T HIS NEW card-key policy is one we believe our students will value and honor, but it does not lower our standards."

Senior women have found the "key" to display the responsibility that they have been seeking.

The "key" for greater responsibility is the virtual elimination of closing hours for senior women or women over 21 years of age by use of a card-key system.

Women students eligible to receive the card-keys can gain entrance to their living organization after hours by inserting the card in a special electrical mechanism that unlocks the door.

The Board of Trustees approved the card-key system on a one year trial basis after considering a proposal by the Associated Women Students.

To qualify for a card-key, the senior or woman over 21 must: (1) not be on academic or disciplinary probation, (2) have parental permission to receive the card, and (3) sign a pledge indicating that she wishes the responsibility of a card-key.

The responsibility of ownership of a card is evident in rules that state that a student who loses her card must purchase new cards for her entire living organization and a new cartridge for the unlocking mechanism; a loan of the card to a non-eligible student will bring about forfeiture of the card-key privilege; and women with card-keys are still expected to "sign-out" and indicate their destination, companion, and approximate time of return.

AWS president Bobbie Weidner said that "The aim of the system is to allow the Willamette woman the freedom to express her individuality, responsibility, and maturity, while at the same time providing for the security of the women

Governor Picks Dean Reese

While Dean Seward Reese has officially retired from duties at the College of Law, he's not slowing down. Besides starting law practice in Salem, Governor Tom McCall appointed the former dean to the five-member State Scholarship Commission, subject to Senate ratification.

both in and out of the living organizations."

Dean of Women Vera Haberer said "This new policy is one we believe our students will value and honor, but it does not lower our standards or change our concern for the individual student. Rather, it should be considered an expression and extension of the University's trust in the good judgment of our young women as they accept additional responsibility."

The policy will be carefully reviewed at the end of the academic year before a decision is reached on its continuance. The AWS revealed a survey that showed about 98 per cent of the Willamette women students in favor of the card-key system.

What To Do With $2 Million?

The dispensation of more than two million dollars will be one pleasant task of the Board of Trustees in October. That is the sum turned over to Willamette by a circuit court order to terminate a trust created by the late Frederick W. Leadbetter.

Leadbetter had originally planned that a 2,013-acre tract of land at the confluence of the Columbia and Willamette rivers be held in trust for the University for 50 years from the time of his death, which was Dec. 22, 1948.

Leadbetter was a Portland philanthropist, lumberman and paper manufacturer.

The property was acquired by the Port of Portland through condemnation proceedings in 1965 for $2,085,000. This money remained in the trust under the trusteeship of George H. Atkinson, president of the Willamette Board of Trustees, and Glenn L. Jackson, chairman of the State Highway Commission and also a board member.

These trustees filed a friendly suit against Willamette to determine the proper disposition of the money.

JAPANESE cheesecake attracted these students attending the fourth seminar in American Studies through the sister-college arrangement with International College of Commerce and Economics. See page two.

Circuit Judge Virgil Langtry expressed the opinion that since intention of the trust had been altered by the condemnation, "Leadbetter would have intended to leave principal in the form of cash to the disposition of the Board of Trustees of Willamette University."

Use of the money, which has been invested since 1965, will be determined by the Board of Trustees. The sum is included in the total of $7,349,101 that has been received since 1965 for the University's Fund for Educational Excellence which has a goal of $12.5 million by 1972.

University Center Delayed

Mounds of fill dirt will be the only signs of the proposed University Center by the time students return to school.

A delay in the final drawings of the three-story structure has in turn delayed the calling for bids. Officials now express the hope that bids can be called before September and that construction will start before October. The late start makes doubtful the planned opening at the beginning of the 1969 school year.

Six Faculty Members, Library Cataloguer Among New Appointees

Six more faculty members and a library cataloguer have been appointed for the college year, bringing the total of new appointees or replacements on the staff to 16. The seven are:

Dr. Virginia E. Knight, assistant professor of mathematics, B.A., DePauw; M.A. and Ph.D., University of Oregon.

Patricia E. Kelsh, visiting instructor in political science, B.A., Marylhurst; M.A., Villanova.

Dr. Hilda Stubbings, assistant professor of English, B.A., M.A. (American Studies), M.A. (English), Stetson University; Ph.D., Vanderbilt.

Walter A. Yungen, instructor in mathematics and computer science, B.A., Willamette; M.S., Oregon State University.

Virginia L. Anderson, senior cataloguer, University Library, B.A., University of Puget Sound; M.L.S., University of Washington.

Ingrid I. Derkatsch, instructor in art, B.A., Univ. of Oregon; M.A., Univ. of Calif. at Berkeley.

Major Joseph C. Hoffman, assistant professor of aerospace studies, B.B.A., University of Wisconsin.

Stars Make Grid Future Bright

When Ted Ogdahl's football forces assemble Sept. 1 even the most ardent fan might have trouble picking out the stars.

Superstars like Jim Nicholson, Mike Shinn, Gib Gilmore and Cal Lee will be readily recognized, but Ogdahl has assembled a supporting cast that could well make his 17th season the greatest of all.

The fact that he has 32 returning lettermen, 19 of 22 starters back, and that his Bearcats are co-Northwest Conference title defenders doesn't tell the whole story.

He and assistant coach Joe Schaffeld have had an exceptional recruiting year. Ogdahl has even indicated that "some of the starters from last year will have some real battles for their spots. And that's a good sign," he smiled.

He expects about 40 newcomers and an original turnout of about 80 altogether. Twenty-one of the freshmen can boast honors ranging from All-League to All-State.

On Oct. 19, Ogdahl will tie former Willamette coach Roy 'Spec' Keene for the most football games coached by one man at Willamette, a total of 141.

Officials Mull Japan Study-Tour

While 53 students from Willamette's sister college in Japan were engaged here in the fourth seminar in American Studies, officials made preliminary plans for sending Willamette students to Japan.

Al Fedje, Director of Admissions and director of the American studies seminar for the Japanese students, hopes to be able to send a group of 30 Willamette students to Japan next June.

"We are determining the costs involved and setting up a tentative schedule to present to our students this Fall," he said.

Preliminary plans call for a plane trip to Tokyo, two weeks of study at the International College of Commerce and Economics, one week of travel, and a boat trip back to the states. Japanese professors would speak English in presenting courses in Japanese culture and history. Willamette faculty members would accompany the students.

Just four years ago, President Taizo Kaneko of I.C.C. and President Smith formulated the sister-college relationship. I.C.C. was just getting started as a four-year co-educational college in 1965 when the agreement was reached. Today, the young college has an enrollment of nearly 1,000 students and is situated at Kawagoe City, 30 miles northwest of Tokyo.

Twenty-one students from I.C.C. visited Willamette in 1965, with the numbers increasing each year to the record 53 this Summer. Willamette professors have noted that the students have shown less and less difficulty with English each year, partly due to selective admission standards at I.C.C. and partly due to the training they receive there.

Willamette's first official representative to visit I.C.C. was Dr. Theodore Shay, chairman of the political science department, who spent six weeks there early this Summer.

PROJECTED ENROLLMENT PRESSURES MEN'S HOUSING

When a call comes from the men's dormitories this Fall for a stretcher, a physician need not get alarmed.

But a construction engineer might take note.

That is, unless the new Dean of Men has success in finding rooms for an expected large influx of men undergraduates.

By Aug. 1, room deposits had been received from 246 freshmen men and 13 transfers, compared to 196 and 12 at the same time last year. While the search for men's quarters commenced, 201 freshman women and 14 transfers were expected to fit comfortably in women's housing on campus.

Altogether, it appears that incoming students in liberal arts and music for both on and off campus housing, will number over 520, nearly 90 more than last year.

Projected enrollment for the College of Law as of Aug. 1 was: first year, 132; second year, 110; third year, 80.

Shades of Li'l Bo Peep

Stubborn sheep in Australia have caused a delay in the delivery of over 360 retroactive Juris Doctor degrees.

No kidding.

Delivery of sheepskin from Australia has been delayed, so the degrees will be mailed to the applicants sometime in September.

By Aug. 1, applications for the retroactive J.D. had reached 358, while ten law graduates had applied for the J.D. cum laude. About 750 law graduates received official notice and application forms for the retroactive degree in April.

Forty-five of the original J.D. recipients were eligible to apply for cum laude honors. Application forms are still being received by the College of Law.

PROGRAMMING Willamette's football fortunes should be fairly easy for coach Ted Ogdahl (right) and assistant Joe Schaffeld. While they could have use of the University's new computer for plotting strategy, they have been utilizing their time more in the acquisition of new talent to go along with 32 lettermen. Recruiting efforts have been rewarded, as over 40 freshmen are expected to turn out Sept. 1. See opposite page for the schedule of home games.
