

WU Gets Bush's Pasture For Athletic Field

We hovered around the Statesman office last Friday night to watch the returns come in on the Bush's pasture issue—not that we had much cause to worry about the outcome—fifteen minutes after the polls closed. But we wanted to be absolutely certain those highly attractive plans Willamette has slated—for an athletic field, with a stadium, track and ball diamond, and tennis courts—weren't going to revert to pipe dreams 'til the next election! In case students haven't visited this woodland and meadow—on biology field trips of one sort or another—we will give you a brief word on the subject.

Willamette gets the 10 acres down in the lowlands, that's tops for recreational purposes. It lies nearly level and has a gravelly soil, while the rest of the 43 acres will be developed as a city park. We were indulging in pleasant dreams of Homecoming a few years hence and returning to the campus further enhanced by these glamorous additions—when the alarming thought that we are now living in the "atomic age" intruded—and what an ideal target the stadium would make—now who's looking for trouble?

"Woman of the Year" On Way to U.S.

Speaking of Atom B.—Atomic Scientist Lise Meitner (voted world's "woman of the year") plans to take out citizenship papers in these United States. Although honored—we feel that nationalism is less and less important—especially among scientists—who believe in free exchange of ideas. We like to think of them as "Citizens of the World" primarily!

Vet's Adviser Knows All the Answers

If some of you vets get the whim-whams over the intricacies of National Service Life Insurance—or just what in heaven's name is included in the benefits of the GI Bill of Rights—or are still racking your brains for some workable solution to a seemingly insoluble housing problem, have a chat with H. A. (Hub) Saalfeld—up on the third floor of the State Library building. He's a newly discharged army man himself and has acquired a surprising number of hard-to-find answers! Incidentally he has the info on housing out at the airport and if you're a benedict you should have your name at the top of his list of "men literally in the street."

Around the Campus

The $64 question for ex-GI Joe—now turned Joe College—seems to be "WHEN is Uncle Sammy coming through with that $15 boost in my monthly allowance?" Feeling that this was an extremely logical and vital query—we did a little super-sleuthing on the problem. Here's the straight dope, shorn of all legal whereas's and whereby's in the newly amended bill, the increase gets tacked on this month, so look for it to start rolling in around the first of February! Good news, huh?

Re Cavern Issue

If Capitol workers and waitresses could add their ballots on immediate reopening of the 'Cat the vote would be a landslide no less! Students are increasingly aware that the hospitable welcome mat has worn pretty thin across the way, and consensus of campus opinion seems to be a desperate "by Frosh Glee time or else" stand . . .

Random Thoughts

With strange mixtures of GI uniforms and informal sportswear the most important trend in male fashions around the campus, wonder what a bewildered inspecting party would make of the Frosh Glee whiskerino contest now in full swing? We suspect that the whole idea was cooked up by some embittered serviceman no longer frustrated by AR's about the ideal CLEAN-SHAVEN soldier!

Sinkola Demands Action Tomorrow, Cavern Issue

By Dorothy Gage

Betty Sinkola, Cavern board chairman, has announced that the chapel period tomorrow will be devoted to seeking a solution to the 'Cat question. Chairman Sinkola is eager to solve the 'Cat problem as are the majority of the students on the campus. She mentioned in the announcement that if the meeting in chapel tomorrow does not result in some satisfactory solution, she will resign her post as chairman of the Cavern board.

Two futile attempts have been made to bring about a student body meeting for the express purpose of exposing the red tape that is responsible for the delay of any prompt action concerning the 'Cat. Friday during chapel period the Cavern board was supposed to have presented their proposed solution to the 'Cat question to the student body, but because no officials were present, the other members of the Cavern board hesitated to take any action without a superior in charge. As a result, the Cavern question was again shelved and postponed until further notice.

With Freshman Glee less than a month away, the student body has been taking for granted that the 'Cat question would be settled and the fragrant aroma of hot coffee would greet them in the early hours of the cold gray dawn as they swarmed toward Waller hall to thaw out before beginning to practice marching. Solution to the problem seems to depend only on student body action as the university will not assume responsibility until the question is voted on by the students.

Closing of the Cavern came on the last day of school prior to the Thanksgiving holidays, upon the receipt of the resignation of its manager, Edith Schwalen. Heated discussions arose among the students as to whether the students would continue the management of the Cavern as had been the policy in the past, prior to the 'Cat's management at the beginning of this term, or whether the responsibility of the 'Cat's management would be given over to the university.

Disagreement arose over the proposed amendment to the constitution which would turn over the 'Cat's management to the university when the proposal was presented to the student body in a Friday chapel in mid-December. As a result of this meeting the students voted to lay this amendment on the table for a period of one week to give the students an opportunity to become more familiar with the constitution as it then stood.

Discussion of the 'Cat's control temporarily subsided as the question of the constitutionality of the constitutional powers in effect during the war years were under observation. This controversy gave all 'Cat consideration a momentary "back seat," but following the acceptance of the amendment to the constitution to legalize its actions by the student body and the vote shortly after returning from the Christmas holidays, the question of 'Cat control again gains the limelight.

A student body meeting in chapel was called Friday for the purpose of bringing to light all angles of Cavern management which had been presented and discussed in the past and any new schemes which the student body cared to bring up. Due to other meetings out of town which called away the presiding officers of the student body and the persons who were to have taken charge of the meeting, the subject in question was necessarily postponed, with action now to be taken tomorrow.

"Portrait" Tryouts Continue; Production Committees Set

Although first tryouts lacked attendance because of the many social events last weekend, casting is slowly shaping for the next drama department's production, "Family Portrait," says Dr. Herbert E. Rahe, director. Possibilities for some roles have been selected by Rahe, although none are yet definite.

Tryouts will continue each afternoon from 1:30 to 4:30 and all those interested are invited to attend. More thespians are needed for the 30 roles of the cast.

The production cast for the play which met Monday afternoon has selected some of its committees as announced by Lois Messing, general manager. Stage manager will be Gwen Harper with Pat McCargar, Merrie Lou Hilton, Jean Demytt, and Wally Baumer as general committee members. Chairman of the setting committee is

Sam Barker with Jo Ann Lang, Elizabeth Zimmerman, Bill Halseth, Darryl Willecke and Dot Deal helping him.

Costumes and properties will be taken care of by Jo Ann Lang, Elizabeth Zimmerman, Edith Irvine, Jane Fisher, and Von Kaufman. Betty Dutton, Jean Carsh and Joan Thomas are members of the publicity committee, and Virginia Atkinson will be in charge of programs.

Prompters will be Eileen Lytle and Corrine Engdahl, while Caroline Cooper will be call girl. Lighting is in charge of Herb Davis and Sam Barker.

Although many turned out for the back stage cast, experienced help is still needed for stagecraft. Tickets and publicity also need more members. Sketches for the sets have been drawn and new ones will probably be constructed.

Smith Starts Southern Trip For Willamette

Pres. G. Herbert Smith left Salem last night on a ten-day trip to California where he will meet with Willamette alumni groups and interview candidates for two positions on the university faculty. January 26 is the date set for his return.

Smith will meet with WU graduates in the Los Angeles area on Sunday and on Tuesday will attend a meeting of Bay district alumni at the Claremont hotel in Berkeley. While in California Smith will interview applicants for the much discussed position of athletic director at WU which was left vacant by the resignation of Roy S. "Spec" Keene in late November.

Boise Meeting Calls Luther

Chosen as one of three Oregon educators to represent the independent colleges of Oregon at the annual meeting of the Northwest Association of Secondary and Higher Schools at Boise, Idaho, January 30, 31, and February 1, is Dean Chester F. Luther, dean of the Willamette university College of Liberal Arts.

This association is the accrediting agency for state, independent, and junior colleges for seven northwestern states. Fred Steison, professor of education at the University of Oregon, and Dean Ferris of St. Heien's hall are the other two representatives from Oregon.

March of Dimes, WSSF Drives Start

Students Aid In Campaign For Polio Fund

Under leadership of Vicky Jones and R. J. Chance, the annual March of Dimes campaign dedicated this year to Franklin Delano Roosevelt, started on the Willamette campus this week.

Willamette students are helping in the downtown campaign by taking charge of the booth which features a container for each state and Canada and a man with a microphone who urges passersby to drop a contribution in the bottle representing their home state. Sororities, fraternities, and the independent groups will be assigned days to take charge of the booth. Location, lumber, paint and various items were donated by local merchants.

Representatives from the different groups on the campus are Alpha Chi Omega, Betty Dutton; Delta Gamma, Jean Demitt; Chi Omega, Beverly Harris; Pi Beta Phi, Barbara Cutler; independent women, Dorothy Gage; Alpha Psi Delta, Chance; Sigma Tau, Dick Spooner; Kappa Gamma Rho, Clarence Edwards; and Larry Altree who has volunteered to organize the independent men to help in the booth downtown.

Going, Going . . . Case of Lost Owner

Austin Kenney, school carpenter is looking for the person who left a decrepit rocking chair outside his office about a year ago without giving his name or location.

Materials finally arrived and repairs have been completed, but where does the chair belong? No one knows.

Wallulah Editor Ann Strother has put in a bid for the ownerless rocker and it seems likely that the chair will soon adorn her office if no one else has a legitimate claim.

Choir Tryouts Close Monday

Tryouts for the reorganized a cappella choir will be held throughout the rest of this week and on Monday, with rehearsals to begin Wednesday, announced Dean Melvin H. Geist, director of the choir. The new a cappella choir will be the first at Willamette since its disbandment during the war.

A sufficient number of returning men students should have signed up at the beginning of next semester to make possible a short trip by the choir during the spring.

Long, Woodburn Direct WU Student Fund Contributions

Next week will see the inauguration of the campus drive for contributions to the World Student Service Fund, with the campus quota set at $700. Co-chairmen on the project which will feature collection competition between each living group, are Delvon Long and Bob Woodburn.

The campaign is held annually for help in reconstruction and rehabilitation of educational life in war torn countries. Money has gone to aid students in many countries, providing them with food, books and health facilities.

With the $700 quota set for campus collections, a minimum of $1 is asked of each student and faculty member for the drive. Personal contacts will be made by the representatives in each living group, and pledges may be paid up any time before February 1. Competition between the groups in collection of funds is being stimulated this year to add interest to the WSSF drive which every year provides for the education of future leaders in all nations of the world.

Winner of the contribution competition will be determined on a percentage basis and will be announced at the close of next week's drive.

Monday and Wednesday chapels next week will be devoted to this cause, with Prof. John L. Knight as speaker on Monday and Joyce Feiden in charge of the program for Wednesday. Pledge cards will be collected after Wednesday's chapel.

Working with the group canvassers is Doris Bartholemey who has appointed a representative for each living group to make personal contacts in soliciting funds. Representative at Chi Omega is Jean Walker; Pi Beta Phi, Frances Sopp; Delta Gamma, Elizabeth Zimmerman; Alpha Chi Omega, Jane Mathers; Laurel hall, Anne Neisen; Frederickson hall, Marjorie and Margaret Clark, and Lausanne hall, Winona Dillard, Mary Lois Cotton, Mary Fletcher and Dorothy Libby with Barbara Kent as solicitor for the Salem independent women.

Faculty adviser for the drive is Dr. Lawrence A. Riggs with Marion Reamer in charge of publicity. Representative for Sigma Tau is Guy Jonas; Kappa Gamma Rho, Jim Wilson; Alpha Psi, Chuck Zerzan, and independent men, Herb Lucas.

Mrs. Margaret Norton, regional secretary of the YWCA and field representative from Portland of the World Student Service Fund, conferred with campus drive leaders Tuesday in preparation for next week's campaign.

New Worlds to Conquer . . .

Willamette is crowded with eager . . . well, dutiful . . . students preparing for a vocation. This seems a good idea, since chances are they will be spending eight hours a day at the vocation till they're 65—unless they become housewives, which is a longer sentence. BUT, by a little mental arithmetic, it can be seen that allowing for sleep and meals, five hours a day are still left—five pretty important hours—five hours to live. Are Willamette students preparing themselves for those leisure hours with as great care as they devote to their vocational hours?

Certainly Miss Fowler's art haven is filled with lively interest. Bach or Boogie fanciers who like to have fun with a tune find expert instruction in the music school. Dr. Rahe's lofty classrooms hold many orators and actors. Robinson Spencer's contest stirs interest in recreational reading each term. Freshman Glee, May Weekend, and the "Hello" custom, and campus organizations such as Prof. Clark's bull sessions and the YW encourage the fine art of friendship. Willamette has congratulated itself on its active campus, but there are still "new worlds to conquer."

When student body funds were curtailed for the forensics and music activities, one of the objections raised was that not enough students found enjoyment in those activities. If that is the case, the solution is not revamping the budget alone, but revamping the campus' leisure set-up. How about more groups on campus built on common interest (orchids to the embryo ski club)? Wouldn't there be enough rally-rally spirit to start a dance class, a what-do-you-believe forum, a skating society, an art appreciation confab, a current events session, a . . . well, DO something. But all this can only come from the students themselves.—K. K.

Curb Club Shivers But Sticks

Do you belong to "The Club?" To what club are we referring? Why the "Corner Curbstone Club" of course! The membership to this organization is very exclusive, all you have to do to join is bring your own fags, and want to smoke them badly enough to stand outside in this freezing weather and have a drag or two.

Groups of handsome, bearded men and cigarette butts strewn artistically about the sidewalk and shrubbery add a certain air of, shall we say refinement or shall we let you draw your own conclusions? Anyway it's there!

Now of course, the next plea is, "Well, why can't we have smoking on the campus? Then I wouldn't have to drag in late to all my classes just so I could have a drag." That really is quite an interesting thought, but for some odd reason most of the student body, and the trustees too, seem to be old fashioned enough to want to keep our campus just as uncluttered as possible.

(You know how those cigar ashes look, and jeepers what a cigarette can't do to gum up the works in a lawn mower.)

Okay, the people say, why can't we smoke in the "Cat, that is, if and when we ever get a 'Cat." Well, if any would-be agitator for this move could spend one full day down there with everyone trying to show how clever they are at blowing square smoke rings, he'd know the answer to that one. By some quirk of fate, the ventilating system in that part of Waller is pretty poor. Anyway, within an hour the place would look and smell like a marijuana den and people would be visible at about 12 inches. All right, maybe it's atmosphere, all that's needed then is a couple of cobras and a musical flute player.

Heck, this started out to be a clever feature on our pet love and we ended up trying to be profound. Since the present situation will undoubtedly continue we suppose as long as the Club exists we'll still have the privilege of viewing the male population of Willamette U out in front of our fair school blissfully making like choo-choo train, only slightly off the track.

Infirmiry Lures Studes With Z-Contour Beds

Do you feel as if your head were filled with vanilla pudding? Do your knees wobble, your hands shake, your eyes blur and your feet feel cold? If it isn't a hangover, or you don't have a test next period, you probably have that special form of cold bug recently unleashed on Willamette students. And what you need is not Carter's Little You-Know-What's, or even Pepto-Bismol. (Spelled backwards looks like Otpep-Lomsib). What you need is a trip to Willamette's infirmiry.

Ah, what jolly days may be spent there! Among the most intriguing of its attractions is the double-jointed bed which will double up into a Z shape with a simple twist of the cranks (and that doesn't mean that you have to twist the nurse's arm). Of course only half of your time is accounted for in getting in and out of bed trying to adjust it to your dimensions.

Hardly does one get settled and find himself dozing into pleasant oblivion than that superbly optimistic form of humanity, the visitor, intrudes upon one's solitude. He must bring things to cheer one up: a quart of sauerkraut, a pearl-handled knife, a deck of cards (eight aces), three panda bears and a set of the Encyclopedia Britannica.

Introducing

Blonde darling of the campus, Earl "joy-boy" Fedje, president of the freshman class, pushed down his sleeves, put away a tin can and basket (a Fedje method of putting in sawdust), and tore himself away from his gruelling tasks as Delta Gamma houseboy long enough to gab a bit with your reporter this week.

Confidentially, Earl inherited his office from two older brothers who were both class presidents in their youth. Although it's not on the records, we wonder if the older Fedjes also set the precedent for dating all the feminine lovelies around and about, which Earl is upholding so nobly?

Astoria housed the Fedjes for the last six years. Astoria—that's north of Seaside. However Cannon beach was Earl's haunt. Summers were spent either tuna fishing on a jig-boat or hauling ice and fish on a cannery tender. A pre-med student, Earl has Norse blood in his veins which calls him to the sea, to the sea, to the beautiful sea . . .

Present vice-president of the Oregon state council of Methodist Youth Fellowship, Earl traveled with Lois Messing to Adrian, Michigan, last summer as a delegate to the National Methodist conference. Their famous trick in Chicago was waiting on opposite street corners for each other for six hours on their last day in the big city. Affairs were finally straightened out when they reached Oregon.

Now, of course, his interests are all centered on two little words, "Freshman Glee." For identification's sake, this Kappa Gamma Rho pledge wears a mottled tie, a plaid shirt, a plaid vest, Glen plaid trousers, and striped socks. "That's so everyone can see who's gonna win Glee," he shouted exuberantly as he tore back for more sawdust.

Home Sweet Home—Why Anne Came to WU

By Anne Niesen

"Joan don't plaster your bread that way. Break it first," my mother said.

"Aw," Joan said, stuffing it into her mouth, "we haven't got company."

Mother sighed and let the matter drop. Naturally I carried on.

"Your manners are just terrible, Joan. Honestly, it makes me sick to watch you."

"Whyn't ya eat in the kitchen?"

"You think you're so darned smart—"

My father made a growling noise in his throat. I stared haughtily at my salad, then glared at Joan. She was making a face at me which consisted of crossing her eyes and sticking out her front teeth. It was her most insulting gesture, and I knew it.

"Mo-THER! Look at Joan."

Instantly Joan's face was a study in protesting innocence. "My gosh, can't I even eat my dinner without you crabbing!"

"For heaven's sake, both of you be quiet!" my mother said. We subsided for a few mouthfuls.

"Mother," I said, "I've got to have some new shoes. My brown ones look terrible."

"You just got them a month ago. Take them down to the shoe shop tomorrow and get them fixed."

"Oh, they're so darned old now. I'll just have to have a new pair."

"I gotta have some new pants," Joan said through a mouthful of potatoes.

"Oh, great," my father said, recognizing the

And these are only part of the fun. There are nose drops and a large assortment of pills and thermometers and other forms of mild and mighty torture too great and numerous to describe.

Oh yes, there's nothing quite like a stay in the infirmiry to put you right back in the pink of condition—quick Gertrude, the smelling salts!

Barrell-Staving Hazards

Are you a sports enthusiast? Or do you prefer to limit your exercise to playing the slot machines?

Now in order to be a sportsman one must travel. So braving all the elements (and the traffic cops) let us set out for that popular place, Voodoo Bowl.

We put on a couple of long sticks. We burden ourselves further with a couple of silly looking poles, and then . . . we fall gracefully down a hill which some fool has made all slippery. But do we let this interrupt our relaxation? Certainly not, we pick up our remains and go back for more.

Our second try is better. In fact, by clever manipulations of the feet we succeed in establishing a new record. We are the first persons to succeed in having the right foot going north, while the left foot yells, "that's what I like about the south." By the end of the day we have succeeded in three things. One, we now have a broken leg. Two, also a black eye, and three, a bump on the head as the result of a collision with a green monster. This popular way of committing suicide is known in the more refined circles as, skiing.

Hot Tamales Win W. U. Praise

"Superb dancing," "brilliant technique," "hubba hubba," "costumes dazzling," "yippee skippee," yelled the appreciative audience while applauding Rosario and Antonio after their performance at Salem high Monday evening. The two artists from Seville, Spain, and their company of Ruiz, Iberia and Lopez, offered a stimulating program indeed.

"Que calor," (meaning, "Wow, it's hot") whistled Antonio through his teeth as he rolled his big latin eyes and stamped his big latin feet at Rosario, who in turn shifted her weight from one hip to the other.

"Hm-m," murmured Dr. Mollering reminiscently, "looks like a pick-up at a peanut stand." A glance at the program showed that WU's Spanish prof wasn't far from wrong since the dance represented old Cuba and a peanut vendor and his conzone.

Selections from the ballet, "El Amor Brujo," plus piano and guitar music added a serious note to an otherwise gay program which had brought a twinkle to the eyes of the majority attending and to many, a soul tickled twitch.

beginning of the nightly battle.

"Pessemerier have some darling loafers. Can I get some tomorrow after school?"

"Anne, you don't need any shoes and you know it. Take your brown ones down to the shoe man."

"But, Mom, everyone wears loafers now. I look like a Girl Scout in those stinky oxfords."

"All the elastic's out of all my pants," Joan put in.

"For Pete's sakes, who cares about your old pants!" I said in exasperation.

"If they fall down, I'll care plenty," she yelled.

"Joan, I'll get some new elastic, and you take those oxfords down tomorrow and let's not have any more about it. I wonder if you two will ever learn that Daddy and I aren't made of money."

"Are we poor?" Joan asked interestedly, but Mother was listening to Father. He was talking about business. Sometimes we listened, but it was always the same thing. Dad always told Mom how he told Mr. Moody or Mr. Kelly, his partners, where to go and how to run things properly.

I went out to the kitchen to get Joan's and my pieces of pie, carefully measuring them. Joan looked at me with hatred as she measured my piece, then her piece with a practiced eye. We ate in smug and bitter silence respectively.

"Whose turn is it to clear the dishes?"

Mother asked.

"Hers!" Joan and I said.

Oliver, Recognized as Scholar Of Melville, Will Edit Volume

By Pat Dickey

Honor and distinction have been brought to Willamette university by the recognition of Dr. Egbert S. Oliver, professor of English, as a foremost American scholar of Herman Melville. Oliver has been asked to join the group of prominent Melville authorities and to edit one volume of the complete edition of Melville works.

Dr. Howard P. Vincent, professor of English in the Illinois Institute of Technology, and general editor of the forthcoming edition, has extended to Oliver the invitation to edit, "The Piazza Tales," one of the complete 16 volume editions. Oliver's article on "Bartleby," recently published in College English, is on one of the stories in "The Piazza Tales."

Completion of Oliver's work entails a trip east for more research and conferences with his publishers and other people he will be associated with in editing the volume. He and Mrs. Oliver will leave Salem January 25 for a trip taking six weeks.

In doing this research Oliver will deal with Melville manuscripts and letters in the Harvard library. He will also visit the New York city library for information contained in letters and other related documents. Magazines of the 1840's and 1850's will be of use to him also in this work. In Chicago Oliver will meet Vincent and Dr. W. H. Hendriks, president of the Packard company and the publishers of the Melville works.

In editing this volume Oliver will be associated with a number of other scholars some of whom have established reputations as authorities. The various other editors are Charles R. Anderson of Johns Hopkins university, John S. Bross of New York university, Henry W. Wells of Columbia university, Willard Thorp of Princeton, Henry Murray of Harvard, Luther S. Mansfield of Williams college and Elizabeth Foster of Oberlin.

Platform Contract Awarded, Vigilantes Organize for Glee

Construction of a new platform for Freshman Glee was turned over to Bihl Bros., contractors, this week by Glee Manager Jerry Quillin, the general Glee committee and Dr. Robert E. Lantz, student body general manager. The action was approved after a survey determined that sufficient student labor could not be obtained for the project.

The new platform is to be completed by February 2 when Glee words and music must be turned in to the office of Dr. Robert E. Lantz before noon February 2, which is two weeks from Saturday. As the scores must be uniform, specifications are given below.

Music shall be written on standard score sheets in black India ink, with a melody line and full piano accompaniment below. Harmony is not necessary in the judges' copies. Words must be typed on separate sheets, and four copies of both words and music are required.

The general Glee committee will be very willing to answer any questions or give any assistance to either composers or lyricists, says Evelyn Jory, chairman.

The classes will begin practice in the gymnasium the week before Glee. A new platform was necessary this year to replace the old one declared unsafe by city inspectors.

Quillin asks that campus men volunteer their aid in erecting the platform after construction of the sections is completed by the contractors.

New addition to Glee plans is the vigilante committee organized late last week to enforce participation in the beard contest. Chief of the vigilantes is Dick Spooner with Jerry Mulkey, Ned Burris, Ota Binegar, Ed Fitzsimons, Carl Butte, Guy Jonas, Bob Nickoloff, Val Sloper, Joe Law, R. J. Chance and Don Ackley as deputies. Spooner promises severe punishment to men not showing whiskers.

The decorations committee, under chairmanship of Joyce McCracken, is beginning work on the backdrop for the platform this week. Designing the drop are Barbara Scanlan, R. J. Chance, Dwayne Wetstein, Mary Phelps and Patty Holtz.

Song practices are underway this week in the four classes and the general Glee committee, composed of Chairman Evelyn Jory, Nancy Hoak, Jack Hedgecock and Manager Quillin announce that gymnasium practices will begin the week before Glee. Schedules have been formulated, and mimeographed copies will be available soon.

Kay Karnopp New Member Of Honorary

Kay Karnopp, feature editor of the Collegian and active in speech and debate on the campus, was selected this week as a new member of Tau Kappa Alpha, national forensics honorary, announces Joyce Feiden, president of the organization. Miss Karnopp, a sophomore, is a member of Pi Beta Phi and of Beta Alpha Gamma, sophomore women's honorary.

Requirements for membership in the honorary, set by the national group, are participation in two years of forensics or public speech work, demonstration of superior ability in debates or public speeches, and rank in the upper 35 per cent of the college class.

Theta Alpha Phi, national dramatic honorary, will meet in the near future to choose their new members for this term. Students must have been one of the following: director of two full-length plays, major speaking character roles in two full-length plays, minor speaking character roles in four full-length plays, business or publicity manager or one of the chief technical workers in three full-length plays, or author of one full-length play, to be eligible for membership in the honorary.

Participation in two one-act plays, or author of two one-act plays, shall be equivalent to participation in one full-length play.

Enrollment Increase for Spring Heightens Housing Question

By Winona Henderson

As the spring term draws near and with it comes the promise of a large increase in enrollment, school officials are wracking their brains for solutions to such problems as housing, curriculum and procurement of sufficient faculty members to offer adequate courses to first-term students. With applications for admission coming in every day, Dean Walter E. Erickson, registrar, expects an increase of at least 75 returned veteran enrollments plus ten or 15 women students.

By far the biggest and most pressing problem to be dealt with, not only by this school but others as well, is the acute housing shortage which threatens to keep many students out of school who would otherwise attend. However, all possible arrangements are being made to help ease the situation as much as possible.

Federal Help Sought

A request has been made by the city of Salem through the office of H. C. Saalfeld, Marion county veteran service officer, to the federal government for 200 housing units to be built at the airport and to be used for any veterans in the county. These units, if granted will be available for use by Willamette students. Erickson stressed the point that applications should be made as soon as possible. However, Pres. G. Herbert Smith expressed doubt early this week that the city's request will be granted because of the large demand throughout the nation. Smith said that the city of Los Angeles alone has made request for a number which is one-third of the total to be sponsored by the government.

In addition to the request made by the city, Smith said yesterday that Willamette is making application with the federal authorities for housing facilities for 50 married and 100 single vets. As yet, the answer to these requests has not been received, but it is his opinion that even if the units are granted, they will not be available before the fall term. Smith said, "We're not getting much encouragement concerning our chances on getting any of these units."

In the case of arrangements for use of the facilities at the airport, plans call for reconversion of the barracks into family units or small apartments. Other housing facilities may later be moved from defense industries to the fairgrounds. New legislation was recently passed granting federal aid for moving buildings to house veterans.

Alpha Psi House Available

Robert W. Fenix, business manager, said Monday that Alpha Psi hall, with facilities for at least 22 single men, will be used to house men students next term. This dorm was used as a women's residence hall during the time that Lausanne hall was occupied by the navy V-12 unit. This term it is being used as an apartment house by several married veterans.

Because of the acuteness of the housing situation Carl F. Freilinger of Portland, who is chairman of the general committee on service to veterans, has appointed a special committee to stimulate action by congress to speed up their work in the matter. At a meeting of the Department of Veteran Affairs subcommittee on education in Portland Friday which Erickson attended, it was learned that the same or comparable conditions exist on all campuses. At both Oregon State and U. of O., prospective men students, especially family men, must guarantee that they have a place to stay before the application is even given consideration.

Willamette has plans for a large men's dorm which will be built on the campus as soon as materials are available. However, much time is involved in the construction of such a building that it offers no solution for next term's problem and may not be ready for use by fall.

Applications for women are normal, Erickson said, from the standpoint of those just out of high school.

Faculty Additions Probable

Dean Chester F. Luther, dean of the university, expressed the opinion Monday that additional faculty members may be necessary in several departments in order to provide sufficient courses for students starting next term. Luther said an adequate curriculum will be offered to take care of regular first term courses.

The problems in Oregon may be slightly more acute than in other states as shown in figures released from the department in Portland. Of the total number of Oregon service men, more than one-half of the veterans have been discharged. In the Portland office 200 men are being interviewed every day regarding education.

Erickson listed the Oregon colleges and universities and the number of veterans enrolled in each. Cascade college in Portland has 10 veterans enrolled; Lewis and Clark college, 42; Linfield college, 16; Multnomah college, 200; Oregon State college, 375; Pacific college, 3; Pacific university, 36; University of Portland, 108; Reed college, 63; University of Oregon, 480; Willamette university, 110.

Of a total number of 1,443 attending under the GI provisions, 523 are married men. Willamette has 51 married veterans and 59 single. Veteran enrollment here makes up 15 per cent of the student body.

BAG's, SAX To Banquet Saturday

The two honorary societies are composed of sophomore men and women outstanding in service, leadership and scholarship. The SAX were organized first in the spring of 1944 to carry on lower division activities similar to those of Blue Key, which was becoming more and more non-existent with the exodus of upperclassmen to the war. The BAGs followed by organizing in the fall.

Both groups select their members for scholastic ability, activities, and character. Members are called on to conduct freshman initiation and to fill other capacities in student affairs.

Former Graduate In Social Work

Word has just been received by Dr. S. B. Loughlin, head of sociology department, concerning Louise Wrisley, who graduated from Willamette last June.

She is assistant director and instructs groups of girls ranging from four years to high school age in rhythms, modern dancing, music and other creative arts. She also leads music for the older women's groups.

Future Barristers Follow Beaten Track Toward Bar

By Ronald Hoven

Although the Willamette university College of Law had neither a large enrollment nor a building to call its own during the war, it now has 23 students and prospects of a larger enrollment next semester. Its building, occupied by navy officers for two years during the war, again houses future barristers as they pore through seemingly endless tomes on their way to the bar.

Having turned out scores of men prominent in the field of law, the Willamette law school has contributed greatly in its 63 years to the legal profession in Oregon and in the Northwest.

The Willamette university board of trustees and a group of prominent Salem citizens began laying plans in 1866 for a law school. Established in 1883, the College of Law is the second oldest law school on the Pacific coast, fully accredited by the American Bar association.

Judge William M. Romsey, who later became an associate justice of the Oregon Supreme Court, was the first dean and professor of equity jurisprudence, real property and pleadings. The Bachelor of Laws degree then required two years. Willis C. Hawley was a student in 1887. He later became president of the university and for many years served as U.S. Congressman from the 1st congressional district of Oregon.

Charles L. McNary became dean in 1908. He later served as an associate justice of the Oregon Supreme Court. From 1919 until his death in the spring of 1944, he served as United States senator from Oregon, serving with distinction and being recognized as a political leader of national importance. During his latter years of service in Congress, he also served as minority leader of the Senate.

R. R. Hewitt in 1928 became dean upon the resignation of VanWinkle and served until 1935 when Roy M. Lockenour assumed the duties of dean. Lockenour served until the appointment of Dean George M. McLeod in 1940. McLeod then entered the military service, shortly after the beginning of the war. Since that time Ray L. Smith, a professor of the law school, has been acting dean.

Among alumni of the College of Law of Willamette university are many distinguished judges and lawyers who are taking a prominent part in the civic and political life of their communities and states. James F. Ailshie, a graduate of the class of 1891 is now and for many years has been Chief Justice of the Idaho Supreme Court. George B. Simp-

The Amen Corner

By Verna Stocks

One, two, three, smile; one, two, three, smile—ah, do we hear the patter of little feet? Who are we trying to kid—add a couple of stumbles, a fall, Barbour's crutches, and many beards, and the picture would more than likely be one of Freshman Glee.

What, No Presbyterians?

Many weeks of school have elapsed already, but with all the various religious groups on the campus busy, we can't dig up any news about the Westminster group. Last year it went in full swing—but what has happened this year? There aren't that many Methodists on the campus this year—are there?

Men—Active, But Not Where They Should Be

Golly, we hate to beef every week, but what's happened to the YMCA? We know you fellows have lots of studying to do, and stuff like that, but how about getting on the ball? We still haven't seen that membership drive yet.

Last Chapel—Till the Next

Next week's chapel will be devoted entirely to the purpose of getting the students better acquainted with the World Student Service Fund. Monday Prof. John L. Knight will introduce the WSSF, giving the background of the organization, and the purpose of it. In Wednesday chapel, the program will be entirely student participation—with Joyce Feiden rounding up the cast and getting it into swing. This program will be part musical and will give the students a picture of the WSSF and the relief it brings. After all this, we're sure you'll think the whole drive worthwhile and then dig down a little into that pocket—you won't be sorry you parted with that shekkel.

YW Has Guest

Mrs. Margaret Norton was here this week to help organize the WSSF drive and also to give ideas to the group as to future plans and programs.

Also last Saturday seven of the group went to Portland to a discussion on the evaluation of the YW in this region. Those attending this meeting were Carola Hays, Eloise Rarey, Bonnie Dougherty, Marian Reamer, Janie Fisher, Frances DeLancey, and Dean Olive M. Dahl, adviser of the campus YW.

Catholics Elect

The Catholic club met last night in Chresto for the purpose of electing new officers. We don't know the results, but the new officers will undoubtedly be getting under way with more and bigger plans for the club's activities.

Bookstore Adds Jewelry, Candy

Newest additions to the bookstore jewelry collection are gold metal compacts with red, blue or black enamel tops set with Willamette seals and gold lockets and link bracelets ornamented with Willamette emblems.

A good selection of pocket-book size mystery stories are also in stock, according to Mrs. Delsia Larson, store manager, and until the reopening of the Bearcat Cavern a candy machine will be located in the bookstore.

Crippled Bearcats Ready for Test With Linfield Tomorrow

Coch Lester J. Sparks is sharpening his charges today in preparation for Saturday night's tilt at McMinnville with the Linfield Wildcats. Minus the presence of three top players, Red Barbour, Court Jones, and Ollie Williams, the 'Cats will have to show a real fighting spirit to cop the Linfield scramble.

Barbour, first string guard, and Williams, high scoring forward, are both on the injured list, while Jones, alternate with Dale Bates at center, will be unable to make the McMinnville trek. The Sparkies will be hampered by a lack of height and most of their trouble will probably come in clearing the backboards.

Not too much is known concerning the abilities of the Wildcats other than the fact that they played two fast games with the College of Puget Sound Lumberjacks last weekend, dropping the first, 43-41, and winning the second 54-51.

Probable starters for the Willamettes will be Graham and Tullis at forwards, Bates at center, with Miller and Fitzsimmons at guards. Willamette students wishing to attend the game will be admitted for 50c on presentation of their student body cards.

Bearcat mainstay Marshall Barbour, who will probably not see action against Linfield because of a seriously sprained ankle. Barbour, one of the team's highest scorers in his guard position and the spark of the 'Cat defense, injured his ankle in the Portland university game last Wednesday. X-rays show no broken bones, but the sprain will put Barbour on the shelf for another week.

SPORTLIGHTS

By Bonnington

The crying towel is out for the first time this year at Willamette and no wonder, for Coach Les has those regulars out with a crucial tilt at Linfield approaching. "Mush" Barbour was the first to contribute to Sparks' misery when he sprained a left ankle in the Portland U. game. Next came Ollie Williams with elbow bone which also necessitated a few stitches being taken in his arm. Last on the list of men who won't be seeing action at McMinnville Saturday nite is Courtney Jones. Unlike the rest Jones has an orchestral obligation which must be filled. These men will be greatly missed in Saturday's Wildcat scrap and will probably be a large factor in Linfield's favor. With such odds we pick Linfield to drop the increasingly potent 'Cats.

Interest Through Season Tickets

A point worth discussing at this stage of the game is just what position the WU governing bodies have played in stimulating interest in sport activities; that is, outside interest. It has been brought to our attention that were a system organized to bring outside interest to our athletic program, the capital intake would be greater and the outside support much better. The system suggested was the sale of season tickets for individual sports, prices to be set by a delegated committee. Tickets could be put on sale at various central spots in Salem for the benefit of local fans or businessmen. It is a plan hitherto centered only in our minds, and in its least successful state would be profitable. In this day of new and revolutionary ideas we would like to advance this highly radical step which incidentally has been the practice of a majority of schools throughout the country.

What Price Basketball?

When on the subject of finances and athletic programs we are reminded of another situation existing which doesn't aid in the promotion of basketball to outsiders. That is the exorbitant prices charged for basketball games. Example—adult prices are one dollar and twenty cents—just five cents less than an individual might pay to see a double header of basketball par excellence in Madison Square Garden, New York. A number of people have been heard to say that our prices are high and that it would be a long time before they would pay that much again. We wonder if anyone has given much thought to this situation and if not, it might be time to do so. A new era in athletics is being inaugurated and Willamette might as well be a part of it. The best way to begin is to get the backing of the Salem townspeople.

Hurrah for the Golds

Enough criticism for now. As we chance to wander over a few statistics concerning the current basketball season we find that the WU Golds, alias the Bearkittens, have been compiling a great number of games in the win column. Very little has been written about the frosh to date but we intend to bring forth a few facts about them, such as the fact that they rank second in the City League only to Page Woolen's outfit. The fact that they have won something like their last five court invasions with increasingly wide margins show them as a very potent aggregation. The addition of Earl Fedje to an otherwise good lineup has added greatly to their potency. Preiss, Jewell, Bristow, to name only a few, are upholding the glory of the freshman casaba squad.

Another Miller Coming Up

As a parting note we would like to add another name to the already long list of prospective footballers for next year. The subject under consideration answers to the name of Chet Miller, blood relative of our own Irv Miller. Chet is an ex-promise to prospects for WU's postwar football debut. Chet plans to enroll next fall.

Bearcat Squad Hands Defeat To Pacificmen to Even Series

Piling up points when they needed them most, the Bearcat varsity squad outfought the Pacific university quintet 59-32 at Forest Grove Friday night to even the series between the two schools at one win apiece.

Jumping to a 10-2 lead in the opening minutes of play, the 'Cats let up and Pacific drew closer. With three minutes to go in the first canto, buckets by Fred Graham, Bruce Barker and Courtney Jones gave the Bearcats a substantial half-time lead of 10 points. Score at the mid-game mark was 27-17.

When the Pacific men again threatened in the second half, this time pulling to within three points of the visitors, the Sparkies poured it on to build up a large lead which the WU subs held in their ten minutes of play at the game's end.

A sizzling brand of fast breaking, ball hawking basketball was displayed by the Bearcats throughout the tilt, with the Sparkies showing particularly well during the clutches.

Top bucket artist for the evening was Forward Fred Graham of the 'Cats who rang up 15 points. Also showing well for Willamette were Barker and Jones with ten markers each. Forward Jim Troutman led the Badgers with nine counters.

Varsity Plays On Road Trips

Local casaba fans will have a long wait before they will be able to witness another home Bearcat game. Not until February 11, when the College of Puget Sound Lumberjacks come to town for a two-game series will the Bearcats show here again.

During the three weekends preceding Freshman Glee, the Bearcats will be on the road, starting next Saturday by commuting to McMinnville to tackle Linfield. The following weekend the 'Cats will head south to tackle the Klamath Falls Marines on their home boards. The GI's took the 'Cats twice during their visit to this section of the state before Christmas and Coach Sparks is hoping to have his invalids back on the squad to help gain revenge for the previous lickings.

Starting February's play, the Willamettes will invade the north on the following weekend, tangling with the College of Idaho Coyotes at Caldwell February 1-2, and then tackling the tough Whitman Missionaries the 4th and 5th, in Walla Walla.

In a closely contested basketball game Friday members of the Women's Recreation association defeated the non-members 26 to 22. The winning team was ahead by a small margin throughout the entire game. Despite limited practices, due to the increased practice demands of the men's varsity, the women showed marked improvement over previous games. Muriel Oliver was top scorer with 20 of the winning team's counters to her credit. Dorothy Richardson of the non-members' team played a large part in providing strong competition for the victors.

Badminton Starts

Women's badminton classes are starting a doubles tournament with the possibility of eventual outside competition. Women forming the doubles teams are Betty Levine, Betty Willard; Delphine Riney, Paula Smith; Dorothy Deal, Marjorie Grenfell; Barbara Kent, Bonnie Burnet; Marie Hildebrand, Muriel Oliver; Donna Unruh, Joan Remington; Barbara Sheridan, Joy Siemens; Elaine Berquist, Grace Carsh; Marjorie Smith, and Delora Deorfler.

Ski Trip Coming Saturday

Today is the last day set aside for making WRA ski trip reservations. Any women wishing to go skiing and who have not signed up yet are urged to do so today. To date, 22 are planning the trip which means there is still room for about 15 more to fill the bus. Arrangements have been made to leave at 6:30 o'clock Saturday morning and return after the evening meal at the lodge. Detailed information about the time and place to meet will be given to each one when she signs up today, as the others have already been notified. Barbara Kent is in charge of arrangements.

Water Pageant Stars

Featured in the water-pageant coming up on the 29th and 30th of this month will be guest artists Dorothy Bargsvik and Sue Small from Salem high school, and Wayne Gregg and Fred Andrews, ex-servicemen who will put on diving exhibitions.

Spotlight on 'Mural Finals; Alpha Psi Strong Contender

By Bill Faminow

The intramural basketball championship will be decided tonight in the local gym at 5:15. The game should be a thriller, especially if played like the recent ones.

Alpha Psi's are strong contenders for the title, with two victories to their credit in their first two starts, but the Kappas and Sigs have strengthened their lineups with experienced players lately so that a great battle can be expected no matter who plays.

The Alpha Psi's won their second playoff victory in as many nights on Tuesday as they edged out the Sigma Tau powerhouse 15-14. The Alpha Psi's led nearly throughout the game, but only by a slim margin.

Cards, Golds Add 8 Wins In City League

Willamette's entries in the City leagues, the Golds in the American and the Cardinals in the National, continued their winning ways this week with the Golds topping the Talbot Mintmen, 37-26, and the Cardinals trouncing Lefty's Art and Curio Shop, 52-37.

For the Golds the victory stretched their win skein to three games and gave them undisputed title to second place in their league. After dropping their first two league games, the Golds have shown much improvement of late over their early season form. In their victory over Mintmen, 37-26, Coach Sparks' boys tanked nine points before the Minters could score. After piling up a substantial lead the Sparksies settled down with a tight zone defense to win with ease. Scoring for the Golds was evenly divided with Zumwalt and Fedje scoring seven points each and Charleton and Harrell dropping through six.

Record Set in Card Game

Led by Ollie Williams, who dropped in 33 points to set a modern record for high scoring in City league hooping, the Willamette Cardinals ran rough shod over Lefty's Art and Curio Shoppers, 52-37. Running up a half time lead of 23-17, the Cards kept their skate clean, having won four and lost none to hold top spot in the National league.

Personality . . . Parade

By Bill Faminow

We have with us this week a person who needs no special introduction, a fellow by the name of Irving Miller. "Irv" is well known by nearly everyone on the campus, especially when on the basketball floor.

Irv left Willamette in the spring of '42 when he enlisted in the air corps. As a pilot serving in the European theater, Irv was shot down over Berlin in a raid on that city. Receiving injuries, he was operated on by a German doctor, and confined to the German hospital at Frankfurt for six weeks. He spent six months in captivity before being freed. Irv returned to the U. S. in May '45 as first lieutenant, with the air medal, purple heart and European theater campaign ribbons to his credit.

Prior to enlistment Irv studied three and one-half years at Willamette. He returned to complete his course here this semester and will be graduating in March, majoring in business administration. Irv, however, plans to take another year at Willamette, to receive his coaching degree.

Irv has participated in athletics on the campus. He played right half on "Spec" Keene's football squad which won the Northwest conference championship several times. He too was with the 'Cat team in Hawaii in '41. Besides football, Irv played two years of basketball. In '41 the Cats tied Linfield for the Northwest championship and Miller was chosen as an all-conference guard. In the same year Irv received the J. Booth prize, an award for academic and athletic achievement.

The present basketball season finds Irv playing guard once again for the Bearcats. His pep, tricks, and accurate shooting displayed in games thus far explain why he was chosen as an all-conference man.

Besides his academic and athletic work, Irv is a member of the athletic council and also treasurer of the senior class.

Graduating Seniors Must Declare Intent

Seniors who graduate in March are asked to file their petitions for degree with Dean Walter E. Erickson in the Registrar's office before January 31. Comprehensives and orals must be arranged for by graduating seniors as fulfillment of requirements for a degree.

British Again Offer Rhodes Scholarships

For the first time since the war period, Pres. G. Herbert Smith has received information on Rhodes scholarships available to American and Canadian men for study at Oxford university in England. In addition to the regular scholarships offered before the war, the Rhodes scholarship foundation is offering an equal number of war service scholarships.

To be eligible for a regular scholarship, the applicant must be at least a junior in college. Selection for the award of 400 pounds a year is based on the literary and scholastic ability, personal character and other qualities of leadership of the person applying.

Eligibility for the war service scholarship is on the same basis as the regular one, but the applicant must have been born between October 1, 1915 and 1928. War service applicants may be married.

Eight scholarships, four regular and four war service, will be awarded in each of the eight districts in the United States. Willamette men interested in the scholarships contact Smith for further information.
