Hurrah for our band.

Come to the game Friday.

The most important game of the season will be played Friday.

City Y. M. C. A. Sec. Fechter and Wm. G. Greenleaf were Chapel visitors Friday morning.

The University band made its first public appearance Saturday and served to enliven the game with several fine selections. They will be on hand at the big game next Friday.

The Y. M. and Y. W. C. A. will hold a joint meeting in the Chapel Sunday at 3 o'clock to which every student is invited.

rough and tumble work the Freshies succeeded in releasing their man from the belfry without losing the coveted pennant.

The Sophs resolved to at least equal the record of their rival class and on Friday morning the '06 banner held the position of honor. Immediately after chapel the Freshies endeavored to make away with the hated rag. The roof was fairly alive with men, rushing here and there, scrambling through the belfry lattice work and out again. Two Sophs, however, soon barricaded themselves in the belfry and kept their banner afloat till late in the afternoon. Thus ended the struggle with honors about equally divided. The Freshmen claim the advantage because they were the first to hoist a pennant.

The Sophomores claim the advantage because their flag floated a day and they secured a Freshman flag besides.

Both sides appreciate the neutral attitude of the faculty.

PHILODORIAN.

On Friday evening the Philodorian once more convened, but on account of the Freshmen and Sophomore class strife several numbers, including the debate, had to be omitted. Dean Hawley, however, was present, and very ably filled the gap in the evening's programme by a most excellent address. After touching upon several items of society reforms, the speaker directed his remarks toward two points especially—the necessity of work and hard thinking to the production of any stable advancement. His earnestness and impressive manner seemed to drive every truth directly into the hearts and minds of his hearers, and when he spoke of Webster's rise from an awkward farmer's boy to the greatest orator in America through sheer work, and concluded with an extract from Webster's reply to Hayne, the enthusiasm of his auditors could no longer be restrained and one prolonged cheer broke forth as a demonstration of their universal appreciation.

The program for the evening as rendered was as follows:

"Hail Willamette," Society.

Composition, J. T. Uptike.

Essay, "Crater Lake," E. J. Winans.

Lecture, F. L. Grannis.

Current Events, J. G. Heltzell.

the members stay away when they do not feel inclined to come and then they send in some trivial excuse, expecting it to be accepted. The society cannot do this, and so a fine is levied. These are then presented to those whom they are due, and the constitution provides that if they are not paid within a stated time the delinquent one shall be dropped from the roll. It is sincerely hoped that no girl will make it necessary for this to be done. The society is trying to work itself up and to make itself a potent factor in the school. It can be done if every member, whether she be on the program or not, comes to the meetings, and when she is on the program, gives to the other members some thing that is worth listening to. This program was rendered at the last meeting.

A MEDIC FRESHIE'S EXPERIENCE.

When I first came to school, I asked where the medical college was, and they told me to go and see the Dean. Well, I used to know a boy by that name, so I thought maybe it was the same one. When I went into his office I asked him if this was Dean? He said yes. Well, I then told him he had grown lots and had become quite a man. Then I asked him where the Medical College was. He told me to go toward Ladd & Bush's bank, so I started right then. "Well," he said, "hold on," so I thought if I could get there and get in where the money was I would hold on. Then he said go up that stairs just this side of the bank and I would find the lecture hall. I told him I didn't know just exactly what that was, but I had hauled wheat and vegetables up home and thought I could soon learn it.

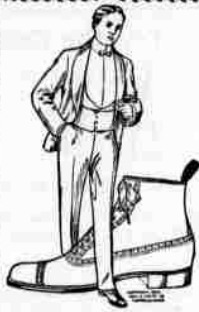

Well he said for me to appear there in the morning so the boys found me there next morning trying to make appearance. I asked what the first class was and they told me it was Osteology, I said yes I had seen pictures of them in Almanacs and some of the larger varieties layed enormous eggs.

Well Prof. Smith came about that time so I introduced myself to Hunter and gave him my hand with my name and address on it and asked him to tear me through that class. The prof. asked some one where the spinesus processes were and he told him they were in the middle line; then I punched Hunter and asked him if they used a middle line down here. I told him we drive with only two in Eastern Oregon.

There were two pairs of boxing gloves lying on a bench close to me and I kept my eye on them. Pretty soon the class was done and I asked Hunter what was next and he told me I would "get next" if I stayed around very long. Then he said that Smith No. 2 would come in a minute and give us Theory and Practice, so I pulled my coat off and got ready to take some practice, too. I thought he meant with the gloves, of course.

After while the boys took me to the dead house, and asked me if I wanted to dissect. Yes, I told them I would desist right away, for it was too much for me.

I inclined to society, so Hunter took me to a social, and I got acquainted with some of the people there, and in a few weeks I was invited to a swell party at the College of Music, and they called on me for a toast. I told them I was quite fond of it and if they would show me where it was I thought I could do quite well. They told me they meant for me to make a speech; then

Kinney Miller butted in and said, "Yes, we want to hear from the vegetable man."

Well, I had a turnup nose and redish hair, so I knew he meant me. Well, by this time I thought I was the only microbe there and that they must all be interested in me, and that I came from among people of rank and honor and I was just as rank as any as any of them. I told them I was a member of the W. C. U. T., and that I was interested in downing the awful curse of intemperance; that I had downed a good deal of it already. Just then Whiteman bawled me out and said, "Yes, I saw you down at the Senate trying to down some of it."

Well, I couldn't think of any more to say just then, so I sat down. Then they all clapped their hands, so I thought that meant to get up and go at it again, so I told them some more of my experience. I told them I went to see my girl one night, and we talked about the different National emblems and their characteristic doings. She said the American eagle screamed sometimes. Well, in a few days she saw me again and said she dreamed I came to see her, and she didn't scream, but she thought I was the Czar of Russia so you see I made an impression that time.

MANAGERS ELECTED.

defeated last season was the famous Portland "All Stars."

Of last year's team Parsons, an old stand-by forward, goes to Alaska.

The rest of the players are in school again, and all playing football. As a result of their football work, they will undoubtedly all be in good playing trim for the gym floor.

Judd will in all probability hold his place as one forward, though Jerman and Miller will undoubtedly each play a strong game at the same position.

Pollard, captain of last year, and best center in the northwest, will play his usual strong game. Matthews and Winslow as guards each played a fast game last year, and will without question play even better this season.

The above players are by no means sure of their positions as there are a number of last year's "subs" who will make a good showing for places. Among such are Simpson, Grannis, Hunt, Chapler, Morris, Spalding, Price and Shanks, while there are a number of newcomers who will show up well.

Taking everything into consideration Willamette has a very good chance to be champion for 1903-4.

The student body were wise in their selection of W. C. Winslow for manager. He is an old player himself and ex-manager for 1901-02 and has all the qualifications for a good official. Among the many events which he is endeavoring to schedule for them this year is a southern trip which will include games with Stanford, University of California, Oakland and San Francisco. Other big games will be with the "All Stars" and if possible with the Seattle Y. M. C. A. which is the only team we met last year, that we are willing to concede to have been our superior.

VICTORY.

Willamette, 30; Dentals, 0.

Victory has once more perched above the cardinal jerseys and we believe she has come to stay. On a wet field, before a slim crowd of spectators, the Portland Dentals went down to defeat last Saturday to the tune of 30 to 0. Though the "tooth pullers" were considerably heavier than our team, they were outplayed at every stage of the game. Time and time again Long, Pollard and James were sent through the holes made by Love, Judd, Knotts and Hewitt, for big gains. It was a common thing to see Pollard go down the field with three or four Dentals hanging on to him.

Long distinguished himself by making a line buck and carrying the pigskin 70 yards nearer the Portland goal, and also by hurdling a would be tackler. James played like a demon and could always be counted upon for substantial gains. These were not the only ones who carried the ball, however, for Miller, Judd and Hewitt also had their turn at it. Miller's kicking was certainly a feature of the game, as it could not possibly have been surpassed by any one. He kicked five straight goals, and this, too, with a slippery ball, and part of them in a blinding rain.

Not only was our team superior on the offensive, but on the defensive as well. Our ends Beauchamp and Rebhan being the stars in this part of the programme. Their tackling was sure, and the way they broke up interference was not slow. Beauchamp especially distinguished himself by the way in which he so successfully handled Eastman, the big Dental half-back. Matthews also put up a good game, upon taking Rebhan's place in the last half. Unruh at center was a sure passer and played a good game throughout.

The visitors played good individual ball, but showed a lack of team work and training. Eastman at half and Gibson at end were the star players for the visitors. No one was hurt and the very best of feeling prevailed throughout the game.

The field was in good condition considering the day, and was the only one in the state which was not a sea of mud. The Portlanders were highly pleased with it, pronouncing it far superior to the Multnomah field.

Y. W. C. A. CONVENTION.

A Profitable Time Spent at Albany.

The twelfth annual convention of the Oregon Young Women's Christian Association met at Albany, Nov. 5th to 8th.

The convention was very well attended—95 delegates from the different college and city associations. Our own University was represented by eleven delegates. The first session was held Thursday evening. Address of welcome by Pres. Lee, of Albany, and the address of the evening was given by Dr. Hill, of the First President Church, Portland.

The convention was much helped by the inspiring solos of Miss Elizabeth Brown, of Portland, who also led the congregational singing. One of the most helpful features of Friday and Saturday was the Bible study hour conducted by Rev. J. M. Dean, of Tabernacle Baptist church, Seattle, at the opening of the morning and afternoon sessions. The thoughts inspired by his talks will long be remembered by our girls.

During Friday and Saturday student conferences were held, and addresses given by the faculty members of different institutions, and also by the different secretaries and leaders.

Those especially to be remembered are the ones of Miss Conde, our national secretary; Miss Shields, our state secretary, and Miss McElroy, secretary of Portland association.

Sunday morning the delegates attended their respective churches at which the various pastors carried out the thought of the convention.

The closing service was held in the M. E. church, Sunday evening. Miss Conde first gave an address on "The Investment of a Life." At the farewell meeting, led by Miss Shields, the delegates formed the association circle, and the different leaders and pastors gave us their parting words.

The following were the delegates from Willamette: Marie Whipple, Ruth Field, May Good, Viola Fisher, Gustena Randall, Edyth Randall, Ruby Corvell, Bertha Hewitt, Mary Solomon, June Patty, Dora Winans.

Do not miss the game Friday if you are compelled to get out and throw in wood for a couple of hours or wash dishes "to get the price."

Last week the region of the varsity building most remote from mother earth was the scene of unusual activity.

The Freshmen and Sophomores were engaged in a spirited struggle for the sole honor of flying their class banner from the flagstaff.

The fun began on Wednesday when the Freshman pennant was hoisted over the building and waved defiantly in the breeze. Toward evening, however, the flag mysteriously disappeared. But this only served to increase the valor of the Freshmen, for the next morning a Freshman pennant was again floating overhead. This time, however, the sacred ensign was not left unguarded. A little Freshman, the "bravest of the brave," or perchance "the greenest of the green," spent the day in the belfry. The means of access was boarded up and a further guard was posted to give the signal should the enemy appear in force. To those in the class-rooms in the afternoon it seemed as though a young thunderstorm was out for exercise. The contest became warmer and warmer. Most of the football men who belonged to either class took their daily exercise in the belfry. About 5 o'clock more recruits filed in. As the Collegian reporter rushed to the scene he saw a brave little freshie girl who was guarding the door on the third floor lifted tenderly out of the way. Soon thereafter a mixture of Freshmen and Sophomores came tumbling down the stairs. The main tumult and clamor was on the fourth floor, so hither the pencil pusher hastened, and hastily steering his head through the fragments of a door he beheld the crowded battlefield. It was not bloody, but it was strenuous. The "hot air" which was exploded from Freshie and Soph "rapid fire" and "repeaters" would have blown out enough rock for three Astoria jetties. Finally, by a little

MANAGERS ELECTED.

Chances for the Basketball Championship Good.

At a called meeting of the Student Body, held in the Chapel, Oct. 29, at 3:30, the following athletic managers were elected for the year:

Boys basketball, W. C. Winslow.

Assistant, R. P. Matthews.

Girls' basketball, E. F. Averill.

Assistant, Mabel Robertson.

Track team, W. C. Judd.

Assistant, L. H. Whiteman.

Miss E. Belle Crouse was also elected to fill the vacancy on the athletic board, caused by the election of Judd to the management of the track team.

On recommendation of the executive committee, a committee of three, consisting of O. B. Long, J. J. Patton and Lila V. Swafford were appointed to revise the constitution and report at the next meeting.

The basketball season is fast approaching, and knowing ones have already begun conjecturing as to who will make the first team and to figure up the scores in Willamette victories.

The Monday after the Thanksgiving game the gridiron will be exchanged for the "gym" floor, and basketball will be the talk and work of those athletically inclined.

In basketball, Willamette has in the past two years won for herself a reputation of which she may be justly proud. In 1901-2 the W. U. boys played 12 games, making 381 points and having 157 scored against them. In 1902-3 they played 9 games on gymnasium floors of regulation size, making 216 points to their opponents 69.

It must be remembered that in comparing the scores that in 1901 a goal from the field counted 3 points, while in 1902 it counted but 2. It is worthy of note, too, that among the teams

WHY ARE YOU HERE ?

Is it for the name of the thing? Is it to play basketball, or football, to do society work, or association work, or is it to do really hard studying? Let us hope that it is not for any one of these alone. Each has its place. If you are athletic it would be a good thing for you to play either basketball or football. Besides this, they are college enterprises and deserve your support in some way or another. If you do not, take the gymnasium work any way. Do you aspire to be a ready speaker? The literary society will afford you some help in that direction. Are you a Christian? Then you must certainly identify yourself with the other Christians of the school in raising the standard of every individual in the school, and thus assist in the greatest work of the world. If you are not a Christian then it is time you become one. These are all legitimate, and should receive your hearty support in so far as you are able to give it, but the primary thing should be study, and hard study at that. The other things will contribute in making you well rounded and well developed. But you can not become such unless you get a good education, and you can not get a good education unless you study. That is what you are here for. Study, study the greater part of your waking hours, when not in the school room, and let the other things have a share of your time in their just proportion to the principal thing, namely—study.

It is really a shame that the students and members of the faculty do not take any more interest in the school and the enterprises which help to make the school, than was shown by the representation at the game Saturday. What is the matter? Is Willamette spirit dead? Come let us wake up and take some pride in our selves. Some of the former students are coming 40 or 50 miles to see the game with Pacific Friday. Are we going to be out done by them and let them witness our own disgrace? Or are we going to shake of our lethargy, turn out three hundred strong and show them that Willamette spirit still lives?

Associations.

Y. W. C. A.

Miss Louise Shields, Coast Secretary of the Y. W. C. A., arrived on the 6:19 train Nov. 4, and left on the 8 train the next morning for Chemawa. She held a short conference with the members of the cabinet and afterwards gave a talk to the girls.

The prayer meeting Thursday was led by Prof. Reynolds, as was the Sunday afternoon meeting also. A large number of girls attended both meetings. The annual week of prayer began Monday. Prof. Mathews led the meeting of that day. Prof. McCall will lead the meeting of Tuesday.
