WU First College in State to Accept New Plan; Others May Follow Soon

An announcement from a committee selected at a conference of college and high school administration representatives to draw up a form and general plan for the program allowing third year high school students to enter Oregon colleges as regularly enrolled freshmen is expected to be released tomorrow. University president G. H. Smith, pointed out that although the university has already made steps to admit such students that it will fully cooperate on any suggestions with the state office of education on the program. Shortly after Willamette took this action, a meeting was called by State Superintendent of Schools Rex Putnam of college and high school representatives and members of the state office of education to study the possibilities of the program and a committee appointed to study the standards and type of administration necessary for such a plan for the state of Oregon.

Drama Group Names Ten New Members

Ten new members of Theta Alpha Phi, national dramatics fraternity, elected at an organization meeting this week, will be formally initiated at a banquet to be given Thursday evening at the Golden Pheasant, according to Mrs. Margaret Ringnald, adviser. Those selected for membership in the local Oregon Alpha chapter are Leonard Steinbock, Dale Gollifur, Leroy Long, Barbara Hathaway, Lenore Meyers, Darlene Dickson, Dix Moser, Bob Simmons, Mary Jean Huston and Edna Mae Hopper.

Nominations are made by present members from those students participating in the dramatic or technical production of two major or one major and two minor play presentations. The group annually sponsors the homecoming play, this year "The Philadelphia Story," and an original one-act play contest, managing the production and awarding of prizes.

Chapter officers to fill several vacancies will be elected at a meeting scheduled for next week. Mrs. Ringnald said. Present officers are Ruth Matthews, secretary, and Dr. R. M. Gatke, permanent treasurer.

Skit to Show Profs' View of WU Campus

Hot off the telephone wires comes Mark Hatfield's announcement that the chapel program today will consist of a skit produced by the dramatics department, which is headed by Mrs. Margaret Ringnald, Willamette instructor in drama. Mrs. Ringnald has stated that the cast will include Betty Randall, Robert Eugene Brown, Gloria Davey, Charles Lovell, Marion Crews, Bob Weaver and Bob Simmons. The entertainment will depict the Willamette campus as seen by its professors.

Frats Plan For Duration

Willamette's three fraternities were taking steps this week to appoint a committee for each house, with power of attorney to serve for the fraternity in the event that all the members are in the service or one of the service units is established here. This action followed the recommendation of the national fraternity council to Dr. G. Herbert Smith on his recent trip east. Smith brought the suggestion before the interfraternity council upon his return to the campus before Christmas.

Each house will choose a committee of two alumni members, or one alum and one faculty member, and one undergraduate member, from among those who will most easily be reached or who will be in Salem. This committee will make a complete survey of the financial situation of the house to determine the current expenses and the operating expenses, and they will approach mortgage or lease holders to see what arrangements could be made for the duration in the event the fraternity members should cease to function as a group. They will aid in deciding the use of the housing facilities in case the houses are needed for use by the university, in view of the possibility that women students living in Lausanne might be moved to the fraternities if the government takes over the hall to house men. In case the houses are not to be used by the university, the committee will have the power to decide upon the use of the property for the duration, and if necessary, of the disposal of property and furniture. The committee members will be responsible for records and other permanent possessions of the fraternity and the house, and will also be responsible for the reestablishment of the house and the fraternity after the war. A resolution passed by members of the faculty December 15 and board of trustees at a meeting December 18 that Willamette amend its existing entrance requirements enabling students of high caliber with three years high school training to enter the university as regular students made it the first college in the state to formally endorse the program. The plan is in line with existing ones in such schools as

Cavern Head Not Chosen

A permanent manager for the Bearcat Cavern has not yet been appointed to succeed Keith and Kent Markee, board of control members said this week. Dorothy Estes is temporarily directing the activities of the student center.

The policy board of the Cavern was busily engaged all through the week in making "important decisions," most of which are not yet ready for release.

The student mail boxes, which were formerly stationed in the Cavern, have been temporarily placed in the hall on Easton's first floor.

Dave Tesarik, sophomore president, announced this week that the sophomore class is donating its $25 surplus from last year to the Cavern. With this statement came a challenge to other classes to make similar contributions. Cavern officials have stated that necessary improvements are dependent upon financial assistance rendered by student groups.

their committee immediately upon Dr. Smith's return from his trip and it is functioning now, according to Peter Faminow, house president. Dr. Waldo Zeller represents the alumni on the Alpha Psi's committee; Dr. Robert E. Lantz, the faculty, and Richard Wicks, undergraduate students.

A nine-man committee will serve the men of Sigma Tau for the remainder of the school year, but at that time three permanent committee members will be picked from this group of nine. Dr. Robert M. Gatke and Dean Daniel H. Schulze represent the faculty; Corydon Bloodgett, Herbert Hardy and Merrill Ohlmg, alumni; and John Martin, Bill Nesbitt, Bob Radcliffe and Jack Glasse, students.

A group of house members of Kappa Gamma Rho are working on the problem of appointing a committee for their house, Bob Perry, house president, said.

Don Burton will represent Willamette in the state after-dinner speaking contest at Oregon State college Thursday evening, Dr. Herbert E. Rahe, forensics coach, announced this week. Topic for the event will be "American Ersatz."

Willamette entrants have won the contest for the past three years. Last year the representative was Barbara Hathaway.

WU May Take Part in New Army-Navy Training Plan

Official Word Awaited; Use Of Lausanne Offered to Program

Dr. G. Herbert Smith had received no reply yesterday in response to a questionnaire filled out for the War Manpower Commission of the army and navy concerning a special training program. The paper dealt with facilities and accommodations of the university which would help the commission in making choices of the colleges to be given these programs. In sending this application to the commission Willamette has offered to cooperate with the army and navy in the educational training programs which might be assigned to the campus.

New Classes To Open Next Term

Among the courses open to freshmen entering WU next semester will be American history, English composition, beginning physics, engineering drawing, fundamentals of mathematics, beginning trigonometry and analytic geometry, Dean C. E. Luther announced early this week.

Attracting special notice of late, Luther said, is the 3-hour course in engineering drawing which has hitherto been of interest chiefly to the men in the science department. Numerous requests on the part of industry

Burton Named As Speaker In Tournery

Willamette entrants have won the contest for the past three years. Last year the representative was Barbara Hathaway.

Representatives from Linfield, Pacific, and Oregon State will compete with Willamette in the meet. There will be a banquet after which the four talks will be given.

Catherine Thomas won first place in the women's division of the state extempore speaking contest at Linfield college December 11. From the general topic, "Education in the War Crisis," Miss Thomas drew the narrower topic, "Money Tempts Me." Dave Smith was also entered in the meet.

Drive for $50,000 War Fund Opens

To meet the problem of possibilities of a deficit during the war period, a Centennial War fund is being sought by the university administration. Dr. G. H. Smith described the plan as a foresighted method of solving the growing problem of decreased endowment funds and tuition. A goal of $50,000 has been set with the provision that if the money is not entirely used during the war period the balance will be added to the permanent endowments.

A pamphlet describing the history of Willamette, her present place in the war situation and role in the future is to be published soon, and will be sent to friends of the university.

Every effort is being made by the trustees to meet the emergency now existing, Smith said.

Several substantial donations have been made although no statement as to the amount has yet been made by the board of trustees.

It is hoped that with the aid of the fund the university will be able to carry on its work for the duration of the war. There has been a 25 per cent drop in enrollment and a serious reduction in other income.

Committee members in charge of the drive are Paul B. Wallace, chairman, Clarence Bishop, C. L. Starr, Amedee M. Smith, C. E. McCullough, Bishop Bruce Baxter, Tinkham Gilbert and Rev. J. C. Harrison.

Recital Slated For Today

Another of the series of student recitals will be presented this afternoon at 3 p. m. in the music hall auditorium.

Vocalists appearing on the program will be Melvin Gilson, Michael Carolan, Jeannie Milch, Beth Seiwart and Barbara Diefendorf. Several selections will be played by Reba Lehman, flutist, and piano solos will be presented by Yvonne Mozee and Earlene Gleason.

Also appearing on the program is Eunice Massee, violinist, and a special violin group which will play one number.

Pre-Medical Students To Take Special Exam

Due to the war conditions it is extremely important that all men who expect to enroll in medical school before September of 1944 take the aptitude test given by the Association of American Medical Colleges. The test, to be given January 22 at 2 p. m., in Collins hall, is one of the normal requirements for admission.

The board of trustees has approved a plan which in case of army or navy selection of Willamette will use Lausanne hall, present women's dormitory, as a men's dormitory. The administration would arrange for adequate housing for women then residing in the hall. The decision was among those made by the board at a meeting held just before the holidays.

Additional wartime policies adopted by the board were discussed by Pres. Smith in a chapel address last week when he pointed out that the action had been taken as the preferable of the three alternatives facing the school: complete suspension of the educational program for the duration, severe retrenchment, or cooperation with the armed forces in the military training system.

Commenting further on the board's decision, he stated that under no conditions will the school be closed although cuts in curriculum and faculty may eventually become mandatory. The consideration of such a possibility would directly contradict Willamette's traditional ideal in education and faith in the value of the liberal arts course, Dr. Smith said.

How the colleges will be selected for training centers is as yet unanswered, although Secretary of the Navy Knox has said, "We will give special consideration to those (colleges) (Continued on page 3)

Collegian Features and Editorials

Until Duty Calls . . .

Although the long-awaited, oft-delayed college programs of the army and navy have finally been announced, the average college man in the reserve programs is sure about only one phase of his present status: that it involves pins-and-needles, uncertainty and confusion in general.

The difficulty is not a fear of military service; the average college man has been for some time besieged by a war of nerves which began well before Christmas with rumblings from Washington about forthcoming vital changes in the army and navy programs for college men. Dr. Luther, campus representative for the armed forces, and Dr. Smith, president of the university, in their thankless and never-ending task of tracking down rumors, no sooner cornered one series of false and unofficial "scare" stories, than a new series of official releases from Washington started the teapot boiling all over again.

When the plans for the new program were finally officially released, the situation was somewhat clarified, but some issues are still somewhat in doubt. The essence of the plan, explained elsewhere in today's Collegian, is that the reservists are to be called into active service and some then sifted out to return to selected colleges along with some men already in the service. How the men are to be chosen for the college work isn't yet clear.

Perhaps the major question, still not definitely answered, in the mind of the college man is "When will I be called into service?" It is this question which has promoted the war of nerves. It is more or less taken for granted that those not in reserve programs will be drafted very soon. Indications are that the army enlisted reserve will likely be called soon after the end of this semester. The army air corps and the marine corps will call men as they are needed. Naval authorities have said that at a "date to be announced" all V-1, V-5 and V-7 reservists in colleges will be placed on active duty as apprentice seamen, and some then may continue their studies under the new plan. Unofficial information suggests that this the "future date" will be at the close of the current college year.

As to a solution of the problem of what to do now, there seems to be only one logical course: continue college and study. Reservists were left in college because it was thought that there they would be best able to prepare to serve the nation, so the men should continue college as long as possible. The chance for higher education is a privilege, especially just now, and the opportunity should not be ignored.

Realizing the dilemma of college men, Willamette administration heads last fall offered their complete cooperation by providing for tuition refund for unfinished portions of the semester if students are called into service. Men forced to leave by service calls may receive full tuition, one-third credit and two-thirds tuition, two-thirds credit and one-third tuition, or full credit, depending on the fraction of the semester completed.

In other words, we can't lose, so the only sensible thing to do is to stay in college, study, learn, and worry about service calls when they come.

Dear PRIVATE JOHNNY

DARLING:

It seems a year since your Christmas furlough and the grand time we had together. Everyone likes my ring, but somebody wanted to know who I was engaged to, or should I tell you this? Anyway I told her it was the one I talked about all the time and she knew right away.

So it's back to school again, and we've settled down to a long hard winter. As I toddle off to 7:45's these mornings and meet shadowy forms coming across the campus I wonder about the etiquette of the thing. Do you say "hello" to every shadow that goes by or do you wait to be spoken to and how do they know? I think it demands a whole new social code.

By the way, as I'm writing this the editor is distractedly lurking around, tearing his hair out because there isn't any news for the Collegian. "Couldn't a Willamette student have drowned in the flood or something?" he keeps shouting. Also, on the typewriter before me there are some names typed onto the roll that make me wonder. "oh eloise findley vicky jones susanna lois phillips mary bennett thyrta," it says. A very amorous doodler no doubt.

Said the Alpha Psi to the Kappa, "My, I wish I could wear my hair short." Said the Kappa to the Alpha Psi, "Cut it and you'll have to."

I guess it's the military trend; Win Taylor has been wearing brown for weeks to get used to the color. Toolie, of course, is a chameleon already, so he'll be fine for the Marines.

Eleanor Todd has developed a way to make her first million. Each time before she goes home to Portland where bus tokens cost 25c for 3 she buys up a supply of them in Salem where they cost 25c for 4 and uses them in Portland. No, they're not exactly the same, but you could drop peanuts in the fare box and never be noticed the way the Portland buses are crowded now. Why, even Sonny Merriott and Betty Jean complained about having to sit too close.

Personally I've made a New Year's resolution to stay strictly with my studies after hearing Dr. Smith's inspiring talk in chapel Tuesday. It seems the real purpose of college is not the social life but for what you learn out of books! Yeah, on the level! So I'm studying. Incidentally, final exams are in two weeks.

In the first place I'm taking my psych very seriously and even found myself talking the stuff yesterday. I said, meaning that I couldn't tell whether it was cabbage or turnips for supper, that my olfactory sense were not accurate, and Reggie, the dear, said, "I know what you mean; you don't smell so good."

And so darling, I leave you with Reggie's Little Thought for the Day: "I'm glad I'm like me and not like Mahatma Gandhi."

Love,

WU Women At War

Many phases of change brought to Willamette by war have been discussed, but none is more important nor more neglected than Willamette's women at war. For women have taken their place with their men on the active front, in defense industries and on the home front with their men to help bring the world back to its senses. Only incomplete mention can be made of a few coeds and alumnae who are directly serving the war effort.

A vital defense industry claims the services of a group of war widows in Seattle. There Mrs. Al Klausen (Delma Jean Jones), Mrs. Oscar Swenson (Cleo Nissen), and Mrs. Bruce Van Wyngarden (Maxine Holt) find in their work equal benefits to their country and solace for loneliness. They are keeping the home fires burning in the World War II way, by keeping the fires of industry bright.

From Portland word has come that both Betty Marie Keller and Frances Pickard expect call to the WAVES in February when they will begin officers' training at Smith college in the east. And snapshots sent from that training station show a trim number in navy blues whom we remember as Jessie Mae Ruhndorf of the class of '41. Theirs are positions on the active front which places them among the pioneering women who have confidently tread through the years of America's history.

On the home front are the wives and fiances of fighting men who are making the months of waiting count by getting the education for the family, so schooling themselves in the humane arts and sciences that they will be prepared for the months of reconstruction bound to follow the conflict, as June Haight, Jean Moore and Helen Simpson are doing. Others are leaving school to be with their husbands, as Jean Sherman, who leaves at the end of the month. Still others are discontinuing their schooling because they have valuable training to offer the war effort. Elvy Fredrickson, finding her credits sufficient for graduation, will leave at the close of the semester for employment in a defense industry where her background in mathematics will serve to best advantage.

For MEN Only

By Gil Lieser

A death knell was sounded for Willamette fraternities and fraternities on campuses throughout the country for the duration, with the publication shortly before Christmas of the war department's drastic new program for the training of 250,000 American youths in 208 colleges of the nation for future service as officers in the armed forces.

Space does not permit even a brief review of the lengthy outline of the program which appeared in newspapers on December 18, but the essence of the announcement is that officer training units from the three branches of the services, army, navy and marines, will be placed in the 208 colleges under a contract plan of instruction, food and housing; the type of units sent to the various schools to depend upon facilities of the institution in question.

The length of time remaining for the life of Willamette fraternities depends upon whether or if, this institution receives an army or navy or marine unit. Should an army unit be sent here the changeover in housing facilities on the campus which means the death of fraternity life will be soon and sudden, since the war department's program calls for the placement of army reserve units with the coming of the new semester.

Should Willamette receive a naval or marine unit local fraternities will be able to keep their doors open until June at which time these units will be assigned to colleges simultaneously with the introduction of a three-semester year for all institutions of higher education.

What the future will hold for Willamette should it fail to receive an officer's training unit from any branch of the armed services, only time will tell, but in any event the days are numbered for fraternities both local and national, because next summer will see the completion of the war department's extensive program which will be inaugurated in a few weeks, and from that time on there will be little place for fraternities in the life of the few college men privileged to complete their higher education under one of the officer training programs.

On many campuses of larger institutions fraternities are, or will shortly be, in the process of being made over into small dormitory units or boarding houses to accommodate members of the units assigned to those schools. In the case of the three fraternities on the Willamette campus, plans call for their being turned over to serve as boarding houses for women students who would have to vacate Lausanne hall should a unit of the officer training program be assigned here.

Though housing plans are still in a preliminary stage until definite word is received concerning the assignment of an army or navy unit to this campus, it is highly probable that Lausanne hall, which now shelters some 100 women, could be made over to house from 150 to 200 officer trainees. The women students forced to move from Lausanne could be amply accommodated in the three fraternities which combined could hold well over the total number now living at Lausanne.

All of this sounds somewhat drastic, and none of it has been nor can be confirmed by an official announcement from the administration until that office has more definite information as to the possibilities of obtaining a military unit on this campus . . . yet it is not, on the other hand, merely a stab in the dark conjectured from wild guesses hazarded in the interests of putting together a startling story.

The above material has been gleaned from reliable facts gathered since the war department's announcement on December 18, and written down in the hope that it may answer a few questions concerning the future of fraternities that may have been lingering in the minds of others like ourselves.

The writer believes that nearly all who have partaken of fraternity life on this campus or elsewhere will sincerely regret the passing of these organizations from our colleges and universities for the duration, but if this latest move by the war department for the speeding up of the officer training programs, that has caused the disbanding of fraternities, will help speed an end to the struggle and bring our former roommates and fraternity brothers back from the fighting fronts sooner, then we believe there is no Greek man who will for even a moment oppose the move.

Army, Navy To Utilize Colleges

Reservists to Be Called, Some Returned to Selected Schools

After months of uncertainty, the army and navy, with the approval of the war manpower commission, during the holidays revealed details of their long-awaited plan to utilize the facilities of many colleges for specialized training of thousands of selectees and enlisted reservists.

Main outlines of the plan provide for the enrollment of selected applicants of both army and navy for advanced work in colleges cooperating in the military training program. Men participating in such courses will be in uniform on active duty as privates and apprentice seamen, receiving service pay, with food and housing provided by the government. Classes conducted under the program will be supervised by civilian professors.

The institutions will be selected according to "facilities available" for training and the trainees will be chosen on the basis of certain qualifications and without regard to their financial resources, it was stated. Neither the number of the schools, the number of students to be selected, nor the manner of their selection was revealed.

Call Date Not Certain

Just when college men who are in the present inactive reserve program will be called into active duty has not been made clear. A report from the Washington correspondent of the Associated Collegiate Press says that army reservists, with certain exceptions "may be expected to be put on active duty soon," while naval reservists are to be called "at a date to be announced later," probably at the close of the coming semester.

Although academic training will predominate, trainees in the army plan will follow a cadet drill system similar to that of West Point and will be subject to regular army discipline. Courses and length of the various training periods have not as yet been determined. The factors will vary, however, according to the purpose of the course and trainees not meeting the required standards of achievement will be returned to the ranks.

Med Students Continue

Deferments in the army announcement include pre-medical and pre-dental students who will be allowed to complete an additional semester in college. Also deferred for a semester are medical, dental and veterinary students not enrolled in a reserve who will thereafter be subject to selective service with further study dependent upon qualification under the new program.

According to the navy announcement of its "Navy College Training Program," members of the V-1 and V-7 programs upon being placed on active duty as apprentice seamen will continue their regular studies at least through their junior year. Those enlisted under V-5 will be allowed to complete the year "current at the time of their enlistment or transfer to V-5." Men receiving medical, dental or theological training previous to entering the navy will continue instruction on active duty.

Prep Men Eligible

The navy program will normally draw men between the ages of 17 and 19 in their final year of high school while an additional group of enlisted seamen will be recommended for advanced schooling by their commanding officers. Navy trainees will receive a basic course of mathematics, science, English history, engineering, drawing and physical training for the first eight months of the training period. Supplementary courses will depend upon the requirements of the branch of the service to be entered.

Details of the method of choosing colleges to participate in the military training program have not been definitely clarified, with the only statement forthcoming being that issued by Secretaries Henry L. Stimson and Frank Knox to the effect that their departments would shortly enter into contracts with certain selected schools to provide courses "prescribed by the respective services for the instruction of 'qualified' young men" in specialized technical training.

Students Return From Short Holidays, Prepare for Exams

Willamette students returned last week from the holidays with semester final examinations lurking just around the corner a little over two weeks away. Study time last week in preparation for exams was interrupted by the New Year's Eve costume party Thursday, late hours Thursday night for women's living groups, the holiday Friday and the weekend flood.

With the celebration over, the temporarily flood-marooned students back at school, and the posting of the first semester exam schedule this week, students were jolted out of their holiday complacency into the regular routine of assignments, over-due outside reading, and frantic reviewing.

Finals will be given the week of January 18-22, a week earlier than planned on the original school calendar last fall. The date of exam week was set ahead in compliance with Willamette's speeded-up curriculum and shortened vacation periods for Christmas and Easter. No regular classes will be held that week.

Although a plan was under consideration to keep Lausanne hall open for the Christmas holidays, it was decided unnecessary when it was made known that there would be only a small increase in the number of students remaining in Salem, despite wartime restrictions to travel. All the other living houses were closed for the vacation from December 18 to 28, Stanford, Northwestern, Syracuse and Yale universities according to President G. Herbert Smith.

The resolution is similar to the recommendations given by the educational policies commission of the National Education association. The plan was created in order to allow students to complete one year of college training before entrance into the armed forces which they would not otherwise be able to do.

Selected high school students who have completed three years work including subjects necessary for the college work to be pursued will be admitted to Willamette for the second semester of the 1942-43 school year starting January 25. According to the resolution students to be chosen for this work "shall rank in the upper brackets of their respective high school classes and by their superior high school attainment and records in educational achievement tests, shall indicate their ability to profit by work on the college level."

Spalding Community Concert Scheduled for Monday Night

By Ella Rose Mason

Albert Spalding, world famous violinist, is scheduled for Monday night at the Salem high school auditorium. This is the second in the Community Concert series.

Spalding, born in Chicago of well-to-do parents, inherited much of his musical genius from his mother who has been soloist with the Chicago symphony for many years. When seven years old he began playing the violin and later he studied in Florence, New York and Paris.

'Arsenic' Cast Now Complete

The cast of "Arsenic and Old Lace," Willamette's forthcoming dramatic venture, is now complete with Lenore Myers in the role of Elaine Harper, the minister's daughter who is marrying into the family of the mad Brewsters. The role of the second corpse has been dispensed with. Bill Hanauska was the only try-out, and the prospect of Dale Gollihur and Charles Lovell heaving him through windows was too terrifying, according to Mrs. Margaret Ringnald, drama director.

This play of the two Victorian aunts, Abby and Martha, played by Edna Mae Hopper and Lois Phillips respectively, who kill lonely old men as "one of their charities" and bury them with proper service in the basement, in the "most riotous comedy in years." Even if the aunts were not insane enough, the play is famous for the part of Jonathan Brewster, a natural for Boris Karloff. As "First Gentleman of Horrors" he was the main attraction during the play's New York run, becoming identified with the part. Dale Gollihur is practicing the soft, sadistic voice and look of the Karloff character.

Others in the play are Bob Simmons, Leonard Steinbock, Loren Winterscheid, Leroy Long, Charles Lovell, Robert Brown, Edward Hughell and Henry Ulvin.

with meager financial resources whose existence is threatened by the war." This statement, together with declarations by authorities that liberal arts colleges will not be sacrificed in the accelerated war training program, indicated that small institutions such as Willamette may have a part in the new army-navy plan.

A detailed explanation of the plan to employ the facilities of selected colleges in the military training program as approved by the war manpower commission will be found on page three of this Collegian.

Drive Tops Last Year's

Topping last year's figure by over 200 per cent, Willamette student and faculty members have contributed $290 to the annual World Student Service Fund drive and $80 in pledges is expected to be paid by this afternoon when the final drive for unpaid pledges ends, the WSSF committee announced late this week.

Complete details of the drive on other campuses are not yet available, but the success of the Willamette campaign was indicated by the fact that total contributions on this campus exceeded those at the University of Oregon by over $50, WSSF heads said.

"We surely appreciate the cooperation of those who have come to pay their pledges without our having to solicit them individually," Ina Monroe, treasurer for the drive commented. The entire fund will be immediately forwarded to WSSF headquarters in New York City.

Faculty Directory Appears In Eaton; Tells Office Hours

A faculty directory, designed by David Foster and Miss Constance Fowler, art instructor, and listing the names, offices and office hours of the Willamette faculty and administration, was this week placed in the first-floor corridor of Eaton hall. The addition came as a direct result of a recent Collegian editorial stressing the need for such a directory, Miss Fowler said.

The data included in the guide was compiled from questionnaires sent to all professors by the administration shortly after the appearance of the Collegian editorial. Completion of the project was assumed by the art department upon the request of Dean Chester F. Luther.

Enclosed in a glass case and designed to facilitate any desirable changes in information, the directory consists of name plates fixed to a background of blue. Rather a unique innovation is the inclusion of office hours in the listed information, according to Dr. Robert E. Lantz.

Formal Inauguration Date Still Not Definite

The date for the formal inauguration of Dr. Herbert Smith to the presidency of Willamette has not yet been set, authorities said this week. It is pending action by Gov. Charles Sprague, chairman of the committee created by the board of trustees to plan the event. Working with him are Dean Chester F. Luther and Bishop Bruce Baxter.

Miss Lorena Jack Reveals Engagement

A pleasant surprise awaited Lausanne Hall coeds as they returned from Christmas vacationing. A diamond was apparent on that certain finger of none other than Miss Lorena Jack, director of Lausanne Hall.

The announcement of her engagement to Clayton W. Groff of Portland was revealed previously at a Sunday evening supper at the home of Miss Mary Sheldon. The table at which the guests were seated was centered with an arrangement of traditional Christmas greens and lighted red tapers. The news of the betrothal was disclosed as the dessert was served in a game in which each guest described her favorite Christmas present in four or five concise statements, and then those present guessed just what the present might have been. Miss Jack was last. Guess what her Christmas present was? That's right!

Honored guests were Mrs. A. F. Jack of Silverton, Miss Olive M. Dahl, Miss Helen MacHirron, Miss Lois Latimer, Miss Bernice Orwig and the hostess, Miss Mary Sheldon.

Not to be outdone, the women at the dormitory gave Miss Jack a surprise. She was sung under the table according to the traditional custom.

Those invited to witness the amusing incident were Miss Olive M. Dahl, Miss Helen MacHirron, Miss Lois Latimer, Mrs. Helen McCullough and Miss Bernice Orwig.

Miss Jack is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Jack of Silverton. No date has been set for the wedding.

Class Feted After Lab.

After their weekly laboratory Monday at the girls' school the psychiatry class will adjourn to the home of Dr. Horace Miller, psychiatrist at the Fairview home, for an informal dinner.

Those attending the dinner will be Rev. Goodwin, Eleanor Todd, Mrs. Keith Sherman, Martin Barber, Jan Johnson, Betty Sackett, Rosella Bell, Mrs. Connie Anderson Baldwin, Don Tasker, Nadene Mathews, Reba Lehman, Louise Carlson, Shirley Caufield and Glennerva Harnsburger.

On Behalf of the Visiting Firemen

By HOPPIE

Forty-three arrived in a blaze of lights . . . at least in ye olde gym of Willamette university. Helping to consume the seventy odd gallons of punch were Dr. and Mrs. Ivan Lovell, attired in costumes designed to promote the good neighbor policy. "Bones" Hamilton in his little short pants and his big green bow tie, spent most of his time trying to coax Clint Cameron off the rafters, far above the dancers . . . The prize for the best costumes, (two free lectures: compliments of Dr. R. Moulton Gatke), to Myra Madsen and Bob Weaver appearing in their matching white flannel nightshirts, white night caps, and lighting the floor with twin candles . . . Two Lausanne hall girls apparently took the suggestions in chapel seriously, for they arrived wearing two huge paper flowers . . .

Throughout the course of the entire evening attempts were made by many to discover the real identity of the "white ghost." Everyone tried to dance with "it." Clothed entirely in the conventional ghost outfit, white hood and all, his identity still remains the one mystery of the dance . . . Did anyone miss seeing the sweater girl with the good looking legs, and was it Dix Moser or Jean Fries, we're confused . . .

Reverting to the days of the "Yellow Jacket" in the drama department, Dale Gollihar returned as the daffodil prince, accompanied by Lenore Meyers in a red and white drum majorette uniform . . . Greeting the celebrating students at the door was Marjorie Penman, bringing us a little of the atmosphere of the world before the Greeks. Her baggy chiffon trousers attracted considerable attention as she adorned each newcomer with some ridiculous hat . . . Betty Adkins was still in possession of one of the bottles she received at a public ceremony at Christmas time. She was displaying it very evidently . . . 1942 brought many strange costumes, among which was the rush to attend first aid classes. Lois Lewis seemed adorned with every conceivable bandage that the best student of first aid could concoct . . .

Speaking of strange styles and fads for the last year, do you remember the coming of—argyle socks and sweaters for the gals . . . teddy bear coats . . . Oral Davidson's hand knit white sweater . . . levis and plaid shirts for the fellows . . . macaroni beads . . . plaid shoe laces . . . predominance of green in the fall?

Kappas-Psis Have Dinner

An evening spent in playing pool, ping pong and probably a non-paying slot machine followed the Alpha Psis Kappa exchange dinner last night.

The places set for the Kappas at the Alpha Psis house were Ted Ogdahl, Bob Lee, Ronald Runyan, Ammon Adams, and George Luthy.

Places set for the Kappas who were the hosts to the Alpha Psis were Warren Hunter, Bob Perry, Howard Blanding, Jack Whitliff, Dave Teeters, Sid Southwick, Bill Cooke, Gil Lieser, John Watkins, Clint Williams, Paul Jacquith, Bill Cate and Dean Barnhardt.

Ducks Edge 'Cats; Return Tilt Tonight

Oregon Takes WU in Close Game, 36-33

A brilliant Willamette basketball team, producing a last minute rally which looked as though it might perform an upset over the highly-touted Oregon team, was nipped in the final minute of the game to lose a non-conference game Wednesday night, 36-33.

Sparked by freshman Duane Ragsdale on offense, and by freshman Wes Saxton on defense, the Bearcats showed so much fight in the last period that Coach Hobson of Oregon was forced to send in all of his first squad to use the famous Oregon "stall."

Oregon took an early lead, but Willamette knotted the count at six all and 10 all. After nine minutes of play, Roger Wiley, Oregon's 6 foot 8 inch freshman center, who led the Oregon scoring with eight points, gave Oregon a 12-10 lead. That lead was never relinquished, although the Bearcats crept close a number of times. The first half ended 23-17 in advantage of the Ducks.

A field goal by Gene Schmidt, brought the Bearcats within three points of Oregon at 30-33 with three minutes to go. A free toss by Walt Reynolds for Oregon and a free toss by Ragsdale, who led all scoring with a total of 10 points Wednesday night, retaliated, making Oregon's lead 35-32 when the "freezer" squad came in.

Foul shots by Oregon proved to be the deciding factor in the game, for Oregon only scored 15 field goals to Willamette's 18, making the winning margin on free throws. High scorer was Ragsdale, and leading defense man was Saxton, who's continual "stealing" the ball on rebound shots nearly proved to be fatal to Oregon.

'Cats Split Early Frays

Playing two pre-season Yuletide games, the Willamette Bearcats came out even on the long run when they lost to the powerful Oregon State Beavers 35-18 and won from the Camp Adair Wolverines 46-43.

Meeting the Orange squad on the OSC maple court, the Bearcats found little trouble holding the high scoring Beavers down in the first half, for as the 'Cats entered the second half they were only trailing the Oregon Staters 18-14. But from then on, it was Oregon State all the way. Only able to score four points in the last period, the Bearcats were handed a 35-18 loss, largely due to the outstanding playing of Don Durdan and Joe Beck.

Smarting with their first defeat, and fighting to win their first home game, the Willamette squad, meeting a team composed of several collegian all-star players, came back with a last minute scoring streak to defeat the Wolverines from Camp Adair 46-43.

Although individualism of the soldier team was outstanding, the teamwork of the 'Cat squad proved to be the stronger. Although behind from the middle of the first half, the soldiers were within winning reach all through the game, and a last minute surge, counter-played by the Bearcats, almost proved fatal for Spee's team.

In both games, Schmidt and Kelly led their team in offensive playing as well as defensive.

Gene Schmidt, freshman center, will probably see much action in tonight's game against Oregon.

IM Basketball Gets Under Way As Initial Games are Fought

Under a revised program brought about by the present war conditions, the Willamette intramural program got into full swing last Monday, when the Rubes beat the Freshman A squad in the opening encounter of the A league.

Tuesday's game saw the 8:40 gym class victors over the 9:35 class in a close tilt 30-29 as the B league opened its competition. Wednesday the Sigma Taus beat the Frosh B's by a 30-20 score.

With the complete division of teams into two leagues, and with the addition of teams from the four gym classes, Director Les Sparks hopes to develop more and better intra-school competition. This year for the first time, the program will include a league for just men who have had little athletic experience. The program will consist of an A league for the experienced and B for those without.

In the A league this year, there will be six teams. They will consist of two teams from the freshman squad, the Rubes, the Kappas, the Alpha Pairs and the Sigma Taus. The B league will include four teams from each of the gym classes.

The schedule so far as is now known is as follows:

Today—8:40 gym class vs. 10:30.

Monday—Sigma Tau vs. Alpha Psi.

Tuesday—9:35 gym class vs. 2:10 gym class.

Wednesday—Kappas vs. Freshman B.

Thursday—8:40 gym class vs. 2:30.

Friday—9:35 gym class vs. 10:30.

Yipe! Oh, Why Did I Cut Gym Last Week?

Pained expressions upon Willamette men's faces were evident early this week when the physical education department posted an announcement stating that anyone with over three unexcused absences from gym classes will not receive physical education credit for the first semester.

Because men in military reservists must be passing in all courses, many Willamette students are in a predicament at this time. Make-up classes of two hours for each class missed is the only alternative to failure.

Students with as many as 27 absences are faced with an almost insurmountable task, but more fortunate men are making retribution for irregular attendance earlier this term.

Keene's Casaba Men Will Seek To Even Series on Local Court

Smarting from the 36 to 33 defeat handed them by the University of Oregon team Wednesday night, the Bearcat lads play host to the Ducks tonight on the local maple boards.

Although Oregon did manage to squeeze out a narrow win over the 'Cats in the first game, the close score proved to be an upset as far as the score was concerned, and the last minute rally by Willamette almost produced an upset as far as all predictions were concerned. Entering the game as underdogs, it is certain that the Bearcats will be out there fighting, trying to perform an upset and even the two-game series.

Varied PE Tests Begin

With the final week approaching nearer and nearer for the close of the first semester, the Willamette men will start taking their first gym test this coming week. This test will follow the program set up in the navy V-1 program. It is not certain whether all of the test can be completed, but if possible each man will get his chance in testing his ability.

The test will cover six fields: flexibility, agility, strength, endurance, power and motor responses. These tests will include push-ups, chin-ups, running a mile in seven minutes, rope climb, muscle exercises and many others.

According to Les Sparks, the swimming test will be probably given at the first of the second week.

Teddy Ogdahl All-Coast Star

The selection of the second annual "little all-coast" team, chosen from 30 smaller west coast teams awarded Ted Ogdahl, Willamette's outstanding line gainer, a fullback berth on the first team.

The team was chosen by coaches, scouts, and sport writers and compiled by Ty Cobb, who is the sports editor of the Reno Journal.

Ogdahl, a junior from Portland, Oregon, has been chosen on nearly every all-star team picked by WU opponents in this year's competition.

Bird Tournament Played by Women

The women's sophomore gym class is now going full-swing with its badminton tournament. A doubles tournament was first played and now a single tournament is being conducted. The women, listed in the order which they are now in on the ladder tournament, are Catherine Thomas, Joyce Harper, Miriam Ferrin, Bette Burkhardt, Kay Wilson and Mary Laughlin. Marjorie Reeves, Mary McKay, Barbara Hathaway, June Downey and Rosalie Hoover.

WAA

An important WAA meeting will be held Tuesday at 4 p. m. in the gym. New policies and activities for the coming semester will be discussed. All members should be present.

WAA volleyball practices are continuing each week-day evening, 7 to 8 in the gym. All women interested are urged to come for an hour of exercise and fun.

Mary Alice Bartholomew is the newly appointed head of bowling and all points for this sport will be turned in to her.

By playing 15 hours of ping pong, badminton, or a combination of both, one may gain membership in WAA. Turn in your hours to Mary Acheson.

Hazel Wells and Ina Monroe, both freshmen, have recently become members of WAA.

Shortage Problem Aired

Miss Jack Tells of Difficulties Of Getting Supplies at Lausanne

"One of the few points in favor of shortages is the fact that I am not bothered nearly so much this year by salesmen," said Lorena N. Jack, Lausanne hall director, yesterday in discussing rationing, shortages, and the inability to get certain supplies necessary for running the hall. "Only about one-third as many salesmen come this year, since most of the companies now rely on selling by mail."

"The great difficulty in getting meat supplies makes it harder to plan the menus very far in advance. It is almost impossible to get smoked meats of any kind, and menus planned to include beef may have to be changed at the last minute. However, there is plenty of pork at present. Canned fish is very difficult to get," Miss Jack added, "but we have some tuna on hand."

Food Flooded

"The recent flood did not quite reach Lausanne, but the effect of the flood did," Miss Jack went on. "It is impossible to get many fresh vegetables this week since so many of the farms were covered by the flood waters. Before this, fresh vegetables were very expensive, but easy to secure. Fortunately, our canned supplies were purchased in June and we have them all on hand. Otherwise, we would be able to get only one case of canned food at a time, and it would be impossible to get string beans and peas at all in the amounts necessary."

No Coffee Lack

So far, there is no shortage at the hall on coffee and there will probably be no shortage on tea. A slight shortage on coffee may be forthcoming since the allotment is based on the amount used during the first two months of the school year. The hall is not rationed as yet on chocolate for cocoa, and although it cannot buy chocolate syrup, the cooks make the syrup necessary for use there. Miss Jack expects to encounter a shortage on chocolate and tea later in the year.

In the matter of ice cream, there is very little choice," Miss Jack states. "Only about three varieties are available, and we can never depend upon receiving the kind ordered. Often we find substitutes made in the orders of staple goods too, especially in dry cereals. We receive very good service from the bakeries, but we are not able to get nearly so much variety as we had last year. Deliveries are not at all dependable, and we often wonder if the supplies ordered will come."

Laundry Service Slow

"One of our greatest difficulties is with the laundry service. Sometimes it is impossible to get our linen back and we are unable to change the table linen as often as we would like. This delay in returning linen has made it necessary to have three sets of table linen, where before we always used only two.

Linen, too, are difficult to purchase. Last summer, Mrs. Jack ordered one dozen sheets and one dozen pillow cases for the infirmary, but all she was able to get was one half-dozen sheets.

Ration Plan Coming

Paper supplies, disinfectants, soaps, light globes and fuel are still available, but rubber washers and faucet fixtures are not.

"Although there are shortages and rationed supplies, we are able to get many things we need that I had thought we would have to do without this year. I have no information at all about the way the extensive rationing beginning next month will affect us. I was asked to keep a record of the kinds and amounts of food used during December and a tally of the number of meals served, as well as an inventory of all food supplies on hand at the first of January. Our allowance under the new rationing regulations will probably be based on this information," Miss Jack concluded.

New Classes To Open

for college women with mechanical drawing training have brought it to the attention of Willamette's fairer sex.

The Oregon State college extension division has included a similar course in their engineering war training program in an effort to meet the shortage of trained personnel in engineering fields. This instruction is designed to meet the immediate needs in specific technical jobs in the war program.

Although no previous mathematics are required, when coupled with drawing, basic math and computing, this course qualifies one for a junior engineering position or a similar position with high pay.

"Women are almost sure to land jobs in this field," William H. Baillie, manager of the local office of the US employment service, said. "A woman who takes half a year of engineering drawing coupled with some training in computing will find a job waiting for her. The forest service, the state highway commission and the army engineers are all especially looking for topographical engineers; war industries need persons with strict technical training," he added.

Delta Phi Elect New Manager

Mrs. June Haight was elected Delta Phi house manager by members at the regular house meeting Wednesday night. She will replace Elvy Fredrickson, manager for two years, who is leaving school upon completion of her requirements for graduation at the end of the present semester. Mrs. Haight will take office immediately and will continue in that position during the coming year.

Ex-Student Given Honor

Honor came to another former Willamette student recently when Edward C. Wells, engineer at Boeing Aircraft company since 1930, was announced as the winner of the Lawrence Sperry award for 1942, given by the Institute of Aeronautical Sciences for notable accomplishments by young men in the advancement of aeronautics.

Wells attended Willamette in 1929 and 1930, later graduating from Stanford. He received his foundation in mathematics under the late Dr. James T. Matthews.

He was appointed assistant chief engineer at Boeing in 1939 when he was only 28 years old, and was responsible for much of the design and engineering work on the Flying Fortress B-17 army bombers.

Lt. Robert Dean

Robert Dean, '42, has received his commission as second lieutenant in the air corps, and is now stationed at the Portland army air base weather station, where he is meteorologist. Lt. Dean last month was granted his graduate degree in meteorology by the California Institute of Technology.

Students Warned to File Tax Forms on Incomes Over $525

Officials of the internal revenue department issued warning this week to college students who have earned taxable salaries during the past year, since many students do not realize they would be subject to tax. High wages of summer jobs was given as the reason for the warning. Willamette students who are in doubt about their tax status may obtain information at the office of the collector of internal revenue on the second floor of the post office building in Salem.

Federal tax returns must be in by March 15, and students working in Oregon are subject to a state tax also if they are single and their salary exceeded $800.

Missionary To Speak

Mrs. Lucille Libby, who returned last year from the mission field in Kuling, China, will tell University Vespers members of her experiences and work there when she speaks to the group Sunday night. She will also tell of Chinese student opinions of the United States. Mrs. Libby was a teacher in the mission school at Kuling, where her husband was a medical missionary. She is the mother of Alice and Paul Libby, Willamette students.

Keith and Kent Markee will lead the worship service for Mrs. Libby's meeting, and Bettiellen Payne will sing.

Donald Hagg of Salem, WU '38, was home during the holidays for a brief furlough with his family before leaving for further training at Treasure Island. Hagg, navy radio technician, graduated from the navy's school at Texas A & M with high honors in December. He was affiliated with Alpha Psi Delta.

"Winds of 100 miles an hour with snow on the ground. Weather between storms is very much like that of Oregon," is the report of Ensign Graydon K. Anderson of the US naval operating base in Dutch Harbor, Alaska. Anderson was a member of the faculty of the economics department here last year. He received his bachelor's degree from Willamette and took graduate work at the University of Minnesota.

He is now in charge of navigation charts and hydrographic office publications at Dutch Harbor and the Unalaska sub-sector gunnery office, which extended from Dutch Harbor west to the Andean islands.

Two former Willamette students, Harold Hutchinson and Junior Nelson, were recently commissioned second lieutenants in the medical administrative corps upon completion of training in the medical replacement training center officer candidate school of Camp Barkley, Texas. Both are residents of Salem.

Lt. Nelson graduated from Willamette in 1939 and had taught school before entering the army, where he held the rank of corporal upon his nomination to officers training. Lt. Hutchinson also attended Willamette as a pre-dental student before he was called into the armed forces. His rank had been that of a technician sergeant before entering advanced training.
