The Juniors unanimously chose Margaret Arnold to lead them to victory, and placed Louise Nunn in charge of their formations. Louise Findley is chairman of their glee committee.

Carolyn Parker is the chairman of the Sophomore glee committee, and Thomas Maynard is their leader, while Lewis Nichols and Neil Brown, assisted by Mildred Gilbert and Jean White, have charge of formation.

The Freshman class has Virginia Edwards for its glee chairman, and Frances McGilvra, assisted by Marjory Miller, for director.

Holding the song contest in the gym this year breaks a time-honored custom, but the gym will seat more people than the Armory will. Reserved seat tickets may be obtained Wednesday from 2 to 4, in Leslie Sparks office in the gym. Only 300 of the 2,000 seats are being reserved, and these will be held only until 7:45 Saturday night.

2 MEN TO BEAR BRUNT OF FORENSIC SEASON

HAVE UNUSUAL ABILITY

Redding and Witty To Participate in Two Oratorical Contests Each and Debate

Two men by virtue of their outstanding ability in forensics will bear the brunt of the Willamette university speaking program this year. These men are Robert Witty and Charles Redding. They will make the debate tour, and also participate in two oratorical contests each.

Witty was chosen in the try-outs last Saturday to represent Willamette in the Pacific forensic league oratorical contest to be held early in April at Corvallis. Last year, Witty took second place in this competition.

Other events and Willamette representatives are:

The Old Line Oratorical Contest to be held at Willamette March 11, Charles Redding. The Peace oratorical contest to be held at Pacific college April 8, Robert Witty. The national intercollegiate oratorical contest on the constitution, Charles Redding.

WSC WOMEN SPEAK AT WILLAMETTE MAR. 3

MOVIE CENSORSHIP ISSUE

Elaine Chapin and Margaret Pro Will Represent Willamette University in Contest

Next Thursday evening, March 3, the women's affirmative team will debate the Washington State College team, at Willamette, on the question: Resolved That a National Board of Censorship Should Be Established by Congress to Control the Release and Exhibition of All Motion Pictures. Elaine Chapin, senior, and Margaret Pro, freshman, are the members of the affirmative team.

The following Monday the affirmative team will go to Corvallis to complete the dual with the Oregon Agricultural college, the first debate of which was won by the Willamette negative team Monday night by a decision of 3 to 0.

WASHINGTON COLUMNS SUSPENSION IS REMOVED

UNIVERSITY OF WASHINGTON, Seattle Wash., Mar. 1, 1926.—(P. I. P.)—Faculty permission to publish the March issue of the Columns, monthly campus publication, is virtually assured. George Guttormsen, president of the associated student association, was announced as the temporary editor. This follows the drastic action of the faculty committee on student publications, which late last week ordered suppression of the magazine, and the suspension from student activities for one year of the editor, Mark S. Sullivan, and Glenn Dexter, one of the contributors in the February issue.

BULLET MOLD TOSSED BY TRUSTEE

DANCING SWAIN IS DULY CHASTISED

About fifty years ago an interesting student attended Willamette university. He was eighteen years of age, handsome, and, supposedly, a dignified senior. His home was in Salem, and for three years he had attended classes with punctuality. But in the spring of his senior year, his strength weakened, and he fell in love with a demure, dainty little junior. From that time on, the senior, whose name was Percival Hastings, was late to classes, grew pale and thin, and was a sorry sight. The fair lady, Prudence Anderson, was distracting him. But even at that, a greater tragedy was to occur.

One evening Percival donned his high silk hat, put on his white silk gloves, and hastened to Prudence's home. It was a beautiful evening and Percival was feeling very happy. Perhaps that accounts for what happened.

It was really the organ's fault; and Prudence's mother was to blame, too. For no sooner had Percival seated himself on the horsehair sofa, than Mrs. Anderson, dressed in black alpaca, came into the parlor, and, seating herself at the organ, began to play a sweet waltz. And Percival looked at Prudence; their feet twitched; and soon they were dancing.

Now a trustee walked by the house, and saw the pair breaking the sacred traditions of Willamette. He ran to a nearby woodshed, grasped a bullet mold, and, dashing into the house, accosted Percival. The youth fled to the yard, with the trustee hard behind. Desperately, Percival climbed an apple tree which stood near. The trustee shouted, waving the bullet mold: "If you ever commit this crime again, I'll slow your pulse out!"

All night Percival sat in the tree, sadly looking at the stars. The bullet mold lay at the foot of the tree. Yes, Percival was expelled from school for his outrageous act; and the bullet mold lies at the foot of the old apple tree.

Carolyn Landreth and Grace White spent Sunday in Eugene.

Pasteboards for Glee Given Out This Afternoon

This afternoon, from 2 to 4 o'clock, at Graduate Manager Sparks's office in the gymnasium, students may obtain reserved seat tickets for parents living out of town, and for alumni. Each student may have three guests in reserved sections. This is the only time students may make reservations.

Townspeople who are not in direct touch with the University may secure reserved seats by telephone, or in person, on Thursday afternoon from 2 to 4 o'clock.

The reserving of seats will assist the ushers in accommodating the crowd. At present there are nearly 1700 tickets in circulation. Students, who find they cannot use the tickets secured, are asked to return them to the management so they may be issued elsewhere.

WOMAN FORENCISTS CARROL JUDGES VOTE

DECISION IS UNANIMOUS

Local Debaters Defeat Oregon Aggies in Opening Round of Duel

A Willamette women's debate team won a unanimous decision from Oregon Agricultural College in the first debate of the season which was held at Waller Hall oMnday evening.

The question for debate was stated: "Resolved, That a National Board of Censorship Should Be Established By Congress to Control the Release and Exhibition of All Motion Pictures."

Gretchen Hodge and Mabel Winston upheld the affirmative side for O. A. C., while Hazel Newhouse, three year debate veteran, and Irene Breithaupt, two year squad member, defended the negative.

In her constructive argument, Miss Hodge spoke of the influential part that motion pictures play in juvenile delinquency, stressing the idea that the present method of censorship is inefficient, useless, and detrimental to the general welfare.

Mrs. Winston emphasized the removal of offensive elements from motion pictures, and developed the issue that a federal board of censorship is a safe, sane, and sound method.

Miss Newhouse for Willamette showed that the public opinion was opposed to federal censorship and demonstrated that such control was contrary to the system of government.

Miss Breithaupt proved that the present methods are capable of maintaining the proper censorship standards.

Although the visiting speakers had a very effective speaking delivery, they lacked the authority and argument which characterized the presentation of the negative.

Dean Frances M. Richards was chairman of the debate. The judges were Cornelia Marvin, state librarian; Bernice Reihl from Oregon Normal School at Monmouth, and Dr. R. H. Vining, of Albany.

WESTERN INFLUENCE KEPT INDIA FROM CHRISTIANITY

Thomas Q. Harrison, Director of Youth League, Charges America With Slackness

India is about to accept Christ as no other nation has ever done, and would have done it sooner had it not been for western influence, said Thomas Q. Harrison, the director of the League of Youth for Peace, when he spoke to the students in chapel Friday. The purpose of Mr. Harrison in addressing college groups is that of awakening the student mind to the need for interest and attention in world affairs.

The speaker was introduced by President Pennington of Pacific College. Mr. Harrison, who is a graduate of Nebraska Wesleyan with graduate work at Harvard, has just returned from a world tour and study of world affairs. President Doney said of Mr. Harrison, "Something has happened to this man. He has had a vision."

A suggestion was made that these students particularly interested should continue to meet together for further discussions of world matters.

Ella Pfeiffer was honored at a birthday dinner given by Millicent King Wednesday evening, Feb. 23. A lovely tall basket of red carnations formed the centerpiece and colonial Georgo Washingtons marked the eight places. The other guests were Betty Rice, Jo Zimmerman, Georgia Parthanks, Beulah Wampler, Mildred DeBord and Ethel Hardie.

CHAMPIONSHIP GAMES MAY NOT BE PLAYED

Whitman Mentor Cites Coming Examinations and Strenuous Season as Reasons

W. U. WINS FROM PACIFIC

Local Victory Over Badgers, 26 to 23, Places Bearcats in Tie With Eight Wins

In an attempt to arrange a post season three-game series at Walla Walla, to determine the basketball championship of the northwest conference, Coach Roy S. Keene has been endeavoring the last couple of days to get Coach "Nig" Borleske of Whitman on the telephone. His efforts have been unsuccessful and it looks now as if the series will not be played.

A telegram from Whitman College day before yesterday stated that examinations for the Missionaries come week after next and after such a strenuous season, Coach Borleske did not favor another trip to Salem. He indicated, however, that he would not stand against a series of games at Walla Walla.

Under the agreement, all games between Willamette and Whitman were to be played at Salem this season, as they were at Walla Walla last year and will be again next year. Nevertheless, Keene is anxious to play a deciding game or series, and is endeavoring to make some arrangement to bring this about. If played, the series probably will be held this week-end.

Willamette went into a tie with Whitman for title honors when Pacific was defeated on the local floor last Friday, 26 to 23.

Invading the Willamette gym with a team built over since the last encounter, the Pacific Badgers put up a stellar, fighting game, and it was only after an uphill struggle throughout the second half and a spectacular rally in the last four minutes, that the Bearcats were able to win. Willamette led 12 to 10 at the half.

Though not especially rough, the game was replete with fouls, which Referee Ralph Coleman called closely with the result that two Willamette players went out on personals.

Litchfield and Ashby were the outstanding players on the floor, although Hartley, playing probably his last game under the cardinal and gold colors, put up an exceptional fight, and Ledbetter also played the best basketball of his career. It was one of the hard working back guard's infrequent breaks down the floor that he scored the points which tied the score after Willamette had been behind for most of the second half.

Miller, Kosoff and Dreezen, all new men on the Pacific team since Willamette's previous game at Forest Grove, proved to be remarkably fast men, and with Pollock and Coon of the old quintet, made a speedy combination which, if it had been together all season, would have finished with a better record.

This Willamette victory marked the third athletic triumph over Pacific, the Methodists' traditional rival, since the present scholastic year opened.

"What I Believe" Is on Taboo List At Washington U

English Department Professor Ousted When Parents Object to Discussions

University of Washington, Seattle, (PIP)—March 2—Permitting the class room use of "What I Believe," by Bertrand Russell, has placed H. J. Chambers, instructor in the English department, on probation following parental objection to religious discussion in freshman sections. Chambers will not be reappointed at the end of this quarter, it was announced. According to reports, conflict began when the instructor read the first chapter of Russell's book, launching a discussion on religious affairs that had an aftermath when parents of students protested to the administration.

LAW SCHOOL SENIORS BANQUET AT DALLAS

ORGANIZATION IS FORMED

Law School Alumni Association Comes Into Being; Peterson Is President

The senior law students of Willamette University held a banquet Feb. 21, at Dallas, Ore., the purpose of which was to form an alumni organization for the graduates of the Willamette School of Law.

This banquet was the first of its kind ever to be attempted, and only seniors were admitted to the gathering. George Rhoten acted as toastmaster, and every one present responded to toasts.

At the business meeting held after the banquet, Earnest Peterson was elected president and Clifford Moynihan was chosen for the office of secretary-treasurer. Before the meeting closed, a motion was made and passed that two more such banquets be held during the year, at one of which every member is to give a toast on some point touching legal ethics. It was resolved also that a re-union of the law students should be held every five years, but nothing definite was decided.

Hotel Gail, Dallas, where the banquet was staged, is owned and operated by Kenneth Thompson, a senior in the Willamette School of Law. The accommodations were very good. Transportation was furnished by the members of the class.

FOOTBALL CERTIFICATES AWARDED LAST MONDAY

Men Who Participated in Last Season's Major Sport Receive Student Awards Choice

Captain Keith Rhodes, Henry Hartley, Meredith Woodworth, Merle McMullen, Loren Mori, Lawrence Winslow, Clive Zeller, William Mumford, and Dale Waddill, were presented football certificates at the student body meeting last Monday morning during chapel period.

Nicholas Bican, Carnee Cranor, Theodore Lang, Harold McKenzie, John Verster, Willard and W. Jungblom received certificates, but will not get their sweaters until they have completed 24 semester hours of college work.

Ralph Ferguson, a sophomore, who made his first letter last year, and Garnee Flesher, manager, were the only men to receive sweaters.

GLEE FORCES GIRDING FOR BATTLE

* * * * * *

SUFFERING AMONG TROOPS IS GREAT

Through the darkness they came, brave intrepid souls with no thoughts of self but of victory, cost what it might.

Through the mud they came, staggering with fatigue, stumbling over the bodies of drowned worms, starving for mother's waffles, undaunted by the dreadful carnage.

On, on they pushed before the enemies barrage should again thin their lean ranks. Many a weary lad was dreaming, not of home and mother, but of a nice warm bed.

"A ruined chateau, sir," piped the orderly. Go up the stairs to the ball room for roll call. General's orders."

The men who trouped up the stairs and who assembled in that ancient hall were the bravest of the brave.Haggard, hollow-cheeked, with tightened belts and yawning mouths they awaited inspection.

"Weeks," barked the general.

No answer. Another comrade lost on the field of battle.

"Smith."

No answer. Another pal missing. Tears began to course down their worn faces.

"Look here," the general demanded. "I'm not going to command this army unless you fellows can avoid getting waylaid. I've got other things to do."

"But, general, consider," they pled. "The army of Freshmen so outnumber us that we haven't got a chance."

"Bah! Drummer boy, start up. We will be vanquished only by the senior forces," retorted the general. "Launch the canons, men. Polish up your swords of romance, and see that the moonlight is in good working order. Forward now."

The heavy crash of baritones, the sharp explosions of tenors, the shrill wail of sopranos, the dull moan of the altos—truly war is terrible.

Across the desolate wastes of hall came the ricocheting of enemy voices preparing for conflict.

The armies will meet, but who will win? That question will be answered at Freshman Glee next Saturday.

SALEM AND EUGENE "SEEDED" IN DRWING

Champion and Runner-up in Last Year's Tournament Take Opposite Brackets

REMOVE DISSATISFACTION

Secretary Cannon Says Willamette Will Retain Classis As Long as Well Handled

Medford high school has entered a protest against the bracketing of Salem and Eugene in the tournament, it became known today. No other protests have been received.

Salem and Eugene high schools, if they qualify as representatives of their respective districts in the state basketball tournament, will be "seeded" in the drawings for the tournament schedule, according to the latest announcement of Roy E. Cannon, secretary of the state high school athletic association.

These two powerful teams, which were ranked first and second last year, will be placed at the end of the brackets so that if either capture the championship, it will have to win four straight games and there will be no chance for drawing a bye. This eliminates any possibility for the dissatisfaction which has been manifested by several high schools in the state over the unusual success of one of the most powerful teams in the state, notably Salem High, in drawing a bye for the first round of the tournament so that it had to win only two games before entering the finals while the other successful quintet was garnering three games.

Other teams, in addition to Eugene and Salem, which are quite sure of coming to the tournament, are Tillamook, Baker and Medford.

Tillamook has defeated several teams by as large scores as Salem has. It will doubtless have one of the smoothest machines on the floor during the tourney.

Baker Probably to Come

Baker was a runner-up to Medford in the consolation tournament last year and always has a powerful team. Fans will doubtless remember the star negro guard who will be back again this year if his team comes to Salem.

Medford high school has practically cinched its fifth consecutive Southern Oregon championship and will come to Willamette with one of its usual strong teams. Last year the Red and Black won the consolation tournament after being put out by Grant in the first round.

Willamette Financially Able

"Those in charge of the tournament at Willamette University have assured the board of control of the Oregon High School athletic association that they are able financially and otherwise to handle the event, and it is the opinion of the board that as long as they are able to do this and can put it on successfully, they will be given charge of it," said Mr. Cannon last Saturday. "From the outlook now, we can truthfully say that it promises to be the most successful ever held. Additional seats have been erected and the plans definitely organized."

The state board of control, composed of Austin Landreth, president, Pendleton; W. J. Mishler, vice-president, Grants Pass, and Roy E. Cannon, secretary, will meet in the office of "Spec" Keene, physical director of Willamette University, at 5 o'clock on the evening of March 12, to discuss plans for a high school football championship.

Drawings Held March 10

The drawings for the basketball tournament this year will be made in Coach Keene's office at 11:45 on the morning of March 10, in the presence of a representative from every team entered. Each team may see how the pairing is carried out so that there can be absolutely no room for dissatisfaction.

Al French of Portland, who has been officiating at a number of games throughout the northwest, will alternate with Ralph Coleman as referee of the tournament games. The official who is not acting as referee will act in the capacity of umpire.

Forenoon games will begin at 9:30 and 10:30 a. m., afternoon games at 3 and 4 p. m., and evening games at 7:30 and 8:30 p. m.

Sale of season tickets for the tournament started yesterday in the office of graduate manager Sparks. Tickets may also be secured from Ken Brown's sporting goods store and Anderson's sporting goods store.

Mrs. A. Cox, Miss Dessie Cox and Miss Gladys Barclay drove to Olympia, Wash., Friday, where they spent the week-end as guests of Mrs. Cox' son, who is in the legislature there. Dorothy Ferrier accompanied them as far as Raymond, where she visited her parents Saturday and Sunday.

THE WINNER OF FIRST PLACE IS

"When all of life seems gladness
At just a sparrow's trill;
Or glimpse of maple blossoms
Our hearts with rapture thrill."

What person who has participated before in a freshman glee does not thrill at the prospect of Saturday's event? The Willamette student who has carolled an answer to the freshman challenge on a previous occasion remembers well the surge of joy, of affection for old Willamette, which sweeps over the entire undergraduate group. It is an evening of friendly inter-class rivalry, yet, more. It is an occasion of re-dedication to the university, of rebuilding unity within the classes and among them.

The Freshman glee is distinctively a Willamette feature for very few, if any, other colleges sponsor similar events. Yet, little is known concerning the particulars of the origin of the unique contest. It is said that "Brick" Harrison and "Jimmie" Oakes, members of that illustrious class of 1912, had much to do with its coming into being. Be that as it may, the glee dates with that class, which, having the inside "dope" on the affair, took honors three times consecutively. Some of the liveliest, most favored songs were turned out by this group, Percy Reigleman being one of the most able composers.

The event was stabilized and placed upon a more scientific basis with amendment of the constitution last year to provide for a freshman glee committee to supervise, and for coaches of music and words from the faculty to assist students in song composition. This suggests a danger that the glee might become stereotyped and lose some of the freshness and spontaniety which has characterized it before. This danger must be guarded against. Nothing should be permitted to destroy the fine competitive spirit which exists between the classes in this event.

Saturday night will mark the 19th consecutive time that Willamette undergraduates have engaged in this time-honored rivalry. The tradition has made Willamette known as a singing university. The glee clubs have added to the reputation by carrying the Willamette songs into almost every part of the northwest. The popularity of the glee as a traditional event is well attested to by the support it receives from the Salem people. Every year crowds are turned away.

Only one song can win Saturday night, but the minute Professor Matthews announces, in his inimitable way, the winner, congratulations will burst from every other class. The final result of having added four new songs to the increasing Willamette repetoire, will be consolation for the losers.

JUSTICE IS METED OUT

The honor spirit is not dead, insists the Los Angeles branch, University of California BRUIN, pointing out that justice is meted out to violators of the code in two ways. The first is that the cheater carries a conscience-laden mind with him forever after his departure from "playing the game."

No laughing nonchalant air will overcome this burden. It is the heaviest burden that anyone ever has to carry.

The second is that, regardless of what is said, the mark in a course is not the big thing. What you actually register in your mind as a result of a certain course is your reward, large or small. Cheating produces marks, sometimes, but little else.

It is better to fail a course honestly than to pass one by cheating, concludes the BRUIN.

If the enthusiasm and determination of the twelve men now on the campus who were at Seabeck last year is any indication of future possibilities, Willamette will be well represented at the annual Y. M. C. A. conference to be held there this spring.

Last year over 200 men from fifteen or sixteen different northwest colleges and universities spent the ten days of the conference together discussing world problems, campus issues, and individual difficulties and relationships. They had the privilege of hearing and meeting such men and women as Dr. Dubach and E. W. Warrington of O. A. C., Gale Seamen, President Coleman of Reed College, Dean Brooks of Pomona College, Mrs. Landes, mayor of Seattle, "Mother" MacAbee, noted Salvation Army worker, and several prominent authorities from the east. Assurance is made of an equally high standard of leadership this year.

Willamette has a particular interest and pride in the Seabeck conference this year as she is one of the few schools having representation on the Northwest Field Council, which is preparing the program. James McClintock is this representative.

An educational campaign is to be started soon to acquaint Willamette students with the whole idea and organization of the Seabeck "spirit."

A Beethoven revival is being held in the music world this year to re-awaken people to the wonders of this composer's work. All concert pianists, symphony orchestras, and musicians in general are featuring Beethoven numbers on their programs. The fact that this music is being so successfully revived a century after the composer's death is a great tribute to the work.

Beethoven, like many musicians, was born of poor parents. By nature, he was erratic and emotional, and completely lost in his work.

His pianistic ability was pronounced, but it is for his compositions that he is most noted. That a man with such an inconstant nature could rise to the place he did, is remarkable.

In spite of a bad temper, an uncontrolled love for the beautiful, and deafness, he wrote the greatest library of music the world has ever known from one composer.

We, today, can admire Beethoven most for a pioneer spirit which brought life into music. He lived at a time when strictly written, carefully ruled music was at its best. Unusual harmonies were dangerous and out of place, according to the best authorities. Beethoven moved away from the school and leaped into an entirely new form of musical writing, which like all new things, was labeled as libel.

In spite of all reverses and setbacks, however, he moved straight from his conception of true harmony and emerged with a practical theory of harmonization which has inspired and made possible unaccountable numbers of compositions since.

CONTEMPORARY VIEWPOINTS

OAC BAROMETER

The world is full of paradoxes not the least of which is the outstanding example embodied in the general intolerance toward liberalism and attempt to curtail the right of each and every American to think for himself.

A group of Anglo-Saxons got all hopped up about 400 years ago and migrated in a body from Merrie England because they could not think as they wished. After various trials and tribulations these advocates of mental freedom disembarked in the new world.

With naive innocence they proceeded to set up a flock of restrictions and taboos that were practically as bad as anything ever perpetrated in the name of the king. Among other things they hit upon the novel idea of burning at the stake certain ones they designated as witches—in the good old name of freedom.

Citizens of today pride themselves on the vast progress they have made since the days of Salem witch burning. Freedom, tolerance and equity abound throughout the land proclaims the vast unthinking majority—yes, they abound, like so much banana oil.

At the University of Washington an instructor is dropped, ostensibly because of a technical matter, but some very peculiar circumstances surround the affair. For instance the instructor called the attention of his class to a volume on liberal thought entitled "What I Believe," by Bertrand Russell. The luckless instructor even went so far as to deliberately read to his class this insidious volume.

Some of the students, as students will, reported to their parents that "their beliefs were being assailed." One would think they would have the moral stamina to uphold their own beliefs or at least be mature enough to judge what was best. Unfortunate, indeed, is he who in the battle for life is unable to decide on which side to cast his lot—especially after reaching a man's estate.

Anyway the parents, as parents will, protested to the administration concerning the deplorable state of affairs this English instructor was bringing about. Now there is an English teacher looking for a job. Wisconsin will probably get him eventually. A great number of students will now eagerly peruse "What I believe." Students who would formerly have given the book no thought. Whether the book is good or bad is beside the question. The outstanding fact is that the attitude of the administration has so advertised the book that practically every student will bend heaven and earth to get an opportunity to read it.

"Hell Week" is over. Candidates for fraternity membership have engaged in the customary "can" hunts, solicited various townspeople for information regarding cats, appeared in public spectacles, undergone physical torture in varying degrees and are now in the course of a style week. Transformed from common "plebes" into first class fraternity men.

Enlightened campus opinion throughout the United States is that fraternity initiations, as they are now handled, are survivals of antiquated customs, and that they have no place in modern society. It is doubtful if Willamette fraternities have made any changes in their methods since they were organized. It should be evident that torture of candidates will not make them better fraternity timbre.

WIND IN THE NIGHT

Restless vagrant, teasing wind!
You come as a lover and wrinkle my hair.
The boughs of the cherry tree sway at your will,
And clouds ride over the moon!
The shades lie deep on the lawn and there
My roses have richled their petals in fear
Killarney roses with petals of wax!
They do not like your caresses

Sometimes you fling me a breath of their perfume,
Tempt me to follow you into the night!
Where would you lead me, O wind-in-the-night,
O roving wind-in-the-night?

THE FOUR WINDS

The four winds are moaning and moaning;
The four winds they sigh and they sigh.
"Oh sister, how lovely you are!
Your mouth is like honey, like bitter wild honey;
Your eyes are sad dreams,
They are lost in the mists.
Your golden brown body sighs as it goes."
"Oh sister, how lovely you are!
Green ice are your eyes;
White ice are your arms;
And ice of the north are your lips.
Death is your gaze
Death is your breath
Death, pallid death, is your touch."
The four winds are moaning and moaning;
The four winds they sigh and they sigh.

CAN ANY ONE TELL?

Can any one tell why over the lea
The shadows are chased by the sun?
Why spring flowers bloom
And birds sing in glee
As soon is the winter is done?

Can any one tell why the Artist Supreme
On the mist paints His glorious bow?
Why he covers brown fields
And wandering streams
With the loveliest mantle of snow?

Can any one tell why dawn follows night,
Why morn drives the darkness away?
Why glimmering stars
And the pale moon's cold light
Depart with the coming of day?

Can any one tell why joy follows grief,
Why smiles shine through tears that we shed?
Why brightest hopes and firmest beliefs
Grow out of the graves of our dead?
Can any one tell?
We rest in God's love.
It is better to trust than to doubt
When it's dark in the valley
There is sunshine above.
God leads toward the heights.
Let us go!

Reflections and Refractions

The other day the Collegian Board —(Oh, you hadn't heard of the Collegian Board? Well, it consists of Victor Carlson, grim silent son of Scandinavia, as controlling genius . . . . . And Adelia Gates, that monument of perspicacity . . . . . And Ella Pfeiffer, who, scissors in hand, pores over the society columns of the Statesman and Capital Journal . . . . And Reflections and Refractions himself.) As I said, the Collegian Board decided that the salvation of the paper lies in better humor . . . . So it was decided that the textbook henceforth in the newswriting class will be Whitbang, supplemented by outside reading in Judge, College Humor and Sips for Supper.

******

Professor Richards has indicated that, thanks to the increased seating capacity, the class may be accommodated in the gymnasium.

******

Today's suicide in Willamette University was Adolph McSpinach, prominent member of the freshman class. His suicide is attributed to the fact that for the first time in his college life he thoroughly prepared a French lesson for Miss Benise, and then drew a bye in the daily card shuffle.

******

MR. McSPINACH FIRST ACHIEVED PROMINENCE IN THE FRESHMAN CLASS DURING THE SAVAGE FRESHMAN-SOPHOMORE CLASS FRAY LAST FALL IN BUSH'S PASTURE. IT IS AUTHENTICALLY KNOWN THAT MR. McSPINACH WAS THE ONLY FRESHMAN WHO HAD COURAGE TO BREATHE DURING THE 35 MINUTES THAT THE SOPHOMORES WERE IN THE VICINITY OF THE FRESHMAN RETREAT.

******

Mr. McSpinach's next claim to fame was his introduction of a highly reinforced Bee Vee Dee for the use of Freshmen assuming the angle at the invitation of the Vigilance committee.

The Lamplighter

GOOD old Leerie, the lamplighter, worked cheerfully to make the streets bright. And the lamps sputtered a friendly glow into the darkness.

The citizens of the country have taken Leerie's job. They are the lamplighters of today, and they spend 3½ cents of each tax dollar that their streets may be bright.

Good street lighting means more flourishing business sections, safe traffic, convenience, and protection.

Leerie, the faithful, has gone—but streets still need lighting. And in whatever communities college men and women elect to live, they should take a lively interest in civic improvements—including street lighting.

G-E products help light the world, haul its people and goods, turn the wheels of industry, and lessen labor in the home. Whether on MAZDA lamps, or on large or tiny motors, or on the multitude of other means of electrical service, you will find the G-E monogram wherever you go

American Promise Same "Old Stuff" Say the Chinese

How Can China Get Up When Foreigners Sit on Her, Query Students

(Edito's note: This is the first of three articles prepared for the New Student Intercollegiate News Service by a group of Chinese students. The other two articles will appear in later editions of the Collegian.)

"The same old promises"—this in brief is the Chinese students' reaction to the recent Coolidge-Kellogg statement of policy toward the Far East, in which America voiced its willingness to revise the unequal treaties as soon as China could agree upon representatives. It was pointed out that America had no concessions in China; but that a small naval force was being dispatched solely to protect American lives and property.

Chinese students are anxious to have Americans realize that the "unequal treaties" were forced on China at the point of the gun. With the modernization of Chinese law code and practices and with the improvement of the tariff practices has passed whatever excuses there may have been for this invasion of China's rights as a sovereign power. While European powers have been chiefly guilty in waging the wars by which these treaties were originally forced on China, the policy of "opportunism" has resulted in America's securing the same privileges accorded other foreign nations.

That the foreign governments which have demanded a "representative government" in China as a prerequisite to the abrogation of the "unequal treaties" are in the position of a man who throws another to the ground, sits on him and then says "if you will only get up I won't sit on you" is the universal opinion of Chinese students in this country. American students perhaps do not realize that no strong central government is possible in China until the Chinese are able, through the absolute control of their own tariff, to raise the funds necessary to support such a government.

The British policy, promising immediate, and if no general body representing China can be formed, unilateral action toward the abrogation of the unpopular treaties, is regarded as a step in advance of the American policy. London, Chinese students point out, is having no difficulty in finding a solution to the problem which Washington finds baffling, the problem of finding representatives with whom to deal.

The dispatch of large armed forces to China is something which Chinese students consider a puzzling contradition to the proclamations of friendship and good intentions announced on both sides of the Atlantic. These squadrons have been dispatched to "protect foreigners" in China; Chinese students believe that this policy is based on a misunderstanding of the situation. There is, they assure American students, no anti-foreign movement in China; there is, however, a strong anti-imperialistic movement. Foreigners are safe, are welcome; foreign armadas are unwelcome and they will only aggravate the situation. These naval forces are likely to be popularly interpreted as signs of renewed imperialism; and will do far more harm than good to those whom they seek to protect—such is the Chinese viewpoint.

To the Editor:

The existence of any student organization depends upon the students themselves. The student's attitude determines the growth, and success of any co-operative group functioning on the campus. Indifference and lack of interest are more destructive than active resistance. Four years of college life have put a question mark for me upon the value of the Willamette Young Men's Christian Association to the campus. The fact that the students of the university invest from three hundred to three hundred and fifty dollars in our organization demands an accounting of our work.

It is perfectly obvious that the Cabinet of the Y. M. C. A., or any representative group of our organization cannot see or feel all of the needs of the men of the University. Many college men have had the idea that the Y is trying to feed them a religious "pill" which will cure their spiritual sickness. Many have falsely represented our organization as one that is trying to play the part of the missionary to the heathen. We neither do nor aim to do either of these two things. Christian co-operation does not imply spiritual egotism on the part of those men entering into such fellowship. We want to be of service in introducing men to a closer walk with Jesus Christ; we should like to be an agency in promoting better relationships among the men of the Campus; we are desirous of making available the best information concerning the great moral and political questions of the twentieth century. We should like to make it plain that in our Christian professions, we speak not as though we had already attained, but as men who are trying to follow Christ.

What can we do to help the men of the Willamette Campus? Do you care to co-operate with us in discovering Jesus' way of life? Are you willing to sacrifice some of your time in discovering approaches to the personal problems of life? Do you want to assist in the meetings of the campus Y, and have you any suggestions for their improvement?

Speaking again in the first person, I should like to say that I am not discouraged because of the seeming lack of interest on the part of the men students. I believe that there are a large number of men on the campus who are vitally interested in Jesus Christ, and in His answer to the problems of life. I am not seeking for some loophole of escape from the position that I am now trying to fill. I do not wish to paint a pessimistic picture of the Christian work of any Christian Association. However, there are certain things that should be done, and a small group of men can do little in their accomplishment.

We need your help; we want your co-operation; we desire your suggestions, and criticisms. As a sectarian college, we are charged by the very nature of our institution to promote and foster the very best in life. We owe it to the men who support us to develop the highest type of Christian leadership. But more than all, we owe it to Christ, to our fellow men, and to ourselves to work together in Christian fellowship. Without apology I ask you as Christian men to assume your part in the spiritual upbuilding of Willamette University.—Jim McClintock.

SPRING FOOTBALL SET FOR MARCH 14-APRIL 2

About 30 Men Expected to Turn Out For Fundamentals Drill; Game To Be Played on Final Day

The period of spring football practice has been set for March 14 to April 2, according to Coach "Spec" Keene. The practice will culminate in a game between two teams picked from the candidates.

A squad of 30 or more men is expected to turn out, and this opportunity for spring practice is counted on to result in a smoother working offense next fall, as the Bearcats had no opportunity to learn Keene's system last spring and were forced to spend a corresponding amount of time on fundamentals in the fall.

Denver Student Given Flogging By Masked Group

Attempt by Thinker's Club Leader to Sponsor Debate Brings on Attack

Ralph Batchelet, a student of the University of Denver, was kidnaped and flogged into unconsciousness by five masked men for helping, as vice-president of the Thinker's Club, to organize a debate on marriage between a clergyman and Judge Ben Lindsey. On the following day he was kidnaped again from the hospital, and last reports did not locate him. Miss Lillian Snyder, his fiance, who was with him when he was seized by the masked band and dragged into an automobile, was reported prostrated with worry and shock; Miss Margaret Parlow, secretary of the club and Morris Grupp, its president, are carrying revolvers, since they have been threatened as well as the judge.

"The Noose," which will be presented at The Elsinore, has been thrilling New York audiences, from all accounts and will without a doubt be enjoyed here by all who love a strong stirring play, written by one of the best of American dramatists. Willard Mack, who wrote it, is credited with more successes than any author of plays at present living in this country. In this play he has achieved more success than he did in "The Dove," "The Tiger Rose" or any of his more recent works. It is a play in which most of the leading characters are of the underworld. The action moves quickly. The audience is held spellbound at times, so intense are the scenes. The story was taken from one that appeared in a magazine and retold in a masterly manner. Mr. Mack resorts to the mechanism of the movies to explain what is told in the first act, he moves the action back. From all accounts "The Noose" is a gripping, powerful story that will be relished by all who enjoy a real red-blooded story capitally well told. Next Wednesday at The Elsinore.
