FALL ISSUE:
1986-1987 ANNUAL REPORT OF THE PRESIDENT

That excellence tomorrow may be assured

Willamette's entering freshman class of the year 2000 enrolled in kindergarten this year. Just as they are beginning formal preparation for us, we are now preparing for them. How they and we have used the last five years and will use the next thirteen will determine the quality of the Willamette educational experience in 2000.

This report recounts the progress of the past year. I believe Willamette alumni, and those pursuing a degree here now, will be pleased to learn that the value of a Willamette University diploma is increasing. But even as we review the 1986-87 year, our eyes and actions are focused on the future. It is for those who will come after us that we strive for excellence today, that excellence tomorrow may be assured.

As I begin my eighth year at Willamette University, I am very pleased with the progress of the University. I don't subscribe to Ogden Nash's pronouncement that "progress might have been all right once, but it's gone on too long."

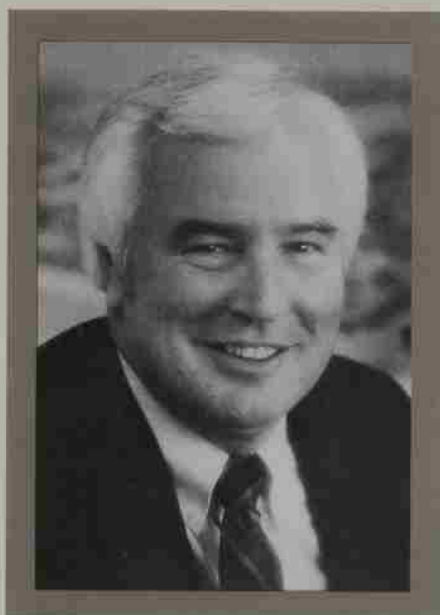

The academic quality of our students has increased even as enrollment has grown; our financial stability is evident as the endowment has risen to $70 million; we have more faculty, and they are better paid. We have successfully completed a $22 million capital campaign which has greatly improved the physical facilities on campus. We have not completed all the necessary physical improvements—we are currently converting the old library space into a new academic facility and are now looking toward restoring Waller Hall. However, our primary attention must be focused on the mission of our academic institution, that of liberal education.

The dedication and opening of the Mark O. Hatfield Library last September was truly a highlight of the 1986-87 year and is the subject of a special focus in this Annual Report. The Hatfield Library has improved the University's ability to carry out its academic mission. I am very pleased that our new library has become the center of our campus, as it is a true reflection of our purpose.

Furthermore, my attention to our academic purpose becomes even more focused when the recent number one best selling nonfiction book in America bears the subtitle, "How Higher Education Has Failed Democracy and Impoverished the Souls of Today's Students." I am happy to say that I think Willamette stands up well to Professor Allan Bloom's criticisms of American colleges and universities in his recent book, "The Closing of the American Mind."

We fare well against Bloom's criticisms because we have remained true to our academic mission. We have added to the coherence of our academic program by instituting important new major and degree requirements, increasing the attention given to curriculum integration, and increasing faculty development opportunities. These steps along with greater coordination between in- and out-of-classroom learning have all added to the intellectual and cultural vitality of Willamette University as an outstanding liberal arts institution. Although we have made much progress, there is still much more to be made as we continue the debate and discussion regarding what it really means to be liberally educated and to liberally educate our students.

Learning, of course, does not necessarily make people better or wiser. It was the stoic Seneca who remarked, "Since learned men have appeared, good men have become rare." At Willamette, we seek to educate people who as a result of their collegiate experience are both better and wiser. Education at its best can shape the quality of human life, and the progress of the past is preparation for making the University stronger and even more able to address the needs of future generations.

We are indeed preparing today for the arrival of today's and tomorrow's kindergarten children who will eventually arrive on the Willamette campus as a new generation of young adults, filled with potential and promise. This Annual Report describes the steps we are taking that we may, today and tomorrow, assist all students to fulfill their potential, achieve their aspirations, and validate our purpose for being.

The gladdened heart of Willamette

The intellect of a university resides in every scholar there, it's said, but the heart of a university is its library.

Today, more than a year after the dedication of the Mark O. Hatfield Library, Willamette's affair of the heart is still in full and happy swing. The hopes for a new library have not proved richer than the reality; a year of intense togetherness has not dulled the affections of any of the parties.

Initial excitement has calmed, of course. None of the campus community comes now just to see the sights, and the high-tech equipment is no longer a novelty but simply another tool for learning.

In short, the sparkling, spacious building has become fully a library, the hub of the campus, a place where on a given day approximately half the campus population will spend at least some time studying, reading, writing letters, listening to music, or simply talking with friends.

"This place makes people want to come to it," says Sandra Weronko, University librarian. "It's a very elegant building, but comfortable. It's not a monument. It lends itself to a variety of use that wasn't possible in the old library."

For example, casual readers usually favor the alcoves furnished with upholstered chairs and sofas. The more intense student can closet himself in a freestanding study carrel or in one of the individual study rooms that are tucked away from the madding crowd. Gregarious types can use the larger group-study rooms or sit in the open at sturdy oak tables that were transported from the old library. Equipment installed in some of the study rooms enables students to play audio and video tapes for study or pleasure.

The more spartan 24-hour study room, with its separate access and a bank of vending machines for the hungry and thirsty, is occupied not only during test season but virtually all the time.

Occupancy rates at the Hatfield Library are both a badge of success and a cause for mild complaint. On an average day, approximately a thousand people come into the library—compared with an average of 150 a day at the old library—and the most highly prized study spaces, such as the individual study rooms and the carrels, are picked off early.

"I don't know whether my students are actually studying more, but I know they're in the library much more often," says Carol Long, professor of English. "I was there early in the evening recently, and it struck me that it was just as all the planners had hoped—students were reading and talking in the [Jackson] plaza, and the 24-hour room and the library

As students spend more time in the facility, they're becoming better acquainted with its resources. "I think students have much more confidence in the library now," says George McCowen, professor of history. "When we had the old library, students would tell me 'there's nothing there' when I knew very well there was. It was simply that they weren't there long enough to find it."

The Hatfield Library contrasts sharply with its predecessor, built in 1937 and characterized 40 years later by a nationally recognized library authority as "a major stumbling block against student learning in the University." By the 1980s it clearly had outlived its usefulness, and the structural design stymied any attempts to make substantial improvements.

Upperclassmen remember the facility well. "It was a dismal place," says senior Becky Hartzell flatly.

"I hated it," says Chris Baker, a junior from West Linn, OR. "I hardly ever went into it."

Dan Wagner, a junior physics major from Billings, MT, is a little more temperate. "The old library didn't attract me, but the new one actually encourages studying. I'm here three or four nights a week."

Faculty also log many hours in the new building. "I use the library a great deal, especially for reading," says Suresht Bald, professor of political science. "It's very pleasant to sit there in a comfortable chair and, when you look up, to see the millstream."

Some faculty echo Bald's wish for more books and periodicals in the collection—"Who would not?" she says philosophically—but others are inclined to think as Prof. Gilbert LaFreniere of the Environmental Science department, who says, "The idea is excellent: have a focused collection and bring in what else you need through interlibrary loan."

In fact, the collection has steadily been increasing by about 6,000 volumes a year; currently it stands at 165,000 volumes. Periodical subscriptions are up to 1,130 which is 85 more than in 1984-85. And annual circulation has skyrocketed from 17,500 in 1984-85 to nearly 32,000 in 1986-87. An additional 16,000 reserve materials circulated last year.

The computerized online catalog, accessible from 13 terminals in the library, is the "open sesame" for this treasury.

Students have embraced the new technology gladly and say they find it generally easier to use than the traditional card catalog. Though some faculty speak wistfully of the pleasure of browsing in the old card catalog, most of them too see the new system as an advantage.

The Music Department, however, feels more than the pangs of nostalgia from the loss of the old catalog, which had been part of the department's music library before it was consolidated with the rest of the collection in the Hatfield Library.

"We sometimes feel we've come to the altar of technology to no avail," says Bruce McIntosh, associate professor of music. "The main problem is with the records. It can take up to an hour to locate a single work. Or, if a song is on the second side of the record, it may not be listed at all."

With different software and perhaps a separate hardware system for the music library, McIntosh believes the problems could be much alleviated.

On the plus side, music students have benefitted from the listening rooms at the library. McIntosh points out. The rooms permit listening and discussion simultaneously; before, students listened on headphones first and discussed later what they'd heard.

"Overall, the library has turned out extremely well," says McIntosh. "It makes absolute sense to centralize knowledge on campus, and the Hatfield has the facilities and the staff to make it work beautifully."

In the business of education

The Hatfield Library's impressive resources include 165,000 volumes, more than 1,100 periodical subscriptions, and a staff dedicated to seeing that students know how to make the best possible use of it all.

The service begins at the reference desk, which is staffed seven days a week until 10 p.m.

"The reference librarians are fantastic," enthuses sophomore Kraig Powell of Salt Lake City. "Just ask them a question and you have everything you want and more."

"They're always helpful," says JoAnn DiGiulio, a senior from San Jose, CA. "And friendly. You don't get the feeling they're doing you a favor. They're really interested."

Besides the standard range of reference services, Sandy Weronko and her staff of five professional librarians provide a highly tailored program of library instruction to help students be more productive and efficient scholar-researchers.

Each year, librarians work with faculty and students in about 100 different courses, preparing students for major research projects required by the courses.

A library instruction class starts when the librarian meets with the professor who's teaching the course. "We want to know the course goals," says Weronko, "because they're central to the research strategy—which is what we're really trying to teach."

"It doesn't do a student much good to pull together a mound of literature on a subject if very little of the material really pertains to the aspect he's planning to write about. Our aim is to help students become more sophisticated, critical researchers."

Students aren't the only beneficiaries. The program also helps the librarians spot possible gaps in the collection. And for the faculty's part, as Prof. George McCowen of the History department says, "After 10 years of these classes, I still seem to learn something new each time."

Few university libraries offer such an intensive program, Weronko says, primarily because it is so much work for the librarians. However, she sees it as an essential part of the library's mission. "We're in the business of education," she notes, "not in the business of information."

Enriching the experience

The 1986-87 year focused on further strengthening the University's academic and cultural programs.

In January, the College of Liberal Arts faculty took a bold step forward with the interdisciplinary curriculum, approving a new comprehensive humanities course to be required of all freshmen beginning in fall 1987. "World Views" brings together faculty and disciplines from throughout the College in a challenging examination of the forces and processes that create a particular era's world view. Led by Professors David Goodney, Robert Hawkinson, and Kenneth Nolley, faculty spent months designing the course and coordinating the 23-member team to teach it.

The innovative "World Views" course was inspired largely by successes in a continuing Willamette program to enrich the humanities curriculum. That program, funded in part by a three-year grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities, has brought a number of illustrious scholars to Willamette for seminars and one-on-one discussions with faculty and students. Visiting scholars last year included Robin Wood of the film studies program at York University (Toronto), William L. Rowe from the philosophy department at Purdue University, and Barbara Johnson of Harvard University's department of romance languages.

Classroom learning also was enriched for many students by internships in off-campus jobs and through foreign study programs. Internships in 1986-87 included posts in the field offices of U.S. Sen. Mark O. Hatfield and California Congressman Doug Bosco.

Foreign study programs in Spain and Germany were active during the year and continued to be very popular. The London program, with a record number of applicants, was expanded to include an additional campus at Watford. During the summer, a group of students also traveled to China for a month's study at Willamette's sister university, Xiamen University in Fujian Province. A new Asian study opportunity was developed during the year for implementation in 1988-89: a semester of study at all three sister universities, Xiamen in China, Tokyo International in Japan, and Kookmin in Seoul.

The Atkinson Graduate School of Management continued its vigorous program of outreach activities, including the student-run Conference on Entrepreneurship in the spring. The fourth annual conference brought some 400 aspiring and experienced entrepreneurs to campus to hear Oregon Gov. Neil Goldschmidt, Horizon Airlines chairman Milton G. Kuolt II, and numerous other business leaders. In January, the School and the Oregon Futures Commission teamed as co-sponsors of another major conference, "Oregon Tomorrow and Today," which presented the commission's major policy and legislative recommendations on long-term economic development.

At the College of Law, the Center for Dispute Resolution held its third annual Conference on Dispute Resolution which honored Willamette graduate U.S. Sen. Robert Packwood and the United Nations Environment Programme; both were recognized for excellence in consensus building. During the year, the Center also expanded professional staff in the Legal Services Clinic, extended its dispute resolution workshop activity as far afield as Guam, and sponsored a seminar for groups involved in Oregon environmental disputes.

The College of Law's summer study program in China completed its third successful year at the East China Institute of Politics and Law in Shanghai. One of only two such programs in the country, it attracts law students from across the United States as well as from Willamette.

Throughout the academic year, the Willamette community was edified and entertained by a rich variety of speakers, performers, and artists.

The Atkinson Lecture Series in its premier season brought two eminent speakers to campus: noted diplomatic envoy and mediator Ambassador Philip Habib, and Pulitzer-Prize-winning columnist Ellen Goodman. The campus Educational Programs Committee also sponsored such major speakers as political satirist Mark Russell and NOW president Eleanor Smeal, and co-sponsored intercultural performing arts events such as the Northwest Afrikan American Ballet and the Trinidad Tripoli Steele Band.

The Distinguished Artists Series included soprano Barbara Pearson, the Classical Quartet, and pianist Claude Helffer. Other notable music events included the visit of jazz greats Ashley Alexander and Don Lanphere to campus to play in the sixth annual Willamette University Jazz Festival.

Theatre productions during the year included "Fifth of July," "The Alchemist," and "Skin of our Teeth." In summer 1986, Dr. William Iron and the Theatre Department launched an exciting new venture in Gold Beach, OR, featuring Willamette students and directors in "110 Degrees in the Shade," "The Effect of Gamma Rays on Man-in-the-Moon Marigolds," and "Black Comedy." The repertory company received enthusiastic reviews both for the quality of the productions and for the liveliness the theatre injected into the local cultural scene.

Art Department faculty Mary Ann Johns and Robert Hess were among exhibitors at the Hallie Brown Ford Gallery during the year. A highlight of the season was an exhibit organized by gallery director Hess, "First-Rate Secondary Show," which honored exceptional work done by middle- and high-school students in the Salem area.

Weekly convocations, sponsored by the Chaplain's Office, involved the campus community in discussion of major social and political issues. Featured speakers included the Rev. Colin Jones, a black Anglican priest from South Africa; Robert Proudfoot, speaking about the Sandinista revolution in Nicaragua; and the Rev. Calvin McConnell, United Methodist bishop.

A record of distinction

University enrollment reached a new high in 1986-87 with 1,961 students in the three colleges. The number of undergraduates rose from 1,409 the previous year to 1,437; enrollment in the College of Law and the Atkinson Graduate School of Management held steady at 397 and 127 respectively.

Characteristically, students were at least as enthusiastic about their extracurricular activities as their studies, and many earned distinction for themselves and Willamette in the course of their pursuits.

Ten students were named Academic All-Americans; 18 others were named athletic All-Americans. Three students—Tony Elsinga, Anne Heislein, and Barry Melin—made both rosters for their performances in scholarship and swimming. Two Willamette athletes were named NAIA District 2 Player of the Year—Tracy Deeming of the women's soccer team and Ken Allen of the men's golf team.

The University Choir made a concert tour of Japan in the fall and another of the Northwest in the spring. The forensics team made a very strong showing in regional and national competitions, ranking as high as 65th in the nation at one point during second semester. Karyn Phillips and Cathy Tracy Krzmarzick placed first and second, respectively, in communication analysis at the Pi Kappa Delta national tournament in the spring.

The student-run Bistro cafe, located on the ground floor of Putnam University Center, opened in the fall and quickly became a popular gathering spot for faculty and students alike. Besides offering gourmet food and a place for relaxed conversation, the Bistro also served as an occasional site for seminar classes as well as the regular site for weekly Rap Sessions sponsored by the Chaplain's Office.

Besides the regular and second-season productions in the Theatre Department, dozens of students contributed time and talent to "In-time," a monthly variety-show production. The Theatre Department helped support the activity, intended as an alternative platform for students who want to present works that do not require full staging and lengthy rehearsals.

The following are among the Willamette students who won recognition for their outstanding work during the year.

BY CHAMBERLAIN

Kane Ahuna, John Blatt, Brett Johnson, Chris Mathias, Eric Moore, Sherry Neumeister, Amy Pelton, Shelly Reed, and Ann Weber Named athletic All-Americans in swimming.

Claudia Andrews Selected for the prestigious Presidential Management Intern program, a highly selective federal executive training program.

Heidi Buckmaster, Kevin Connors, Bob DeVylde, Gareth Pooleon, Jim Williams, and Lara Wright Named athletic All-Americans in track and field.

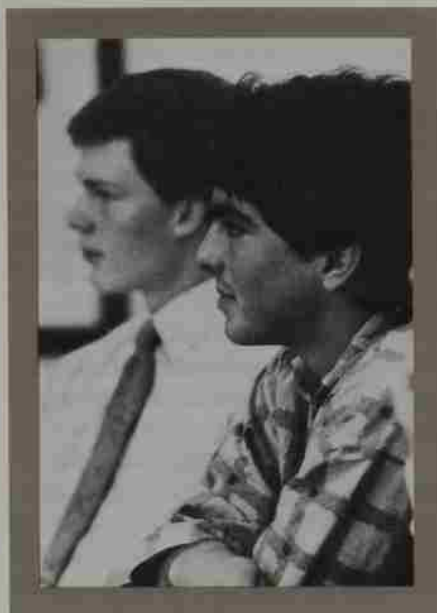

Amy Cannon Received a graduate assistantship in percussion at Miami University (Ohio).

Chris Duquette, Susan Carlson, Nancy McDowell, and Tom Ward As the Willamette University Business Policy Team, won first place in their division of the International Collegiate Business Policy Games at the University of Nevada, Reno.

Scott Edgar Received an Oregon Heart Association Summer Research Fellowship at Oregon Health Sciences University.

Steve Farnes, Russell Kaupu, and Pete Smith Named Academic All-Americans in football.

Marilyn Fishback Named Academic All-American in cross country.

JILL CARNEFAX

David Gilroy Named athletic All-American in cross country.

Kevin Guay Named Outstanding Criminal Law Student from Willamette's third-year class by the Criminal Law Section of the Oregon State Bar.

Randy Jacobs Named Academic All-American in track and field.

Leah Johnson Presented her senior research paper to the Oregon Academy of Science and the Northwest Undergraduate Research Conference.

Donna Kalama Named Academic All-American in basketball.

Mark Kennedy and Punit Renjen Named by Oregon Business Magazine in its list of top ten business students in the state.

Katie Mobley Presented a paper to the Oregon Academy of Science.

JILL CARNEFAX

JILL CARNEFAX

Kathryn Moore Presented a paper to the Oregon Academy of Science.

Christi North Received an annual $5,000 scholarship from the State Department of Education.

Todd Olson Granted a one-year fellowship for intensive Japanese study at Tokyo International University.

Gerry Preston Named an Academic All-American. Received an NCAA Post-Graduate Scholarship.

Mark Walterskirchen Presented the results of his senior research project to the Oregon Academy of Science and the Willamette University Board of Trustees. Won second place for best paper at the Northwest Undergraduate Research Conference. Received a graduate scholarship from the Salem Hospital Auxiliary to medical school at the University of Washington in fall 1987.

Alfred Yu Awarded the Oregon Planning Forum's scholarship for a strategic management essay on the financial services industry.

ALL-AMERICAN

The University awarded 394 degrees in May 1987 to 383 students. Graduates received 235 bachelor's degrees, 47 master's degrees, and 134 Doctor of Jurisprudence degrees. Eleven students received both an M.M and a J.D. degree.

In addition to their classroom teaching, many faculty involved themselves deeply in the broader architecture of the curriculum, designing the innovative "World Views" freshman seminar and aggressively pursuing their own scholarship through research, professional activity, and publication.

Faculty in the College of Law gained new leadership in the spring with the selection of Robert L. Misner as dean of the college, succeeding Prof. Leroy Tornquist who wished to resume teaching full time. Prof. Misner, formerly on the law faculty at Arizona State University, has taught at the University of Virginia, the University of Minnesota, and Sydney University in Australia. He served a year as a special assistant to former Arizona Gov. Bruce Babbitt and as a special assistant attorney general of Arizona. He has authored a book and numerous articles in journals and other publications.

Two endowed chairs in the Atkinson Graduate School of Management were filled during 1986-87. Fred Thompson arrived in the fall from Columbia University's School of International and Public Affairs to take up the chair of the Elmer and Grace Goudy Professor of Public Policy and Management, succeeding the late Dr. William Medina. Dr. Thompson had also taught at the University of British Columbia and at the University of California at Los Angeles. In January, Richard W. Wright joined the GSM faculty as Willamette's first Helen Simpson Jackson Professor of International Management. Dr. Wright, formerly of McGill University in Montreal, founded and led McGill's International Business Area which is considered Canada's foremost program of international business studies. He is a recognized authority on business and trade with Japan and has lived in Japan on several occasions.

In the College of Liberal Arts, a number of faculty again took advantage of the Willamette Fellowships in the Humanities program funded through a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities. To date, research has resulted in 17 major papers, many of which have been submitted for publication.

Two faculty received special recognition for their teaching excellence. Joanne (Jodi) Engel of the Education Department and Norman Hudak of the Chemistry Department received awards and $1,500 stipends from the Burlington Northern Foundation.

Dr. Engel, who joined the faculty in 1980, is regarded as an outstanding teacher and contributor both in and out of the classroom. She has served as chair of the Education Department, as a member of the Oregon Legislature's Interim Committee on Education, and as president of the Deans of Education of Oregon Private Universities. Recently, she was also appointed by the governor to serve on the Oregon Teacher Standards and Practices Commission, which plays a major role in setting criteria for teacher education in the state.

Dr. Hudak's colleagues refer to him as a master teacher with exceptional organizational skills and an ability to teach diverse courses to students at every level. Students remark on his ability to catch and hold their interest even in introductory courses that meet early in the morning. Dr. Hudak is a 25-year member of the faculty and currently chairman of the Chemistry Department.

Other faculty made notable contributions to their disciplines and their communities during the year. The following is a list of some of those contributions.

JILL DANNEFAX

Robert Art Authored "Securities Law Aspects of Condominium, Cooperative and Timeshare Marketing Programs" in 4B R. Powell, The Law of Real Property 54B-1 (P. Rohan, rev. ed.) 1986. Helped author the Oregon Business Corporations Act which passed the state legislature in 1987.

Suresht Bald Authored "Power and the Powerlessness of Rural and Urban Women in Premchand's Godaan" in the Journal of South Asian Literature, Spring/Summer 1987. Received an Atkinson Fund grant to research the South Asian presence in England.

Martin Behnke Wrote two new compositions for band, "Reflections on a Bach Melody" and "Two Folk Settings for Hanukkah." Wrote five choral arrangements that have been or will be published by Columbia Picture Publications.

Charles Bowles Cited as Outstanding Health Educator of the Year by the Oregon Association of Health Educators. Also named Men's Cross Country Coach of the Year and Men's Track Coach of the Year by the NAIA District 2.

Donald Breakey Served as president of the Representatives of the Consortium of Malheur Field Station, a facility in Harney County, Oregon serving 26 colleges and universities in Oregon, Washington, and Idaho.

James Brik Authored "Twenty Questions Concerning East German Swimming: An Interview with Dr. Lotar Kipke" in Swimming World, January 1987. Presented a paper, "Neurolinguistic Programming and Disarming Pre-Competitive Anxiety in Children," to the Pacific Swim Coaches Association in Napa, CA.

Russell Cagle Authored Instructor's Manual to First Aid and Emergency Care (Publishing Horizons, Inc., second ed.) 1986.

Jeanne Clark Authored "A. Masterman King: Rhetorical Raconteur" in Communication Quarterly, Fall 1986.

Catherine Collins Presented a paper, "Cultural Stories in the Rhetoric of America's Involvement in Vietnam," to the Conference on Communication and Culture, Philadelphia.

R. Wright Cowger Appointed associate editor, American Middle School Education, the journal of the National Association of Middle School Administrators.

Robert Dash Editor, Latin American Perspectives, Spring 1987.

Michael Dunlap Presented a paper, "New Horizons in Data Structures," to the Computers and the Mind of Man Symposium, Eugene, OR. Authored "Non-Linear Data Structures: Introduction to Binary Trees" in The Computing Teacher, March 1986, and "Non-Linear Data Structures: Inorder Binary Tree Traversal" in The Computing Teacher, April 1986. Authored "What Is Computer Science?" in ICCE Special Interest Group Journal on Computer Science Education, April 1986.

Peter Eilers Authored "The State of Scientific Research and Research Needs" in Proceedings of the Northwest Wetlands Conference, University of Washington Institute of Environmental Studies, 1987. Received Atkinson Fund grant to research wetland plants and water level fluctuations.

Michael Finigan Authored "Evaluation of the Court Annexed Arbitration Program in the State of Oregon" with Christopher Simoni and Michael Wise, a report to the Chief Justice of the Oregon Supreme Court, 1986. Authored "Report on Kaestner's Santa Clara Research," "Report on Evaluating Traffic Violator Schools," and "Report on Accident Research: Problems and Prospects" for the National Traffic Safety Institute.

James Frew Authored "The Value of a Real Estate Franchise" with G. Donald Jud, Journal of Urban Studies (23) 1986. Authored "Who Pays the Broker's Commission?" with G. Donald Jud, in The Economics of Urban Property Rights, vol. 10 of Research in Law and Economics (JAI Press) 1987. Authored "Multiple Listing Service Participation in the Real Estate Brokerage Industry: Cooperation or Competition" in Journal of Urban Economics (21) Spring 1987. Presented a paper, "A Simulation Model of Commercial Office Space Construction," to the American Real Estate Society, Orlando, FL 1987. Presented a paper, "The Vacancy Rate and Rent Levels in the Commercial Office Market," with G. Donald Jud to the American Economic Association in New Orleans, 1986.

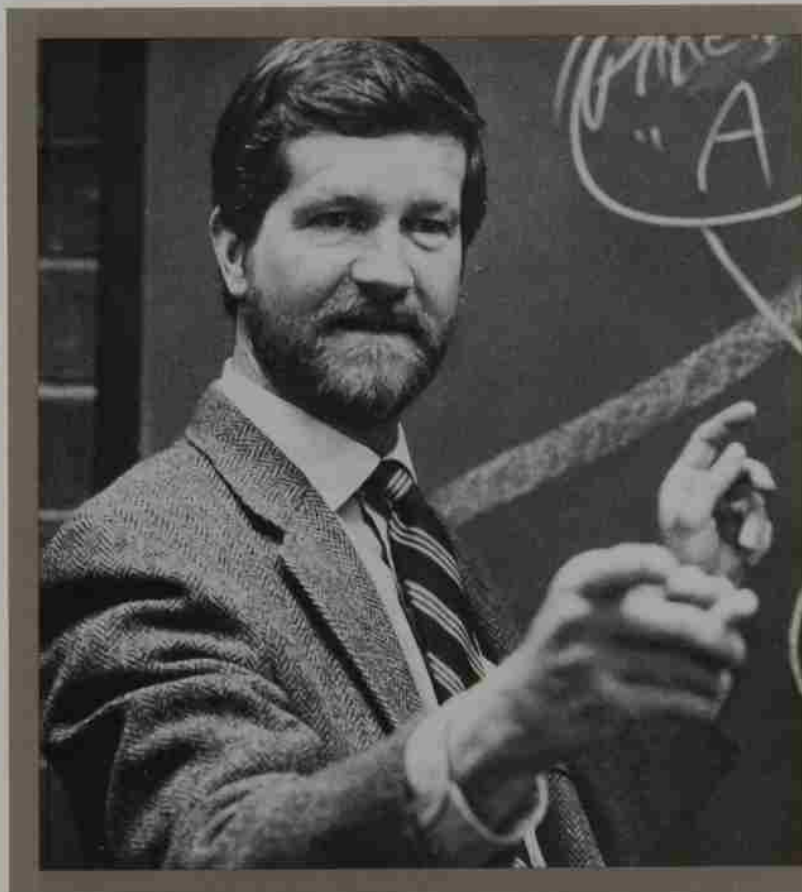

Walter Gerson Presented a paper, "Social Control in the American West: Living Continuities," to the National Social Science Association, Seattle.

Louis Goble Authored six reviews of works in mathematical logic in Zentralblatt für mathematik. His novel, "The Kaleoide," was translated into German and published in three volumes.

David Goodney Authored "Analysis of Vitamin C by High-Pressure Liquid Chromatography" in Journal of Chemical Education, February 1987.

Richard Hagedorn Authored Cumulative Supplement no. 1 to H. Bailey Brady on Bank Checks (fifth ed.). Authored 1987 Cumulative Supplement no. 1 to Debtor-Creditor Law Manual with T. Crandall and F. Smith.

James S. Hanson Authored "Economics: A Career Option" in Private Colleges and Universities, 1987. Board member, Oregon

HEX 204

Council for the Social Studies, and the Salem United Nations Association. Executive Council member, Oregon Academy of Science, economics section.

Scott Hawke Authored "The Electron Microscope and the Liberal Arts" in Journal of College Science Teaching (16) 1987.

Robert Hawkinson Received a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities to prepare a senior seminar on Toqueville's Democracy in America.

Robert Hess Commissioned to create a bronze portrait of U.S. Bancorp Chairman and CEO John A. Elorriaga. Exhibited at the Oregon Sculpture Symposium Exhibition, Maude Kearns Art Center, Eugene; and at the Washington-Oregon Juried Exhibition, the Maryhill Museum of Art, Goldendale, WA. Won third place in the All-Oregon Exhibition, State Fairgrounds, Salem.

Stephen Hey Edited Impaired and Disabled People in Society: Structure, Processes, and the Individual (Willamette University and the Society for Disability Studies, 1987) with Gary Kiger and John Seidel. Treasurer and board member, Society for Disability Studies.

Thomas Hibbard Presented a paper, "Demystifying the Discounting Process as a Basis for Selecting Appropriate Discount Rates," to the Oregon Trial Lawyers Association, Portland. Member, Water Supply Working Group, National Council on Public Works Improvement. Chairman, Independent Liberal Arts Colleges Abroad.

Roger Hull Presented a paper, "Rudolf Eickemeyer: The Photography of Nostalgia," to the Pictorial Photography Symposium, Hudson River Museum, Yonkers, NY, February 1987.

Carol Ireson Presented a paper, "Re-thinking Development: Village Focused Models in Laos," with Randall Ireson to the Regional Southeast Asian Studies Conference, Berkeley, CA. Presented a paper, "Village Women's Subsistence Work: An Example of Project Development in Socialist Laos," to the Association for Women in Development, Washington, DC. Authored "Rural Women in Liberated Laos," in Indochina Issues, January 1987. With Randall Ireson, received a grant from the Indochina Program of the Social Science Research Council to study traditional patterns of cooperation in rural Lao society.

Randall Ireson Authored "Landholding, Agricultural Modernization, and Income Concentration: A Mexican Example" in Economic Development and Cultural Change (35, 2) January 1987. Authored "Building a Nation: Lao Government in Rural Areas" in Indochina Issues, March 1987.

Bryan Johnston Authored Ending It: Dispute Resolution in America with Susan Leeson (Center for Dispute Resolution, Willamette University College of Law) 1986. Authored "Rulings on Evidence" in Evidence, ch. 2 (Oregon State Bar CLE) 1986.

Gilbert LaFreniere Received a National Endowment for the Humanities grant to research and publish on "Rousseau and the Roots of Environmentalism" and to write "Ideas of Progress: A Collection of

BEL CANNON

An inspiring show of support

Willamette University enjoyed a record level of financial support in 1986-87, with gifts and grants of more than $9.1 million. Private gifts, including a $1.25 million gift from alumnus William B. Smullin '29, made up $7.3 million of the total.

This is an inspiring show of support for the ideals that Willamette pursues. On behalf of the University, I extend sincere thanks to all who have so generously given. Please take a moment or two to look through the complete gifts report included in these pages, where we recognize and thank those who make it possible to continue the tradition of excellence at Willamette.

The University's operating budget of more than $19.6 million drew $14 million in revenues from tuition and fees and nearly $3.7 million from auxiliary enterprises including room and board and the University bookstore.

The University's endowment, which at fiscal yearend had a market value of nearly $70 million, contributed more than $900,000 in unrestricted income to the operating budget. Total endowment income was $6.8 million including realized gains and losses.

Instruction and academic support represented the largest share of the unrestricted-fund expenditures at $9 million. Student services and student aid were another $3.79 million.

For the tenth consecutive year, the University ended 1986-87 with a surplus in its operating budget. The surplus, the strength of the endowment, and the generosity of our donors and contributors create an environment of financial stability in which the University and its work can flourish.

1986-87 Annual Gifts Report

Dear Fellow Alums,

The good news is alums came forward in record numbers last year to support their alma mater.

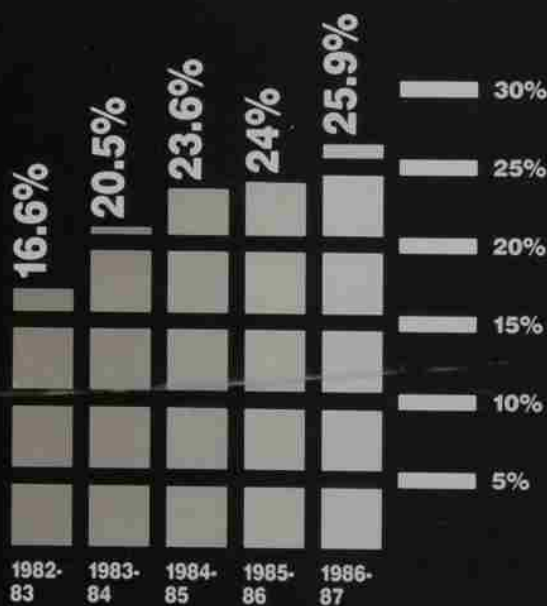

More good news is that alumni giving exceeded its goal for the first time in many years.

And still more good news is that alumni support has made it possible for Willamette University to firm up academic programs and provide scholarship help to more students.

There is no bad news. Thank you, alumni, for everything. The University belongs to you.

Marvin F. Case '65
Chairman,
Alumni Annual Funds 1985-87

Alumni Participation in Annual Funds

The Jason Lee Society

The Jason Lee Society is the highest of Willamette's contributing organizations. Named for the principal founder of Willamette University, this organization honors donors who contribute $1,000 or more annually to the University.

Gustavus Hines, an early trustee, tells of the sacrifices that saw "many of the persons cheerfully giving from one-quarter to one-third of all they possessed in the world" that the Oregon Institute, Willamette's forerunner, might be established in 1842. Lee himself made the ultimate sacrifice, dying while traveling in search of financial support. His entire estate was left to the school, and his gift continues to affect the lives of young people attending his beloved school almost 150 years later.

This contributing organization honors donors who believe in education and who are committed to supporting their beliefs with major financial gifts. Their gifts reflect the generous sacrifices and commitment of the early pioneers as exemplified by Jason Lee.

The Waller Society

The Waller Society is named for Alvan F. Waller, who carried on the tradition of service and devotion begun by Jason Lee. This society honors those donors who contribute $500 to $999 annually to Willamette.

It was Alvan Waller, as a trustee, who bore the responsibility for developing the financial well-being of Willamette as the University grew. It was he who found the funds and supervised the construction of what is now known as Waller Hall, completed in 1867 and the physical cornerstone upon which the University has grown over the years.

The Waller Society, like the Waller name in Willamette's history, represents a solid commitment to the financial support of the University and a building block upon which the future of the University can be secured.

The Century Club

The Century Club honors those donors who contribute $100 to $249 annually to Willamette. It is the club in which a tradition of annual giving to the University is built and from which the other contributing organizations flow. As the backbone of donor support for the University, the Century Club represents a most valuable base upon which the future of Willamette will be built.

For the third consecutive year, the University admitted a 400-member freshmen class in 1986-87. Fifty-one percent of the 403 freshmen graduated in the top 10 percent of their high school class. Twenty were National Merit scholars, 29 were valedictorians, and 11 were salutatorians. Freshmen average combined SAT scores (verbal and math) held steady at 1100; average high school academic-subject grade-point averages were 3.5.

Environmental conflicts in Oregon may be reduced if adversaries get to know each other better as individuals and professionals. Bryan Johnston, director of the Center for Dispute Resolution in the College of Law, led an innovative two-day workshop on negotiation and mediation in March 1987 for farmers, timber owners, environmentalists, tribal representatives, government agency officials, and others typically involved in environmental disputes.

Willamette's China connection drew law faculty and students from Willamette and students from other schools across the United States to a four-week session at the East China Institute of Politics and Law in Shanghai, where one of their host faculty was Shu Hwai-Yu, the attorney for the Gang of Four. At Xiamen University, a group from the College of Liberal Arts studied for a month at Xiamen University in Fujian Province.

Barbara Lewalski, Harvard professor and eminent Milton scholar, discusses "Paradise Lost" with Colleen Cushing, a student in Prof. Richard Lord's Milton seminar. Dr. Lewalski is among the 14 nationally recognized scholars to lecture and teach at Willamette under a visiting scholar program funded through the National Endowment for the Humanities.

We have made every effort to compile a complete and accurate list of donors for the period June 1, 1986 to May 31, 1987. We offer our apologies for any errors or omissions, and would appreciate your bringing them to our attention by telephone or letter.

REFLECTIONS
Watercolor

Elmer Edwin Young
(1892-1981).
From the collection donated by the artist to Willamette University in memory of his wife, Verda Karen McCracken Young (1909-1967), Class of 1931. Young was professor of art at the University of Minnesota for many years and continued his active involvement in the arts after his retirement to Salem.

THE ART OF LIVING. THE ART OF GIVING.

Thoughtful giving, like fine art, lingers long after the creator is gone. The treasures of life include not only beautiful paintings but also those causes and purposes with which we frame our personal beliefs, commitments, and priorities.

It is important to consider how one's living, how one's giving, will leave an imprint on the tapestry of life.
