LIFE.

RALPH A. WATSON.

Human life is a bud most fragrant
Growing on the tree of Time;
It can yield all deeds most flagrant,
Or can cherish thoughts sublime.

Life is tender, very tender,
Wintry winds can blight and chill;
It will drop from the branch so slender
When the blast sweeps o'er the hill.

Human deeds of hate and malice
Done in envy, spite and fear,
Mar the sweetness of life's chalice,
Make life's summer dark and drear.

The tender bud will droop and sicken,
If bereft of Mercy's smile
When the storms of passion thicken;
Storms of passion, hate and guile.

But unfolded by deeds of kindness,
Trained in right by words of cheer,
It will cause no act of blindness;
It will cause no mother's tear.

The unerring hand of Justice holds it
With its face turned to the sun;
But Mercy with her dew revives it
When the heat of day is done.

So the Graces each with the other
Guide it in its trembling race;
Each with the tenderness of a mother,
Till God's own smile illumines the place.

But life eternal is a flower
Far above base mortal's ken;
It leans not here upon the power
Of false and weak and wicked men.

But our God on this throne of gladness
From above the stars looks down;
Forgives the faults that cause us sadness;
Gives eternal life—a crown.

So we think not of the actions
Done by beings, small though great;
Think not of the strife of factions,
Think not of the will of Fate;

But we cast our eyes above us,
Far above the vault of blue,
To Omnipotence who loves us:
Whose commands are just and true.

Ever thinking of the sorrows
That the Christ for us has borne;
Ever thinking of the morrows,
And the souls by falsehood worn,

We can live in calm contentment,
Though untruthful tongues defame
Thinking that without resentment
We are shadowed by His name.

J. T. MATTHEWS.

He paused one day in the sunlight
At the parting of the ways,
And read the weathered signboard
At the parting of the ways.

To-day all lost in the darkness
Of the shadow of rayless death,
Corrupt he walks in the blackness
Of the shadow of rayless death.

To-morrow he enters his future
Accursed and hopeless for aye,
He, deathless and dying, forever
Accursed, and hopeless for aye.

COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES.

Local Field Day.

The try-out this year was held with the Y. M. C. A. and the boys from the Chemawa training school. Some of the contests were quite exciting but in most of them Willamette, much to the surprise of the Y. M. C. A., easily won. The pennant came to us for the second time by a score of 52. The Y. M. C. A. secured 35 and Chemawa 25 points. The Indians have some very good material and with a trainer would make a close contest with us. Sanders, who won the high jump and shot put and secured second place in the hammer throw, had not seen the hammer thrown until he came to these contests. Babcock of the Y. M. C. A. broke his previous record in the hammer throw, his distance on field day being 90 feet 7 inches. We were handicapped by not having men to enter in all the contests, the Y. M. C. A. winning all three places in the pole vault and bicycle race. But we did the same in the mile run. Willamette won first places in the following events: mile walk, 220 yd. hurdle, 100 and 220 yd. dashes, 440 and 880 yd. and mile runs. The Y. M. C. A. won in the pole vault, 120 yd. hurdle, bicycle race, and hammer throw, while the Indians were first in the shot put, high jump, and broad jump. The contest next year, if held in the same way, promises to be very exciting, and the Indians will undoubtedly show up even better than they did this year.

Inter-Collegiate Field Day.

Willamette's part in this is soon told. While we easily won on local field day, we found that it was an entirely different matter to contest against men who had been long and carefully trained. We had good material here this year and with a trainer we would have made a good showing. It is sincerely to be hoped that we may have a trainer next year. Willamette secured but one point, Mr. Livesay winning third place in the 440 yd. run. Several of our boys were fourth in their races but there is little glory and no score in this. Corvallis came with a large crowd and the determination to take the cup back with them. This they did easily, winning 55 points. Eugene was second with 35. Pacific College secured 14 and Monmouth 7. Corvallis won first places in the 880 and 440 yd. and mile runs, mile walk, 220 yd. dash, shot put and hammer throw. Eugene's firsts were in the 100 yd. dash, both hurdles, bicycle race, and broad jump. Newberg won the pole vault and Monmouth the high jump. The day was a remarkable one for record breaking. Inter-collegiate records were broken in six events and N. W. records tied in two—the 100 and 220 yd. dashes. A noticeable feature of the day was the absence of the wrangling and disputing that characterized last year's contests. Every contest this year was fairly won and only one thing marred the pleasure of the day. In the bicycle race there was a collision at the start that put three men out of the race, Mr. Davis of Willamette being one of these.

KALI GHAUT.

In the suburbs of Calcutta, on the bank of the river Hooghby, lies Kali Ghaut. Here, in a temple erected in her honor, stands the Goddess Kali.

On our way within, in the vicinity of the temple, we pass hundreds of little thatched huts and native shops literally filled with small idols, representing the different Hindoo gods and goddesses, in number almost innumerable. Here also we see, as we do throughout all India, miserable beggars and lepers exposing their deformities, and imploring alms, or "buckheesh" as they call it; here, too, are venders of sweet-meats, and shouting peddlers, natives dressed in gay and gaudy colors, and little children clothed only in the garb of Mother Nature—all contributing to the clamor and novelty of the situation.

At last the shade of the temple is reached. Let us stop under the shade of a sacred pekul tree, and watch the ever-moving crowd. We see hundreds of natives of all ages and conditions, from the scantily clothed "coolie" to the silk dressed merchant, bringing their offerings of fruits or rice, or maybe sweet-meats and flowers, or sometimes even jewelry and valuable ornaments, all these offerings they bring and lay at the shrine of the goddess Kali, and then depart full of spiritual comfort, leaving their hard earned contributions to be taken by the fat and lazy priests—the curse of India. Let us follow a man loaded with offerings to the door of the temple, and take a peep at this mysterious goddess whom the Hindoos so zealously worship. Following the native up a flight of steps we must pause, for there before us, not far back from the door, is Kali, goddess of Darkness and Terror, and well does she mind the names, for she is a hideous, black idol. In one of her four hands she holds the head of a victim; her foot is planted on the breast of another, and one right hand, holding a club, is raised in air, as if ready to battle with all new comers. Suddenly we are startled by a loud noise; the din becomes more intense, and to the babel already around us is added the discordant sound of beating tom-toms and blowing horns and the bleating of goats,—for it is the hour of sacrifice.

Hurridly we leave the temple and enter the square opposite. Here the natives are crowded around a V shaped block. Presently a goat is led out, its head is placed in the V, a bar is run through the block to hold it firmly, and a large native armed with a sword sharp as a razor, with one blow cuts off the head of the poor animal, and the result is "mutton," which is given to priests and beggars. Thus the sacrifices to appease the desires of the blood-thirsty goddess begin, and nearly every day the scene is repeated, sometimes on special occasions, the number of goats killed amounting up into the thousands.

Long ago, before the British conquered India there were human sacrifices to this terrible, insatiable goddess, but now, thanks to English rule, this horrible custom is no longer practiced. And may it not be hoped that someday these poor people may realize 'tis futile "to bow down to wood and stone," and learn not to idolize the goddess of Darkness and Terror, but rather the true God—the God of Light and Love.

To say that Prof. Savage's recital was a success would be putting it very mildly indeed. She has the reputation of giving good entertainments and this was surely no exception. The Opera House was filled on Monday night before 8 o'clock and by the time the exercises began, standing room was at a premium. The audience was appreciative and several of the numbers were encored. The program was as follows:

At the close of the program President Hawley delivered to Misses Collins and Creighton diplomas certifying that they had completed the specified work, and at the same time he took occasion to compliment the young ladies upon the work of the evening and to assure them that the best wishes of the University would always be with them.

The Trustee Meeting.

At the annual meeting of the trustees held on Tuesday, Pres. Hawley presented his annual report showing that the school has had a very prosperous year and is in very good circumstances. A committee was appointed to see to the material improvement of the building for next year. It is the intention to have new porches built and to have new floors put in and the session rooms provided with new desks. The entire faculty was unanimously elected to serve for the ensuing year.

The Oregon Institute.

The Methodist church was well filled on Tuesday night to witness the closing exercises of the preparatory department of the University. The decorations were elaborate and beautiful. The class motto, "Con-ficimus sed incipere," was stretched above the platform and formed a striking background to the members of the class. A new departure was inaugurated this year in that in place of having orations from Baccalaureate Sunday.

The M. E. church was well filled with students, alumni and friends at 10 a. m. Sunday. The regular church services were conducted, the choir assisting greatly with several beautiful anthems. Then President Hawley introduced Bishop Earl Cranston of the M. E. church who proceeded to deliver the annual Baccalaureate sermon. For an hour the eloquent divine held the audience spellbound and few realized the flight of time. He chose as his text these words from Ecclesiastes: "For what hath man of all his labors and the vexation of his spirit wherewith he hath labored under the sun?" The Bishop explained that he had taken that text in order to keep away from its spirit as much as possible. He soon showed that he is a confirmed optimist and that he is inclined to take a cheerful view of the great battle of life. He also proved himself to be a master of epigram and some of his words will remain in the hearts of his hearers for many days. He began by referring to the joys of college life and incidentally spoke of the graduates of twenty years ago, comparing them to those of to-day. Some of the former have failed but who is to blame? We pity the ignorant but what about those who are able to see and to know what they do? God's plans are not for time but for eternity. God is interested in our plans, let us not thrust ours in his way. We cannot win every prize for which we strive but we can all win one, the prize of an immortality with God. Don't mistake drill and dress parade for war. Let us seize the present with all its opportunities. The past is rich in suggestion but the present is the time for us. Culture must not be affected. No man is to hoard his knowledge for himself. A diploma means simply that the bearer has learned to think. The closing words to the class were intensely earnest and deep with meaning. They will long be treasured up in the minds of the graduates as the fitting close of a grand sermon.

Farewell Association Meeting.

This is always a meeting with sad thoughts and this year was no exception. The decorations, consisting of the word "Farewell" in evergreens on the wall and a horseshoe of flowers, the emblem of good luck to those who were to leave the school, brought forcibly to the minds of all that it was a farewell for many. As the thought came that perhaps this was the last meeting together for those present, the eyes of more than one were filled with tears. Miss Helen Matthews conducted the meeting. A short scripture lesson was read and then the leader spoke a few words on the importance of continuing our work during the summer months and laid especial stress on the importance of not neglecting the morning devotions and daily Bible reading. Then the leader asked for a word from all who cared to speak, especially the graduates. A few only, spoke but with earnestness for the work of the summer and sorrow that the pleasant days at "old Willamette" were over. President Hawley spoke a few words to the graduates, wishing them all success in their life's work, but warning them that success will not come at first. His words, always appreciated, were doubly so at this time. The meeting closed with the song "Blest be the tie that binds."

The Song Service.

In place of the University sermon that has been heretofore given on Sunday evening Prof. Heritage gave a sacred song service in the Methodist church. The

The Alumni.

The program for Wednesday evening opened with prayer by Rev. Parsons, after which Prof. J. L. Carter introduced the class of '97 to the assembled Alumni. The Heritage Lady Quartet then sang and were compelled to respond to two encores. The oration of the evening was given by B. Frank Irvine of the Corvallis Times. He began by describing the defeat of Napoleon by the hollow way of Ohain at Waterloo, and continuing, referred to Cuba as being possibly a similar way of destruction to Spain. He indicated what should be our duty in this matter and closed with a stirring appeal to the patriotism of the auditors. The address was an eloquent effort and was well received. W. P. Babcock then followed with a rich vocal solo, for which an encore was demanded. Miss Myrtie Marsh recited "Mary Queen of Scots" in a charming manner and Prof. Heritage and Mrs. McNary sang a pleasing duet. Mrs. L. T. Reynolds was then introduced and read an essay on "Our Business Women." The paper was well written and showed much thought on the part of its author. The program concluded with the song "Hail Willamette," after which the Alumni and their guests repaired to the room below where for several hours they were pleasantly employed in discussing a choice bouquet. Toasts were given during the evening.

Rev. L. F. Belknap, . . . "The Alumni and their Duty to the School"
 P. H. D'Arcy, . . . "The Absent Alumni"
 R. J. Hendricks, . . . "The Press"
 Pres. Hawley, . . . "The School"
 Mr. Fulton, . . . "The O. A. C."
 F. A. Moore, . . . "The Medical Department"
 Dr. Parsons, . . . "What will the Conference Do?"

Claud Gatch spoke as one who had been associated with the school from his infancy and who is yet alive to its interests. Memorial resolutions were read for J. C. Arnold and Dr. J. N. Denison, alumni who had died during the year.

Commencement Day.

The event of the week was the graduation of the Senior class of the University. A fair audience assembled at 10 A. M. Thursday in the chapel and listened to the rendition of the following program:

Piano Duet Prof. F. C. Leathers and Miss Atwood.
 Invocation Dr. Parsons
 Vocal Solo, "The Arm Chair"
 Prof. Heritage.
 Commencement Oration . . . "Getting up in the World", . . Rev. W. K. Beans D. D.
 Violin Solo, J. Carlyle Denton
 Presentation of Class, . . Gen. W. H. Odell
 Conferring of Degrees,
 Song, "Faithful and True"
 University Quartette.

The oration by Dr. Beans was one of the most scholarly and eloquent of the week and will long be remembered by those who heard it. He prefaced his remarks by saying that he is an old school friend of Prof. Cochran and a former associate in the ministry with Father Cochran. He said that ever since the building of the tower of Babel, men have had an ambition to get up in the world. He spoke of the increased opportunities for getting up in physical, intellectual and moral ways. Everything comes to success by drill and discipline. Flowers are educated dirt. Knowledge is power because the effort in gaining knowledge makes power. Evil is indigenious with the soil. Rightousness must be cultivated. It requires surrender, sacrifice, the members of the class, a prominent educator was asked to deliver the address. Dr. G. M. Irwin, superintendent of public instruction was chosen for this, and as usual performed the duty in a pleasing and satisfactory manner. He impressed upon the members of the class the value of brains and told them how important is the man who thinks and what an influence he has upon the world. He also pointed out to the normal students the great responsibility which they were about to undertake, giving them at the same time some hearty advice which was well received by all. President Hawley in a few brief but effective and heartfelt words bestowed the certificates upon the class as follows: Classical, Guy Chester Miller, Rex Ward Davis, D. Gans and Roy Virgil Ohmart, the latter of whom was detained at home by illness; Latin and Scientific, May Fletcher; Normal, Nancy Rebecca Balderee, Alice Mabel Balsley, Samuel Sylvannus Aschenbrenner, George William Aschenbrenner, Grace Edith Long, Roy Leighton Bellinger, Florence Esther Pemberton and Alice Belle McFadden. We must not omit mention of the music of the evening, which was so ably rendered by Mrs H. B. Holland and Misses Rose Woodruff and Lelo Nicklin. The violin solo of the latter is especially to be commended. The class wishes to express its appreciation and gratitude to these ladies as well as to those who assisted in the decorating and those who served as ushers and flower carriers.

The College of Music.

Prof. Heritage scored another distinct triumph in the concert which his pupils so ably rendered on Wednesday morning. It was an especial treat to the large audience, who were generous in their applause. The program as rendered as follows:

"The Two Grenadiers".....W. P. Babcock
 "Wind of the Winter Night".....
 "All is Lost".....Miss Juniata Lauffman
 "Gently o'er me Stealing" Mrs. J. H. McNary
 "Home Sweet Home" The Cardinal Quartet
 "Tyrant, Soon I'll Burst Thy Chains".....
 "Twas no Vision".....Miss Anna Atwood
 "O my Fernando".....Miss Lona White
 "Fairy Visions".....Miss Lillian Roblin
 "Legends of the Orient".....
 The Heritage Lady Quartet.....
 "Oh Fair, Oh Sweet and Holy".....
 "When Love is Gone".....
 "In Dreamland".....J. W. Bickford
 "The Marvelous Work".....Mrs. Grannis.

Among so much good music it is hard to discriminate, but Mr. Babcock and the two quartets deserve special mention. The quartet, composed of the Misses Genevieve and Ethel Hughes, Esther Collins and Oskie Matthews, while it is a new venture, is rapidly winning its way into popular favor and the other quartet must look to its laurels.

At the close of the program, Prof. Heritage announced to the audience that he had just concluded his twentieth year as a music teacher. He expressed his thanks to those who have so kindly aided him during the year and hoped that he might have the same loyal support for next year. He also made the pleasing announcement that J. Carlyle Denton, already so popular among Salem people, has identified himself with the College of Music as teacher of the violin, and will be ready to begin work in the fall. It is the intention to have a man of international reputation at the head of the piano department, and great things may be looked for from Prof. Heritage, who never does anything by halves.

tisers for their support in this paper. Without their aid it would be impossible to run this paper. A college without a paper does not amount to much, as the college paper is the thermometer of the school.

On the evening of June 2, Miss Grace Long very pleasantly entertained the members of her class, the graduating class of Oregon Institute.

Mr. Adolph Bittner, of Portland, was the guest of Salem friends during Commencement.

Friendships formed in school are the tenderest and truest of life, and those going out from school this year will ever carry pleasant memories of their school days. They should also carry a goodly number of photos of friends. Pre-eminently the place to have them taken is at the Cronise Photo Studio.

In the Inter-State Oratorical Contest, between the colleges of Idaho, Washington and Oregon, Mr. Fred Fisk, of the University of Oregon, was awarded first place. Mr. J. A. Coffey, a former Willamette student, represented the University of Idaho.

Miss Daisie Geisendorfer of Albany, spent Commencement with her sister, Mrs. W. C. Hawley.

Mr. W. J. Shephard, '98, will spend the summer vacation at Chehalis, Washington.

Magnan, of the St. Paul's Episcopal Church, officiating. The bride is one of the successful educators of Oregon, having held a position as teacher in the city schools for the past year. The groom is a graduate of the Oregon Institute of the class of '95.

ASSOCIATION.

The summer school at Pacific Grove, Cal., May 21-30, was attended by 50 young men from colleges and 8 from city and town associations.

Two hundred general secretaries of the Young Men's Christian Association of North America assembled at Selma, Ala., to hold their annual conference on the problems which confront a general secretary.

Mobile, Ala., received the international Y. M. C. A. convention last April with true southern hospitality.

Deep spirituality, great interest in Bible study and loyal financial support characterized the gathering. Not one of the 350 delegates came from any point west of Denver and few from north of the Mason and Dixon line. But this convention will mark an epoch in Y. M. C. A. history. It will mean greater things for Mobile and the southern associations and will give that entire section a great impetus and a sure direction.

On June 6th, at the association meeting, John R. Mott's Tour Around the World, the formation of the World Students' Christian Federation, the conventions held among the students of Sweden, Germany, Palestine, India, China and Japan, were discussed in short papers by Wallace Live- say, Alice Balsley, Jennie Jones, Guy C. Miller, and Prof. Frickey.

Two Chinese boys sang together

"We are little friends of Jesus,

That is why we are so glad."

Mr. Dummit spoke very earnestly upon the Student Volunteers.

EDITORIAL.

Several months before school closes the students begin to look forward to commencement as the best time of the school year. The only thing that mars the view is the sight of those final examinations looming up before them. After the examinations are over, there is an unbroken week of pleasure in commencement. The restraint of school and the constant study for nine months are put aside, and added to this, the fine spring weather brings joy to the student's heart.

During commencement we hear good speeches by well known men from all over the state, and we also listen to good programs during the various exercises. But all these are not so pleasant as the delight of meeting old friends, who went to school several years ago or perhaps graduated in same class with you. We had almost forgotten them but when we see them again, their actual presence is not only here, but they bring with them all the memories of the old school days. Then too we meet strangers of whom we had heard but had never seen. New acquaintances are formed which after a few more years become old friends. The school too comes in for its share of the benefit. Many people come here, see our school and go away, reporting what they have seen and heard. Thus they become advertisers to a certain extent.

The student who goes away before commencement is over, misses a part of education. The addresses, the programs, the people and the very spirit of the occasion is doubly worth the time spent to hear them.

The results of Inter-Collegiate Field Day are many and the lessons to be learned from it should be heeded. The choice of officials is a very hard matter. Men of known ability only should be chosen.

The people of Salem were conspicuous by their absence on June 5th, at the Fair Grounds. The crowd was composed almost entirely of people from outside of the city. The holding of the Field Day here depends, to a great extent, upon the interests that is taken in it by the people of Salem. If it is taken away from here, the merchants would surely feel the loss very much.

There are two things which would help Willamette win Field Day. First the number of boys in attendance at school must be increased, so that we would have more to pick from and more competition. Then we must have a trainer. It is absurd to think that boys who train themselves can stand a show against those boys who have been in the hands of a professional trainer.

The Collegian wishes to express their thanks to the Department Editors, the subscribers, the contributors and the adver-

the most enjoyable features of Commencement week. The music was all of a very high grade and the manner in which the pupils executed these difficult selections was ample proof of the careful training they had received.

The song service by the first M. E. choir Sunday evening, June 13, packed the house to its utmost capacity. It is pleasing to note how much better the choir sings from time to time the difficult choruses from the Elijah and other oratorios, as well as the smaller anthems by modern composers. Bishop Cranston remarked at the conclusion of the service, "I have never heard anything so inspiring by any choir in all my travels," this reference was made to the anthem "Must Jesus bear the Cross alone," by Havens.

The Dean of the College of Music is now corresponding with several different concert pianists in the east. It is safe to predict that by the opening of the University in September, that he will have a pianist who is superior to any other in the northwest.

The College of Music has closed a contract with Prof. Carlyle Denton, the leader of the city orchestra and popular teacher, who will hereafter be director of the orchestral department and teacher of piano and organ. Prof. Denton received most of his musical education in England before coming to this country. He is a splendid musician and a first-class teacher as his success has already proven. All who study with him will receive the latest and most reliable method of instruction.

Prof. Heritage will be a very busy man during the vacation, from June 18th to July 4th he will conduct a music school at Astoria, from July 5th to July 24th he will conduct a summer school at Gladstone Park ident, Miss Lou Starrett, to represent them at the summer school at Mills College, Oakland, from July 13th to 23rd.

The conference will be even more inspiring this year than last. The noted evangelist, Rev. J. Wilbur Chapman, D. D., of Philadelphia and Rev. Matt. S. Hughes, D. D., of Minneapolis, will be among the speakers.

Rev. E. S. Chapman, of Oakland, will have charge of the inductive Bible study; Miss D. Florence Simms, of Chicago, International College Sec. Y. W. C. A., will direct the discussion of work in colleges and Miss Harriet Taylor, also of Chicago, Inter. City Sec. Y. W. C. A., will preside over the city conference.

The personal workers' training class will be lead by Miss Martha Teal, Gen. Sec., Los Angeles city association and the missionary hour will be in charge of Miss Francis Patterson of Chicago.

PHILODORIAN.

The meeting of the society during the past few weeks, have not been as well attended as usual, this is due no doubt to the many other attractions of the spring season. But the work as a whole in the Philodorian society for the year has been one of profit and pleasure to all of the members, and it is only to be regretted that more of the students have not realized the manifold benefits to be derived in this branch of college work.

The last open meeting of the societies, for the year, was given Friday evening, June 11th. The following program was rendered.

Miss Jessie Settlemyer.....Rec.
Prof. F. S. Dunn.....Lecture
Miss Neva Griswold.....Rec.
Miss Marie Campbell.....Rec.

Prof. Dunn also sang a Greek song which was much appreciated by all. After the program a very pleasant social hour was spent in conversation before they should adjourn to leave for their homes and perhaps some never to meet again in the old college hall.

Mr. Early delivered a very interesting essay on society work at one of the recent meetings.

Mr. Swafford is fast gaining a reputation as a brilliant and eloquent two minutes speaker.

The society closes the year's work with twenty-two active members and we hope it may start next year with twice the number on its roll.

PHILODOSIAN.

The society, during the last month, has passed along with the usual number of successes and failures. Programs, musical, educational and miscellaneous have been given, and now the weary members are looking forward to three months undisturbed by the sound of the gavel and free from literary duties.

The society closes with a membership of 25, and bright prospects for next year.

MUSICAL.

The Dallas Choral society, which has been under the direction of Prof. R. A. Heritage for the last three months, gave a very successful entertainment on Friday evening, June 11th. They were ably assisted by the Dallas male quartette, the cardinal lady quartette and Miss Lillian Roblin of Salem. A large and appreciative audience thoroughly enjoyed the high grade of music given.

The annual Commencement concert of the College of Music proved to be one of

He—"I will give you a new pair of gloves if you can think of positively nothing for 5 minutes and still be awake."

"Done," she responded. Five minutes passed. "I have won the gloves" she said.

"How did you manage to think of nothing for the whole five minutes," he asked eagerly.

"I fastened my mind firmly on your mustache and kept it there," she responded triumphantly.

LOCALS AND PERSONALS.

Several of our students have been absent during the latter part of the Semester on account of illness.

The average student away from home, misses many of his comforts. This will be made up to a large extent if he eats Home Bakery bread. It is as "good as mother made."

The Collegian extends congratulations and good wishes for future hapiness to Mr. Lockley and his fair bride.

The Alvan F. Waller prize of twenty dollars was won by W. J. Shepard for the best examination in Constitution of the United States. Mr. Shepard won the prize over several contestants who strove for the honor. This prize was offered by Prof. Thomas M. Gatch, President of Willamette University for many years, for the best examination passed in Latin Grammar or Constitution of the United States.

On the evening of June 5, there was organized in the office of the University, the Inter-collegiate Debating League, composed of Willamette University, the University of Oregon and Pacific University. Mr. A. J. Shepherd of Willamette was elected President for the ensuing year, Mr. Thad Smeek of Forest Grove, secretary, and Miss Theresa Friendly of Eugene, treasurer. Debates will begin next year as soon as practicable. Each school is represented by three debaters, who are limited to the college and third year preparatory classes.

in connection with the Chautauqua, from July 26th to August 1st, he will give seven concerts, and from August 2nd to September 4th, conduct a music school in connection with the State Teachers Association at Newport, and at Sept 6th will return to old Willamette to have everything in readiness for the opening day.

Judging from the present enrollment and correspondence, the enrollment in the College of Music will be fully double that of any previous year. Several very good singers from abroad will take the regular course during the entire year.

As the part is never greater than the whole so no one teacher is greater than the whole school. Those who study with some private teacher will find out when too late that a statement or certificate from any teacher no matter how good, will be almost absolutely worthless in comparison to a diploma from such a time worn institution as old Willamette.

EXCHANGES.

"There is too much system in this school business" growled Tommy. "Just because I snickered a little the monitor turned me over to the teacher, and the teacher turned me over to the principal, and the principal turned me over to pa." "Was that all?" "No, pa, turned me over his knee."
