WASHINGTON WINS.

Strongest Team Ever in the Capital.

In a fiercely contested and intensely exciting game the Willamette basketball team last Saturday night went down to honorable defeat before the husky basket throwers from the University of Washington. From the time the two teams trotted out onto the field until the final whistle blew, the greatest interest was manifested by the large and enthusiastic audience. Although the Washingtonians were in the lead most of the game, it was only by a very few points, and "it was anybody's game" up to the last moment. This is the first time in three years that the 'Varsity team has met defeat on their own floor, and those who went to the gymnasium last Saturday night expecting to see a good game were not disappointed in the least. The teams were evenly matched as to size, and about an equal number of fouls were called on each. The game was rather rough, but not intentionally so, and the best of feeling prevailed throughout the game.

The visitors sprung a great surprise on the start by playing the famous Tom McDonald at forward instead of his usual place at center. He was easily the star of the team, and although Matthews, who was pitted against him in the first half, played like a demon, he was no match for him, permitting him to make four baskets. In the second half Pollard was put in at guard against McDonald, Judd went to center and Matthews to forward. By this arrangement the giant from Seattle was held down to a single basket. Will McDonald, who played center, was unable to make a single field goal, but succeeded in securing three from the foul line. Waller and Hill each added two points to the Washington side of the score in the first and second halves, respectively.

Miller scored the most points for the home team, making a total of three field goals. Matthews also made two baskets. Pollard threw four out of a possible eight from the foul line. Judd made two failures from the foul line. Had Willamette been up to her usual standard in throwing fouls, the score would have been different. The boys admit that for once they met their superiors and say they were fairly beaten.

After the game the visitors were given a reception by the Girls' Student Association, which was very pleasing to them as it was the first courtesy shown them while on the tour. This was the last game on the schedule, and they left on the early morning train for Seattle, having won four of the five games played.

JUNIORS ENTERTAINED.

By far the "swellest" class party held at Willamette in many a day took place last Wednesday evening when E. K. Miller entertained his fellow juniors in royal style at the home of his mother on South Commercial street. The rooms were tastefully decorated, and no stone was left unturned to make the evening a pleasant one. That the entertainers were successful is attested by the fact that the evening had sped away ere the entertainers were aware of it.

One feature of the evening's entertainment was an impromptu programme rendered by members of the class and it is doubtful whether another class in the University can boast of such talent. Readings were given and encores responded to by Elizabeth Stowell, Gertrude Johnson, Bertha Hewitt and Edgar F. Averill. These were interspersed by instrumental numbers furnished by Margaret Fisher, Bessie Thompson and Chester Catlow. Claud Hibbard sang and Pres. Van Winkle gave the address of the evening, which bristled with the usual wit and humor of the "funny man." The class is considering the advisability of giving a public recital in the near future. At least the greater part of it is now open for engagements.

After the programme, various forms of amusements were indulged in including "Pit" "Flinch," "Consequences" and the writing of original poetry. When this had been the "order of the day" for some time, refreshments were supplied in quality and quantity sufficient to satisfy the "inner man" of the most fastidious. The guests departed at a late hour thanking Mr. Miller and mother for a very delightful evening.

FIRST DEFEAT.

Our Team Loses to the All Stars

In the gymnasium of the Portland Y. M. C. A. our men's basketball team met the first defeat of the season by coming out of the game with the little end of the score 26 to 17—credited to them.

This was the first game which the team had played outside of their own gymnasium this season, also the first game which one of the team had ever played on a floor other than our own. This in a measure accounts for the result of the game.

At the end of the first half the score stood 11 to 11, but in the second half the "Stars" took the lead. The many interruptions on account of fouls in this half worked greatly to our men's disadvantage. It made the game so slow that there was no chance for team work or spirit.

At the end of the game the score was 26 to 17 in favor of the "All Stars." We do not believe that this represents the comparative strength of the two teams and are satisfied that we can substantiate our belief when the return game is played here.

The Michigan-Minnesota debate in the Central Debating league, which took place at Minneapolis Friday evening, is reported to have been one of the greatest debates ever held in the league. The Minnesota auditorium was packed long before the debate. The question was "Resolved, That the adjudication of labor disputes should be made a part of the administration of justice." Michigan, who supported the affirmative, won unanimously. The three judges were all men from Iowa. One of them was Chief Justice Emlin McClain, who judged the Nebraska-Missouri trust debate last May.

FROM THE DIARY OF OLIVER.

All was quiet and serene in the "Beehive," for the queen there, was seated on her throne, constantly calling down by a tap of her pencil, or a shake of that sweet little head, any subject who tried to "but in" on his neighbors thoughts. Even the girls come in for their share for they were requested to "please do not smile at your neighbors," even though this is leap year.

Thus order is preserved until in the stillness of the "Hive" there is a gentle tap at the door, we look at the queen, and there comes a look of joy inexpressible upon her countenance as she hastens to the door where she sees a representative of Uncle Sam, who gives her a letter. With a scant "thank you" she hastens to her throne, so eager is she to open the missive. Soon she is deep in the pages of the letter, and as we watch her face one moment there is a smile hovering on it, the next it lights up with love shining from every crevice.

As we look around us we see the subjects have settled down for a little fun, and everybody is talking to everybody else's neighbor.

We wonder if there will not be some "tall callin' down," but no, the queen does not lift her eyes from the loving words of the tender message. But woe unto him who does not get through with his good time before the letter is finished, for if he does not, surely will the "smoke fly."

Ah! now the letter is finished and we "book worms" can once more study in peace.

The winner of the oratorical contest at Chicago represents the univ. in the Northern Oratorical League and receives a prize of $50 offered by the university as well as a year's scholarship. The second ranks as alternate and receives a $25 prize and a scholarship for two terms.

Entered at the postoffice at Salem as second class matter.

The fellow who attempts editorial writing in the Weekly Index seems to have the nightmare each time he reads the Collegian. At least he gets up ill disposed and ill humored. And yet we are glad that the said editor does read the Collegian, and that he reads it from the first to the last line. A fact substantiated by comments on two articles published in our issues of Jan. 20 and 27.

The manipulator of the quill has been aroused by the article reprinted from the "Garnet and Blue" on "The Couples," treating of a social problem in our co-educational schools, namely—the couple system or "the exclusive association of one boy and one girl during a whole term, or year, or years. The Garnet and Blue condemned this social custom in a manner replete with good sense. It was a piece worth reading and worthy of the consideration of Willamette students and those in authority.

Why the article should have stung the Index editor as bad as it did is a matter of interest. He comes forth and accuses us with the glittering generality of violating a standard among college papers but to us it appears that this gentleman's irascibility has been set on fire because the article strikes at a social form in which the gentleman, perchance, is a devoted specialist.

We are not surprised that a gentleman (?) who was last year suspended three weeks because of some fine work with a co-ed, should take offense at anything directed against his social standard. The article in question may apply in general to Academy students but judging P. U.

by the record of the Index Editor in this line, she should be placed in that class.

We wish to state that the attempt by the chief quiller from P. U. to set up what is or what "is not up to the college standard" and "what is not worth copying by college weeklys" is a matter so trivial, and one in which the personal judgment and taste figure so prominently that it is unworthy of discussion.

But this pugnacious editorial spirit is in many circles mistaken for fearlessness and strenuousness. Some have called it "knocking," but the term is incorrect. It is Phariseism, a most dangerous spirit for college men to cultivate. Such inclination or propensity—the writing of stuff to fill up space—is not only indicative of a dearth of originality in copy grinding, but what is worse, of the cherishing of wrong ideals; ideals which are, by no means, held up by the Congregational school at Forest Grove.

AN IDEAL PROFESSOR.

The qualifications for the ideal college professor, as outlined by President Harper in a lecture at the University of Chicago on "The Faculty of a College," are:

First—He should be married.

Second—He should be a member of a church.

Third—He should mix with his students outside the classrooms.

Fourth—He should have a doctor's degree.

Fifth—He should be willing to work hard 11 months in the year.

Sixth—He should be in sympathy with the public and take an active interest in public affairs.

"The college professor who is married," says Pres. Harper, "will do three times as much good in his position as one who is single. And if he has three or four children he will be still better, for he will be a stronger man."

We are still very proud of our Boys Basket Ball Team, although they were defeated Saturday night. The game was voted by many as being the best of the season.

Associations.

The leaders of our Sunday meetings for the past month have been for the most part students. The meetings have been well attended. The meeting on Feb. 7 was led by Rev. Cliffe of the city Baptist church. He gave a very interesting and helpful talk.

The Bible study classes already formed have been progressing nicely. One or two new classes will be formed this semester.

The men's daily prayer circle is growing to occupy quite an indispensable place in the lives of an increasing number of men. We ask any men who believe in prayer to drop in for about five minute talk with Him at noon each day.

Next Saturday the Y. M. C. A. will meet as usual at 3 p. m., in room 14. All men are invited. There may be a message there for you. Come.

Y. W. C. A.

The Sunday afternoon meeting of Feb. 7, was led by Grace McConnell. Her subject was well chosen and her words were helpful to all the girls present. However there were not many present, hardly more than thirty girls. This is not true only of this particular meeting but of all the meetings for several weeks past. There should be many more every Sunday. Nearly all the girls in school belong to the Association and every girl is therefor responsible for at least her own attendance. Let every one with the new semester take a new zeal in this work, and let every one try to be at different meetings and by her presence lend strength to the work. Next Sunday will be a Bible study rally meeting and

"SOPHS" ENTERTAINED

One of the jolliest little gatherings of the school year was given at the home of Edward Winans by the freshman class in honor of the '06 orators and their class mates. Although two of these orators could not be present a sufficient number of the class were there to testify as to the hospitality of the freshman class and their delightful ability to entertain. A goodly crowd was present and the house was made merry by the various groups playing flinch, pit and other games. A lively interest was taken in these games as it was pretty generally understood that prizes were to be offered. Finally these were announced, and to Sylva Jones, the winner of the first prize, was awarded a splendid cushion cover of white canvas with a Gibson head and a scroll like border burnt on one side. To Lloyd Whipple was awarded the booby prize, which was quite as desirable as the first prize. It was a large heart shape valentine consisting of one of the popular pictures of the day pierced with a dart and mounted on a matting of red. After these valentines were distributed among the different ladies and gentlemen they were numbered in pairs and when the various owners were coupled off in the correct fashion it was announced that the valentines must be read to the rest of the people. This was done creating much amusement for the on-lookers and sometimes much embarrassment to the readers. All then went home fully convinced that the verdant freshman at least knew how to entertain most royally.

We are sorry to report that Dr. T. B. Ford of Eugene is seriously ill.

The Student Body by-laws will be continued next week.

The basketball defeats are all prominent in this issue. Our time next.

CO-EDS MEET DEFEAT.

Albany College Girls Are Too Swift.

In the fastest and best game of ladies basketball ever witnessed in Albany the Willamette girls went down to defeat Friday night before the Albany girls to the tune of 7-5. The score is a good indicator of the game. From start to finish it was a clean, fast and closely contested match. No wrangling whatever was indulged in no time was taken out and the field balls were few and far between. The work of both officials was fair and elicited the hearty commendation of both teams and also of the large audience which witnessed the game.

The strange and unusual shape of the floor bothered our girls a great deal. The floor was about 24 feet wide, 80 feet long and bounded by a brick wall and a row of posts without any side lines. A wet place on the floor caused by a leak in the roof, was the means of giving Miss West a hard fall resulting in a sprained wrist. She also tested the respective hardness of the brick wall and her head, with rather a bad effect on the latter. Otherwise no injuries were received and the best of feeling prevailed throughout the game. The girls say they were treated in a royal manner and are eager to play a return game here Feb. 26.

MUSIC RECITAL.

On Feb. 9, in the University Chapel occurred the first public recital of the College of Music for the year. The audience was not as large as the recital deserved, but what was lacking in numbers was made up in appreciation. Those who took part in the programme were Miss Church, Mrs. Hayden and Mr. Randall vocalists; the Misses Van Patton, Fisher, Gesner, Andrewartha and Mr. Catlow pianists. Each number showed careful preparation and consistent practice.

Prof. Seeley announced that the next recital would be given Wednesday evening, March 9.

The girls, the girls!
 The pretty girls:
 From Roseburg they came,
 Will they win the game?
 Nit!

ORATORY RECITAL

Students Do Good Work on Tuesday Night.

One of the most successful recitals ever given by the college of Oratory was given last night in the University Chapel. This was the second recital given this year and the students all showed a marked improvement in their work. The work of each and every performer reflected great credit upon Prof. Savage. Misses Moisan and Williams vocal soloists assisted in the evenings entertainment. The Chapel was filled to the limit with an appreciative audience which heartily applauded every number. The next recital will be awaited with eagerness. Following is the programme rendered:

CHEERFULNESS.

'Tis so easy to be happy, when the world's all bright and gay
 When the bees at work are humming, and the chipmunks chirp and play,
 When the buds drop down with dewdrops and the sky's one dome of blue,
 And the dancing leaves of summer let the golden sunlight through;
 When the brook, all lined with posies, murmurs carols soft and low,
 Ah! its easy to be cheerful, when you can't help being so.

But when storms around you gather and your life with sorrows clad
 Then—then its not so easy to be always kind and glad.
 When the flowers in the meadow hide their radiant heads from view;
 And the world looks on with pleasure when bad luck has come to you
 When the leaves fall from the branches and the birds forget their song
 Ah! its hard to keep on smiling, when it seems that all is wrong.

It is not so easy, either, when you're sick and ache with pain,
 To be always kind and thoughtful, and from anger to abstain,
 But if you can meet life's anguish, bravely with a pleasant smile
 And although sometimes defeated, boldly make another trial;
 If you through the clouds of sorrow always see the brightest ray.
 You're a hero, and your sunshine helps to clear the clouds away.

Every life, just like a river, runs through some unfertile land,
 And may change oftentimes a desert to a country great and grand
 If the life be glad and cheerful, sparkling though it be through tears
 It will light the shades with sunshine as it winds through vales and meres.
 And when ebb tide of the ocean bears it from the shores of life
 It will be above remembered as a hero in the strife.
