of the music faculty, Martin Behnke and Wallace Long, took Willamette's band and choir on the road for a successful January tour of California and southern Oregon.

Also taking to the road were the cast and crew of "Under Milkwood," who toured Oregon coastal communities under the direction of Professor Bill Iron. The student production of the Dylan Thomas play earned media praise, as did most other Willamette productions of 1984-85.

Additional opportunities for recreation and outside-the-classroom education were provided by athletic groups, and by the variety of clubs and organizations which were active on the Willamette campus. On occasion, these groups sponsored well organized and well attended community events, such as the International Student Association's Extravaganza, and the Student Entrepreneurship Association's Conference on Entrepreneurship.

Nearly one-fourth of Willamette's undergraduate student body participated in intercollegiate athletics during the year. Eight of the university's seventeen varsity teams placed either first or second in the conference or district, while the men's track and field team became the first team since 1931 to win five straight conference championships. Thirty-two student athletes were selected for all-conference teams, sixteen gained NAIA All-District 2 honors, five earned first-team All-America recognition, and two were named Academic All-Americans.

Stewardship of University Resources

Willamette cannot fulfill its educational mission and effectively serve its students without wise stewardship of the university's resources. Wise stewardship of the university's resources involves careful management of current resources and aggressive development of further resources.

To carry out Willamette's mission in 1984-85, the university operated on a budget of approximately $16 million. And for the eighth consecutive year, Willamette ended its fiscal year in the black.

The financial statements on pages 14 and 15 give a general accounting of the university budget picture for our fiscal year. But let me highlight several line items from the 1984-85 operating budget to put the many numbers into better focus:

1. Student Aid: Financial support for students from Willamette sources (excluding loans and government grants) totalled $2,111,000. This represented an increase of 36.8 percent from the previous year.
2. Endowment Income: A portion of each year's operating revenue comes from earnings on the university's endowment. The several million dollars in endowment income during the fiscal year thereby subsidized part of every student's costs of a Willamette education.
3. Annual Funds Income: Each year, the operating budget is constructed based on a projection of gifts from alumni and friends of the university. In other words, Willamette is dependent on its faithful alumni and friends to make an annual contribution to the university in order to balance the budget. Unrestricted Annual Funds provided a 1984-85 income of $544,000, and restricted Annual Funds added another $22,000, for a total of $566,000, as chronicled in the annual gifts report on pages 17 and following.

Total gifts and grants for the 1984-85 fiscal year topped $5.5 million. This means an addition of more than $24 million to university resources over the last five years through gifts and grants.

Much of this resource development has occurred in conjunction with The Campaign for Willamette. During the last five years, over $18 million has been raised for capital improvement projects on campus, for academic program expansion and for increased endowment. And in the process, Eaton Hall and Collins Science Center have been renovated, the Millstream has been rerouted and landscaped, and the Center for Dispute Resolution has been established.

Significant progress was made in The Campaign for Willamette during 1984-85. A total of $5,552,438 in cash and pledges was received and included the following highlights:

1. $3,718,540 for the Mark O. Hatfield Library, bringing the total received as of May 31, 1985, to $4 million. Major grants were received from Fred Meyer Charitable Trust, M.J. Murdock Charitable Trust, Atkinson Foundation and The Collins Foundation.
2. The establishment of the Helen Simpson Jackson Chair in International Management. Members of Mrs. Jackson's family created this newly-endowed Atkinson Graduate School of Management Chair in her honor and have pledged contributions in the amount of $1 million.

It is certainly gratifying to see the level of financial support that Willamette University received during our fiscal year; it shows a confidence in our mission and a willingness to assist us in serving our students. But it is perhaps even more gratifying to see the broad base from which this support comes.

In 1984-85 the university received $956,000 in contributions from 3,417 Willamette alums. The percentage of alumni who contributed to our 1984-85 Annual Fund increased from 20.5 to 23.6. As the following annual gifts report explains, this increase in the percentage of alumni participation meant extra dollars for the alma mater because of an alumni challenge program established by The Collins Foundation.

I invite you to peruse the annual gifts report for a more detailed look at the broad base from which Willamette received support during 1984-85 and to gain an appreciation for the university's dependence on the faithfulness of its alumni and friends to make annual contributions. Through the annual gifts report, Willamette University recognizes and thanks those who assisted us this past year in making our mission of serving students possible.

Annual Gifts Report

A warm and personal thank you

As is evident from these pages, the 1984-85 Alumni Annual Fund (AAF) was the most successful in many years. Because of the high level of support from alumni, we were able to meet The Collins Foundation Alumni Challenge and earn additional dollars from the Trustee Challenge.

Thanks to you, the percentage of participation in the AAF has almost doubled in the past four years. In 1984-85 alone there were 998 new donors. Of course, we still have a lot of work to do if we are going to compare ourselves with the best liberal arts institutions in the West - Whitman, Pomona, Redlands, Colorado College, among others.

In great part, the recent success of the AAF is due to the many alumni volunteers who gave many hours of effort toward our goals - class agents, reunion class committees, volunteer solicitors and phonathon volunteers - and to the more than 3,000 of you who said yes to your fellow alumni.

The phonathon deserves special comment. We know many of you dislike the phone and its interruption. Yet, the phonathons definitely have increased the number of participants in the AAF, and they also give the opportunity to learn more about the university and its programs.

And now, as our term as Alumni Annual Fund chairpersons has ended, we have a definite hope for the future: that every alum will be committed to give something, no matter what the size, and promise to make it an annual obligation.

On behalf of all those associated with this year's Alumni Annual Fund, let us send to you a warm and personal thanks for your generous support of the university.

Bob Joseph Gail P. Joseph

Maintain the upward momentum

Stewart Butler, Chairman
Development Committee,
Board of Trustees

A recent evaluation report (1985) by the Northwest Association of Schools and Colleges concludes, "Willamette University was a strong institution in 1980. It is stronger in 1985 and is confident of the future."

Without question, Willamette's successful profile is much more evident today than ever before. Not only has there been national publicity in U.S. News & World Report, but several respected guides of prestigious schools make favorable mention of Willamette.

As a result, Willamette is attracting even more of the most capable students. Today the university is as selective as some of the Ivy League schools or other well-known liberal arts colleges.

This upbeat atmosphere is also reflected in the gifts received by the university. The record number of donations during this past year includes major support from other than Willamette's traditional sources. National foundations are making notable gifts to Willamette, and the larger regional foundations are showing an increasingly important interest.

The Campaign for Willamette, with its current emphasis on the Hatfield Library, has brought significant support from major Oregon corporations and other charitable organizations.

The alumni have played an increasingly important role, with the percentage of alumni donors increasing from 12.6 percent to 23.6 percent in just four years. The number of alumni donors has increased from 1,157 to 3,315 during the same period.

Other sources of annual unrestricted funds also have increased; most notably, the Salem business community has shown its support through the Salem Annual Fund. This is in addition to the community's long-time generous support of the Cardinal Roundtable and the FORE Willamette Golf Tournament.

United Methodist congregations responded generously to a challenge gift and continue to show interest in supporting the institution. Bishop Cal McConnell, former Willamette Chaplain, has been instrumental in encouraging this support.

Our goal for 1985-86 is to maintain this upward profile and to meet the challenges that the Board of Trustees has set out for the university. To do this, significant, additional unrestricted gifts are necessary, for it is these funds that make possible a quality university.

I urge the thousands of you who are now giving to the university to continue your annual support and invite those who have not given an annual gift to join those who are investing in Willamette's future.
