Galaxy of Oregon Stars Who Face Willamette Today

OREGON TEAM IN FINE CONDITION FOR CONTEST

Lineup of State University Contains Many Stars—Line Outweighs Willamette.

The University of Oregon team that faces Willamette this afternoon is one of the best that has ever represented our state institution. The men are all of good weight, have had experience, and are very fast.

Parsons, right half, is given top place among the half backs of the conference. He is extremely fast and shifty on his feet and runs low, with great speed.

Bryant, fullback, formerly the mainstay of Pacific's eleven, is a line smasher hard to equal. He hits the line with terrific force, and with the big Oregon guards to open holes for him should make yardage at will through a line like Willamette's, which is 15 pounds lighter.

Malarkey, who is a new man on the team, is holding down the other half. He is very shifty and is proving to be a very valuable man. Captain Bradshaw at right end is also among the high speeders, and may be assigned to duty in the backfield in case of accident or in making changes in the line.

Another star on the aggregation, who must be mentioned almost first, when you are telling of the merits of Oregon's team, is Carl Fenton, the 191 pound guard. Fenton does great service for the team in both punting, place-kicking and passing. He must be numbered among the most valuable men on the team. Every other member of the line is a star at his position and possesses many individual merits.

Bill Hayward, Oregon's Veteran Trainer.

WILLAMETTE TEAM READY FOR REFEREE'S WHISTLE

Official Lineup Unknown Quantity But Collegian Dopester Makes Choice.

With their heads full of final instructions, the Willamette football team turned in early last evening to acquire what renewed vigor they might be able to obtain in the "land of nod."

They have been spending a very strenuous week with both afternoon and evening practices in preparation for the big contest of this afternoon. The squad has consisted of about 20 men, and no one of them has any positive assurance that he will be in the afternoon's lineup.

The practice has been entirely behind closed gates and the styles of play that will be used are entirely a matter of speculation. Dr. Sweetland has been the busiest man in the city the past week and as a result Oregon is not expected to have them fooled at every stage of the game, although the impossibility of Willamette giving Oregon any great amount of trouble is evident from the fact that she is out-weighted in line 15 pounds to the man, and the entire team, taking our heaviest lineup, is out-weighted 19 pounds to the man.

While there is absolutely no way of knowing just what lineup will open the contest for Willamette, the Collegian has picked the following ones: Torkelsen and Booth, ends; Neustal and Bolt, tackles; Ferris and Vandervert, guards; Plaff, center; Homan, quarter; Small and Doane, halfs; Rowland, full.

If this lineup is not followed it is quite probable that Homan and Small will play halfs, Rowland full, and Booth quarter, Flegel coming in at end, and either Small or Doane dropping out at half.

Corpe, Peffer, Lund, Larsen, Sharp and Neuston, will probably all get a chance to participate in the contest. Just what places they may take is entirely a matter of mystery, as they have been worked out at several different positions and have been instructed to be ready to take any of the positions where they have worked.

One very valuable man will be out of the game on account of the doctor's orders. He is manager Merwin Pagot, who was recently placed on the first squad, where he was doing great work at guard. His loss at

HERE'S TO OUR TEAM

We expect to get slaughtered today. We have no idea that Oregon will be in danger of defeat. On a dirt field not covered with sawdust, it might be possible for us to "hake one loose" but under the present conditions we are in for an awful drubbing.

Our men are practically all novices at the game, many competing in big games for the first time today. Nevertheless, "Our Own Doc, Sweetland" has whipped these men into shape and they will show Oregon that real, true fighting spirit is. We expect our men to play a clean square game and know that we shall receive such from Oregon.

Our games with Pacific and Chewawa have shown our weaknesses too clearly. Although we vanquished the two teams by a large score, still that is indicative of nothing, as the two elevens are of "prep" school strength.

We know, however, that Oregon will have to work for every inch she gains. We know our men will never stop until the last whistle blows. We know that our "Good Old Varsity Squad" will scrap for every vestige of honor we wish them to retain for "Old Willamette."

No team can break our spirit. No team can ever make our men back down. We stand behind our eleven as a unit, whether they are going to defeat or victory, for we know they will acquit themselves like heroes.

The team knows that the students are all behind them, ready to respond at a minute's notice. They realize that they will receive nothing but praise for their work on the grid-iron today.

Get the spirit of "Old Willamette" into your system and help us keep things humming while the battle is on. Yell with us, cheer the visitors and let them know the we always welcome a deserving aggregation to our campus.

So join us as we sing:
 "Here's to the good old team, boys,
 Here's to our Varsity Squad,
 Here's to the grand old card-mal
 Embossed with the crimson gaud,
 Here's to our coach so true, boys,
 Here's to our school so dear,
 Here's to the Grand Eleven—
 Give them a lusty cheer."

Willamette Team Ready.

this time will have a very material effect in weakening Willamette's line.

While they have somewhat the same attitude that Dr. Sweetland assumes as to the outcome of the contest, yet they all declare that they are ready to fight the battle of their lives, and every man on the squad is more than anxious for a chance to get to play against the Oregon huskies.

WORLD-FAMOUS CONTRALTO TO APPEAR IN VARSITY CITY ON WEDNESDAY

Madam Schumann-Heink to Enthral Huge Audience at Armory on Night of November 5th—Seat Sale Starts Monday Morning of Her Appearance, Tickets Being Sold Then Only—A Chance of a Lifetime.

Schumann-Heink, the world-famed contralto, will appear in our "Varsity City" on the evening of Wednesday, November 5. No singer of this generation is more universally beloved than Ernestine Schumann-Heink.

Wherever she goes, Schumann-Heink will attract musicians, voice students, the musically inclined and folks who have no special interest in music, but admire the spirit of this remarkable woman. There is no limit to her artistic and popular possibilities.

Possessing a magnetic personality; a mental atmosphere of sunshine and good cheer, and a wholesome amount of maternal love, this great contralto has touched the hearts of thousands of music lovers.

Schumann-Heink is the second artist to appear this season. Because these great artists realized that Salem was starving for musical entertainment of high degree, they have consented to appear for a very low price in order that the custom of a yearly musical course might be started.

Miss Minetta Magers, the well known musical leader in Salem, has spent countless hours endeavoring to bring these great artists to our city. She has given us the opportunity of hearing the world's best. Realizing the desires of the people, she has sacrificed much in order that the people, not only of Salem, but of the surrounding cities, might be given a chance to come in contact with these real, true, musical leaders. Because of her tireless efforts, she has been able to keep the admission fees within our means.

However, next year's course will not be offered at such a nominal cost as was this year's. Now is the time to take advantage of this offer.

Seats will be sold, starting Wednesday morning, at 9, at the Armory box office. There will be but the one flat rate—$2.50 for all. Avail yourself of this golden opportunity, students, and see and hear the world's greatest contralto—Schumann-Heink—Wednesday evening, November 5, at the Armory.

ABOUT THAT REFERENDUM!
 Excerpts From State Papers Clearly Present the Opinions
 Prominent Oregonians Hold Concerning Subject.

The entire appropriation amounts less than one-fifth of a mill on each dollar of taxable property throughout the state. We cannot afford to cripple the University in its work for this paltry tax.—Florence Post.

If these appropriations are defeated, the money would simply be diverted into other channels and the petitioners may be trusted to find a use for it—a use that will be far less beneficial than if it had been spent in building up the state's educational system.—Eugene Register.

If the voters of Oregon are going to exercise the functions of the legislative branch of government, they must be educated, and the better educated they are, the better government we will have under the Oregon system. A case in point is this election.—Canyon City Eagle.

The legislature appropriated $175,000 for a building at the Panama-Pacific exposition; the tax was paid without dissent. Of course, state pride demands even so small a recognition before the eyes of the national public, but shall the small sums appropriated for the educational system which afford a lasting benefit to the state be withheld?—Junction City Times.

If the state does not maintain the higher education of the state, and if our young people are to be prepared to take up the duties of government and responsibilities of citizens of a great and growing state, our higher institutions should be supported.—Grass Valley Journal.

OUR OLD RELIABLE SONG

The cannibal king with a big noise ring—
 Got struck on a Zulu maid;
 And every night, when the moon shone bright
 Across the canal he'd wade,
 To hug and kiss that dusky miss
 Right under a big bay tree.

And when they met they sang a duet
 That sounded like this to me:
 Hip! Heck tra boom
 Quee boom yah zoom
 Hulla Baloo—bala—balee

DOC. "DOPES" DAY'S DOINGS

Willamette Coach Predicts Championship for Oregon and Praises Home Team's Spirit.

The University of Oregon has a great team. The men are as heavy as any need to be, and fast. The team is also equipped with a wonderful punter and forward passer in Fenton. There are very few clever passers in the country. Any one can throw a ball, but to be an efficient passer is another thing. I consider a strong passer in football almost as valuable as a pitcher in baseball. Every man on the U. of O. team is a star, and I believe U. of O. will win the Northwest College Championship by a clean margin.

U. of O. defeated Idaho practically 30-0, and earned every point, if not more. They have also defeated the Bremerton all-navy team 42-7, while U. of W., after getting two touchdowns through luck, only won from the tars by 21-7.

If there are any weak spots in the U. of O. team, the writer failed to detect them when they met Idaho, a team incomparably stronger than Willamette.

We have lost 14 men from last season's squad—eight regulars, six subs. Of those facing Montana, Stearns, Erskine, Francis, Day, Watson, Blackwell, Bellinger, McRae, have passed on. Then six substitutes, Yoder, Tallman, McInturf, Drake, Hepp, Young, are not here.

Could U. of O. turn out a strong team under these conditions? We are, as a small college, hit many times as hard as a large one when we lose a single pleyer.

To be perfectly frank, Willamette has about the same chance this year against U. of O. as an eighth grade team would galust Willamette. This is an accurate confession, and the score will correspond.

Never have I seen a finer or more deserving lot of men work than our present squad.—Dr. Sweetland.

Were honest motives behind this attempt to defeat the University appropriations, they should even then receive a favorable vote.—Cottage Grove Sentinel.

What About The Saloon

It is learned with deep gratification by those who are moving to abolish the saloon in Salem that advertising space in this publication, the Collegian, has been sought by those who would use it to sustain the saloon, but that it has been refused them at any price.

The legions of friends of "Old Willamette" are thus assured of the patriotism of her present guardians to the same high standards that have ever exalted her among the higher educational institutions of the state and nation.

It is not that this grand old school is, nor that any of her sponsors are, thus committed to restricted or contracted ideas of education or moral conduct, but it is that they are alert in discerning and are prompt and effective in acting upon vital issues that involve their cherished institution or the social atmosphere surrounding it.

It may be assumed with safety that whatever there may have been of friendliness for the school or its publication in the offer of patronage is sincerely appreciated, as it may equally be assumed that the refusal to accept was based upon nothing personal or unfriendly toward those applying as well-meaning and generous-hearted men.

To say that prohibition, for example, as a reformatory agency, is generally believed in as a solution of all abuses from which men suffer, would be a great mistake. There is much truth, indeed, in the axiom that men cannot be made better by law. It is safe to say that the large numbers who are today flocking to the standard of prohibition of the liquor traffic have done so more or less reluctantly but as an inevitable finality, the last available resort.

Government itself, the social compact which enables man to attain to more than the moral instincts of the savage, is based upon the ultimate principle of prohibition of those practices which are subversive of the safety and security of the masses who compose the social structure, who constitute the source of authority.

If the modern saloon is not so recognized today by the majority then it should be left alone. If it is true that the opposition to it is merely an over-zealous set of individuals acting from motives of intolerant bigotry, then their designs should fail.

If, on the other hand, a majority of the rank and file of the substantial citizenship recognize in the modern saloon a positive menace to moral and social advancement, then no thinkable consideration should prevent its banishment; no plea can be made that is sufficient.

Human progress is ever marked by such crises. Zealous men take issue and, like men, stand or fall by their standards. We pray for the time when better methods of solution for such problems shall prevail, but in the ultimate, until all are imbued with higher ideals, men must be sustained by conscience and fidelity to principle and must defend those to the death.

With malice toward none, and good will for all, we admonish the voters of this city that the modern saloon is no longer a possibility. It has forfeited whatever claim it may ever have had to the consideration of thinking people. We ask you to place the stamp of your disapproval upon it at the coming election and then act promptly and with equal charity and vigor to assist any and all who may be temporarily inconvenienced in a business way to reinstate in honorable and profitable pursuits.
