WINANS IS ELECTED

Miss Cornelius Is the New Vice President.

Contest Over and Responsibilities Taken Up.

The political spasm of the year, the annual student body election, has come and gone, happily with no more serious consequences than usually attend those other periodical visitations of childhood, measles, chicken-pox, and the like.

It looked at first as though the election was going to be a very languid sort of affair; but toward the last things warmed up until the activity of rival henchmen began to assume the aspect of a live ant hill with the top kicked off. A terrible fear clutched at the heart of Elliott and Bisbee simultaneously, the fear of possible defeat for their friends, and forthwith the hallways began to resound with the patter of their hurried footsteps. The friends of Edward Winans, too, began to look furtive and anxious, and to peddle the virtues of their favorite with renewed persuasiveness and warmth. Manager Spalding bore the worried look of a young father with triplets.

The result of the vote for president was somewhat of a surprise. It was generally conceded that Winans would be elected, but it was thought that "Racehorse" Nace would be found twinkling down the yard lines somewhere in Eddie's immediate rear.

A consideration in Winans' favor, was the fact that this is his senior year while Nace, they said, would be a good man for the place next year. The hope was freely expressed that Nace would run again next year, and under the usual circumstances, he would be a hard man to beat.

The race between Miss Conellus and Miss Schindler, for vice president, was, as the Collegian predicted last week, very close, both young ladies being very popular and assisted by equally zealous lieutenants. Miss Cornelius, who won by a small majority, will make a pretty and good presiding officer in the absence of the chief executive.

Miss Olive Rigby was the unanimous choice for secretary, receiving the compliment of being considered in a class by herself.

Austin Price, also, was considered of such peculiar qualification for the position of treasurer, that no one was nominated to oppose him, and he was accordingly elected to hold the key to the student coffers.

The political campaign having now been happily disposed of, and a corps of efficient officers elected, Teddy Roosevelt can lay aside his big stick and go on a bear hunt; W. J. Bryan can close his massive jaws and retire to his farm. The great problem of government has been settled. The affairs of state are in safe hands.

Philodorian.

The society as called to order by President Vera Byars. A well prepared program was rendered as follows: Instrumental duet by Nellie Tucker and Elva Winslow; three eminent speeches by Ella Andrews, Gladys Riches, Mary May; vocal solo by Vera Byars. The question for debate was "Resolved that the Philodorian girls should pursue some definite course by which they might regain the use of their hall."

It was a very animated discussion and brought some good arguments from both sides. The argument for the affirmative was conducted by Theo. Bennett and Lela Rigdon, and negative, Ruley Cornell and Mable Glover.

The girls are taking up debating more enthusiastically than formerly and the prospects are that some good debaters will be developed.

BIBLE STUDY CLASS

More Than Sixty Are Already Enrolled.

Untiring Work of the Officers and Members.

The past few weeks have witnessed a very strenuous campaign of the Young Men's Christian association for the enrollment of men in classes for the systematic study of the Bible. As a result sixty or more men have been enrolled in these classes. This is an increase of fifty per cent over last year's enrollment and the percentage will be much larger within a few days. It is expected that some more new classes will have to be formed to accommodate those wishing to enroll.

This is a splendid showing and goes to prove that the Y. M. C. A. of Willamette is not asleep. The association of O. A. C. expects to enroll two hundred men in Bible study, but this does not surpass Willamette, for O. A. C. has more men to reach. Other schools all over the U. S. and Canada have large enrollments in Bible study classes. Willamette will not be behind in this respect more than in any other.

The success of the present campaign is due to the untiring efforts of Ernest Goudge, chairman of the Bible study committee, and other leaders of the association.

Other departments of the association have also been successful. Winans' with the aid of a committee from the Y. W. C. A., succeeded in placing a neat little handbook in the hands of the students. Under the direction of McKnight, the work for new students was as good as could be expected. Valuable assistance was rendered in securing boarding and rooming places. In connection with the Y. W. C. A. a book exchange has been conducted for the convenience of the students. A number of new students have joined the association; the cabinet are all in school now and successful work in all departments is expected.

The devotional meeting last Wednesday evening was led by Mr. I. H. VanWinkle, who spoke some wholesome words on the topic: "Is it worth while to pray?"

Junior Football.

Snappy, full of ginger, in the game all the time, is how the Willamette Juniors defeated the reform school boys on the Willamette gridiron. Brilliant end runs and murderous line plunges soon demonstrated the superiority of the plucky Juniors. The O. S. R. S. kicked off and soon recovered the ball, then by a streak of good luck they advanced the ball to within a few yards of the Juniors' goal line and in three plays pushed the ball over the line, but was thrown back. A touchdown was allowed later in the game. The Juniors took the ball on their own goal line and kicked to safety. The ball changed hands several times during the next few minutes and remained in the Junior's territory. The Juniors soon got down to business and by a series of end runs, kicks and line bucks, pushed Cummins over for a touchdown. Holman kicked the goal. There was no more scoring during the first half.

In the second half the Juniors kicked off and soon Richardson went over for a touchdown. The reform school could not get through the defense and soon another touchdown was credited to the Juniors. Cummins dropped out with an injured ankle; Booth went in at full, and Rigdon at left end. With the ball in the middle of the field and only two minutes to play, the Juniors worked a nice piece of strategy. Booth resumed his position at end and a short kick was made. Booth secured the ball and with the speed of an Achilles ran 45 yards for a touchdown. Holman kicked goal and the game ended with a score of 22 to 6 in favor of the Juniors.

Richardson played a star game at half, being a sure ground gainer. McDowell showed up well on defense, and Holman played a heady game at quarter.

It has been agreed between Rader, Trill and Owens, that hereafter whenever one of them has unexpected lady friends at the "den," that a large red flag will be displayed at half mast, from the halyards on top of the house.

FOOTBALL TODAY

Everybody Is Expecting a Hotly Contested Game.

Willamette's Team Prepared and Determined.

One of the most important events to take place during this school year, and the one which now concerns the student body most is the football game to be played this afternoon, when Willamette faces the Whitman team on the gridiron.

This game will not only establish W. U.'s claim that it has a good team but will arouse the dormant spirit in every student, and when they see their colors go plunging to victory, it will send the blood tingling to the tips of their fingers.

Willamette has one of the best teams in the state and a team that duly represents the University. Every man is a tower of strength and deserves the undivided support of the student body.

Coach Boyer and Captain Rader have been working hard to put the team in the best possible condition and no one can afford to miss seeing the game. Captain Rader will be there with his old-time plunging. "Race-horse" Nace will also do some of his end running stunts for the amusement of all and to the consternation of the opponents. Russell is a man who has not yet been tried on a Willamette field but he has the stuff in him and shows up like an old time hero and above all things else he has the college spirit.

Coleman will show them how to smash interference and carry the ball from his end position as well as hoot the pigskin out of sight.

The line will be like a stone wall against which Whitman may hurl her different members without avail. An enthusiastic crowd will doubtless fill the grand stand and the side lines.

Star Class Organize.

The sophomore class have organized with the following officers: Nellie Tucker, president; Bruce Robbins, vice president; Ellen Anderson, secretary; Mr. Nelson, treasurer; John Reichen, historian; Clark Belknap, sergeant-at-arms.

Robert Hughes, brother-in-law of Ralph Rader, and sometime student at Willamette, will have charge of the Pacific Christian Advocate during Dr. Rader's absence in the orient.

The Literary Societies.

Literary work at Willamette University takes a very high place among the college activities. This work is carried on by the three literary societies, the Philodorian, the Philodorian, and the Websterian, one for the girls and two for the boys. The work of these societies embraces oratory, debating, extemporaneous and prepared speaking, and general literary work. Regular weekly meetings are held by each society and programs are rendered which tend to draw out the latent faculties and develop the recognized ability. Each society aims at the mutual development of its members and calls upon them for that part of the work for which they have a natural ability, either developed or undeveloped. Occasional special programs and joint programs are rendered which always maintain a standard of which "Old Willamette" can justly be proud. There are frequent inter-society debates during the year at which time much society rivalry is manifest and excellent work produced. During Commencement week an inter-society oratorical contest is held, in which representatives of the respective societies compete for a silver cup. This cup is held in the possession of the winning society until the next contest, and if any society succeeds in winning the cup three years in succession it becomes their permanent property. The Philodorian society now holds the cup, it having been won for them last spring by A. A. Marker. The oldest society is the Philodorian, founded in the days of the glorious past, when Willamette University was a landmark in the west. True to the spirit of their forefathers, the Philodorian members of today are living up to the high standard then set for them, and are making records for which the old members, when they return highly praise them. The Philodorian, their sister society is of about equal age and has been a society of the highest rank throughout its history. The Websterian society was started last spring and is a worthy competitor and rival of the Philodorian, having already reached a very high grade of efficiency and done some most excellent work. Student, you should be a member of one of these societies and should reap the benefit of this most beneficial and practical work.

Student Conversations.

It is said that conversation is an art, but how many college students are artists in it? The question follows, what do students talk about, what do they discuss? Is it the last football game, the next social event, who Tom Jones took to church last Sunday, why this couple quit going together, or the crankiness and unreasonableness of the different professors? There are all unprofitable if given much time and in most of the cases worse than useless. They are not subjects fitted to develop high ideals or to give inspiration to noble thoughts. Many degrees better than the students who give their time to such light and frivolous topics are those who discuss the merits and defects of the last society debate and those who plan for the development and advancement of their association work. Still no student should confine himself to subjects of such local interest. It tends to make narrow and circumscribed his thought.

On the other hand why do not students discuss subjects of world interest when with one another? They are preparing for the battle of life in the great world with its many problems. They should read and discuss these problems so that when the time comes for them to leave college they will not find themselves wholly unprepared or imparterical as is so often said of them.

How many of our students, even juniors and seniors, are there when together discuss the political or economical or social questions of the day? They study the theory and principles of the subjects in their text books, but do they ever give further thought to them unless it may be when they have to prepare something for debate upon one of them.

Go to the farm. Talk to any bright, quick witted country boy of fifteen or sixteen. He can discuss the respective merits of fall and winter sowing of grain for his locality. He can give you the latest market quotations of farm products. He can tell you where the meadow lark builds her nest, where the squirrel holes up for winter. He can show you the best hazel nut thicket, and tell you where you can find the prettiest violets and the largest strawberries. He can tell you all these things and will do so with quick animated gestures and kindling eye once you break through his reserve and diffidence.

The college young men and women study ancient and modern languages, mathematics, philosophy, science and literature. They study these subjects, pass in them and get their credits for them. How many

When the linen that has been done up at the Salem Steam Laundry is put in contrast with that laundried anywhere in Salem, the beauty of our laundry work makes us justly proud and we feel like crowing every time we see the difference in our superb color and finish on the shirts, collars, and cuffs done up by our methods with the linen worn by any one laundried by any other process.

A thorough knowledge of such studies as business correspondence, commercial law and arithmetic, English, spelling, bookkeeping, shorthand and typewriting, and the ability to write well, will prepare you for success in business. All these are thoroughly taught at the Capital Business College.

Next Thursday morning there will be an in memoriam service in the chapel in commemoration of the dead ones in the Willamette student body. Miss Veva Byars will sing one of her beautiful vocal solos, entitled, "Blessed are they that die in the Lord." Bishop Trill will pronounce the obituary oration from the text, "There remaineth now a rest for the people of God." The obsequies will be concluded by a review of the remains, the students moving in file before the caskets, while Prof. Arthur Von Jessen renders on the pipe organ the celebrated "Dead March from Saul."

Organization of Oratory.

For some time the students in the College of Oratory have been talking of organizing. And thus it happened on Thursday afternoon, when the freshmen, juniors and seniors assembled that the real awakening of this department of "Old Willamette" took place.

The first thing in order was the election of the following brilliant orators who will fill their respective places with dignity, Harry K. Spalding, although a new student in the College of Oratory, has already shown his executive ability, and this combined with the earnestness he puts into any task to which he is assigned, together with his love for "Old Willamette" makes an able president. The vice president-elect, Olive Rigby, accepted the honors heaped upon her shoulders very gracefully and modestly. She is one of those sweet girls whose very presence is a benediction. The secretary is one of the most popular girls, not only in the College of Oratory, but in the entire institution. This was realized when she was nominated for no one had the courage to name an opponent, and Miss Olive Riddell received the unanimous vote for secretary. Whatever funds the college may have from time to time will be taken care of by the able treasurer, Miss Ione Fisher. She received the same fate as Miss Riddell in being given a unanimous vote and it was felt by all that this was just what she deserved.

After having elected such a splendid set of officers everyone felt that other things were necessary to carry out this good beginning. Accordingly college colors were adopted and in the near future it is hoped the "gold and white" will be floating from the highest pinnacle that can be found on the campus. Of course a pin is not needed to distinguish the students of oratory for they are all distinguished in many other ways without such a trifle as this, but for their own satisfaction they decided they should have a college pin. Miss Vera Byars was elected chairman of a committee to choose this, and it is needless to say the fertile grey matter of her brain will produce something unique.

It was decided a yell was needed to cheer members of the different classes on to victory and before many days it is hoped they will have one that will let people know that the College of Oratory has given birth to real college spirit. Clark Belknap, Chester Catio and Gussie Booth were appointed to attend to this matter. A social committee consisting of Nellie Casebere, Olive Rigby and Ione Fisher was appointed to look after the social interests.

A word of advice to all. Keep your eye on the College of Oratory for something is going to be "doing."

Websterian Society.

The Websterians met at the usual hour on Friday and after the usual preliminaries the following new members were initiated:

- Geo. A. Massey,
- M. E. Bales,
- H. A. Wann,
- Frank Steen,
- H. J. Adams,
- Fred H. Wilson.

The literary program was then rendered consisting of an essay, reading, lecture and a debate on the question of the annexation of Cuba. The decision of the judges was against the annexation. The prospects for the society are the very brightest. All young men who are interested in literary work are welcome to enjoy their prosperity.

Second Year Class Meets.

At 3:15 Friday the president of the sometime freshman class of the Willamette academy welcomed over twenty students into the junior academy class.

The meeting was entirely devoted to business.

The officers elected for the first semester were as follows:

President, Clyde Waincott; vice president, Hamline Coleman; secretary, Winnie Soward; class reporter, C. J. Catlow; sergeant-at-arms, Archie Strang.

Committees on social affairs and class demonstration were appointed.

Their motto: "Get out, or get in line," indicates the spirit of the class; their industriousness is shown by the high daily grades; and their colors, purple and white will be shown to you. Watch them!

Opening Concert.

On Friday evening, October 26th, at the Grand Opera House, Dr. R. A. Heritage and Mr. Arthur von Jessen will give their first grand concert before a Salem audience. Dr. Heritage will sing two oratorio numbers, four concert songs and two operatic solos. Mr. von Jessen will play a Beethoven sonata, a group of Chopin pieces and a number of brilliant solos by Franz Liszt.

The pupils of the University can get a half-rate permit from the office, which will allow them to get 50 cent tickets for 25 cents each, or two tickets for the price of one. The same rate is extended to the faculty.

The University should give these two artists a rousing reception, not only to help the College of Music, but as a matter of education. Every one who attends will have a higher and better opinion of the best things in music. The tickets may be secured at the box office of the theatre on the day of the concert, after 10 o'clock a. m. Let no student or music lover miss this treat.

The Websterians, while sitting in solemn conclave in their "upper chamber" Friday evening, suddenly heard "a rushing, mighty wind" accompanied by an agitation that tore the atmosphere into tattered strips and chased old silence back into the remote woods. The occasion was not Vulcan forging a flock of thunderbolts, but the Philodorian society practicing on their contemporaries a couple of new yells which the society had just adopted.
