COLLEGE BRED

The fellow who invented the well-weathered joke that "college bred" means "a four-year loaf," did more than afford a laugh-maker that even age evidently cannot dull.

It's easy for the outsider to sneer at the loaf hours of college life; but we pity the specimens who might turn out upon the world with no college education except that to be gotten from text books.

The dough that enters college environment does not rise by poking itself into a treatise on metaphysics or differentiated calculus, and emerging four years later a thorough expert on these subjects.

On the other hand, the frowning citizen has some ground for complaint, when the loaf-periods are ill-utilized.

We could mention some forms of loafing, but we'd step on some one's toes if we did, and we can't afford to lose a friend. We might mention strolling the walks in company with a chocolate bar and someone else three hours out of eight.

It's much easier to suggest a few of the rare opportunities for refinement that present themselves in the form of dramas and musical artists; thinkers who speak, and who write into our abundant libraries; in the multitude of serviceful activities on athletic field and in the student body organization.

NOW THAT WE'VE GOT THEM, LET'S SING THEM

Thirty-six days from date the campus will receive the guests whom the biggest event of the year attracts to Willamette, to see its life and inspect with a critical eye to choosing an alma mater.

One of the most impressive features of Junior Week-end, say those who have attended it in former years, is the tradition of singing Willamette songs.

Almost nothing has been done in anticipation of May Day, in the way of singing. There have been few song rallies, and none recently. The serenades from the past Glee have been heard only when a band of serenaders has caroled them under the midnight skies.

We need to practice our songs, and the places to do it are in the sororities and fraternities, Lausanne Hall, and certainly, at the chapel service.

SING THEN, YE BIRDS

Funny what a lot spring vacation can do. When we came back and saw the trees budding out, we were almost as full of glads as Pollyanna.

We're so glad we take Botany. Now we can scout for Bush's pasture and count the petals on the flowers, and never feel a bit guilty. And so glad we signed for Zoo and Ornithology, because we love to chase the little fish worm to his den under the maple trees and sit real still while the flicker carols to us.

Yes, we're glad about most everything, but there's still one cloud in our sky. Why, oh why, did we ever sign up for a class in Education?

One more vacation gone, and you're getting pretty scarce for some of us. Now all together with a good strong pull to the end.

The birds caroled sweetly. The sun shone brightly down; With a sack well filled at Isie's. They sauntered out of town.

"What a strange thing I am rubbing up against," said the borrowed handkerchief.

Just one more day, Adella. However, we hear that the whole Wal-lah staff is after him too.

We are told George Clark is a bit absent minded since he has left Willamette. Dorothea enjoyed Harold Fearings' letter immensely.

It is about time for the Seniors to begin applying for schools and other things.

Our debaters will be home in a day or so. Let's give them a knock-on-dead reception.

It has been suggested that the walk from Waller Hall to Lausanne be named "Petticoat Lane."

Easter has come and went and with it the traditional crop of new spring bonnets appeared. Some of the churches looked like a huge flower garden on Sunday.

Speaking of cuts and penalties:

We thought, this being a Christian institution, that they'd put a lot of faith in our ability to tell the truth. Evidently not.

But if the faculty conscience won't let them accept our meagre excuses, they might at least notify us and give us a hearing, a little before doomsday.

But it all means improvement in the scholastic standards, so we oughtn't to mind being the martyr.

However, what worries us is, if the students have to improve so rapidly and strenuously, why not ask the pros to improve along with us?

Maybe after we've grown up we

Tuesday evening the choir of the First Methodist church, under the able direction of Prof. E. W. Hobson repeated their excellent Easter musical program.

Wednesday night the school of can be depended on to know how to conduct ourselves. We're young yet.

We were under the impression that we were at Willamette with steady purpose to get all we could out of it, and that's why we'd saved our cash, etc. Evidently not.

The buildings still standing But a straight row Of beautiful slender oaks All grown upon the north side

The whole college yard Was leafless, paperless, and cow-less

The college flower spots Had the sod upturned And leveled down

And smoothed out By iron tined rakes, And calloused hands.

High in the top Of a blooming maple A red-breasted bird Sang the forewarning

Of summer. Spring had come! Spring was here! Everybody was happy.

Indoor Track Meet Feature of Clever Party

Twenty maids gathered with Marian Wyatt and Ruth Ross last Wednesday evening for a mid-vacation frolic. An indoor track meet was the predominating feature, the contests being between the "Eat-Em's": Harriet Van Slyke, captain, Gertrude Tucher, Jenelle Vandevort, Maurita Miller, Betty Hummel, Nellie Watts, Georgia Cook, Mary Cole of Monmouth, Marie Rostein; and the "Peacocks": Margaret Mades, captain; Joe Brass, Elsie Hop Lee, Mildred Hansen, Gladys and Myrtle Jensen, Florence Young, Genevieve Findley and Beryl Marsters. The honors for track events were carried off by the "Eat-Em's." Menu cards bade each guest make a choice of three items, and according to Mildred, "You can never tell what's coming by the name!" After refreshments and singing of songs of "Youth and springtime," accompanied by Joe, the athletes dispersed.

Dinner Given for Portland Students

Mrs. W. J. Herwig of Portland was hostess at a very charming dinner party on Saturday evening in honor of a few university girls. The table was centered with a crystal basket of yellow daffodils and crystal candle sticks with yellow tapers. The yellow note was brought out also in the tiny baskets filled with Easter eggs, while throughout the evening music was furnished by a chorus of canary songsters in the dining room. After the four-course dinner the guests indulged in ferretting out conundrums until the radio concert was announced. The guests were Lorna Lovett, Evelyn DeMoss, Henlah DeMoss, Alice Wells and Mary Wells.

Portland Alumni Entertain With Easter Fete

Full of the joyful holiday spirit, the Portland Willamette club bid welcome to the Portland students on Wednesday evening at the home of Colonel and Mrs. Percy Willis on Mallory avenue, in Portland. Miss Bernice Knutz, who graduated in '20, acted as mistress of ceremonies, introduced the guests to many new and unique Easter games. Paul Flegel, with his usual exuberance of wit and repartee, lead the hilarious group around the neighborhood, over steps, fences and high curbs, and safely back, where they divided into four groups. These groups put on a most thrilling melodrama entitled "King Toot-long-Amen." Between acts Miss Sadie Pratt's "Jazzcowsky orchestra" rendered many heart-throbbing selections. After the dramatics Miss Pratt sang a solo, accompanied by Miss Grace Brainerd, and Miss Pauline Remington gave a charming reading. Partners were chosen and refreshments of French pastry and "Easter special" brick ice cream were served.

Kappa Gamma Rho's Have House Warming

The Kappa Gamma Rho fraternity threw wide their doors on Friday evening before vacation to welcome some of their friends in a "house-warming." The event was planned as a sort of introduction of their new home to the campus as they have moved from their former residence to 318 North Church street. The games were in charge of Harold Fearing, who introduced as the first game the famous bean forfeits game. The next event, particularly significant to the occasion, was a sort of lottery in which each girl was requested to draw a folded paper from a bowl. The two "lucky" guests found the fraternity emblem on their slips. They were then presented with envelopes which disclosed cards tied to matches. Thus Deane Hatton and Maurita Miller complied with the message on the cards and lit the Kappa "house-warming fire."

After the guests were ushered through the house, they were taken back to the dining room, where they were served with delicious fruit salad and cocoa.

The guest list included Professor and Mrs. Ebsen, Mary Spaulding, Ruth Hill, Margaret McDaniel, Deane Hatton, Alma Wells, Adella White, Ruby Rosenkranz, Maurita Miller, Lucile Wylie, Marjorie Brown, Polly Bartholomew, Alice Wells, Mary Wells and Leslie Oliver.

Many of the students who stayed in Salem during the vacation planned hikes answering the call of the outdoors in this glorious spring season.

Dorothy Palmer spent last week in Portland as the guest of Verna McKeehan.

Anne Lavender, Hollis Vick and Myrtle Jensen were the guests of Margaret McDaniel Friday night at her home in Portland.

Delferna Kelo spent the week end in Portland at the home of Margaret BoDine.

Winifred St. Clair was a house guest at the Kappa Kappa Gamma house at the University of Oregon last week end.

The girls of the V. W. C. A. will give an informal tea at Lausanne hall on Saturday afternoon in honor of Miss Heller, who is general student secretary for the Pacific region. This is Miss Heller's first visit to Willamette University.

Miss Blanche Billmeyer of Lausanne hall has been taken to the Deaconess hospital for an appendicitis operation.

Miss Grace Brainerd was a guest of Miss Hulda Hagman in Astoria during the vacation.

Albert Geyer was the guest of Don Lockwood in Portland on Saturday and Sunday.

Peace Oratory Tryouts Scheduled for Tuesday

Tryouts for the peace oratorical contest will be held next Tuesday, April 10th. Thus far four contestants have submitted orations for judgment on composition; however, there are several others purposing to try out, among these being the debaters who are yet on the big trip. If the number does not exceed four or five, the orations will be heard at the chapel hour; if more appear probably a special try-out will be held in Waller hall during the evening.

The first interclass debates will be held April 20th between Freshman-Sophomores, Juniors-Seniors respectively.

Victor Carson and Harold Fearing hiked to Seattle during the last week.

Clarence Oliver spent the week-end with his brother Leslie Oliver in Corvallis.

Professor Catke spent the week of vacation at Cottage Grove, visiting with friends.

Miss Ruth Ross entertained several of her university friends on Monday evening with a radio concert at her home.

Colored Students at Morristown Entirely Erect New Buildings

Colored students are as enthusiastic in their work as are white students, says President Judson S. Hill, who for 42 years has been head of the Morristown Normal and Industrial school institute for colored people.

The Institute is justly proud of its laboring classes. The students are carrying their studies to a practical end by working on the four new buildings now in process of erection at Morristown. Every step in the construction of the buildings is being done by them, from the cutting of the trees and shaping them into planks to making bricks in a kiln of their own manufacturing. The buildings being constructed are two dormitories, a refectory and a steam heating plant.

Men of the junior class of the University of Nevada have sworn off shaving for three weeks. At the end of this time a '49'er' dance will be held.

How Electrical Engineering began

IT IS not enough to experiment and to observe in scientific research. There must also be interpretation. Take the cases of Galvani and Volta.

Oneday in 1786 Galvani touched with his metal instruments the nerves of a frog's amputated hind legs. The legs twitched in a very life-like way. Even when the frog's legs were hung from an iron railing by copper hooks, the phenomenon persisted. Galvani knew that he was dealing with electricity but concluded that the frog's legs had in some way generated the current.

Then came Volta, a contemporary, who said in effect: "Your interpretation is wrong. Two different metals in contact with a moist nerve set up currents of electricity. I will prove it without the aid of frog's legs."

Volta piled disks of different metals one on top of another and separated the disks with moist pieces of cloth. Thus he generated a steady current. This was the "Voltaic pile"—the first battery, the first generator of electricity.

Both Galvani and Volta were careful experimenters, but Volta's correct interpretation of effects gave us electrical engineering.

Napoleon was the outstanding figure in the days of Galvani and Volta. He too possessed an active interest in science but only as an aid to Napoleon. He little imagined on examining Volta's crude battery that its effect on later civilization would be fully as profound as that of his own dynamic personality.

The effects of the work of Galvani and Volta may be traced through a hundred years of electrical development even to the latest discoveries made in the Research Laboratories of the General Electric Company.

Blizzards of Rockies Are Melted by Hot Air Wave as Men Approach; Letters Occupy Much Time

Letters in the possession of a fair-haired sophomore disclose the facts that the Big Four:

"Are living easy
On pork chops greasy,
Where winds are breezy
And people sneezy."

That was way up in the snow-drifts of Montana.
"Don't be afraid dear friend," writes Bob. "I wear the heavy socks, and besides we were expecting a rather stormy trip. The Minnesota papers reported hot air waves sweeping the country during our visit. I am glad they served notice of our arrival."

The reporter was not allowed to see any part of the letter but the middle. This part revealed that poor Ward was a "shut in" for some-time, due to the fact that Rodney attempted to stand up in the lower berth in order to get his trousers on, and, being an irresistible force, closed the upper berth in which Ward was enjoying sweet dreams of Irma.

Bob Littler is the only one who has not wasted his daily two pennies on inspirational epistles to a fair lady.

It is rumored that he spent his money in Chicago, where he unearthed a real friend.

TRACK MEN TO MEET AT W. S. C.

Willamette is Among Schools to be Represented in Coast Conference June 2nd

The biggest athletic classic in the history of the Northwest, the Pacific Coast Conference and Northwest Conference joint track and field meet, in which teams from 12 colleges and universities in California, Oregon, Washington, Idaho, and Montana will compete, will be held on Rogers Field, State College of Washington, June 2, instead of May 26 as at first announced. The shift was made to permit California to again enter her men in the eastern competition at Philadelphia, where she has for two years won laurels. The annual interscholastic at W. S. C. is to be held May 4 and 5.

Teams from the 9 universities of Southern California, Stanford, California, Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana, Willamette and Pacific, and the colleges of Whitman, Oregon Agricultural and Washington State, will include many stars of national and even international fame. Charles Paddock, who has won title as "the world's fastest human being" because of the many globe records he has broken is said to be sprinting faster than ever this year. He will undoubtedly draw big crowds of those who enjoy seeing pretty track work, especially as this first appearance of his in the Northwest will probably be his last, since after this year he will be ineligible for collegiate competition.

Cabinet of Y. W. C. A. is Installed; Must Take Special Examinations

On Thursday, March 22nd, the Y. W. C. A. held its beautiful symbolic installation service for the new cabinet in the association rooms.

After devotionals the new officers outlined their tentative plans for the year. Chairmen were appointed in charge of the various departments, Irene Walker to take charge of the meetings for the year, Genevieve Thompson to supervise Bible study, Caroline Wilson to look after World Fellowship, Alma Wells to plan all social affairs, Adelia White to oversee the social service department, which includes the work at the state institution, Margaret McDaniel to stimulate throughout the year, interest in the Seabeck summer conference, Juanita Henry to care for the association rooms, Mildred Marcy to take charge of the industrial work which links the University girl with the girl in industry, and Jewell Delk to head the finance department.

The cabinet this year is facing a new situation in meeting the increased requirements of the national organization. A course of systematic study is to be pursued for the next month, after which the cabinet will be required to pass examinations prepared at the national headquarters.

Thomas Loefferts, a poet, but serious minded enough but continually falling into some unintentional, humorous situation. Don Lockwood may well do himself credit in the comedy lead, taking the part of Salton Tucker an attorney with a sense of humor, and an all-round good fellow. James Caughlan will characterize Paul Dangerfield, a butler by stress of circumstances but not by trade. Charles Conyell will try his sense of humor in the impersonation of Charles Dangerfield, a young man of a rather jealous disposition. The one remaining piece, that of Randolph Meeks, a very ordinary young Virginian has not yet been filled, but will be within a very short time. The characters chosen have been working steadily on their parts and give promise of feeling quite at home in their roles when the play is given on the 11th of May.

There is a prevailing difference between the spirit of the Czech students and that of the Germans. The former seem to be hilarious supporters of everything that makes for democracy, while the latter seem to be very conservative and ready to cling to medieval traditions.

But the most significant of all student institutions at Prague is the Studentsky Domov, or students home. Here we saw explosive mixtures of Czechs, Slovaks, Russians, Ukrainian, Hungarians and Germans mingling together in a common brotherhood. It occasionally took the good offices of an American secretary to ward off a storm, but not often. At Prague there has long been a German and a Bohemian university, but lately the government has established a Ukrainian and a Russian university, giving instruction in their several languages. America is taken as a model in governmental and social affairs but just how proud we shall be of future results may be only a conjecture, with so many perils living in the way of the new republic.

The results accomplished by the Student Friendship fund can hardly be overestimated. Lives that have been embittered by nearly nine years of war have seen a new light, and are looking upon the world with ideals completely changed, all because somebody cared.

The government at Prague is supporting more than a thousand Russian students, many of whom were first cared for by American and European student relief workers. At Warsaw we found the students working under great hardships and difficulties. As the Russians had long suppressed all education and books in the Polish tongue there has been a great demand for text books and university students are printing and binding them. We were shown a press given them by the Methodist mission. In the polytechnic school with 4,000 students most of the work is only theoretical because first the Russians and then the Germans carried off their equipment.

In German universities, the students, in large numbers, are quite as bad off as any in Europe, excepting refugees. The precipitous fall of the mark has simply made it impossible for many to study.

An American studying in Germany misses most everything he associates with student life, but most of all the free spirit and spontaneity. If these fellows could be "rough housed" a few times by live American students it would do them more good than centuries of duelling.

During the winter there were about 40 American students in the University of Berlin, but about two-thirds of them have served their sentences and have decided not to try another term. The rest of us enviously watch them go and count the weeks till the police shall give us permits to leave somebody's fatherland.

Ladies' Night at Bligh Proves Too Great Temptation to Lonesome Kappa Gammus

"Any lady presenting this coupon with one paid admission will be admitted to see 'The Man From Texas' at the Bligh theatre," was an inspiration to seven youths stranded in Salem during vacation.

With a few Lausanne "haulers" cooperating, Miss "Mabel" Sloop, becomingly clad in a brown velour suit, sport hat, striped silk hose, "dainty" black silk pumps, brown silk gloves and her coupon tucked in her patent leather vanity box, supported by the arm of Albert Geyer appeared on State street at 8 o'clock.

A few moments earlier, Miss "Susanne" Oliver passed the post office accompanied by Roy Skeen. She walked beneath a black velvet hat trimmed in gold braid. A charming velour coat, a neat blue and white pleated skirt and a dainty crepe blouse set off her graceful figure. Her capricious ankles were covered with white silk hose and white canvas pumps.

In her wake followed a vampish virgin "Kattie" Ryan. A lovely blue and gray tam, a field mouse grey coat, a blue serge gown trimmed in the popular red, silk hose and sport oxfords set off her unique charms. She leered alternately and conjointly on the arm of Albert Logan and Si Neher.

The shy and reserved little maids demeaned themselves as ladies—save when Kattie embarrassed her partner by reaching for her handkerchief, when Susie went into a paroxysm of coughing, and Mabel demonstrated her laugh that tinkled like gentle cowbells.
