

HOMECOMING PLAY MGR. TELLS CAST

Theta Alpha Phi Presents Members of the Cast To Student Body

M'KINNEY PLAY MANAGER

"The Late Christopher Bean" to Be Presented October 19

THETA Alpha Phi, under the direction of Professor Rahe has picked a refreshing play to present at the Willamette University Homecoming this year. Bill McKinney, recently elected head of the Little Theatre Guild, has been chosen as play manager.

McKinney

"The Late Christopher Bean," by Sidney Howard, carries a glimpse into the country life of New England, Yankee land. The story deals with a country doctor, family, and their general maid servant around whom most of the action of the story centers. The audience will be drawn into the feverish dealings of the art collectors to gain possession of the Late Christopher Bean's paintings. The cast, which has been chosen to give this play, are all experienced and will present smooth running performance.

"Dr. Haggert" is to be represented by William Clomes, a doctor from Jefferson High, Portland, who can take time off to play. The main stay, or the better half of the Haggert family—"Mrs. Haggert"—is played by Constance Smart, and she is no amateur. Do you remember the part of "Granny" in "The Goose Hangs High"? Well, Constance plays the part. Miss Elizabeth Sears, a freshman. (Continued on Page 3)

THAYER IN DRAMA SCHOOL IN SOUTH

Genevieve Thayer, Willamette graduate in '33, is attending the Marta Oatman School of Theater in California, and has been outstandingly active since her arrival there late this summer.

Miss Thayer has taken part in numerous plays, and now has a roll in "Interlude to Romance." This production will be staged the last of September, and will keep her there until the first week of October. After that time the Little Theatre Guild looks forward to her leadership in campus drama.

The Marta Oatman School has recently given plays before the microphone in which Miss Thayer has appeared several times. This most notable roll in which she appeared for the radio audience was that of Portia in Shakespeare's "The Merchant of Venice."

Exchange Students Interviewed By Collegian Feature Reporter

"East is east, and west is west"—and at Willamette University the twain shall meet. This week the Collegian presents interviews with two foreign born students, Miss Kuelei Emoto of Honolulu and Miss Chicksoon Choi of Korea.

Kuelei is the exchange student from the University of Hawaii, who is attending Willamette for a year, trading places with Yoo, who is in Hawaii studying until next summer. Charming, gracious, vivacious, Kuelei is already well-known on the campus. She is in no way different from her fellow students, as the word foreigner might suggest, and strangely enough, speaks not one word other than English. Her schooling has consisted in terms at the Mid-Pacific Institute, boarding school and two years at the University of Hawaii.

Miss Emoto says, "Oh, yes, I have visited the Mainland before; in 1931 I attended a Girl Reserve conference."

Morley Elected I. F. A. O. Pres.

Tuesday morning, Randall Kester, general forensic manager, announced that Laurence Morley, varsity debater, had been chosen president of the Intercollegiate Forensic Association of Oregon. The I. F. A. O. is composed of Willamette, Oregon State, Linfield, Pacific, and Albany. Each year it sponsors intercollegiate contests in debate, oratory, after-dinner speaking, and extempore speaking. The working association includes faculty and student representatives of all member colleges, and it is this group over which Morley will preside. The first meeting of the year will be held on the Willamette campus on Saturday morning, October 12th, at 10 o'clock. Last year Morley placed third in the I. F. A. O. after-dinner speaking contest and was a member of the team that brought the state debate championship to Willamette.

FORENSICS EXPECT SUCCESSFUL YEAR; PROGRAM PLANNED

The first general forensic meeting of the year was called Tuesday night in the Little Theater Guild for the purpose of determining the interest in public speaking events of the year. A large number turned out considering the short announcement. A total of ten women and thirteen men reported. Upper class women were: Constance Smart, Marjorie Thorne, Melva Belle Savage, Margaret Howerton, Lorene Tompkins, Marnetta Jones. Freshmen women were Ella May Morris, Helen May Beal, Marjorie Jones, Helen Marcy. Upper class men were: Laurence Morley, Randall Kester, George McLeod, Carl Felker, James Pyke, Waldo Hiebert. Freshmen men were Howard Campbell, Ellsworth Morley, Robert Farmer, Wayne Williams, Eugene Hill, Leonard Donaldson.

Willamette is expecting a very good season in forensics this year, especially in view of the excellent showing made last year. Last year's events included an 8000 mile trip through the midwest and south with 13 debates won and four lost; second place in Oratory and Extempore speaking and third in After-Dinner speaking at the Pacific Forensic League tournament at Whitman; first places in men's debate, men's Old Line Oratory, women's oratory, second in extempore speaking and third in after-dinner speaking in the state contests; and first in men's debate, women's oratory, extempore speaking and third in men's oratory at the Linfield forensic tournament.

This year's forensic events will be a trip to Los Angeles to the Pacific Forensic League tournament, probably for men's and women's teams both, a trip to the University of Washington for a freshmen men's team, a possible women's trip through Washington, and the Linfield tournament for the entire squad. The questions for debate have not been chosen yet, but will be settled within the next few weeks.

"Windy" Henderson has announced a slogan contest for the College of Idaho name. The rules are simple, so it is hoped that many slogans will be turned in. Anyone may enter as many slogans as he wishes and make them as brief as possible. The prize is two tickets to "The Late Christopher Bean", to be presented on Friday evening, October 18, in the Salem high school auditorium. Slogans must be either turned in to Henderson or placed in the slogan box in Eaton Hall.

Y. M. C. A. Cabinet To Aid Students

The regular cabinet meeting of the campus Y. M. C. A. was held Tuesday evening in the west room of the library with George Self, president, presiding.

Further social plans for the first semester were discussed as well as plans for a campus activity which will carry on where the etiquette classes will leave off. A campaign of personal help to aid students in finding their places in student activities is also being formulated.

FIRST M. E. TO BE HOST; ALL W. U. INVITED

An invitation to the annual reception sponsored by the First Methodist Episcopal church is extended to all university and high school students by Mr. R. A. Newman, chairman of the official board. Miss Mildred Bartholomew, Director of Young People's Activities, is to be the guest of honor. The reception will begin at 8 p. m., Friday, October 4, in the church parlors of the church.

BALINGER STRESSES WORLD FRIENDSHIP

Dr. Maurice Balinger wishes to place primary stress, during his stay on the Willamette campus, on the furtherance of World Friendship. In his leadership in the study of this subject Dr. Balinger wishes to act informally as much as possible because he believes that, in this way, he will be afforded a much better avenue of presentation to the students.

PLANS LAID TO WELCOME GRADS

Plans for the annual Willamette homecoming are going forward at a rapid pace under the guidance of the general manager, Winthrop Henderson. Invitations to over 1000 alumni will be mailed out the latter part of next week and it is hoped that between two and three hundred former students will be on the campus on the week-end of October 19th.

The program will start with the registration of the visitors in Craeto Cottage Saturday morning at 10 o'clock. That evening the annual alumnae banquet will be held at which time old acquaintances will be renewed and old times will be recalled. Faye Sparks heads the banquet committee.

WESLEYANS HEAR NOTED LECTURER

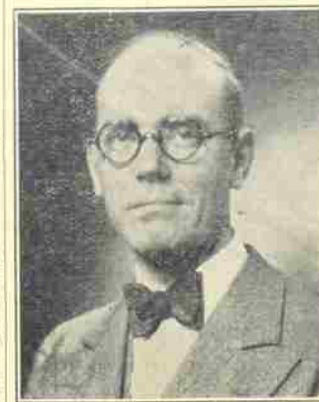

Rev. Poindexter, pastor of the Leslie Memorial Church, spoke to the Wesleyans at their meeting in Craeto Cottage last Monday noon. After the lecture the group was called to order for a business meeting and plans for future programs were discussed.

M'KINNEY NAMED HEAD OF L. T. G.

William McKinney, junior from Moro, was elected president of the Little Theatre Guild at a meeting last Tuesday night. Jane Fisher, Salem, was elected vice-president and Marion Minthorn, Salem, was made secretary-treasurer. At this meeting plans for the coming year were tentatively formulated.

Try-outs for Guild membership will be held next Thursday and Friday from 3:30 until 5:00 in the Little Theatre on the third floor of Waller Hall. Anyone interested in any phase of dramatic work is urged by the Little Theatre heads to report at this time.

GUEST ON CAMPUS

Dr. Maurice G. Balinger

BALINGER STRESSES WORLD FRIENDSHIP

Dr. Maurice Balinger wishes to place primary stress, during his stay on the Willamette campus, on the furtherance of World Friendship. In his leadership in the study of this subject Dr. Balinger wishes to act informally as much as possible because he believes that, in this way, he will be afforded a much better avenue of presentation to the students.

Dr. Balinger is a firm believer in what he calls "Realistic Christianity" which he believes should be able to stand the test of social and economical stress. This sort of Christianity should link itself with practical, everyday living and stand as a support against all the many trials of the average person.

This veteran in the foreign mission work has spent 12 years turning home. His homeward trip has included stops at Iraq, Palestine, and Italy. His longest stop was in England, where he spent a month lecturing to student groups. While at Luckenow he was the head of the religion department in the Luckenow Christian college. The membership of this school numbered about 1200 and included Hindus, Mohammedans and Christians.

He wishes, during his stay, to secure a knowledge of a cross section of student thinking in connection with world friendship, and will devote all next week on this campus to that purpose. The schedule for Dr. Balinger's informal talks for the next week is not yet complete but some appointments have already been made. He will speak Monday noon for the Wesleyans, Sunday evening at 5:30 for the evening Vespers service, and Wednesday at the International club. A definite date for his talk at the Y. M. C. A. has not yet been set.

At the next regular meeting, next Monday noon, Maurice Balinger, returned missionary from India will be the guest speaker at a luncheon given by the group. Last Monday seventeen new members were taken into the organization and the thirty-three members present elected Dolph Ballentyne and Lanelle Chapin to head the program committee and Marguerite DuRette as head of the social program. These new officers were elected due to the resignation of one officer and the inability of the other to return to school.

LABS HAVE NEW DAYLIGHT LAMPS

Ten Glassteel Diffusion Lamps make up the most recent addition to the laboratory equipment in the biology and zoology labs on the third floor of Eaton Hall.

These lamps, equipped with 200 watt bulbs, insure daylight for work with microscopes and other instruments requiring the best possible light. Six of the lamps have been placed in Prof. Monk's zoology lab and four of them in Prof. Peck's biology lab. The aggregate cost for this new equipment was $105.

P. E. CLASSES 25% LARGER THAN LAST YR.

Men's Physical Education, under the direction of Mr. Lestle Sparks, has assumed new proportions this year with an enrollment of approximately 250 students which is a 25 per cent increase over the enrollment of last year.

An increase in the men's Physical Education curriculum has made it possible for the student to choose his subject in the field which is most interesting to him. The schedule for this fall carries divisions in swimming, passball, football, basketball, fall track, fall tennis, and fencing. Some of the students are carrying only the regular gym requirement which is a composite of several forms of athletics. Fencing, which is new this year, is open only to sophomores and is under the direct supervision of the Y. M. C. A.

Full tennis will start this week, and anyone but a tennis letterman is eligible to participate in a local tournament which is scheduled as a climax to the season's work. It will include both men's and women's singles and doubles as well as mixed doubles. Further information may be obtained from Coach L. J. Sparks.

November 4 will inaugurate freshman basketball, and an inter-class tournament will be conducted on November 23, 25 and 26.

Swimming, under the supervision of Bill Lemon, has proven very popular and has 60 men enrolled. Students in this division also have the benefit of a Friday night social swim. Wrestling and boxing as well as other forms of physical education will be added next semester, and physical ability tests will be conducted in the spring.

Freshman Physical Ed. classes which are always conducted on Sweetland Field until the advent of the fall rains are in the hands of Physical Education majors.

Yell Contest Is Announced

Bill Hanzen, Yell King, and Don Armpriest, Crown Prince, Wednesday announced a yell contest open to any student who wishes to submit a yell. The prize for the winner of this contest will be two tickets to the Homecoming Play.

The contest begins today and all yells which are to be considered in the competition for the two play tickets must be in by next Thursday, October 9.

Hanzen and Armpriest wish the yell composers to specialize in "Team" yells and "Fight" yells. Other yells will be considered for the prize but yells under these two headings will be given preference in judging.

The judges will be especially on the alert for anything about the offerings of the contestants which in any way resembles so-called "high schoolishness," or plagiarism of any kind. Originality is to be the keynote of the whole contest which is an attempt to produce something typical of the Willamette student body spirit.

LIBRARY COMM. HOLDS FIRST MEETING MON.

Monday night the student library committee held its first meeting of the year, called together by Mr. Spencer, Willamette librarian. Kenneth Manning was elected chairman of the general committee, and Randall Kester was elected chairman of the disciplinary committee. The committee on book selection deferred its choice of chairman to a later date.

Tentative plans for the recreational reading contest this year were discussed, and it was decided to begin the contest at an earlier date than usual, with substantially the same rules as last year. Copies of the rules and the book lists will be available soon.

The remainder of the time was spent in discussing plans for enforcement of discipline in the library. It was reported that so far, student conduct has been very satisfactory, but it is anticipated that with the larger enrollment this year, rules will have to be more rigidly enforced than they have been in the past. The reading room will probably be crowded most of the time, and special care on the part of the students will be necessary in order to minimize noise. Any member of the library staff or the library committee has authority to ask of offending students to leave the library, and in more serious cases, the committee can refuse library privileges altogether to students who refuse to cooperate.

Members of the committee are: book selection; Winifred Gardner, Louise Anderson, Lawrence Burdett, Winthrop Henderson; discipline; Margaret Howerton, Esther Gibbard, Kenneth Manning, and Randall Kester.

Call Answered for Mascot; Can Yellow Cat Fill Kaiser's Place

In response to the many kindly aids in searching for a mascot, a friendly fellow has been found. No longer is the mascot a canine, but now, a feline. Our little friend is a yellow kitten of no special nationality. The color of its cloak is not exactly yellow, but that is as near as it can be described. Very tiny in size, the animal can not be much more than three months old. Whose its parents were and where it came from is still among the unsolved mysteries of life.

The kitten has attached itself to the school, and herewith places its application for position of mascot in your hands. The most noticeable characteristics of the kitten is its friendliness. No matter who it may be the cat is ever willing to make friends. Already it has armies of acquaintances on the campus. It is certain that our new mascot follows the well-known "hello" spirit of Willamette.

Would This Plan Benefit W. U.?

One of the main subjects of conversation and controversy wherever two or more people chance to meet has been, and will be, for the next few weeks, "where is the new state house to be situated?" At the present time it is nearly an even toss up between Willamette University campus and Candalaria Park, two miles south of the main business center of Salem. This controversy will be settled when the special session of the State Legislature convenes at the Salem Armory on the fourteenth of this month. All budgets, estimates of various state offices as to the amount of room needed for each, and recommendations must be in to the proper committee before that date.

In choosing a site for our new state Capitol the legislature should view all sides of the question, taking into consideration the interests of the state in future years as well as at present. Oregon is a growing state. Its visiting tourists are numbered in hundred thousands annually and more come each year. Naturally, the state buildings, the Capitol in particular, furnish one of the main reasons that these tourists stop in Salem or come to Oregon at all. Now would it not seem odd to come into a strange state and a strange town, expecting to find all of the state buildings grouped together (as they are in any other state in the U. S.) and find them strung all around the country in a hit or miss fashion? If the new Capitol were built on any other place than its present site plus that of Willamette University, that is exactly what would happen. For many years Willson Park with its great numbers of fine trees has been known throughout the country as the home of the state-Capitol building, and it should not be separated from it at this time. For over three quarters of a century the seat of the state government has been at the place where the historic old building burned last spring. Now it can easily be seen that the business of state has so enlarged in that length of time that it would not be feasible or sane to build a new building on the exact site of the old Capitol. Neither is it feasible or sane to separate the state offices. These offices must be kept together in one building or group of buildings where people can find them.

We now come to the question of the campus. It is true that Willamette has occupied its present location for many years, and there is much history connected with its buildings and grounds. It is equally true that there is much romance and history connected with the present site of the state Capitol, so it would be equally hard for either party to move. All angles should be viewed however. Willamette University is crowded for space. Its buildings are all old and inadequate with the exception of Lausanne Hall and the gymnasium. The laboratories are antiquated and the campus needs acreage and landscaping. If Willamette were to sacrifice her history so that the state could be expanded it would be a truly great ending to her first stage of development. It would then be time for her to begin anew. With the city's help this would be made possible on the Bush's Pasture Site. It would be possible to build new buildings adequate to accommodate the student body. It would be possible to have modern equipment and a beautiful, landscaped campus of which any college in the state might be envious. Here there is space for a natural athletic field, large enough so that several groups might make use of it at one time.

This would be the beginning of a new era for Willamette of which she would undoubtedly be proud, and she would also have a part in keeping the state grounds and buildings together, which everyone will agree is very important at this time.

Can Hacks Cultivate Loyalty

A recent manifestation of force on the campus did nothing to help the morale of our university. Freshman initiation is fine, but the frosh should, out of loyalty, observe traditions. However, when a student wears his rook hat and carries his Frosh Bible because of fear of being "hacked," is that student's loyalty to his school being strengthened? We hardly think so. It is the old, old story of using force when other methods have failed to arouse interest and enthusiasm.

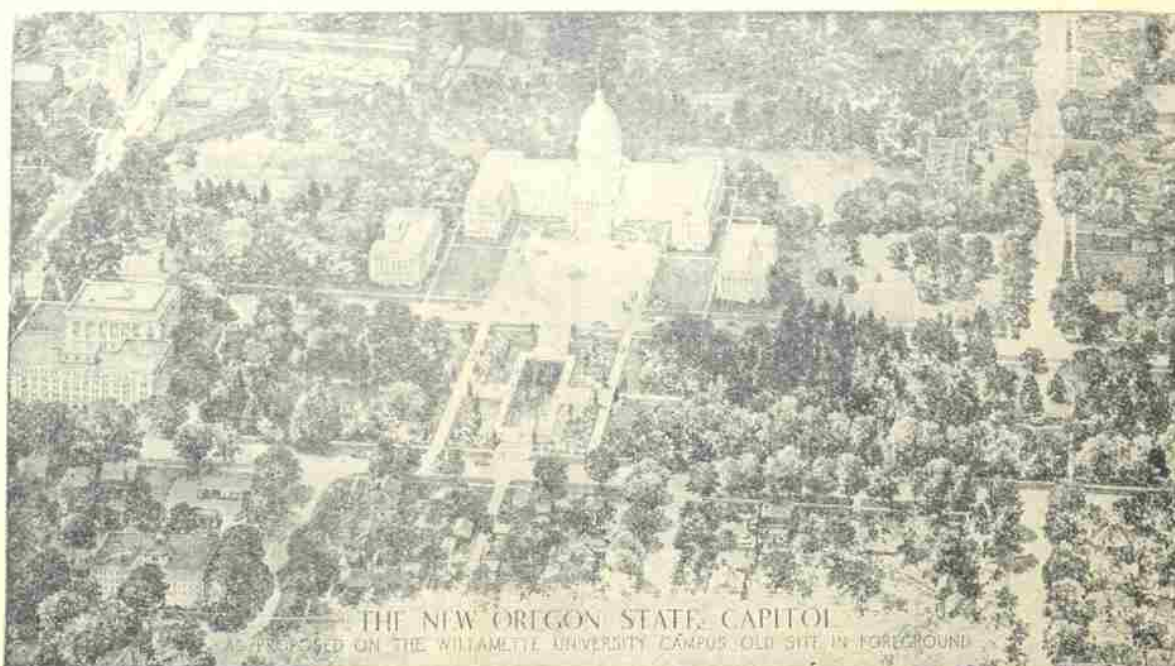

However, it would hardly be fair to place all the blame on the Cubs, who are carrying out the wishes of the Student Body. Nevertheless, it is amusing to see a group of husky "six-footers" standing around with paddles, waiting to spank someone. Naughty! Naughty! Papa spank! And what is more amusing is to see how easily the "little dears" feelings are hurt when one mentions the fact that they should be good at playing with a rattle. My! My! What a marvelous display of self-control they make as they tear madly after the miscreant, grab him, and work off their vexation with a few nice swats! You see, it has become a matter of personal pride; they are now thinking of themselves; not the honor of the school.

Be Up and Doing!

There is no school regulation demanding this, but something should be done about the bashful students who insist that they can't debate, play football, work on committees, or do anything else in the way of extra-curricular activities. Going to school, college especially, just for routine classes every day is like going to the fair without buying a hamburger or visiting the fairway or going on a picnic without a lunch basket.

Freshmen and sophomores by looking around can profit from the experience of upper classmen who have no interest in life from September to June. Make your school life pay big dividends; it's the chance of a lifetime to make fast friendships and get used to working with and for others.

BOOKS

"Paradox in Hawaii," by David Livingston Crawford, has a double attraction for Willamette students—first because of its intrinsic interest, and secondly because it was, among other books, presented to our library by Sang-Kan Yao, last year's popular exchange student from the University of Hawaii. The full title of the book is "Paradox in Hawaii: an examination of industry and education and the paradox there present." The author is president of the University of Hawaii and qualified to write on this interesting subject. He is the author also of "Can Nations be Neighbors?" which has come to the library from the same source. The book was autographed by the author at the time it was presented to Mr. Yao, whose autograph it also contains. Hawaii has always been a land of great interest to us, particularly now that the exchange scholarship has been established. It offers in a small compass of territory a fascinating variety of peoples, customs, systems. Industry and education are both vital forces there, and some conflict is inevitable. Besides a brief sketch of the background and description of present conditions, Mr. Crawford offers some suggestions for the solution of the problem, and some modern ideas in education. Brought out in 1933, the book is both up-to-date and authoritative. It is on the recreational reading list for this year, and should find many readers among Willamette students.

RAMBLING SHOPPER

By UNCLE WILLIE

Hi-de-ho, Soaks,—er, Folks. Dargone if I can keep my tongue's differential from slipping, I don't dare all it, because when a guy's tongue's differential gets "oiled" there's no telling how it will act. Now to get down to the business of the day.

Uncle Willie found proof last Tuesday at Miller's when he espied Ye Goode Olde Economics Proffe, naomely, Jones, in the act of "being interested" in an overcoat.

Noticing Billy McReynolds with his Kodak the other day, Uncle can not refrain from calling your attention to the developing and printing service done by the Capital Drug Store. There is still time to get some "snoops"—er, I mean "scoops." Drop in sometime and let John Robinson show you their candy line, fellows.

Grandma used to put Uncle Willie to sleep with the story of "The Three Little Piggly-Wigglys," but don't worry—we won't repeat it. Why sleep now when you can utilize your class periods for the purpose? But how many of you gentle readers knew that Piggly-Wiggly meant "Help yourself?" Well, here's a word to you wise ones who buy food—if you're looking for quality foods at bargain prices, why Piggly-Wiggly.

Quite by accident Uncle ventured into the Meadow Brook Dairy Lunch and became acquainted with Mr. Thompson and his wares. Four dippers of home-made ice cream, compounded with home-made chocolate syrup, fresh cow-milk, and malt, were the ingredients liquidized into a big, delicious Malted Milk for Uncle Willie. If your "chickens" need fattening, feed them Meadow Brook Malted.

It's no secret! The Bluebird has in its employ one of the most wonderful girls in the world, but modesty forbids Uncle from disclosing her name. However, he can mention Mr. Hughes, who is one of the most hospitable managers found anywhere. Uncle doesn't know which of the two causes—Bill Miller, Johnny Steelhammer, and others to patronize the Bluebird so regularly.

While perusing a rather unsteady but sober route on Ferry street, Uncle became interested in the Salem Quilt Shop's window display. You girls will "rave" about the cute leather purses, silk lined, with coin purses for only sixty cents, I believe was the price. Then there were vests made from scraps of leather sewn together in ramble-scramble style, tailored to fit, for less than three dollars. You fellows will be interested in their leather elbow pads, or monograms which can be attached to your sweaters. You can buy leather-covered pillows, or just the "makings" if you choose. And gals, when your stockings begin to look like a track team, have the runners repaired. If you're thinking of Christmas gifts already, take time out at the Quilt shop.

And so, like a hoop, I will coil up, and gently roll away.

Miss Phelps Married at Noon Ceremony Sunday

Sunday, at high noon, was the scene of an impressive wedding ceremony when Miss Savilla Phelps, daughter of Mrs. Ethel Poling Phelps, became the bride of Harold Busick, son of Mrs. J. L. Busick, at the home of the bride's grandfather, Dr. C. C. Poling, in Portland.

The bride chose a smart brown wool crepe tulle with matching suede accessories. With it she wore a corsage of gardenias. For travelling she added a brown top coat.

A wedding breakfast was held at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. Walter Wood, following the ceremony. Later the couple left by motor for a trip to Canada. Upon their return they will be at home at 879 North Liberty.

Miss Phelps is a member of a prominent Oregon family, being the niece of Dr. Dan Poling. She is a graduate of Willamette University and a member of Beta Chi sorority, Theta Alpha Phi and Pi Gamma Mu, national honoraries. Mr. Busick attended Salem schools and is in business in Salem.

Dr. Kohler Host For Informal Tea

A series of informal teas, sponsored by Dr. Henry Kohler, are being held this fall to acquaint the new students, both freshmen and transfers, with upper classmen and faculty members. To obtain this objective more satisfactorily the parties are attended by small groups.

The teas, held in the late afternoons on Monday, Wednesday and Friday in Mr. Kohler's apartment, are of a special benefit to the freshmen, who should take an active interest in them.

Guests are personally invited, and it is hoped that the majority of the new students will be included before the end of the semester.

Call Answered

One question remains to debate; namely, What shall we call our cat? Some wit suggested "Pussy" in an original vein. That is just too darling for words—or do you think so? Another new idea was brought to light when a Rook called the cat "Tom." However, it has not yet been decided if that is quite appropriate. Worst thought of all resulted in: "Call him Hitler—successor to Kaiser."

Washington Team Favored To Win Game; Players Leave Friday Night

SUBS TO SEE ACTION

Last Non-Conference For Both Squads; College of Idaho Game Next

With several regulars on the bench being saved for the College of Idaho tilt, the Bearcats will face the mammoth Washington State team with the odds decidedly against them.

The Staters are even larger than the team Willamette met last week, Oregon State, and according to advance reports, just as tough. In their last game they took Puget Sound to the cleaners using all 55 men on their squad. This will be the last non-conference game for both teams, and it will be more a case of seeing how easily they can get by, for both want to remain intact for coming games.

The two teams have met twice before, once to the embarrassment of the Washington team when the Bearcats surprised them with a 6 to 0 victory back in the dawn of football in the year 1905. That year Willamette went through the season undefeated, and had there been a coast championship, it would undoubtedly have come to rest in Salem. The other game was in 1932, when the Bearcats took it on the chin by four or five touchdowns.

It is possible Spec may not start Johnny Oravee, fleet-footed signal barker at the start of the game at least, and if possible will not see him at all, saving him for the Homecoming game on the 19th with Idaho. Don Brandon naturally would be the logical choice for Oravee's place, and although he injured his ankle Tuesday and hasn't been able to practice since, he will probably be in condition by the time the whistle opens the game.

Last week Willamette failed to make any appreciable yardage against the big Oregon State team, it being too big to puncture through the line. Since the team they meet this Saturday will be just the same only larger, Spec has been busy working out a more versatile attack. If the W. S. C. line is impregnable, Willamette will take to the air and attempt to gain ground in that manner.

The squad will leave Friday evening, arriving in Pullman early Saturday morning.

INTRAMURAL SPORT CALENDER OPENS

Leslie Sparks, director of intramural sports, announces that competition will get under way soon, probably this Monday. Passball, one of the main fall sports promises lots of keen competition with entries from the P. E. staff, the three fraternities, independents, W club and two teams from the freshmen. All teams wishing to enter the race must be signed at Sparks' office before 6 p. m. Thursday.

All boys interested in entering the fall tennis tournament should get in touch with Mr. Sparks as soon as possible. This is expected to uncover prospective tennis talent for the varsity. It is urged to have as many as possible sign. Play will be in both singles and doubles.

Many track-men have already reported for practice in preparation for the coming cross-country race with Columbia on November 15. Track-men who expect to go out for competition in the spring should report to Sparks now.

Co-Ed Sports

A new sport is being introduced this year to Willamette students. Fencing is being offered this year through a Y.M.C.A. project. The sport will be open to both the men and women on the campus.

Arrangements are being made with the Physical Education department to allow sophomores to take the courses for regular gym credit.

Gus Moore and J. D. Welch are to be the instructors for the classes.

A slip is at the Y. M. C. A. for those to sign who plan to enter the class.

GUESSIN' with GARY

Just how bad Linfield really wants to play a football game with Willamette this year is kind of a problem. At the first of the year, Spec Keene wrote asking for a game with them on November 23, a date which both schools still had open. At that time the official answer was that they were sorry but it was impossible for them to play us.

The other day the Linfield mentor, Henry Lever, made a statement to the press that it was a crime that Willamette and Linfield didn't have a game together, and that the Bearcats and Idaho, co-champions from last year, weren't the only oysters in the soup. He said he had a team that was going to make them both sit up and take notice.

What we want to know is why the two schools don't get together and arrange a game right now for next year before conflicting schedules prevent it. Linfield then would either be able to say, I told you so, or could go down the road talking to themselves. The game would draw a good gate in Salem since it would be the first time in several years they would have met on the Bearcats home stamping grounds.

"No, it isn't yellow jaundice or anything like that." Several football players have had to say that quite a few times since last Saturday. It seems that the new helmets under which the fellers hid their brains lost some of their color after about three quarters of the O. S. C. game under a very, very, hot sun. The result was a bunch of yellow foreheads for the dance Saturday night.

Speaking of hot suns, old Sol had a lot to do with the size of the score in the O.S.C. nightmare. When you can run in a new team of fresh players whenever you feel like it, you don't have to worry about how hot the sun is, and how much it is taking out of your players. Four quarters of hard football with the mercury way up around summer regions kind of gets you.

Already basketballs are being pounded against backboards in the Willamette gym as some of the hoop hopefuls start unlimbering for the winter sojourn that will start in just a few more weeks. Bill Antoine, Book, who last year rated All-Portland honors was out dropping them through from all corners with better than pre-season accuracy. With Petteys gone, there is an opening left at the center position, and Antoine will probably give them all a big run for their money.

Guess we won't even mention that little prophecy we made last week, but after all it's more fun to be an optimist.

"On the Bearcat Front" ROY FERRIS

Mr. Henry W. Lever in his recent statement to L. H. Gregory of the Oregon undoubtedly knew the Willamette schedule as well as his own when he very frankly expressed the wish for a Willamette game. Lever, head coach of Linfield college, has games arranged on every one of Willamette's open dates. Everything looked rosy till Leslie Sparks uncovered the Linfield schedule and found that they had arranged a game with little Pacific Lutheran on November 23. This was the only possible chance for both Linfield and Willamette getting together. When I first read the article I thought Coach Lever was referring to a ping-pong tournament when he said: "Oh, yes, and I wish to remark about Willamette and College of Idaho as such a snap to divide first and second honors between them in the Northwest conference is plain hokey. Who's going to beat us? That's what I'd like to know, and until we are beaten how do they get that way? Unfortunately we don't play Willamette university, but we do meet College of Idaho here November 16, and that's one we certainly expect to win."

It obviously appears that the Linfield grid mentor is in the best of spirits and completely recovered from the stinging score the Bearcats ran up against him last year. All the indifferent opinion between the two institutions last fall has been straightened out and forgotten and if both teams can have the luck to go through the Northwest Conference undefeated, a championship game should be arranged early in December. Northwest Conference officials should be sure to keep the race from a two-way tie. The public will soon get tired of this business and interest will drop off rapidly. They want a red hot race and in case of a tie they want it decided. In other words they want to completely recognize a real champion.

Scoring touchdowns is not the specialty of the above pictured players, but they are just as important as the ball totter. The three linemen and Stone, blocking half, open the holes that are necessary if gains are to be realized. They will all see plenty of action this Saturday against W. S. C.

True it is that the final score stood 26 to 0 in favor of the Beavers, but will this great display of offensive ability help the Beavers in the long run? This Saturday they clash with U. C. L. A. in Portland and unless Coach Stiner has a new form of offense the Bruins will have every play in the bag before it gets started. Somewhere in the stands eagle-eyed scouts of the southern California school saw Oregon State run everything except the water wagon against the Bearcats. Against Stanford in Portland last year the Beavers held back their new plays so they threw the works at the Bearcats. The plays worked swell, when Gray and Mountain weren't running they were passing.

Cougar meat is going to be awful tough for the Bearcats to get this Saturday. Reports from the Pullman stronghold points to one of their best elevens in three years. The Bearcats must go into the game with the idea that a victory is possible. The Oregon State game is undoubtedly a bit discouraging to the boys but they must remember they were up against more than an average Beaver team. I'd like to have a nickel for everyone who told me it was the best looking Oregon State team in many years. W. S. C. hasn't been defeated on their home field for nine long years and although no one looks for a Willamette victory it would be a lot of fun to score them real bad.

BIG GAME OF YEAR FOR HOMECOMING DUE IN TWO WEEKS

Co-Champions Matched in Important Conference Tilt; Crowd Coming

The most important game of the season for Willamette is fast approaching as plans get under way for the biggest "Homecoming" in many years.

Advance dope from the College of Idaho campus points directly at the Bearcats in their annual homecoming debut, scheduled for Oct. 19th.

Loren Basler, head coach of College of Idaho, undoubtedly plans to open up on Willamette to give the Coyotes undisputed control over the Northwest Conference. Last year the two schools shared the championship together and the hot argument over who had the best team was never settled. This year fans are expected to crowd into Sweetland field to see the champions not only decide which one will take the lead in this season's play but also settle their dispute over last year champions.

Meanwhile Coach Roy Keene has been looking forward to the contest and bringing the Bearcats along through the tough games to be at his greatest strength against College of Idaho. This Saturday Keene will probably hold out as many of the first string as possible to let them recover from the bruises received in the Oregon State game. The second string will undoubtedly start against the strong Washington State team. Bob Vagt and Bill McAdams who were both injured in the San Jose game will be ready to go against College of Idaho. If further injuries do not develop from the Cougar contest, Willamette will put its strongest team of the year against the Coyotes. Keene will have plenty of time to work out a smooth attack as the Bearcats are idle October 12, the Saturday prior to the "Big Game."

Sonnie Hale and Marta Eggerth, makes its debut at the State theatre on Tuesday, October 8. Those who remember the furor in musical circles created when Kiepura made his initial American screen appearance in "Be Mine Tonight," will look forward eagerly to his rendition of the many fine musical numbers in the new picture, which includes, besides three arias from the opera, "La Tosca," two ballads, respectively entitled, "My Heart Is Calling," "You, Me, and Love," which are destined to be hummed, whistled and warbled from coast to coast, once the fans have heard the melodies intoned by the marvelous Kiepura voice.

Of unusual interest is the added attraction with this program, "Man of Aran" picked by the National Board of Review as the finest motion picture of 1934. It is a scenic travelogue depicting life on the Aran Islands off the coast

OREGON A. A. U. BRANCH FORMED

The establishment of an Oregon A. A. U. branch of the national organization, assures Oregon talent of a better chance to find its way into the Olympic team that will be selected this spring for the Berlin Olympics.

Salem has several fellows who might have a good chance to make the team and earn a trip to Germany. Winfield Nedham, long distance swimmer who is at Stanford this winter should stand a good chance.

Officers of the Oregon A. A. U. were elected as follows: Pres., Aaron W. Frank, Portland; 1st Vice-Pres., T. Morris Dunne, Salem; 2nd Vice-Pres., Chancellor Fred D. Hunter, Eugene; 3rd Vice Pres., Major Gen. Thos. A. Rilea, Salem; 4th Vice-Pres., John L. Gary, West Linn; 5th Vice-Pres., Father Michael Earl, Portland; Sec.-Treas., James J. Richardson, M. A. A. C., Portland.

of Ireland. This is a picture of the highest type, designed for university students and educated people.

HOLLYWOOD
Una Merkel, the unkillable, finally has been kissed. And the kisser is none other than that Beau Brummel of the flickers, Charles Butterworth. Hollywood had about given up. Una, the film folks said, would never be kissed. It just wasn't in the cards. She would always be the comedienne friend of the glamorous star. A bridesmaid, maybe, but never a bride. Una herself was resigned to the fate of a kissless screen life.

"My hero!" Una is reported to have said, upon hearing this.

As all the world loves a lover, and particularly the screen world, it wasn't long before Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, in the person of Producer Edgar Selwyn, opened Una's starlit path with the announcement of "Baby Face Harrington," a story from his own successful stage play, "Something to Brag About," which was adapted especially for the combined talents of Una and Charles.

The new comedy, opening Sunday, October 5, at the Hollywood theatre, features the team as man and wife who are torn from their domestic embrace only long enough for Charles to be mistaken for a nasty outlaw.

Also John Wayne in "Rainbow Trail" Wednesday and Thursday the 9th and 10th. Peter Lorre in "Mad Love."
