GRANT VICTOR IN SENIOR ELECTION

MUMFORD HEADS JUNIORS

Ackerman Leads Sophomores and Freshman in Elections Held Wednesday

Upon Donald Grant was conferred the honor of being the last president of this year's Senior class, and Anna Mary McKinley was chosen as his running mate. Bernice Jackson is the new Senior secretary, Frank Girod the treasurer, Kenneth Vannice the athletic manager, and Ivan White sergeant at arms. It seems to be a tradition that the president going out of office takes up the position of sergeant-at-arms.

When the present class was the Freshman class their first semester president was Norbart Jarman. He is not in school now, but is engaged in business in Portland. The second semester president of the Freshman class was John Minto. He is now a Senior in Willamette Law school.

As Sophomores the class elected Paul Geddes as president for the first semester. Charles Kaufman was the second semester president. He is still in the class, and prominent among campus affairs.

William Smullin was the president of the class when it was the Junior class. He is still a member of the class. For second semester president the class elected Carol Pratt. He is also a senior this year.

The first semester of this year Ivan White wielded the gavel. Wednesday he turned it over to the newly elected president, Donald Grant.

From all these presidents only one has left the school. Most of the class leaders have been here four years.

Juniors Elect All Officers

The Junior class officers were elected last week, and were installed at the meeting held Wednesday. (Turn to page eight, please.)

CANDIDA IS FINISHED

Fraternities, Sororities, and Hall Women Reserve Seats For Friday Night Play

The Alpha Phi Alpha, Alpha Psi Delta, Sigma Tau and Lausanne Hall have reserved blocks for the Theta Alpha Phi play, Candida, which will be presented January 25, at 8:15 o'clock in the Oregon theater.

Dean Dahl, Mrs. R. Moulton Gatke, and Miss Leila Johnson, after attending a rehearsal last week, pronounced the production ready for presentation.

Sam Bowe, advertising manager, has the programs all made up. Elsie Tucker has been appointed property manager.

A banquet will be held at the Spa after the play for the members of the cast, their dates, the coaching force, and the managerial staff.

STUDENTS TO FROLIC AT RINK FEBRUARY 2

A Post Exam Jubilee will be held Saturday evening, February 2, at the Dreamland Skating rink. It is an all-student body affair for faculty and students. There will be no charge for admission as this is being taken care of with student body funds.

Jean White is in charge of the preparation for the party. As yet committees have not been appointed.

BILL WITHDRAWN THAT ERADICATES BAR EXAM.

The bill of Senator A. W. Norblad of Clatsop county, president of the Senate, which would provide that graduates of the University of Oregon Law school would be permitted to practice in the courts of the state upon presentation of their diplomas, will not be introduced in the legislature until further consideration is given.

This bill as reported by the Oregon Emerald would be a great help to students who otherwise spend days and weeks preparing for the state bar examinations.

Similar practice is being made by other states and is proving satisfactory, according to Senator Norblad.

GLEE TO FEATURE FUTURISTIC IDEA

Various Classes Hard at Work $200 Appropriation Made By the Freshmen

According to Wesley Roeder, Freshman Glee manager, the scheme of decoration to be carried out in this year's Freshman Glee will be the new futuristic art idea.

The Freshman class has appropriated $200 for Freshman Glee and the next few weeks will be busy ones in preparation for one of the most important occasions of the school year. Definite action has been taken by the various classes in regard to the songs, some of which have already been chosen. The Freshmen are working hard in a determined effort to "escape the mill-race."

Since some of those who were appointed to committees are unable to help because of illness or absence from school, Manager Roeder has appointed the following substitutes: Henry Millard, Olven Bowe, Charles Campbell, Ray Lapkey, Chester Finkbeiner, Clay Pomeroy, Leonard Shiffman, and Nellie Badley.

ENTRANCE GROUP MEETS ON CAMPUS

Next Saturday, the committee which was appointed at the state teachers' meeting to consider college entrance requirements, will meet here on the campus with two representatives from each college in Oregon.

The two members of the faculty who were chosen at the last faculty meeting to represent Willamette, will also meet with this group.

MEMBERS OF FRESHMAN BIBLE CLASS GIVE PLAY

The cast was as follows: Job, Olven Bowe; Bildad, Marjorie Moser; Eliphaz, Nellie Badley; Messenger, Bernice Nelson; Zephar, Isobel Childs; Elihu, Lillian Bueher; reading of prologue, epilogue, and voice from whirlwind, Dortha Land.

MEN HURL ADVERTISING SLOGANS BACK, FORTH

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Jan. 23. — (PIP) — Stanford out-punned U. S. C. to win an audience decision in the annual Cardinal-Trojan debate held on the Stanford campus Monday night. Advertising slogans were hurled back and forth across the platform in an attempt to prove that modern advertising is more detrimental than beneficial to society. The men from Troy threw consternation into the ranks of the Stanford team when they asked if the Cardinal debaters would advertise if they entered business. Henry Harris answered them in his rebuttal speech with "Gentlemen, if you were in hell, would you roast?"

COACH KEENE PRESENTS AWARD AT WOODBURN HI

Coach "Spec" Keene made the presentation of athletic awards at an assembly of the Woodburn high school, last Friday noon.

Coach Keene had been asked by the principle of the high school to make the presentation. During the course of the talk which Mr. Keene gave, he compared the spirit of the colleges with that of the high schools. Mr. Keene stated that "the habits formed in high school athletics largely determine the college athletic career. He also said that if good clean habits are the practice in athletics, then good clean habits will be the practice of the business career of athletes.

During the course of a year Mr. Keene makes a number of these athletic award presentations in the smaller, near-by towns.

Are We Mentally Incapable of Digestion?

The last week has brought several realizations to us. If we have not inculcated some ideas hitherto foreign, the presentation of the thoughts of another man have set our own flying at a tangent. "Dad" Elliot, partly because he is "Dad" Elliot, and partly because he was an individual from the outside has caused us to become a bit more alive to ourselves.

Not that we agree with all that he said, but he did present material of merit, any man who is as sincere as Dad is and talks as long as he did could not do otherwise than to present "good" things. We do not wish to berate Mr. Elliot, nor underate him, but we believe that he did not want us to swallow him "whole." At any rate we hope that he did not. Rather would we like to believe that he wished to either revive old or start new channels of thought. It is in this purpose that many of us failed to grasp the underlying motive.

Physically we do not imbibe food without digesting it. Then, mentally why should we attempt to do so? Material to be of value must be assimilated. Too many of us are of the type personified in the hay-bailer.

The students became aware of some of the faculty, and the latter in turn came in contact with some of those of the students. These problems did not spring up overnight; they had previously existed. All that was needed was a medium through which to translate them.

Above all it has brought out that we are acting as individuals at Willamette. As a group we do not function, and as such are not interested.

So "Dad" served as a crystallization agent. We are exceedingly glad that he stopped on the campus allowing us the privilege of coming in contact with his personality, and hope that he will be able to come again.

We Welcome the Open Forum

It is with satisfaction that we note the number of letters from students which are published under the heading, "Open Forum"—satisfaction both as to the content of the suggestions and to the fact that the presentation of the letters is indicative that our efforts editorially have been recognized. Further, it is gratifying to know that some of the readers of the Collegian are sufficiently interested to give a little time and thought to a matter which has resulted in the expressed formulation of their ideas.

The editorial published last week titled "Who Has an Idea" was written in the hopes that some solution would be forthcoming to the problem of campus social activity. The plans themselves are exemplifications of the sincerity of the authors. All recognize the dearth of social activities. They vary in the remedying of the situation.

It is not our purpose to pick the most feasible plan. This action remains with the students themselves in conjunction with the administration.

The quoting of figures on the part of the author of one letter which have been authenticated must be treated purely as a personal assertion based upon his own conjecture and that of his friends. The only way to make sure of these quotations would be to conduct a ballot after the close of chapel which would necessarily remain unsigned.

The Sumerians must have been quite an attentive race, judging from the way that they treated some of their women.

"Did you get their number?"
"No, the car was going too fast—but there was a woman driving it and she had on a green hat, brown dress, with lace on it and pearl buttons up the side."

Open Forum

I read your editorial in the last edition and it seems to me that supervised dancing is a desired pastime in campus activities. There is no easier or better way of providing the members of the school with an evening entertainment. Dancing makes the members become better acquainted. The Blue Key has brought up the question, "What shall be done to pep up the social activities?" We have tried every method devised except dancing and they have failed. Other colleges find dancing a success; let's try clean, wholesome, supervised dancing.

You have asked for ideas. Hence this:

It has been rumored by not a few students that social activities and functions on our campus have lacked that indescribable something called a "pleasant and enjoyable time." Why? First, because the students are growing weary of the seemingly conventional methods of entertainment experienced at our social functions, which consists mainly of a desperate attempt on the part of those gathered to carry on a pleasant conversation. Any who have attended functions on the campus know full well that the above is the condition that now exists. What is the solution? The puzzle has been solved on other campuses by the students themselves in sponsoring student dances. They are free from immorality encountered at public dances, and are clean and wholesome in every respect. Members of the faculty are present as chaperones, the proper thing to be sure. Now why shouldn't Willamette students be allowed the same privilege?

The social condition on Willamette's campus has come to the place where something must be done. Willamette is at the present time socially dead. There seems to be no pep, no enthusiasm, no fire. The whole student body is at a standstill. And what is the reason for this critical condition at Willamette? It lies in the fact that there is absolutely no social unit which binds the students together. On other campuses the students get together every week in some form of social activity. There is a common purpose, a common bond. At Willamette there is a lack of cooperation and coordination that is the most appalling in years. There is no unity of purpose between the students and the administration, and this antagonism is felt strongly by those who have the welfare of Willamette at heart. That is why there must be an understanding and a solution found for the present situation or Willamette is doomed.

Investigations show that over 60% of the students of Willamette dance both while at school and during vacations. Furthermore, this 60% are the highest type of students that Willamette possesses. They are the leaders in stu-

Along the Way

(By The Wayfarers)

If, as Dad Elliot quoted, "a university is a big stadium with a few classrooms attached," we surely have made a mistake in choosing our alma mater; just take a look at the size of our "stadium."

We saw a truckload of milk cans being taken into the State House the other day. Are the politicians milk-fed, or are they just tired of Salem's circus soup. In case you have not heard of the "how-come" of "circus" soup, put your thinker to discovering the American circus king. Why, Al G. Barnes, of course. All due apologies to those who have heard this before.

It's too bad that "Dad" let the cat out of the bag. When the profs find out, they'll all do some severe chaperoning the first time they get a chance—in order that they may not be asked to serve in that capacity again.

A Scotchman, they say, is quite apt to have optical illusions where money is involved. For instance, the Scotchman, who wanted a new hat, picked up the morning paper, and saw an ad, "Good Hats a Quarter." After reading the rest of the paper, he looked for the ad to find out where he could get such a bargain; but all he could find was, "God Hats a Quilter."

It certainly must be a relief to St. Peter to be able to come down off his official pedestal and come up to the level of the "maddening crowd." May his highflying successor, remember the day of his rookshood and be gentle.

So, a woman went to college for twelve years without studying on Sunday, did she? Someone suggested maybe that was the reason she went to college for twelve years.

Newspaper headline: ALBERT HARRY HIT WHITE.—The headlines give us new ways of saying things, anyway. We had heard of the expression "Strike me jink"; but never before had we heard of an auto hitting a man "white." Usually it leaves him black and blue.

What's Wrong With This?
A stranger came to the door of a fraternity wherein were collegians lustily singing. The stranger knocked and asked, "What sorority is this?" And, yet, he might well have mistaken the singing (?) for one of these serenades we hear every so often.

One of the Wayfarers received a terrible fright, last week. He asked a girl what sorority she belonged to and she said, "Beta Pet Me Quick." No, that isn't entirely original.

The faculty basketball team did not need opponents' whiskers to get mixed up in last Monday. They found plenty of other foul ways of doing it. "Boys, be good," they say. That is, "Don't do as we do, but do as we tell you."

Well, well, well, so the fraternities don't like the way their financial state were broadcast. "Pay the piper," men, or he'll pipe on you.

The Weekly Speare Shaker is on a vacation. "A substitute shines as brightly as a king until a king be by."

Playfully yours,
The Blue Bat.

"Love is what makes the world go round,"

I've heard since I was born,
But someone told a lie, because
Love came to me one morn,
And in the instant that its touch
Burned me with ecstasy,
The earth and all the stars were stilled
Throughout infinity.

TOY-BOATS

Some men have sailed a fearless
And found a jewelled sea;
Some men have set their ships
afloat
And met eternity.

But who has sailed forgotten
streams
That only children know—
Where is the land of faded dreams
And where do toy-boats go?

DREAMS

My thoughts go whirling round
the world
And skip beyond the moon;
They catch the trailing ends of life
And weave of them a tune.

My dreams float through the cherry trees
And blossom in the sky;
Their petals caught by some stray breeze
Drift back on earth to die.

WINTER

Winter swings a chain of ducks
From star-hung skies;
Beyond a pine-sung mountain peak
A coyote cries.

The night creeps up into the woods
To make winds blow;
It hurls the yellow moon and breaks
It on the snow.

Willows snap above the ice

THE MOON CUP

In the evening—
When gold dies from water and
sky,
And blue shadows steal
To the turquoise hills of the west;
When a strange quiet
Of contented birds and soft winds
Hushes the clamor of day,
And all with peace is calm—
God tips the half-moon

BARNYARD SONNET

O! Look! Old Ella's got a little colt!
Old Ella, tho, is not inclined to show
Her baby, for the heedless crowd might jolt
Or scare him, so she seems to think. But no,
Knees hmp, head down, and with
un-focused eyes
He wobbles from behind her toward the light;
It makes us gasp to see how hard
he tries
To manage his unhandy body right.
When Ella's turned out in the lot to graze
He flops down in a heap. Forgetting cud,
The cows all gaze and follow, run
and gaze.
His legs are like a pile of kindling
wood;
All day he lies out in the sun and grows,
And we can't tell how much our coltie knows.

On February 7, 8, and 9, Miss Marcia Seeber, who is National Secretary of the Y. W. C. A. Seabeck Division, will be on the Willamette University campus, to discuss "Y" problems with the women. She will speak to them at the Y. W. C. A. meeting Thursday afternoon, the 7th, so that all may have an opportunity to become acquainted with her.

Miss Seeber will hold Thursday and Friday as open dates for personal conferences and interviews with the women. On Saturday, the 9th, there will be an all-day house-party at the home of Mrs. A. C. Bohrnstedt, on the Jefferson highway, that the girls may spend a whole day with Miss Seeber. The house-party is primarily for the cabinet members; but other girls, by seeing Elsie Tucker or Jean White, may be accommodated up to the number of fifteen.

The annual visit of Miss Seeber to the Willamette campus is a rich opportunity for the women to talk with her about Seabeck, and the relationship of the Willamette YWCA to the national organization. Miss Seeber brings with her ideas from other colleges, and the result is a pooling of experiences which is very helpful to Willamette Y. W. C. A. members.

TELEPHONE SYSTEM IS CENTRALIZED IN ACTION

The telephone system which is to be installed connecting the Collegian office, Mr. Savage's office, the library, and Dean Hewitt's office, was approved by the executive committee in a meeting Tuesday noon. The telephone calls will be answered at the library.

Reports on the Freshman Handbooks were read and a bill of $137.45 presented. Other bills were accepted and allowed. The Walulah report from last year is still to come in. The rest of the meeting was devoted to an interesting discussion of the dirth of social activities on the campus. There will probably be some action coming out of this discussion.

By Dorothy Pemberton

A book of unique but highly literary nature has been received at the library the past week. The small book is the latest of a series of "Chapbooks" which is published at the University of Washington. The word receives its significance from an old English custom of calling books of choice material or especial literary value Chapbooks. Each book contains some literary or cultural, or political topic which has been compiled and presented by a member of the faculty of the University of Washington.

HELL-WEEK COMMENCES IN SECOND SEMESTER

Initiations to be of Same Nature as Those Hitherto Held by Fraternities and Sororities

Hell-week is drawing near and initiations are to take place following the first semester. The several fraternities and sororities are making plans for the biggest moment of a freshman's life. Although the work is of secret nature, no radical changes of program are being made by any of the houses, but every initiate is promised an interesting time. The several presidents revealed. Each house is devoting an entire week to the work of making new members.

NEW YORK — (IP) — "Hell Week" was for a second time condemned by the Interfraternity conference held at Hotel Pennsylvania here recently.

In a debate on the subject, Lewis D. Syester, Ohio Wesleyan senior and member of Phi Kappa Psi, said that the abolition of the rough house part of fraternity initiations is expedient because it tends to diminish the prestige of the fraternity system. Serious accidents, he said, are bound to occur. For every "black eye" the fraternity gives a freshman, he said, it receives two "black eyes".

"If there were any psychological value of getting the fraternity across by rough methods," he said, "it would have been incorporated long ago. Rough house initiation produces no constructive benefits and seriously undermines the basic spirit of fraternities."

Harold P. Flint, of Lombard, Ill., executive secretary of Tau Kappa Epsilon, characterized the rough house initiation as "an outburst of sadistic temperament." Some members, he said, received delight out of inflicting punishment.

It would be far better, he said, for fraternities to stay the rough house practices than wait for the college to abolish them.

The conference accepted an invitation to cooperate with a committee appointed by Dr. H. W. Chase, president of the University of North Carolina, to study college fraternities with a view toward encouraging college administrators to make more use of fraternities as necessary adjuncts to administrations of colleges. Chancellor E. H. Lindley, of the University of Kansas, is chairman of the committee.

LOCALS

Walter Hiff, who graduated from Willamette in 1927, spent the past week on the campus. Mr. Hiff leaves in a few days for Lima, Peru, where he will remain for three years representing his firm.

Daryl Chapin, W. U. '27, who is taking graduate work at the University of Washington, spent the week-end on Willamette campus visiting with Walter Hiff.

Marjorie Menton High, '22, who taught at McKinley high school for five years, is now attending the University of California.

A number of the University students have placed a petition before Dean F. M. Ericson for a class in Parliamentary Law. This class will be formed as soon as a teacher is chosen.

Friends of John Edwards will be glad to know that he is recovering from an attack of blood poisoning. Mr. Edwards has been at the Salem General Hospital for the past two weeks.

dent body, athletics, sororities, and fraternities, classes, Y. M. C. A., Y. W. C. A., Epworth league, in fact, in all campus life. Why can't the students of Willamette legitimately include dancing in their campus activities, whereby there would result a unification of the students? Why not sponsor well-chaperoned dances strictly for college students, faculty, and alumni, and try to eliminate this antagonistic, unified atmosphere now existing among the student-body? Maybe dancing is not the solution to the problem, but the feeling among the students is that it would be a means of natural, social expression and might be the thing that would give us some unity at Willamette University.

Have we enough brains to entertain ourselves?

If a passerby should ask any member of Willamette student body this question, the answer, no doubt, would come back without hesitation, and without thinking. Yes. But have we?

Let me make myself clear at the beginning. This is not an attack upon dancing, an entertainment of which I fully approve, and frequently enjoy.

Obviously since the faculty has seen fit to prohibit this social diversion, it is up to us to find some other means of entertainment and cease dissipating our energies in useless railing.

Undoubtedly the object of an education is the socialization of the individual and with that premise we are primarily concerned. To a superficial observer there is apparently no more ideal place for this process than a small college campus, because the process of socialization is, after all, only an understanding of people, their actions and the forces that motivate them with a fair appreciation of their value.

But this can only be brought about as we actually know the group with which we associate. Within the last week we have been accused of being void of school spirit, and of being divided into factions among which there is marked dissension. The reason is—if we face facts squarely—we do not, and do not make any effort, to understand the other fellow. We have no common social meeting ground. How much do we know of the hopes and aspirations, the former achievements and failures of the man or woman in the next room? How much do we care?

If we were a group seeking for knowledge and understanding, how easy the social problem would be. It is possible to make intellectual conversation entertaining, yes, even amusing, but it is practically impossible to convince anyone of the fact—usually because they have never tried it and unfortunately because they are incapable of it.

Within the last three days a prominent student on the campus said, "We have too much intellect, we need more pep and social life." If there is a surplus of intellect straying around, it keeps itself well disguised—no doubt from the fear of being badly treated.

It may appear to the reader that I have been laying down stipulations for necessary conditions, but that I have arrived at no plan. My suggestion is this: a series of groups to foster intellectual companionship. First, it must be started by not more than three people, the remainder of the group remaining completely ignorant of the plan for we get little actual cooperation if people are aware of it. The group should never contain more than eight, because that is the largest number that can entertain itself without a planned program. It should be composed of both men and women so that there will be no opportunity for conversation to sink to the level of mere gossip. Let two persons act as hosts to the before described group on whatever pretext they see fit to create, the group not knowing the nature of the meeting. One person should be consciously responsible for the conversation of the evening, this person actually having acquainted himself with enough interesting circumstances to talk, and that interestingly. The group would be entertained by the novelty of the situation.

The argument is immediately advanced, the same group would come together all the time. Let this group of eight, now formed into an organization without officers or any outward appearance, divide inviting a different group to meet with the two original groups. It would not take us long to understand the viewpoint and background of those people. Incidentally with our entertainment bringing about a condition of real education—not book knowledge but social adjustment.

The plan won't work, of course. Because we haven't the "brains" to be interested in the possibility of intellectual companionship. How often have you been a member of a group that was completely spoiled because one person didn't have the intellect to keep up their end of the conversation?

However, there is one element that doesn't completely condemn it. There are a few who are capable of the mental effort and perhaps the rest might in time be stimulated to approach them. It seems worth trying.

In your recent editorial in the Collegian concerning the social life of the campus you asked for ideas. Here are mine: Today, not because other universities do it but because it is the most convenient and enjoyable form of amusement, dancing makes up, to a great extent the campus social life. I would suggest that this form of social function be inaugurated at Willamette in order to supplant the present endless show-going and evening necking parties.

There is a derth of social life on the Willamette University campus. True, college is, primarily, an institution whose objective is to educate its attendants, but since gregariousness is an inherent instinct, largely unqueneable, there must be provision made for a means to satisfy or rather gratify this factor. Education is not a bond, universally speaking. Any group, seeks to advance, but advance contentedly and as a group if that is their form of organization. But necessarily, there need be a bond—an underlying network that makes for uniformity, and hence, cooperation and advancement. There must be a definite, moral purpose in a plan of social progress or development, however, but this requirement finds fulfillment in the plan since the end in view is that Willamette shall become a more desirable type of school. A form of dancing is a diversion, which although reputed to have undesirable features nevertheless has features which are very desirable to the

ALPHA PSI'S LEAD WITH NO DEFEATS

Faculty Shines in Ability to Keep From Living Up to Their "Preaching"

Faculty 16, Lower Class 8, Jan. 14
Showing the more experienced form, the faculty team submerged the lower class basketers 26 to 8. Spec Keene, and Torxel led the Faculty to their victory, while Roeder and Glrod were the whole show for the losers. The game was rough, but interesting.

Law School 17, Upper Class 15
Tuesday noon, Jan. 15, the Law school quintet, barely nosed out the fast and hard playing Upper class team. The law school two point margin of victory was only the result to hard playing plus more accuracy in hitting the basket. Roundtree baffled his opponents with his ability to sink long shots, while Silke and Vanice put up a strong fight for the losers.

Kappa Gamma Rho 10, Sigma Tau 9

On Wednesday noon, the Kappa Gamma Rho quintet of hoopsters demonstrated their basketball ability by nosing out the Sigma Tau team by a margin of one point. Inability of both teams to sink foul shots, was the weak spot in the play of the teams. McGilvra, Shellhart and Huth were the factors which led the Kappas to victory. Baldersee played well for the losers.

Faculty 18 K. G. R. 10

The Faculty again demonstrated themselves as contenders for the Donut league title when they won from the strong Kappa team 26 to 10. The game was rough and slow, with much stalling. Huth and Gaines worked well for the Kappas, as did Traichel for the winners.

Alpha Psi 20, Upper Class 10

Continuing their record pace, the Alpha Psis chalked up their second conference win, when they downed the Upper class team 26 to 10. The winners had a comparatively easy time in piling up a big lead and during no part of the game were they hard pressed. Page and French were the stars for the victors.

Sportorials

An interesting sidelight on Willamette's chance to beat Whitman is found from the following facts. Accordingly, Whitman has decisively beaten W. S. C. in four games played between the two schools. Monday night, W. S. C. defeated University of Oregon, who in turn have defeated Willamette. From this deduction, Whitman has a decided edge. Now the Willamette side of the question—O. A. C. has defeated University of Idaho. University of Idaho has defeated Whitman. Therefore, since Willamette has beaten O. A. C., these favor the Bearcats over Whitman.

The exceptional showing made by the Bearcat rooks, has led the coaches to consider them as a first team possibility. So far this season, the Frosh have shown a smooth working and powerful aggregation.

On this year rook basketball teams, we find two names which are familiar to some of the older students in school. Marshall Hartley is playing a consistent brand of basketball much after the fashion of his brother, who was a star center on the basketball floor as well as being an all-conference tackle in football.

Don Faber, rook forward, also had a brother whom fans will remember as being prominent in Willamette Athletics. Don is showing up well on the frosh team and looks like varsity material in the future.

With the Donut league again well under way, Willamette students are reminded that if they wish to enjoy a good lively game of basketball, they but need to witness one of the donut league teams in action. Hard spills plus plenty of fouling is in evidence, in fact the games are nearly as exciting as spring football. The Donut league is primarily to give a larger number of students experience in athletic competition. Coaches urge that all students take an interest in these games.

INJURIES STILL IN VOGUE IN CAT CAMP

With many of his men still in poor condition, Coach Keene resumed practice January 20 after almost a week's layoff. In a desperate effort to whip his squad into some kind of shape for the encounter with Pacific, three of his regulars, Cardinal, Hawk, and Gibson, still had the bad colds that have caused so much worry to Bearcat supporters. In addition Ledbetter reported with a sprained ankle. Received a few moments before he sunk the winning basket against Linfield, Flesher's broken ankle is slowly healing and it is hoped that within a short time he will again be in condition.

If he can get his squad back into playing condition the coming battle with Pacific may be faced with some confidence. In the meantime, the coach is spending considerable time with his Freshmen and in case of its ability of his varsity performers to be quite likely that the Rooks will see much action.

A man who believed he knew all about secret undertakings to teach what he thought to be a young man to see "Halt!" in one lesson. Going on to the case, he reported that word in a clear voice for several minutes, the next saying not the least attention. At the final "Halt!" the bird opened one eye, gazed at the man and snapped out, "Line's busy!"

ROOKS ARE VICTORS OVER NINE TEAMS

Willamette's Freshman Basketball Team has had a very successful season so far, having won every game they have played.

Here are the scores:
Frosh
vs.
20—Dallas 16
31—Woodburn 13
20—Chemawa 12
23—West Linn 16
51—Franklin (Portland) .. 15
44—Roosevelt (Portland) . 5
45—Amity 9
44—Roosevelt (Portland). 23
54—Linfield 2nd team 4

The Frosh have made about three times as many points as their opponents. The first-year men have made over 40 points in each of the last five games. The closest game was that with Dallas at the start of the season, in which the yearlings made a margin of four points. The yearlings will go up against some better teams than these, though, and it will be hard to judge what the Frosh team will do because so far they have not had much real competition. Coach Lestle J. Sparks deserves credit for building up an aggregation that has gone through the first nine games without defeat. The Rook squad consists of the following men: Faber, Marr, Carpenter, Hartley, McBee, Englebretson, Hall, Holt, Earl, Bell.

DOPSTERS AGAIN OUT WITH THEIR IDEAS

Promising the best and most evenly played basketball in its history the Northwest Conference opened its 1929 season with the Bearcat victory over the Linfield Wildcats. Games in the immediate future are the Linfield-Pacific contests slated for January 18 and 23 and the W. U.-Pacific battle on the 25.

All three games promise to be very close for Linfield's surprising showing against the Bearcat, marks that team as a dangerous contender, while Pacific's preseason record is impressive. The boys from Forest Grove start the year with a veteran lineup and opponents may expect trouble in every game.

Just what can be expected from C. P. S. is not known except that Cac Hubbard's boys can always be counted on for a battle. Their practice record has not been especially impressive.

Whitman appears the favorite at this time. Champions in 1928 they have virtually their entire lineup back and ready for action. Victories over the University of Idaho, W. S. C. and Gonzaga and a four point loss to the powerful University of Washington Huskies, have proved the power of Borleske's five.

If the Bearcats can return to their early season form the two game series with Whitman on the local floor promises to settle the hoop race.

Meet the Team

ED CARDINAL—Ed Cardinal, lanky Bearcat pivot man, is playing his second year for W. U. and seems headed for another prosperous season. Ed was last year, leading scorer in the conference and ended the season as an all Northwest Conference center. Although Cardinal has been rather slow in starting the 1929 campaign, he is beginning to return to his old form which will make a big difference in Willamette's chances of a successful year.

ADAMS—Dwight Adams, ex-Salem high star, is also playing his second year for Spec Keene, and as last year is an important cog in the team work of the Bearcat quintet. In 1928, Adams was runner-up to Cardinal in conference scoring honors, and this year promises to be a strong candidate for all-conference honors.

GURNEE FLESHER—Hindered by a serious foot injury, early in the season, Gurnee Flesher has not yet been able to lend his presence to the Willamette basketball situation. Flesher, last year was one of the best guards in the conference and received honorable mention from many of the conference coaches. Flesher will add a lot to the Willamette team and it is hoped that he will soon be able to again participate.

Kenneth Litchfield needs no introduction to Willamette sport-followers. Kenny has played a stellar game at forward for three years, and is going better than ever this year. He is a consistent shooter, a very hard man to guard, and is a strong defensive player. This will be Kenny's last season for Willamette, and we are expecting him to make it the best of his career.

Harold Hawk, stellar guard, is one of the scrappiest men on the squad. Hawk fights like a real Bearcat, shoots well, plays a wonderful defensive game, and is a regular ball "Hawk." If Harold can sink field goals consistently this year, he will have a good chance to make an all-conference guard.

Ledbetter is a letterman guard who has improved a lot since last year. "Lod" is improving so fast that he just has to break into the lineup. Ledbetter handles himself well, and checks his man very closely. He alternated with Flesher last year, but since Gurnee's injury, he has been playing so well that Gurnee will have to fight hard to break back into the lineup.

Cookie doughs are easier to handle if allowed to stand 10 to 30 minutes in a cold place before rolling.

OREGON STATE OFFERS MECHANICS TO GIRLS

OREGON STATE COLLEGE, Corvallis, Jan. 23.—(PIIP)—The well-known and not always successful alibi of the "auto-romeo" that something is wrong with the car is doomed for a severe setback—at least at Oregon State. A two-credit course in auto mechanics for women is being given for the first time this year and includes a general knowledge of the car, what constitutes a properly operating motor, the battery, lubrication, ignition system and care of tires. If the course proves successful, it will be included in the curricula every term.

DEBATERS CHOSEN FOR MEET IN APRIL AT WSC

COLLEGE OF IDAHO, Caldwell—(NIP)—Teams to represent the College of Idaho in intercollegiate debate were chosen before the holidays and will soon begin intensive work. Those who were selected for the teams are Fred Livesay, Wilma Stevens, Samuel Fisk, Helen Bell, Gilbert Stanton, Harriett Smith, James Thompson, and Gladys Ross.

Two southern Idaho conference debates with the Nazarene College of Nampa will be held in February, though the exact dates of the forensic battles have not been fixed.

Debates with the University of Wyoming and Occidental College have been scheduled for the first time this year, and promise to be very interesting.

In the early part of April the College of Idaho team will meet with five other schools in a debate tournament at Pullman, sponsored by Washington State college. Other schools participating in the meet are College of Puget Sound, Linfield College, Montana State College, Intermountain UUnion College, and Whitman College.

Man Begs Excuse to Take Care of Spouse. Wife Asks to be Excused Same Day

Mr. McCully likes his job. He says, says McCully that the day would be dark if it weren't for those serious excuses that he happens over day after day. Says this one, when the author failed to appear at chapel, "Got feet wet—Already had cold". McCully mused a bit and then he laughed. That is one of the joys of a serious registrar's serious job.

Then it came to pass, that a certain man begged excuse in order that he might care for an indisposed wife and, alas, the wife pleaded excuse on quite the same day in order that she might do a bit of work. Alack, thought McCully in Lincolnian terms, "A house divided thus, surely cannot stand." Now, McCully, you see, has problems. Unofficially, he is a mathematician. He studies. Studies you and me. Not so discriminate, huh?

Now, the automobile instinct seems to have established itself in a great many of the active students. "Listen", says McCully, expressing sympathy-plus, "A frozen radiator kept me from classes", and this benighted individual complains thusly, "I had a flat tire going into class". McCully understood. How strictly beneficial it is to have an understanding registrar. Then, of course, here is the English excuse, "Had tire trouble". He knows. He knows how it is to have tire trouble in regard to some classes.

Now, must we say that chivalry certainly is not archaic. A name—well, we cannot divulge the name, but an intimation evades that cruel procedure. You know our Wallulah editor? Yes, well he spent one whole period seeking a collar for a woman. We'd say he was gallant-plus. What price the position as Wallulah editor? Bad publicity.

And so that is McCully's job.

Says That Shirkers and Collegiates are Only Fringe of Campus Life

"Is the 'collegiate' of the hum-drum press, and the vaudeville stage the typical student of your college?" is one of the queries in a questionnaire sent to the deans of four hundred leading institutions by Henry Grattan Doyle, Dean of Men at George Washington University, Washington, D. C. Dean Erickson's answer to this question is, "No."

Dean Doyle is making a nationwide survey of educational institutions in order to ascertain the real status of the so-called "collegiate" in American college life. He says in his letter of inquiry that he "has felt concern, and sometimes chagrin over the mental picture of the 'collegiate' boy or girl which the general public has apparently created during recent years. I feel that this imaginary individual is by no means typical." Dean Doyle is therefore asking the cooperation of other deans in gathering a consensus of fact and opinion which can be presented to the public.

Some of the other questions asked are: "Is a slouchy appearance, as evidenced by garterless socks, rumpled shirt, and collar, sloppy shoes, and wrinkled suits of clothing, typical of your student body?"

"Is there any connection, in your opinion, between the attempt to be 'collegiate' and such problems as: drinking, 'necking,' neglect of class work, dishonesty in examinations, and other ethical problems?"

"Does the 'collegiate' type excel, as a rule, in: scholastic standing, sports, or other student activities?"

In last October's issue of the Alumnae there appeared an article called "Life," which Dean Erickson says expresses his views on the American student. This article admits that there is a grain of truth in the public's picture, but that the shirkers, and the 'collegiates' are only the fringe.

(As seen by an Ag. Engineer)
A girl is a creation of loveliness, overtopped by an inverted hyperbolic paraboloid and mounted upon a cylindrical figure which is reinforced with chilled stays near the surface of its mid-section, but which rests insecurely upon an inadequate base.

The Vanderbilt faculty has refused to allow the Freshmen of that institution to wear green caps as a color of distinction. In this case the faculty turned down a measure which the entire student body, from Seniors down to Freshmen, has endorsed.

occasion which I suggest it should arise to meet. For establishing acquaintanceships, and a friendly atmosphere nothing is more successful than a gathering of this nature. Vulgarly need not have a place. Willamette students are not the type that desire it. Dances exclusive to college young people and their friends, well enaperoned, would be a powerful medium through which Willamette could overcome this unfavorable dislike and resentment that is arising among its students. Private entertainments and gatherings that are being given are undeniably harmful to any body and no co-operative spirit or eagerness to progress can result from such a situation. It is a critical circumstance. We need and we want a bigger and better Willamette, but we can never expect unity and advancement to result from dissatisfaction and antagonism.

The social life at Willamette? Decidedly a most pitiful thing! In fact it is only noticeable by its non-existence. The social ideas of the youth of today at Willamette have changed from those of the time of Jason Lee yet the "pows that be" desire that we shall play "ring around the rosie" and "pussy wants a corner," by this means obtaining that element so essential to the development of manhood and womanhood—namely social relations.

Why should the minds of youth, thinking especially along this line, be expected to remain satisfied with the present conditions? We merely ask for reasonable freedom. Why should we not get it?

A Student Body Party should be held at least once a month. Class functions should be held at least twice a semester. Fraternities and sororities should give at least two recognized social functions each semester.

Each and every organization of any kind on the campus should have at least one social function a semester.

It's my belief that any successful social plan is difficult, if not impossible, to put on with present facilities and under present conditions. I sincerely believe that dancing if allowed on the campus and in the houses would go a long way toward relieving the situation. There are sufficient organizations on the campus which would not care to give dances that the social life of those who do not dance would not be neglected.

Dances in homes, fraternity and sorority houses, and in campus buildings, under proper chaperonage by faculty or approved townspeople would also help train students in social manners and poise—a phase of college life which is here almost entirely neglected!

If dancing is forbidden, I believe the faculty and trustees should be willing to suggest a constructive, helpful, and PRACTICAL plan which would be successful with a large majority of students.

COUGARS HOLD WINTER FOOTBALL WITH OVAL

WASHINGTON STATE COLLEGE, Pullman, Jan. 13.—Winter football practice is an innovation at the State College. The entire Cougar squad limbered up last week for the first of a series of indoor practices under the eagle eye and powerful voice of A. B. (Buck) Bailey, assistant coach.

A combination basketball-football game has been devised for the Cougars, all the rules of the hoop game being followed except that a football replaces the usual round ball. The game will be used frequently during the winter sessions to cure the gridders of the rather expensive fumbling habit.

Practices are to be held two or three times a week until weather permits Coach (Babe) Hollingbery's first call for outdoor practice some time in March.

KIMBALL INCREASES ITS LIBRARY SHELF SPACE

The Kimball Library shelving space has been increased forty per cent in the past two years. The increase in the size of the library has made this necessary. Two new sections have been built this fall. Several gifts of a large number of books of a religious character have come to the school in the past year. The most recent is the gift of a number of fine books from the library of the late Dr. Lisle. This gift has made possible a special shelf on the Roman Catholic church.

MOON SONG

What is the moon made of, Small Child?
I'm not sure that I know,
But I think it is made of the stuff of dreams,
For that's where all dreams go.
And the gold of your hair was first found there,
And the blue of your eyes came too;
For the blue of your eyes is the blue of the skies
Just where the moon shines through.
And the moon is made of the songs men sing
When their hearts are hurt;
and I know
The moon is made of dreams of men
For that's where all dreams go.

SALEM HIGH DEFEATS ALBANY; SCORE 39-18

ALBANY, Jan. 23.—(Special)—Salem high school had little trouble with the Albany high basketball team last night, taking home a 39-to-18 victory. The visitors took the lead in the first few minutes of play and were never threatened. Only in the final five minutes of play was Albany able to break even with the red and black.

Twelve Years Ago

Raymond Archibald, star center, will guide the Freshmen during the coming semester. "Peany" is an all-round man, and will undoubtedly put into this work the same spirit that he put into football. Great things are expected from the class of nineteen nineteen.

President Doney and Professor Von Eschen recently suffered a severe defeat at the hands of Superintendent Clark and Fred McMillin, snowball twirlers of the "Bush" league. No fatalities have been reported so far. "He who fights and runs away, may live to fight another day."

Dr. Frank W. Chace, head of the Department of Music here, has been appointed president of the chapter of National Association of Organists by Arthur Scott Brooks, president of N. A. O., whose headquarters are in New York City. It is no little honor to him.

If the 1918 Wallulah is to come out on time, the Seniors must all have their pictures taken by February 3. The sittings for the Juniors expire February 9. The Sophomores have until Valentine day, and the Frosh must be disposed of by February 23.

The members of the Beethoven club were presented in recital Saturday afternoon by Miss Joy Turner, at her studio at the College of Music. Each number was artistically executed.

After the basketball game Saturday the Philos went en masse to the Grand and to the Spa. Miss Todd chaperoned the merry crowd.

Coasting parties have formed the chief diversions of the week, and everyone has found them an excellent substitute for the round of parties and dinners which usually make up the social calendar.

Inter-class basketball is well under way. Six teams representing the Seniors, Juniors, Sophomores, Freshmen, Kimballites, Doney Secures Big Donation. Mr. Henry Clews contributes money for a library alcove in honor of the man who worked so incessantly for the Old Willamette fund. Mr. Clew's generous donation will be invested in securities, the interest on which will be used to purchase much needed books for the University library.

Professor Mathews is always in demand. Last Sunday he preached in the First Presbyterian church under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor society. The subject of his address was "Lifes' Young Dream." He was one of the judges at the debate between O. A. C., and the U. of N. D. Soon he judges a debate between Salem High and Jefferson High of Portland.
