INTERNATIONAL CLUB WILL SELECT HOUSE

A house for the International club members for next year had been tentatively selected by the committee in charge by Tuesday and before the school year is ended it is expected that a final selection will have been made, Bill Hall and Prof. Herman Clark, adviser, announced.

Bill Hall reports also that real enthusiasm is shown by members of the club in an international house for the Willamette campus. The club will not be able to buy a house for at least a year so the house for next year will be rented. It is planned to rent a house that would accommodate 15 persons. Susan Hall will be manager.

It is reported that the Willamette house will be the fourth active organization now in existence in the United States. The other three were gifts to the schools and were built for students at the University of California, Chicago University and Columbia university. Club members have sufficient financial backing especially by the foreign organizations in the state to make a house possible.

Dr. Carl G. Doney appointed a committee from the board of trustees composed of the Hon. E. T. Barnes, Paul Wallace and R. A. Booth. This committee together with Prof. Clark, Bill Hall, Susan Hall, Roderick Chang and Mariano Rodriguez met with seven realtors of Salem to pick the house.

Alumni Banquet Plans Completed Many Will Come

Business Meeting of Association of Graduates to Be Held Saturday

Plans for the entertainment of visiting alumni who will return to the campus for Commencement have been completed, according to the Alumni secretary, Lestie Sparks. The annual alumni business meeting will be held at 4:00, June 13, in Waller Hall. At 5:30 of the same day the alumni banquet will be held at the First M. E. church. Sixty-two reservations had been made by Monday for the banquet.

The banquet program will include an invocation, a speech of welcome to the class, response by class president Clarence Emmons, an in memoriam address. The song, "Farewell Willamette" will be sung, probably by Harold Jory, '15, who sang it for the first time.

Among those who will attend the banquet are Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Van Dyke, parents of Frank Van Dyke of this year's class. Mr. Van Dyke, who is an attorney in Medford, received his LL.B. from Willamette in 1891.

The banquet will, as is customary, honor the classes of fifty and twenty-five years ago, while the classes which graduated five, ten and twenty years ago will hold reunions.

The Wallulah this year has distinguished itself by many new features. For the first time the pictures of the officers of the senior class appear in caps and gowns. In addition to this there are special humorous features as well as poetry selections written by students. The art work this year was done by a Willamette student, Earl Henry. The cover is blue-green, and a picture of Enlon is done in gold on the front. The pages are pale green.

Campus Litterae

The following material was submitted by the members of the Sunset Philosophy Club:

A Freshman's Philosophy: Is this not richest life—to struggle on. Laugh at defeat and thrill with victory.

Years for the goals the gods but look upon, Yet not forget that life is but "to be?"

Does hope of heaven direct our earthly life? What then, if after years through which we slave,

And tread the paths of righteousness and strife, We find that naught awaits us but the grave?

But if there be a heaven to welcome saints, Then we are fitted for it with the best.

For lives of kindness lived without restraint, Surpass the life whose aim is to be blest.

The Challenge of a Pine: On crest of yonder barren climb Stands alighted, clear, sublime, A lonesome pine.

The faithful guard of many a year, Whose wind-swept branches, rough with wear, A story bear.

Of fights with blizzards—many a fray; Of winds that tore it half away From out its clay.

An inspiration is that tree— A challenge made to you and me To steadfast be.

The Way to Love: Were love to be a lonely way That only fools would dare to roam,

And flowered not the sun of day To light me to my sweetheart's home—

I'd say a prayer upon the start To make my peace and then I'd go Upon that way with craven heart,

But courage only love can show. And when I'd finished I would lay My head upon that dear one's breast,

And there'd be naught for me to say Or do—but breathe my love—and rest.

Ham (Om)lette: To think, or not to think, that is the question, Whether 'tis nobler for the brain to suffer

The aches and pains of despicable study Or to take up arms against a sea of books,

And by opposing to flunk all exams! To read—to think No more, and to refuse to think, to say we end the thousand meditative thoughts

That the brain is heir to—is a consummation Devoutly to be wished. To doze—to sleep—

To sleep! Perchance to dream; ay, there's the rub; For in that troubled sleep so short, who knows what thoughts may come.

For when we have finished this work of nerve wracking study, A rest must come.

An Extract From Titan: I rounded a bend in the trail, There, coming slowly toward me, rode a man who was fit company for giants.

Surrounded by the glow of the sun's last rays, he loomed up huge and dark, like a figure of destiny.

He bestrode a horse of heroic proportions; glossy-black, jetty-manned, as he drew near, I perceived that he was reading. His head—huge, flecked with silver, sat solidly upon a pair of Atlas-like shoulders.

His arms, like small trees, filled to the bursting point the sleeves of his jacket; buckskin leggings and moccasins covered his legs and feet.

The countenance of this traveler was in keeping with his size. Formed upon a sturdy mold his brow was wide, high, and curiously white, where the sun had been diverted by his hat, which now hung upon the saddle pommel.

The nose, strong, Roman, was flanked by hazel eyes—keen, wrinkled at the corners by the glare of the sun. The strength of the square, cleft chin was modulated by a mouth of strength and marvelous sweetness.

Rough-been, beaten by time and storm, yet the face was one to inspire respect in an enemy, and trust in a child.

—John Rudin.

The Whispering Campaign

When Two Women Get Together

(Dedicated to Professor Johnson)

Examinations came around, I didn't know a thing, I thought I'd flunk in chemistry, And therein lay the sting, I took some H2 SO4.

With glee I tossed it off, I did so well in my exam That now I teach the prof!

The retiring president of the freshman class has been inspired by the lovely spring weather. The following selection is a result of his efforts:

The sweet little daffodils With their caps so yellow Sit in the sun While the robins bellow.

That little Child boy has also been affected by the sunlight and moonshine. This is his donation:

The fish eat all night When the moon shines bright So in the day You can't catch them.

He calls it poetry—but we call it Child's play. The above selections are intended for the Campus Litterae column.

Charles Gianoli: "Make a sentence using the words kith and kin." Any freshman girl: "If you should atk to kith me, I should thank you kin."

At last we know why Prof. Jones travels for advertising purposes. He's from California.

Have you noticed the group of little trees east of Eaton, planted very close together? We bet Dean Clark planted 'em that way so he wouldn't have to carry water so far.

We call Dr. Schulze history, because he repeats himself.

When the public speaking awards were presented, two most worthy students were overlooked. Who was ever more entitled to a Bar-W than Darlow Johnson for his under-cover loquacity in any class? Then there was Paul Ellis who took the northwest championship for endurance talking in the reading of amendments for the A.S.W.U. Constitution, and received not the slightest reward.

First Mud-Slinger (in Bible class): "My foot's asleep." Second Mud-Slinger (wakes up long enough to answer): "Well, who wouldn't be?"

John Rudin: "Whatcha doin', Ted?" Ted Parker: "Writing a theme." J. Rudin: "When was it due?" Auf welderschen till next year. —The Mud-Slingers.

College Humor?

Cheer up! This is the last time we will ever be able to see you suffer. Also we hope it's the last time we will see a certain couple of freshmen romping around on Poppa Wampler's shiny bald head.

As a sweet parting gift to the columnists someone left a pair of shoes in the waste paper basket. Tears came to our eyes when we became aware of the tender expression of appreciation. Such feeling! Homely, we were practically overcome.

The last night in the Collegian office is running true to form. Everybody working hard. Yeah. "How many more exams ya got?"

"Two. And will I be glad when they're over?" "I have Greek tomorrow."

"Gee, that's awful stuff, isn't it?" "I think it's lots easier than Latin."

"Well," says Maxine, "it'd have to be if I took it."

"It would have to be easier than English if I took it," chirps Gee-gee, the you know what.

"Hey," yells somebody who is trying to phone. "Can you guys keep still for a minute?"

"Have you read the new sorority rushing rules? Nobody on earth could figure them out."

"I think they should go back to the old, old way."

"I think they should rope off the rushes at one end of a field and us at the other ad then blow a whistle."

"Hey, is 'hurricane' spelled with an 'h' or an 'a'?" "Gimme that style sheet, will you?"

"Who swiped the light globe?" And so the paper comes out, a few hours late, but out, anyhow.

We really wonder how we ever passed a single test after all the junk we ate and all the roofs we raised on the frat picnics.

If you want to hear something good, ask Gillette about her horseback ride.

And if you want to see something good—! Se-a-gu-lis!

Here is the prize joke of the year—and it really happened, too. Virginia and Weenie were out walking one bright moonlight night. The gurgling of the creek and the moon was too much for Weenie.

Clasping Virginia's hand he said dreamily, "Let's sit out here on the bridge for awhile."

"Shucks," returned Virginia, practically, "I've been married too long for anything like that. Let's go in the house where it's warm."

Famous last words: "Lay off my sunburn!" Goodbye Seniors. We'll miss you. To the rest of you: Rest in peace until next fall.

Music Students Present Offering Brilliance and Variety Spring Piano Recitals

Under the training of Miss Frances Virginia Melton the piano department of Willamette's school of music has presented a series of ten recitals, remarkable in their brilliance and variety. The opening program of the season was given by Miss Edith Findley, assisted by Iva Clare Love, violinist. Miss Findley's program was composed of MacDowell numbers, Her Sea Pieces and Marionettes were especially appreciated. April 6 was the date of Elizabeth Boylan's recital. She was the only freshman to present an individual recital. Miss Boylan was assisted by Miss Jeanette Scott, violinist, who is also a freshman this year. On April 13 Miss Melton and Miss Helen MacHilton presented a general recital which was very interesting. The sophomore recital of the Misses Frances Laws and Elizabeth Clement was presented. Miss Laws has a very brilliant technique, while Miss Clement distinguished herself by her singing tone.

The sophomore recital of Miss Marjory O'dell and of the Misses Barbara Barham, Faith Sherrburne and Ruth Schreiber, freshmen, was given April 25. This recital was given by candlelight. As a part of Salem's observance of National Music Week, an ensemble program, consisting mostly of two-piece numbers, was given. The Treble Clef club's group of songs was a distinguishing feature of the program. Miss Charlotte Hill, Miss Melton's youngest pianist, gave a very nice concert May 11. She was assisted by Miss Maybelle Lillburn, violinist. Both these young artists are but 11 years old.

Although Miss Rosalind Van Winkle is not graduating in music, she gave a senior recital, May 18. Miss Van Winkle's playing received high comment. Perhaps the most brilliant recital of the whole season was that of Miss Helen Price, graduate student, who has been devoted ing her time this year to study with Miss Melton. Miss Price has a rather marvelous technique, and the assurance which much practice gives. Her modern numbers, "The White Peacock" and "Nightfall" by the unusual composer, Griffes, were enjoyed especially. The final concert of the season was given by Miss Melton's senior scholar, Miss Doris Corbin. "The Lines" was a piece such as one remembers for a whole season.

These recitals have been very enjoyable. Miss Melton's pupils show a high degree of training, accomplishment and good stage presence, and mark the finish of a successful year in the music school.

So sang the poet years ago. Just why he had to say it in Latin had always been a mystery to us until today. Today we write our first editorial, edit our first edition of the Collegian; to say "Hail, brother, and farewell," would seem a bit flippant. Then with the poet we shall say it in Latin, a language which truly expresses its significance.

To bid the student body "Hello" in the same breath with which we say "Farewell" to the seniors is no light task. With the seniors we would look back over the past year which has been so splendidly summed up in the last chapel services of the semester. A completed endowment fund drive, the ringing of the Victory Bell on many occasions, the times when it could not be rung, social affairs, springtime at Willamette, chapel speakers, Homecoming, Freshman Glee, May Day and now Commencement.

How rapidly time flies. Just yesterday members of the class of '31 were proudly and perhaps a little sadly filling the chapel seats left vacant by the departing class of '30, and now they, too, have gone. And if their eyes were dimmed by a few tears as they marched slowly from chapel leaving behind them forever their undergraduate days, who among us cannot surmise what they were thinking? But Monday, ah, Monday, although the hurt will not be gone there will be a new feeling of exultation in their hearts as each proudly tosses the tassel to the other side of his mortarboard and, clutching his diploma, faces the world free and alone, ready to enter into new experiences and new adventures.

They have proved their mettle, what we can say of their abilities can little help or hinder them. It is to those of us remaining that the challenge comes. Responsibilities are cast upon less experienced shoulders; new opportunities lie open before us, and the next year has as much to offer as the one we are completing.

Then, here's to the class of '31 and the school year 1931-32!

COMPETITION FOR YOUNG LINDBERGH

The "world's most interesting baby" may well look to his laurels. Carol Kingsley Flesher, infant daughter of a former Bearcat athlete and a former Collegian editor, promises to outshine him in popularity on this campus at least. Not without charms herself, this blue-eyed black-haired baby has a double portion of friends although she is but one week old.

In fact, among her many fine birthrights the heritage of friendships is probably the greatest. For seldom has a baby come into a world so thickly populated with the friends of her parents as little Carol will find this world of school and university. With this heritage must come the jollity and humor of both parents; their interest in worthwhile art, books and people; physical development and skill; and the sincere appreciation of the friends such qualities inevitably attract.

And so it is with great interest that Willamette will watch Carol Flesher win for herself the many friends who are part of her birthright.

The freshmen (or should they now be termed "sophomores") have a new ideal: To make the campus '34 conscious, Dean Clark and certain other people of importance will agree with the Collegian staff that if said class leaves the odoriferous remains of their party beneath the window of the editor's office much longer not only the campus but the entire population of Salem will be '34 conscious or altogether unconscious.

Without giving any reasons for his action, Thomas A. Edison has announced he will discontinue his annual brightest boy tests by which he has for the past two years selected a youth to send through college.

It is barely possible that Mr. Edison believes that he has not yet discovered the brightest boy. However, it is too bad that such a fine incentive as these tests seemed to be should have been lost without longer trial. There are few enough rewards and encouragements for the youth who is majoring in brains.

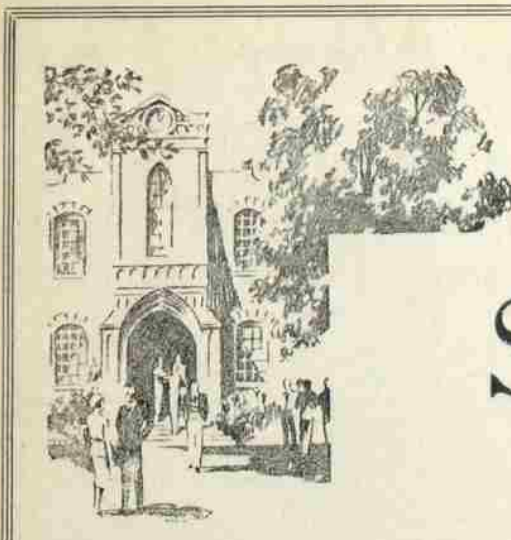

After Voltaire, who wanted to set the whole world right, came the French revolution. After Tolstoid, another with the same ambition, there was a Russian revolution. It makes me wonder what will happen after Shaw dies—Gordon Craig.

Well, well, Mr. Craig, perhaps we will have a rest. Enthusiasm is not an artist's state of mind.—Paul Valery.

To hear Spec Keene in his most dour moments one might well believe us all artists.

Sophomores Are Archery Champs With 624 Points The sophomores, with 624 points to their credit, won the women's interclass archery tournament by a wide margin. The freshmen came second with 505 points. The seniors scored 415, while the juniors made 400 points. Brenda Savage in the second round of the tournament made a perfect score. She shot six bull's eyes with as many arrows. Miss Savage also scored the highest average—46 4-5.

Lestie J. Sparks and Don Faber expect to attend summer school at Stanford.

How Can that Trunk or Other Piece of Baggage be Sent Home with the Least Trouble?

The solution is a simple one—by Railway Express.

Here is why it is so convenient and efficient: Because it includes Call and Delivery service in all cities and towns and in the districts where vehicle service is maintained. One reliable company renders the entire service—Door to Door in most cases. The charge for through service by express compares favorably with cost of transportation by other service. Charges may be prepaid or trunk may be sent with charges to collect when delivered.

Prospects Bright for Football Championship Next Fall

Jinx Beats Team Last Year But Veterans Will Return to Boost Gridiron Chances

Spec Keene developed a good eleven mechanically in 1930, but the team did not seem to work together. Its performance throughout the early part of the season was unimpressive, brightened only by occasional offensive spurts, and the team came up against Whitman, overconfident, and backed by a cocky student-body. Whitman came on the field fighting mad, and proceeded to give the Bearcats a good trouncing.

The Whitman backs and linemen gave the ball carriers splendid interference, and Gugenbick, the gigantic Missionary tackle plowed through the line on defense like a wild elephant. When Fred Paul went in at quarter, the Bearcats settled down a bit and might have scored a touchdown if the time had been longer but the Missionary jinx was not to be dethroned.

The team was at its lowest point in the Whitman game, and came back in a thrilling rally against Pacific, smothering the Badger's touted running attack, and crossing the Pacific goal line for touchdown after touchdown. Where only Jones and Erickson had starred in the Whitman game, the whole line now clicked as one man and the backs ran and plunged and passed like wild bulls. Partly as a result of this game, Erickson and Ackerman received honorable mention on the All-coast eleven, and ultimately on one of the All-American selections.

In the opening games Willamette took drubbings from the Schissler-coached Beavers of Oregon State, and the Webfest of Oregon. Willamette was simply overpowered by Oregon State's powerful outfit and could not stop the running combinations of Watts and Kitzmiller in the Oregon game. The Bearcats then travelled to Caldwell and came from behind in the fourth period to score three touchdowns within a few minutes and win.

In the Homecoming game the Bearcats appeared slow, and the team's offense was ragged. This was the most uninteresting game of the season. In the next game, with Linfield on an avalanche of touchdowns, but after this first quarter spurt reverted to the defensive and the final score was only 44 to 0.

Willamette Had Good Team

Willamette had, despite its loss to Whitman, potentially the best team in the conference, and prospects for next year are very bright with most of the regulars returning, and a good crop of new material coming up. Chances for a championship will be enhanced by the entrance of several classy football men in next year's freshman class, and the development of good men from last year's reserves.

Willamette may have a first class team next year but strong reserves must appear or chances for championship will be small, as modern football demands not only a first-class line-up but also a good backfield in reserve and three sets of linemen. The problem "Spec" faces next fall, is that of building up the scrubs to variety calibre.

Among the men who played well last year and are expected to star next year are Welleser, Jones, Carpenter, Kelsor, Johnson, Ferguson, Erickson, Paul, Gribble, and Gretsck. Other men showed a lot of possibility last year, including Gerry Carpenter, Drager, and Crawford.

Keith Jones Is Captain

Keith Jones will be captain and is one of the best linemen in the Northwest. He is big, fast, and aggressive and always fighting. He played a wonderful game against Whitman despite an injured shoulder and is expected to be even better next year.

Welleser had to work five hours a day last year, and was in no condition to play football, but his size and build indicate that if he is able to give his whole time to football, he will make a prime tackle or fullback. "Spec" Keene expects Welleser to star next year.

Walt Erickson received honorable mention on both the All-Coast team, and Warner's All-American. Erickson is a splendid half-back, fast, lithe, hard to hit, hard to keep down, and a beautiful tackler himself. His work in the backfield in the Whitman game was superior to any in the field.

Johnson, Ferguson, and Gretsck are outstanding backfield men from last year who will be back on the gridiron next fall. Gribble, who played a good game last season, will be back at either end or half. He is a good player at either position, but will probably star in the backfield. Fred Paul is a fighter and will probably land the job of quarterback next fall in Chuck DePoe's place. "Weenie" Kelsor is another man with lot of possibility in either backfield or

Sportorials

Hello everybody. There wasn't much news this week, and even that has been dead quite a while, so the staff has decided to dig into the past and cast an enquiring eye into the future. In other words we present a review of last year and forecast for next year.

In order to keep off the Wallah's toes, our articles will concern themselves mostly with the players. If there is some repetition, we humbly ask pardon.

This sheet might be useful for reference.

Willamette has completed a highly successful year in sports. As we run over in our minds fifty odd contests Bearcat teams have fought, it seems to us that the highlight of each of the major sport seasons came in the last game. This is encouraging as almost the same teams will take the field for Willamette in 1931-1932.

Whitman certainly did her part with the age-old jinx, by winning one game in each sport from the Bearcats. By excellent line play and good interference, the Missionary football team won the annual classic, 12 to 0. Willamette couldn't get another whack at Walla Walla, but took it all out on Pacific the next Saturday, mercilessly trimming the Badgers 33 to 6, and incidentally showing some good football.

Both Willamette and Whitman came through to the title conflict in basketball undefeated, and the teams divided the series of two games. Willamette seemed slow and uncertain in the first game, and Whitman neatly returned the Bearcats, but the Cardinal and Gold turned savagely around in the second game and gave the Missionaries a good trouncing.

The thing we like to remember best in the last sport year is that second Whitman game on the hardwood. Willamette played tremendous ball in that game, and Whitman neatly returned the Bearcats, but the Cardinal and Gold turned savagely around in the second game and gave the Missionaries a good trouncing.

The victory bell surely rang out after that game!

Minor sports came into some prominence this last year, the wrestling team taking its share of games under the expert coaching of Roy Mink. Wrestling should have an exceptional season next year, with most of the old men returning.

At last Willamette is about to get a ladder track! If the new climbers are in place next spring, the thinny-clads should make a fine record as several good men are returning and others will come out for the sport when the track is laid down.

The baseball prospects for next year are especially bright because of the number of freshmen on the team. Some of the best players on the diamond are first year men, including the snappy double-play combination of Zeke and Lou Girod, Messenger at catch, Gribble at third base, and Doby Wood on the mound.

Well, we'll say quits for this year, but we're looking forward to another championship next fall, and we hope you'll all be here to enjoy it.

line, "Weenie" will probably be needed at end, although he is an ideal half back. He is supposed to have shown a lot of stuff up at Washougal before coming to Willamette.

BEARCATS WIN ALL BUT THREE GAMES

Baseball Squad Remains Almost Intact for Next Season

The year 1931 was very successful for Willamette in the diamond sport, the team annexing fifteen out of eighteen games and trouncing such strong teams as Whitman, Oregon, and Oregon State.

The team dropped two early season encounters to Oregon State, and was blanked by Whitman in the second game of the championship series. Several authorities on Northwest baseball, including Borleske of Whitman, "Frisco" Edwards, and two major league scouts, pronounced the Bearcats the best team in the Northwest.

The season was featured by the strong pitching of the Bearcats, and the team's hitting ability. Several of the games were more like track meets than baseball games and only twice during the entire schedule did a team hold the Bearcats under three runs, Whitman's fine bunch of ball tossers turning the trick.

Spec Keene has a veteran team returning for Willamette next year, losing but one man by graduation, Scales, a sterling first baseman. The pitching staff will be especially strong with Doby Woods, Andy Peterson, and Pete Gretsck returning. The three pitched winning ball throughout a difficult season, each man winning several important games. Peterson's record is more startling than the others, but Woods and Gretsck hurled remarkable ball and should be much improved by next year.

Willamette's star infield will return almost intact with the Girod brothers coveting at short and second, and Lowell Gribble or Gus Moore holding down the hot corner. Williams or Erickson may fit into Adams' place at first, each showing a lot of speed in the past season.

Willamette has in Messenger, behind the plate, a real find. The husky freshman catcher will return next year and should develop into a real star if his playing improves.

The Bearcat outfield, which will return en masse, was excellent defensively but rather weak in batting. This weakness may be overcome next season, however. Those who shone in the garden were Scales, Erickson, Moore, Gill, and Peterson, the fielding of Scales at center being outstanding. Spec played Andy at right field when not pitching in order to utilize his big bat as much as possible.

Besides the regulars, "Spec" uncovered much talent among the new men, who may develop in time to first class players next year. Among these were Williams, Crawford, Houck, Woodworth, and Paul.

BEARCAT WRESTLERS HAVE GREAT SEASON

Willamette wrestlers enjoyed a successful season. The two home matches were won easily, and the men showed up unusually well in the other five matches in which they were entered. Several districts, Northwest "Y", and city championships were won.

Women's Athletics Report a Successful Year as Findley Sisters Grasp Tennis Title

Women's Athletics at Willamette have had a very successful year. Much interest has been shown in all the sports.

In tennis, the only inter-collegiate sport in which women at Willamette are allowed to compete, the Willamette team composed of Pauline Findley, Edith Findley, and Janet Well won the Northwest championship for the second year.

The four classes competed with each other in five different sports: basketball, volleyball, baseball, tennis, and archery.

Basketball was the first indoor sport. Three classes, junior, senior, and freshmen, tied for first place in this sport, but the juniors, who amassed the most points, were awarded the championship.

The next tournament held was in volleyball. The juniors again proved victorious, winning from the senior team in a close battle to clinch the championship.

With spring came the outdoor sports beginning with baseball. In this sport the sophomores came out on top. The seniors came second, juniors, third, and freshmen, fourth.

In the sport made famous by Robin Hood archery, the sophomores won first place. The freshman team came out second, the seniors third, while the juniors brought up the rear.

The tennis tournament ended with the freshmen winning the singles championship and the sophomores holding the doubles title.

Added impetus was given to women's athletics this year because of the student body award to women who have made 1900 points earned by entering practically every sport offered. This year the girls getting their "W" sweaters were: seniors, Mildred Pugh Emmons, Marvella Edwards, Edith Morange, and Rosalind Van Winkle; junior, Muriel White.

MANY DEFEATS MET IN MEN'S TENNIS

The Willamette men's tennis team closed the spring matches with a nearly unbroken string of defeats. The bright spots of the season were the match with the College of Puget Sound which Willamette won, 6-1, and the Northwest conference tournament in which Roeder won his way to the semi-finals. The team's defeat in the Northwest tournament was alleviated by the tennis which the Findley girls played in defeating all other opponents in the girls' matches, and so winning both the singles and doubles titles for the Northwest.

WILLAMETTE TEAM WINS HOOP TITLE

Five Lettermen Returning to Boost Hopes for Another Championship

The Bearcat hoop machine won Willamette's first championship of the year, successfully defending its title. Spec's aggregation was a real team of hardwood pacers, and swept through a strong field with but three defeats to annex the title. Whitman broke Willamette's two year conference winning streak in the Bearcat gym to split the title series, but Willamette won the last game by an overwhelming score and Whitman conceded the title to the Bearcats.

The Bearcats were given but one chance at Pacific Conference opposition and in that game led the Orangemen through three quarters of fast basketball, only to lose out in the last quarter. Oregon was scrimmaged several times but the scores were not for publication.

The prospects for next winter's team are very bright with every veteran returning but Dwight Adams. Adams played his last game, and one of his best, for Willamette in the title series, and his place will be hard to fill.

Spec played when "on", was almost unstoppable and gave the fans many a thrill with his sparkling play. Scales mated with Adams at forward and did excellent work throughout the season, fighting hard, and dropping baskets from every corner of the court. Klooster came in to hold down Cardinal's place at center, after the big training camp with an eye cocked for professional baseball. Klooster was the only freshman on the team, and showed enough class to stamp him as a prospective star. He is tall enough to get most of the tipoffs, and tap the ball in on push shots.

Carpenter and Gibson were the fighting guards of the Bearcat team. The two played great ball throughout the last Whitman game, scrapping like blood-crazed wild cats, and exhibited moments

ALPHA PSI DELTA WINS TWO TITLES

Competition between the various organizations has been unusually keen this year—as is evidenced by the results of the Do-Nut league.

The Alpha Psi Delta teams seemed to have the eye for victory this year, for the fraternity men were victorious in pass ball and in indoor baseball. Before claiming first place in pass football, the Alpha Psi's were forced to conclude a play-off with the Sigs, who, incidentally, were runner-up in all three events.

The faculty was victorious in basketball, with Sparks and Keene heading the list in that department. The feature of the baseball season was the entrance of the International team organized by Bill Hall. The foreign lads performed well this season.

The Do-Nut league does more than anything else in creating a spirit of athletic rivalry among the boys and an appreciation for true sport and competition.

Nelson Sets Record in Meet to Close a Mediocre Season in Bearcat Track and Field

By CHARLES GIANOLI

The Bearcats came home from Walla Walla two weeks ago, not with a victory but with added determination to win next year. Willamette sent only a few men to the meet, but those few represented the school in true Bearcat style. These boys deserve credit for their work in staying out all season even under adverse circumstances.

The feature of the meet was the pole vaulting of John Nelson who went over the bar at 11 feet 3 inches to set a new Northwest conference meet mark. Johnny tied with Puget Sound for the honors. Since Nelson is only a sophomore, he should be able to improve greatly by next year and go over the bar at 12 feet.

Other Willamette boys who placed were Kaiser, Lang and Stone. Cook had excellent chances of winning the two mile, but pulled a ligament during the race and was forced to withdraw. With the aid of new material from incoming classes and with all of these boys back except Stone, the Bearcats stand a fine chance of giving the other Northwest conference teams some first class competition.

In looking back over the present season, we find that the results are not as lamentable as they might have been. The Bearcats won but one track meet—defeating Pacific College at Newberg by approximately 20 tallies. Willamette lost to Pacific University, Linfield, Monmouth, placed fifth in the five-way meet and came in last in the Northwest conference meet at Walla Walla.

Throughout the season the work of some of the boys has been consistently fine. Nelson's pole vaulting was undoubtedly the best bit of work during the season. Much is expected from him in the future. "Weenie" Kaiser, freshman, did a splendid bit of work in the half mile—placing second in the Northwest conference meet. Phil Armstrong won his letter this year by his work in the sprints. Lang and Stone bore the brunt of the Bearcat attack in the distance runs. Many of Willamette's points were scored by these two boys. Cook did well in the two mile, while Kendall, hampered by sore legs, was unable to place this season.

With prospects of a new cinder track next year, the Willamette outlook is very hopeful. There is no question but that Willamette would have had a fine track team and that more interest would have been shown in track, a sport included a large group of students may participate, if a cinder track had been installed. A new track has been promised, so the tracksters will have an opportunity to shine.

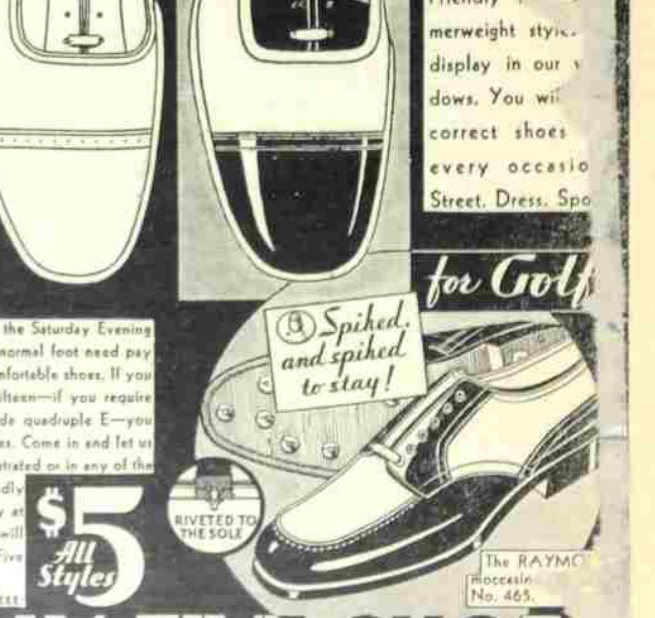

of stellar ball in other games, especially in the second Pacific contest.

The Willamette squad was especially strong, and the team was not much weakened by substitutions. Andy Peterson at guard, Moore and Faber, forwards, and Walt Erickson, and Fred Paul saw lots of action last year, and will probably see much more next winter. With so much good material, and some likely freshmen coming up, "Spec" should be able to turn out a third championship team.

Adams, Gibson, Scales, Carpenter, Klooster, and Peterson won letters this year.
