Summer Plans Made

Plans for the summer semester curriculum are rounding out more each week according to Dean Chester F. Luther. Yesterday he announced that the university is trying to obtain a professor for the summer semester so that courses in the sociology and economic fields can be offered.

If it is possible to obtain such a professor for this one semester, elementary and advanced courses in both fields will be offered. The advanced courses will probably be in the form of a seminar course which will enable the student to do supervised project work.

Red Cross Unit Planned

Any student interested in establishing a Willamette university chapter of the American Red Cross is asked to leave his name at the student body office in Waller hall. According to Dr. Robert E. Lantz, plans will be formulated for establishing a chapter as soon as it is known definitely how many students will be interested.

If a chapter is established on the campus, new activities will include rolling bandages and assembling sewing kits to send to service men overseas.

Broadcast Time Changed

"Curtain Time on the Air," the new weekly air show featuring Willamette students moves to a different time beginning next week. Warren Durham, who directs the broadcasts, stated that the show will be heard Thursday's from 4:30 to 5:00 p.m. Next week's play, "What's Your Name, Dear," concerns a famous violinist who loses his memory through an automobile accident and finds romance and a different life in his new surroundings. But learn the rest for yourself at 4:30 Thursday.

Coulter Heads Science Club

A science club is being organized at Willamette for those students interested in group discussion and extra-curricular activity in the scientific field. The newly elected officers of the club are Ed Coulter, president, and Whitey Jacobson, secretary-treasurer. The club meets Monday at 4:15 in room 213, Collins.

PLC President to Speak

Dr. S. C. Eastvold, president of Pacific Lutheran college of Tacoma will be the speaker on Tuesday's chapel program. Giving the address during the Thursday hour will be W. R. Berg, member of the Oregon Liquor Control Commission.

1944-'45 Catalog Out

The Willamette university catalog for 1944-45 is finally off the press. Copies are being sent out this week to all prospective students and students now attending Willamette will be able to obtain their copy next week in the registrar's office.

Woodburn Trip

A team consisting of Paul Jacquith, Mary Margaret Livey, and Marjorie Beadles, will represent Willamette at the Woodburn First Methodist church this Sunday evening. They will be in charge of the evening service.

Lt. Dean Promoted to Captain

Robert Y. Dean, graduate of Willamette university, has been promoted to captain. He is serving in the US Army Air Corps as a meteorologist. Capt. Dean is now stationed in Washington in an advisory capacity.

Matinee Dance 4:05 Today

New records and stuff are promised for today's matinee hop, says Jenny Mack. Time and place the same as usual, Chresto cottage, 4:05 p.m. Student body ticket required for admission.

'Intersorority Sing' to Start May Festivities

Fourth Period Classes Dismissed Next Friday for Song Contest

Fourth period classes will be excused next Friday in order to permit the presentation of an "Intersorority Sing" at a special May Weekend chapel program, according to the administration. The contest, first of its type to be sponsored by the Willamette student body, is scheduled for 10:45 a.m. with the presentation of the trophy to the winning organization to be made by Queen Marjory Maulding at the coronation ceremonies Saturday afternoon.

Music for the annual May Weekend dance to take place in the university gymnasium between 9 and 12 Saturday evening will be provided by the SMU 1911 band of Camp Adair, it was announced Wednesday by Betty Andrews, dance chairman. The affair is open to all students and high school guests.

May Breakfast

Arrangements for the traditional May morning breakfast, previously cancelled in view of the war-time food situation, were completed this week by Glennerva Harnsberger, chairman. Breakfast will be served in Chresto by YW members from 9 to 11 Saturday morning. Tickets may be purchased from YW members at 35 cents. Proceeds are to be placed in the Seabeck fund to send a Willamette student to the annual summer meeting held at a camp site on Puget Sound.

Coronation 1:30 Saturday

A revision in plans for the coronation of Queen Marjory announced by general chairman Rich Wicks, has set the ceremony for 1:30 p.m. Saturday at the May court at the east end of the library. Following her official installation Queen Marjory will occupy a position of honor as she reviews the official inspection of the navy unit on Sweetland field. "Ballad for Americans" will be sung by the University choir during the coronation ceremonies. The traditional Maypole dance will also be presented at that time. Pres. and Mrs. G. Herbert Smith will entertain students and their high school guests at an informal tea at the University house following the official inspection.

Rules for the "Intersorority Sing" were announced this week by Chuck Strong, chairman, who will preside at the program which it is hoped will become a traditional part of the May Weekend festivities. A group of three songs is to be presented by each group, one of them being a house song arranged in any manner the organization may choose, the other two being any selection presented as a choral number with no solo parts. Size of the chorus participating has not been stipulated but the organizations will be judged as choral groups. No piano is to be used. Performances will be judged on the basis of intonation, harmony, clarity of words and presentation. A chorus of independent women will also compete with the three Greek societies.

Tug-of-War at Mill Stream

Immediately following the chapel program, the traditional frosh-soph tug-of-war will be held across the mill stream. Teams of 15 members will be appointed by the class presidents. Climaxing the morning's activities will be the greased pole contest, usually a part of the Homecoming, between the same two classes. John Cotthoff is in charge of both contests.

At 4 Friday afternoon a team of "old salts," three semester navy men, will challenge a team of their juniors to an intramural softball game on Sweetland field. Arrangements are being handled by Pop Ostlund.

Church Service

At the regular Sunday morning service of the First Methodist church Pres. G. Herbert Smith will speak on "The Church's Responsibility for Education." The address will mark Pres. Smith's first appearance in the pulpit of this Salem church. Sunday afternoon the University College of Music will join with the musical organizations of the city in the opening of the annual celebration of Music week at a program in the First Presbyterian church auditorium. The concert will bring to a close the Weekend activities.

OSC Exhibits Fowler's Art

Miss Constance Fowler, Willamette art instructor, will open a new art exhibit on the Oregon State college campus Monday. The "one-woman show" will be presented in the foyer of Kidder hall from Monday through May 10.

This exhibit will include ten oil canvasses, twelve water colors, and twenty wood engravings. Among the various oils will be "Missy Petunia," "Parkersville Hotel," and "Incident on the Bridge." Representative of the many Salem landscapes Miss Fowler has done will be "Spring Storm."

In addition, the original wood blocks used in Miss Fowler's book "The Old Days," featuring prints on pioneer life in the Willamette valley, will be included in the show.

Scholarship Tryouts Set

The initial auditions for the Nancy Black Wallace scholarship in music will be held tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock in the Music hall. The entire music faculty has been asked to attend the auditions and to judge the performances of the contestants. The award will cover four years' tuition to the university, and will be made on the basis of musicianship and scholastic ability. The scholarship was just made by Mr. Paul Wallace and his wife.

Those competing this Saturday are Donna Unruh, piano, Salem; Harriet Louise Odgers, piano, Portland; Gladys Lemon, violin, Portland; and Meryl Mathison, piano, Milwaukie. Only one contestant for the following week is so far known. She is Marie Deal, voice, Portland.

Phi Delta Kappa to Hear Smith At State Meeting Tomorrow

"The Liberal Arts College Adjusts Its Program to War," will be the topic of the address to be presented by Pres. G. Herbert Smith to members of the Oregon chapters of Phi Delta Kappa, national educational honorary, attending the annual state conference of the group being held tomorrow in Monmouth. Smith will appear at the dinner meeting scheduled for 6:30 p.m. in the Marine Room of the Marjory hotel following the day's program of speeches and discussion groups.

Final Rehearsals Set For Weekend's Play

'Ladies' Curtain Time 8 p.m. At Salem High Auditorium

The seven-member cast of "Ladies in Retirement" is today entering its final week of rehearsal for the May Weekend presentation. The performance is slated for Friday evening at the Salem high school auditorium, at 8:00 p.m. Tickets are on sale in the student body office in the basement of Waller hall, and will also be offered for sale at the door.

Tickets for 'Ladies' Go on Sale Monday

Hsst! Wanna see a first-class murder, a couple of lunatics running loose, and Casanova Strong doing his stuff with an Oxford accent? Then bring your student body ticket plus ten cents tax, or if you don't have a SB ticket, bring fifty cents plus ten cents tax, down to the associated students' office in Waller basement, get a ticket for "Ladies in Retirement." All tickets, reserved and otherwise go on sale Monday. Townspeople may buy their tickets at Needham's from 11:45 till 1:15 p.m.

The feminine lead is played by Lois Phillips, drama major who has played the lead in two of Willamette's past productions, "The Philadelphia Story" and "Arsenic and Old Lace," and has had major roles in "The Comedy of Errors," "Distant Drums," "Yellow Jacket" and "Curse You, Jack Dalton." In the present production by Edward Percy and Reginald Denham, Miss Phillips does the role of Ellen Creed, a spinster whose desire to care for her two insane sisters becomes an obsession with her. The part is one in which the Willamette actress is very interested, and one for which her study at the Priscilla Beach Theater last summer well equips her.

The role of Albert Feather, the masculine lead, is played by Seaman Charles Strong, who also played a major role in the recent production of "George Washington Slept Here." Strong was active in dramatics at Linfield college, and had done the role of the young Englishman in a prior production there.

The role of Leonora, an eccentric ex-actress who seems unaware that her charms have faded, is played by Joyce Feiden, who also played an actress in "George Washington Slept Here." The two insane sisters of Ellen, Louisa and Emily, are played by Pat Otis and Phyllis Crowder, respectively. Donna Hinkley is cast as Lucy Gilham who, along with Feather, provides the romantic interest. Sister Theresa, a nun, is played by Catherine Thomas.

Navy Meet Calls Smith To New York

A conference of representatives of all institutions of higher education participating in the naval officer training program has been called by Admiral Jacobs, chief of Navy Personnel, for May 12 and 13 at Columbia university in New York City. Pres. G. Herbert Smith will act as delegate to the meeting where the curriculum and program for the semester beginning July 1 will be considered.

Delegates from the approximately 200 schools enrolled in the pre-officer training set-up will be in attendance. The meeting is similar to those previously called in connection with the V-12 system and attended by Pres. Smith.

The trip will take Pres. Smith from the campus for about two and a half weeks.

Platoon Hops Cancelled

Platoon dances at the women's living groups will be cancelled for the remainder of the term, Marge Maulding, campus social chairman, said last night. "With the advent of the spring weather, it is possible now for individual groups to plan parties and picnics, and later in the semester, we hope to have an all-school picnic on Wednesday evening," Miss Maulding said.

The campus social calendar is filled for every weekend from now until the end of the semester, Miss Maulding pointed out, and no more regular weekly events will be planned for Wednesday nights, since it breaks up the week for the women's living groups and since softball and other spring sports are slated for Wednesdays.

No Chapel Today

No chapel today, although chapel chairman Chuck Strong had wanted to give you one and all another view of the cup to be awarded the winner of the "Intersorority Sing" slated for chapel next week as a part of May Weekend. It can't be done, so use the time today to practice your house songs, Chuck advises.

Wallulah Lists Due

Senior activity lists for the Wallulah should be filled out and returned to Doris Holmes' box in Eaton hall today.

Active Participation

To fully enjoy the May Weekend Fete an active participation by all members of the student body in the program is desired. Participation in an affair is the act which will tend to give longevity to the memories and the experiences which occurred at the time. Memories can be of greater significance to one's life if he can recall some specific instance which occurred in his life at that certain time. This is not saying that fond memories will not be remembered without participation. It is stating that the memories will be of greater importance to the person in later years.

This is not pleading to the students to participate in the Festival, but it is a suggestion to them that they will enjoy the function much more if they do have some part in it, no matter how seemingly unimportant it may seem. Participation means more fun for the individual, and a better May Day for the group as a whole. . . . W. B.

Introducing - - -

Princess Dorothy Estes

The spotlight's hot for introducing the May court. This week it got a crack at the hazel-eyed, brown-haired, nicely-stacked little number name of Dorothy Estes, and it staggered away dreamy-eyed musing over things like:

Dottie was born September 23, 1922, in Portland, and has never strayed far from the old home town. She can't remember anything particular about her younger life, but surmises she just calmly lived. Her first vivid childhood impression is the bitterness she experienced when she didn't get the lead in the first-grade play. The fact that she DID get to be a butterfly only slightly eased her aching heart.

She entered her first year of high school, oddly enough, as a freshman, and started her business career by becoming cashier of the local cafeteria and later of the candy counter, where she fondly recalls sweet memories of Ted Ogdahl and Mush Barbour heckling her and dreaming up amiable methods of swiping candy in broad daylight, under her ever-watchful eye.

1940 found our little heroine wending her bewildered way around the picturesque paths of old Willamette. Never for a moment losing sight of her business career, she became personal secretary to Captain George McCleod, then dean of the law school, and every coed's ideal. Her heart was broken when he married—somebody else. Dottie remained cheerful in spite of this tragic blow and came back from her stay at Oregon Caves, where she worked the summer after her freshman year, with a bright and sparkling outlook on life.

Sophomore year brought three important events—election of vice president of her class, secretary of Lausanne hall, and her first ski trip—in fact, the ski tripped her to the tune of a broken ankle which hampered her social life for some time to come, and nipped her jitterbug lessons in the bud.

This year Dottie has been one active little coed around the campus. The senior class elected her representative to the student council, she was head of the Indoctrination Course for the wide-eyed rooks, and senior scholar for Dr. Gatke.

Topping a bright career is her election as princess for this year's May Court, the most exciting thing that's happened all four years.

Dottie's plans for the future are uncertain. She thinks she'll just wait for something to pop up. We know what you mean, Dottie. All the rest of us women are just waiting, too.

Dickson Talks to Mrs. Roosevelt at White House

Darlene Dickson returned to the campus on Monday morning from her two-week trip to Washington, D.C., to take part in a radio discussion of Pan-American affairs sponsored by the United States government. Miss Dickson won the Washington trip by taking first place in the Pacific Regional Meet on Inter-American Affairs, held at Stanford in March.

The broadcast was scheduled for Thursday evening, and the morning was spent in rehearsing and testing the individual voices for radio. In the afternoon, the group was shown through the Pan-American Union. The actual broadcast was made at 9:00 in the evening, that hour being the earliest the Latin-American diplomats could think reasonable for venturing forth. The discussion was led by the Director-General of the Pan-American Union. The six student participants were in turn questioned by the diplomats who, Miss Dickson swears, must have spent hours dreaming up the questions. The string orchestra of the US Navy band was also part of the broadcast. Two graduates of the class of '42, Lt. Bob Pentney and Capt. Robert Dean were at the broadcast.

Friday the group toured Washington, saw Mt. Vernon and other points of interest, and later met Vice-president Wallace at his office.

"Although he was very shy, he was very glad to learn that I speak Spanish and started to speak it to me, and so I, of course, forgot every Spanish word I knew," Miss Dickson said. That evening a reception was held in their honor at which Secretary of State Cordell Hull spoke and which Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt attended accompanied by her secretary.

The next morning, the group was notified that Mrs. Roosevelt would receive them at the White House at 2:15 that afternoon. This honor being entirely unexpected, it was necessary to change train reservations since Miss Dickson had planned to take the 1:30 train to New York. They were received in the Green Room by Mrs. Roosevelt where she talked with them for 30 minutes. Later, the butler, John May, took them through parts of the White House, showing them the dining room where Mrs. Roosevelt makes scrambled eggs every Sunday night . . . "When she is at home," the butler added.

Miss Dickson arrived in Washington on April 10 where she stayed for several days with a British woman who works in Washington for the British government. During this time she saw a good deal of the British embassy.

On Tuesday, she and the other participants in the discussion moved to the Statler (the beauties of which moved Miss Dickson to extreme eloquence). The next day, the group, comprised of people from the University of Nebraska, Loyola college in Chicago, Bates college in Maine, Cincinnati college and a college in Tennessee checked their speeches and later Miss Dickson talked with Mrs. Ross T. McIntyre, wife of President Roosevelt's personal physician, who is a Willamette graduate.

She was in New York on Sunday where she met Mark Hatfield at the Waldorf, and Dave Moser, brother of Dix, and one-time Wallulah editor. From the Waldorf, they went to Rockefeller Center, Radio City, and the interesting new Hamburger Heaven and the Empire State building. She went from New York to Chicago where the Art museums seemed to have impressed her as much as anything in that city. There she saw Bob Albert, a graduate of Willamette last fall.

Miss Dickson plans to go to Mexico as soon as she graduates this spring where she will study Spanish for two months at the University of Mexico, while living with a Mexican family. This trip is also under the auspices of the United States government as part of its Pan-American relations program and, with $500, is awarded to each winner of the six regional meets held throughout the United States.

Byrd Culls at Eventide

(Editor's Note: No imitation this, but a genuine contribution from the ever lovely and talented Miss Patricia Byrd, who leaves her checks and her peasants at the local banking house to revive "Byrd Culls" for the Collegian in its hour of need, despite the harsh criticism of Dr. Oliver, who believes Miss Byrd is "Worse than a vinegar-puss." More properly today's story should be entitled "Up from the Tombs.")

Hello Kiddies! Here I am again, your favorite columnist, flying to the rescue in the temporary absence of my successor.

Shame, Kiddies, you haven't rescued me yet. Hope sprang wildly in my feeble breast when I saw Dean Geist negotiating with one of my many superiors and I said to myself: "At last, here is a man with the milk of human kindness flowing in his veins, and from the Music Dept too, how rare!" But alas, my hopes were cruelly crushed when the good Dean said that he had not come to buy me out, so, broken in spirit and mind, I crept back to my checks and my ration stamps and my sordid tales of frustrated romances.

But enough of me (is it possible that anyone could get enough of me?) A little news has filtered to me thru my few remaining loyal friends and I gather that you are still suffering under all the old problems with a few new ones added. Now, Kiddies, why must you continue to complain about the old problems? You have my solutions to them, so either act upon them or shut up—constant repetitions of these complaints are beginning to bore me, and besides you prevent me from talking about my own troubles when I have to listen to yours. Anyway, it's childish to complain.

And now I have a few choice comments to make on your current lives:

1. I heartily disapprove of the closing of Chresto without the provision of another source of amusement and relaxation. This is not a bit fair as no one but my co-workers in the bank should enjoy keeping romance alive in full view of miscellaneous curious observers. As punishment, policy committee members should each receive a slap on the wrist and be forced to provide a new Rendezvous for Romance.

2. I approve of the use of ASB tickets for admission to Friday chapels. At last you can get some good out of your fees and besides, think of the vast new fields it could open up for Dr. Lantz's love of the ticket-punch, if the tickets were punched.

Well, Dear Readers, since this is being written during my lunch period and my all-too-short lunch hour is drawing to a close, I shall have to bid you a fond adieu. From time to time I hope to write you these little messages of good cheer, so until next time, Farewell.

The Rains Came

The journalism department has always feared that it'd bring the roof down on its head some day, but it just wasn't quite prepared for the onslaught when it fell.

Freshmen cub reporters were slumbering expectantly on the edges of their seats awaiting patiently the birth of a new gem for the present issue of the Collegian by Prof. Mureo Ringnald, when they were rudely awakened by an inadvertent and unannounced cloudburst proceeding leisurely and unchecked through the last remaining layer of ceiling plaster of Eaton 36.

Even this deluge did not disturb Mureo's monumental calm as he disengaged himself wearily from the liquid stream and sauntered casually out of the room in search of the nearest and only janitor. Although said janitor appeared with a ten-gallon pail with which to catch the remaining drips, Ringnald was gone for good.

Since he probably betook himself to the Capitol for coffee, he is forgiven, for he needed a pick-me-up after the heroic effort he made over the publications board interview last week.

'Slap Happy Hour'

By Jan Johnson

Evidently, all one has to do to make a man happy is give him a firm rap on the head, kick one or two of his teeth in, or scrape all the skin off his shins. This is a natural conclusion, arrived at after having sufficiently recovered from witnessing the spectacle called the "Happy Hour." It has taken me a week to get a grip on myself and be able to speak of the matter without violent reaction. Now, I am a woman, and no pansy, either, but I will admit that at least three bouts had been battled before I could take even the lightest blows without wincing, at least five had passed before I could take them with a calm, benign resignation, and not until around the seventh bout could I enter into the sparkling spirit of the thing, beaming happily when someone had been knocked groggy and cooing with joy at the sight of blood. This process of becoming conditioned to this sort of thing is called, in psychological terms, "Becoming Conditioned."

The boxing bouts I found particularly delightful. For the edification of those not familiar with boxing, it concerns two men who stand in the middle of the ring with large mittens on and amiably make passes at each other. There is a definite technique to this, which, though simple, has its interesting points. You merely dance about, shaking your head from side to side, and suddenly, when your opponent's attention is riveted elsewhere, rush in, deliver two quick ones to the side of his head, at which time he pulls a rough one to your jaw and you sink slowly to the floor, the crowd going mad with pleasure at the thought that you may not rise at the end of 10 counts, or perhaps, ever again. This thought also makes you supremely happy, hence the title, "Happy Hour."

The boys in the ring fight some pretty hard battles, but none, I observed, receive the work-out that the managers drooling around the ring get. These managers, one and all, play the part of both battlers, feigning short ones here and there, occasionally ramming clenched fists up against the ring stand, and generally tying themselves in knots. Fortunately, none of them had to be removed from the floor on stretchers that night. In fact, I saw some sadder looking cases leave the platoon dance this week.

The wrestling had its fine points at the "Happy Hour," that is, and I was particularly surprised to notice that no matter how hard pressed some of the contestants were, not one of them took to biting. Although this was the first wrestling match I have ever witnessed, some of the holds were not new to me. Biting or scratching would seem such an easy way out, but then, I suppose there is some silly little rule against it.

The Judo demonstrations seemed to me the most practical of all these forms of good, clean fun. Judo, it was explained, is the art of killing, or permanently injuring an opponent, without much effort or physical strain. However, it is not quite so simple as it looks and I feel that this might have been pointed out a little more fully. All excited at what I thought I had learned, I entered my room after the matches, coyly grasped my roommate's hand, flicked my wrist in a movement that should have sent her flying through the air across the room. It did not do this. It merely resulted in a sprained wrist on my part, three misplaced vertebrae, and an odd feeling around my collarbone. I wrote this in the waiting room of the Salem Clinic. But I am happy!

Volley Ball Tourney Starts; B2 Favored for Championship

Under the direction of Dick Maxwell the opening round of the single elimination volleyball tournament started Tuesday evening, and found platoons B2, C1 and C2 notch early wins. The latter two platoons squared off against each other last night with the winner scheduled to take on B2 for the championship. B2, with a slight height advantage, is favored to cop the title.

The first game in the opening round found C2 defeating B1 after a good struggle. The losers had little height and failed to set the ball up properly against the playmaking C2 gang. The winners had an easy time of it in the first game and won handily 21-14. The final game found the B1 boys playing a little better and so managed to collect 17 points before cashing in their chips. Looking good for the winners were Jack Wood and Wally Brownlee, both of whom used their height to good advantage, and Stan Clafin. Standouts for their opponents were Bob Reinhart, Bob Oeder and Cecil Peterson.

The second match between A1 and B2 was a wild and woolly affair with the count going three games before the company B representatives managed to edge out the YMCA contingent to the tune of 21-16, 14-21, and 21-18.

Every point had to be earned in these bitterly contested games with both teams playing hard. Looking hot for the winners were Duane Croghan, Lloyd Kinsey and Spike Ferguson with George Lund, Kenny King, Jim Frank and Bill Cate starring for the losers.

C1 made it a big evening for company C when they took the rubber game against A2 after two very close opening games of 21-19 and 19-21. The score of the game was 21-11. The smoothies for the losers were Ed Hillis and Fred Howard with Whitey Jacobson and Mac McDonald leading the first platoon of C. Dick Maxwell also played.

Maxwell Leads Student Golfers To Victory Over Faculty Team

Slices and hooks were a dime a dozen Saturday afternoon at the Salem Golf course when 21 of the so-called better campus golfers matched strokes in the first competition of the season. The Cardinals student team, led by Dick Maxwell, Rich Wicks and Tony Fraiola, led the way with the Golds edging out the faculty by 1/2 point. The winners tallied 26 1/2 to the Golds 18 1/2 and the tutors 18.

Play was conducted in threesomes with a total of nine points awarded in each match. Six points was the maximum any player could make with Chief McGuire, Melvin Geist, Al Rowe and Fraiola the only ones turning the trick. Medalist for the day was Maxwell with a sparkling net score of 72. Other low net scores turned in were Rowe's 73, Maurice Brennen's 76, Phil Sorensen's and Fraiola's 77's, 78's by Wicks and Arne Ahlberg, and McGuire's and Paul Folquet's 79's.

The top flight found Wicks gathering in 4 1/2 counters for the Cards with opponents Walt Erickson and Folquet scoring 2 1/2 and 2 points for the faculty and Golds respectively. The fol-

Sparks Heads Navy News Briefs Association

Willamette's athletic director, Lestle J. Sparks, has been named president of the Northwest District of the American Association for Health, Physical Education and Recreation. Sparks who was chosen at the district convention in Portland last week, has served as a member of the national legislative council of the association for the past five years, and the presidency of the Northwestern district places him on the board of directors of the national association.

Sparks also serves on the Oregon state P-TA health board and is a member of the Oregon group of the Association for Health and Recreation.

Navy News Briefs

Pre-med and pre-dental students enrolled in the V-12 program at Willamette who are making application for medical school will be interviewed by the committee of deans of the 13th naval district who will come to Willamette next Wednesday. Approximately 20 students will be interviewed and rated by the committee for qualifications for entrance into medical school. The men must make application in their fourth semester of school and if their applications are accepted they will enter medical school at the end of five semesters of college work.

Battalion flags for the Willamette unit will make their first appearance soon. Flags for the platoons, companies, and the battalion, made with help of the home economics department will be displayed in the public review to be held next weekend in connection with May Day festivities. The flags will probably be used in tomorrow's inspection also.

Second semester navy students met this week for conferences with Dean Chester F. Luther and Pres. G. Herbert Smith for the purpose of determining their qualifications and preferences for navy duty after they leave Willamette. Each man listed three preferences for duty and from the evaluations of faculty, chief specialists and officers of the unit, records of the grades of the man while in school and ratings in the navy comprehensive, his qualifications for the preferred duty are determined.

Pharmacist mate 1/c Clyde M. Leiser, arrived at the Willamette naval unit Monday to become the newest member of the ship's company. Leiser, who comes from the receiving station at Bremerton, takes the place left by Ph m 1/c G. H. Johns who left last semester.

Lt. Robertson Killed in War

First Lt. James G. Robertson, ex-Willamette university ball star, was killed in the line of duty in the South Pacific theater, according to a telegram received by his wife, from Lt. Gen. A. A. Vandergrift, commander of marine forces.

Robertson was flight leader for a squadron of B-25 Mitchell bombers and was reportedly up for a captain's commission shortly.

"Robby," as he was also affectionately known by friends and athletic foes alike, was for four years a catcher and court star under Coach Spec Keene and Howard Maple. He was voted to the Northwest conference teams in both baseball and basketball. He graduated from Willamette in 1942 after being known to the school as one of Willamette's best baseball players.

Weekend Breakfast Plans Told

Plans for May Weekend Breakfast—one of the big events of the May celebration—were revealed yesterday by Glennerva Harnsberger, chairman. The Breakfast, always a traditional part of the Weekend, was discontinued last year due to rationing of supplies, but will be resumed this spring.

Given by the campus YWCA in honor of the May Court and attendants, the Breakfast is served from 9 a.m. till 11 a.m. on Saturday of May Weekend, in Chresto cottage. Faculty women and mothers of YW members prepare the Breakfast.

Dorothy Zerzan is in charge of the tickets for the affair; June MacMillan, decorations; Luella Ibsch, food; Yvonne Kauffman, advertising; Laura Jean Bates is work chairman, Wilma Froman is in charge of entertainment; Ruth Van Orsdel, hostesses; Betty Sinkola, tables; Ethel Jean Cain, invitations; Mickey Thurston, kitchen and Alice Faye Dougherty, clean-up.

Beta Chis To Dance

Pledges and new members of Beta Chi will entertain their guests and old members of the sorority tomorrow night at 8:30 at the chapter house. Dancing will be on the program, for the evening.

Barbara Pierce, chairman of the party, has appointed Jean Gibbons in charge of music, Florence Lewis, refreshments, Mary East, Louise Knouff, Dolores Nickols, Shirley Rabenau, Eileen Bontrager, cleanup, and Adele Eagen, decorations.

Summer Housing Indefinite

The housing situation for the summer term is now becoming important. The university will operate a women's dormitory as it has in the past. So far the house has not definitely been decided on. The final decision will depend on the number of women attending school during the summer term and also the cost of running the hall. Fredrickson and Kappa halls and Alpha Phi Alpha sorority house are the possibilities.

The dormitory will be under the direction of Miss Lorena N. Jack. The housemother and the cooks have not been decided upon.

If there is room in the dining room, the civilian men may be allowed to eat there as they have done for the past two semesters.

It is not yet certain whether or not women student of the university who are working in Salem for the summer will be able to find room and board at the dormitory. Dean Olive M. Dahl said that the matter was still under discussion.

Spring Dance Planned by DP

Delta Phi's will entertain their dates at an informal Spring house dance to be held at the chapter house tomorrow evening. Light refreshments will be served during the evening.

Arlene Schwartz is in charge of the decorations. Yvonne Kauffman is in charge of refreshments and Jean Fries and Ann Strother are in charge of arrangements and music.

Kappas Hold Formal Banquet

Kappa hall honored nine women at a formal birthday dinner Wednesday night. Those honored were Elaine Bergquist, Phyllis Crowder, Dorothea Graham, Anita Harvey, Jane Hansen, June MacMillan, Mary Lou Moore, Virginia Peterson and Eudora Teeter. Chairman of the affair was Anita Harvey.
