MOULTON HERE.

The Training Is Now On in Earnest.

As is evident to all who go by the athletic field these fine days, our trainer, "Dad" Moulton, has come. He put in an appearance early last Wednesday morning and has quickly gotten the men into line and working hard. He is using an excellent method, making appointments with the different men and giving them individual instruction besides the regular team work.

For a few days track work was conducted upon the fair ground track, but now our own track is in good condition. Mr. Moulton is much encouraged with the outlook. He says he never had a more willing lot of fellows.

Almost all of the men have gone into dieting in some way or other, at least by cutting out pie and cakes. At the Hall a regular training table is being run with Louis Dart as manager.

As a partial list of those who are trying for the different events are: The 100 yd. dash—Miller, Dart, Matthews, Catlin, James, Hendricks, Riddle. Distance runs—Ford, Judd, Whiteman, Fisher. High jump—Dadow, Shanks, Talbot, Lloyd Whipple, Belknap, Gilbert. Broad jump—Dart, Grannis, Ford, Shanks, Hendricks, Matthews. Weights—Unruh-Hewitt, Love, Neal, Eugene Whipple, James.

A week from Friday our first meet comes off here with Dallas and our men are working hard to get into shape by that time.

DR. COLEMAN RETURNS.

Thursday night Dr. Coleman and family returned from Albany, New York, and Friday morning, the President, accompanied by General Odell, appeared at chapel and called forth a tremendous ovation from the expectant student body. Dr. Coleman responded to this hearty demonstration of welcome by a few remarks concerning his present work and assured the students that the prospects of the University were never brighter than at the present time.

While in the East he attended the M. E. conference of the state of New York, of which body he was an old member, and was singularly honored by being assigned the duty of delivering the address on education; and as a final distinction was chosen a delegate to represent the state of New York in the general conference at Los Angeles on May the fourth.

Societies.

PHILOSOSIAN.

The Philodossians met last Friday with a fairly good attendance. The program was good, showing considerable care in the preparation of some of the numbers. Especially to be noted were the essay on "Religion of the Greeks" and the Book Review. The following was the regular program followed by minute speeches given by all members not on the program, the subjects being chosen by other members: Piano Solo, Inez Wheeler; Essay: The Religion of the Greeks, Julia Field; Book Review, Lillie Hardwick; Current Events, Mabel Glover. Minute speeches: Wild Animals that I have met, Clara Holmstrom; Freshman Rhetoric, Alma Hales; College of Oratory, Mary Soloman; Capitola, Sylvia Jones; Gymnasium Class, Cally Minton; How I got home from the reception, Marie Huntley; The advantage of having a brother, Alice Shepard; How I like German, Ruby Coryell; How I like batching, Olive Myrick; Mr. Moulton and the boys, Mabel Robertson.

PHILODORIAN.

The Society met as usual last Friday evening, and, it being the first regular meeting in the present term, elected the following officers to serve the remainder of the school year: President, F. L. Grannis; Vice-President, Roy Hewitt; Secretary, Murray Shanks; Assistant Secretary, George Simpson; Treasurer, W. G. Trill; Censor, John Reichen; Sergeant at Arms, E. K. Miller.

There being no basket-ball or foot-ball games this term to necessitate the absence of any of the members, the prospects are now indicative of an interesting epoch in concluding the work of the Philodorians for the current year. Already this year the society has shown itself to be doing hard and consistent work, and has made a great improvement in its educational and intellectual accomplishments when compared to its apparent inertia of the two years previous. Although not as yet perfect the members have tasted the sweets of the results of their fidelity and close application to their assigned duties and are now bent upon securing a goodly amount of manna for the mind as a final consummation of their year's endeavors.

The following program was rendered: Current Events, F. W. Poorman; Composition, Murray Shanks; Recitation, W. C. Winslow; Essay, R. C. Glover; Debate: Resolved, That all executive duties in large American cities should be concentrated in the hands of the mayor and that his appointments should not require confirmation. Affirmative, R. R. Hewitt, Oliver Spires; negative, John Reichen, George Simpson.

A FOOTBALL COACH.

Chauncey Bishop Will Be the Man.

The athletic men and especially the football men are happy since the announcement has been made that Mr. Chauncey Bishop, who played end on Columbia's team last year, is to be the coach for the foot-ball team of 1904.

Mr. Bishop is the son of Mayor C. P. Bishop of this city. He began his football career here and first distinguished himself as a member of the famous Willamette team which won the state championship in 1900. The next year he played half on the C. A. A. C. giants, and later with Multnomah and last season he played end on Columbia's crack team. He was considered one of the best ends Columbia has ever had. In the big game with Yale Bishop was one of four men who were able to stay the game out.

Mr. Bishop is certainly a brilliant player, and understands the game through and through. His heart is with the Willamette team of 1904 and under his leadership we are confident of a lively, well coached, spirited team to defend the honor of the cardinal and old gold.

NEW MEDICAL BUILDING.

Hon. A. N. Bush Subscribes $2000.

On last Saturday Hon. A. N. Bush, the Salem banker, subscribed $2000 to the fund for the erection of a new building for the Medical Department of Willamette.

This sum, together with the $1000 subscribed by the medical faculty as a faculty, makes the new building an assured fact.

Indeed it is thought that the work of construction will be begun this summer as active work in the matter of securing funds will be instituted at once. Although the medical faculty have given $1000 as a faculty, the individual members will give much more than that, as they are all practicing physicians in Salem and Albany, and are among the most substantial of our citizens. The number of prosperous graduates of this department throughout the west is also large and it is expected that they will remember their Alma Mater in a substantial manner.

It is planned to erect a modern building to cost about $15,000, and it will be so planned that additions may be built on as the growing needs of this department may demand. The building will probably be erected upon the northeast corner of the campus.

Another interesting bit of news which shows in no small degree how rapidly this department is advancing to the front and that is that three new chairs will be added to the medical faculty this coming year.

With a new building, modern equipments, and an enlarged faculty, the Willamette Medical College will be without a peer on the coast.

It is said there will be a local field meet Friday afternoon—if it doesn't rain.

Miss Holmstrom says so many funny things that we do not know which one to tell.

Mr. Bush has given $2,000 for the new medical building. May his good work continue.

Laurella Holmstrom was in chapel Friday. She intends entering the Salem hospital in June to take a course in nursing.

And Elma wanted to know if we would like to have her trill. Just as you please did, you're old enough to know your own minds.

With Chauncey Bishop as coach Willamette's foot-ball team ought to "do things" next year. We ought to congratulate ourselves and thank Miller for securing for us one of the best foot-ball men in the United States.

Saturday a jolly crowd, consisting mostly of Freshmen and a few from the other classes of the college, took an evening off and had a picnic. The "Fair-Sex" certainly did swell work in the way of putting up the lunch. Ford distinguished himself as the "big eater," tho' the rest of the fellows were not far behind. Such events make college life a pleasure and now that the nice weather has come may they happen often.

AN INTRIGUE.

the button by sewing on the vest. First, the button was sewed on somewhere in the region of the back of the neck and had to be taken off. Then he made a mistake and stuck the needle into his hand instead of in the vest, and lastly broke the needle short off while endeavoring to hammer it in with the water pitcher. All of which caused the performer to make some rather forcible remarks, while Winslow sat in the corner and made such cheering soliloquies as "I always did feel for the needle in such circumstances, and "It will be alright when you're married, old man." "Zerk" got a new needle and tackled the button again." He was looking pretty sour, and nothing had been said for about five minutes. Soon "Chappie" entered, remarking that "this was the plagueondest outfit that he had ever struck. Miller immediately made the statement that he had better begin to do some practicing with the rest of the fellows. Then "Chappie" explained that some one had "slammed" him the night before and that he didn't intend to sing any more solos. "Zerk" then spoke up, and never cracking a smile started on a tirade of the club and things in general, saying, among other things, that he was sick and tired of the whole business, and expressed his intention of going home on the night train. Chappie swallowed this like a fish, hook, bait, pole and all, and got up and left the room, saying as he went, that he was out with the club now and he wasn't going to be a "quitter" and go home, but he didn't intend to sing any more solos or do any more stunts. As soon as Chappie had gone Miller said, "Sh! don't say a word, I've got an idea; we will go on acting this thing out and make Chappie believe it is an actual fact and see how quickly he will change his tune. Prof. Seley was informed of this, and after a rigid cross examination was accepted as one of the conspirators. Prof. Seley had a talk with Chappie. All at once he called out, "Zerk, come over here a minute, I want to see if your railroad ticket is just like mine. "Zerk" handed him his ticket, and Prof. compared the two and then put them both in his pocket, saying as he did so, "Well, young man, I heard a few minutes ago you were going home on the night train. I guess I'll keep this ticket until you change your mind. "Zerk" went off grumbling and "Chappie" and Prof. both laughed. Shortly afterward Prof. met "Zerk" coming down the hotel corridor, handed back his ticket and said, "How was that for a smooth trick?"

Then they leaned up against the house for awhile for a much needed support.

Meanwhile Kinney had been talking to Chapler and had persuaded him that he ought to fix up this matter as soon as he could, because Zercher was very mad, and that if he would propose a 50-cent fine for every absence or tardiness that all ill-feelings would be allayed. After dinner that evening there was a called meeting of the club—some important business to be transacted. After being called to order, the President, Mr. Winslow, wished that some member would state the object of the meeting. Chappie arose and said that as there had been some feeling concerning the absence from club practice of two of the fellows, that he would propose as a motion that a fine of 50 cents, commenting with that morning, be imposed thereafter for tardiness or absence from practice. This fine to be paid in to the general funds of the club. This motion was seconded, passed, and the fines duly collected. The meeting was then adjourned.

Then "Chappie went over to Zerk and stole his arm around his slender (?) waist," and told him he was so sorry, and wouldn't act that way any more, kissed him on the cheek, and asked him to please forgive him. All of which was almost to much for Zerk's equanimity. Prof. made the statement that he tho't that this should adjust all differences among them, then took "Zerk" into a nearby sofa corner where he might be accidentally (?) overheard by the other members of the Club, and there gave him a good talking to. He said that this was a shame for him to start out on the trip in good faith and then when the Club had got this far away from home to go back on them. At this juncture Miller and Winslow were seen to leave the room, the situation being too much for their gravity. Neither Prof. nor "Zerk" cracked a smile and all of the rest of the club looked very sober while "Chappie" sat in a corner looking as tho' he had been hit with a brick. Later when the fellows were in their rooms dressing for the concert, there came a great noise as of laughing from one of the rooms where Prof. Seley, "Zerk" and Miller were. From that time on thru' the rest of the trip there were no remarks made by a certain young man that he would sing no more solos. So endeth the great Intrigue.
