Delegate Petitions For Model UN Drive Monday Afternoon

Petitions for delegates to the model United Nations must be turned into the Student Body office by next Monday at 2 p. m. Willamette University will represent Canada at the convention which will be held April 4 to 7 at Oregon State College in Corvallis.

Ten delegates and one press representative will represent Willamette at the assembly. Plans to send a faculty advisor with the group were dropped by Student Council.

Each delegate requires a $15 fee, and a general school registration fee of $10 is paid for the group as a whole. Following a report by Marian Rutledge, Student Council decided Wednesday to raise the necessary funds by drawing $115 from the Convocations allotment and $5 from capital outlay. Each participating student delegate will pay $5 to make up the balance. Total cost is $175. Individual classes and organizations were suggested as possible financial sources but these schemes were discarded.

Students will be chosen to serve as delegates by a committee of students and faculty members who will select on the basis of the petitions and additional recommendations. All delegates must be approved by Student Council. The committee members include Dale Patton, Gay Kent, Dr. Robert Gatte, Prof. Chester Kaiser, and Prof. Clarence Kraft.

Campus Unesco plans to start a study group on Canada in order to stimulate interest and, at the same time, create a nucleus of information for the use of the representatives.

Class, AWS Posts To Be Filled Soon

Election dates for class officers, AWS officers, and rally squad members were announced this week by Dale Greenlee, ASWU second vice-president. Primaries are set for Thursday and Friday, February 16 and 17, with the run-offs to be held the following Monday and Tuesday, February 20 and 21.

Voting booths will be open from 9 to 3 each of these days in both Collins and Eaton Hall. New Student Body cards are necessary for voting and should be picked up at the Student Body office.

Extend Poster Contest Time; 'The Robe' Billed for CR Week

Monday, Feb. 13, was announced as the new deadline for the CR Week poster contest by Glen Murray, CR Week chairman, at last Wednesday's Inter-faith Council meeting.

The new deadline was set because finals prevented many interested students from entering the contest and the CR Week committee wants as many entries as possible from which to choose. As previously announced, the entries should be submitted on 18 by 24 inch white poster paper and should be confined to the theme of the week, "Spotlight on the Search."

Worthwhile cash prizes of $25, $15, and $10 will be given to the first three places. Posters will not be accepted after Monday, and they should be submitted to Dr. Thomas Bennett or Murray.

Wider Street to Foul Parking

Mid-Year Degrees Given 16

Adding to Willamette's parking woes, the Salem city council approved the construction of a four-lane highway on 12th Street which will require the removal of the parking strip now used by Willamette students.

The project will be turned over to the State Highway Department in two months, and at that time the work will begin.

The street now has a railroad track running through the center with two automobile lanes on the side opposite the Willamette campus, a one lane on the near side. The planned street would have all four lanes on the Willamette side of the tracks. The Southern Pacific Railroad Company, which owns the tracks, cannot let the tracks be moved from the present position.

The street has had traffic problems for many years because of the tracks. Many accidents have occurred as a result of the train's running down the center of the street.

The new street will have a curb between the track and the pavement, to prevent any more.

Renovation Plan Rests With Smith

George Hoyt, presenting the proposed plans for moving the publications offices to the old art building and turning Waller basement into student lounges, told the Student Body council Wednesday afternoon that the final renovation decision is up to President Smith.

A detailed report of recommendations has been turned over to Business Manager Richard Petrie, Hoyt added. Bids for the proposed work are expected to come in this week. President Smith, Petrie and Hoyt will meet early next week to make final plans, with Smith having the final say-so.

It was pointed out that should the proposed change be accepted, the students would have to hire a maintenance man to keep the art building heated. Other changes appeared to be minor ones, according to Hoyt.

cinemascope movie production, has been secured by the CR Week committee for a free showing in the Fine Arts auditorium, Thursday, March 8. It is to help provide the climax for the discussions which will be shared during the week.

Dr. Harold Hutson, Dr. John Robb, Dr. Richard Bender, and Roger Ortmeier will comprise the consultation team which will accompany the CR Week committee to a retreat at Camp Magnuder, March 2 and 3. They will be available individually to living groups for after dinner discussion

Pic Deadline Nears

Final deadline for Wallulah picture-taking at the Kennell-Ellis studio is Wednesday. Students are urged to go to the studio before this deadline, at any time of day.

Student Insurance Premiums Offered

Accident and illness insurance is once again being offered to the students of Willamette University. This semester the insurance will be available from now until February 20 in the Student Body office.

Barney Rodgers, the University's representative to the Continental Casualty Company of Chicago, which will handle the insurance, announced that the premiums will be $4.95 for the rest of the semester.

Premiums will be payable at the Student Body office at the same time Student Body tickets are claimed. All new students will be eligible for the plan. Former students will have to renew their policies to be covered for the rest of the school year.

Concert to Feature Violinist, Orchestra

Isaac Stern, world renowned violinist, will be featured in the Portland Symphony Orchestra concert scheduled for next Tuesday at 7:30 p. m. in the Fine Arts auditorium. Tickets are available at Stevens and Son for $2.50 and $3.50.

The orchestra, conducted by Theodore Bloomfield, will play a Beethoven violin concerto; Haydn's Symphony in C Major, No. 97; and Bach's Brandenburg Concerto, No. 4.

Spring Rush Period Set for Next Week

Women interested in participating in spring rush are advised to sign up today in Dean Ewalt's office. February 15-18 has been set aside for the organized rush functions. Women interested in rushing must have a 2.5 grade point average for fall semester.

Wednesday the women will assemble in Lausanne lounge at 6:40 for final orientation. The first func-

Sixteen degrees were conferred yesterday morning at 11 a. m. during mid-year commencement ceremonies in the new Fine Arts auditorium. The graduation exercises were held in conjunction with the seventh annual Founder's and Benefactor's Day, honoring Lewis H. Judson, founder, and Carl Gregg Doney, benefactor.

Ray Owens based his speech honoring Lewis Judson on information he obtained from the grandson of this versatile pioneer. Judson was a member of Willamette's original Board of Trustees and personally fired the bricks which were used to build Waller Hall.

Gay Kent honored a former Willamette president, Carl Gregg Doney, with a speech which she based on the parable of the man who built his house on a rock. She compared this builder with Doney, who was a builder of self-discipline, faith, and character.

Music was provided by the Willamette string ensemble, conducted by Dr. Willis Gates, and the University a cappella choir, directed by Don Gleckler. Tom Larson sang the traditional "Farewell Willamette."

tion is from 7 to 7:30 at Delta Gamma; from 7:45 to 8:15 at Pi Beta Phi; from 8:30 to 9 at Alpha Chi Omega; and from 9:15 to 9:45 at Chi Omega.

On Thursday the first function is from 6:30 to 7:15 at Delta Gamma; from 7:30 to 8:15 at Chi Omega; from 8:30 to 9:15 at Pi Beta Phi, and from 9:30 to 10:15 at Alpha Chi Omega.

Friday functions are 6:30 to 7:15 at Pi Beta Phi; 7:30 to 8:15 at Delta Gamma; 8:30 to 9:15 at Alpha Chi Omega; and from 9:30 to 10:15 at Chi Omega.

Second preference luncheon is scheduled from 1 to 2:30 Saturday afternoon. Afternoon dresses and heels are in order. First preference banquet is from 5:15 to 7 and attire is semi-formal.

General rules for the week include casual dress at all functions except first and second preference; no themes or decorations. Entertainment will be in order.

To date nineteen women have signed up to participate in spring rush.

Chorus to Appear

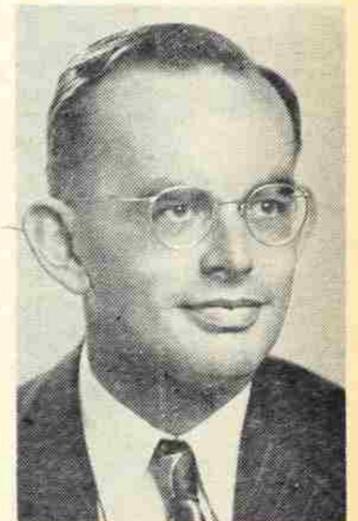

Everything from "Bach and Beethoven to Richard Rodgers and Sigmund Romberg" will mark the program of the 21-man Winged Victory Chorus in its appearance Friday, February 24, in the Fine Arts Auditorium, according to Bill Nelson, concert manager. This is the third in the 1955-56 series of Distinguished Artist concerts.

Educator to Vacate 9-Year Job for Post With City Schools

Dr. George Martin, professor of education and head of the education department, will leave Willamette at the end of this year to assume new duties as assistant superintendent in charge of educational services of the Salem school district.

"This was not an easy decision to make," Dr. Martin said. "This is my ninth year and I have enjoyed excellent relations with students and faculty." "However," he continued, "taking everything into consideration, I felt this was the thing I should do."

DURING HIS nine years on the faculty, Martin has served as director of graduate studies and of summer school in addition to his responsibilities in the education department. Besides these duties he has taken an active part in the administrative side of school life, serving on four committees during his tenure here: the graduate study committee, the educational policies committee (headed by him for four years), the counseling and guidance committee, and the student affairs committee have all claimed his attention.

In addition to his committee work, Martin acted as general manager of the Student Body for three years prior to this year. Last semester he was a member of Oregon's delegation to the White House conference on education.

BEFORE COMING to Willamette, Martin was associated with the Berkeley public schools as the elementary school principal, having previously been teacher and counselor at the Berkeley high school.

In his new position, Dr. Martin will have responsibility for the curriculum and the improvement of instruction of the Salem school district. It will be his job to help determine what will be taught and how to give leadership to teacher committees working on these problems. Also he will help new teachers get acquainted with the Salem schools, and assist all teachers planning for more effective instructional methods and procedure. Besides evaluation of the educational program, he will also be responsible for publications and will share responsibility in teacher selection.

On the Death of the Governor

Last week Oregon's Governor Paul Patterson died.

Now in viewing the situation that the state faces following the unexpected heart attack, The Collegian has asked faculty members for their comments on the Governor's death — and its effect on the people and politics of Oregon . . .

Forseeing "the most crucial contest between the two parties that the state has ever seen," is Dr. Robert Gatke, professor of political science. "A very effective administrator has been taken," Gatke reflected, "yet the long time political situation is more serious than the immediate picture." He explained that Patterson was by far the most likely candidate for senator and for defeating Wayne Morse, but his removal has thrown everything wide open: "None of the potential candidates measure up to Patterson and his favorable hold on the state."

" . . . The outstanding man of the Republican party," agreed Charles A. Jens, associate professor of law. Jens pointed out that Patterson and the legal aid clinic maintained by the University law school cooperated very closely with each other. "In fact," Jens recalled, "one of perhaps his last acts was to send a woman over for legal aid about 3:30 of the same Tuesday (of Patterson's death)."

And perhaps the most succinct, yet revealing was that comment of a Democrat — Dr. Ivan Lovell, professor of history. "He (Patterson) was a good governor and will be hard to replace."

Summing up the situation of Oregon's people and politics was Professor A. Freeman Holmer, associate professor of political science: "Paul Patterson's calm, but impassioned devotion to the highest ideals of public service and his acknowledged wisdom of judgment should be a model for us all. His political and administrative skill will be missed by his party and his state."

DEAN MARK Hatfield has further pointed out the loss to the University itself: "The Willamette students and faculty have lost a real friend and neighbor in the passing of Governor Patterson," Hatfield remarked. "His frequent visits to the campus and the contacts our people have had with him established warm friendships across State Street."

"The death of Governor Paul Patterson . . . has opened wide the political competition . . . to an unusual extent and in an almost unprecedented fashion," declared Dr. John Rademaker, professor of sociology. He explained that all four of the top state offices are now open at the same time, whereas normally only two come up in any one election year. "This combination of contests for all these offices is a rare one, and gives the Democrats an opportunity they have seldom if ever had before," Rademaker continued, commenting that both the Democratic and Republican parties have, in his opinion, put forth candidates of such high quality that "it seems to me that we Oregonians are fortunate in our freedom."

Uncle Tom's Crabbin' By TOM LOREE

Cherries, Finals, and Things

My name is Hovel, Frank Hovel. I'm a professor at Willamette. That means I profess. The course I profess is Methods of Procrastination 284 and 285. It's a real popular one at Willamette, as it's a requirement for graduation there. But it's a good course, with lots of contemporary application.

WE STUDY IT from a historical standpoint, as well as the methods of practice. Start back with a pupil of Socrates named Ismene, who kept suddenly discovering he'd forgotten to take a toga to the laundry for his mother in the crucial point of the discussion when ol' Soc started asking questions, and work up through all sorts of famous procrastinators. Take for instance the boy on the burning deck, who actually was trying to remember whether or not he'd left anything behind, and put off leaving until he was famous. And then there's Benjamin Franklin, who coined the famous motto, "A stitch in time would have been done by someone else if you'd put it off long enough."

But I digress. I was going to point out that, contrary to popular student opinion, the life of a professor at finals time is not all Johnny cake and strudel. If this is a bowl of cherries, someone took the cherries and left the pits. Our lot is not, God wot, entirely sitting in the front of the room sneering at the weak-hearted faint when they read the little surprises contained in the final.

ALL THE STUDENT has to do is prepare for the final, although they seem to think that's enough. We gotta make the darn thing up! Try this sometime, if you think it's easy. We gotta read the book, too, y'know. (although some profs advocate the method of being blind-folded, opening the book, stabbing out with a pencil, and then making the entire final on the paragraph marked. This is a comparatively easy method, but has been known to bother some faint-hearted insurance companies.)

Where the real pain comes is in grading the tests. Of course, this being a course in Procrastination, I have out a take home test, due Monday afternoon, with none accepted later than that without a written and witnessed excuse from the president of the American Procrastinators Society (which has not yet incorporated as they haven't got around to it.) Naturally if the test was not held off 'til Friday, the students had no chance for an A. Rather tasking to the ingenuity, but four or five of them made it.

I'm rather proud of some of the fine answers given on the essay part of the test, as they showed the keen ability of the students to put off looking up the correct answers in a book. For example, in response to the question, "What were the four causes of the high incidence of procrastination in the pioneers of America?" one very sharp boy put: "I do hate to be a dissenter, but I find it difficult to pick out four causes in the movement. I rather side with Voltaire, Descartes, and

Friends Like WU? . . . Go See Paeth

Interest in one's friends is always a trait encouraged by Charles Paeth, director of admissions, especially when that interest is likely to direct the friend Willametteward.

Anyone who is interested in seeing a friend come to Willamette is most cordially urged to see Paeth. He has voluminous material designed to arouse interest in prospective students which he is very eager to distribute. Names and addresses of high school seniors are always highly welcome in his office. "One of the most important parts of admissions work is student recommendations," Paeth stressed.

Cat's Tail

Says Duane

For those of you who are looking for "Cat Tails," this is it, even though the headline says "Cat's Tail." The artist who drew the headline (whose initials are June Lytle) insisted on being original. Intentional or not, I'm not sure I enjoy the inference.

BEFORE ANY of you ask, I am not the cat of pajama fame during the roaring '20s. Which reminds me of a story (which reminds me of Alben Barkley).

In scanning through back issues of Collegians of several years ago I came across an alarming story about a raid by the Freshman women in the men's dormitory on the morning of the Homecoming leaf rake. The idea was to chase the pajama-clad men who had overslept out to rake up leaves. In the course of routing the sleeping men it was discovered that 23 per cent of the freshman men at Willamette do not wear pajamas to bed! Which has nothing to do with a cat.

ONE NEWS SPOT often overlooked by the college newspaper is the science department. Scientists are human, you know. Take for instance the scientific view of the female of the species as described by "The Technician" of Southern Technical Institute. It printed this description of a woman as seen through the eyes of a chemist:

Symbol: WO.

Accepted Atomic Weight: 120 lbs.

Physical Properties: Boils at nothing and freezes at any minute; melts when properly treated; very bitter if not well used.

Occurance: Found wherever man exists.

Chemical Properties: Possesses great affinity for gold, silver, platinum and precious stones. Violent reaction if left alone. Able to absorb great amount of food matter. Turns green when placed beside a better looking specimen.

Uses: Highly ornamental; useful as a tonic in acceleration of low spirits, and an equalizer of the distribution of wealth. Is probably the most effective income-reducing agent known.

Caution: Highly explosive in inexperienced hands.

Which has nothing to do with pajamas, either.

THE STATE'S travel publicity department has spent much time and money promoting the beauty of Oregon's forests, but never have they been so in the spotlight as right now. It seems the nasty old federal congress is investigating a mining claim made in the timber-rich Rogue River forest just because assays made under previous administrations did not show sufficient mineral content to warrant the grants, and because the mining company "incidentally" reaped a 9000 per cent profit from the sale of timber on the claimed land while in the process of discovering their misfortune.

This situation provoked U. S. Representative Edith Green of Portland to come up with the following: I thought that I would never see A mining claim that was a tree Mines are mined by fools—we see While Al Sarena mines the trees!

There's something in the grass, but it isn't a cat.

YOU MAY BE of the opinion that housemothers are pretty much detached from the "spirit" of final week, but I know better.

One housemother sat up late one night last week typing a paper for a student. As the hour grew later and the housemother wearier another student appeared in the doorway and casually queried, "Do you have any benzadrine?"

WITHOUT looking up from the typewriter the housemother replied "It's in the top left hand drawer."

Stunned, the student asked again "which drawer?"

"Top left hand—BENZADRINE!" she screamed, "I thought you meant Bufferin."

scholarship vs. athletics?

The current and long-running feud at the University of Washington over the rehiring and firing of football coach Johnny Cherberg is another black mark on the reputation of that institute of higher education. But more than that, it is an indication of the results to be obtained from an over-emphasized athletic program.

The University's football antics these past weeks have attracted more alumni attention than did the refusal to let Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer speak there last year. The Cherberg situation has grown to the point that it is being given special radio and television coverage and a prominent candidate for governor of Washington has made "cleaning up the mess at the University" a plank in his platform.

This sounds more than absurd to us! In the first place it seems ridiculous that "students" should call a protest meeting against the "teaching" methods of a "faculty" member. And it seems utterly impossible that "students" should choose not to go to a University because of the personality of a football coach.

Most disgraceful about the whole mess is the fact that alumni of the University seem to be the forces behind it. Their primary concern is directed toward the outcome of the athletic teams, and little attention is paid to the academic enrichment of the school. They take the attitude that the worth of your college diploma is determined by the athletic fortune of your alma mater. What is even worse, the idea is advancing!

The University of Washington is rated excellent academically in many departments. But she is also notoriously known for her over-emphasis of athletics. The current mess does no good for her reputation, but serves well to illustrate the results of such a policy.

This is the week to begin putting into practice all those New Year's resolutions we've been delaying until the beginning of spring semester. Remember how we moaned about our studying during Christmas and New Year's Day vacation? Aren't we glad we are on the semester plan now—with only one more set of finals facing us this year. State colleges and universities have two term finals yet, you know.

Chances are, however, we will feel just as blue as ever come spring vacation with comps and orals and finals hanging over our heads. And, the only remedy we can suggest is to put those resolutions to work now. No movies for us this weekend; it's "hit the books."

Dear Ed:

The Social Scoop

By FLOSSY HODGE
Editor

Phi Delta Theta announces the selection of a new housemother, Mrs. Nellie McElhinny. Mrs. McElhinny is a long-time Salem resident and is an active member of various local organizations.

The mother of four children, the new Phi Delta Theta hostess had a son and a daughter who attended Willamette.

Mrs. McElhinny's hobby is bridge, and her proficiency is evidenced by the fact that she gives instructions in this game at the YWCA.

A tea to introduce Mrs. McElhinny to Willamette students and faculty is being planned by the members.

Chi Omega has completed their spring officer elections, according to Shirley Ulinder, chapter president. LoAnne Munding is rush chairman; Marilyn Morton, Panhellenic representative; Suzy Platt, Student Council representative; Mary Anne Swafford, social chairman; Millicent Tower, personnel; Carrie Gillanders, vocations; Sandra McCabe, social service; Shirley McCauley, historian; Sandra McCabe, song leader; and Louise Delano, house manager.

Due to Helen Piazza's withdrawal from school because of illness, Pi Beta Phi elected two new officers to fill her positions. Margie Wood is now recording secretary, while Connie Clark will serve as assistant song leader.

Students in Mr. Gravatt's Collective Behavior class all agree that he really knows how to give a final. A little over a dozen students met in his apartment Monday morning of final week, and took their test with the refreshing addition of coffee and sweet rolls. Mr. Gravatt poured.

Officers have been elected for Willamette's newest living organization—Mu Rho (or Millionaire's Retreat). "Muy" Houser is the new president, and "Sticks" Patterson officiates as house manager. Other officers include "Stud" Chidester, social chairman in charge of extra-curricular activities; Benny Lee, minister of foreign affairs; Ted Jameson, song leader; "Ack" Ackerman, assistant song leader; Glen Murray, chaplain; Willie Thompson, court jester; Thomas Roen (owner), rush chairman; "Flower" Hitchman, standards chairman; "Lip" Lippert, member-at-large; Carl Blandis, intramural manager. Conveniently located next door to the Pi Beta Phi house, Mu Rho's motto is "Have a ball in the H & P Hall" (H & P referring to Houser and Patterson). The men of Millionaire's Retreat are planning a spring house dance, an all-campus serenade and an extensive rush program.

Visitors are always welcome, according to Houser and he offers pledges the following slogan, "Is BIG BROTHER watching you? Get off campus and make it harder for him!" And now for the secret ambition of the men of Mu Rho—they want to go national!

The Student Body Office has reopened for the new semester; the hours are 9 until 4 o'clock, Monday through Friday (including noon hours). So if you want to borrow some student body equipment, get a paper typed, have some mimeographing done, buy your insurance, or just talk over a campus problem, be sure to remember these hours. Also, with class and rally elections coming up, everyone will need their new student body card (be sure to bring your yellow fee slip with you when you come!)

A slumber party at the YWCA is the unique circumstance for orienting the new Campus Y Cabinet Friday night and Saturday morning. Mary Lou Krause was elected president Tuesday night; Peggy Buckley, vice-president; Elaine Gustafson, recording secretary; Jerry Brackins, promotional secretary; Sara Horton, treasurer; and Sharon Laverty, member at large.

Vows Exchanged At St. Paul's Rites

St. Paul's Episcopal church was the setting for the marriage of Miss Paula Harmer and William L. Cranor on Thursday morning, February 2.

Cranor is a senior psychology major at Willamette, and his bride is also a senior, majoring in biology, and is a member of Delta Gamma.

The Rev. George H. Swift officiated at the 10 o'clock rites before members of the immediate families.

Mrs. Norman Zeller was the bride's only attendant. John C. Barsch served as Cranor's best man.

A wedding breakfast was held at the Marion Hotel following the nuptials.

Four Travel to Coast

Four members of Canterbury Club here will travel to Gearhart this weekend to attend the Oregon College Life conference of the Episcopal Church, at the church's summer camp.

The group, Celine Partridge, Esther Gwilliam, Tom Steeves and Duane Alvord, will leave by car this afternoon and will return to campus Sunday.

Congenial seminar-type classes await those students who sign up for journalism courses this semester. Lectures and informal lab periods are held in The Collegian office, conveniently located near the coffee and doughnuts in the 'Cat.

The courses offered this semester by Dr. Murco Ringnald include Introduction to Journalism, one hour, 3 p.m. M or T; Basic Newspaper Techniques, three hours, 9 a.m. MWF; Newspaper Problems and Practices, three hours, 2 p.m. MWF. The main work falls on Mondays and Tuesdays in the form of practical reporting, headline writing, and rewriting for The Collegian.

The staff and any interested students spend several hours each Tuesday night working on the paper as a team. The basement of Waller buzzes with activity as many men and women students bring in stories, go get stories, type, telephone, tell jokes, party, copy read, write headlines, etc.

If you like writing, or like to keep up on what's going on, or like people, or are ambitious and want to work up to a responsible position, or want to learn by doing instead of from books, or need something to fill up your schedule, YOU should register for a journalism course.

Support your school paper, and get credit for it.

Three Couples Plan Weddings

Recently announced to friends was the engagement of Miss Joyce Ohlsen and Richard Quigley.

The bride-elect is a graduate of Oregon State College where she was a member of Alpha Chi Omega. She is now in her second year of teaching at South Salem High School.

Quigley attended Eastern Washington College of Education and is in his second year of law school at Willamette University.

An August wedding is planned.

A heart-shaped box of candy decorated in Pi Beta Phi motif was accompanied by a poem which announced to members and pledged the engagement of Harriet Hooper and Pete Reed last Monday evening.

Miss Hooper is a freshman drama major and a pledge of Pi Beta Phi. She had a leading role in Varsity Varieties and is a member of Willamette University Players.

Reed is a senior member of Phi Delta Theta and a physical education major. He is a member of the varsity basketball team and president of the Letterman's club.

Miss Hooper is planning to be married February 19 in Woodburn. The couple will live in Salem after their marriage where both will attend Willamette.

A little Blue Book titled "Final Examination," contained a poem which told of the engagement of Louise Delano to Bob Cram. Their engagement was told during Dead Week to Miss Delano's Chi Omega sisters.

Miss Delano, a junior home economics major, is from The Dalles and is outgoing treasurer of Chi Omega. She is a member of orchestra and present house manager for Chi Omega.

Cram is a junior mathematics major and lives at Baxter Hall. His home is in Charleston, Oregon.

The couple plan a September wedding at The Dalles and will attend Willamette next fall.

Cats Play Three Tilts

The Whitman Missionaries invade the Bearcats' home lair for a two-game series tonight and Saturday night. These two games will mark the last series between Willamette and Whitman this season.

Monday night the Bearcats take on the league leading College of Idaho Coyotes in another home game. The Coyotes and Bearcats have already met previously in a two-game series at Caldwell, Idaho.

The two-game series against the Missionaries will give Willamette a chance to pull out of the league cellar. The Jasons' one victory in league play this season came at the expense of Whitman who now rests in fifth place ahead of Willamette.

The Bob Burgess coached crew from Walla Walla will be short but should have plenty of speed and good ball handling to offset the height advantage the 'Cats have over them.

Burgess will be counting on the support of two little ball handling slicksters in Del Klicker and Bill Becker, both veteran players. Klicker pumped home 22 points last Tuesday night in the game against Pacific.

Another big scoring threat for the Whits will be big Keith Green at the center slot. Green has a deadly hookshot and enough height to make him dangerous on the boards.

Another pair of deadly rebounders in the forward wall will be Max Johnson and Gary Fowler. Johnson nabbed 13 rebounds in the Missionaries game against Pacific.

When Coach Len Yandle and his College of Idaho Coyotes invade Willamette land Monday they will bring with them an impressive 8-1 record. The Coyotes have rolled over almost all of their opposition by sizeable scores this year.

Leading the C. of I. attack will be big R. C. Owens, the fabulous center with the Harlem Globetrotter antics. Owens takes care of most of the rebounding and a good deal of the team scoring.

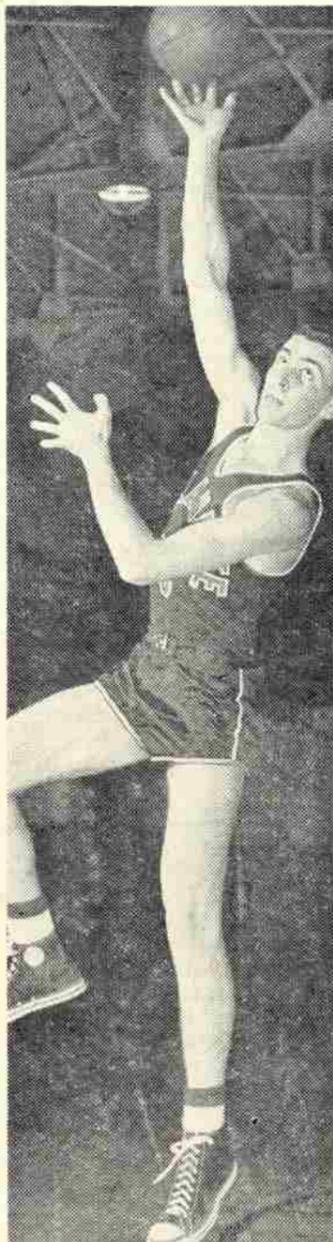

A big blow to the Idahoans hoop wars was the transfer of big Charlie Jenkins to the University of Portland. Jenkins played for Yandle and the Coyotes half a year and was one of the outstanding hoopers in the Northwest.

Coach John Lewis will probably stick with the same lineup he has used throughout most of the season; with Pete Reed and Vic Backlund at the forwards, Neil Causbie at the center slot and Jerry McCallister and Bob Miller at the guards.

One big help to Lewis and the Bearcats will be the eligibility of Don Hoy, brother of last year's team captain Dick Hoy, who may take over at one of the forward spots with Pete Reed. Hoy was supposed to be ready for the Linfield game last weekend.

Bob Miller is another factor that may contribute toward a Willamette win. Miller is a good little guard and play maker and has a good set shot from in back of the key.

It seems that the new rule widening the free throw lanes an additional two feet has proved quite effective. The big boys have to depend more on their skill and less on height.

Many of the tall men that looked good last season haven't fared as well this season. Oregon State's Phil Shadoin quit the Beaver ball club because he wasn't playing enough. We suspect that Phil depended more on his height to carry him successfully through a game than he did on his skill.

Gary Goble, one of the hottest high school prospects in the country last year, is another example of height versus the wider lane. Goble, a 6-9 giant, was prolific point producer in his prep days. Since he went to college Goble has hardly been able to hit the two figure column.

These aren't the only big men hard hit by the recent ruling. It would seem that all over the country the situation is repeating itself. The practice of "dunking" the ball through the hoop is all but gone from the basketball scene this season.

Most of the point producers are getting their shots from outside the free throw lane. The boys who can dunk in set shots, hook shots and the like are the ones making the points.

Players like Ohio State's Robin Freeman, who has a deadly shooting range from way out, Oregon's State's Dave Gambee, who hits most of his points from one handers outside the key and Jim Patnoe of Washington, who is another deadeye from outside the lanes are just a few of the many collegiates like them who are leading the nation in scoring and hogging most of the limelight.

College of Idaho seems to have some of the toughest luck in the NWC. Every time the Idahoans get an exceptionally good ballplayer they lose him. The latest loss the Coyotes suffered was the transfer of big Charlie Jenkins from the Idaho school to Portland University.

Dean Benson Drafted by San Francisco 49ers

By BOB BARKER
Collegian Sports Writer

"Before I make up my mind to play professional football, I'm going to try my best to get on this year's United States Olympic team," said Willamette senior Dean Benson, who was drafted to play for the San Francisco 49ers last month.

Benson, who was one of the nation's top three high hurdlers in his junior year, doing the high hurdles in :14.2, a near United States mark, said everything will have to take a back seat to his Olympic aspirations. The summer Olympics will be held in Melbourne, Australia, in November.

The draft system, employed by the National Football League is a cooperative operation in which each team selects prospective and eligible players from colleges and universities, and then notifies the player. That player then becomes ineligible to play for any other team in the NFL.

Benson said he was "thrilled" when he received a telegram from the new 49er coach, Frankie Albert, a former All-American Stanford star. Benson has been a track and football star since he came to Willamette as a freshman. In his sophomore year he made honorable mention on the All-Conference football team and as a junior made the first team. This year he had a leg injury which kept him inactive for most of this season.

In track he was a conference champion in his last two years and last summer participated in the NCAA track and field meet. In this meet Benson got off to a good start but stumbled and fell on the second hurdle. He got up and finished the race closely behind the winner.

A physical education major at Willamette, the 6 foot 2 inch, 188 pound Benson hopes to get a master's degree and some day teach and coach for a high school.

Wildcats Claw Bearcats In Saturday Night Game

By BOB JOHNSON

It was a case of accurate field goal shooting, too much of one Don Porter and a last second rally that fell short as the final whistle sounded, that beat Willamette University as they took another loss at the hands of the Linfield Wildcats by a 76-72 score.

The Bearcats took a double setback as they not only got shoved down the Northwest Conference ladder a little farther, but also lost the services of forward Jack Bishop who plans to go into the Navy soon.

The Jasons got off to a fast start and jumped into a 14-8 lead with Vic Backlund and Jerry McCallister leading the way. The Bearcats held leads of 16-12 and 22-18 before the Linfield Wildcats began to catch fire and finally tied up the ball game at 26-26.

It was at this point that the Wildcats, who brought their loop record to 5-3, wrapped the lead up for good on a Porter tip-in that made the count 28-26 with over five minutes gone in the first half. The first period ended in favor of the McMinnvilleites, 44-38.

The second half was all Linfield as the Wildcats increased their lead to as much as 10 points, holding margins of 50-40 and 56-46. The Bearcats then started catching up and narrowed the score to 58-53, then to 58-55, but Linfield rallied to 60-56 with 7:17 left in the game.

Willamette again narrowed the difference to 66-64 and then pulled to within two points, 68-66 on Ron Fitzgerald's long push shot with only 2:47 left to play.

Here Bill Machamer dumped one free throw and missed on another. Porter followed with a tip-in to restore the Linfield margin to five points at 71-66 and enable mentor Roy Helser's crew to stay in front till the final gun.

Center Don Porter was high point man for the game, scoring his 28 points on ten field goals and eight free throws. The big 6-5 center hit on pushers, lay-ins and tip-ins to increase his conference leading scoring total to 180 points in eight games.

Vic Backlund was second high for the game and top point getter for the Bearcats, as he amassed a total 18 for the evening. Backlund hit six straight push shots at the start of the game. Both Neil Causbie and Jerry McCallister connected on 15 markers for the Willamette's and Forward Pete Reed contributed 10 points.

The Wildcats fired a hot 468 from the field, sinking 29 of 62 attempted shots, while the Bearcats hit at a .372 clip on 29 of 78 field goal tries.

Choir Personnel Changes for Tours

No choir member can be sure of going on any of the three separate a cappella choir tours scheduled for the spring semester, warns choir director Don Gleckler. He explained that auditions will be held before personnel is completed for each tour.

Auditions for the March 2 to 5 tour were completed this week, and 50 choir members were chosen for the trip to Milwaukie, Portland, Seaside and Tillamook. Some rotating will be done for the tours, Gleckler added.

Two February appearances have been scheduled for the group, including one for the Salem Lions Club and one for the Silverton Methodist Church.

Men Wanted for Chorus

Women's glee will metamorphose into a mixed chorus spring semester, according to director Don Gleckler. Any men wishing to participate in the one-hour course Tuesday at 4 p.m. should contact Gleckler or attend a rehearsal of the class.
